The last Eagle Scouts...

By Teresa Bigham
 The Hesperian-Beacon

LOCKNEY- Becoming an Eagle Scout is no easy task. It takes years of hard work, dedication, and lots of determination. The last of the Eagle Scouts in Lockney graduated Lockney High School Friday night, May 22.

You must start out as a Cub Scout, then a Boy Scout and last an Eagle Scout. Boys Scouts of America was founded in 1910 and grew very rapidly and soon became the largest youth organization in the United States.

Cub Scouts are for youth ages six to 11 years old. The Cub Scouts program aims to prepare youth to grow into self-reliant and dependable adults. Boy Scouts are for youth ages 11-18 years old or youth who have earned the Arrow of Light award.

Clay and Brett Moore, sons of Dr. Sharie Moore and Sam Moore, joined the Cub Scouts as soon as they could and stuck with it. Other boys in the troop were Jerry Franklin and Keanu Villarreal.

This troop worked to earn Merit Badges to become an Eagle Scout, the highest ranking in Boy Scouts of America. A total of 21 merit badges must be earned before for the Eagle Scout rank, including first aid, citizenship in the community, citizenship in the nation, citizenship in the world, communication, cooking, personal fitness, emergency preparedness or lifesaving, environmental science or sustainability, personal management, swimming, hiking or cycling, camping and family life.

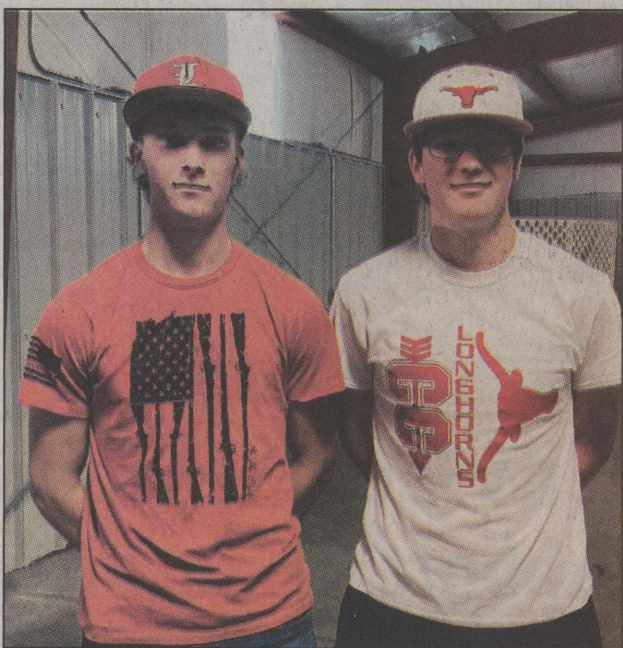

Sadly, Franklin and Villarreal aged out before completing the application process. These two young men still learned an enormous amount of life skills that they will carry with them for the rest of their lives.

The Moore twins both went on to achieve the Eagle Scout honor.

Other requirement is you must be active in your troop for a period of at least six months after you have achieved the rank of Life Scout. You must demonstrate that you live by the principles of the Scout Oath and Law in your daily life. You must also take part in a leader conference and last you have to successfully complete an Eagle Scout board of review application. All requirements must be met no later than three months after your 18th birthday.

"Boy Scouts has taught me so many life skills that I will carry throughout my life," said Clay. "I feel like these skills is what will make me succeed in life." "I have chosen to make the Navy my career. I feel like everything I learned during my time in the scouts will only help me," Clay added.

Brett has chosen a totally different path. He will be attending Texas A&M University in Corpus Christi where he will study marine biology. "I can't wait to use my skills I have learned while in scouts while I achieve my degree," said Brett.

Franklin has also chosen a career in the Navy while Villarreal will be attending the Raider Aviation Flight School.

While there is no doubt these young men will be successful in the careers they have chosen, they will also remain together in heart. "We all have worked hard together, and we will always share a connection in Scouts," said Brett.

