Special to the Herald

The dogs and cats at Happy Day Humane Society are anticipating the completion of a wind-breaking fence that will block the cold winds that rattle through their kennels. "The fence is projected to cost in upwards of $2,500 for the cost of materials and labor," Humane Society

Board Trustee Ronda Doe said. "We've made great improvements at Happy Day with the construction of a new facility, but we continue to use dozens of outside kennels because of the pet overpopulation in Howard County. I remember it getting so cold some winters that we would literally have to go out and break the ice in their water bowls." According to Doe, the winds at the Humane Society can be brutal on some days because of where it's situated, particularly to a dog who is in a 12x12 kennel. It also can break their spirits. "Each dog has a place inside their kennels to get away

Silver Wings Ball slated Jan. 26

By AMBER MANSFIELD
 Staff Writer

The annual Hangar 25 Silver Wings Ball is just around the corner, giving local residents a chance to dress up, and enjoy some elegant food, music, and company for a good cause.

The event is scheduled for Saturday, January 26, 2019, at the Hotel Settles. This donation ball is held once a year in order to raise money for the Hangar 25 Air Museum.

"Since the museum is a non-profit organization, we use this ball as an opportunity to raise funds to support the museum for a whole year," said Amber Stokes, Museum Administrator. "This year will be the 21st annual Silver Wings Ball."

Stokes also stated that the Silver Wings Ball is known to show the guests a really fantastic time, all while supporting a great cause. "This year there will be live music, dancing, a five-course meal provided by the Hotel Settles, a live and silent auction," said Stokes. "We have added some exciting new additions this year; champagne with a diamond. Last year's diamond was half a carat, this year is going to be even bigger."

The glasses of champagne will be $20 each, and no matter what everybody wins something, said Stokes.

"We are really hoping to incite the public to come out and not only have a good time, the opportunity to go home with some amazing thing. It's going to be a really good time for the guests."

The Silver Wings Ball is the largest fundraiser for the Hangar 25, and the dress code is formal/Texas formal wear. To start off this exciting year for the Silver Wings Ball, cocktail hour will begin at 5:30

What is the preferred method of groundwater management in Texas? Who owns the groundwater? How does a groundwater district manage and protect the groundwater resources for the landowners and all the other water users?

If you're a high school senior attending Forsan, Grady, Sands or Stanton schools, and you can research and answer these questions in a 1,000 word essay by March 5, you could earn a $2,000 scholarship to the college of your choice.

The Permian Basin Underground Water Conservation District is holding it's annual essay contest, and is encouraging all seniors within its district – which includes the schools listed above – to enter.

Rules for the essay's format are:

- The essay must be typewritten in Times New Roman font, double-spaced, with 12-point text.

- The essay must have a minimum of 1,000 words.
- Images or photos are not allowed; graphs and maps are acceptable.
- References must accompany the paper in the form of a bibliography page, and footnotes must be used in the essay. Reference material may be acquired from the PBUWCD office in Stanton; and local and school libraries and the internet offer additional resources. Essays submitted without references, and those that are plagiarized, will be automatically disregarded.

Could first tangible signs of shutdown progress be emerging?

By JILL COLVIN, LISA MASCARO, ZEKE MILLER and CATHERINE LUCEY

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP)

— The first tangible signs of movement may be emerging in the impasse that has shut down the government for weeks: President Donald Trump is promising a "major announcement" about the closure and the U.S.-Mexico border and Democrats are pledging more money for border security.

It was unclear whether the developments, following days of clashes between Trump and House Speaker Nancy Pelosi, D-Calif., might represent serious steps toward resolving the partisan fight or instead may simply be political posturing as the partial shutdown reached a record 29th day. Hundreds of thousands of federal workers have gone without paychecks, enduring financial hardship. Many public services are unavailable to Americans during the closure.

The White House has declined to provide details about what the president would announce midafternoon Saturday. Trump was not expected to sign a national emergency declaration he has said was an option to circumvent Congress, according to two people familiar with the planning.

Instead, he was expected to propose the outlines of a deal that the administration believes could have the potential to pave the way for a shutdown end, according to one of the people. They were not authorized to publicly discuss details about the impending announcement and spoke on condition of anonymity.

"I think it'll be an important statement," Trump told reporters Saturday before traveling to an air base in Delaware to honor four Americans killed in a suicide bomb attack in Syria this week.

Democrats are now proposing hundreds of millions of dollars for new immigration judges and improvements to ports of entry from Mexico but nothing for the wall, a House aide said, as the party begins fleshing out its vision of improving border security.

Trump's refusal to sign spending bills that lack $5.7 billion he wants to start constructing that wall, which Democrats oppose, has prompted the shutdown. "We need the help and the backup of a wall," the president said Saturday.

Whatever the White House proposed would be the first major overture by the president since Jan. 8, when he gave an Oval Office address trying to make the public case for the border wall. Democrats have said they will not negotiate until the government reopens, raising questions about how Trump might move the ball forward.

Democrats were proposing $563 million to hire 75 more immigration judges, who currently face large backlogs processing cases, and $524 million to improve ports of entry in Calexico, California, and San Luis, Arizona, the Democratic House aide said. The money is to be added to spending bills, largely negotiated between the House and Senate, that the House plans to vote on next week.

In addition, Democrats were working toward adding money for more border security personnel and for sensors and other technology to a separate bill financing the Department of Homeland Security, but no funds for a wall or other physical barriers, the aide said.

It was possible Democrats would introduce located on 911 N. Lancaster is hosting their annual Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. commemorative service with the hopes of bringing the community together to remember the dream one man had.

"It is with great pride that Baker's Chapel will host our annual MLK commemorative service," said the Rev. Sonia Scott. "The service will allow time for those who need to return to work by 1 p.m. We will even provide a sack lunch and drinks to all our guests that day."

• Another church in Big Spring will continue their long-time tradition of celebrating Martin Luther King Jr. and all that he stood for with a commemorative walk on the third Monday of January. Mt. Bethel Baptist Church (MBBC) is inviting and encouraging all members of the public to join them as they honor King with their annual MLK walk.

Martin Luther King Jr. was the most important voice of the American civil rights movement, which worked for equal rights for all, and is what MBBC hopes to keep alive in everyone.

"When I joined MBBC, I was looking for a church that gives back, a church that's involved with the community and whatever is going on," said Ida

Hambrick, a four-year member of the church. "The walk is a great way of making sure King's dream doesn't die."

The MLK commemorative walk will be on Jan. 21, MLK Day, at 6 p.m. The walk will start at the corner of Gregg St. and Martin Luther King Blvd.

"Kids and adults can either walk or ride skateboards, bikes, rollerblades, whatever," said Hambrick. "This is a community event. We want all members of the community to come and walk together to show honor to the man and represent his dream."

Mt. Bethel hopes that the MLK walk will continue to benefit society the way King would have wanted. In addition to hosting the walk, Mt. Bethel will also be hosting their Inaugural MLK Breakfast for the community at 630 Sgt Paredez St. Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home will offer its parking lot to those who come for the walk.

Come out on MLK Day or set aside some time to remember the great man who stood up for the greater good even when he stood alone.

from the winds, but a fence would break much of the full force of the winds and would be especially helpful," said Happy Day Humane Society Director, Jennifer Walters. "Donations of blankets, beds and dog houses have helped tremendously, but we really need this fence, particularly for the older dogs."

According to Walters, some of the dogs have been patiently waiting for a home for more than a year, and Happy Day's main priority is to make sure they stay well until they find the perfect family. Happy Day Humane Society is asking the public to donate to the that measure next week as the cornerstone of their border security alternative to Trump's wall, the aide said. Earlier Friday, Rep. Lucille Roybal-Allard, D-Calif., who leads the House Appropriations Committee's homeland security subcommittee, said in an interview that some Democrats were asking leaders, "What is our plan?"

The aide spoke on condition of anonymity because he wasn't authorized to discuss the details publicly.

DAILY PRAYER

Lord, thank you for letting me see your marvelous works when all seems lost.
Amen.

The Mitchell County voice is silent

Jim Baum had a weekly road kill report on his radio station, KVMC in Colorado City. Every Saturday he would update the number of cats, dogs, birds, porcupines and skunks that had been killed by vehicles within a mile of the station. First he would give the most recent weekly number followed by the yearly total. Listeners loved it. When travelers from Midland and Odessa headed east for the metroplex on weekends they would time their trip so they could hear the road kill report.

He always remembered listeners' anniversaries and birthdays. When he would be on the air with the list of people celebrating and the phone would ring, he answered it on the air. The listener would say "Jim I just wanted you to know my daughter Carolyn is 19 years old today." Jim would quickly reply, "Holy smoke, Carolyn, I didn't realize we were the same age." Jim was about 75 at the time. He was one clever dude.

He did a program titled Community Closeup, which featured interviews with people from Colorado City. If Jim asked you to be on that program, he made you feel that you were special. He told me one time he had such a backlog of programs he could run 18 years before airing a repeat program. It is outstanding oral history.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

Jim was a recognized historian of Mitchell County and Colorado City. He wrote 8 books on local topics. Jim served as mayor of Colorado City 21 years and held that office longer than anyone else. He ran against Charles Stenholm for Congress. From a slate of 12 candidates, Jim placed 3rd. Stenholm said if he hadn't been running he would have voted for Jim.

Growing up in Abilene, Jim fell in love with baseball. In the mid 50's he played 2 seasons with the Pittsburg Pirates farm club and always felt he should have played longer. His baseball card is on the wall of the station. His collection of baseball cards numbers in the hundreds of thousands. Whenever he had a free moment, he fiddled with his cards.

I met Jim in 1964. I was leaving a job as news director at a radio station in Big Spring and Jim was hired as my replacement. We became lifelong friends. When I came back to Big Spring in 1967 Jim had taken a job with another station in town. We competed against each other for news stories but always kept the friendship at the forefront of our relationship. Our kids grew up together and they became lifelong friends.

Jim had an opportunity to buy the Colorado City radio station and left Big Spring. He became immensely popular practically overnight and stayed that way until his death in December. At his funeral the church was filled and the eulogy, delivered by Jim's friend Tom Carlock, was humorous. He pretended he was Jim giving a newscast.

I know of only a handful of radio broadcasters who had as much fun and promoted their community as much as Jim Baum, The Voice of Mitchell County.

Letters to the Editor

Grateful for Festival of Lights volunteers

Dear Editor,
Happy New Year Everyone! I'm delighted to share & report to you the success and attraction of our Comanche Trail Festival of Lights this year. We met our goal of thirty thousand with 30,186 visitors coming from 41 states and 13 countries, namely Australia, Cuba, Israel, Germany, Russia, France, Spain, Puerto Rico, Brazil, Thailand, Europe, Mexico & Africa, truly amazing!

Also, coming from Hawaii was a daughter of my friend in Big Spring.

Another great attraction, was for the children, a visit with Santa & Mrs. Claus at Belaski Pavilion for 6 nights. They had a total of 1115 children visit them, making a nightly average of 185, wow, that was something, kept Santa busy! Also, we had our gift shop open right next to Santa, so visitors could shop while waiting their turn to see Santa. We had our wonderful volunteer Deanna Burnett in charge of the Gift shop. She offered several Christmas items, T-shirts, Christmas ornaments and the most popular item was the children's 3D glasses viewing Santa, Snowmen, Stars, Candy Canes & exciting scenes.

