

Reese Air Power Room Built Mainly By Students Officially Opens

Several months of spare time work by student pilots of the 3500th Pilot Training Group at Reese came to an end last Saturday with the official dedication of the new Air Power Building by Col. James A. Gunn III, wing commander.

With the words, "I declare this the Student Squadron Air Power Building," Col. Gunn was handed a pair of scissors by Lt. Col. Charles W. Merritt, commander, Student Squadron, with which he snipped the gold ribbon at the building's entrance.

The library and lounge areas are furnished for the most part with furniture made by student pilots during the past nine months.

Under the leadership of project officer Capt. Donald R. Garrett and other officer training instructors, the students built eight coffee tables, a large book case, a room divider bench, and a display case for trophies and other special interest items. The glass-fronted trophy case covers one whole end of the lounge. Also, a bulletin board and a bunk for the student officer of the day were made and installed along with mahogany paneling and two big display maps.

Funds for purchasing the materials and other items of furniture came from prize monies won by the students at Air Training Command sports tournaments.

Capt. Garrett estimated the cost of the entire operation at $1000.

Besides providing a place for the student to study and relax in a quiet atmosphere away from the demanding activities of his training schedule, the building will serve as a reception center and "... student motivational center."

Displays centered around Air Force commands, airplanes, weapons systems, medals, the USMJ, and other items are expected to guide the young officer in planning his career and setting his professional standards.

The Air Power Library has available all reference manuals used at the Air War College, the Command and Staff College and the Squadron Officers School.

Other publications include all "Dash Ones," or operational manuals, on aircraft currently in use by the Air Force, base directives, and books written by leading Air Force authorities.

The project was begun under a previous squadron commander, Maj. Ben S. Gibson, although most of the work on the building was completed under Lt. Col. Merritt.

After the dedication refreshments were served to the approximately 200 wives and student officers who attended the opening ceremonies.

June 8 Date Aqua Villa Opening Day

The long awaited opening of Aqua Villa at Buffalo Lakes is tentatively set for June 8, with formal ceremonies being planned for the day.

All major work on the recreation area has been completed except construction of the boat launching ramp, said Col. Richard A. Steele, Air Base Group commander. He said engineers are expected to have this work finished by the opening day.

Construction of Aqua Villa has been underway many weeks and followed negotiations covering more than a year. The area includes a recreational building, with lounge, boat storage space, equipment area and snack bar. Outside are grassy slopes for basking and a patio.

A parking area for Reese automobiles has been constructed atop the hill overlooking the lake and villa and trails wind down to the lake level. The Aqua Villa area, under lease, will be used exclusively by Reese families.

Much equipment which can be used by base people is on hand at the villa.

Bid Opening Set For New Nursery, Updated Runways

Bids for the construction of a new nursery, and repair work on roads and runways at Reese are now being accepted by the base procurement office.

Estimated value of the proposed construction is $25,000. Bids will be accepted until 2 p.m. June 24.

Three separate contracts will be let for the road and runway improvements. The first will provide for the reclamation of approximately 200,000 square yards of asphaltic-concrete surface at the Reese Auxiliary Airfield. The work will include spray application of petroleum oil and resin emulsions. Bids will be accepted on this project until 2:30 p.m., June 4.

Another job will deal with the seal coating of approximately 123,334 square yards of runway pavement. Last date for bids is June 4, at 2 p.m.

Valued at $50,000, the last of the three pavement contracts will provide for the resealing of joints and cracks in concrete pavement on the base. All bids must be in by 2 p.m., June 7.

LOOKS AT MAINTENANCE — Maj. Gen. Henry K. Mooney III, wing commander, and Maj. Clark Dufield, periodic maintenance officer, as they look over a training plane.

Zuckert Praises Military For 'Dedication'

OMAHA, Neb. (AFNS) — Praising "today's military man" for vision and dedication, Air Force Secretary Eugene M. Zuckert told an audience at the Omaha Chamber of Commerce Military Affairs Committee annual dinner that leadership in the Air Force particularly insures that the United States will never have to "rely on the weapons of the last war to fight the next one."

The Secretary recalled that "even before World War II ended, the Army Air Forces began to work on guided missiles" and after the war, the new United States Air Force started work on ballistic missiles "but had to cancel the program in 1947 for lack of funds."

