

Civilian Retroactive Pay Raise For $52,000 Distributed

Checks for slightly more than $52,000 to cover retroactive pay increases for classified Reese civilians employees will be distributed this afternoon by the base finance and accounting office. Distribution will be as regularly requested by each employee, with some checks handcarried to the individual, some sent to banks for deposit, and some mailed to home addresses. Distribution will start at 2 p.m., Maj. Frank Fleming, finance and accounting officer, said.

The retroactive pay covers the period from January 12 to June 30, 1958, and represents about 50 percent of the increased pay which will go to civilians annually. The first regular pay check including the average 10 percent pay raise will be distributed next Friday.

The pay increase will not go to wage board employees, who are paid on the same level as other workers on the hourly basis in the trade area surrounding the base. A wage survey was made recently of the Lubbock area to see if Reese wage board pay needed any adjustment. No announcement on what was found has been made.

The recent pay raise given military personnel added about $50,000 a month, or $600,000 a year, to the Reese pay roll. This raise was announced as about six percent.

Neither the civilian or military pay increases are exactly percentage publicized when the Congress was passing laws on the subject. Length of service, time in grade, and other factors vary the figure for individuals.

Base Rodeo Preliminaries Start; 35 Seek Titles

Preliminary competition in the annual Reese Rodeo got underway Thursday, with indication that progress would be rapid enough to eliminate contests today as originally planned.

Thirty-five qualified drivers were entered in the five classifications. More submitted entry blanks earlier, but a few found duties made it impossible to compete.

A/1C Jack Key, Transportation squadron mechanic, this year is defending his ton and a half truck championship.

Driving against him in preliminaries were S/Sgt. Walter O. Elliott, base post office; A/2C Melvin H. Robertson, A/3C Coy C. Kinsey, and Civilians Milo H. Holcomb and Climas Washington, all of Transportation.

John B. Fuller, civilian mechanic in the 3505th Field Maintenance squadron, this year again defends his championship as best driver of a refueling unit vehicle. Pitted against him are S/Sgts. Curtis E. Hibbard and Robert H. McCord of Transportation, and Paul C. Gillespie, civilian from the base refueling section.

Entrants in the 29-passenger bus driving are A/1C Donald S. Hornbrook, A/1C Robert E. Weimer, A/1C A. C. Smith, A/2C Raul A. Zertuche, A/2C Charles E. Thurston, and A/3C William W. Ferguson, all of Transportation.

Competing as drivers of light sedans are S/Sgt. Donald A. Hoppe, S/Sgt. Wilburn Ford, S/Sgt. Sol J. Stoper, A/1C Oscar Register, Jr., and A/1C Alfredo G. Infante, all of Transportation; A/1C Loyd L. Owens of the 3505th; and A/2C James A. Merritt, base finance office.

Personnel Urged To Follow Sound Policy In Operation Of Financial Obligations

Reese personnel this week were urged by Lt. Col. Robert L. Velde, wing personnel officer, to recheck their financial situation in order to retain good standing and work out savings programs, where possible.

The colonel pointed out that indebtedness has been a problem for many people, in and out of the service, and all persons should give attention to keeping debts at a level where they can be handled soundly.

Rate Lowered

"In several cases," he commented, "Squadrons have recognized the financial troubles and have incorporated the importance of financial responsibility with the initial personal briefing given men in the squadron. These squadrons seem to have a lower indebtedness rate than others"

Colonel Velde urged airmen, particularly, to become acquainted with the Reese Credit Union,

Air Force Aid Society, and Red Cross, all of which may be helpful in case of financial pinch

Two Problems

"The problems of financial responsibility, or irresponsibility, as the case may be, seem to be two-fold," he said "There is the problem of prevention through the use of proper counseling on finances, and the problem of cure or assistance for the people who have gone over their heads in payments and eventually accumulate bad debts."

Colonel Velde urged all personnel to counsel with squadron commanders who have been instructed on financial problems and to work out sound budgets. He also urged that contracts be reviewed by the legal office before they are signed. He urged that Reese People buy only what they feel they can pay for, and that agreements made on payments be carried out.

