

CMSgt Jantzen Earns Wing's High Honor

A chief master sergeant with more than 23 years of military service has been selected as Airman of the Year for the 3500th Pilot Training Wing. CMSgt. Paul E. Jantzen, superintendent of the synthetic trainer branch, was recognized for his accomplishments in private and military life. In his supervisory capacity, Sergeant Jantzen is responsible for supervising 37 airmen who conduct the entire instrument trainer program for approximately 500 student pilots each year.

Sergeant Jantzen worked closely with the base Civil Engineering Division and the Corps of Engineers to develop the requirements for and the physical dimensions of a new consolidated training facility. Through pre-planned coordination and close supervision, the actual consolidation was accomplished without loss of a single scheduled training sortie.

The honored airman accumulated raw data to assist a government sponsored research team in developing parameters for pilot training in the 1975-1990 time span. He was selected to attend a command conference to determine future operational and maintenance requirements for training devices and to accomplish a general study of the synthetic trainer Air Force Specialty code. He was also selected to serve on the Air Training Command promotion board to technical and master sergeant, the wing airman performance report board, and the NCO Advisory Council.

An active member of the local community, Sergeant Jantzen was selected to serve as a member of the Board of Elders in his church, the highest office a layman can hold. In addition to teaching an adult Sunday school class, Sergeant Jantzen actively participated in the construction of a new church building.

According to Lt. Col. Larry V. Girton, 3501st Student Squadron commander, Sergeant Jantzen's "dedication to the unit's mission and ability to inspire his men to perform at the best of their abilities, has resulted in an enviable record of excellence. Such sustained superior performance is a direct reflection of Sergeant (See AIRMAN, Page 8)

U.S. Saving Bond Campaign Starts

The 1970 United States Saving Bond Campaign at Reese AFB will get underway today and continue through this month with the aim to sign up all military and civilian personnel at the base on a voluntary basis.

Project officer for the month-long drive at Reese is Lt. Col. Elmer L. Tuck, wing comptroller. Project officers have been named for all units on the base.

The campaign has the wholehearted support of all command levels.

In a letter to major commanders, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. John D. Ryan asked that personal contact be made with each Air Force member affording "the opportunity to take advantage of the new higher interest rate on Savings Bonds by starting a Bond allotment or increasing a present deduction." President Nixon increased the interest rate on Series E and H Savings Bonds to 5 per cent in December, retroactive to June 1, 1969. At that time General Ryan said the more competitive interest figure should add impetus to Air Force participation in Savings Bond purchases.

Earlier, Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr., praised Savings Bonds as an investment "backed and managed by the United States Government."

In a letter to all units at Reese AFB, dated April 21, 1970, Col. Clyde J. Morganti, wing commander, stated in part: "The Air Force 'kicks off' this year's 'Take Stock In America' U.S. Savings Bond Campaign on May 1, 1970. We have been asked to make this campaign the most successful ever within ATC. We resolve not only to do this, but to complete our campaign at Reese by May 28, 1970 . . ."

The colonel added: "I fully expect that every effort will be made to present a positive picture of the advantages of investing in U.S. Savings Bonds, emphasizing this year's slogan 'Take Stock In America.'" Accordingly, I urge each commander to give enthusiastic leadership and support to the 1970 campaign and I expect Reese AFB to exceed last year's very fine showing in U.S. Savings Bond Program participation."

Last year's campaign resulted in 282 Reesites signing up for U.S. Savings Bonds.

Colonel Tuck is asking the cooperation of all base personnel during the bond drive in an effort to meet or exceed last year's results.

Senate Bill #435, an act of the 61st State Legislature, allows parents the option of applying for a transfer for their children from one Texas public school district to another Texas public school district.

According to Bill Parker of the Lubbock Public School System, these applications are to be made with the superintendent of schools of the receiving district. All regular applications must be made before June 1, 1970. Hardship applications may be made between June 1 and Oct. 1, 1970. The superintendent of school's office is located at 1628 19th St.

Former Reesite Will Replace Retiring Col. Hosler As DCM

Reese AFB will get a new Deputy Commander for Materiel this year, replacing Col. W. W. Hosler Jr., who will retire from the military in late August.

