Summer Reading Program kicks off

By ANNA GUTIERREZ
 Staff Writer

The Howard County Library has a summer reading program, and this year's theme is "A Universe of Stories." Explore the universe and great stories from June 4 through August 8.

"All of these events are free, and registration will be open all summer," said Sandra Verdin, Howard County Library Children's Librarian. "We want to make this as family-friendly as possible. We're really excited about this year's events."

The first of the special events scheduled for the summer took place Thursday, Space Celebration! Stories and Songs with Kim Leman was a special event where kids could blast into space with songs and stories. See photos inside today's edition. Kids made comets to take home.

On Tuesday, kids can see Magic By Harlin. Harlin Rhoades has been entertaining children for more than 25 years with balloons, magic and stories.

Kids are encouraged to participate. Magic By Harlin will take place from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

On Thursdays in June, join the library for Space Babies. This is summer reading and story time for ages zero to three. There will be songs, stories and play! This event takes place every Thursday in June from 10:30 to 11:30 a.m.

Code Club is for kids ages eight to 17 and takes place every Tuesday and Thursday. Kids learn how to make apps, games and websites.

On Wednesday, July 17, the Science Spectrum's traveling planetarium will be in Big Spring at the Boys & Girls Club gym. Special thanks to Star Chrysler and General Manager Clint Fox for making this possible.

"Even if the kids can't make it to all the dates or events listed, we want you to know they can still register and attend. We really hope everyone can make it," stated Verdin.

For more information about any of the events listed above, please call the Howard County Library at 432-264-2260. You can also follow them on Facebook, or go to their website at <https://howard-county.ploud.net/summer-program>.

Baseball history in Big Spring Book signing set for 1 p.m. Monday at HC Library

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

While most may relate Big Spring history to Webb Air Force base, that's not all Big Spring is known for. Big Spring history has roots in baseball history, and on Monday, June 10 the community will have an opportunity to find out more about that history at the "Left on Base in the Bush Leagues" book signing.

"This book tells the story of Tom Jordan Sr., the oldest living MLB player at age 99, and his son, Tom Jr., the star of the Roswell team that won the Little League World Series in 1956, both of these gentlemen will be at the book signings in Roswell and Artesia," Gaylon White, author of Left on Base in the Bush League, said.

As part of the promotional tour for the book, White will be visiting Lamesa and Midland, the same week he arrives in Big Spring. The book signing will be from 1 p.m. until 2 p.m. at the Howard County Library.

"The late 40s and 50s were the glory days of baseball in Texas and Big Spring was smack dab in the middle of it," White said. "Six of the book's 13 chapters are devoted to teams and players in the West Texas and New Mexico area, in the late 1940s and early 1950s; through their stories, the region's remarkable baseball history comes to life."

Big Spring takes up a chapter and a half, according to White. His inspiration for the book came when he came across numerous stories on the use of Cuban players by minor league teams, in the 40s and 50s.

Many of the Cuban players remained in the United States and made new lives for themselves and their families.

BASEBALL

"One Big Spring resident, Tito Arencibia, was one of those players. He rescued his entire family from Cuba and lived in Big Spring, until his recent move to Midland," White said. "He (Tito) will be at the Big Spring book signing. His story alone is worth getting a copy of the book."

According to a book review provided by White, the book chronicles a handful of baseball's "left-overs", those mysterious journeymen, showmen and drifters, who took their talents to the west, southwest and southeastern United States. The book introduces the reader to some of the game's greatest characters, which are not widely known.

The Bush Leagues (term coined early 1898) - the low minor leagues of professional baseball, Class

D, C, and B. - spotlighted a different kind of talent, but talent nonetheless. The players included some of the greatest hitters and pitchers that no one ever heard of; they were too wild or too fierce or too thirsty to make it in the majors, according to White.

"These local legends thrived, stirring and stretching their fan's imaginations, arousing curiosity and blurring the lines between work and play, fantasy and reality," White said.

The community is invited to attend the book signing and learn about the baseball history rooted in Big Spring. For more information on the book or about White, visit www.GaylonWhiteBaseball.com.

Forsan ISD to consider renaming football field

By ROGER CLINE
Staff Writer

Forsan School Board members will discuss the possibility of renaming the Forsan Football Field in honor of a longtime coach at their meeting Monday night.

The Forsan Independent School District Board of Trustees will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in the district's Board Room, 411, W. Sixth St. in Forsan.

According to Forsan ISD Superintendent Randy Johnson, Forsan community member Adam Dunlap has submitted a request to the board to rename the field in honor of the late Coach Roger Hudgins, who also served as a teacher and substitute teacher for the district, and as Forsan mayor for several years.

"If the board chooses to approve the request, there will be a year-long planning and fund raising process that would culminate in a naming ceremony in August of 2020, a year away," Johnson said. "So it is very early, and probably premature to act like it is a done deal."

Johnson had kind words to say about Hudgins. "He was a friend to many in our community, and a trusted mentor to a lot of athletes over the years," he said.

In other business, the trustees will:

- Hear reports from principals of Forsan Elementary, Forsan Junior High, and Forsan High School; the Athletic Director; and the superintendent;
- Consider an extension on the Bank Depository;
- Consider a resolution authorizing the auction of Howard County Trustee properties to the highest bidder for cash;
- Consider closing two scholarship accounts and opening a dual-credit scholarship;
- Consider taking action regarding Elbow Elementary property, including possible legal action;
- Consider hiring and resignations of district personnel.

OOH LA LECHE makes products with mare's milk

Noel Wiley of San Benito is a prominent Rio Grande businessman who has always had a big interest in horses. He grew to love them while growing up on his family's farm near Ballinger. When I interviewed Mr. Wiley early this year he was in the process of getting his Mare's Milk business going.

"In 2005 I was reading Draft Horse Journal and there was an article in it about the benefits of mare's milk," says Mr. Wiley. "I was intrigued. The article mentioned that in Europe milk from pregnant horses was being used for medicines and cosmetics. In 2006 we took a trip to Europe and discovered that in the Brussels, Belgium phone book there were 32 listings for horse milking farms. We went to one and became friends and eventually business partners with the owners and founded the first ever equine dairy in the United States. It's located in Jamesport, Missouri, an Amish community.

"After a couple of trips to Europe and having European horse farmers come over here, our main concern was finding out just who and where these pregnant mares would be milked. We heard that the Amish have big horses in Missouri and are superb farmers and dairymen who take pride in what they do. We determined they could supply us with clean and sanitary pregnant mare's milk (PMM). So farmers from Europe came over and taught the Amish how to milk horses, something they had never done before."

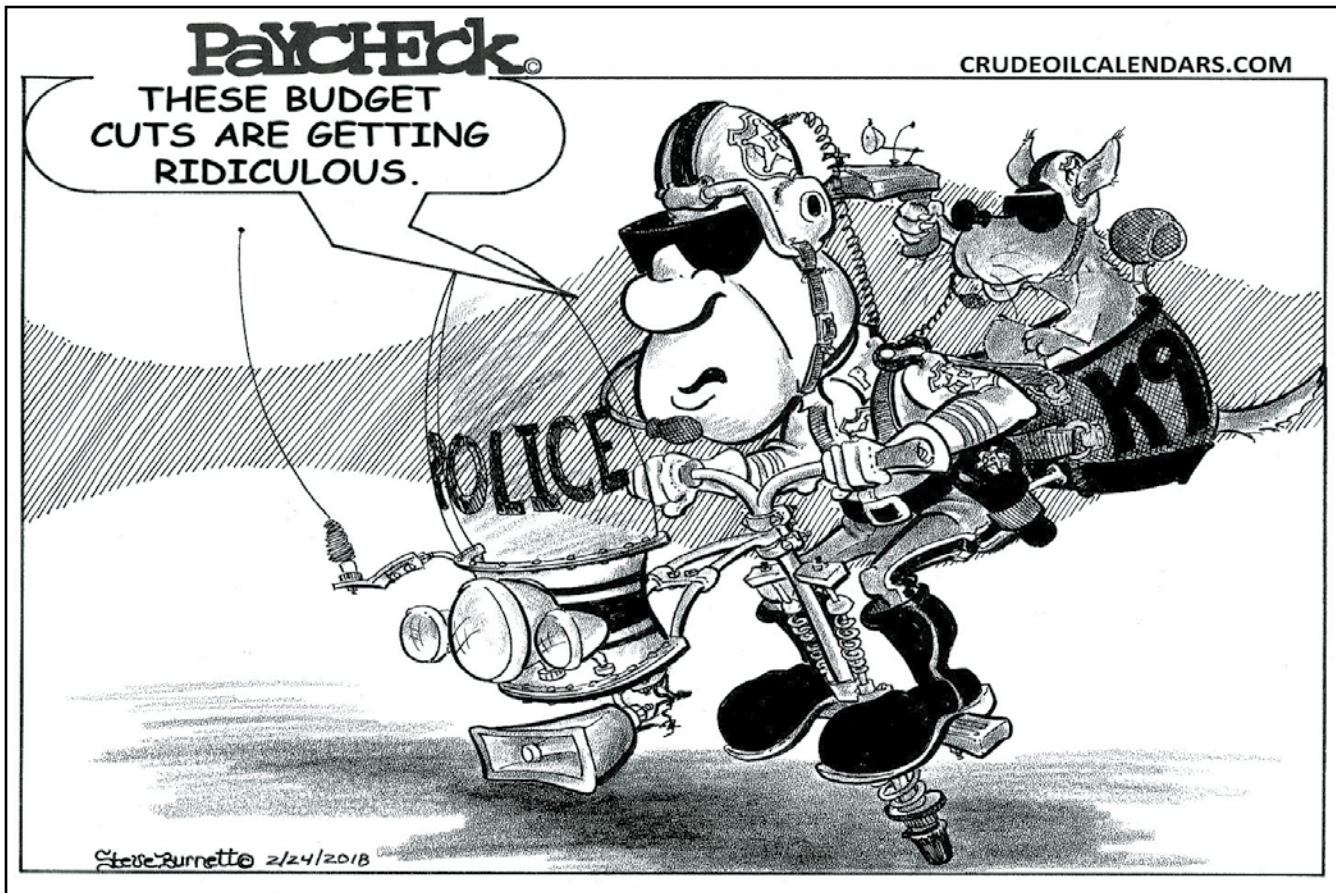

After the milk is obtained from the Amish dairies it is spray dried to powder form and formulated into products. It is being produced and sold under the product name of Ooh La Leche. I have read letters from pharmacists and others who say capsules made from mare's milk help with diarrhea and hot flashes. There is also a cream for skin disorders.

TUMBLEWEED SMITH

There are some mentions about pregnant mare's milk in history. Literature claims that Cleopatra used it to maintain her youthful complexion. In Europe PMM treatments are available in health clubs and spas. PMM is found in specialized massage oils. Mr. Wiley lists several PMM products including hand creams, shampoo gel and conditioner, body lotion, yogurt, baby formula, ice cream, energy drinks and horse milk liquor. He says the pregnant mare's milk capsules help with irritable bowel syndrome, Crohn's disease, colitis, vaginal dryness and menopause.