It was with much team work that put this event on! Heading up the Festival was Howard Stewart, our Co-Chairman & Project Manager. The team was made up of dedicated volunteers, Brandon Ensey, Jim DePauw, Randy Robertson, Al Williams, 6 FCI trustees, Sheriff's County Parks dept. employees. Howard is the work horse of this project. He has dedicated himself to make sure things are done, so many hard & difficult jobs. He works until he knows everything is ready! There is not enough words to express my appreciation to Howard & the Stewart family!

The other person making the wheels turn is Vicki Stewart, managing the 41 Adopt-A-Spot Participants, of whom we appreciate as they work to make their spot attractive and eye catching. She also manages the 37 large Christmas cards representing various businesses,

Just 'Plane' Herb...

For decades, four words have been used to magnify success achieved by remarkable individuals. The words? "Only in America could..." Following this opening are tributes to support such a lofty claim.

I'm not sure such a well-intentioned comment really is a true "fit" for Herb Kelleher, who introduced discount air travel to America a half-century ago. This admitted maverick would have "made it big" in the ingenious ways of his choosing in whichever country he lived in.

The late icon's business acumen, zest for life, indomitable spirit and commitment to both employees and the flying public were as expansive as the skies across which fly aircraft of Southwest Airlines, the country's largest domestic carrier....

Media reports of his recent death at the age of 87 were as colorful as the man himself. Herb, the name he liked to be called, wasn't to be figured out by anyone. He earned his eccentric label, laughing all the way.

One person given to hyperbole said Kelleher could call the names of all Southwest employees when he saw them.

Kelleher shot down this accolade, countering that he hadn't met ALL 60,000 SWA employees!...

Greats, near-greats and ordinary folks shared "Herb stories," many beginning with, "Do you remember the time that?" Among hundreds of tributes, perhaps none was more compelling than Ralph Nader's: "...No one has been able to imitate Kelleher's super-successful management philosophy, his hands-on behavior and authenticity. They may install cut-rate fares, but fortunately for the people, Kelleher stands alone as one of a kind."...

DR. DON NEWBURY

I'm one of the "ordinaries" who never met Mr. Kelleher. I "saw his tracks," though, and believe the "warp and woof" of his book, Peanuts, make it a "must-read." On my book shelf, it rests next to Dale Carnegie's How to Win Friends and Influence People.

It provides a wonderful, common sense guide on how to succeed, in business specifically and in life generally. Perhaps the SWA motto printed on napkins says it best: "In a world full of no we're a plane full of yes."...

I saved a personal, handwritten note from the aviation giant. It was written with the same "scrawl" of his signature seen in print.

It is my memento of proof that he always had time for ordinary people.

It was a response to a letter I'd written to him....

I had completed a long-ago SWA flight. Waking from a nap during the flight, I walked shoeless to the lavatory when the "unoccupied" light came on. A flight attendant joked about my "going in there in stocking feet."

I responded in kind, saying that I'd seen Herb doing the same thing. (Okay, admittedly I hadn't, but it was fun to "play along.") She quipped that he would be the only other person on the planet who would do so.

I wrote him a letter praising the young lady AND his airline, not expecting a reply. A few days later came his note, including these words: "Your recent letter 'made' my day! Welcome to the 'shoeless lavatory club.' We are a rare breed."...

I'm guessing that across the years, "boy babies" have been named "Herb" by countless SWA employees.

Speaking of naming youngsters in honor of heroes, I heard the other day of a Clemson graduate from South Carolina who has been transplanted to Dallas, where he is now a fan of the Cowboys in general and Dak Prescott in particular. He was lavish in praise of Clemson QB Trevor Lawrence and Dak in recent conversation, predicting that "real fans" will name babies in honor of this duo.

"The names 'Trevor' and 'Dak' are going to be on baby boys' birth certificates," he crowed. "In fact, why not both? 'Trevor Dak' has a nice ring to it. Then, they could just call 'em 'TD' for short." (OK, after the 'Boys' derailment by the Los Angeles Rams, maybe "dak" should begin with a little "d")...

The world's oil supply is vanishing, the stock market is plummeting, and the key to saving the future seems to be a baffling historical mystery. Can the NUMA crew crack it in time? "Sea of Greed" (F CUS C) by Clive Cussler is the suspenseful new NUMA Files novels. After an explosion in the Gulf of Mexico destroys three oil rigs trying to revive a dying field, Kurt Austin and the NUMA Special Projects Team are tapped by the President of the United States to find out what's gone wrong. The trail leads them to a brilliant billionaire in the alternative energy field. Her goal is the end of the oil age; her company has spent billions developing the world's most advanced fuel-cell systems. But is she an environmental hero or a rogue genetic engineer? The NUMA crew discovers that the oil fields are infected with bacteria that are consuming the oil before it can be pumped out of the earth, a bacteria originally lost decades ago when two submarines vanished in the Mediterranean. With hired killers on his trail, can Austin locate a submarine that's remained hidden for more than fifty years? And even if he can, can the biological terror that's been unleashed be stopped?

Irene Steele has an idyllic life in "Winter in Paradise" (F HIL E) by Elin Hilderbrand. She has a beautiful Iowa City Victorian house, lovingly restored to perfection; a husband who adores her to skywriting, sentimental extremes; two grown sons out leading interesting lives; and a satisfying magazine job. But as she greets the New Year on a cold and snowy night, everything comes crashing down around her with the insistent ringing of her phone and the shocking news that her beloved husband, away on business, has been killed in a plane crash. But before Irene can even process this tragedy, she must confront the perplexing details of her husband's death on the island of St. John, a distant Caribbean paradise.

What on earth was he doing there? And why is his boss being so evasive about the details surrounding his death? Irene and her sons arrive on St. John only to make another shocking discovery: her husband had a secret, other life. As Irene investigates the mysterious circumstances of her husband's death, she and her sons have to face truths about their own lives and secrets.

"An Easy Death" (F HAR C) by Charlene Harris is set in a fractured United States. In the southwestern country now known as Texoma- where magic is acknowledged but mistrusted, especially by a young gun for hire named Lizbeth Rose. Lizbeth Rose takes a job offer from a pair of Russian wizards to be their local guide and gunnie. For the wizards, Gunnie Rose has already acquired a fearsome reputation and they're at a desperate crossroad, even if they won't admit it. They're searching through the small border towns near Mexico, trying to locate a low-level magic practitioner, Oleg Karkarov. The wizards believe Oleg is a direct descendant of Grigori Rasputin, and that Oleg's blood can save the young tsar's life. As the trio journey through an altered America, shattered into several countries by the assassination of Franklin Roosevelt and the Great Depression, they're set upon by powerful enemies. Now it's up to Lizbeth Rose to get them all out alive.

There's no time like now. What happens when we open our eyes, our hands, and our hearts? In "This is the Day" (248.4 TEB T) By Tim Tebow, Tebow recalls the day on a flight when he comforted a woman whose husband was dying right beside her on the plane. Using that unexpected but profound experience as a springboard to other examples of seizing the moment, he reminds us that we can each make a difference, not just sometime in the future but right now. Through sharing personal stories and biblical principles, Tim invites us to leave our comfort zones-even to risk failure-so we can experience God's greatest influence in our lives. "This Is the Day" will help you get unstuck and discover lasting meaning and joy. "It's never too late. You're not too young. You're not too old. You can have purpose not only in your life but also in this day. There is always something you can do right now to improve yourself, to make an impact on someone or something else, or to create or enjoy a meaningful moment"-Tim Tebow.

organizations, churches, ten of those are new, 4 had to be replaced due to vandalism or weather. Not enough to do, she checks on greeters nightly. That is what I call dedication.

Recruiting the Greeters is time consuming, a job to recruit volunteers from December 2 thru December 25 was nicely handled by Hayley Herrera of CVB, another City employee. She calls & calls until the list is finished. The schedule was posted in the greeter's booth with instruction. She checks on them to remind them of their scheduled time. Thanks to all the greeters, sounded like you had a good time doing this very necessary task, it gave you the opportunity to visit & record number of visitors in each car/bus for us.

Putting on a project such as this is not an easy job, and without volunteers it would not happen. Dixie Electric was part of our event, providing equipment used in difficult display areas. It is the Stewart Family dedication & leadership that makes the Festival happen along with all the volunteers including FCI, City & County employees. I am so grateful to them all!

Federal workers at Dallas Love Field get donated free lunch

DALLAS (AP) — As many as 200 federal workers at Dallas Love Field have been treated to hot dogs and hamburgers donated by members of the city's aviation department during the partial government shutdown.

Department spokesman Chris Perry says Friday's free lunch was meant to help federal workers on duty at the Dallas-owned airport but not getting paid. The lunch benefited TSA, Federal Aviation Administration and Customs and Border Protection employees.

Perry says members of the aviation department donated money or food to support the federal workers amid the government shutdown that began Dec. 22.

A grill was set up outside the terminal but inside the airport fence line. Food was provided in a break room used by federal workers on various shifts.

About $500 was donated to help buy groceries.

BBQ restaurant gives free meals to furloughed workers

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston-area federal workers who've been furloughed due to the partial government shutdown got some free barbecue thanks to a popular local restaurant.

Killen's Barbecue served free family packs of brisket, sausage, potato salad and beans to hundreds of federal workers who lined up at the suburban Houston restaurant on Friday.

The restaurant ran out of food to give away in less than two hours.

Owner Ronnie Killen told KHOU-TV that "it hurts my heart to see that there are that many people affected by what's going on."

Killen said he'll continue giving away food on Fridays until the shutdown ends.

Gerald Steward, who works for NASA, told the television station he supports what President Donald Trump is doing and the free food means he "won't go hungry today."

2 men dead after shooting in parking lot of Fort Worth store

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Police say two men have died after being shot while in the parking lot of a North Texas home improvement store.

Fort Worth police on Friday tweeted that officers were searching for at least one person who was inside a vehicle that drove away following the shootings.

Police didn't immediately say who was believed to have opened fire or a possible motive for Thursday's night's gunfire in the parking lot of a Home Depot. Police say the two men who were shot had approached a parked vehicle, then gunfire broke out and the vehicle drove off.

Further details weren't immediately available.

Pentagon IDs US Army Ranger killed in Afghanistan as Texas resident

By LOLITA C. BALDOR

Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon says a U.S. Army Ranger has died as a result of gunshot wounds suffered during combat in Afghanistan on Jan. 13.

Sgt. Cameron A. Meddock, 26, of Spearman, Texas, died Thursday in Landstuhl, Germany. The attack was in the Jawand District in northwestern Afghanistan.

Meddock was in the 2nd Battalion of the Army's 75th Ranger Regiment. Meddock, who enlisted in the Army in 2014, was based at Joint Base Lewis-McChord in Washington state. He served as a machine gunner, automatic rifleman, gun team leader and most recently as a fire team leader.

His battalion commander, Lt. Col. Rob McChrystal, says Meddock's selfless service represents the best of the United States.

Meddock was on his second deployment to Afghanistan.

Suspect found dead after fatal shooting outside Texas church

CYPRESS, Texas (AP) — A man suspected of shooting two women in a suburban Houston church parking lot, killing one of them, and then fleeing to a hotel has been found dead inside a room there.

The body of 62-year-old Arthur Edigin was found by Harris County sheriff's deputies early Friday, several hours after he was tracked to the room by investigators and a standoff ensued.

Sheriff's authorities said in social media posts that Edigin is suspected of firing several rounds Thursday evening into a vehicle carrying the two women outside Christ the Redeemer Catholic Church in Cypress.

A sheriff's spokesman said the dead woman is believed to be the suspect's 66-year-old estranged wife, the wounded woman is his daughter and the shooting was the outgrowth of a domestic dispute.