The new DCM will be Col. Claude W. Turner, who arrived at Reese April 15 and is currently serving as assistant DCM. Colonel Turner, a command pilot, came to Reese from Da Nang, Republic of Vietnam, where he was on Air Force Advisory Team Number 1, serving as advisor to the 41st Wing, Vietnamese Air Force.

Colonel Turner previously was assigned to Reese from May 1965, to July 1967. During that time he served as 3500th Organizational Maintenance Squadron commander and in the maintenance control branch. Following his assignment here, the colonel served as chief of maintenance at Moody AFB, Ga., before going to Da Nang.

A graduate of Squadron Officers School, the colonel holds a bachelor of science degree in air science and was trained with United Airlines in the Air Force Institute of Technology's Engineering Maintenance Management (See NEW DCM, Page 8)

FOR THE COMMANDER

Proper Attitude Is Vital Asset

Col. Clyde J. Morganti
Wing Commander

By Maj. John J. Elliff

Definition taken from dictionary: attitude. n. . . . 2. a manner of acting, feeling, or thinking that shows one's disposition, opinion, etc. . . . 4. in aeronautics, the position of an aircraft in relation to a given point of reference . . .

How many pilots, each day here at Reese, have their instructor gently but firmly remind them that the aircraft they presently control is in the wrong attitude? The correction is simple. A small movement on the controls brings the plane back to its proper perspective with good old mother earth. Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could correct the attitude of all our personnel with so little effort?

Why is this intangible subject so important in a person's daily life? I firmly believe it is the single most important factor that distinguishes the professional from the amateur. Without the proper attitude, even the most gifted individual turns out mediocre work. With it, many less fortunate people astound their fellow men. And attitude is catching.

Have you ever worked with someone who could care less how well he accomplished his job? "Good enough for government work!" That one statement typifies the attitude of far too many Air Force troops. Have you ever said it? Of course! Most of us have at one time or another. But too many people mean it sincerely and therein lies the problem of association. Say it long enough and before you know it your values are lowered to this ridiculous phrase. The quality of your work deteriorates.

On the other hand, have you ever worked with anyone who takes the time to do his job the correct way? You know there are many ways to do a job: the fast way, the slow way, the easy way, the hard way, and there's your way and my way. But the only way we should accept is the correct way. There is a tremendous feeling of personal pride and self satisfaction in knowing you did the job correctly, and did it well. Accept nothing less than the best. One man with the proper attitude, particularly if he is a supervisor, can change the course of an entire organization.

There are many fringe benefits to a proper attitude. You can be identified as a professional. And a professional is inherently safe. He is also promoted faster, has more admirers and operates more economically. Be a professional—develop the proper attitude. As you can see from Webster's definition, a person's attitude "shows." Which way is yours showing?

Important Principle

Individual Dignity Worth Much

Our nation was founded on the principle that the individual has infinite dignity and worth. The Department of Defense must always be guided by this principle. In all that we do, we must show respect for the serviceman and civilian employe as a person, recognizing his individual needs, aspirations and capabilities.

The defense of the nation requires a well-trained force, military and civilian, regular and reserve. To provide such a force we must increase the attractiveness of a career in Defense so that the serviceman and the civilian employe will feel the highest pride in himself and work, in the uniform and the military profession.

The attainment of these goals requires that we strive to help each man in uniform bridge the transition from service activity to civilian life.

The Department of Defense is fully aware that the manner in which an individual is treated throughout his years in the service—and, particularly as he nears the end of his career in uniform—is part of the positive attitude-building that can and must be generated by the leaders of and within the military services.

This is part of the reason for such programs as:

Project Transition, primarily for the first-terminer who needs to learn a civilian job skill.

Project Referral, a program to assist men retiring from the military in finding jobs in civilian life.

Project MEDIHC, presently a pilot program in Texas that may eventually include all the states, which is designed to fit medically-qualified servicemen into civilian health agency jobs.

Project Memo, a program to help separating servicemen establish contact with a college or university.

The list goes on and on: early-out programs, to allow for seasonal occupations and school attendance, to include vocational schools; special police and fireman recruiting programs, rehabilitation assistance, and, perhaps the most important of all, the GI Bill.

But, that is possible only when the departing serviceman—whether he is retiring or leaving after his first-hitch—completes the bond between what the program has to offer and the results of his efforts.