Mr. Wiley was amazed at what his research had told him about PMM. He did not rush into his new enterprise. He went to the FDA and got specific instructions as to what is necessary to produce a certified dairy. Since he had developed a couple of gated communities in the valley he was familiar with building codes and governmental requirements. "It hasn't been easy, but I think it'll be worth it," he says. His company is Wiley B. Equine Dairy Products, Inc. The website is www.oohlaleche.com. You can see horses milked on utube.

On growing greatness

A retired school superintendent-weary of the sameness of approaching his job in the traditional manner--dreamed of serving in an unlikely place.

The school was in a swamp long since drained, and locals said alligators hadn't been seen there in years.

During his professional years, the dreamer said he took on challenges daily, hoping to prevail most of the time. He claimed never worrying about being swallowed by a whale. It crossed his mind, however, that odds were 50-50 that he might be nibbled to death by a thousand minnows.

Then there's Dr. Susan K. Bohn, an energetic leader with training and experience to give both tradition and innovation their due. She recently completed her first year as Aledo, TX ISD Superintendent. Dr. Bohn seems fearless, and upon "signing on" last year, she recognized the dynamism and potential of a community. She believed her mantra of "getting better" would be embraced in Aledo.

It's a commitment she has long since made to herself, and now is an expectation of colleagues, students, parents and the community at large.

She is as credentialed for educational excellence as anyone I've ever met, effectively dealing with changes looming daily throughout our culture in general and education in particular. Little wonder that her "#GrowingGreatness" hashtag is readily acknowledged in Aledo....

Born and reared in Austin, Dr. Bohn's interest in education and law was evident early on. She holds a string of degrees from the University of Texas, as well as a Doctorate in Educational Leadership from Texas Tech. UT degrees include the BA Degree in Plan II Honors Program, a Master of Public Affairs degree from the LBJ School of Public Affairs and a Juris Doctorate from the UT School of Law.

She was superintendent of Lockhart ISD (near Austin) for three years, completing the Excellence in Governance training (first board/superintendent team in Texas). Further, she created and implemented the first curriculum and instruction framework in the district's history. She worked with the Board of Trustees and administrative team to rebuild the district's culture, expectations, trust and stability.

She previously worked nine years in Lake Travis ISD as Interim Superintendent, Deputy Superintendent and General Counsel. Earlier, she taught ninth grade at Fort Bend ISD and was a school attorney for Bracewell and Giuliani.

Her enthusiasm is contagious, and she relishes developing plans for a district of 6,000 students that likely will mushroom to 30,000 over several decades. She is determined to give wide berth to new educational delivery methods.

Dr. Bohn's distinctions and achievements are known statewide, and her mantra of going "all out" daily is shared at home, too, with husband Bill and sons Brice, 11, and Brooks, 6, students at Stuard Elementary school.

Like most educators, she cherishes classroom memories. One day, a ninth-grader walked into class a little late. He looked pale, and his hand was cupped over an ear. "I asked him if he was okay, and he pulled his hand away," she said. "There was a safety pin in his ear, and it was gushing blood." He explained that he had just pierced his ear in the bathroom during the four-minute break between classes!

Another memory makes her smile. One student was both visually and hearing impaired; he was very bright and completely blind. He used a radio with earphones to hear Dr. Bohn as she spoke. "He had challenges, but was really the happiest and most positive student I had the opportunity to be around. He was a positive influence on everyone around him, including me."

The legislative session over and fewer reasons to keep the pavement to Austin hot, Dr. Bohn's major challenge now will involve promotion of a November bond election, one that must pass to provide funds for badly needed new school construction to accommodate the rapidly-growing student body.

She continues to trumpet "#GrowingGreatness."

Similar motivation spurred retired NBA star Tim Duncan, who said, "Good, better, best. Never let it rest.... Until your good is better and your better is best."

Check it out at the Howard County Library this week

By SANDRA VERDIN
Librarian

The library's hours are Monday, Wednesday, Friday from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m., and Tuesday and Thursday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.; the internet/video room will close at 5:30 p.m. every day from June through August. You may reach us at 432-264-2260 and our fax number is 432-264-2263. Visit our website at <http://howard-county.ploud.net>. And check us out on Facebook at www.facebook.com/HowardCoLibrary.

We were excited to have launched Summer Reading Program this past week, we had three Storytimes: Code Club met on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon from 5:30- 6:30 p.m., and we had storyteller Kim Lehman visit us for Family Storytime. This week Summer Reading Program activities continue: On Tuesday, June 11 at 10:30 a.m., Magician Harlin Rhoades will visit the library, children from all three Storytime groups are welcome to come.

Did you know Big Spring had a minor league baseball team? Stop by the library on Monday, June 10th from 1-2 p.m. and meet author Gaylon H. White, he will be talking about his latest book "Left on Base in the Bush Leagues: Legends, Near Greats, and Unknowns in the Minors." The library has a circulating copy and there will be copies on sale for thirty dollars for the book signing. Gaylon H. White was a sports writer for the Denver Post, Arizona Republic, and Oklahoma journal before working in the corporate world for nearly forty years. He is the author of "The Bilko Athletic Club: The Story of the 1956 Los Angeles Angels (2014) and "Singles and Smiles: How Artie Wilson Broke Baseball's Color Barrier" (2018) and co-author with Ransom Jackson of "Handsome Ransom Jackson: Accidental Big Leaguer" (2016), all published by Rowman and Littlefield. In his latest book, White transports readers back to a time and place where appreciative fans stuck dollar bills through chicken-wire screens after home runs and players went from baseball town to baseball town playing for the highest bidder. One of the featured players in the book is Big Spring's own Tito Arencibia. Don't miss out on the book signing with author Gaylon H. White's as he recounts baseball's greatest hitters or pitchers no one had ever heard of, but whose mighty accomplishments were the source of civic pride in some of the small towns around the country including Big Spring.

This week's reviews include non-fiction and fiction and format includes book and audiobooks.

There was a time when no town was too small to field a professional baseball team. In 1949, the High Point for the minor leagues, there were 59 leagues and 464 cities and teams. Most of the players were strangers outside the town where they played, but some achieved heroic status and enthralled local fans as much as the stars in the majors. "Left on Base in the Bush Leagues: Legends, Near Greats, and Unknowns in the Minors" (796.357 WHI G) by Gaylon White, profiles some of the most fascinating characters from baseball's golden era. It includes the stories of players such as Ron Necciai, the only pitcher in the history to strike out twenty-seven batters in a single game; Joe Brovia, one of the most feared hitters to ever play in the Pacific coast league; and Pat Stassey, a mellow Irish man who "Cubanized" minor-league baseball in Texas and New Mexico, helping to bring down the walls of segregation. Compelling and timeless, their stories touch on many issues that still affect the sport today. Featuring hundreds of personal interviews with the players as well as their teammates, managers, and opponents, "Left on Base in the Bush Leagues" create a colorful tapestry of the minor leagues during the 1950s and 60s.

Texas Deputy Sheriff John Cronin and his granddaughter Jesse Miller in "The Grey Man: Partners" ( F CUR J) by J.L. Curtis, have out- stubborned, out-fought, and out-lived every challenge life's thrown at them so far. But there are times when a little help is needed. Slowly recovering from being stabbed, John Cronin gets a tip from inside the very cartel that's hunted him, that plans are afoot to smuggle terrorists and missiles across the border. Meanwhile, Jesse and her husband Gunny Sgt. Miller are losing the battle with an administration and a military bureaucracy determined to downsize the military by whatever means possible, and tie their hands regardless of the damage and danger to its own. The agencies responsible don't want to act if Cronin won't give up his confidential informant, but when word comes that the missiles and terrorists are landing, it's time to put a team together and handle things the old fashioned way.

Nick Fox and Kate O'Hare are on the hunt for a kidnapping victim, in "The Big Kahuna" (AUCD F EVA J) by Janet Evanovich and Peter Evanovich, a Silicon Valley big shot known to all as the Big Kahuna. Their only clue takes them to Hawaii. To get close to the Kahuna's son, Kate and Nick go undercover as a married couple in the big-wave surfer community on Maui's North Shore. Living a laid back lifestyle isn't exactly in Kate's wheelhouse, but the only thing more horrifying is shacking up with Nick Fox, even if he does look pretty great on a long-board. If they don't catch a break soon, waves aren't the only thing she's going to be shredding.

Elle Stowell is a young woman with an unconventional profession: burglary, in "The Burglar" (AUCD F PER T) by Thomas Perry. But Elle is no petty thief, with just the right combination of smarts, looks, and skills, she can easily stroll through ritzy Bel Air neighborhoods and pick out the perfect home for plucking the most valuable items. This is how Elle has always gotten by, she is good at it, and she thrives on the thrill. But after stumbling upon a grisly triple homicide while stealing from the home of a wealthy art dealer, Elle discovers that she is no longer the only one sneaking around. Somebody is searching for her. Elle realizes that her knowledge of the high-profile murder has made her a target. She races to solve the case before becoming the next casualty, using her breaking-and-entering skills to uncover the truth about exactly who the victims were and why someone might have wanted them dead.

Don't miss out on meeting author Gaylon White this Monday, June 10 from 1-2 p.m.

Howard's Gonzalez wins 2019 Schutt Sports/NFCA NJCAA I National Player of the Year

Special to the Herald

LOUISVILLE, KY — The NFCA is pleased to announce that Howard College freshman infielder Amanda Gonzalez has been chosen as the 2019 Schutt Sports/NFCA NJCAA Division I National Player of the Year.

Gonzalez made a huge impact for the Hawks, earning first-team NFCA All-America honors in her first collegiate season, by batting .505 and leading NJCAA Division I in home runs (29), runs batted in (102), runs scored (97) and total bases (228). She ranked second nationally in slugging percentage (1.129), third in hits (102) and fourth in both doubles (27) and times hit by pitch (24).

The Santa Monica, Calif., native also stole 33 bases and drew 14 walks, and struck out just 12 times in 244 plate appearances for Howard, which went 47-13 and advanced to the NJCAA Division I championship in May at the Canyons Complex in St. George, Utah.

She had two three-homer games — both on the road — Feb. 13 at Cisco and April 20 at Frank Phillips, and homered twice on April 26 at home against Luna.

The Schutt Sports/NFCA NJCAA Division I National Player of the Year recipient is selected by the NFCA's NJCAA Division I All-American Committee, which chooses one of its 16 first-team All-Americans for this honor. This was the first year that the award was split to honor players in each of the Association's five two-year college divisions.

Dance Lab busted onto the scene Jan. 1, 2019, as a brand new venture into the world of dance, cheerleading, and tumbling for Howard County. With summer heating up, the new business is also warming up to a new season full of opportunities for the local youth.

Instruction in the areas of dance, cheer, and tumbling can be found by those entering Dance Lab. There are a few local options for those wanting to enter into the world of dance, cheer, and tumbling. While some enter into these activities for fun, there are also opportunities to further one's training into future opportunities.

For example, the Howard College Cheerleaders, who will train at Dance Lab this year, receive scholarships towards their college education. The instructors at Dance Lab went to college on scholarships for cheer and/or dance.

Locals can get a glimpse of what Dance Lab has to offer during the opening ceremonies for Fantastic Fourth this year, as both cheer and dance classes will be performing. The community is encouraged to cheer on the kids.

Cheerleading competition season kicks off in August, and teams will be put together in June. All cheerleaders will have to tryout and have skills assessed before being accepted onto a team. To set up a time, contact Head Coach Keelee Allen at keeee_05@hotmail.com.