ATC, Reese Aircraft Accidents Decreased

The lowest aircraft rate in Air Training Command history was recorded during the first six months of 1958, Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, ATC commander, has notified Col. Dross Ellis, base commander.

"Diligent and exacting supervision by you and your staff supervisory personnel is clearly evidenced in this impressive aircraft accident prevention record," the general messaged.

"This outstanding performance gives me the feeling of great pride in this fine command. Now, more than ever before, we cannot and must not relax our vigilance in the field of aircraft accident prevention. It is of vital importance to assure that a climax in aircraft accident prevention has not been reached."

Capt. Gus Quiroga, Reese flying safety officer, said records show the Reese accident rate is less than half that of ATC for the January - June period this year. He added that efforts will be continued, as in the past, to see that all personnel connected with flying remain constantly alert to conditions which prevent flying accidents.

Re-Enlistment On Base Starts Banner Month

Three re-enlistments Tuesday moved Reese re-ups farther along in what is indicated to be possibly the best ever.

Indications are that about 70 percent of eligible Reese enlisted men will extend their tours during July, M/Sgt. Christopher Sturrock, NCOIC of the enlistment counseling office, said.

Extending for six years this week were S/Sgt. Jimmie Cobb of the hospital and A/2C Bruce N. Yeager, Jr., operator in base communications. Re-enlisting for four years was T/Sgt. Paul W. Brooks of the 3505th Field Maintenance squadron communications.

All three indicated they remained in the Air Force because "it is the thing to do."

Sergeant Cobb has been in service more than 10 years and "the service has been good to me." He said he was influenced to remain at Reese because it is close to his hometown of Snyder, and "It never occurred to me to do anything but re-enlist under present conditions."

Sergeant Cobb extended, he said, because "I just like the service and find it is a desirable life in every way."

Airman Yeager commented he would rather stay in service than get out "for a lot of reasons."

The three men will get about $2,000 between them as re-enlistment bonus. Another eligible NCO had intended to re-enlist Tuesday, also, but went to the Lubbock recruiting office in order to be assigned to another base where he will be assigned duties he has wanted a long time.

Firemen Win Praise In Oil Tank Blaze

Reese fire fighting equipment stationed at Hobbs auxiliary field was credited with putting out an oil tank fire 12 miles north of Hobbs last week.

Lightning hit the tank and firemen of Lovington and Hobbs, N. Mex., fought the blaze several hours before the Reese equipment arrived.

"They didn't just help us put it out—they did it," Archie Connor, Hobbs fire chief, said of the Reese work. "Our equipment wasn't big enough to do the job on fire that big, but when that Air Force crash truck started working, that did it."

No Traffic Crashes On July 4 Weekend For Reese Drivers

A low number of accidents — three — for Reese personnel during the July 4 weekend pleased base supervisors and added to the ground safety record.

Only one disabling injury occurred, and no one from Reese was hurt on the highways, available records showed. Personnel traveled well over a half million miles over the weekend.

A would-be racer was disabled. He was making a time run on the Lubbock Teenage Park course when he lost control of his vehicle and it was overturned. The driver received injuries which disabled him two days and added $60 to base costs.

An airman received multiple cuts on his arm when he pushed it through a glass door while attempting to halt a run. Another was bitten by an insect.

Base officials cited numerous recreational activities as contributing to the low accident rate. A base golf tournament attracted attention of many persons, while crowds witnessed Little League baseball games. In addition, several events in Lubbock attracted attention.

Ground safety officials had hoped for another holiday weekend without accident, but were pleased when no highway accident occurred.

New Finance Card Going To Troops

Another friendly accounting and finance service will be available for military personnel of the base during the coming week.

Maj. Frank Fleming, finance and accounting officer, is preparing pay data cards for each officer and airman. This card will show all items of pay and deductions. It is wallet size and will be for ready reference.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR — Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Terence P. Finnegan, deputy chief of Air Force chaplains, who becomes chief chaplain next month, left, was a Reese visitor this week, looking over the installation and visiting friends in the area. He arrived Monday night, spent some time in Amarillo, and returned here Tuesday. Here he visits with Col. Dross Ellis, base commander. He was met on arrival by Col. Clayton Scott, base executive officer, Chaplain (Maj.) Willis Stowers, and Chaplain (1st Lt.) Gerard Lougan. General Finnegan left Wednesday for visits to other Air Force bases.