The United States Government recognizes that when a veteran has served his country well, it is only right that the government provide the veteran with educational benefits designed to assist him in meeting the challenge of the civilian community.

The foundation for returning to civilian life has been laid by the government. It is up to each individual to determine what he is prepared to contribute toward that foundation. (AFPS)

The benefits that have come to each of us as individuals and to all of us as Americans through our adherence to the rule of law are endless. It is through the processes of law that our Nation has achieved its amazing growth and development in every sphere of human endeavor.

The law does not rule by itself. Citizens administer it; and each citizen must abide by its constraints and accept its responsibilities if the rights, freedoms, opportunities, and protections of all citizens are to be guarded.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, RICHARD NIXON, President of the United States of America, do hereby urge the people of the United States to observe Friday, May 1, 1970, as Law Day in the United States of America with appropriate public ceremonies and by rededication to our form of government and to the supremacy of law in our lives. Especially, I urge the legal profession, the schools and educational institutions, civic and service organizations, all media of public information, and the courts to take the lead in sponsoring and participating in appropriate observances throughout the Nation.

And, as requested by the Congress, I direct the appropriate Government officials to display the flag of the United States on all public buildings on that day.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, I have hereunto set my hand this twenty-ninth day of January, in the year of our Lord nineteen hundred seventy, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred ninety-fourth.

Participation Urged In Nearing State Primary Elections

(An AFNS Editorial)

Many states conduct primary elections in the spring months which are of equal importance with the November general elections.

The major parties select their candidates at the primaries. Competition can be fierce; the issues are real and vital.

Vacancies include positions in city, county and state offices and some in the U.S. Congress.

Primaries are politics at the grassroots level. Voter participation is vital. In addition to selecting candidates, the party platform is formed and views expressed on current issues and policies.

Air Force members are encouraged to participate in their primary elections. Local voting officers have complete information on dates and requirements. Make it a doubly productive visit by requesting an absentee ballot for the November election. Get involved in the system.

Truth In Lending Law Acts As Safeguard To Borrower

(An AFNS Editorial)

American buyers obtained unprecedented consumer protection when Congress passed the "truth in lending" law, requiring loan agencies to spell out interest costs to borrowers and businesses to clarify charges for credit purchases. But a borrower's greatest asset in avoiding credit problems cannot be legislated. It is his common sense.

One of the best means to avoid serious financial problems is to establish and stick to a sound budget. If a loan is needed, first determine the amount that can be repaid monthly.

Compare monthly income with the cost of living. Don't accept approval of the loan application by the finance company as assurance that repayment is within your means.

Examine your motive for a loan. You may borrow for some luxury today and a week later need more money for an emergency. Borrow with restraint.

No one should become complacent about borrowing money. Deal only with reputable agencies, and if uncertain, have the base legal office examine the contract.

But ultimately, the decision and responsibility rests with you, the borrower. Your good judgment is the best safeguard for family financial protection.

Officials Stress Ladder Safety

Make sure your ladder is one of success, safety officials cautioned this week while pointing an alerting finger at the prime users: airmen in the maintenance and supply functions.

Supervisors have a piece of this action, also. Assuring that tools and work aids are safe is a dual responsibility. Both should be aware that disaster stalks the specialist who neglects to check ladders for loose rungs or steps, cracked uprights, loose or missing extension locks and loose hinges.

Slapstick comedy on television may bring a lot of laughs but when the bottom literally comes out from under you, life suddenly becomes hard, humorless, and thought-provoking. (ATCPS)

