RETIRED—Airmen who retired this week after more than 20 years service each pose with Col. L. C. Hess, base commander, after being congratulated on long service to their country. Left to right are Col. Hess, SMSgt Kenneth Mosbey, MSgt. William Willis, SSgt. Joe Williams, MSgt. Woodrow Pickron, SSgt. James A. Daugherty and AIC James Dollard.

Officers, Airmen Given Praise For Contributions To Nation

Eight officers and airmen with service totaling more than 174 years retired July 31, at Reese in ceremonies in the office of Col. L. C. Hess, base commander.

Returning to civilian life were Col. William A. Martin, commander of the Maintenance and Supply Group; Capt. Ernest S. Parminter, academic instructor and former statistical services officer; Senior Master Sergeant Kenneth E. Mosbey, maintenance control; MSgt. Woodrow W. Pickron, maintenance control; MSgt. William A. Willis, Air Base Group training officer; SSgt. Joel E. Williams, Civil Engineers; SSgt. James A. Daugherty, Civil Engineers; and AIC James C. Dollard, Civil Engineers.

Col. Martin, returning to his home in Roanoke, Va., has been in service more than 31 years and came to Reese AFB from Turkey. His group was winner of the Air Force-wide maintenance award for 1960.

Capt. Parminter, returning to Sacramento, Calif., to enter the real estate business, has been at Reese AFB three years and served three overseas tours. He has been in service more than 20 years.

Sgt. Mosbey, who will attend a radio and television school in Lubbock, has 21½ years of service. He has been at Reese two years.

Sgt. Pickron, in service almost 21 years, will enroll in Texas A&M College. He has been on the base more than three years.

Sgt. Willis is moving to Odessa to enter business. He has served three overseas tours and has been in service more than 20 years.

Sgt. Williams, also in service more than 20 years, is returning to Eastland, Ga., to enter business.

Sgt. Daugherty, a 20-year serviceman, is returning to Jasper, Tex., to take a civil service job. Airman Dollard, a 21-year serviceman, is remaining in Lubbock County to farm. He spent 15 years of service overseas.

Col. Hess praised each of the retirees for "excellent performance of duty" and told each by letter that "no accomplishment could be more satisfying" than service to the nation over the years. He also cited that the service had included development of the Air Force during its advancement as the newest military service.

Five Officers Slated For Hospital Duty

Three additional physicians will be assigned to the Reese Hospital in September, the Air Training Command's surgeon's office has notified Col. Charles F. Ford, hospital commander.

"This will greatly relieve the physician shortage," said Col. Ford. "Cooperation from all concerned will be appreciated until that time."

He added that two additional dental officers also are projected for Reese during August and September.

Medals Given Here During Wing Review

Two Reese majors, Russell C. Hainline and Joseph B. Burdick, were awarded Air Force Commendation Medals during the wing review in connection with graduation of Class 62-A from the basic pilot training program at the base today.

Maj. Hainline was honored for contributions to the base and service as commander of the 3505th Field Maintenance Squadron from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31, 1960. Maj. Burdick received his award for performance as commander of the 3502nd Periodic Maintenance Squadron from Feb. 1 through Dec. 31, 1960.

Maj. Hainline exhibited "expert professional ability" and was highly instrumental in assisting the Base and Maintenance and Supply Group in winning the Air Force Daedalian Maintenance Trophy and Flying Safety Award for the year, the citation said. He also was specifically recognized for reorganizing the ground support branch, improving the tug pool section and for efficiently managing the airborne radio communications section.

Maj. Burdick also was praised for assisting in winning of the Daedalian and Flying Safety awards.

"He demonstrated exceptional ability in management of personnel and aircraft," the citation said.

The major also was recognized for "his high quality of standardization in maintenance of engineering procedures" and for "outstanding performance of duty, competence, attitude and energy."

The medals were presented by Col. L. C. Hess, Reese commander, in behalf of the Secretary of the Air Force.

VISIT SET

Col. Jonas A. Victoria, vice-commander of the Philippine Air Force, will visit a number of USAF installations this month.

President Seeks More Funds For Armed Forces Increase

President Kennedy has transmitted to Congress amendments to the 1962 budget for military functions of the Department of Defense involving an increase of $3.4 billion.