Total lunar eclipse meets supermoon Sunday night

In this Saturday Aug. 28, 2018 file photo, Earth starts to cast its shadow on the moon during a complete lunar eclipse seen from Jakarta, Indonesia. Starting Sunday evening, Jan. 20, 2019, all of North and South America will be able to see the only total lunar eclipse of 2019 from start to finish this weekend.

By MARCIA DIUNN

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Here comes a total lunar eclipse and supermoon, all wrapped into one.

The moon, Earth and sun will line up this weekend for the only total lunar eclipse this year and next. At the same time, the moon will be ever so closer to Earth and appear slightly bigger and brighter than usual — a supermoon.

"This one is particularly good," said Rice University astrophysicist Patrick Hartigan. "It not only is a supermoon and it's a total eclipse, but the total eclipse also lasts pretty long. It's about an hour."

The whole eclipse starts Sunday night or early Monday, depending on location, and will take about three hours.

It begins with the partial phase around 10:34 p.m. EST Sunday. That's when Earth's shadow will begin to nip at the moon. Totality — when Earth's shadow completely blankets the moon — will last 62 minutes, beginning at 11:41 p.m. EST Sunday.

If the skies are clear, the entire eclipse will be visible in North and South America, as well as Greenland, Iceland, Ireland, Great Britain, Norway, Sweden, Portugal and the French and Spanish coasts. The rest of Europe, as well as Africa, will have partial viewing before the moon sets. Some places will be livestreaming it, including the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles.

During totality, the moon will look red because of sunlight scattering off Earth's atmosphere. That's why an eclipsed moon is sometimes known as a blood moon. In January, the full moon is also sometimes known as the wolf moon or great spirit moon.

So informally speaking, the upcoming lunar eclipse will be a super blood wolf — or great spirit — moon.

In the U.S., the eclipse will begin relatively early Sunday evening, making it easier for children to stay up and enjoy the show. Plus the next day is a federal holiday, with most schools closed. But the weather forecast for much of the U.S. doesn't look good.

Parents "can keep their kids up maybe a little bit later," said Hartigan, who will catch the lunar extravaganza from Houston. "It's just a wonderful thing for the whole family to see because it's fairly rare to have all these things kind of come together at the same time."

"The good thing about this is that you don't need any special equipment," he added.

Asia, Australia and New Zealand are out of luck. But they had prime viewing last year, when two total lunar eclipses occurred.

The next total lunar eclipse won't be until May 2021.

As for full-moon supermoons, this will be the first of three this year. The upcoming supermoon will be about 222,000 miles (357,300 kilometers) away. The Feb. 19 supermoon will be a bit closer and the one on March 20 will be the farthest.

Officer who killed teen used racial slur, excessive force

By DON BABWIN and MICHAEL TARM

Associated Press

CHICAGO (AP) — Several black motorists testified Friday that the white officer who fatally shot Laquan McDonald used a racial slur and excessive force during traffic stops in the years before the 2014 killing that was captured on a shocking dashcam video.

Jason Van Dyke was in court to be sentenced for second-degree murder and 16 counts of aggravated battery — one for each bullet he fired. He faces at least several years in prison, if not decades, after being convicted in October.

One of the witnesses, Vidale Joy, said Van Dyke used a racial slur after pulling him over in 2005 and at one point put a gun to Joy's head. He said Van Dyke "looked infuriated" and seemed "out of his mind." Under cross examination, Joy acknowledged that he did not allege Van Dyke used a slur in his first accounts of the stop.

Another witness, Ed Nance, struggled to maintain his composure as he looked across the room to identify Van Dyke. Testifying about a 2007 traffic stop, he said the officer cursed and slammed him on the

California officer slain weeks into job was 'perfect cop'

By JOCELYN GECKER

Associated Press

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — A 22-year-old California officer killed weeks into the job was a dedicated daughter and sister who represented the best of the police community, family and fellow officers said Friday at a packed memorial service.

Loved ones and officers from across the country packed about 8,000 seats at an indoor arena at the University of California, Davis, to pay tribute to Natalie Corona, who had dreamed from a young age of going into law enforcement like her father.

"It was truly in her blood," Davis Police Chief Darren Pytel said. "I placed a bet that one day she'd be the police chief. I know what it takes, and she had it."

He apologized to her parents, Merced and Lupe Corona, for the shooting death of their daughter last week as she responded to a car crash.

"You delivered to us the perfect cop. Our commitment to you was to get her home," he said. "I'm so sorry that we didn't get her back home to you."

Corona's slaying has shocked Davis, which prides itself as a safe, family-friendly community anchored by one of the state's top universities. The last time a police officer died in the line of duty in Davis was in 1959.

Officers lined walkways on the campus and saluted as family members followed Corona's casket into the 90-minute service. Uniformed officers took their seats, holding their hats, as a slideshow on giant screens displayed he said.

A rising star in the Davis department, Corona graduated from the Sacramento Police Academy in July and had completed her field training in December. She was assigned to patrol on her own just weeks ago.

On the evening of Jan. 10, there was no apparent danger when Corona responded solo to a three-car crash in downtown Davis, near the university campus. But as Corona talked to the drivers, gunfire erupted.

Police say gunman Kevin Douglas Limbaugh, 48, was not involved in the crash but rode up on a bicycle and opened fire on Corona without warning. He hit her in the neck and fired more shots as she lay on the ground, reloading at least twice as he fired at passing vehicles, narrowly avoiding wounding others before he casually walked home.

Police are still investigating the motive and say Limbaugh did not appear to know Corona or specifically target her. It is also not yet clear if Limbaugh had planned the attack or acted spontaneously, Davis police Lt. Paul Doroshov said.

Limbaugh dropped a backpack that led officers to identify him and trace him to his house, where he had a brief standoff with police, went back inside and killed himself, the Davis police chief said.

Police found two unregistered semiautomatic handguns at the house and a handwritten note on the bed that claimed police had been bombarding him for years with ultrasonic waves and he "can't live this way anymore."

Limbaugh was charged and convicted in a battery case last fall after assaulting a colleague at a casino where he worked. He was ordered then to surrender a semiautomatic rifle he owned. It is not clear how he obtained the two handguns.

After the memorial service, a funeral procession is planned from Davis to the town of Arbuckle about 40 miles (65 kilometers) north, where the Corona family lives. The slain officer is survived by her mother, her father and three younger sisters.

car's hood, grabbed him by the arms and pulled him to the squad car.

Hours later, Van Dyke's relatives tried to defend and humanize him, saying he's a good father and husband who goes out of his way to help and who is not racist.

The issue of race has loomed over the case for more than four years, although it was rarely raised at trial. One of the only instances was during opening statements, when special prosecutor Joseph McMahon told jurors that Van Dyke saw "a black boy walking down the street" who had "the audacity to ignore the police."

Friday's testimony came a day after a different judge acquitted three officers accused of trying to conceal what happened to protect Van Dyke, who was the first Chicago officer found guilty in an on-duty shooting in a half century and probably the first ever in the shooting of an African-American.

At the sentencing, McDonald's uncle read a letter written from the slain teen's perspective, telling the court that Van Dyke killed him without provocation.

"I am a 17-year-old boy, and I am a victim of murder," Marvin Hunter said. "I am unable to speak in my own voice" because an officer "thought he would become judge, jury and executioner."

In asking for a long sentence, Hunter added: "Why should this person who ended my life forever ... who has never asked for forgiveness ... be free when I am dead for forever?"

Van Dyke's wife said her life has been "a nightmare" since her husband was charged. She said she was denied a job and her daughter was not accepted into a dance group because of their last name.

If Van Dyke goes to prison, she said, her biggest fear is that "somebody will kill my husband for something he did as a police officer, something he was trained to do."

She looked up over her shoulder and addressed the judge directly: "His life is over. Please, please. He has paid the price already ... I beg for the least amount of time."

During her testimony, Van Dyke wiped his nose and eyes with a tissue while seated at the defense table in a yellow jail jumpsuit.

One of his daughters blamed the media for shaming police officers "for doing their jobs."

Kaylee Van Dyke, also 17, said the media "twists events, making people create negative thoughts." She said police officers don't care about people's color, "they care about your safety." She also said she regrets all the times she didn't hug her father.

Keith Thompson described his brother-in-law as a "gentle giant" and not a "monster." Thompson, who is black and whose wife is the sister of Van Dyke's wife, said he has never seen anything to indicate that Van Dyke is racist in the 13 years they've been acquainted.

Van Dyke's sister, Heidi Kauffinger, told the court that her brother has been abandoned by family and friends since he was charged. She begged the court for mercy and said if her brother goes to prison the family "will lose everything." She says Van Dyke's two daughters have been bullied and that the older one even had the words "16 shots" written on her school desk.

Because Illinois judges are typically required to sentence defendants for the most serious crime of which they are convicted, attorneys made arguments about the severity of the offenses, as governed by the state's complex guidelines. Judge Vincent Gaughan's decision on that point will help determine the sentence.

The defense wants Van Dyke, 40, to be sentenced primarily for the second-degree murder charge, partly because it carries a shorter mandatory minimum prison term of four years. Prosecutors want the judge to focus on the 16 aggravated battery counts because each one carries a mandatory minimum prison term of six years, and sentences for each count may have to be served consecutively instead of at the same time.

On Thursday, Cook County Judge Domenica Stephenson cleared former officer Joseph Walsh, former detective David March and officer Thomas Gaffney on charges of obstruction of justice, official misconduct and conspiracy.

Stephenson accepted the argument that jurors in the Van Dyke case rejected: that the video that sparked protests and a federal investigation of the police force was just one perspective of the events that unfolded on the South Side.

The judge said the video showed only one viewpoint of the confrontation between Van Dyke and the teen armed with a small knife. She found no indication the officers tried to hide evidence or made little effort to talk to witnesses.

"The evidence shows just the opposite," she said. She singled out how they preserved the graphic video at the heart of the case.

The judge in her ruling rejected prosecution arguments that the video demonstrated officers were lying when they described McDonald as moving even after he was shot.

"An officer could have reasonably believed an attack was imminent," she said. "It was borne out in the video that McDonald continued to move after he fell to the ground" and refused to relinquish a knife.

The video appeared to show the teen collapsing in a heap after the first few shots and moving in large part because bullets kept striking his body for 10 more seconds.

The footage showed Van Dyke opening fire within seconds of getting out of his police SUV and continuing to shoot the teen while he was lying on the street. Police were responding to a report of a male who was breaking into trucks and stealing radios on the city's South Side.

family pictures and Corona's brief professional life.

Family, colleagues and others who knew Corona have recalled her vibrant smile, compassion, dedication and lifelong dream of joining law enforcement in the footsteps of her father, who spent 26 years as a Colusa County sheriff's deputy.

Merced Corona said he tried to get his daughter "Nat" to join the county force, but she told him that she had "found the perfect department in the perfect city" and couldn't picture herself anywhere else.

"Today we lay to rest our beloved sister cop,"

Hard-fighting Bulldogettes falter in the third

Special to the Herald

COAHOMA — The Bulldogettes lost a hard-fought game to the Clyde Lady Bulldogs 33-27 in a district matchup held Friday night.

The Bulldogettes kept pace with their district 5 3-A rival throughout the first two quarters of play even tying the score five times in the first half.

Macee Grant struck first for the Bulldogettes nailing a basket shot from behind the arc to tie the game earlier on 3-3 in the first. Abbie Lopez and Caitlyn Corley continued to help Coahoma keep pace with two more baskets.

By mid-quarter, the Lady Bulldogs made a short run to pull ahead by five points then Cassie Grant buried the ball with 12 seconds left and followed by quickly intercepted a pass at Clyde's post to nail a second shot with 4 seconds left in the quarter. That score brought Coahoma within 1 point of knotting the game 12-11.