New athletes are encouraged to join this year, as well as in any of the classes offered. Registration for fall will open up at the end of July, and that info can be found on our facebook page as well, along with information about staff and coaches.

Dance Lab staff is comprised of Owner and Dance Instructor Jessica Rutledge, Head Cheerleading Coach Keelee Allen, Head Tumbling Coach Cheridan Fulgham, and Assistants Megan Wilson and Walker Hardgrove.

Information on classes and cheer groups can be found on the Dance Lab in Big Spring, TX Facebook Page, and inquiries can be emailed to dancelab19@gmail.com.

I AM SO TIRED OF BEING AMERICA'S FAVORITE INGENUE.

YOU'RE NOT AMERICA'S FAVORITE INGENUE.

HA! HOW WOULD YOU KNOW? YOU DON'T EVEN KNOW WHAT INGENUE MEANS.

NO... BUT IF YOU THINK YOU ARE INGENUE, IT MUST MEAN SMART OR CUTE OR SOME OTHER THING YOU ARE DEFINITELY NOT!

HM... I BETTER LOOK IT UP. I THOUGHT IS WAS FRENCH FOR FUNNY.

IT SOUNDS LIKE A GARLIC SANDWICH.

Pet Talk: Keep pets cool in the summer heat

COLLEGE STATION, June 7, 2019 – Summer brings with it an expectation of sweltering temperatures, sometimes to the point of danger.

As temperatures climb, remember that if you are hot, your pet is probably feeling even hotter. Dogs and cats generate more heat than people and usually also have a thick layer of fur to trap that heat inside.

Dr. Christine Rutter, a clinical assistant professor at the Texas A&M College of Veterinary Medicine & Biomedical Sciences, has some tips on identifying signs that your pet may be too hot and suggestions on ways to keep them safe and cool on hot summer days.

While people sweat all over to get rid of excess heat, dogs and cats are only able to sweat through their paw pads.

Most pets rely on panting to cool down, but animals with shorter noses, like Bulldogs and Persian cats, tend to be less heat tolerant, meaning they have a harder time getting rid of excess body heat.

“Very young and older animals, especially those with underlying conditions, are also less heat tolerant than healthy adult animals,” Rutter said. “If you hear snoring, coughing, or gurgling when your pet tries to pant or gets excited, it’s not going to be heat tolerant.”

Factors such as obesity, long hair, and medications can also make pets more sensitive to heat. If any of these apply to your pet, Rutter advises talking to a veterinarian about increased heat sensitivity.

Luckily, there are many things people can do to help their pets cool down on hot days. The simplest solution is to keep pets inside an air-conditioned building, but there are other options if the pet will be spending time outside.

“Shade, cool water to drink or play in, a fan, and a cool surface such as grass help pets cool down—just like how we seek out a glass of lemonade, a shady spot to rest, and a breeze when we are too hot,” Rutter said.

Cats usually limit their own activity and seek out shade if they get too hot but should still be provided a fresh source of water and should be not be put outside for the first time during the summer.

Working, agility, and motivated dogs, like retrievers or game dogs, however, may not slow down when they get too hot, so owners should be mindful to limit their activity as the temperature rises, according to Rutter.

“Any dog that wants to take a break, doesn’t want to walk, or is panting heavily should be given fresh, cool water and a shady spot to rest until their breathing normalizes and they want to return to activity,” Rutter said. “Avoid exercise during the heat of the day and take a 10- to 15-minute break to cool down every 15 to 20 minutes when the temperature is over 80 degrees.”

If an animal cannot get rid of excess heat, it may develop heat exhaustion or heat stroke; environmental temperature, humidity, and the pet’s activity level can all play a role in developing these conditions.

“Heat exhaustion is the feeling of lethargy, discomfort, or weakness that is experienced when the body gets too hot,” Rutter said. “It’s the body’s way of saying, ‘slow down!’”

In comparison, heat stroke is an illness caused by increased body temperature. According to Rutter, it is much more serious and can even be life-threatening if not caught early.

If a pet is showing signs of heat exhaustion, it should be wet down with cool (not cold) water and be put near a blowing fan in a shaded, air-conditioned area.

If the pet vomits, acts lethargic, has red gums, or seems to have small, red bruises on its mouth, eyes, or abdomen it should be taken to a veterinarian as soon as possible. If you are unsure of whether it is an emergency situation, it is better to have the pet checked out just in case, because heat stroke can cause serious damage very quickly.

Rutter also reminds pet owners that it is dangerous to leave a pet inside a parked car during any time of the year, but especially during the summer; in as little as 15 minutes, the inside of a car can become lethally hot.

The best way to avoid heat exhaustion and heat stroke is to be aware of the amount of time a pet spends outside in the summer and to watch for any symptoms of these conditions. With these simple precautions, pet owners can ensure that their dogs and cats stay safe during the worst of summer.

Leonard, Raptors move within victory of first championship

By JANIE McCAULEY
AP Sports Writer
OAKLAND, Calif. — Kawhi Leonard's hot hand is sending the Raptors home to Toronto on the cusp of a startling upset for Canada.
Leonard outdueled the Splash Brothers for 36 points and 12 rebounds, and the Raptors moved within a victory of the franchise's first championship by winning a second straight game on Golden State's home floor, beating the Warriors 105-92 on Friday night for a 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals.

Not that the Raptors are ready to celebrate yet.
"We've won three games, it's the first to four," Kyle Lowry said. "We understand that they're the defending champs and they're not going to go out easy. They're going to come and fight and prepare to play the next game. That's how we're preparing ourselves. We've got to prepare ourselves to play the next game. We haven't done anything yet."

Klay Thompson made a strong return after missing Game 3 with a strained left hamstring and scored 28 points with six 3-pointers in what might have been the final game after 47 seasons at Oracle Arena before the team's move to new Chase Center in San Francisco next season. Stephen Curry added 27 points but shot just 9 for 22 and 2 of 9 from 3-point range on the heels of his postseason career-best 47-point outing in a 123-109 Game 3 defeat.

Serge Ibaka scored 20 points on 9-of-12 shooting in 22 minutes off the bench for the composed and confident Raptors, who for a second straight game found an answer to every Warriors threat at raucous Oracle — where home fans were stunned and silenced when the final buzzer sounded.

A huge section of Toronto fans then broke into singing "O Canada!"
"It's awesome," Raptors coach Nick Nurse said. "Our fans travel really well in the regular season. We get this a lot on the road. It's really amazing. It's Canada's team, and Canadians from all over the country are traveling down and making plans when we play in Florida or California or Detroit especially."

The two-time defending champions' quest for a three-peat is suddenly in serious jeopardy.

Toronto will take its first try at the title in Game 5 on Monday night back at Scotiabank Arena. Golden State, still hopeful of injured star Kevin Durant's return, will try to force one more at Oracle next Thursday.

"It's not over. It's not a good feeling right now, obviously," Curry said. "We've been on both sides of it and for us it's an opportunity to flip this whole series on its head."

In 2017, Leonard's postseason with San Antonio got cut short against the Warriors in Game 1 of the Western Conference finals after he re-injured his troublesome left ankle when Zaza Pachulia's foot slid under his.

Dominant in his first postseason since, Leonard knocked down two jumpers in the final 42 seconds of the third to put the Raptors up 79-64. Fred VanVleet then dealt another dagger on the first possession of the fourth with a 30-footer.

A bloodied VanVleet then went to the locker room with 9:35 left after being hit in the face by Shaun Livingston's left elbow when the Warriors guard went up for a shot and VanVleet was just behind him. Replays showed a tooth in the middle of the key even after play resumed.

These poised Raptors kept level heads again after falling behind by 11 points in the first half. Pascal Siakam scored 19 for Toronto.

Two days earlier, Kyle Lowry was praised for staying calm when shoved on the sideline by Warriors minority owner Mark Stevens, who received a one-year ban by the team and NBA along with a $500,000 fine for the incident.

Now, the Raptors as first-time finalists and in their 24th year of existence can bring Canada its first NBA championship.

The Warriors, the only team to blow a 3-1 lead in the NBA Finals, are confident they can overcome that deficit.

"I've been on the wrong side of 3-1 before. Why not make our own history?" Golden State's Draymond Green said.

Toronto outscored Golden State 37-21 in the decisive third, a complete reverse of the Warriors' dominance after halftime with an 18-0 run in the Game 2 victory.

Jung hits 13th home run, Texas Tech beats Oklahoma State 8-6

Associated Press
LUBBOCK, Texas — Josh Jung hit the first pitch of the seventh inning over the center field wall and Texas Tech held off Oklahoma State 8-6 on Friday in the opening game of the Lubbock super regional.

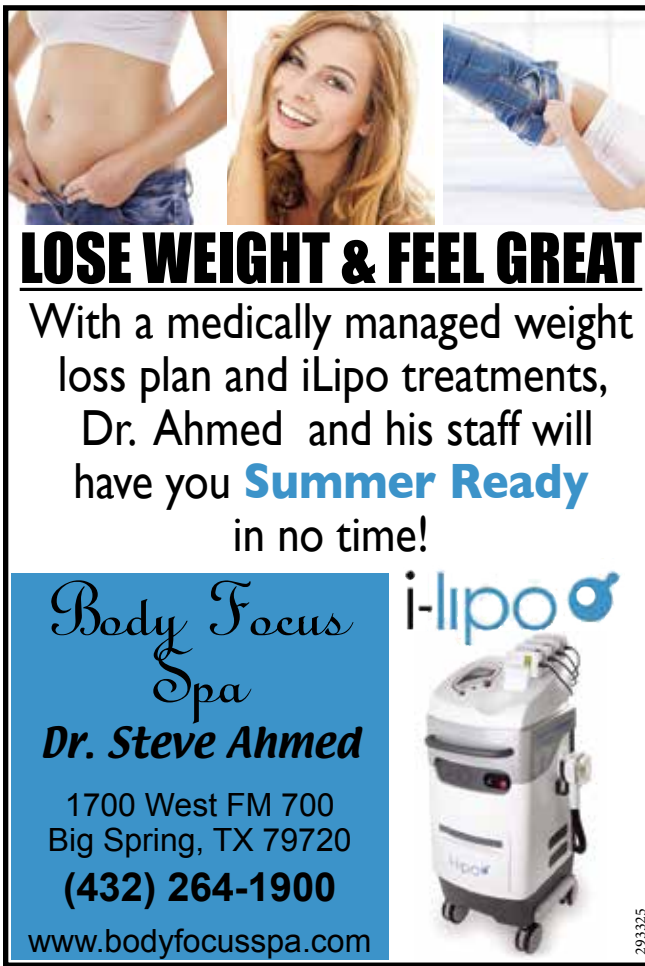

Jung, who was drafted No. 8 overall by the Texas Rangers on Monday night, gave Texas Tech a 7-5 lead with his 13th home run of the season. Brian Klein hit a sacrifice fly to right with the bases loaded in the bottom of the eighth, scoring Max Marusak to cap the scoring.

Texas Tech (43-17), which is trying to reach the College World Series for the fourth time in six years, won its eighth straight game in the series with Oklahoma State (39-20).

Klein's RBI single in the fourth gave Texas Tech a 4-2 lead and Cameron Warren's fly ball was dropped by center fielder Trevor Boone, leading to two more runs later in the inning.