Physiological Training Open For Civilians

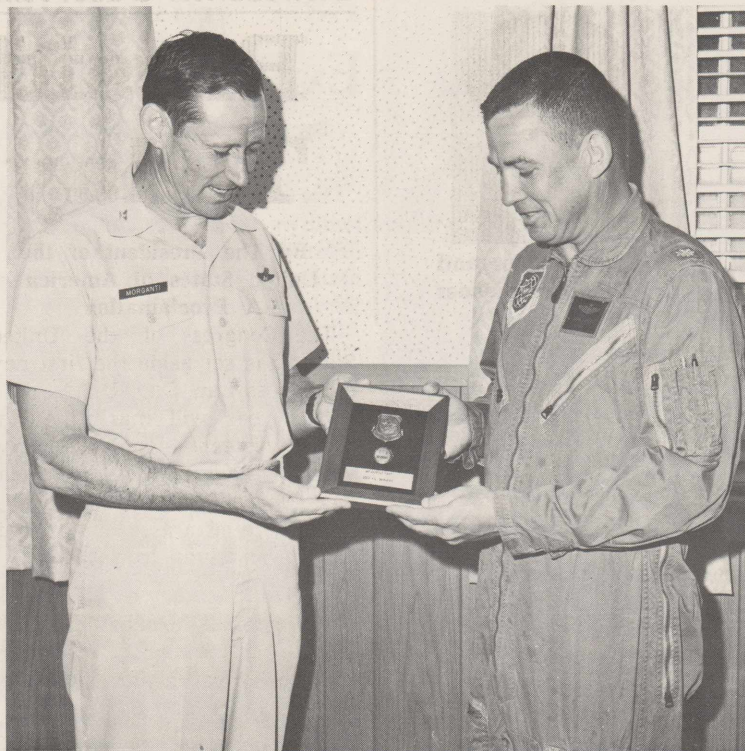

Every Air Force altitude chamber in the country will be available to general aviation pilots tomorrow. In addition, these civilian pilots will receive four hours of classroom instruction on the problems of flight and the effect on the human body.

In coordination with Flying Magazine and the Aerospace Medical Association's General Aviation Safety Subcommittee, the Air Force and Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), have set tomorrow aside to familiarize civilian pilots with physiological effects of flight.

At Reese, more than 30 civilian pilots have signed up for the one day training. The altitude chamber will enable the pilots to experience and observe hypoxia (lack of sufficient oxygen) and rapid decompression.

In addition, the pilots will learn about spatial disorientation, decompression sickness and other human factors of flight which can cause medical problems if not handled properly.

Due to the response of pilots in the local area and throughout the country, the FAA has asked the Air Force to repeat the one-day training program on June 6. Captain William J. Cairney of the Reese Physiological Training Unit says they will be happy to repeat the training. "We have provided training of this type for the FAA before and have found the FAA students to be a highly motivated and cooperative group."

Equal Opportunity Conference Concludes Three-Day Session

RANDOLPH AFB, Tex. (ATC-PS) — A three-day world-wide Equal Opportunity Conference ended April 23 at the USAF Military Personnel Center, here.

Hosted by Lt. Gen. A. J. Russell, Air Force deputy chief of staff, Personnel, the conferees discussed present and future actions to insure equal opportunity and treatment of Air Force members.

General Russell's guests at the conclave included John L. McLucas, under Secretary of the Air Force; James P. Goode, deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Personnel Policy; and Lt. Gen. Sam Maddux Jr., commander, Air Training Command.

Mr. Goode opened the conference by commenting that equal and just treatment of personnel, regardless of race, color, religion or national origin, is an established principle of effective personnel management.

Topics for the first day of activity were the Military Equal Opportunity Program, Equal Opportunity in Housing and the Housing Referral Office, Inter-Service Task Force on Education and Race Relations, Personal Appearance and Dissent and the Procurement and Assignment Process.

The second day of the meeting was devoted to panel discussions comprised of six to eight members each.

Lackland AFB Commander To Retire

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. (ATC-PS) — Maj. Gen. G. B. Greene Jr., commander of Lackland Military Training Center, is scheduled to retire from active duty Aug. 1.

General Greene's retirement will end a 35-year career that began when he was commissioned a reserve second lieutenant in June 1935.

A native of South Carolina and a graduate of Clemson University, General Greene completed flying training and received his pilot wings at Kelly Field, Tex., in January 1938. Commanding Lackland since July 1967, General Greene has been responsible for the operation of one of the largest installations in the Air Force in addition to directing the wide-range training conducted at the base.

MPC Gives Warning On Permissive TDY

A message from the U.S. Air Force Military Personnel Center, Randolph AFB, Tex., warns against the use of permissive temporary duty unless it be of a quasi-official nature, and is of primary benefit to the Air Force.

The message states: "Requests for permissive temporary duty to attend conventions of the NCO Association and similar, social fraternal or patriotic organizations are not considered quasi-official and will not be approved."

Law Day is not a "lawyers day," but rather an occasion to inform citizens of the role of law in American life.