Neill named the Floydada Postmaster

By Teresa Bigham
 The Hesperian-Beacon

FLOYDADA - John Neill's life changed on April 25, when he walked in the Floydada Post Office as the new postmaster.

He was born in Chicago and lived there for three years. His family then packed up and moved to Texas.

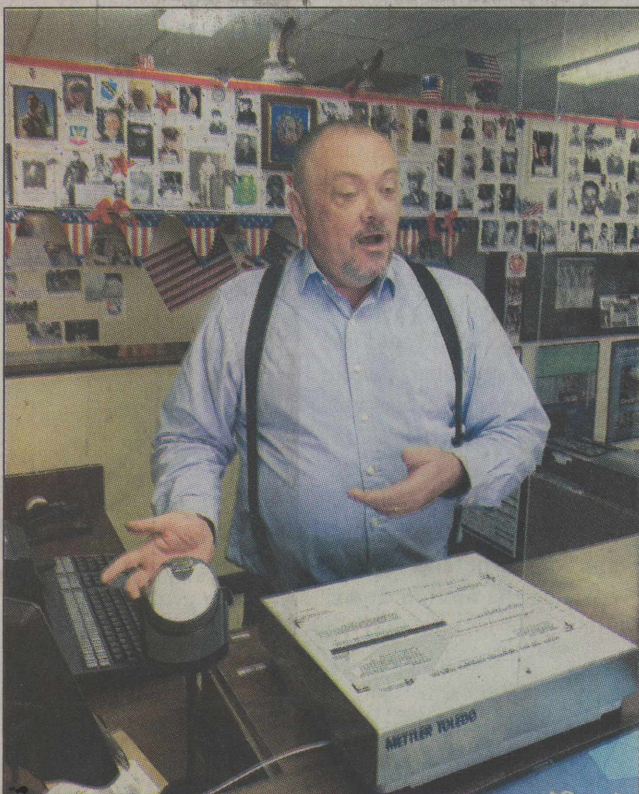

He was working as a computer graphic consultant when he decided he needed to change from all the stress that job entailed.

After that Neill worked many years as a security guard. One day he noticed a post office in the same shopping center as his security job was hiring. He applied for that job and his career in the postal service was born.

He has worked in the postal field for fifteen years. He has mainly worked in the Austin area. For three-and-a-half years he was in San Antonio. The post office there had 77 routes of mail delivery. That is quite different from our six routes.

Neill has been married for eight years to the love of his life, Mosammat. She is currently still living in San Antonio. She is waiting for her job transfer to come through while trying to sell their home.

"My wife is also employed through the postal service," said Neill. "She works as a maintenance mechanic. What she really does is work at a postal plant where the mail goes to be sorted out then is sent off to its destination." "When her transfer comes in, she will likely work in Lubbock, Amarillo or even Abilene," added Neill.

Neill is currently living in Floydada, but the couple plan to live halfway between jobs. He would like everyone in our community to know that he is here to provide the best service he can, and he will do everything in his power to fill the big shoes of the last postmaster.

When he is not working, Neill enjoys trying new restaurants and spending as much time as he can with his family.

He also enjoys practicing his Spanish which he is very fluent in. "I had a friend who was from Mexico City," said Neill. "We traded language lessons. I taught her English and she taught me the beautiful Spanish language," added Neill.

"Floydada is a beautiful community," he said. "I'm extremely excited to be apart it. I can't wait to meet everyone that lives here."

Between the lines If I lived in Minneapolis, I might be dead by now

BRUCE W. GREEN

It is a fact that however perfect the world was created, it is now broken.

As I write this column, the country is on fire — or, at least, some of it is, and the fire seems to be spreading.

It is doubtless a fragile time in the country and not even sitting here and listening to The Righteous Brothers sing "Unchained Melody," seems to improve the mood. Ordinarily, the Golden Oldies can do it for me by transporting me back in my mind to a time when life was simpler, but not today.