Action in the second quarter was much like the first although scoring on both sides slowed. Baskets by Paige Atkins and Lopez helped Coahoma stay up with the Lady Bulldogs and C. Grant ended the half by knotting the score 17-all.

Returning from the locker room for the third, the Lady Bulldogs broke open the game scoring 11 points in the quarter while Coahoma failed to find the net. The Bulldogettes surged back in the fourth to outscore the Lady Bulldogs 10-5 thanks to C. Grant, Lopez, and Jovi Gonzales but the comeback wasn't enough to overcome 11-point deficit set in the third quarter.

C. Grant led the Bulldogettes with 11 points and Lopez added 7 more.

Next: The Bulldogettes travel to Tuscola next Friday to take on the Jim Ned Lady Indians for their second district matchup of the season.

Linehan out as Cowboys offensive coordinator after 5 seasons

Scott Linehan is out as offensive coordinator of the Dallas Cowboys only days after coach Jason Garrett sent mixed messages about the oft-criticized assistant's future. Garrett said in a statement released by the team Friday, Jan. 18, 2019, that he and Linehan had some open discussions this week and mutually agreed that a change was needed after five seasons.

By SCHUYLER DIXON

AP Pro Football Writer

DALLAS — Scott Linehan is out as offensive coordinator of the Dallas Cowboys, less than a week after coach Jason Garrett sent mixed messages about the future for the oft-criticized assistant.

Garrett, in a statement released by the team Friday, described the move as a mutual decision after he and Linehan had some open and positive discussions this week. Linehan, who just completed his fifth season in Dallas, had one more season left on his contract.

"This was very much a mutual decision, and there was a great deal of common ground and shared understanding between both of us during our meetings," Garrett said. "Scott has had an incredibly positive impact on our football team. He has been instrumental in the development and success of a significant number of our veteran and younger players."

The Cowboys rebounded after a 3-5 start to win the NFC East. They beat the Seattle Seahawks in a home wild-card game before a 30-22 loss at the Los Angeles Rams last weekend.

Garrett said on his radio show Monday he thought Linehan would return and didn't expect any significant changes to his staff. But at a news conference later in the day, Garrett was far from definitive and said discussions about a coaching staff hadn't happened.

Linehan said in a statement issued by the team that he and Garrett agreed after "a good, direct talk" that "a fresh start was probably best for both of us."

"I'll always respect Jason as a coach, and I consider him a good friend," Linehan said. "I'll miss my fellow coaches and my players a great deal. But life is about change and growth, and I very much look forward to my next challenge."

Dallas' slow start this season was largely blamed on a misfiring offense. There were questions about creativity, including from Hall of Fame quarterback-turned-analyst Troy Aikman, who won three Super Bowls with the Cowboys in the 1990s.

The Cowboys were much better offensively in the second half of the season after sending their first-round pick in this year's draft to Oakland for receiver Amari Cooper. But the Cowboys were one of just four teams to convert fewer than half their trips inside the 20-yard line into touchdowns.

During the regular season, the Cowboys averaged 344 total yards and 21.2 points a game to rank 22nd in the NFL in both categories. Their only loss the last half of the regular season was 23-0 at Indianapolis on Dec. 16, the first time in 15 years they were held scoreless.

The question of Linehan's replacement will revolve around finding the right fit for quarterback Dak Prescott. The 2016 NFL Offensive Rookie of the Year regressed in the season and a half following that honor before his efficiency improved after the addition of Cooper.

The Cowboys also have one of the NFL's best running backs in Ezekiel Elliott, who was a first-year sensation alongside Prescott for a 13-3 team that had the top seed in 2016 before losing to Green Bay in the divisional round. Elliott has won two rushing titles in his three seasons.

One intriguing consideration is whether to utilize Prescott's mobility more. One of his strengths is throwing on the run, and he's already within two touchdowns rushing of Hall of Famer Roger Staubach's franchise record of 20.

"I think we can get better schematically," executive vice president of personnel Stephen Jones said on his radio show a day before the decision on Linehan was announced. "I think we can improve on our scheme, on our design, and I think we can throw the ball efficiently and effectively with the personnel we have."

Linehan was Nick Saban's offensive coordinator with the Miami Dolphins in 2005, when Garrett was in charge of the quarterbacks in his first year as an NFL assistant. St. Louis hired Linehan as head coach, and he was fired during his third season in 2008.

The 55-year-old Linehan was offensive coordinator in Detroit for Matthew Stafford's first five seasons with the Lions before joining the Cowboys when Tony Romo was the starter in 2014. Prescott replaced an injured Romo two years later.

Popovich ties Riley for road wins; Spurs beat Wolves 116-113

By BRIAN HALL

Associated Press
MINNEAPOLIS — Under coach Gregg Popovich, the San Antonio Spurs have been consistent winners. That includes when they go on the road — and anywhere they play the Minnesota Timberwolves.

LaMarcus Aldridge scored 25 points, Rudy Gay added 22 and the Spurs held on to give Popovich another milestone victory in a 116-113 win against the Timberwolves on Friday night.

Popovich earned his 520th career win on the road, tying Pat Riley for the most in NBA history.

"We got through some stuff and it's always good to win on the road," Popovich said. "It's always difficult to do, but when you do it feels pretty good."

The win also continued San Antonio's mastery of Minnesota. The Spurs have won 16 of the past 18 games between the teams. San Antonio is 59-25 in the series since Popovich took over as coach for the 1996-97 season.

Marco Belinelli added 19 points off the bench for San Antonio, which played without leading scorer DeMar DeRozan because of left ankle soreness.

"Coach Pop said don't think about it and play basketball, and we've got to win the game no matter what," forward Davis Bertans said.

Karl-Anthony Towns had 23 points for the Timberwolves but fouled out after only 21 minutes. Derrick Rose chipped in 23 points and Taj Gibson added 14 points and 11 rebounds for Minnesota.

Another matchup between the familiar foes was tight throughout, with 27 lead changes and 17 ties. It also featured a heavy dose of fouls on both sides. The teams combined for 53 personal fouls and 67 free throws.

"We're a no-excuse team," Timberwolves coach Ryan Saunders said. "We made our own mistakes at times. We had opportunities to win. So, there's nothing on the officials."

Towns picked up his fourth foul less than two minutes into the second half, and again went to the bench. Josh Okogie had six points and Jeff Teague added five as Minnesota used a 14-1 run to take a 77-67 lead.

The Spurs responded with a 13-2 spurt of their own as Bertans hit a pair of 3-pointers.

"We had a 10-point lead. We didn't close out the show," Towns said. "We didn't do what we needed to do to come out with a win. That's the disappointing thing about tonight. That's our next step in maturation of our team."

The Wolves led 90-88 to start the fourth, but Bertans opened the quarter with another 3. San Antonio led by seven in the fourth, but Minnesota clawed back within one with 30.3 seconds left on Rose's layup.

Belinelli hit two free throws and Rose's 3 at the buzzer was off the mark.

TIP-INS

Spurs: Popovich is third in NBA history with 1,224 wins overall. He passed Jerry Sloan for third place on Jan. 10. ... San Antonio entered 4-17 this season when trailing after three quarters.

Timberwolves: Tyus Jones missed the game with a left ankle sprain sustained Tuesday at Philadelphia. Robert Covington missed his eighth straight game with a right knee bone bruise. ... Andrew Wiggins passed Sam Mitchell for second place on the franchise's career scoring list. Wiggins has 7,174 points. Kevin Garnett is first with 19,201 points in a Wolves uniform. ... After scoring his 10,000th career point on Tuesday, Rose got his 3,000th assist on Friday. ... Minnesota announced that Jerry Sichting was hired as an assistant coach. It is Sichting's third stint with the Wolves. He spent 10 years with the team from 1995-2005 and two seasons from 2007-09.

ON THE MEND

DeRozan said he expects to play Sunday "without a doubt" even though he's "a little banged up."

"I pride myself in not missing a practice, not missing a game," he said. "When you play a lot of minutes, a lot of things accumulate that you've got to deal with, so it was kind of good just to get a rest. Don't play until Sunday, get some treatment. So, a couple days for me is going to be big."

DeRozan began the day 20th in the league in points per game (21.7) and 13th in assists (6.4).

TOWNS FOULS

It was the sixth time Towns has fouled out this season, and the second time against San Antonio. He entered tied for first in the NBA in fouls per game at 3.8

"I'm going to save my money because whatever I say won't change anything," Towns said.

UP NEXT

Spurs: Return home against the Los Angeles Clippers on Sunday.

Timberwolves: Host the Phoenix Suns on Sunday.

Warriors beat Clippers 112-94; Boogie fouls out of debut

By BETH HARRIS

AP Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES — DeMarcus Cousins couldn't wipe the smile off his face.

The usually scowling big man was back Friday night after being sidelined for nearly a year. He scored 14 points in his Warriors debut, a 112-94 victory over the Los Angeles Clippers.

"I felt like a kid on Christmas," Cousins said. "This was probably one of the best days of my life being back on the floor playing the game that I love."

His new teammates were glad to have him, too, even if he lasted just 15 minutes before fouling out.

They gave him a standing ovation when he got whistled for his sixth foul at 8:51 of the fourth. Cousins smiled and high-fived his way to the bench. Stephen Curry and Kevin Durant cracked up.

"Probably the fakes love I ever received in my life," Cousins said.

Durant said: "Hopefully that's the last time we give him a standing ovation when he fouls out."

Curry led the Warriors with 28 points, Durant added 24 and Golden State won its seventh in a row and sixth straight on the road.

The Warriors shot just 9 of 37 on 3-pointers on a night when Curry made only three from long range. Fellow Splash Brother Klay Thompson missed all four of his 3-point attempts.

The hours leading up to his first game since Jan. 26, 2018, were the worst for Cousins. He texted friends and talked to his brother and sister who reminded him that he's been playing basketball for years.

Still, it wasn't until the ball tipped that the butterflies went away.

"My teammates made it as smooth and easy as possible," Cousins said. "It's a great group of guys. Nothing but love in the room."

Cousins shot 5 for 11 from the floor and finished with six rebounds and three assists.

After rupturing his left Achilles tendon in a game for New Orleans he missed the rest of last season, including nine playoff games for the Pelicans. The Warriors signed him last July.

With Cousins finally in the lineup, Golden State became the first team in 42 years to start five All-Stars from the previous season.

"We haven't really practiced together," Cousins said. "We can get a whole lot better. We've got a lot of potential."

Cousins missed his first shot but came right back with a one-handed slam off Durant's bounce pass for the Warriors' first basket. Cousins was called for two fouls in the first three minutes and sat down.

"I'm just glad to know I can still dunk," he said. "That felt good."

Cousins picked up his third foul 32 seconds into the second quarter. Then he hit a 3-pointer for the Warriors' first basket of the period, bringing loud cheers from their many fans at Staples Center.

Curry scored 14 of Golden State's 29 points in the third, including their final eight for an 81-72 lead.

Cousins went out with a bang. He got his fifth foul just 30 seconds into the fourth and then made two consecutive 3-pointers — throwing up three fingers — that extended the Warriors' lead to 87-72.

"He looked good. He looked strong and quick," Golden State coach Steve Kerr said. "I was really impressed."

Tobias Harris led the short-handed Clippers with 28 points in their season-worst fifth straight loss. Rookie guard Shai Gilgeous-Alexander tied his career high with 24.

Los Angeles played without injured Lou Williams, and Danilo Gallinari left with lower back spasms.

"The change of the game was in the third quarter. Them scoring off our turnovers changed the momentum of the game for us," Harris said.