The funds requested will provide for additional manpower and equipment primarily to improve the non-nuclear defense capabilities of the ground forces and of the air element of the Navy and Air Force; provide increased air and sea lift; and expand antisubmarine warfare program.

In addition, they will support an invigorated Civil Defense program to lead adequate protection of civilian population from the devastating effects of nuclear attack.

$19,000 Slated For Recreation

Funds totaling more than $19,000 to increase recreational facilities here have been approved by Air Training Command.

Funds of $16,900 have been allotted for bowling alley equipment and $2,444 for playground equipment. The larger sum will go for installation of racks, automatic pin setters and various allied equipment for the new bowling alley to be constructed at a later date.

Playground equipment, such as swings, teeter-totters, slides and other items, will be installed in the picnic area and government housing area playgrounds.

MAJORS REASSIGNED

Maj. Richard Conn, who has been maintenance control officer in the M&S Group, is being moved to Air Base Group as supply officer. He succeeds Maj. Warren Falk, who is leaving soon for Greenville AFB, Miss., as supply officer.

SAC's 16th Air Force claims that one of its B-47 instructor pilots, Maj. Ralph T. Parker, has the most hours in a Stratojet, 4,044.

The President's amendments bring the total new obligational authority requested for the military functions of DOD for the fiscal year 1962 to $47.5 billion.

Of the additional $3.4 billion the President has requested, $751 million is for military personnel; $743 million is for operation and maintenance; $1.7 billion is for procurement, and $207 million is for Civil Defense.

Highlights of the President's proposed military budget amendments are:

Strengthen nuclear strike and air defense capability. Insure prompt achievement of B-52 and B-47 50 per cent alert; postpone inactivation of B-47 wings and associated tankers, and provide personnel for manual control of interceptors at radar sites.

Make three Army STRAF divisions combat ready. Add to Army training bases to relieve STRAF of training functions and increase training capacity; fill out STRAF units to full strength, and add support units to STRAF.

Strengthen Army forces in Europe. Bring Seventh Army and other Army units in Europe to full strength and add support units.

Improve sealift and airlift. Reactivate transport ships; provide military complement for transport ships; increase amphibious lift capability; retain C-118 squadrons; order to active duty Air National Guard C-97 squadrons, and

McNamara Tells Necessity For Large Build-Up

Speaking before the Senate Appropriations Committee, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara told of plans for "rounding out the manning and support of Army forces in Europe" to counter the Russian threat to Berlin.

Secretary McNamara said the aim of the expanded military budget request is to prepare to cope with not only Berlin but "Communist threats and pressure all around the globe."

"What we are seeking to achieve," Mr. McNamara continued, "and achieve quickly, is a peak of readiness of our military establishment to respond promptly with appropriate forces and in adequate strength to any kind of armed Communist aggression anywhere in the world; and to maintain that posture until we can see more clearly what lies ahead."

Secretary McNamara announced plans to have in the Continental United States by the end of the calendar year, eight combat ready divisions — six Army and two Marine Corps.

Elaborating on the defense build-up, the defense chief said, "We have not lost sight of the dangerous situation which confronts us in Southeast Asia or the possibility of a sudden outbreak of trouble in other areas of the world."

PRE-SCHOOL PLANNED

Final plans have been laid for the pre-school to acquaint children entering the first grade of Reese Elementary School this fall with what to expect, Joe Harper, school principal, said Thursday. The pre-school will be at 9 a.m. daily, Aug. 14 through 18. Parents will attend the first meeting and enroll children. Following days are for the children, with parents invited.

Trio Cited At Graduation Of Class '62-A

Three members of Class 62-A were honored for high scholarship today at graduation of the class in the base theater.

Distinguished graduates were 1st Lts. David T. Burton of Wellesley, Mass., and Richard T. Fell of DeWitt, Iowa, and 2nd Lt. William E. Arnold of Tucson, Arizona.

Lt. Burton received the Commander's Trophy as highest ranking student officer during training, and Lt. Arnold was awarded a similar trophy as ranking student during training as an aviation cadet. Both were recognized as Distinguished Graduates, along with Lt. Fell, who trained as an officer student.

Lt. Burton is a graduate of Dartmouth College, where he won his letter in wrestling and was president of the rowing club.