Although it helps, you don't have to be from the Panhandle or Panhandle Plains to know things are amiss in the world. A person can think and act these days like a fool no matter whether he hails from Minneapolis, Washington, D.C. or a small town in the Texas Panhandle. It's just that folks from the Panhandle can still recognize irrational and destructive behavior when they see it, and thus are more likely to acknowledge its existence.

Even before this week the country was facing crises and unrest on multiple fronts. The various red and blue states were already seriously divided before the coronavirus hit.

The traditional values of small towns and rural counties, abandoned by entrepreneurs and commercial interests in the rush for globalization, were increasingly at odds with progressive lifestyles in the cities. There was plenty of social mending to be done.

And then came the widespread riots and looting in the wake of the George Floyd death, apparently at the hands of a Minneapolis police officer.

The deplorable conduct of the police officer was captured on video. It was an appalling act of police brutality and is deserving of swift prosecution, which appears to be the course things will take.

But acts of police brutality, however shocking, do not justify random (or directed) acts of violence, looting and the destruction of private and public property.

Anger is understandable; public protest is a constitutional right. But what is happening in numerous American cities is brazen criminal behavior. As such, it occupies no morally higher ground than the conduct of the Minneapolis police officer who is apparently responsible for the death of Floyd.

Unfortunately, in a number of cities, the public criminal conduct is being enabled by cowardly local politicians who have a greater sense of political self-preservation than they do sense of duty to the people of the cities they serve.

There are those who feebly whimper that, while they do not condone violence and looting, they "understand" the anger and frustration of the pillagers. That is pure, unfiltered, sentimental hogwash.

To engage in such sentimental drivel is to give up on reason. It also tacitly insists that human beings are no better than animals that act only out of instinct and are unable to control their destructive passions and impulses.

The best way to affirm a criminal's human dignity is to hold him accountable for his conduct. It says, "You are capable of better than this and we are going to treat you that way." That's what ought to happen to the Minneapolis police officer, and that's what ought to happen to the pillagers.

No matter how justifiably angry a person may be about injustice, a stable society requires a certain restraint of emotions and self-control to achieve the common good.

Individuals who narcissistically insist on satiating their disordered passions will ultimately destroy everything they touch. Their selfish abandonment of rationality must be restrained. If their actions are allowed to "run their course", death and destruction will follow in their wake.

We don't need a college degree or to be an expert in a given field to make a competent judgment about this. It is common sense, maybe even self-evident, and to deny what is self-evident is to lose touch with reality.

And I think this is what bothers me most. Crime has always been with us, whether in the form of police brutality or looting and burning. It always will be.

But, folks, we have a growing number of people around us — many in high places — who appear to have lost touch with reality.

We find ourselves these days increasingly at the mercy of well educated, possibly well meaning, morally stunted and cowardly leaders. And these kinds of leaders just aren't up to the task when barbarians are at the gate.

I know there are lots of problems in the world. Sometimes I feel like publicly protesting myself about any number of injustices. But America is still better than anywhere else.

Given our present circumstances, however, it might be a better time than ever to settle where you can feel at home, where politics and politicians are still responsive to citizens, where the people and the culture make sense, and where most folks drive a pickup, preferably with a dog in the back.

I can almost guarantee there will be fewer riots and less looting there. Email Green at bgreen@lknewsgroup.com.

The 501: Montana or Samoa?

HANABA MUNN WELCH

Planning a summer vacation? How about American Samoa? I just checked, and they've got zero cases of COVID-19. That could change.

If I were in charge of American Samoa, I wouldn't let any visitors come ashore this summer. The Samoan economy is based mostly on tuna. Why rock the boat? Better to lose tourism dollars than risk involvement in the pandemic.

If John Martin Poyor was still alive, he'd no doubt agree with me. As governor of the islands, he famously protected American Samoa from the killer flu of 1918. Per Wikipedia (source also of the tuna info), his territory was one of the only places in the world where no one died from that virus. In nearby Western Samoa almost one-third of adult males and almost one-fourth of adult females died from the flu. So did ten percent of the children.