The Warriors took their first double-digit lead in the first four minutes of the third when the Clippers missed their initial six shots. Golden State opened on a 14-2 run with five different players scoring, including a basket by Cousins before getting his fourth foul, to go up 66-53.

Draymond Green got two technical fouls in the second quarter, the second one for swinging from the basket after a high-flying dunk that sent the Warriors into halftime leading 52-51.

UP NEXT

Warriors: Play at the Los Angeles Lakers on Monday before heading East for the rest of a five-game trip.

Clippers: At the San Antonio Spurs on Sunday to begin a four-game trip.

The Low Down on the King ~Interesting Facts about MLK~

By AMBER MANSEFIELD
Staff Writer

Martin Luther King Jr. was a Baptist minister, leader in the civil rights movement, peace protester, all in all he was just a great guy. While facts about King such as giving his "I have a Dream Speech," and being the youngest Noble Prize winner are taught in school, there are some interesting tidbits about Dr. King that you won't find in the history books. Some that are interesting and some are what I would call "a head scratcher."

What's in a name?

First, did you know his birth name was actually Michael King Jr? His father was named Michael King and changed his first name to Martin Luther when he became a minister.

But MLK almost didn't become a minister!

After King graduated from college, he still had serious reluctance about Christianity and the Bible and told his father (who was a Baptist minister, as his grandfather had also been) that he didn't want to be a minister and instead was considering becoming a doctor or a lawyer. It was later he decided that the Bible had "many profound truths which one cannot escape" and chose to become a minister, entering seminary at Crozer Theological Seminary in Pennsylvania. He graduated with his PhD at the age of 25.

King learned lessons from Gandhi...sort of

While at Crozer Theological Seminary, Dr. King was introduced, and was quickly enthralled in the teachings and philosophies of Mohandas Gandhi. King entered Crozer in the fall of 1948, after Gandhi was assassinated in January 1948 in India.

Later in an interview, King said he attended a lecture from the president of Howard University given in Philadelphia about Gandhi, and he immediately became "deeply influenced" by the philosophy of nonviolence.

C in Public Speaking

King got a C in public speaking at King's father, a preacher in Atlanta, thought his son was the best speaker he'd ever seen, before he went away to seminary school. But in his first year of seminary school in Chester, Pennsylvania, one of King's professors gave him a C in a public speaking course! In his third and final year, King was valedictorian with straight A's.

Honeymooning at a Funeral.

Because no honeymoon suites were available for African-Americans, King and his wife Coretta spent their wedding night at a friend's funeral parlor.

"Live Long and Prosper"

King convinced "Uhura" on Star Trek, Nichelle Nichols (who actually later went on to work for NASA), to continue on with the role after the first season. Nichols stated he told her not to leave the show because she was not only playing a black person as a main character on TV, but she was also playing a character that didn't conform to the stereotypical black person of the day, usually portrayed. Rather, Uhura was portrayed as an intelligent member of the crew and an equal to those around her. Once again, such a MLK move.

Astronaut Ronald McNair, the second black person in space (who also died in the Challenger explosion), was inspired to become an astronaut because of the character of Uhura.

Book Signing Assassination Attempt!

In 1958, while at a book signing, he was stabbed by a mentally ill woman. Martin Luther King Jr. was nearly assassinated a decade earlier than his ultimate death. While on a book tour, signing copies of his book "Stride Toward Freedom," on Sept. 20, 1958, King was approached by Izola Ware Curry who asked him if he was Martin Luther King Jr., which he of course replied affirmatively. When he said he was, she said "I've been looking for you for five years." She then pulled out a letter opener and stabbed him in the chest.

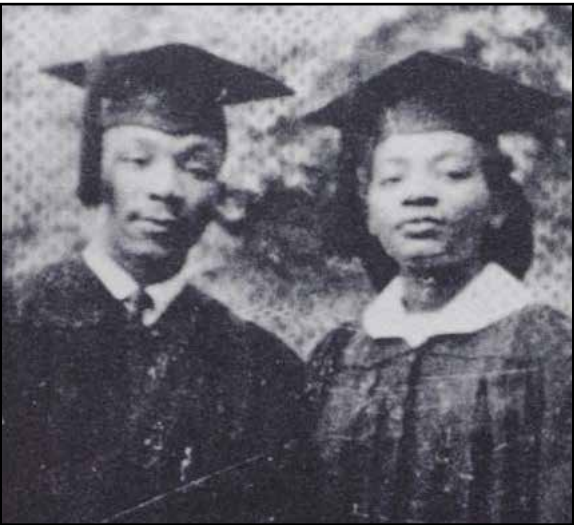

It took three full hours to remove the blade. The reason? The sharp point end of the blade was pressing against his aorta and the doctors had to be extremely careful while removing it because of this. The doctor, Dr. Maynard, told him after, "If you had sneezed during all those hours of waiting, your aorta would have been punctured and you would have drowned in your own blood." King didn't press any charges against the woman. So very King like.

King's Heart

King's autopsy revealed that though he was only 39 when he died, he had the heart of a 60-year-old man, assumedly stress-related.

King on the Road

Today over 700 streets in the United States are named after Martin Luther King Jr., with one such street in almost every major city. This is not even counting the amazing number of buildings, schools, and the like named after him. Also is celebrated in Toronto, Canada, and Hiroshima, Japan.

What do you get when you combine a warm, gooey brownie right out of the oven and frozen sugar milk, or ice cream together? THE PERFECT DESSERT! That's the way I feel about brownies and ice cream. Hot warm chocolate with creamy vanilla goodness.. MMMM just makes my mouth water thinking about it. But there are many different brownie and ice cream combination and toppings that put together to create a mouth watering explosion.

This one featured it called Bourbon Brownie! Made with warm fudge brownie topped with bourbon vanilla ice cream, caramel, and pecans. This can be found at Lumbre's Bar and Grill.

West Texas town of Stamford reopens local movie theater

Associated Press

STAMFORD, Texas (AP) — The balcony is finally open in the West Texas town of Stamford.

The Abilene Reporter-News reports the Grand Theatre is living up to its name. The 1930s-era movie palace, shuttered since 2011, is once again showing films.

Like the Tower Drive-In in nearby Rule, the Grand had to close its doors because of changes in the motion picture industry. The conversion to digital rippled the landscape for small-town theaters across the nation. Stamford has a population of nearly 3,000.

Back in 2002, the Grand received movies in large film cans, shipped from another theater. Once the movie ran for its designated period, it would be packed and shipped to the next theater.

But as cameras went digital, the projectors soon followed. Movie companies realized they could save quite a bit of money by convincing theaters to switch to digital projection. The argument for the switch was not only easier access to movies, but better sound as well.

The only hiccup in this plan is cost, of course. Locally-owned movie houses found themselves going out of business or scrambling to create community partnerships to save their theaters.

An early local example is Eastland's Majestic Theatre, a restored beauty from the same era as the Grand. The M3 Palace Theater in Colorado City also successfully upgraded.

The Grand reopened Nov. 23 with "The Grinch." Jessica Decker, a marketing professional in Stamford volunteering for the theater project, said it's been a community effort.

"About two and a half years ago, the Economic Development Corporation put together a committee of people to fund raise and start the renovation process," she said.

That committee raised more than $100,000 for the effort through donations and loans. Volunteers were enlisted for the demolition and restoration work.

"Just a lot of people in general spend a lot of time and money over the past two and a half years to put this thing back together," Decker said.

Why was this a priority for the community?

"People just realized that it was too important to the town to lose. Not only because of the history, it's a key landmark on the square," she said. "But for having a place kids can go for entertainment."

That's true in any small town. And at this time of year, not many want to drive 80 miles round-trip to see a movie.

"Having something to do in the winter that's constructive and beneficial is too valuable to lose," Decker said.

The Grand shows movies at 7 p.m. Friday through Monday, with Sunday's showing a matinee at 3 p.m. They're family-friendly movies, PG-13 and under. Upcoming current features are listed on their Facebook page, but classic movies might be coming.

"That has definitely been discussed," Decker said, and laughed. "I know if it were up to my dad, we'd have a whole John Wayne series."

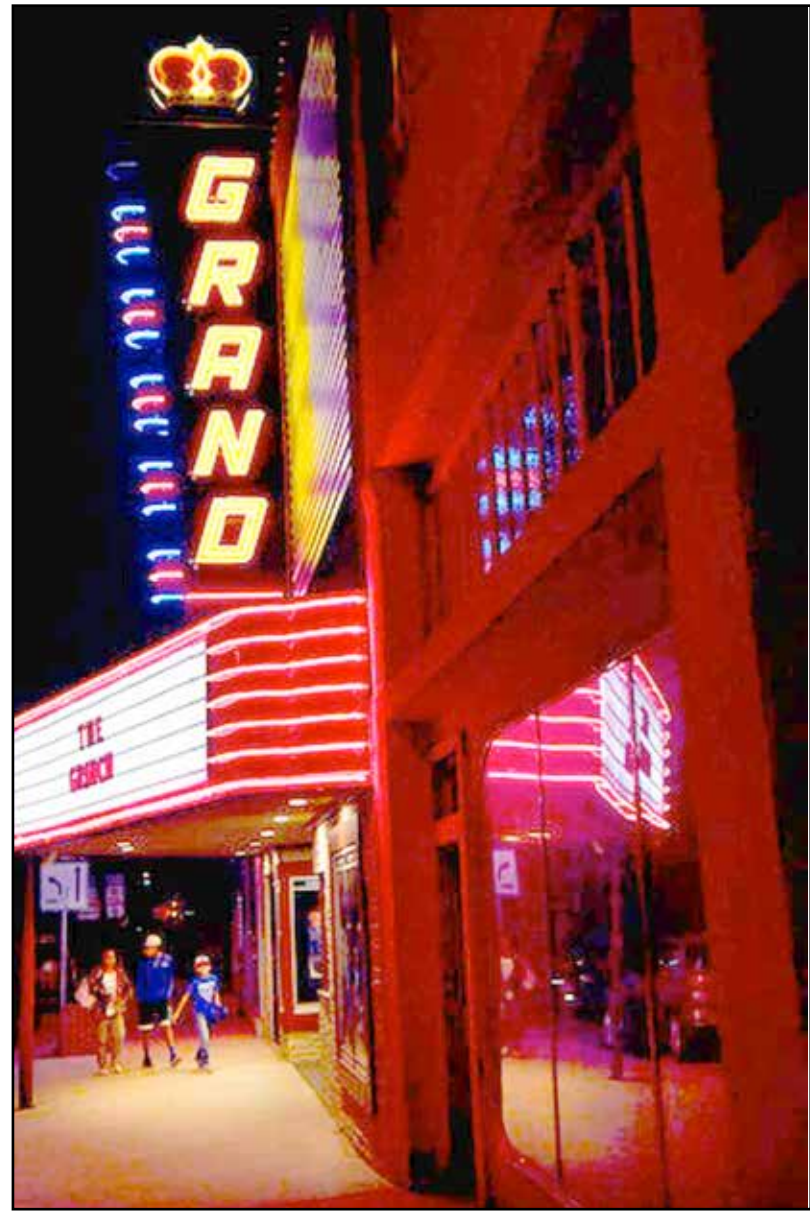

The auditorium features 350 modern seats. She said they still are taking donations to complete finishing touches.

Phil Swenson remembered visiting the Grand as a child. His favorite movies were seen there with his grandfather Saturday afternoons.

"Pat Boone had a famous one back then, I think it was 'April Love'," he said. "But I remember the 'Ten Commandments,' especially in color."