Right Living Man Gains Power

By Chaplain Willis L. Stowers

The man who has is the man with whom the world wants to deal. It has always been so, since the days of Jesus, who said "Unto him that hath, shall be given." Possessions mean power. That sort of thing is called Capital. A boy with a jack knife or a man with a shovel is a capitalist. With a dollar one can buy a dollar's worth of the world. But there is also a higher form of capital which consists of ideas, faith, hopes and moral potentials.

Life is a continual challenge. Have you got the goods, can you stand the test?

An ad appeared in magazines sometime back sponsored by the General Electric company. It showed two linemen busily and daringly working high up on a telephone pole, repairing damages after a snowstorm. Underneath was the legend "We have what it takes. This job takes the tools, wires and gadgets which the linemen have in their nearby trouble truck, and also the technical knowledge and manual skills and plucky qualities of the men themselves."

Do we have what life takes? Are we fulfilling the demands of our religious life? What are the requirements of the spirit in man? Man shall not live by bread alone, or gain any real satisfaction by flying 1,000 miles per hour.

He cannot reach his Heaven simply by sending a balloon up into the stratosphere.

A man's wealth consisteth not in what he has, but in what he is. If he be right within, he can meet the demands of any day or time, for the ultimate achievement in life is character.

Choose then your own destiny with infinite care, never forgetting that you will live with yourself forever, and forever.

Far East Picture Very Important

What happens in the Middle East in the coming weeks and months could affect everyone in the Air Force and the nation.

John Foster Dulles, secretary of state, recently explained the situation briefly, but clearly. He said nothing now might force American troops into the area, but the United States has obligations.

"There is the provision of the Middle East Resolution which says that the independence of these countries is vital to peace and the national interest of the United States," the secretary said. "That is certainly a mandate to do something if we think that our peace and vital interests are endangered from any quarter."

"There is the basic right, and almost duty, at the request or with the consent of a government, to assist in the protection of American life and property. There is the program of military assistance which we render to many countries, including Lebanon, in terms of giving them equipment and certain measures of military training and techniques, and helping them train technicians to use this equipment. So there are a number of areas of possible action if the situation calls for it."

Secretary Dulles, thus, sets up a basis for thinking. But he also relieved the tension when he added: "We are not anxious to have a situation which would be in any sense a pretext for introducing American forces into the area . . . and the situation to date does not suggest that it would be called for."

Team Better Community Relations

The Chapel softball team from Reese has taken its place as one of the organizations representing the base in its community relations program. Each time any of us mingles with others off-base we are contributing to relations which are good or bad, depending on our conduct.

The Reese Chapel team has met teams from many of the Lubbock churches and base players are becoming better known to all on the playing field and in the stands. An excellent opportunity has been offered the Reese men, and their response has been a credit to the Air Force.

Comments have been many on the manner in which Chapel players have conducted themselves. There has been no wrangling, no dirty play, nothing but playing the game hard as a game and for pleasure.

Some games have been lost, some have been won. But the big thing is that friends have been won and the Reese-Lubbock community is better as a result.

Officer, Airman Personnel Get New Duties

Several Reese Air Force Base officers have received re-assignments, effective for late summer and early fall.

Watkins, commander of the Maintenance and Supply group since May, 1951, leaves soon for leave before reporting to Misawa Air Base, Japan, for duty as director of material for a tactical fighter wing. Lt. Col. Melvin Faulk, executive officer of the Reese pilot training group, recently was assigned the same base.

Hospital Pharmacy Rated 'Tops' For Objectives, Operations

By S/Sgt. Ray Santangelo
Method of operation, filling of thousands of prescriptions, and other moves have brought top billings to the Reese hospital pharmacy.

"Your hospital pharmacy far surpasses any we have visited in the Air Training Command and your staff should be commended on the splendid operational methods and techniques they have maintained," commented Lt. Col. Leonard Dillingham of ATC's surgeon's office during a recent inspection visit of the Reese hospital facilities.