How did Poyor do it? With quarantine ships. I guess special ships anchored there and restricted anyone from leaving or arriving. Wikipedia didn't go into detail.

The U. S. Navy awarded Poyor the Navy Cross for keeping the islands safe. Who knew? I didn't.

Meanwhile, Wikipedia has taught me more other stuff about American Samoa than I ever meant to learn.

South Pacific warfare can be tricky:

Back in 1889, before Germany and the U. S. divvied up the Samoan Islands, a German naval force damaged some American property in a Samoan village, thereby setting up a face-off between three U. S. warships and three German warships in a harbor. Before shots were fired, a typhoon wrecked all the ships. I'm guessing that was a life-saving typhoon. A compulsory armistice was the outcome.

Makes me think of a fortuitous snowstorm that saved some Comanches from the U. S. Cavalry. The fleeing Indians stopped to send sacred tobacco smoke heavenward to invoke the protection of higher powers. Good move.

Back to COVID-19.

Even if you have a yacht, double check with Samoa before sailing that direction. Don't just say I sent you.

If you're yacht-less, what's left?

Look at the COVID-19 map. Wyoming and Montana are not hot spots. They should be popular destination points this summer. Will Yellowstone be open?

Advice from the Yellowstone website:

"Throw your propensity to assume out the window."

Yep. COVID-19 policies are a moving target. Don't count on anything. Montana has invoked the spirit of Poyor. You have to quarantine 14 days before you enter the state. And entrances to Yellowstone from Montana are closed. Seriously.

Can Montana do that? Apparently.

An interesting thing about the current pandemic is the resurgence of states' rights.

Google "states' rights" and you'll see the question "Who supported states' rights?" as if it were a passé political issue. Wake up Google! Visit Montana. They may not let you in.

It makes me want to sneak across the border.

But I'd also like to sail my yacht to Pago Pago.

When it comes to COVID-free vacations with adventure and excitement, imagination is the best ticket. The price? Unbeatable.

June is Alzheimer's Awareness Month

By Teresa Bigham
The Hesperian-Beacon

FLOYD COUNTY — June is Alzheimer's Awareness Month—an opportunity to hold a conversation about the brain, and share the fact that Alzheimer's disease and other dementias are a major public health issue.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive disorder that causes the brain cells to waste away and die, according to the Mayo Clinic.

There is no treatment that cures Alzheimer's disease or alters the disease process in the brain. In advanced stages of the disease complications from severe loss of brain function can lead to things such as dehydration, malnutrition or infections.

According to the National Alzheimer's Foundation of America memory loss is the key symptom of Alzheimer's disease. An early sign of this disease can be difficulty remembering recent events or conversations. As the disease progresses, memory impairments worsen, and other symptoms develop.

Everyone has that occasional memory lapses. It's normal to lose track of where you put your keys or cell phone or ever to forget the name of an acquaintance. Memory loss associated with Alzheimer's disease persists and tends to worsen, according to the Mayo Clinic.

According to the Mayo Clinic people with Alzheimer's may repeat statements and questions over and over. They may forget conversations, appointments or events and not remember them later. They may even get lost in familiar places.

A person who is diagnosed with Alzheimer's will eventually forget the names of family members and everyday objects. They will likely have trouble finding the right words to identify objects and have trouble expressing thoughts to even taking part in conversations.

The brain changes that occur when a person has Alzheimer's disease can affect moods and behaviors, according to the National Alzheimer foundation. A person affected with this disease may experience depression, social withdrawal, mood swings, distrust with others and changes in sleeping habits.

Several conditions including treatable conditions can result in memory loss or other dementia symptoms. If you are concerned about your memory or other thinking skills, talk to your doctor.

According to the Mayo Clinic, scientists believe that for most people the disease is caused by a combination of genetic, lifestyle and environmental factors that affect the brain over time.