Lt. Fell is an electrical engineering graduate of Iowa State College and is a former research engineer in aeronautics.

Lt. Arnold is a former student of the University of Arizona.

Dr. William H. Gordon, Lubbock heart specialist, was the graduation speaker. He was introduced by Col. L. C. Hess, base commander, who also presented the Commander's Trophies and presented certificates and diplomas to graduates.

Maj. DeMay White, commander of the 3501st Pilot Training Squadron, was master-of-ceremonies. Capt. Harry Winberg, flight commander, administered the oath of office to former aviation cadets who became second lieutenants on graduation. Col. Charles W. Sawyer, Pilot Training Group commander, assisted Col. Hess in presentation of diplomas and certificates, while Chaplain Leo Pesek gave the invocation and benediction. The Amarillo AFB band played at the exercises and for the wing review which preceded.

GREEN THUMBS—Receiving $10 awards from Col. Roscoe B. Woodruff, left, ABG commander, at the winning Bartels' lawn are CWO William G. Bartels, center, for the best appearing lawn in the officers' area and SSgt. Ralph C. Pike for the most improved lawn in the airmen's section for July. Also receiving prizes were Maj. Frederick F. Shriner for the most improved lawn, officers, and TSgt. Alva League for the best appearance, airmen's. Lt. Col. Robert C. Bowman, SSgt. Donald E. Reynolds and James W. Sheddick received honorable mentions.

From The COMMANDER'S DESK

By Col. L. C. Hess, Base Commander

The change over to the undergraduate pilot training program at Reese has posed many problems which we have taken in stride and solved.

The reorganization which effected the consolidation of several squadrons into larger squadrons has in some instances doubled and even tripled the size of our squadrons. As a result, the commander's work load in these newly formed squadrons has proportionately increased and he can not devote the time with each individual that he formerly did.

We can not allow a deterioration of discipline and morale because of the larger organizations, nor can we afford to lose touch with the individual. Newly assigned personnel must be made to feel a part of the team. They must be informed of the policies of the base and the Air Force.

Each supervisor has a continuing responsibility to know his men and look out for their interests. Each must readily assume and exploit this important responsibility.

Strength Is Willed

When President Kennedy spoke to the nation on July 25, he was speaking to the world — not to the free world alone but to that other world whose military actions in the months ahead could provoke what every American would avert but no American should shrink from: conflict to protect our own interests and those of our NATO allies in West Berlin.

For that beleaguered city is, in the President's words, "the greatest testing place of Western courage and will, a focal point where our solemn commitments and Soviet ambitions now meet in basic confrontation."

Every member of the Armed Forces must have heard their Commander-in-Chief, or read his words, while asking: What does this mean to me? Only future developments can answer that in specifics, but one thing is certain — the role that we shall be called upon to play in our country's history will be far greater than in recent years. The spotlight will focus on the services more intensely than at any time since the Korean War.

We will be bigger numerically, yes, but we will not necessarily be stronger unless each of us wills it and accepts the responsibility that will fall to us as the build-up of the Armed Forces proceeds. The President's call for sacrifice was directed to all Americans, but it addressed us as that body of the nation certain to be immediately affected. He had us in mind when he said, "Any dangerous spot is tenable, if brave men will make it so."

The regulars, the Reserves, the National Guard — all are brave men and willing to work — and if necessary fight — with the same devotion to the goals of freedom that the President's calm and courageous words reflected. We above all other Americans understand the language of leadership.

Karl Marx Lives

Karl Marx was a German philosopher who died in 1883. He indeed was a man ahead of his time for in a historical sense he has just begun to live.

"Marx" and "Communism" are two terms almost synonymous. When we think of one we automatically think of the other. "The Communist Manifesto", a slim volume, appeared in 1848 but has noticeably changed the world in a little more than one hundred years. Its author was not to see the results of this literary work in his lifetime.

Karl Marx was born in Trier, Germany, in 1818. His family was Jewish but when the boy was six, his father took the children to be baptized in a Christian church. Neither Jew nor Christian in his later life, Marx became a militant atheist.

A brilliant student, Marx earned his Ph.D. at Jena University where he came in contact with the philosophy of Hegel. From him he learned respect for the state (rare among 19th Century radicals) and a unique philosophical method called "Dialectics".