Freshman Micah Dallas (7-0) struck out nine through five innings for the win. John McMillon picked up his third save, striking out three over two innings.

Alix Garcia hit a long solo home run in the fifth for Oklahoma State and added a check-swing RBI single in the seventh.

A dirt storm to remember

Haboob 2019

HERALD report

Those who were around Wednesday evening might say the events that occurred were right out of a movie, The Mummy to be exact, as a big wall cloud of dirt moved through (quickly) Big Spring.

The Great Haboob of 2019, Lubbock blew our way, and a massive dust storm, have been just a few of the ways that described what swept through Big Spring. Residents were quickly overtaken by a huge dirt storm, high winds ranging between 50-70 mph, and complete darkness to light within a 15 minute period.

Dirt storms are common around West Texas and nothing out of the ordinary, but this one was different and has left a lasting impression. Photos, videos and discussions have swept across social media and sparked an interest in the occurrence that took place. For those who might have missed the most talked about event of 2019 (so far), here is a collection of community photos that were submitted and a brief background on the word Haboob.

Haboob, as defined by Encyclopedia Britannica, is a strong wind that occurs along the southern edges of the Sahara and Sudan and is associated with large sandstorms and dust storms and may be accompanied by thunderstorms. The term is taken from the Arabic word habb, meaning wind.

The dust storm that moved through on Wednesday lasted about 15 minutes total and was a rare occurrence for our area, one not seen by residents before. While the most common occurrences are found in the deserts, they are possible in Australia, Central Asia, China, Arizona and Texas.

A haboob is described as transporting huge quantities of sand or dust, which moves as a dense wall that can reach a height of 3,300 feet.

28 Texas Tech Students Awarded Charles Butt Scholarships for Aspiring Teachers

Texas Tech has the most scholarship recipients of the 10 universities

Special to the Herald

The Raise Your Hand Texas Foundation announced the second cohort of students receiving the Charles Butt Scholarship for Aspiring Teachers, including 28 students attending or planning to attend Texas Tech University. Of the 10 institutions with students receiving awards, Texas Tech had the most recipients.

All scholars are committed to teaching in majority economically disadvantaged Texas public schools or in hard-to-fill subject areas. They will receive an $8,000 scholarship each year, as well as ongoing training, mentorship and networking opportunities facilitated by the foundation. Additionally, Raise Your Hand hosted the first Charles Butt Scholars Symposium, an all-expenses-paid, two-day professional development conference for the scholars at the end of May.

"Texas Tech University's College of Education is proud to be a part of the Charles Butt Scholarship for Aspiring Teachers, and we are especially proud to have the most scholars in this cohort out of any of the 10 universities partnered with Raise Your Hand," said Doug Hamman, chair of the Teacher Education Department at Texas Tech. "Our goal has always been to prepare the highest-caliber candidates for teaching, and these scholarship awards confirm that we are on the right track."

At Texas Tech, the funds will aid students in the TechTeach line of teacher preparation programs. Through partnerships with school districts and communities around the state and locally, the clinically intensive programs place Texas Tech students on a school campus for a yearlong residency experience. The students co-teach alongside mentor teachers and receive feedback and coaching from Texas Tech faculty based on the campus. One of the programs, TechTeach Across Rural Texas, helps prepare teachers specifically for rural schools, which often struggle to recruit and retain high-quality educators.

More than 370 candidates submitted a written application. The finalists participated in interviews, group activities and a demonstration teaching lesson before 134 new scholars were selected.

"We are excited to welcome the second round of Charles Butt scholars into our growing network of aspiring teachers," said Shari Albright, president of the Raise Your Hand Texas Foundation. "These students are passionate about making a tangible difference for the future of Texas, and they are eager to receive the ongoing mentoring and professional development that will put them in the best position to be the best teachers they can be."

The scholarship is part of the Raise Your Hand Texas Foundation's Raising Texas Teachers initiative, a 10-year, $50 million project designed to support university-based teacher preparation programs in addressing the needs of 21st-century students, elevate the status of the teaching profession and inspire top students to pursue teaching.

"We launched the Raising Texas Teachers initiative with the Charles Butt Scholarship for Aspiring Teachers and partnerships designed to support universities committed to the continuous improvement of their teacher preparation programs," said Thea Ulrich-Lewis, director of the Raising Texas Teachers initiative for the Raise Your Hand Texas Foundation. "We also are working to raise the stature of the teaching profession through multimedia profiles and feature stories about the Charles Butt scholars, and we recently began releasing content through the 'Voices on Teaching' campaign, which showcases different voices - business executives, parents, students, celebrities, educators and others - sharing the impact and importance of the teaching profession and specific teachers."

This year's scholarships were awarded to students attending, or planning to attend, one of 10 partner universities selected by Raise Your Hand for their commitment to rigorous teacher preparation.

Here is a list of the Texas Tech scholars:

Farm Service Agency County Committee nominations open June 14

#LeadYourFSA and be the Voice of Farmers in Your Community

Special to the Herald

WASHINGTON, June 5, 2019 - USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) will begin accepting nominations for county committee members on Friday, June 14, 2019. Agricultural producers who participate or cooperate in an FSA program may be nominated for candidacy for the county committee. Individuals may nominate themselves or others as a candidate.

"I encourage America's farmers, ranchers, and forest stewards to nominate candidates to lead, serve, and represent their community on their county committee," FSA Administrator Richard Fordyce said. "There's an increasing need for diverse representation including underserved producers, which includes beginning, women and minority farmers and ranchers."

Committees make important decisions about how federal farm programs are administered locally. Their input is vital on how FSA carries out disaster programs, as well as conservation, commodity and price support programs, county office employment and other agricultural issues.

Nationwide, more than 7,700 dedicated members of the agricultural community serving on FSA county committees. The committees are made of three to 11 members and typically meet once a month. Members serve three-year terms. Producers serving on our FSA county committees play a critical role in the day-to-day operations of the agency.

Producers should visit their local FSA office today to find out how to get in-involved in their county's election. Check with your local USDA service center to see if your local administrative area is up for election this year. Organizations, including those representing beginning, women and minority producers, also may nominate candidates.

To be considered, a producer must sign an FSA-669A nomination form. The form and other information about FSA county committee elections are available at fsa.usda.gov/elections. All nomination forms for the 2019 election must be postmarked or received in the local FSA office by Aug. 1, 2019.

Election ballots will be mailed to eligible voters beginning Nov. 4, 2019. Read more to learn about important election dates.

Roger's Review

Dark Phoenix

The recent movie "Dark Phoenix," the latest in the X-Men franchise – and a sequel to 2016's "X-Men: Apocalypse" – pays some homage to the brilliant "Dark Phoenix" story arc in 1980s Marvel Comics, but doesn't quite live up to its print predecessor.

The movie focuses on the X-Man ("X-Woman?") as the movie itself jokes) Jean Grey (Sophie Turner – Sansa from "Game of Thrones"), already a powerful telepath and telekinetic hero, and her possession and corruption by an extremely powerful cosmic entity, the Phoenix Force.

Roger Cline

As a child, Gray (Summer Fontana as the child version) is traveling by car with her parents when she complains about her mother's (Hannah Anderson) choice of music – slow, romantic songs on the radio. Mom tells young Jean that, when she is old enough to drive, she can listen to whatever she wants. Suddenly, the radio changes by itself to a different channel playing Warren Zevon's "Werewolves of London." As mom, confused, changes the station back, Jean begins hearing voices. She clutches her head, telling them to be quiet. Apparently distracted by her daughter, Mom isn't paying attention and slams headfirst into an oncoming truck. As the family car flies through the air, we see glass fragments stopping inches from Jean's face as if blocked by an invisible wall, while Mom and Dad (Scott Shepherd) are shredded by the impact and flying debris.

At the hospital, Jean is approached by a young man in a wheelchair. Of course, X-Men fans recognize Professor Xavier (James McAvoy). The professor tells the perfectly unharmed Jean that both her parents died in the crash, and offers to help her learn about her "gifts." She agrees and he takes her to Xavier's School for Gifted Youngsters.

Flash forward 18 years. The X-Men have somehow begun to be idolized by the public, who see them as the superheroes they actually are, for once.

When NASA loses communication with a space shuttle, the president (Brian d'Arcy James) calls Professor X on a special X-Phone, and asks the X-Men to help. Hank McCoy/Beast (Nicholas Hoult), the resident tech brain of the X-Men, is afraid the group's jet, the Blackbird, won't fare well in space, but they head off anyway, and it does fine.

As they approach the shuttle, they see a glowing, pulsing cloud of cosmic energy threatening it. After an eye-blast from Scott Summers/Cyclops (Tye Sheridan) – using a special gun with a goggles attachment – disables a malfunctioning engine on the shuttle to stop it spinning, and Ororo Munroe/Storm (Alexandra Shipp) uses her weather powers to seal holes in the craft with ice, Kurt Wagner/Nightcrawler (Kodi Smit-McPhee) teleports aboard with Peter Maximoff/Quicksilver (Evan Peters) and Beast. Quicksilver collects up all the astronauts at super speed, and then they teleport back to the Blackbird...but one astronaut tells them they forgot the shuttle's captain, who was working on one of the systems and not in the main cabin.

After some discussion, they decide to go get him. Nightcrawler, Jean, and...another X-Man I forgot teleport over. Jean uses her telekinesis to hold the crumbling shuttle together. The others rescue the captain...and the strange cosmic cloud begins to flow into Jean. The space shuttle explodes, but she's not harmed and everybody heads home.

At home, Jean begins exhibiting strange, reckless behavior and greatly enhanced powers. She learns that her father is actually still alive, so she leaves the X-Mansion to go find him.

I'll leave off the narrative there, but let's just say things go downhill for her relationships with other people from that point. Also, there's a group of shapeshifting aliens called the "D'Bari," led by Vuk (Jessica Chastain), who are looking for Jean for some reason.

I'm a bit conflicted by "Dark Phoenix." Nothing in it was that bad. I think the main problem with the film is the issue that always pops up when you try to condense months of comic books – or a huge novel or series of novels – or a TV series – into a two-hour movie. It doesn't fit. It speeds things up and trivializes weeks and months of a character's dealing with a painful, soul-killing transformation into a scene or two in a movie. Yes, the pain is still there, it's just condensed and simplified for theater audiences.

In the movie, Jean does some bad stuff while under the influence of the Phoenix Force. In the comics, she does some truly evil, unforgivable deeds on a massive scale. In the movie, she kills somebody. In the comics, she destroys an inhabited star system and its billions of inhabitants.

I was entertained by some of the action and story in "Dark Phoenix," but the watered-down version of the story is hard to stomach. Think: "Frodo and friends take the ring, get chased by a couple of orcs, and throw the thing into the volcano. The End." Ok, maybe not that bad, but close.

I'm giving "Dark Phoenix" five and a half stars out of 10. It could have been so much better.

Back Forty: It ain't worth it

By JAMES LOCKHART

Publisher, Poteau, Okla., Daily News

Prom parties, graduation parties, I'm not so old I don't remember what goes on after the school prom or graduation. I know all too well about high school kids wanting to have a party out in the boonies, or at someone's house while their parents are gone. I was fortunate, my classmates survived them all and we grew old enough to gripe at the younger generations.