Less than one percent of the time, Alzheimer's is caused by specific genetic changes that almost guarantees a person will develop the disease. These rare occurrences usually result in Alzheimer's onset in the middle age. The exact causes of the disease are not fully understood.

Alzheimer's disease is not a preventable condition. However, several lifestyle risk factors for the disease can be modified. If you have concerns or questions about Alzheimer's disease, please contact your health care provider.

If you have a question about Alzheimer's disease, you can always call the Alzheimer's Association 24/7 helpline at 800-272-3900 for more, or visit us at www.alz.org

And just a reminder — you can get information about the Association's emergency preparedness guidelines for Alzheimer's and dementia caregivers in long-term or community-based care settings here:

This recipe brings back some of my best childhood memories," she added.

THE FLOYD COUNTY HISTORICAL MUSEUM MEMORIES 1979 SULLIVANS

By Grace Sullivan Fulfer

My father, Thomas Isaac Sullivan, was born in 1873 in Woodbury, Tennessee. He came to Hillsboro, Texas in 1887 in a box car filled with stock. He was a farmer. He married my mother, Hattie Ardelia Ball, in 1894. She was born in 1876 in Bosque County and moved to Hillsboro when she was five.

My family moved to Jack County near Gibtown in 1906. We drew water from a well for the stock and the house. We went to Whitney for material for our clothes which Mama made. Food was what we canned.

In 1913 we decided to move to Floyd County and left Sept. 10 in two covered wagons pulled by mules. All the first night we fought off wolves. It rained most of the trip. I slept in the wagon springseat. We were three weeks on the road. When we got to Devil's Backbone below Dickens, the lead team decided to go back down the hill. We came up the Caprock on the Dickens and Crosbyton highway and camped at McAdoo.

We were happy to see the Plains. We stopped 2 ½ miles east of Floydada at Budley Thornton's place (Mrs. Thornton was my mother's niece.) We slept in the wagons and cooked on a campfire. Mr. Thornton let my sick father sleep in the house. Dad lived only two weeks after we arrived. That was the first casket I ever saw as the men usually made boxes. Dad is buried at Floydada.

Mr. Thornton built us a two-room house. My sister Vee stayed with the Thorntons. We burned coal or cowchips and carried water from his house. We walked or rode in wagons to church and school in Floydada.

About 1915 we moved to a dugout near Fairview, where some of our relatives lived. My brother R. C. "Buck" worked for wages and my brother Oscar farmed. Vee and I went to Fairview School but our sister Velma "Jot" was too young.

Near us lived the Tally and Perry Families and we met from house to house for church (Church of Christ.) In 1916 Oscar bought a new Model T. I taught myself to drive in the pasture which was rough because of a prairie dog town. Rabbits stayed around the holes. We ate a lot of rabbit and quail. Mama raised chickens, turkeys, guineas and ducks. We always had cows to milk, so made butter. We took butter, eggs and fryers to Duncan Store to trade for other groceries.

We kept our milk and butter cool in a trough made of 2 x 2 x 6's and a plank. We built a shade on the windmill tower. A pipe ran from the water barrel to the trough, and another pipe ran to the tank where the cows and mules drank.

In 1919 Mama married a widower, A. F. (Abbie) Finley.

His first wife was my father's sister. He had seven boys: Ike, Charley, Elmer, Millard and Glen (Jack), Will and Forest, who are all buried at Floydada except for Glen. I never saw Glen after he came home from the army. He was married in Washington State.

We had to have more land so moved to McCoy. Two of my cousins, and my sisters Velma and Vera went to school there. We attended church there. Mama and Abbie farmed 15 years. After he retired they lived in Floydada until he died in 1938. My mother lived in Lockney the latter part of her life, dying in 1965. They are both buried in Floydada.

I am the only living child. I married General (given name) Delmar Fulfer in 1922. He was a World War I veteran. In 1924 we spent a week-end with Mama and our son Bobby arrived unexpectedly. We farmed at McAdoo a long time. We lived in Lockney 25 years until Dell died in 1972. He is buried in Lockney. I live in DeWitt, Arkansas with my daughter Maxine and Harold Jeffcoat. My son Dickie lives in Plainview. My son Bobby died in 1977.