Marx spent thirty-four years in England where he was appalled by the conditions of the working classes. His hatred of capitalism grew with the years, and he foresaw the struggle of the laboring classes against their masters as a crusade he hoped to lead on an international scale. But first he had to reduce his philosophy to writing. Two Marxian works stand out, "The Communist Manifesto" and "Capital."

Marx did not live to see his "Communism" introduced violently into Russia in 1917 and spread across one-third of the earth by 1961.

The "children" of Marx — Lenin, Trotsky, Stalin and Khrushchev — lived to carry on the revolutionary aspirations of their teacher.

Students Helped By Aid Society

Assistance in securing education in Air Force families is one of the primary objectives of the Air Force Aid Society, now in the midst of its annual financial drive.

"The General Henry H. Arnold Educational Fund" of the Society has been set up to give worthy young men and women aid in attaining a higher education through loans and grants. Applicants who by their own efforts intend to help in some way to secure their college education will be assisted. Parents are expected to carry their share of the financial burden.

Eligible for aid through the Arnold fund are sons and daughters, including stepchildren, of deceased Air Force personnel, retired personnel, personnel on active duty and reserves. Scholarships are awarded on the basis of need and are primarily intended for boys and girls who might otherwise not secure a college education.

"Loans are made without interest, but must be repaid," 2nd Lt. Lawrence Potts, base personal affairs officer, points out. "By accepting repayment terms, the child and parents assume their fair share of obligation. Success is important in the development of a young man's or young woman's life. Higher education aids in gaining success."

It was pointed out that Reese people contributing in the current Air Force Aid Society drive may be helping young people here to go to college.

Key workers have been named in each squadron to accept contributions. The drive started Tuesday and first reports on its success are expected this weekend. Officials are urging 100 per cent participation.

Commander Cites Instructor's Skill

A letter of commendation for more than 3,000 incident and accident-free flying hours in five years has been given 1st Lt. Karl Grosh, instructor pilot, by Col. L. C. Hess, base commander.

The colonel noted that the lieutenant had flown 2,750 hours in jet aircraft, 2,200 hours as an instructor pilot, and established a safety record "deserving of recognition."

"Your safety record is a goal which other pilots and instructors should strive to attain," Col. Hess' letter said. "I commend you upon your maintenance of these high standards of professional piloting."

Parson-to-Person Coolness To God Criminal Neglect

By Chaplain Leo E. Pesek

Multitudes of Americans are indifferent to religion in practice today. They show sufficient respect for the Christian religion to boast that theirs is a Christian civilization. But they do not differ from pagans in any other way. They are quite indifferent to religion in personal practice. They are not indifferent to wife, children and friends.

They are indifferent only to the God in whom they say they believe. And there is no excuse for their criminal neglect.

The pagan Athenians felt that they lacked something, and built an altar to the Unknown God.

But there is an altar to the Unknown God in millions of hearts professing to be Christian. Their duty to God is their main duty, yet it is the most neglected of all.

It is a criminal neglect, for, so long as God is God and we His creatures, religious duties, and definite religious duties, both privately and socially, will have their claims.

The issue is very simple and clear. Does religion matter? Of course it matters. It matters more than anything else in your life. And it should be given its right place of supreme importance.

DECORATED—Col. Eldire Perrin, Amarillo AFB, commander of Mobile Training in this area, pins a Commendation Medal on Capt. Glenn O'Banion, commander of the Reese detachment. The medal was awarded for effecting outstanding improvements in maintenance activities while he directed maintenance standardization in 1959-61.

Commendation Medal Awarded Captain O'Banion Of Detachment

An Air Force Commendation Medal has been awarded Capt. Glenn O'Banion, commander of the Mobile Training Detachment here, for meritorious service from February, 1959, to January, 1961, while he directed the M&S Group maintenance standardization section "in a highly commendable manner."

The citation, in part, read: " . . . his section performed the remarkable feat of completely mechanizing the maintenance functions, prepared and put into effect a planned inspection concept of maintenance, made a vast improvement in the jet engine field maintenance branch and improved specialist dispatch.

"He has effected outstanding improvements in the maintenance activity in all areas of operation" to bring credit to the service, base, and self.