I want to share with you a story about a friend of mine named Kenny. Kenny was popular in his hometown. He was just someone that laughed and had a good time. He didn't have any enemies, everyone that met him liked him. He was just the nicest guy ever. He worked about forty miles from home. He was working the night shift because it paid two dollars an hour more and he needed the extra money for his family. Late one-night Kenny was on his way home from work, when a truck crossed the centerline and hit him head on. Kenny drove a little red car, and everyone in town knew his car. When the firemen and police came to the wreck everyone knew Kenny was hurt bad. They had to use the jaws of life to get the door open and get him out. I visited with the ambulance crew that worked the wreck, they said they had never gotten someone out and on the way to the hospital so fast before. The police did their part helping get Kenny out and getting him to the hospital about forty miles away. The driver of the truck was unhurt, he was also so drunk he didn't understand what he just did.

Kenny died the next morning from his injuries. His wife and child, parents, aunts and uncles were all completely devastated. I was good friends with his uncle Harold. Harold and I fished and hunted together. A couple of weeks later Harold told me that Kenny's wife and child would likely get to keep their house because of an insurance policy. I didn't think much about it, we were fishing and we continued talking about other things. A few more weeks goes by and Harold tells me the insurance company refuses to pay off, because the driver was drunk and therefore his insurance should pay for all the damages. After a few months of the insurance company not paying off, Kenny's house had to be sold, his wife couldn't make the payments on her salary alone. A drunk driver killed her husband and put her and her baby on the street. Oftentimes the damages done by a drunk driver are far more reaching than just the person they hit.

Another friend of mine was Dixon. I grew up with junior rodeoing with him. One time at a roping an NFR qualifier matched Dixon. Dixon was a huge underdog, but all of us were pulling for him to win because the other guy wasn't very nice. Dixon beat him like a dog. Our senior year in college Dixon had started out going to some of the early pro rodeos. He won a couple of the early rodeos and he was ranked number one in the world standings. He walked across the stage got his diploma and then went to a party afterwards. He was headed home later that night on I-40. We don't really know what happened, but he had a bad wreck. For a few years after that, in May there was a memorial roping held in Dixon's honor. The roping has kind of faded away now, but a bunch of us still remember a blond headed lanky kid who beat the dickens out of an NFR qualifier one day. His dad always talked about the fact Dixon was ranked number one in the world when he died. I always remembered it too, and I always remember that stupid party took my friend.

I'm almost forty-five now. I can't stress how important it is not to get behind the wheel after you've been drinking or riding in the car with someone who has. Dixon and Kenny were both great guys, robbed from their families because of drinking and driving.

I will never forget taking some food over to Kenny's house after the wreck, his wife was sitting just inside the front door holding their baby, her eyes red and she was clearly in shock. That was a hard thing to see. Don't drink and drive, it just ain't worth it.

Fruit season looks above average for producers

UVALDE - Harvest has been peachy so far for fruit producers this season, according to a Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service expert.

Dr. Larry Stein, AgriLife Extension fruit specialist, Uvalde, said late freezes, spring storms and heavy rains have not negatively affected most orchards and warm-season fruit varieties this season. Peach and blackberry producers around the state have been reporting above-average yields and quality.

"The freezes thinned some early varieties, but the late-producing varieties still needed thinning," he said. "The crop looks good."

Peach growers in the Hill Country region began harvesting in May and later-producing varieties are typically available through August, Stein said. Harvest of varieties in North and East Texas is in full swing, and peaches should be available at local markets through Labor Day.

Stein said high moisture levels required growers be vigilant regarding fungal and bacterial diseases, but there were no reports of major losses attributed to outbreaks. Some orchards reported heavy stinkbug infestations, which required more attention than is typical.

"Stinkbugs are hard to control," he said. "When they feed on young fruit, they can deform it. We call it 'cat-faced' because they're scarred-up looking."

Rains were spotty, delivering high volumes to some areas and not much to others, Stein said. But the overall moisture levels also make Stein optimistic about next year.

"In years where trees are under drought stress in June and July during flower initiation we typically see a lot of doubles the next year," he said. "Doubles are when the tree produces two flowers per bud - twin peaches - so you have two small peaches rather than one big peach. It lessens size and quality. The moisture conditions are good, so theoretically there is less chance of that happening next year."

This season is shaping up as a good one for consumers as well, Stein said. The U.S. Department of Agriculture Agricultural Marketing Service reported peaches in the South Central U.S., which includes Texas, were comparable to last year.

Retail prices were $1.56-$2.98 per pound compared to $1.95-$2.99 per pound in 2018, according to the service's June reports.

"The market is good," Stein said. "Sellers are getting their prices, but based on the quality, the consumers are getting a good deal as well. There should be no shortage of good fruit for cobblers and canning and preserves."

temporary concrete batch plants located at 11045 North State Highway 137, Garden City, Glasscock County, Texas 79739. This application is being processed in an expedited manner, as allowed by the commission's rules in 30 Texas Administrative Code, Chapter 101, Subchapter J. This link to an electronic map of the site or facility's general location is provided as a public courtesy and not part of the application or notice. For exact location, refer to application. <http://www.tceq.texas.gov/assets/public/hb610/index.html?lat=31.6455&lng=-101.632553&zoom=13&type=1>The proposed facility will emit the following air contaminants: particulate matter including (but not limited to) aggregate, cement, road dust, and particulate matter with diameters of 10 microns or less and 2.5 microns or less.

This application was submitted to the TCEQ on May 8, 2019. The executive director has completed the administrative and technical reviews of the application and determined that the application meets all of the requirements of a standard permit authorized by 30 TAC § 116.611, which would establish the conditions under which the plant must operate. The executive director has made a preliminary decision to issue the registration because it meets all applicable rules. The application, executive director's preliminary decision, and standard permit will be available for viewing and copying at the TCEQ central office, the TCEQ Midland Regional Office, and at the Glasscock Courthouse, 209 South Myrl Street, Garden City, Glasscock County, Texas, beginning the first day of publication of this notice. The facility's compliance file, if any exists, is available for public review at the TCEQ Midland Regional Office, 9900 West Interstate 20, Suite 100, Midland, Texas. Visit www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/cbp to review the standard permit.

Public Comment/Public Meeting. You may submit public comments or request a public meeting. See Contacts section. The TCEQ will consider all public comments in developing a final decision on the application. The deadline to submit public comments or meeting requests is 30 days after newspaper notice is published. Issues such as property values, noise, traffic safety, and zoning are outside of the TCEQ's jurisdiction to consider in the permit process.

The purpose of a public meeting is to provide the opportunity to submit comments or ask questions about the application. A public meeting about the application will be held if the executive director determines that there is a significant degree of public interest in the application or if requested by a local legislator. A public meeting is not a contested case hearing. If a public meeting is held, the deadline to submit public comments is extended to the end of the public meeting.

Contested Case Hearing. You may request a contested case hearing. A contested case hearing is a legal proceeding similar to a civil trial in state district court. Unless a written request for a contested case hearing is filed within 30 days from this notice, the executive director may approve the application.

A person who may be affected by emissions of air contaminants from the facility is entitled to request a hearing. To request a hearing, a person must actually reside within 440 yards of the proposed plant. If requesting a contested case hearing, you must submit the following: (1) your name (or for a group or association, an official representative), mailing address, daytime phone number; (2) applicant's name and registration number;

Legals

(3) the statement "[I/we] request a contested case hearing;" (4) a specific description of how you would be adversely affected by the application and air emissions from the facility in a way not common to the general public; (5) the location and distance of your property relative to the facility; (6) a description of how you use the property which may be impacted by the facility; and (7) a list of all disputed issues of fact that you submit during the comment period. If the request is made by a group or association, one or more members who have standing to request a hearing must be identified by name and physical address. The interests which the group or association seeks to protect must be identified. You may submit your proposed adjustments to the application which would satisfy your concerns. See Contacts section.

TCEQ Action. After the deadline for public comments, the executive director will consider the comments and prepare a response to all relevant and material, or significant public comments. The executive director's decision on the application, and any response to comments, will be mailed to all persons on the mailing list. If no timely contested case hearing requests are received, or if all hearing requests are withdrawn, the executive director may issue final approval of the application. If all timely hearing requests are not withdrawn, the executive director will not issue final approval of the permit and will forward the application and requests to the Commissioners for their consideration at a scheduled commission meeting. The Commission may only grant a request for a contested case hearing on issues the requestor submitted in their timely comments that were not subsequently withdrawn. If a hearing is granted, the subject of a hearing will be limited to disputed issues of fact or mixed questions of fact and law relating to relevant and material air quality concerns submitted during the comment period. Issues such as property values, noise, traffic safety, and zoning are outside of the Commission's jurisdiction to address in this proceeding.

Mailing List. You may ask to be placed on a mailing list to receive additional information on this specific application. See Contacts section.

Information Available Online. For details about the status of the application, visit the Commissioners' Integrated Database (CID) at www.tceq.texas.gov/goto/cid. Once you have access to the CID using the link, enter the registration number at the top of this notice.

Annie's Mailbox

Wanting to Support Independence

Dear Annie: My youngest is set to move out of the family home in the next month or two. We don't mind her living at home, but she needs to move out for her own peace of mind, so she can have her own space and start to live independently. She's 22. In the past -- and still -- she has often asked for money so that she can make important payments (for example, college tuition, car insurance). But more often than not, she uses the money I give her to buy frivolous, in-the-moment wants. She has two jobs, so I know she'll be able to afford rent -- if she keeps up the hard work and doesn't fall into laziness. She has a habit of getting a new job, getting really excited about it for a few weeks to a few months and then seemingly getting bored. Then the new job fizzles out and she moves on.

I want her to make this move and live on her own successfully and truly independently. I think she needs it. I think it'll help her grow. But I'm foreseeing her asking me for rent money -- I'm in a tough financial spot at the moment -- and I won't be able to say no. She's my kid. I want her to know I'm always on her side, that I've got her back no matter what. She's had a rough life. How do I balance this nurturing impulse with letting her learn some big lessons on her own? -- Distressed About Depending Dependent

Dear Distressed: Good parenting means sometimes being the bad guy. You can offer her support in ways that aren't monetary, such as talking through her goals and helping her to figure out what career path she might be interested in. But if she asks for cash, tell her no, and stick to it -- not just for your own financial health but for hers. Baby birds don't learn to fly until they're kicked out of the nest, and young adults don't truly learn responsibility until their livelihoods depend on it. Rest assured that ultimately, she will look back and know that you were always on her side.

Dear Annie: I read your column almost every day and have often wondered why you never mention Families Anonymous when responding to a family member or friend of someone is has an addiction issue. This organization helped me enormously when I was trying to cope with my daughter's addiction. I'd been to Al-Anon and, while I think it's a fine organization, there is a slightly different attitude among participants of Families Anonymous. I hope you'll check it out and try recommending it in your column.

Thanks for all the good you do. -- Elizabeth in Roanoke, Virginia

Dear Elizabeth in Roanoke: I've heard many wonderful things about Families Anonymous, and I'm happy to recommend it here. Readers can learn more about the program and find out how to attend free meetings at <https://www.familiesanonymous.org>. Thank you for writing.