Non-profit organization seeking local families for hosting high school exchange students

Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

ATLANTA - ASSE International Student Exchange Programs (ASSE), in cooperation with the community high school, is looking for local families to host boys and girls ages 15-18 for the next academic year.

Students from all over the world – places like Germany, Spain, Italy, Japan and Ukraine, to name a few – have already received scholarships to study in the USA. All they need now is you!

Loving and caring host families are the cornerstone of the program and vital to its mission of bridging the gap between people, cultures and nations. During this temporary period of social distancing, more than ever residents need to look forward to and celebrate opportunities to bring humanity back together. By generously opening community homes to a young person from overseas, residents can help continue the global commitment to increasing international peace and understanding.

ASSE is designated and supervised by the U.S. Department of State. Preparations are underway for the 2020-21 program year and the arrival of the new future leaders this autumn. ASSE students come with an enthusiasm to practice their English and experience American culture — food, sports, shopping and more. They also love to share their own culture with their host families — who welcome them not as a guests but as family members — giving both the students and families a rich cultural experience.

In addition, ASSE students have pocket money for personal expenses, along with health, accident and liability insurance. ASSE students are selected for participation based on academics and good citizenship. Host families can choose their students from a wide variety of backgrounds, countries and personal interests.

ASSE's top concern is the health of our host families, host communities, and exchange students. Even as the U.S. and many other countries continue to live under temporary stay-at-home orders, they would like to reassure residents that these students will not travel unless it is considered safe to do so by the U.S. and foreign governmental agencies entrusted with public health and safety.

To become a host family or to find out how to become involved with ASSE in the community, please call Stephanie at 281-728-5075 or the ASSE Southern Regional Office at 1-800-473-0696 or go to www.host.asse.com. There are many students to choose from, so begin the process of welcoming a new son or daughter into the family today!

Elizabeth Lucretia Tye (Betty) Simpson

Elizabeth Lucretia Tye (Betty) Simpson passed away Saturday, May 30, 2020.

Graveside services were held at 2 p.m., Tuesday, June 2, 2020 at the Floyd County Memorial Park in Floydada.

An open visitation was held from 10 a.m. - 8 p.m., Monday, June 1, 2020 at Moore-Rose Funeral Home in Floydada.

Arrangements were under the personal care of Moore-Rose Funeral Home of Floydada.

Elizabeth Lucretia Tye (Betty) was born on May 25, 1930 in White Deer, Texas. She was the daughter of William Orby Tye and Ann Elizabeth McCleskey Tye.

She had five brothers and sisters including William McCleskey "Bill" Tye, Carol Keith Tye, Dorothy Marie Tye Schenk, James Monroe Tye and Carolyn Tye Marble.

The Tye family moved to Floydada Texas where she attended school. Betty grew up in the First United Methodist Church in Floydada, founded in part, by her McCleskey grandparents.

She graduated from Floydada High School and married Jim George Simpson on February 14, 1948. Betty and Jim lived in a farmhouse that he built about 15 miles southwest of Floydada and operated a very successful family farm producing cotton, corn, wheat, various vegetables and pumpkins from the time they were married until Jim passed away on March 15, 2011.

Betty had recently resided in assisted living facilities in Lubbock, Texas.

Betty and Jim had five children: Sherri, Scott, Krista, Clay and Rusty. Sherri and Krista preceded Betty in death; however, she is survived by her son, Scott and his wife, Trena of Floydada, her son, Clay and his wife, Susan of Floydada and her daughter, Rusty of Irving, Texas. Betty is survived by her sister, Carolyn Marble of South Plains, Texas. Betty is also survived by four grandchildren, Joey Rumph of Cleveland, Texas, Neisha Simpson of Lubbock, Texas, NaLyn Swartz of Tahoka, Texas and J.C. Simpson of Lubbock, Texas. She is also survived by five great-grandchildren; Cali and Carson Clemens (Neisha) and Brym, Brayler and Bryke Swartz (NaLyn).