Key officers of the Mobile Training Group at Amarillo AFB flew to Reese for the presentation. Col. Eldine F. Perrin, Technical Training School commander, presented the award; Lt. Col. Frank R. Webster, school operations officer, read the citation; and Lt. Col. Philip Watson, chief of the technical training branch, assisted in the presentation.

While here, the MTD officers inspected the detachment and authorized TDY arrangements from other bases to Reese for special study.

Function Of Civil Defense Stressed

The Civil Defense function, transferred from the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization to the Department of Defense, must be closely integrated with all aspects of military defense in the present age of thermonuclear war, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara has pointed out.

"The Civil Defense effort," Mr. McNamara said, "must remain under civilian direction and control, involving, as it does, the survival of every citizen. It requires the closest and most sympathetic cooperation between federal civilian authorities and state and local governments," he added.

The newly assigned Civil Defense functions of the Department of Defense will in no way downgrade the military capabilities of the armed forces, according to the Secretary. "The Civil Defense function will be organized within the Department of Defense as a civilian function, drawing where necessary on the military departments for available support."

New Directive Sets Standards

Any activity which might place an individual in a position of conflict between his private interests and those of the United States must be avoided, according to a new Department of Defense directive.

The new directive, based on President Kennedy's executive order of May 5, 1961, provides a guide to all DOD personnel, both military and civilian, on ethical standards.

Acceptance of any favors, gratuities or entertainment where such activity might affect the individual's impartiality in government matters, is among the things specifically mentioned in the directive.

In his message to Congress President Kennedy said, "There can be no dissent from the principle that all officials must act with unwavering integrity, absolute impartiality, and complete devotion to the public interest. The principle must be followed not only in reality but in appearance. For the basis of effective government is public confidence, and that confidence is endangered when ethical standards falter or appear to falter."

The Air Force Academy is the most important tourist attraction in the Colorado Springs area, out-drawing even Pike's Peak.

Readout Station Set For England

A Midas readout ground station which will pick up warning signals flashed by the American missile spotting satellite system, will be established at Kirkbridge, Cumberland, England, according to an announcement made pointily by the United States and Great Britain.

The agreement, announced in the House of Commons by British Air Secretary Julian Amery, indicated that the installation will be jointly manned by the R.A.F. and the USAF during the installation period, with the British taking over the job when the station becomes operational. The Midas system consists of a number of space satellites equipped with infra-red apparatus to detect ballistic missiles in the early stages of their flight. Information recorded on the satellites will be relayed back to readout stations, one of which is the proposed station at Kirkbridge.

Reese All-Stars Lose Thrilling Brownfield Game As Rally Fails

Fighting to the last out, the Reese Little League all-stars were eliminated from district competition last weekend in a 9 to 8 thriller in Lubbock which kept the overflow crowd cheering all the way.

The Reeseites, winners of the area championship, scored four runs in the final sixth inning against the Brownfield all-stars, but were unable to push over a tying or winning run.

Reese stepped out to an early 2-0 lead in the first inning as Terry King reached first on an error, Van Grady singled and Don Woullard brought them both in with a long single.

Another run was added in the second when Phil Sheddrick was safe on an error and scored on Richard Johnson's double.

Brownfield, meanwhile, got a run in the first on back-to-back doubles by Perkins and Timmons.

Then came the fatal third stanza in which Brownfield scored five runs. Bell reached first on an error; Garcia singled, and Bell was out on a fielder's choice as Gee reached first. Webster poled a homerun over the left field fence and Brownfield was out in front. Perkins singled and went to second as Timmons singled. Bost also singled to score another run and Timmons tallied on a Reese infield error.

Reese came back for a fourth run in the fourth inning as Joey Hritz singled, went to third on an infield out and scored on Van Grady's single to right.

Brownfield added two runs in the fourth as Garcia singled and Gee homered. The final Brownfield score, the winning effort, came in the sixth when Garcia tripled and scored on an error.

The Reese final rally pushed over four runs and left the tying runner on third base. Hritz reached first on an error; Johnson singled and Rocky DiAgostino singled. Mike McGary went in to run for him.

Garcia came in to pitch for Brownfield. He walked Grady to force in a run. Then Woullard walked for another run. John O'Connell reached first on a fielder's choice and McGary and Grady both raced over the plate. Ronnie McCall grounded out and Steve Parker also grounded to the infield. He was thrown out by a whisker as Woullard crossed the plate and the game was over.