He's hoping to see Steve McQueen's "Bullitt" in the Grand, but will settle for a birthday party there, too.

"I'm just thankful that everybody is not afraid to volunteer," he said of the theater. "That's the main thing, if they're here, they volunteered to help out."

ROGER'S REVIEWS: GLASS

In 2000, M. Night Shyamalan directed the movie "Unbreakable," in which an unassuming security guard survives a horrific train crash, discovers he's got super powers, and slowly transitions from a bleak, depressing existence to a bleak, depressing existence in which he fights evil.

In 2016, he made the movie "Split," in which a man with dissociative identity disorder (and 23...well, 24...personalities) kidnaps some girls before his superhuman "Beast" identity tries to eat them. We knew the two movies were linked because David Dunn (Bruce Willis), the security guard from "Unbreakable," has a cameo in the end sequence of "Split."

Now, Shyamalan has released the capstone third installment in his superhero trilogy, "Glass," named for Samuel L. Jackson's character Elijah Price's villainous alter ego "First name 'Mister,' last name 'Glass.'"

"Glass" starts off with Dunn – now the owner of a small security company and the subject of an urban legend as "The Overseer" – patrolling the streets in his iconic green rain poncho. He witnesses some young men beating up random strangers with their "Superman Punch" attack, follows them back to their home, and teaches them a lesson in manners.

We learn that he's working with his son Joseph (Spencer Treat Clark – remember him from "Unbreakable"? Same actor, now all grown up) to track down "The Horde" (McAvoy), who has just kidnapped four more teenage girls to feed The Beast.

Using his evil touch sense thingy that he developed in "Unbreakable," Dunn senses The Horde in his "Hedwig" personality – a nine-year-old boy – and that he's got the girls chained up in a nearby brick factory. After saving the girls and fighting The Beast, both Horde and Overseer are arrested by the cops and taken to Raven Hill mental institution, where Price is also being held under strong sedation.

All three of the men are kept in special facilities to disable their powers – Dunn is kept in a room with a massive sprinkler system which will cut in if he misbehaves (remember? Water is his Kryptonite). The Horde is kept in a room with a special light system which causes his personality to change uncontrollably (it's never explained what would happen if he simply closed his eyes or didn't look at the light – perhaps backing up to the light and destroying it). And Price is simply kept zonked out of his mind on medication.

The three are examined and psychoanalyzed by Dr. Ellie Staple (Sarah Paulson), a psychiatrist specializing in delusions of grandeur in which the patient believes he or she is a superhero. Staple tries to convince the three men that their "powers" are nothing more than normal human skills and abilities combined with delusions.

I'll stop the narration there. Other characters include Casey Cooke (Anya Taylor-Joy), the teen who survived being kidnapped by The Horde in "Split"; Mrs. Price (Charlayne Woodard), Elijah's mother; and Shyamalan himself makes his usual cameo, though I won't spoil it for you.

I don't think "Glass" goes quite the way I would have taken it. Shyamalan is known for his twist endings, and, in my opinion, "Glass"'s twist is a little bit of a let-down.

The majority of the movie is great, showing off Elijah's super power (genius intellect and villainous masterminding, if you've forgotten) to great effect. The movie is well-acted and well-paced – a great successor to the films that have come before...but the ending is a bit hard to swallow.

I'll get off it – I don't want to spoil anything. I'm going to give "Glass" a slightly puzzled seven and a half stars.

I will say this – if we do get more (and I believe I remember Shyamalan saying he doesn't want to make another sequel) my opinion of this movie could improve significantly. Not that it was bad – but the ending is too wide open for the ending of a story, in my opinion.

Powerful Symbol of the West

By Judy Tereletsky

Howard SWCD District Clerk

One of the most memorable scenes in the epic motion picture "How the West Was Won" is when the Native American Indians send a massive herd of buffalo stampeding over the settlers invading their land. Although these majestic animals are commonly called buffalo the correct name is American Bison. While roaming the American prairie by tens of millions the breed was hunted almost to extinction in the late 1800's. Once reaching estimates of 30 to 100 million in number roaming the Great Plains, it is recorded that when the federal government passed strict game laws in 1889 the population of bison had declined with 300 to 500 animals remaining in the United States.

Courtesy photo

The American Bison, commonly referred to as a buffalo, stands six feet high and weighs approximately 2,000 pounds as an adult.

At one-time, American Bison herds could be found from Alaska to northern Mexico with most grazing in the grasslands and prairies of the United States. Bison were essential to the ecology of the Great Plains creating habitat for other animals and plants by grazing and disturbing the soil. Most of us know of the strong bond with the Native Americans who relied on the bison for food, shelter, clothing and as a powerful spiritual symbol.

At maturity the Bison can reach six feet high at their shoulders and 7 to 12 feet in length. They weigh between 1,800 to 2,400 pounds thus making them the largest terrestrial animals in North America. They have a characteristic hump over the front shoulder and then a slimmer hindquarter. Both male and females have short horns that curve outward and up from the sides of their massive head. The head, neck, front legs, and front part of their body have a thick coat of long, dark hair. The males also have a black beard that is about a foot long. This thick hair helps the bison to survive long tough winters and they endure blizzards by standing facing the cold winds. These heavy coats are shed each spring and the bison help to loosen their hair by rolling around on the ground to get it to fall off in large patches.

Bison graze year-round feeding primarily on grasses. They find grass in the winter by sweeping their heads from side to side to clear snow. Bison are usually found in bands and communicate with each other through snorts and bellows. They have excellent hearing and smell, but their poor eyesight is what causes a herd to stampede so easily. Living for 15 to 20 years, adult Bison are relatively safe from natural predators though weak or young bison can be prey upon by mountain lions, bears or wolves. A single calf is born to a female bison and after only a few days it can keep up with the herd. When bison travel they form a line and are good swimmers and cross rivers and streams without difficulty.

With the efforts of the government and conservation groups the American Bison is no longer in danger of extinction however that does not mean they are totally safe in our modern world. Living mainly in controlled national parks lands or under the protection of private commercial conservationists, bison is still threatened by habitat loss, hybridization in managed populations and low genetic diversity among the herds. Exposure to livestock diseases has become a noted threat to their existence.

In 2016, President Obama signed the National Bison Legacy Act which designated the bison as the official mammal of the United States. It is also an official state symbol for Kansas, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. Closer to home in Howard County, the American Bison is the mascot for the Forsan Independent School District. The Forsan Buffalos proudly represent a school district originally established in 1928.

Stocks keep climbing as hopes for US-China trade deal rise

AP Markets Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Stocks in the U.S. and Europe jumped Friday as renewed hopes for progress in trade talks between the U.S. and China helped the markets finish the week with another strong gain.
Indexes jumped after Bloomberg News reported that China's government offered to buy more goods and services from the U.S., potentially eliminating its trade deficit by 2024. For investors, the encouraging news on trade builds on recent positive signs for the U.S. economy and indications from the Federal Reserve that it will be patient when considering future interest rate hikes.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average is up 5.9 percent and the S&P 500 index has risen 6.5 percent so far this year, a surprisingly strong showing coming off a punishing end to 2018.
Technology and industrial companies made some of the top gains, while banks rose after around round of solid fourth-quarter earnings reports. Oil and copper prices rose, while gold and bond prices fell. Those are all signs traders felt more optimistic about global economic growth.
Over the last few days investors grew steadily more hopeful the U.S. and China are narrowing their differences over trade. On Wednesday the Chinese government said the top trade envoys from both countries will meet at the end of January.

"What you can see that is significant is that both sides are trying," said Tom Martin, senior portfolio manager of Globalt Investments. "Everybody feels like they've now made their point" after the two nations spent most of 2018 staking out positions and occasionally making threats.
Martin said the Federal Reserve has also made a big contribution to the rally.
The S&P 500 climbed 34.75 points, or 1.3 percent, to 2,670.71. The Dow jumped 336.25 points, or 1.4 percent, to 24,706.35. The Nasdaq composite added 72.76 points, or 1 percent, to 7,157.23.
Stock indexes have surged since reaching a low point on

Travel industry fears damage from a long government shutdown

By DAVID KOENIG and CHRISTOPHER RUGABER

Associated Press

America's busiest airport, Atlanta's Hartsfield-Jackson International, is a blur of activity on the best of days. But an extra layer of anxiety gripped the airport Friday, the eve of a three-day holiday weekend. The partial government shutdown — the longest ever — has thinned the ranks of federal workers who staff airport security lines. And some travelers had braced for the worst.

"I have a 3 o'clock flight, and I arrived at 10:15 a.m.," Beth Lambert said while waiting to check in at a Delta Air Lines counter as her 5-year-old, Michael, rode around on his wheeled bag like a scooter. "We're going to be hanging out for a while."

The scene at most of the nation's airports has so far been marked more by concerned passengers showing up early than by missed flights. Longer lines are evident at some airports. But delays resulting from a rise in federal security screeners calling in sick have been slight.

Yet concern is quickly growing. President Donald Trump and Democrats in Congress remain far apart over Trump's insistence on funding for a wall along the Mexican border as the price of reopening the government. With the two sides trading taunts and avoiding talks, travel industry analysts and economists have been calculating the potential damage should the shutdown drag into February or beyond.

Airlines and hotels would suffer. So would parks and restaurants that cater to travelers. And, eventually, the broader U.S. economy, already absorbing a trade war with China and Christmas Eve, as the S&P 500 has risen for four weeks in a row. It climbed 2.9 percent this week. It's risen at least 1.9 percent every week during that rally. The last time the index rose at least 1.5 percent for four weeks in a row was in early 2009, in the wake of the financial crisis, according to LPL Financial Senior Market Strategist Ryan Detrick.

The U.S. trade imbalance with China has been a source of constant complaints from President Donald Trump. That deficit grew to a record $323.3 billion in 2018, and eliminating it could mean hundreds of billions of dollars in increased sales for U.S. companies. The two countries have raised taxes on billions of dollars of each other's goods in the spat over the trade deficit, Beijing's manufacturing plans, and U.S. complaints that China steals technology from foreign companies.

Stocks sank in late 2018 as investors worried that global economic growth, and U.S. growth in particular, would slow significantly. Threats including the U.S.-China trade dispute, rising interest rates in the U.S., slowing growth in China and Europe, and unstable political situations like Brexit all made it seem like 2019 could be a disappointing year and some investors felt a recession was a possibility.

But now they're starting to think it won't get that bad. There are signs trade talks are progressing. The U.S. economy doesn't appear to have slowed much and China is working to perk up its economy. Resolving the trade dispute would also resolve an obstacle to growth for the global economy and corporate profits. The S&P 500, the main benchmark for U.S. stocks, fell 19.8 percent from late September to late December and has recovered more than half of those losses.

Trucking and logistics company J.B. Hunt Transportation jumped 6.2 percent to $106.11 and railroad company Kansas City Southern climbed 6.1 percent to $110.52 after their fourth-quarter reports.

European stocks jumped. Germany's DAX climbed 2.6 percent and the FTSE 100 in Britain rose 2 percent. The French CAC 40 gained 1.7 percent.

Faster economic growth would mean more demand for oil, and prices climbed. U.S. crude rose 3.3 percent to $53.80 in New York. Brent crude, used to price international oils, added 2.5 percent to $62.70 a barrel in London.

Bond prices fell. The yield on the 10-year Treasury note rose to 2.79 percent from 2.74 percent. High-dividend stocks like utilities lagged the rest of the market. They tend to rise when investors are worried about the economy.

Tesla fell 13 percent to $302.26 after the company said it would cut 7 percent of its jobs. CEO Elon Musk said the cuts are meant to reduce costs as the company lowers the price for its cars. He said in a note to staff that the road ahead is "very difficult."