As survivors we remember her as a daughter to hard working pioneer parents who instilled strong Christian family values that have been passed down through generations. We remember her as a person with a kind heart, who was a loyal and steadfast partner to her husband, never wavering and always persistent in the completion of the work at hand. She had a strong will and determination and conquered many adversities, but still had plenty of love and kindness for her family.

We remember her as a great mother to her children, an awesome grandmother and great-grandmother and a fantastic cook who always created a welcoming table overflowing with the best food and the greatest love for her entire family.

Her greatest legacy is that she leaves behind a sincerely grateful family who loves her and will miss her dearly. When we think of her, we will smile and laugh because above all, she had a great sense of humor and those bits of wisdom offered to us regularly through her quick wit will be what we will likely miss the most. A life well

Best for Us

Endure hardship as discipline; God is treating you as his children. For what children are not disciplined by their father?

— Hebrews 12:7 (NIV)

Drinking soft drinks or juice in my young nephew's presence will likely cause him to cry because he wants the drink and is not allowed to consume too much sugar. One day as he was crying for juice, it occurred to me that while children may cry for something that will harm them, adults who know better will allow them to cry rather than to satisfy them with what is harmful.

God called my attention to the same thing about myself. At times when I would ask God for something and not get it within my time frame, I would start crying. Still, my tears didn't make God give me what I cried for. Eventually I realized the truth of Hebrews 12:7: As a good father, God will discipline me so that I can grow. God was not denying me love by withholding certain things from me. By not giving me what I wanted, God may have been protecting me or helping me to grow and mature.

When our desires and tears are for what isn't the best, God will help us not to destroy ourselves with these misguided desires but instead to make better choices. God loves us and wants only the very best for us. —Oluwasola Jegede (Lagos, Nigeria)

TODAY'S PRAYER

Dear Father, when we cry for unnecessary or harmful things, teach us to understand your discipline and embrace a love for your correction. Amen.

AGRICULTURE

Coronavirus Food Assistance Program

By Paul Schattenberg
Special to The Hesperian-Beacon

COLLEGE STATION - The Agricultural and Food Policy Center at Texas A&M University in College Station has released a new report providing details and insights into the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program.

"Overview of the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program, CFAP," was produced by center co-directors Bart Fischer, Ph.D., and Joe Outlaw, Ph.D., along with Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service agricultural economists David Anderson, Ph.D., College Station, and Justin Benavidez, Ph.D., Amarillo.

Recently, the U.S. Department of Agriculture released details on CFAP and announced that sign-up for the program will be from May 26 to Aug. 28. In providing direct support to farmers and ranchers, USDA is drawing on two separate funding authorities: $9.5 billion from the Coronavirus Aid, Relief and Economic Security, or CARES Act, and $6.5 billion from the Commodity Credit Corporation, or CCC.

"Given the scope of the challenges facing the agricultural industry, more assistance will undoubtedly be needed as the impact of the pandemic continues to unfold," Fischer said. "This report is based on our review of available information, but eligibility for the new program will ultimately be determined by USDA."

Fischer said the CFAP's $19 billion package contains two primary components:

- First, the USDA's commitment to partner with regional and local distributors to purchase $3 billion in fresh produce, dairy and meat, beginning with the procurement of an estimated $100 million per month in fresh fruits and vegetables, $100 million per month in a variety of dairy products and $100 million per month in meat products.

- Second, the USDA's commitment to provide $16 billion in direct support to agricultural producers where prices and market supply chains have been impacted and to assist producers with additional adjustment and marketing costs resulting from lost demand and short-term oversupply for the 2020 marketing year caused by COVID-19.

"This report provides an update on both components of CFAP," Fischer said.

The CFAP provides much-needed aid for producers who have been significantly affected by COVID-19, Outlaw noted.