Leading off the week's action will be "The Last Escape." The World War II drama stars Steward Whitman and has an audience suitability rating of GP (all ages admitted with parental discretion advised).

Tomorrow's matinee will be "Paper Lion," an intriguing look at the world of professional football. The film stars Alan Alda and Lauren Hutton and is rated GP.

Rosanna Schiaffino, John Richardson and Mara Cruz star in the story of a nun caught in the Congo's violent struggle for independence which will be featured tomorrow night. The picture, titled "A Nun At The Crossroads," is rated GP.

Sunday's feature will be the hard-hitting action-drama "Bullitt." Steve McQueen plays the title role in this story of an off-beat cop. Also starring in the GP-rated film are Robert Vaughn and Jacqueline Bisset.

Dan Rowan and Dick Martin bring the "bippiest" comedy ever to the theater Tuesday in "The Maltese Bippy." The film is a zany story of nudie film makers who move into a house with a cemetery on one side and a family of werewolves on the other. Carol Lynley and Julie Newmar are also featured in the

New Method Proposed To Select Golf Team

Reese AFB's representatives to the Air Training Command Golf Tournament will be picked only after a complicated system of playing involving tournaments and regular rounds—plus challenges based on the so-called "ladder" system.

The new method comes on the heels of opposition to a regular base-wide tournament, usually played over a two-week period, that had the medalists (top five) representing the base in open play. The opposition was based on the fact that perhaps one or more of the base's best golfers could not—due to duty, leaves, etc.—play in the tournament, leaving them out in the cold.

The new system is still being worked out, but it will be based on a number of scores turned in for the specific purpose of establishing a spot on the ladder. After the required number of scores are turned in, the place on the ladder is established—and it may be challenged by other golfers.

For instance, if a golfer establishes himself in the number six spot on the ladder, after say 20 scores are turned in, he may challenge for the next higher, or the number five spot, or the one above that, the number four spot, but no higher than two spots above his own ranking. He will then play a head-up match with the holder of that spot in an attempt to displace him. Should he win, he will hold that spot until displaced.

The holders of the rungs on the ladder will be used in composing golf teams at Reese. For instance, a five man team would take the first five on the ladder while the first eight would play in eight-man matches.

The establishment of the ladder system is hoped to qualify more people with unusual working hours, such as instructor pilots, for ratings on the golf team. In the past, where a single tournament has determined the five-man open team, IP's have complained that their particular working hours prohibited their playing.

The matter was being ironed out at a meeting of the Reese AFB Golf Council Tuesday—past the Roundup's deadline.

OPPOSING CAPTAINS—Capt. Jamie Gough, captain of the Reese AFB golf team, left, and Lt. Col. Thomas DiFloure, who captained the Webb AFB, Tex., team go through a bit of by-play just before teeing off April 24 at the base golf course in a match pitting Reese golfers against Webb golfers. Reese won the match, 27 points to 9 points, to gain a measure of revenge against losing to Webb last year. (U.S. Air Force Photo)

Another first place trophy went to her sister, Debbie DeRosa, for Western Equitation. Debbie, 10, was the youngest rider in this event for 17-year-olds and younger. She also won two ribbons.

Other members of the DeRosa family in the show included Sergeant DeRosa, one ribbon, his wife, Dorli, two ribbons, and his son, Mike, four ribbons.

OLD FRIEND—Sgt. Bass J. Shelton, 2053rd Communications Squadron, compares a later model aircraft with an "old friend" he ran into at Reese AFB—the B-25, which now is a static display at the main gate at Reese, and in which he took his instrument check ride back in 1957 while at Reese. See story at right. (U.S. Air Force Photo)

2053rd Comm. Sq. Sergeant Meets Friend

Sgt. Bass J. Shelton, an air traffic controller with the 2053rd Communications Squadron at Reese AFB ran into an old acquaintance on the base recently — and he might not have recognized her except that her tail had a familiar look.

The "tail" belonged to the B-25 aircraft which is now a static display at the main gate of the base. On his way to work one day, Sergeant Shelton noticed that the tail number on the B-25—#46880—looked very familiar. After checking his pilot logs, Sergeant Shelton's suspicions were confirmed. While in pilot training at Reese in 1957, he had flown his instrument check ride in Number 46880.

Since then he has flown the B-47, B-52B and the C-130E, amassing 5,684 total hours, including 586 combat hours.