Several hundred Reese fans were on hand to cheer the Little Leaguers, who they said did a fine job in each game. Ten hits were marked up in the final encounter.

PLANES DISPLAYED

T-33 and T-37 aircraft from Reese are being displayed this weekend at the annual XIT rodeo and reunion at Dalhart. Base crews are accompanying the planes, which are scheduled to leave late today.

Model Rocketry May Get Boost

Model rocketry, a fast-growing activity among hobbyists of the space age, will probably get a new boost with the establishment of a model rocket competition as part of the special services program, in the near future.

Model rocketry is expected to help develop skills useful to the armed forces such as aerodynamics, electronics, optics, photography and mathematics.

The National Association of Rocketry (NAR) is the Air Force approved organization for model rocketry. Its regulations and standards will govern all model rocketry activity on Air Force bases in the future. The "home-made" aspect of amateur rocketry, which has led to a number of dangerous accidents is expected to be overcome by adherence to model rocketry standards.

Model rocketry is concerned with small, light, inexpensive rockets made of paper, balsa, plastic and other non-metallic materials, powered by commercially available rocket motors.

MISSILE HUNTER—The Midas III satellite orbits at a record altitude—1,850 miles above the earth. The Air Force says it is the heaviest satellite launched by the U. S. Taking 160 minutes to circle the globe, the space craft is in position to view the entire surface of the earth searching for rocket exhaust blasts from enemy missiles and nuclear explosions.

Letter Awards Program Readied

President John F. Kennedy's remark during his inaugural address, "ask not what your country can do for you — ask what you can do for your country," is the basis for the 1961 Letter Awards Program conducted by the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge, in which members of the armed forces on active duty may compete.

This year's subject "What I Can Do For Freedom" is expected to attract letters from service people throughout the world aiming at the top prize of $1,000, and a George Washington Honor Medal. Prizes include a second prize of $500 and a medal and more than 100 other monetary awards and medals.

All letters submitted must be from 100 to 500 words in length. They must reach the Freedoms Foundation, Valley Forge, Pa., by November 1, 1961. The Letter Awards Program is part of an annual program in which Freedoms Foundation assembles outstanding expressions, projects and programs from individuals, organizations and schools throughout the nation that build an understanding of the American way of life.

Retired Sergeant, 'Blind Umpire,' Gets Dog From Friends

MSgt. William Willis, retired here Monday, was the subject of a Page 1 column by Orlin Brewer in the Levelland Daily Sun. Said the column:

"They brought out a seeing-eye dog for W. A. (Sarge) Willis Friday night to lead him from the park after 22 years of 'blindly' umpiring baseball games.

"Actually, the jibe was a friendly gesture to the all-seeing Sarge, who's retiring from 20 years of duty in the Air Force on July 31, and moving to Odessa after 11 years. It was his last game as an umpire in Levelland.

"Sarge has lived a lot of places during his Air Force career . . . There was no doubt that he was touched by Friday night's little demonstration in his behalf. Tournament director and District President Barney Chadwick presided at the seeing-eye dog presentation. Sarge also was given a Lobo blanket by team managers, a gift of money, and they also passed the hat in the stands just to make it seem like the world wasn't coming to an end for Sarge as he walked off the park . . .

"Of course the man who umpired at the United Kingdom tournament in London in 1954 and 1955 and the Air Force-wide European tournament the same years and for semi-pro ball over a wide area, isn't blind enough to quit for good."

AF Blue Book Has Much Information

Air Force men around the world have acclaimed the 1961 edition of "The Air Force Blue Book" as an invaluable guide to today's Air Force.

Gen. Thomas D. White, former Air Force Chief of Staff, wrote, "The amount of information packed in this volume is amazing. It is a wonderful book and should be very helpful to many people."

The 384-page book has 34 chapters covering the day-to-day operations of the Air Force. The narrative material is backed up by thirty pages of photographs and a 162-page "Air Force Facts" section, which includes an index.

Texas Tech, opening against Mississippi State in Jackson, Miss., Sept. 23, defeated the Bulldogs 27-20 there in 1953 on the gridiron.