Despite the fact the coronavirus relief bill provided a $14 billion replenishment for the CCC, the funding is not available until after June 2020. As a result, they are drawing on existing CCC funding to operate the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program.

According to the report, commodities eligible for the Coronavirus Food Assistance Program include:

- Livestock: cattle, hogs and sheep (lambs and yearlings only).
- Dairy
- Wool

- Non-specialty crops: malting barley, canola, corn, upland cotton, millet, oats, soybeans, sorghum, sunflowers, durum wheat and hard red spring wheat.

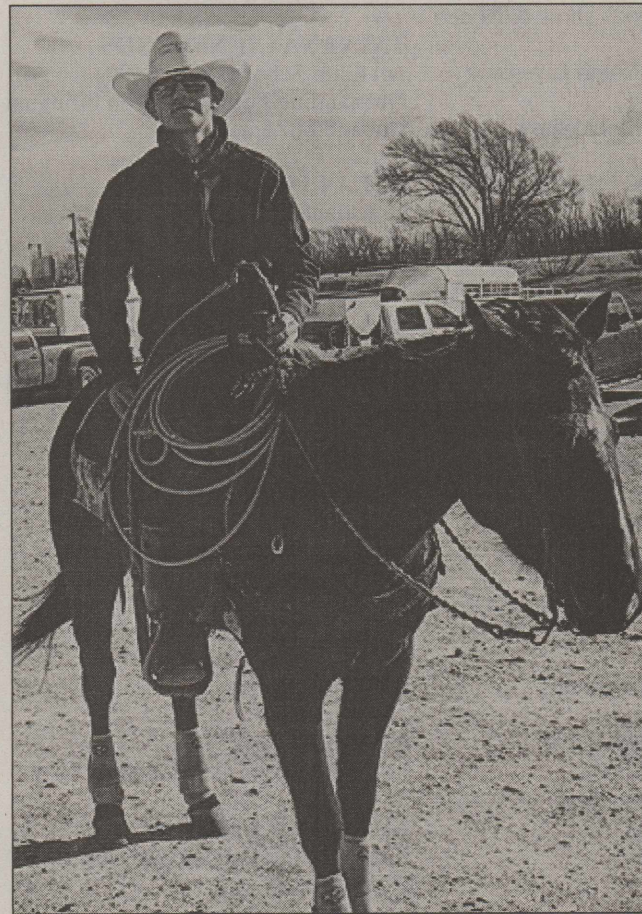

- Specialty Crops — Fruits: apples, avocados, blueberries, cantaloupe, grapefruit, kiwifruit, lemons, oranges, papaya, peaches, pears, raspberries, strawberries, tangerines, tomatoes and watermelons.

- Specialty Crops — Vegetables: artichokes, asparagus, broccoli, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, sweet corn, cucumbers, eggplant, garlic, iceberg lettuce, romaine lettuce, dry onions, green onions, peppers, potatoes, rhubarb, spinach, squash, sweet potatoes and taro.

- Nuts: almonds, pecans and walnuts.
- Other: beans and mushrooms.

In relation to the $16 billion in direct payments to agricultural producers, the report provides clarification on payment rates and eligible commodities, payment limits and income tests, and payment reductions. It also provides payment calculations and examples by commodity.

While CFAP provides a significant amount of aid, there are several losses not covered, Fischer said.

"As noted in another recent report by the Agricultural and Food Policy Center, losses to Texas agriculture alone could exceed $8 billion," he said. "As Congress continues to debate the next steps, there remain some ongoing items of concern for those involved in production agriculture."

Some of those additional items of concern are: 2020 Row Crops: CFAP only provides assistance for crops held in inventory as of Jan. 15. In other words, it provides no assistance for the 2020 crop year.

He identified some of those additional items of concern as:

- Livestock: While livestock producers in general and cattle producers in particular are the biggest recipients of assistance from CFAP, the estimated support for cattle is still significantly less than half of the damages estimated by industry. While animals marketed between Jan. 15