Sergeant Shelton retrained into the Air Traffic Control career field in May 1969, and is now a tower controller.

Reese Hospital Mission Is Explained

By Bobbi Lord
Roundup Staff Writer

The base hospital is always busy. At almost any given time of the day people can be seen waiting for shots, examinations, pills and other services.

There is however, a broad misconception among military people that the primary function of base hospitals is providing dependent care. Although dependents are cared for as extensively as possible, the first and foremost job of the 3500th USAF

Hospital is to support the mission of Reese. This mission is to train Air Force pilots and requires a close working relationship between the hospital and the flight line.

The assistance which the hospital provides to the base mission goes beyond having ambulances at the scene of emergency landings or providing DNIF (duty not involving flying) slips to pilots. Through the Life Support Working Group/Aeromedical Supervisory Staff, assistance is given to all operational units of the base. This includes the maintenance, improvement, checking and rechecking of all equipment and techniques used in the base flying program.

Jobs Are Varied

The jobs performed by the group are varied, and must encompass the study of all aspects of aircrew and passenger safety; whether in flight, on the ground, in a parachute or in the classroom. For example, the group must evaluate any suggestions concerning life support equipment. They must discover its merits as well as its faults. They must familiarize themselves with the differences in procedure the equipment will necessitate, the possible complications it could cause, and the added safety it will provide.

Before introducing any new equipment to students and pilots, the committee must assure that the equipment and methods will not only sustain a crew member or passenger during normal flight, but also afford him protection in situations of ground egress, crash landing, or ditching.

Investigates Aircraft Accidents

Another job of the Aeromedical Services Committee is the investigation of aircraft accidents. In trying to find the cause of an accident, they delve into every aspect of the flight. The type of mission, flying hours of the IP and the student, an opinion or evaluation of their flying ability, physical condition and health of the pilots, speculation of what each man was doing in the cockpit at the time of impact, are all considered. They also study weather conditions, instrument lighting, and location of tissue, equipment and aircraft parts, in an attempt to find the cause of the accident.

Following the investigation, the committee makes recommendations on safety measures which could be provided to help prevent further accidents of this type.

Air Training Command (ATC) requires the Life Support Working Group to meet at least once each quarter. At Reese this group felt a need to establish a subcommittee (Aeromedical Services) which meets twice per month. Lt. Col. Richard C. Fontaine, chief of the physiological training unit at Reese, feels that these semi-monthly meetings allow each member to identify his organization's problems as the need arises. The committee includes representatives from Wing Safety, Maintenance, Rescue, Aeromedical Services and both flying units.

Committee Has Many Functions

The Aeromedical Services Committee encompasses all aspects of aircrew and passenger training. They provide medical services and physiological training, insure standard procedures in the use of current and new aircraft life support equipment, and review and evaluate all technical requirements.

Delivering babies and passing out pills may seem to many the primary function of the hospital. But although dependent care is an important fringe benefit to the military family, it is not the main concern of the hospital.

The link which the Aeromedical Services Committee provides between the hospital and the flight line helps insure the safety of every pilot and student on base. They provide an integral and very important support program to the primary mission of Reese—the comprehensive, effective and safe training of pilots.

Reese Girl Scouts Set Awards Night

Reese AFB girl scouts will meet Monday night in the Community House for their annual Girl Scout Court of Awards, according to Mrs. F. H. Kalmes, chairman.

The meeting, set for 7 p.m., will be a highlight of the year for the girls as they will receive the badges and awards earned over the past year. In addition to the award ceremonies, the program will include a speaker, although his identity had not been revealed by the Roundup deadline.

Everyone is invited to the event and refreshments will be served.

Well, spring has come and the brooks are babbling, especially Capt. Bob Brooks and his wife, Patricia, about their newest addition, Michele Lynn. Captain Brooks is all smiles since joining the proud father ranks, obviously undaunted by early morning feedings and diapers.

A Flight must have drawn two winning tickets in the instructor pilot door prize contest, for as soon as they walked in the door, Captains Donald L. Pocock and Carl A. Smith were ushered off to work. Captain Smith and his wife, Christa, hail from North Olmsted, Ohio, while Captain Pocock, traveling unaccompanied, calls Jokomis, Ill., his home. His first duty was reportedly a briefing from Capt. John Agnew on the rigors of bachelor life in the Hub city.