Dear Annie: This is in response to "Tired of the Night Prowls," whose cats kept her or him awake by fighting all night. My wife had a similar problem. We solved it by coating the cats using a stick of butter. The cats spent the whole night cleaning themselves, which left no time for fighting each other. -- Brennan

Dear Brennan: Thank you for the chuckle. I can't say I endorse this advice; in fact, I have to caution against it, as cats are lactose intolerant. But you win big points for creativity.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.

Bridge is not for lazy thinkers — not if you want to get the best results possible. You can't just sit at the table, make only mechanical bids and plays, and expect to do well. You have to do all you can to try to figure out what everybody has, and follow those thoughts to a logical conclusion.

Consider this deal where you reach four spades on the bidding shown and West leads the king of diamonds. East takes the king with the ace and returns the five, taken by West with the ten. West continues with the queen, East discarding a club as you ruff.

Let's say you enter dummy with a club, lead a spade to the queen and lose the finesse to the king. East later scores another trump trick, and down you go.

The sad truth is that this would be the outcome in many bridge games, and nobody would pay any attention to it. The players would think South was unlucky to lose the trump finesse. However, this would not be an accurate assessment of South's performance.

It is not really difficult to figure out that East cannot have the king of spades and that the spade finesse is therefore a losing proposition. Once East shows up with the ace of diamonds at trick one, it must be assumed that he cannot also have the king of spades, since he surely would not have passed West's opening bid with an ace and a king in his hand.

Declarer should therefore play the ace and a low spade, instead of finessing, in the hope that West started with the doubleton king. It is the only realistic chance he has to make the contract, and some chance is better than no chance at all.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Solar Square Warning

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you don't feel you're helping, you won't be interested in what you're doing and you'll leave. Helping is that important to you. The second-most important thing to you is growth. You want to grow alongside the people you help.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Pace yourself. It's the key to maintaining (or reaching, as the case may be) a certain level of joy. If you move forward with all your plans, you'll get so busy that none of it will be fun. Be choosy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Others will mess with your timetable, but if you can think of this as more of a reset than an upset, you'll be poised for one of those great unplanned outcomes you've been known to stumble into.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Organization makes the world go round. Even your DNA is organized toward your survival, health and uniqueness. It's amazing what can change just because you start keeping track of your life differently.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You're thinking long term and acting to assist your future self. There's something you can do today that will put you in a good position five years from now.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). The job may not utilize your talents so well, but that's because people don't know any better yet. When you do more to honor your talents, they'll take notice and start seeing you in a different way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Momentary fears will be tolerated, faced, pushed through in order to become the brave and strong person you need to be to live your bigger and better life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). It's almost as though the day was designed to make you think fast, dodge, climb, duck and generally behave like an athlete in an obstacle course. Hey, some people pay a lot of money for this kind of excitement!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). You might be surprised at what gets people talking, just because it's such a small, strange detail. But really, isn't this perfect? As long as they are talking, you can do something with the attention.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Because any number of things can and will happen, and rapidly at that, what counts more will be your takeaway and how you decide to build from there. You could say that it's not the show but the recap that matters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You'll spend a good deal of time nurturing your seeds of excellence through feeding your mind, body and soul with what it wants and needs. Oh happy day! Those "wants" and "needs" are well-aligned.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Potential isn't something that's fixed in your genes or destiny. Your potential changes with your circumstances. It expands and contracts in different environments. Your intuition will tell you where you need to be.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 9). You are capable of giving a bigger gift to the world. This is what drives you, especially in these first three months of your solar return. You'll learn what you need to know to make a leap to your new level of generosity. Work will change. Key relationships will open the door to knowing more people. New contracts are part of this. Aries and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 15, 2, 20, 36 and 13.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: The main idea that comes out of this solar opposition to Neptune is alarmingly simple. It has to do with your current position and why you're there. That fact is that you're still in a relationship or still pursuing an endeavor because the reasons to continue outweigh the reasons to stop.

To be in control of this equation is to stack up reasons on one side or the other. Do you want to continue because the goal isn't met yet? Do you need motivation to get there? Remember why you're doing this. Come up with more arguments to support the idea. Strengthen your reasons to keep going, or weaken the reasons to quit.

The other aspect of note is a trine of Mars and Neptune, which beg the question, "When should you help?" It's good to know your boundaries. No one wants to be taken advantage of. Of course, boundaries have a way of changing once the situation goes live and face to face. Peer pressure is real and doesn't diminish its influence just because a person grows older. But if you err on the side of giving too much, you'll never be sorry. And anyway, this is a fine week for adopting a posture of service and support -- for becoming the champion of a person or idea.

CROPS

reporters compiled the following summaries:

CENTRAL: Conditions were wet. Wheat harvest was good thus far with yields ranging from 50-80 bushels per acre. Corn was off to a good start and continued to grow with some terrace channels struggling due to excess water. Cotton fields started well with good soil moisture. Pastures and hay fields looked promising. Native grasses looked good. Cattle were in good body condition, and stock tanks were full. Ground temperature was slow to reach 73 degrees. Conditions were starting to dry down in some areas, and hay harvest was underway.

ROLLING PLAINS: Conditions were favorable with temperatures continuing to climb. Topsoil moisture was still good. Cotton producers started to plant. Area wheat producers baled wheat hay, while other producers were ready for grain harvest. Livestock were in good condition as pastures and rangelands continued to improve.

SOUTH PLAINS: Most counties received rain, which helped subsoil and topsoil tremendously. Some counties reported standing water, including drowned-out cotton acres, and those acres were expected to be replanted. Some counties missed rain and needed moisture to finish planting. Some cotton was not germinating or was being stressed by seedling disease. Hay producers were able to get their first hay cuttings cured, baled and stored. Pasture, rangeland and winter wheat remained in fair condition. Producers continued to plant. Cattle were in good condition.

PANHANDLE: Cotton, peanut and other warm-season crops were being planted. Cattle and pasture conditions looked very good. Planted cotton did not germinate. Wet conditions in some counties prevented planting. Many cotton fields were optioning to grain plans due to the amount of moisture received. Rangelands were in their best condition in years.

NORTH: Soil moisture was adequate to surplus in most counties. Continued storms were keeping soil moisture high. Average rainfall for the reporting period ranged from 2-6 inches. Flooded fields were reported in Hopkins County. Corn planted early looked good, and later corn was adequate. Winter wheat looked good, but if wet conditions continue, harvesting pastures may be a problem. Some producers were able to harvest wheat due to a small window of dry weather, but much remains in fields. Cotton producers continued to wait for drier conditions to begin planting. Very few acres were planted so far. Sorghum was not looking good due to persistent wet, cooler conditions. There were a few soybean fields planted, but they don't look good so far. There was a lot of hay baled between rainstorms the last several weeks. Winter grasses were good this year, and bale counts were high. Cattle looked good, and there were still many stockers in pastures cleaning up winter grasses. Calves were gaining well. Wild pigs were very destructive, tearing up cemeteries, yards, pastures and hayfields. Trappers were catching high numbers of wild pigs.

FAR WEST: Temperature highs were in the low 90s with lows in the mid-60s. Severe storms in the far western part of the district brought 0.5-4.5 inches of rain, golf ball-sized hail, damaging winds and threats of tornadoes. Corn and sorghum were making very good progress with warmer temperatures. Many corn fields were expected to begin tasseling soon. Hay grazer was still being planted, and the wheat harvest was wrapping up. A lot of cotton was planted. A handful of producers were replanting a few fields with some emergence issues, mostly due to rainfall. Watermelons were starting to grow. Pecan trees dropped their catkins. Pecan producers sprayed for pecan nut casebearer and still have traps out to monitor for the second flight. Jumbo grasshoppers were reported. Rangelands were recovering well with cooler temperatures and moisture. Livestock and rangeland conditions were fair.

WEST CENTRAL: Most of the district received several more inches of rain. The district was dealing with lots of excess moisture in fields. Some producers were able to cut wheat. Cotton planting was way behind schedule. Livestock were doing well. Weeds continued to be a major problem for producers. All classes of livestock were in mostly good condition. Sheep and goat producers were battling internal parasites. Demand at sale barns was very good.

SOUTHEAST: Some parts of the district reported rain. Rains will make planting rice before the final planting date difficult. Some rice was harvested.

Livestock were in good health. Pastures were progressing well for forage production. In Lee County, pastures and fields were starting to dry out. Hay was being cut. Rangeland and pastures were excellent to poor with good conditions being most common. Soil moisture levels ranged from adequate to surplus with adequate being most common.

SOUTHWEST: Some counties reported trace amounts to 4.75 inches of rain. Counties that received rain were seeing improved rangeland and pasture conditions. Counties without rainfall reported a decline in conditions. Wheat harvest was wrapping up with good yields reported. Corn, sorghum and cotton looked good. Some counties reported weather conditions made hay baling difficult, as heavy winds made raking a challenge. Livestock were in fair to good shape.

SOUTH: Northern parts of the district reported warm weather conditions with short to adequate soil moisture levels. Western parts of the district reported mild weather with rains and adequate soil moisture levels. Eastern parts of the district reported dry, windy weather with short to adequate soil moisture levels. Warm weather conditions and short soil moisture levels were reported in the southernmost part of the district. Atascosa County reported windy conditions but perfectly timed rains. Potatoes, wheat and sweet corn were harvested. Peanut planting continued, and cotton was squaring and a week to 10 days from first bloom. Corn fields were silking. Pasture and rangeland conditions were fair to good. Live Oak County reported declining row crop and pasture conditions due to lack of rainfall. Coastal Bermuda grass fields in Maverick County were producing very good hay bales. Watermelons and cantaloupes were also in good shape with well-developed produce. Zavala County reported heavy rains and surplus moisture. Native rangelands and pastures should respond well and provide good, quality forage for grazing. Wheat harvest neared completion. Cabbage and onion harvests were completed. Sorghum and cotton made good progress. Very little supplemental feeding of livestock was reported. Producers in Zapata County reported supplemental feeding and stocking rate changes due to dry, hot and windy conditions. Other counties reported similarly declining pasture conditions due to heat and wind.

Texas A&M scientist's genetic survey to inform endangered golden-cheeked warbler decision

COLLEGE STATION – A Texas A&M AgriLife Research scientist is conducting a two-year genetic survey of a Texas songbird – the golden-cheeked warbler – which could determine its status on a federal endangered species list.

Dr. Giri Athrey, AgriLife Research avian geneticist, College Station, worked on the previous golden-cheeked warbler study in 2006-2009 and is conducting the survey which began May 24.

The golden-cheeked warbler has been a species of conservation interest in Texas for a very long time, Athrey said. They are the only neotropical warblers that breed and nest exclusively in Texas.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, USFWS, is tasked with periodically reviewing evidence supporting the continued listing or delisting of this species. Athrey's proposal to conduct a genetic survey of the golden-cheeked warbler throughout its habitat in Central Texas was selected to generate data necessary for the next review.

The two-year project is funded by the Department of Defense via the Army Corps of Engineers. To conduct the study, Athrey and collaborators with the city of Austin will undertake a broad-scaled genetic survey of the species using the latest genomics and bioinformatics approaches.

"Along the way, we will also assemble the genome of this species, which will be the first endangered songbird in the mainland United States whose genome will be assembled," he said. "We will be conducting the analysis using the latest genomics approaches to assess the species' recovery and generate knowledge that will inform the listing and management decisions in the near future.