Asian stocks also finished higher. Hong Kong's Hang Seng gained 1.2 percent and the Nikkei 225 in Japan rose 1.3 percent. Seoul's Kospi added 0.8 percent.

In other commodities trading, wholesale gasoline rose 1.6 percent to $1.45 a gallon and heating oil added 1.6 percent to $1.92 a gallon. Natural gas jumped 2 percent to $3.48 per 1,000 cubic feet.

Gold dropped 0.8 percent to $1,282.70 an ounce and silver fell 0.9 percent to $15.40 an ounce. Copper rose 1.5 percent to $2.72 a pound.

The dollar rose to 109.79 yen from 109.23 yen. The euro fell to $1.1370 from $1.1390.

Public Notice

ATTENTION PROPERTY OWNERS

Property owners have certain rights that may reduce their property tax burden.

HOMEOWNERS

Persons who own their residence on January 1, 2019, may claim their home as a residential homestead. The filing of this document is only necessary if the homeowner has changed homesteads since January 1, 2018, or has become eligible for additional exemptions since last year. Homeowners may also defer the portion of the tax on their residence homestead if the value of the home was raised more than 5% above the previous year. Although the tax collection is deferred, interest continues to run on the unpaid portion of tax at a rate of 8% per annum and the deferred tax remains a lien on the property. To apply for the deferral, the owner should contact the appraisal district which appraised the property in question and complete an application.

DISABLED PERSONS

Persons who are disabled under Social Security law are entitled to additional exemptions on their residential homestead. Disabled applicants must apply with the appraisal district and furnish a determination letter from Social Security.

PERSONS WHO ARE OVER 65 YEARS OF AGE

Persons who are over 65 years of age or disabled persons may file for additional exemptions and a ceiling on school taxes for their residential homestead if they become 65 during 2019. Over-65 persons should apply for this exemption at the appraisal district office in their area. Over-65 persons are also eligible to defer paying the tax on their residential homestead if they wish. The taxes continue to accrue during the deferral along with an interest rate of 8% annually, but no attempt will be made to force payment during the deferral.

DISABLED VETERANS

The law provides partial exemptions for any property owned by disabled veterans or surviving spouses and surviving children of deceased disabled veterans. Another partial exemption is for homesteads donated to disabled veterans by charitable organizations at no cost or not more than 50 percent of the good faith estimate of the homestead's market value to the disabled veterans and their surviving spouses. The exemption amount is determined according to the percentage of service-connected disability. The law also provides a 100 percent homestead exemption for 100 percent disabled veterans and their surviving spouses and surviving spouses of U.S. armed service members killed in action.

Public Notice

FIRST RESPONDERS

The eligible surviving spouse of a first responder killed in the line of duty is allowed a 100 percent homestead exemption if the homestead was in effect before the first responder's death and the surviving spouse has not remarried since the death of the first responder.

FARM AND RANCH OWNERS

Farmers and ranchers may be entitled to receive an alternate method of appraisal determined by the farm income to the property. This method is available to farms and ranches commercially raising crops or livestock or which are used as a wildlife habitat under State guidelines. An application for agricultural use value and additional information is available from your appraisal district. Re-filing is only necessary if requested to do so by the Chief Appraiser or if ownership has changed.

EXEMPTION APPLICATIONS

Exemption applications for all property tax exemptions including total exemptions for charitable, religious, and other total exemptions may be obtained from the appraisal district in your county or through the Texas Comptroller of Public Accounts.

BUSINESS PERSONAL PROPERTY OWNERS

State law now requires the filing of a rendition declaring what types of business personal property that a person or company owns. Failure to file the rendition will result in a 10% penalty. If a fraudulent rendition is filed, a 50% penalty is mandated. A rendition can be obtained from the appraisal district office where the property is located. A 30-day filing extension is available by written request.

DEALER'S MOTOR VEHICLE INVENTORY DECLARATION

State law requires the filing of a Declaration of a Dealer's Motor Vehicle Inventory with the appraisal district office and county tax assessor-collector's office. Form 50-244 and all supporting documentation must be filed no later than Feb. 1st. A dealer who fails to file a Declaration will be imposed a penalty. Information regarding penalties can be obtained from the appraisal office or Comptroller's website.

For more information about these programs, contact the Howard County Appraisal District at 432-263-8301 or 315 S. Main, Big Spring, TX 79720, and on the District's website www.howardcad.org Information is also available on the Comptroller's Property Tax Assistance Division's website at Comptroller.texas.gov/taxes/property-tax/

Updated Property Tax Information Now Available for Glasscock County Taxpayers

Garden City, Texas — New and updated property tax information has just been compiled by Glasscock County Appraisal District and is available now to assist taxpayers. This property tax information is current and covers a wide range of topics, such as taxpayer remedies, exemptions and appraisals, and is of value to select groups, such as disabled veterans and persons who are age 65 or older.

"Whether you are a homeowner, business owner, disabled veteran or a taxpayer, it's important you know your rights concerning the property tax laws," said Priscilla A. Ginnetti, Chief Appraiser of the Glasscock County Appraisal District. "You can contact us about any property tax issues with full confidence that we will provide you the most complete, accurate and up-to-date available information to assist you."

This includes information about the following programs:
• Property Tax Exemptions for Disabled Veterans - The law provides partial exemptions for any property owned by veterans who are disabled, surviving spouses and surviving children of deceased disabled veterans. This includes homesteads donated to disabled veterans by charitable organizations at no cost or not more than 50 percent of the good faith estimate of the homestead's market value to the disabled veterans and their surviving spouses. The exemption amount is determined according to percentage of service-connected disability. The law also provides a 100 percent exemption for 100 percent disabled veterans and their surviving spouses and for surviving spouses of U.S. armed service members killed in action.

• Property Tax Exemptions - Non-profit organizations that meet statutory requirements may seek property tax exemptions and must apply to their county appraisal district by a specific date. Businesses that receive tax abatements granted by taxing units; ship inventory out of Texas that may be eligible for the "freeport" exemption; store certain goods in transit in warehouses that are moved within 175 days; construct, install or acquire pollution control property; own and operate energy storage systems; convert landfill-generated gas; or store offshore drilling equipment while not in use may also be eligible for statutory exemptions.

• Rendering Taxable Property - If a business owns tangible personal property that is used to produce income, the business must file a rendition with its local county appraisal district by a specified date. Personal property includes inventory and equipment used by a business. Owners do not have to render exempt property such as church property or an agriculture producer's equipment used for farming.

• Appraisal Notices - Normally, taxpayers receive a notice of appraised value from the appropriate local county appraisal district. The city, county, school districts and other local taxing units will use the appraisal district's value to set property taxes for the coming year.

• Property Taxpayer Remedies - This Comptroller publication explains in detail how to protest a property appraisal, what issues the county appraisal review board (ARB) can consider and what to expect during a protest hearing. The publication also discusses the option of taking a taxpayer's case to district court, the State Office of Administrative Hearings or binding arbitration if the taxpayer is dissatisfied with the outcome of the ARB hearing.

• Homestead Exemptions - A homestead is generally defined as the home and land used as the owner's principal residence on Jan. 1 of the tax year. A homestead exemption reduces the appraised value of the home and, as a result, lowers property taxes. Applications are submitted to the appropriate local county appraisal district.

• Productivity Appraisal - Property owners who use land for timber land production, agricultural purposes or wildlife management can be granted property tax relief on their land. They may apply to their local county appraisal district for an agricultural appraisal which may result in a lower appraisal of the land based on how much the taxpayer produces, versus what the land would sell for in the open market.

• Residence Homestead Tax Deferral - Texas homeowners may postpone paying the currently delinquent property taxes due on the appreciating value of their homes by filing a tax deferral affidavit at their local county appraisal district. This tax relief allows homeowners to pay the property taxes on 105 percent of the preceding year's appraised value of their homestead, plus the taxes on any new improvements to the homestead. The remaining taxes are postponed, but not cancelled, with interest accruing at 8 percent per year.

• Property Tax Deferral for Persons Age 65 or Older or Disabled Homeowners - Texans who are age 65 or older or disabled, as defined by law, may postpone paying current and delinquent property taxes on their homes by signing a tax deferral affidavit. Once the affidavit is on file, taxes are deferred, but not cancelled, as long as the owner continues to own and live in the home. Interest continues to accrue on unpaid taxes. You may obtain a deferral affidavit at the appraisal district.

• Notice of Availability of Electronic Communication - In appraisal districts located in counties with a population of more than 200,000 or that have authorized electronic communications, and that have implemented a system that allows such communications, chief appraisers and ARBs may communicate electronically through email or other media with property owners or their designated representatives. Written agreements are required for notices and other documents to be delivered electronically instead of mailing.

• Protesting Property Appraisal Values - Property owners who disagree with the appraisal district's appraisal of their property for local taxes or for any other action that adversely affects them may protest their property value to the appraisal district's ARB.

For more information about these programs, contact Glasscock County Appraisal District at 124 N. Main St., PO Box 155, Garden City, TX 79739, Phone 432/354-2580. More information and application forms are available on the appraisal district's website at www.glasscockcad.org and also available on the Comptroller's Property Tax Assistance Division's website at comptroller.texas.gov/taxinfo/proptax/.

Supermoon and Solar Shift

Here comes the Age of Aquarius -- the 2019 version, at least -- ushered in with a side of supermoon to amplify the importance of philanthropy and humanitarianism. Aquarius is known as the Water Bearer, the Greek water boy to the gods. The gift of water is the gift of life itself. The full moon suggests that the gift of love is in the same category.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You're probably not in the mood to operate in a big group, and you definitely need your alone time. Still, sharing a meal with someone you love will be a precious opportunity to connect today, not to be missed.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Stay keen. You have to be looking for the opportunity to see it. But because you are, you'll get the chance to slide right into the position you've had your eye on.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You give a high-quality grade of attention to others. You're engaged. You ask fantastic questions. You're warm and accepting. In short, you're a soft place for others to land their ideas. Don't you deserve the same from others?

CANCER (June 22-July 22). A big change isn't necessary. What you want is your life, only happier. And if you can describe that, even just to yourself, you'll be on the road to making it happen.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Your realizations are rapid-fire. You'll process so much in your sleep that Get on that. The rest of the you when you awaken tomorrow, you'll be quite changed. In other words, wherever the sunset leaves you, the sunrise won't find you there.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). How are you going to make yourself happy?

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Questions aren't always innocent. They can be invasive, prying and downright hostile. Thankfully, the ones you field today will be merely annoying -- and easily defused with vague answers. Keep private things private.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's impossible to be present in the current moment at the same time you're running mental movies of the past on the projector of your mind. Pause that tape, and step out of the theater. It's a brand-new day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You'll have to play parent to yourself today in that "eat your vegetables, no devices until the homework is done" sort of way. Otherwise, unhealthy distractions will keep you from all you need to accomplish by sundown.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Remember that thing that stressed you out a little while back?

You've finally made it to the day when you call that a "learning experience" or "funny story." Congratulate yourself for making it to the other side!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). It feels as if you've been collecting clues for a very long time, and now you're starting to see how they might fit together. Play with them as you would any puzzle piece, turning them to see how they fit.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). It's weird how you can feel a person out there, far away, thinking of you. You don't know what the thoughts are exactly, but you really can feel the general emotion of it, as though you're totally connected.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

The bidding:
East Pass 1 ♠
South Pass 3 NT
West Pass
North 1 ♦
Opening lead — eight of spades.