C Flight has managed to pry Capt. Edward L. Sykes away from A Flight and initiate him into the legion of the Black Scarf. Captain Sykes, a former Thud driver, was getting his 25 hours of post solo with A Flight prior to his combat tour with C Flight. He is here with his wife, Mary Kay, and two children.

Not wanting to be left out, F Flight is welcoming Capt. Roger K. Stauffer and his wife, Vicky.

D Flight recently presented its wives' orientation for the wives of Class 71-05, Section II. The girls were treated to a sample daily briefing, a visit to the flight line and a look at the altitude chamber. They also witnessed (or covered their eyes during) live action shots on location, as fearless husbands made repeated attacks on the mobile control unit. As a tribute to this fine show (and also, I suspect, to keep their guide, 1st Lt. Charles J. Kowalchuk, from talking so much) the girls presented D Flight with some of the best cookies and cakes ever seen in the squadron.

Mentioned In Passing

Capt. George D'Angelo has recently completed a graduate course in government and will now be expected to govern himself accordingly . . . Watch out for the little one! Capt. Larry E. Cary is back from Squadron Officers School . . . First Lt. Charles Lutz announced that he has chosen the Continent (European) as "the" place to go for leave this May. Lucky dogs, these single lads. But remember lieutenant, "Do not pack fuel into the tweet." . . . Last week's quoteworthy individual was 1st Lt. Grant Hachman, who is beginning to feel like 1st Lt. "Grunt" Hachmann after all the M-16 training 1st Lt. James Kennedy, general military training officer, has scheduled for him . . . Quote of this week: "I don't understand . . . Remember, during the current election period, that as a military man you can't run for office, but you can run for your life. AEROBICS! ! !"

Fighter pilots will have girls. On the last day that Capt. Daniel P. Kullenback had a pilot Air Force specialty code, his wife decided to have a baby. You guessed it, she had a girl. He did not catch the stork soon enough to tell him to wait one day.

According to reliable sources, Dianne Campbell gave a free-loading party. For those who did not get to go, you missed some good barbecue chicken and Alkaltzer.

Capt. John E. Richardson II has signed in. He will be departing soon for Tyndall AFB, Fla. We will see him in about three months.

Capt. James J. Demilita, after a disappointment last month, will be taking an F-5 across the little pond May 8. We all hope that he will make it this time.

Capt. James C. Lessig, our instructor pilot of the month, has left us to go to Squadron Officers School. I am sure he will enjoy the physical training and the marching to class. After all, nothing is too good for our instructor pilot of the month.

The wives of C-Flight hosted a welcoming party for Class 71-06, Section I April 23, at the home of Mrs. Pratt D. Ashworth. Mrs. Ashworth presented the late award, which for those of you who weren't there, happened to be a toy watch, to Mrs. Larry V. Girton. Mrs. Girton, did it really have a snail in it?

The wives of D-Flight hosted a welcoming coffee for the wives of 71-05 on April 23, at the home of Mrs. Jack Francis. Say girls, did you really serve wine coolers?

F-Flight met in the home of Mrs. Leo Hunt April 20. The wives are making plans for their welcoming coffee for Class 71-06, Section II. The F Flight wives now not only have to contend with the black scarves of C Flight's instructor pilots, but also with the white hats their wives are now wearing—they have already had their welcoming coffee.

Pinkie's Pantry Patter

By 2nd Lt. Alan D. Harrel

Class 71-07 was treated to its official, formal welcome to Reese AFB April 24, as members of the class attended the Commander's Welcome at the Officers Club. It was an occasion enjoyed by all present, as members of the class had their first opportunity to meet and know many of the ranking officers on base in a most congenial social atmosphere. Class 71-07 would like to thank Col. Clyde J. Morganti, his staff and their wives for an enjoyable evening.

Not quite as elegant, but equally as promising has been the flying phase of 71-07's hatching stage at Reese. Most of us thought that the appendages at the ends of our arms were hands, but now we know they are just two more left feet as we attempt those maneuvers in the T-41. Our instructors were right when they told us the T-41's were forgiving, now if we could only convince them to be the same! If all goes well, however, solos will begin next week and 71-07 will have achieved its first step towards those silver wing.