"We will be using whole-genome data for this study," he continued. "The advantage in this case would be that we can assess if and how genetic diversity in functionally important genes, such as genes related to immunity, are impacted. With that data, we can make inferences regarding what the recovery means for survival and long-term viability."

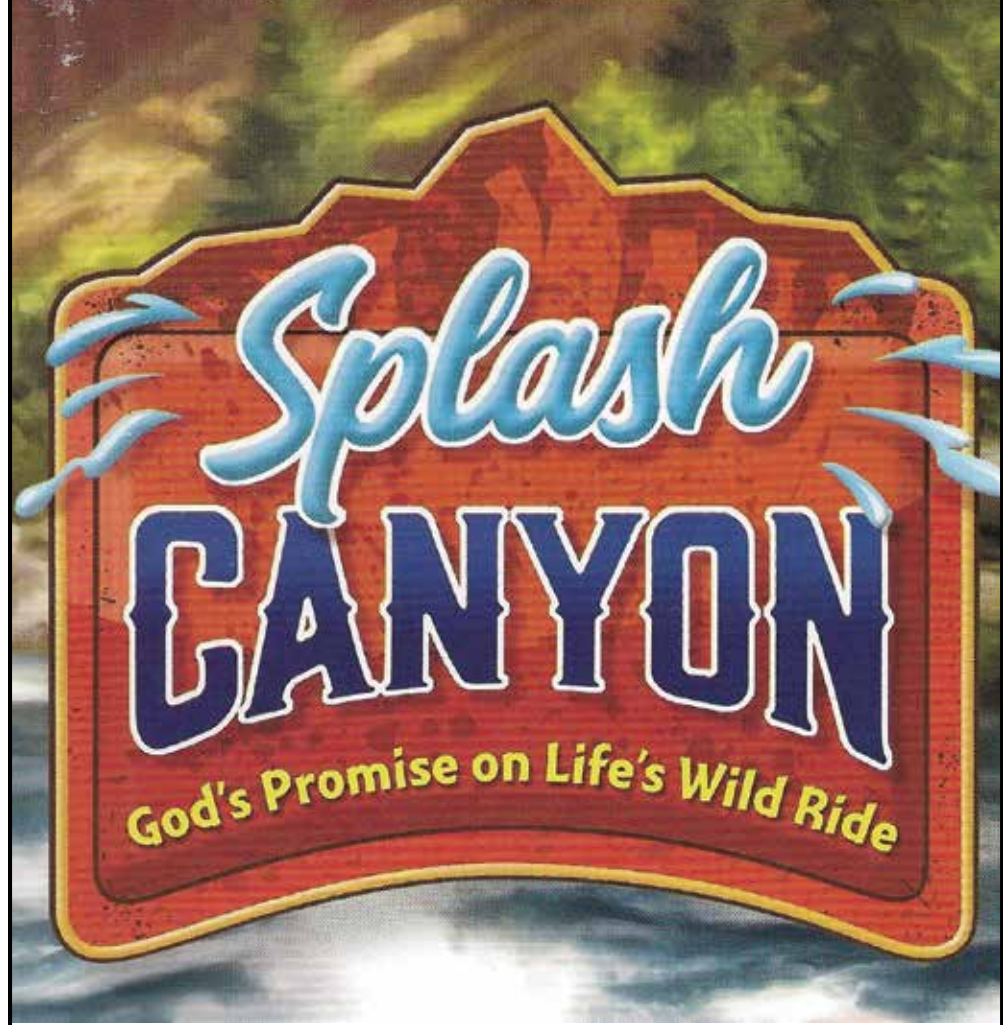

The last time a USFWS review was performed, they did not find sufficient evidence to support delisting, Athrey said. Genetic data is a critical component for conservation and management decision-making, and these approaches have become ubiquitous around the world, he said.

The last genetic study on golden-cheeked warblers, published in 2012, showed there had been a steep decline in genetic diversity of the golden-cheeked warbler due to habitat loss experienced over the last century: <https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s10592-011-0235-8>.

"We'll be looking at the genetic diversity and structure of the species because Fish and Wildlife wants to determine whether to look at the species as one large contiguous population or independent units, from a management perspective," Athrey said. "Recovery of the species is the goal everyone is working towards. Various approaches are used to assess progress on recovery goals, and genetics is one of them.

"This study is likely to be crucial in determining how the golden-cheeked warbler may be managed in the future and what protections need to be afforded it."

Judith Light is among those being honored at The 73rd Annual Tony Awards Sunday on CBS.

James Corden and Judith Light celebrate Broadway at 73rd Tony Awards

For a couple of familiar faces, The 73rd Annual Tony Awards will mean another big night, but for different reasons.

Late-late-night television star James Corden – a Tony winner himself in 2012 for “One Man, Two Guvnors” – has his second stint hosting the yearly salute to the best of Broadway’s theater season as CBS airs the event Sunday, June 9, from New York’s Radio City Music Hall. Stage and television veteran Judith Light (“Transparent,” “Who’s the Boss?”) will receive the honorary Isabelle Stevenson Award for her dedication to the theater community through her related activism.

“I’m so happy to be doing it again, no matter how nervous I feel about the prospect,” Corden says of reprising his 2016 Tony Awards job (which helped that special win an Emmy Award). “It’s a community of people that means a great deal to me, and I’m incredibly proud to be there just as a representative ushering the night along.”

The top Tony nominee this year is the musical “Hadestown,” with 14 bids. Among talents in the running are Bryan Cranston (for “Network”), Annette Bening (“Arthur Miller’s All My Sons”), Jeff Daniels (“To Kill a Mockingbird”), Laurie Metcalf (“Hillary and Clinton”), Santino Fontana (“Tootsie”) and Broadway staples Kelli O’Hara (“Kiss Me, Kate”) and Stephanie J. Block (“The Cher Show”).

“Lots of award shows essentially are just groups of millionaires giving each other gold statues,” Corden reasons, “and here is something where you see all of these unbelievable performers doing excerpts from shows they do eight times a week. And it’s such a supportive community, so open and loving, I loved doing this the last time. It was one of the best nights of my career, so I just hope I don’t let anybody down.”

Light surely won’t, having already proven her extensive service to the theater world not only through consecutive Tony wins in 2012 (for “Other Desert Cities”) and 2013 (“The Assembled Parties”), but also by her efforts toward supporting human and LGBTQ+ rights and ending HIV/AIDS.

“I remember when I was very young and I was in a theater camp in New Hope, Pa.,” reflects Light (also a two-time Daytime Emmy winner). “I didn’t realize it until later, but gay men came from the city and were there for the summer to teach dance and drama. And I thought, ‘Oh. It was that community that watched out for me.’”

Light says she “marvels” that many of her professional ventures echo her personal concerns: “I don’t understand at all how that has happened, but I don’t care that I don’t. We’re talking about people taking risks, or people who are infinitely curious about something, and that’s part and parcel of this.”

Playwright Terrence McNally becomes one of PBS' 'American Masters'

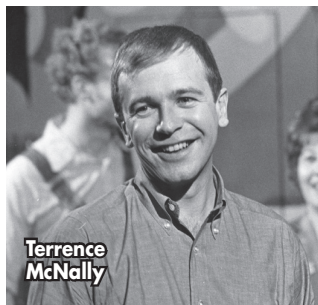

In the same week he receives a special Tony Award for lifetime achievement in the theater, Terrence McNally is being celebrated in another way.

A winner of four competitive Tonys, the playwright behind such classics as "The Ritz," "Frankie and Johnny in the Clair de Lune" (now getting a Broadway revival) and "Love! Valour! Compassion!" is showcased in PBS' new "American Masters" profile "Terrence McNally: Every Act of Life" Friday, June 14 (check local listings). Many talents who have worked with him – including Rita Moreno, Nathan Lane, Christine Baranski, F. Murray Abraham, Angela Lansbury, Chita Rivera, Patrick Wilson, Audra McDonald and Tyne Daly – comment on his life and career, as does McNally himself. Additionally, Meryl Streep and Bryan Cranston are heard.

"I don't like looking back," McNally said in a press conference. "I don't like having turned 80 (last November). But when I look back, I like what I see. I've had a great life and feel very grateful, but I've always been blessed in finding people who share my vision. And I've worked with some really good actors who maybe haven't been really good in plays of mine because they don't hear my rhythms and they don't share my point of view."

However, "Amadeus" Oscar winner Abraham benefited from helping to bring McNally's work to life in the original mid-1970s Broadway staging of "The Ritz." The actor reflects, "It's the luckiest thing that ever happened to me in theater, him saying, 'OK. Let this guy out there come and read.' After about 10 or 12 hours of auditioning people, you don't want to see anybody else. You want to go home. So it was really big of them to let me come in and read."

"And it was terrific that he was open enough to buy my act," adds Abraham. "We communicated through his words. As far as knowing he's a great American master ... well, you want to believe that. You want to think the most and the best of someone whose work seems to communicate with you immediately, which it did. And still does."

ANTHONY ANDERSON

Anthony Anderson was born on Aug. 15, 1970, in Compton, Calif. He attended Hollywood High School – where he was part of the Magnet program for the performing arts – and Howard University.

After a disappointing stab at stand-up comedy, fellow performer Guy Torry encouraged Anderson to continue. He trained with Avery Brooks ("Star Trek: Deep Space Nine") and spouses Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee.

Following early roles on such shows as "JAG" and "The Wayans Bros.," Anderson became a regular on the teen-oriented NBC series "Hang Time." He then mixed comedy and drama parts on programs including "NYPD Blue," "Ally McBeal" and "Malcolm & Eddie."

Among Anderson's movies early on were "Life" (with friend Torry), "Romeo Must Die," "Big Momma's House," "Me, Myself & Irene," "Exit Wounds," "Two Can Play That Game," "Barbershop," "Cradle 2 the Grave," "Malibu's Most Wanted," "Scary Movie 3" and "My Baby's Daddy."

Anderson's sitcom experience was enhanced by his starring role on the 2003-04 show "All About the Andersons," but work in such movies as "Hustle & Flow" and director Martin Scorsese's "The Departed" advanced his drama cred. He parlayed that into roles on the Emmy-winning series "The Shield" and the show "K-Ville," and then into the part of Detective Kevin Bernard on "Law & Order" during that program's final three seasons.

"Transformers," "The Back-up Plan," "Scream 4" and "Grudge Match" were among projects that kept Anderson's movie presence going as he also appeared on such series as "Shameless," "Psych," "Treme," "Guys With Kids" and "The Soul Man."

In 2014, Anderson began the series "blackish," which became a major hit for ABC and has earned him multiple Emmy nominations as both a star and an executive producer (and has yielded the Freeform spinoff "grown-ish" as well as ABC's forthcoming "mixedish").

Anderson – who has two children with wife Alvina – also is the host of the latest incarnation of the game show "To Tell the Truth," which starts its fourth ABC season Sunday, June 9. His mother Doris also participates in the program, literally sitting on the sidelines and chiming in with her views.

BEST PLAYS INTO MOVIES

"Casablanca" (1942) While stories abound about the spontaneous backstage combustion that resulted in one of the best-loved films of all time, the saga of reunited romantics Rick and Ilsa (Humphrey Bogart, Ingrid Bergman) actually was based on a play titled "Everybody Comes to Rick's."

"Arsenic and Old Lace" (1944) Director Frank Capra was smart to hire Josephine Hull and Jean Adair to reprise their Broadway performances as surprisingly lethal ladies in this comedy, also starring Cary Grant.