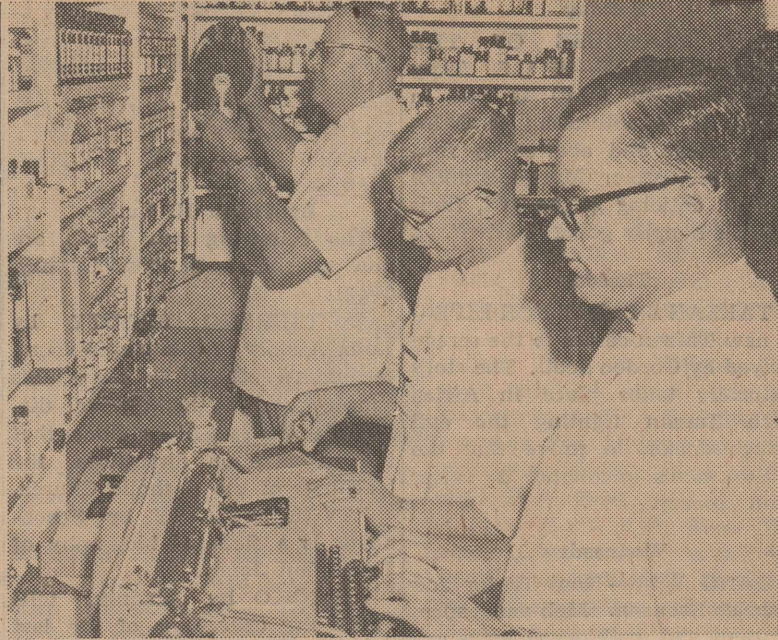

He found, and he'll still find, outstanding status.

Under the supervision of M/Sgt. Jeff Cox, a 12½ year Air Force veteran, the Reese pharmacy fills about 5,000 prescriptions monthly. That's more than 160 a day, on the average. The pharmacy operates within limited space, yet its personnel constantly strive to maintain in stock the very latest drug items to be found on the market.

"An average of three new drug items are introduced on the drug market every day by manufacturers," Sergeant Cox states. "Each week several company representatives from leading drug firms of the United States visit the base to discuss the new drugs with doctors, specialists, and the pharmacist."

In each conference, or in post-conference talks, it is determined by the Reese hospital staff that the new drug is better than the item in use, then the newer drug is purchased and put into use.

An average of $1,500 to $2,000 per month is spent in the Lubbock area for local purchase drugs. In addition, the Purchasing and Contracting office awards contracts to leading drug firms on a low bid and quality basis.

There is a semi-annual meeting of doctors, specialists, and pharmacists at the Reese hospital to discuss each drug in stock. During these discussions, covering a few hours every day for about two weeks, it is determined what drugs are to be re-ordered and which will be removed or not replaced. Thus, available space is better utilized and the pharmacist is ready to serve faithfully.

Along with Sergeant Cox, the pharmacy staff consists of Dallas Whaley and A/2C Edmund English.

Dallas "Big D" Whaley, hefty 6-5 civilian employee, came to Reese in 1956. He's a Texas University graduate with a bachelor degree in pharmacy and has upward of 30 years experience. He owned his own business, the West Texas Pharmacy, in Lubbock for nine years prior to coming to the base. He and his wife live at 1904 Twenty-sixth street, Lubbock.

Airman English is a graduate of the pharmacy school at Gunter AFB. He has been in the Air Force since October, 1955, the past two years at Reese. Reared in California, he formerly worked for Forest Research, and thinks his present job offers "an interesting and challenging career."

Base Pony Leaguers Help Dedicate Park

Reese's Pony Leaguers produced an unexpected contribution to dedication of the Southwest Pony and Little League park in Lubbock Monday night.

From deep in the Pony league cellar, winner of only two games all year, the First National Bank team, made up mainly of Reese boys, rose up to defeat Clubb Grain, league leaders, 6-4. Most fans had been expecting a Clubb victory by a wide margin.

Gene VanOver pitched the first three innings and Phil Johnson hurled four, the latter getting credit for the win. Johnson and Bennie Makowsky got two singles each and VanOver and Tracy Watson doubled.

The league all-star team was introduced at the dedication. Johnson is the all-star shortstop, VanOver alternate pitcher.