The defenders usually have more to think about than declarer because, unlike declarer, they can't see each other's hands. Declarer, however, with his partner's hand in plain view, is in a much better position to formulate what needs to be done to secure the contract.

Take this case where West led a spade against three notrump following the auction shown. East won with the king after declarer played low from dummy and mullered over what to do next. He then correctly decided there was no future in a spade continuation and shifted to a low club, sounding the death knell for declarer's chances.

South played low, West winning with the eight and returning a low club to East's king. There was no recovery for South, whatever he did, and he eventually lost three clubs, a diamond and a spade to go down one.

East unquestionably earned his success by abandoning spades and shifting to a club at trick two. But actually, he should never have had the opportunity to beat the contract. South erred grievously when he played low from dummy on the spade lead at trick one. He was asking for trouble, and he got it!

The bidding and opening lead had clearly marked East with the king of spades. It was therefore unnecessary to protect the queen by playing low from dummy.

There was far more pressing business to be taken care of. Dummy's diamonds were screaming for attention, and this had to be done before declarer's weak spot in clubs could be exploited. South should therefore have gone up with the ace of spades at trick one and attacked diamonds at trick two, which would have assured him of finishing with at least nine tricks.

a global economic slowdown, would endure another blow.

The travel and tourism industries generate about $1.6 trillion in U.S. economic activity — one-twelfth of the economy — and one in 20 jobs, according to the Commerce Department.

Macroeconomic Advisers says it now expects the economy to expand at just a 1.4 percent annual rate in the first three months of this year, down from its previous forecast of 1.6 percent, because of reduced government spending during the shutdown.

America's air-travel system will face its sternest this weekend, which coincides with Martin Luther King Jr. Day on Monday, a federal holiday. The Transportation Security Administration predicts it will screen over 8 million passengers between Friday and Monday, up 10.8 percent from last year's MLK weekend. And it will do so with fewer screeners. On Thursday, the TSA said 6.4 percent of screeners missed work — nearly double the 3.8 percent rate on the same day in 2018.

A TSA spokesman said the agency was offering overtime to screeners for this weekend, though those workers wouldn't be paid — for their regular pay or for overtime— until the shutdown eventually ends.

On top of potentially longer airport security lines this weekend, a blast of winter weather could snarl travel this weekend in the Midwest and Northeast.

Hartsfield-Jackson Atlanta International, home to Delta Air Lines, has likely been the hardest hit airport. Delta said this week that the shutdown will cost it $25 million in January because fewer federal employees and contractors will be flying. By contrast, United Airlines, which has a substantial presence around Washington, D.C., said it hasn't felt much impact yet.

But the airlines fear that if the shutdown doesn't end soon, more TSA agents will call in sick or quit. A shortage of screeners would cause security lines to swell. Air traffic controllers, who are also working without pay, say they, too, are short-staffed. If the controller shortage became severe enough, the government could restrict the number of flights, though some analysts think that's unlikely.

"Luckily this is the low season — January is one of the weakest months of the year," said Savanthi Syth, an airline analyst for Raymond James. "This spilling into February is a real concern. The risk is that the longer this drags out, it might cause some passengers to say, 'I don't want to deal with all the hassle, maybe I won't take that trip.'"

Consumers are, in fact, taking a dimmer view of the economy, in part because of the shutdown. A measure of consumer confidence fell this month by the most in more than six years, according to the University of Michigan, which conducts the survey. If Americans were to cut back on travel and other discretionary spending, it would weaken consumer spending, the U.S. company's primary fuel.

Laura Mandala, who runs a travel and tourism research firm, said the shutdown might discourage international travelers, too.

"These uncertainties will result in fewer conferences being booked," Mandala said, leading to "convention and hotel staff layoffs, reduced schedules, resulting in less income for workers to spend in the local economy."

Hotels are starting to feel the impact, particularly in the Washington, D.C., region but also in other cities with substantial federal workforces, such as San Diego, which has a large naval base.

In the Washington area, including its nearby suburbs in Maryland and Virginia, hotel revenue plunged 26 percent in the second week of January compared with the same period last year, according to STR, a travel research firm. That's much steeper than the 8 percent decline that occurred nationwide.

Michael Bellisario, an analyst for investment bank R.W. Baird, suggested that other factors accounted for the most of the nationwide drop but said the shutdown almost certainly played a role.

"In no way is the government shutdown a positive for hotel demand and travel," Bellisario said.

If the shutdown lingers and people see more reports of long TSA lines on television news, "they will say, 'Oh wow, traveling is hard,' and that impacts the hotel industry," said Jan

Freitag, a senior vice president at STR.

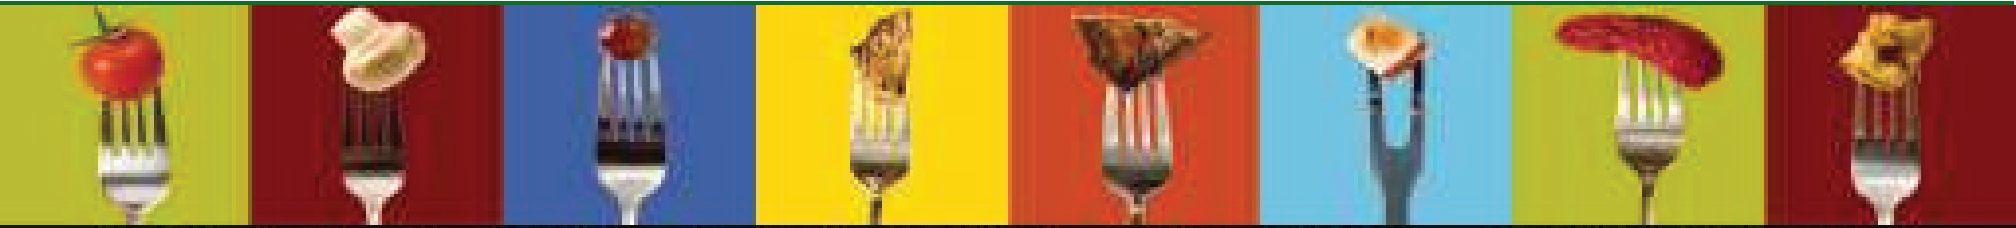

For now, though, the most visible impact has been at airports. One of the seven checkpoints at Houston's main airport has been closed all week and will remain so indefinitely, a spokesman said. Miami closed one concourse during the afternoons and evenings last weekend. On the other hand, officials at airports in New York, Los Angeles, Chicago and Miami said they weren't experiencing any problems.

The problems would emerge if the shutdown persists, and the damage would extend to the private companies that operate airport shops and restaurants.

Mike Boyd, an airport consultant in Colorado, noted that a pullback in travel would be felt most in airports that are heavily dependent on government employees such as Reagan National Airport outside Washington, Manhattan Regional Airport in Kansas, near the Army's Fort Riley, and Watertown International Airport in upstate New York, near Fort Drum.

Federal employees going without pay — there are about 800,000 of them, including 420,000 who are still working — are already suffering, of course.

"We still have to make sure our kids eat, make sure to have a roof over their head," said Shalique Caraballo, whose wife is a TSA worker in Atlanta. "We sweat in private and don't let the kids see the struggle."

In discussing the storylines for Season 3 of his HBO comedy “Crashing,” Pete Holmes quotes advice he received from fellow stand-up comic Mike Birbiglia when he created the half-hour series. “He said, ‘If you’re not telling secrets, who cares?’ ” says Holmes, a veteran stand-up whose fictionalized alter ego returns for the first of eight episodes Sunday, Jan. 20. “Which I think is really interesting. So we’re talking about comedy, which obviously is well-traversed terrain, so we always want to try and tell some sort of secret about comedy. Obviously in Season 1, we talked about warm-ups; in Season 2, we talked about the alt scene and the college scene; and Season 3, we’re starting to talk about the niche markets that you can work in.”

And in these, says Holmes, one can find substantial work. There is the Jewish circuit, typically in-temple performances where Jewish humor is prevalent. There is also the Christian circuit and the “clean” circuit, which offers family-oriented fare. It’s just a matter of which way a comic wants to steer their career.

“You sort of see them like exits on the highway when you’re starting,” Holmes explains, “and it’s an interesting choice every performer needs to make, like, ‘Should I take this exit or should I keep going? And if I keep going, how much gas is in my tank and can I make it to the next exit or should I just take what’s in front of me?’

“For me, I never did the Christian circuit,” he continues. “I did a lot of the clean circuit. I would do shows in like Utah, for example, or Disneyland, places where you had to be clean. That was as close as I came to doing religious shows. Although that being said, I did do some Jewish shows. I’ve dabbled and I’ve certainly done some Christian shows.

“But we really wanted to kind of double down on the idea that it becomes Pete’s bread and butter.”

Cooking Channel's 'Food Truck Nation' spotlights imaginative cuisine gone mobile

It's not often you hear restaurant owners say nice things about food trucks, what with the business they tend to take away. So when Los Angeles-based chef and restaurateur Brad Miller extols their virtues on his new Cooking Channel series "Food Truck Nation," his words resonate.

"Some of these people are putting out sometimes Michelin-level food on food trucks," he says. "The cool thing about all these food trucks for me is just that they have so much creativity and so much energy and the reason is because when people find out about them, they go to them. ... Because people are checking their Instagram or checking their Twitter, they're checking their Facebook just to go for that cuisine. They're going there specifically for those food items, for exactly what you're doing."

In the six-episode half-hour series, which premieres Tuesday, Jan. 22, Miller heads to different points across the country to sample some of the unique and varied creations coming out of these mobile kitchens, such as the surf and turf burrito from the Bibuta food truck in Minneapolis; the Belgian waffles topped with cookie butter from Belgian Waffle Crafters in Durham, N.C.; the funnel cake courtesy of Drizzle Truck in California; and the wood-fired Neapolitan-style pizza produced in under 90 seconds by Blue Fire Pizza in St. Paul, Minn.

But in Tuesday's opener, Miller stays local to check out Billionaire Burger Boyz in South Central Los Angeles, home of the Hello Burger, which is an oversized beef patty stuffed with Cajun grilled shrimp.

"It's like literally a burger where they cook cheese and shrimp in the inside of the burger and it has like two fried eggs on it, and a lobster. It's insane," he says. "You take a bite and it's like leaking shrimp. Cannot not hear about it if you live in L.A."

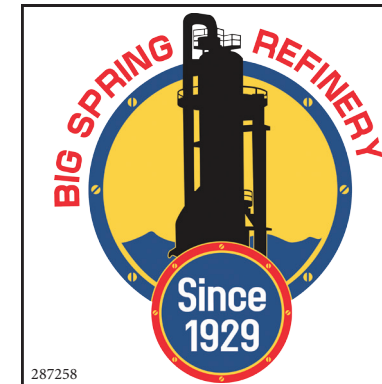

And while that was a culinary delight, Miller says equally as impressive was the subject of an episode airing later in the season, Bibuta's surf and turf burrito. The invention of owner and master sushi chef Billy Tserenbat, it's filled with raw tuna and wagyu beef and was, says Miller, "one of the best things I have ever tasted."

"They do the rice paper on the outside; that's your tortilla, sort of," he explains. "And then on the inside he does tuna, scallions and then he does basically like a reduction of soy sauce, sugar, ginger and a little bit of sesame seed oil and he just purees that up and that gets drizzled over that. And then he does the A5 wagyu cut in little pieces, cut into strips, and he actually sears them ... with salt and he gently places them in the burrito and then rolls it up with the sushi rice and paper."

"I was shocked," he continues. "I mean, the whole crew was like, 'This is one of the best things I've ever tasted.' And it's in Minnesota. It's really cool."