"Harvey" (1950) James Stewart had one of his signature roles as Elwood P. Dowd, an eccentric who maintains that a giant, invisible rabbit by the name of Harvey is his best friend.

"A Streetcar Named Desire" (1951) With his wail of "Stella!" Marlon Brando cemented himself as a screen force to be reckoned with. Oscar winners Vivien Leigh, Kim Hunter and Karl Malden also excel in director Elia Kazan's take on Tennessee Williams' play.

"Mister Roberts" (1955) Life aboard a wartime ship is made hugely entertaining by Henry Fonda in the title role, Oscar winner Jack Lemmon as amiable Ensign Pulver, James Cagney as their stern commander and William Powell as the doctor aboard the vessel.

"Picnic" (1955) William Inge's play was "opened up" beautifully for the screen by director Joshua Logan with on-location filming, as William Holden plays a status-quo-shaking newcomer to a town in Kansas.

"The Odd Couple" (1968) Neil Simon's plays yielded many movie translations, but arguably the most fully satisfying is Jack Lemmon and Walter Matthau's teaming as the unlikelyst of roommates, fussy Felix and messy Oscar.

"The Lion in Winter" (1968) The sheer ferocity of Peter O'Toole and Oscar winner Katharine Hepburn as King Henry II and Eleanor of Aquitaine gives power to James Goldman's adaptation of his play (for which he also won an Academy Award).

"Romeo and Juliet" (1968) The Shakespeare classic has had a number of screen versions, but the age-appropriate casting of Leonard Whiting and Olivia Hussey made director Franco Zeffirelli's retelling especially resonant with audiences.

"On Golden Pond" (1981) Ernest Thompson earned an Oscar for adapting his play about a couple in the twilight years ... roles that also brought Academy Awards to Henry Fonda (whose daughter Jane produced the film also also starred) and Katharine Hepburn.

"A Few Good Men" (1992) Play-inspired films had fallen out of popularity by the time director Rob Reiner brought Aaron Sorkin's military-courtroom drama to the screen. Among a powerhouse cast including Tom Cruise, Demi Moore, Kevin Bacon and Kiefer Sutherland, Jack Nicholson steals the show as the self-impressed commander who roars, "You can't handle the truth!"

Doris Day had her days as a television star

Q: I was sad to learn that Doris Day had passed. When was her TV series on the air? – Margaret Sands, Columbus, Ohio

A: "The Doris Day Show" had a fairly healthy run on CBS from 1968 to 1973, despite a couple of format changes along the way (but with the famous Day theme song "Que Sera, Sera" as a constant). After her widowed character spent the first season with her sons on her father's ranch, she went to work at a San Francisco magazine, first as a secretary and then as a reporter ... and interestingly, her sons simply vanished along the way. Day might not have chosen to do the series – which began the same year as the release of her final movie, "With Six You Get Eggroll" – but before his death, her husband and business manager Martin Melcher had obligated her to it without her knowledge. As it turned out, the show proved helpful to her, since her pay from it helped to take care of debts that her spouse's passing had left her with.

Q: Is it true that "Who Wants to Be a Millionaire" has been canceled? – Joan Douglas, via e-mail

A: It is ... at least for the immediate future, since ABC's game show revivals such as "Match Game" and "To Tell the Truth" demonstrate that series in the genre aren't necessarily gone forever. Originally an ABC primetime entry with Regis Philbin presiding, "Millionaire" went into weekday syndication with a succession of different hosts. Meredith Vieira (who ironically returns to that market this fall with a new game, "25 Words or Less") posed the questions on the daytime version or its first 11 seasons. She was succeeded by Cedric the Entertainer, Terry Crews (who's the new host of NBC's "America's Got Talent") and the "Bachelor" franchise's Chris Harrison, a recipient of Daytime Emmy nominations for "Millionaire" both this year and last.

Kate Gosselin

OF 'KATE PLUS DATE' ON TLC

Did you have any say in the kind of men that you were dating on "Kate Plus Date" or did you just kind of trust what the matchmakers were going to do for fun reactions?

I'll be honest, I was out of the dating loop for, well since before I was married, like maybe 20 years ago. So everything was different and the question that seems easy was very hard for me from a matchmaker in terms of "What are you looking for?"

I knew what I wasn't looking for, but I could not easily articulate what I was looking for. So their job was difficult. I had a say in terms of qualities and all of those things. It was difficult for me to articulate ... So when it came down to who they matched me with going on whatever I was able to tell them, I didn't know even really their name until, you know, minutes before. And a lot of it, because I couldn't articulate ... the awkwardness, uncomfortable, terrified reactions came from the fact that, you know, they were kind of hit or miss ...

Did you make any arrangements with TLC about the stuff that just cannot be on camera?

It was important for me first and foremost that my kids would be able to watch the show and not feel cringey and uncomfortable as well as other families because of, you know, our long history, viewers would essentially cross over. ... And I feel like I have five daughters and three sons and they need to be able to watch a respectful ... G-rated, essentially, show. And it's because it's important for me to be ... an example to my kids.

'Carnival Eats'
a dream job for host Noah Cappe

If there are two skills Noah Cappe will one day take away from Cooking Channel's 'Carnival Eats,' it's being able to eat anything fried and to talk for extended periods on camera without a script.

"All like that scary stuff that is normally everybody's biggest fear," explains the Canadian-born presenter and actor, "you know, being on stage or having to speak in front of large crowds or not knowing what you're going to say - are the weird things that I love the most. I love when the camera starts rolling and all I know is the vendor's name and what we're making and it's like, let's have fun getting there."

"When people say to me, 'What's your dream job?' I'm like, 'Well, I kind of have it.' I mean, you can eat fried food and travel around and ride rides and play games all day. It's kind of a dream job."

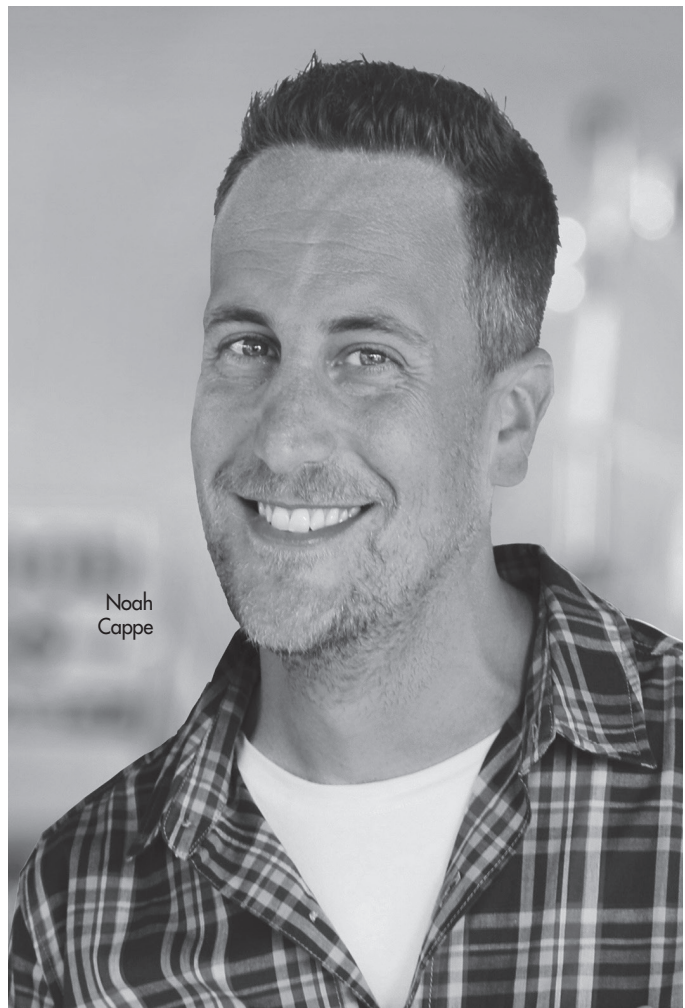

The seventh season of the culinary travel series kicks off Sunday, June 9, and once again finds Cappe venturing across the southern U.S. to sample more of the outside-the-box creations that vendors sell at local, county and state fairs. In the fresh batch of 13 episodes, he hits fairs in Florida, Texas, Louisiana and Arkansas, plus a stop in Toronto, to try everything from funnel cakes and German desserts to cajun treats and Mexican dishes.

In Sunday's opener, he's at the Arkansas State Fair in Little Rock, where the Arkansas Slamwich and something dubbed the Stuffed Thanksgiving Taco are on the menu.

"It is exactly what it sounds like," Cappe says of the latter comestible. "I mean, it's in a tortilla and kind of sealed up but filled with all of the classic Thanksgiving elements. You know, the turkey and potatoes and cranberry and all the classics, stuffing. Just hot and delicious and rolled up and sealed in a taco kind of burrito hybrid. It's one of those things that you're like, 'I'm sure I've heard of that before. I'm sure I've had something like that.' But you realize that, no, it feels like you should have done it but it makes a lot more sense when you eat it."

Also in that episode is a visit to the Greater Jacksonville (Fla.) Agricultural Fair, where Cappe munched on deep-fried rice pudding, a bite-size treat made by rolling rice pudding into balls, freezing them, dipping them in batter and dropping them in the fryer.

"By the time that frozen part is done kind of thawing and melting," he says, "it's now hot and warm and gooey in the middle but the outside has been fried up perfect. So that one trick alone, it's amazing how many things you can deep-fry. I mean, we've done deep-fried coffee, deep-fried pina colodas, margaritas. I mean, all kind of crazy things on this show now with that freezing technique."

Checking in with
JOSH ELLIOTT

Since he knows how live broadcasting works, Josh Elliott deems “First Responders Live” a good fit for him.

The former sportscaster for ESPN and NBC and news anchor for ESPNEWS, ABC’s “Good Morning America” and CBSN will take viewers to events as they happen as a Fox series – executive-produced by “Law & Order” and “Chicago”-drama mentor Dick Wolf – premieres Wednesday, June 12. Elliott will present feeds from various cities where cameras are stationed to capture at-that-moment activities of police officers, firefighters, EMTs and other helpers who rush into action.

“I’m sure it was influenced by this time and place that we find ourselves at in society,” Elliott says of the show. “From my first moment of wanting to be a journalist, I’ve always been interested in telling other people’s stories – and, specifically, focusing on the stories of everyday people who do the things they do because they feel driven to do them by some greater calling, or simply because it’s just something they love to do.”

A regional Emmy winner for work he did in New York, Elliott admits to having had initial concerns about filling the weekly “First Responders Live” hour: “One of my questions was, ‘What if nothing happens?’ (The producers) had already been down that road, and they assured me that, unfortunately, that would not be a problem.

“I’ve always been struck by how, when you see first responders on the scene, how calm they are,” adds Elliott. “A central part of their training is to defuse the situation, not add to the chaos. On the scale at which we are going to do it, this is unprecedented.”

On knowing where to have “First Responders Live” production teams stationed: “We are doing as much as we can in terms of due diligence to lock in where we’re going to be. I think it’s a matter of making sure we can provide the full breadth and depth of what it is that first responders do, and we want to make sure we are focusing on the people who choose to run to the chaos rather than from it – and the people who see real heroism as simply their job.”