He told the group that in 1951, "before the thermonuclear breakthrough" the following year, the Air Force let "a contract that led to work on the Atlas ICBM." Military men during this period developed the weapon system concept and the concept of concurrency, managing simultaneously "the many facets of missile development, test site construction and deployment at a couple of dozen bases in 18 states ... building three different ICBM systems in seven basic configurations ... using hundreds of contractors, more than 30 labor unions and more than 400,000 people."

The payoff, Secretary Zuckert said, was operational status for the Atlas in 5.2 years; the Titan in 5.8 years and the Minuteman in 4 years from the time of program approval.

In the case of the Minuteman, he said, the 100th missile was operational only five years after the first contract was signed.

The secretary said that the "military departments often run ahead of the civilian economy in the introduction of management techniques." He cited Gen. Edwin W. Ralings, the Air Force's first comptroller, who in 1948 "provided the leadership to bring in the first computer to be used in defense programming."

Zuckert singled out for particular praise Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Curtis E. LeMay and Strategic Air Command's Gen. Thomas S. Power, both of whom are well known to his Omaha audience. Both men "exemplify the finest qualities of the United States military man," he said. He added that the two generals were "experienced, versatile, practical, responsible, dedicated and far-seeing. Their experience, knowledge and calm resolution contribute the kind of strength we need in these trying times," he said.

The Secretary described the American military man of the 1960s as "shaped by our institutions and controlled by his understanding of these institutions, by our governmental checks and balances, by our free press and by the Congress."

"Some of these military men you know," he said, "are air crew members and support personnel working 70 to 80 hours a week — sometimes even longer."

He noted the separations of military families "for long periods of time" in Strategic and Tactical Air Commands and the Military Air Transport Service.

Quoting Andre Malraux's tribute to the United States as "the only nation that has waged war but not worshipped it, that has won the greatest power in the world but not sought it and hoping that America would continue to inspire men with dreams worthy of its action," Secretary Zuckert concluded with his hope that the United States would "continue to inspire military men with actions worthy of its dreams."

ATC Officer Takes Brief Look At Base

Reese activities received close scrutiny of Maj. Gen. Henry K. Mooney, vice commander of Air Training Command, as the general piloted a T-29 to the base, received briefings and toured many areas Tuesday.

Briefing on the flying training process was given by Col. Roscoe B. Woodruff Jr., Pilot Training Group commander. The general and his party visited Hangar P-82 to look at maintenance work and to study particularly on-the-job training in the M&S Group.

He chatted with MSgt. Charles Gray, OJT supervisor, to learn details of the training program, and while passing through the hangar also talked with maintenance men.

General Mooney made an extensive tour of the base, studying every area he passed.

In the pilot training area he visited several minutes with two student officers, Second Lieutenants David M. Siltanen and Michael P. Medlock, members of Class 64-C. He was interested in how they liked the T-38 Talon, just entering the training area, and spoke highly of the trainer. He obtained general reaction to the training program from the young officers.

"As I toured with Gen. Mooney, I was highly pleased with the appearance of Reese, the conduct of all personnel and every aspect of the base activity which showed we are carrying on as professionals," said Col. James A. Gunn III, wing commander.

Accompanying Gen. Mooney was Col. A. K. Breckenridge, deputy chief of staff for materiel, and other ATC officers.

M&S NCO's Make Master

Tomorrow 106 Reese airmen will wear new stripes as their promotions to a higher rank under the June quota.

The list was swelled to 106 when Tech Sergeants Joseph F. Bloomer and Willard J. Burgy, both of M&S, were notified of selection to master sergeant. Names of 104 promotees were announced last week.

Sergeant Bloomer, resident of New Jersey, has been in service 20 years and served in Alaska and Europe, as well as the United States. He came to Reese from Chanute AFB.

Sergeant Burgy NCOIC of aircraft scheduling, has been in service 17 years and came to Reese from overseas. He has been stationed in Africa and Europe.

Supply Officer Ends Long Career

Major John J. McConkey of the 3500th Maintenance and Supply Group at Reese has retired from the Air Force after more than 20 years' service.

The materiel control officer with the group until his retirement, Maj. McConkey came to Reese in August, 1960, from Japan where he was commander of the 6143rd Supply Squadron at Itazuke AB.

Born in Wadsworth, Ohio, in 1917, Maj. McConkey graduated from Sharon High School, Sharon Center, Ohio, in 1934. He attended the Akron, Ohio, Business College for two years.

Major McConkey holds the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Air Medal and the Air Force Commendation Medal. He has a total of over six years overseas service in Japan, Germany and North Africa.

NEW MASTERS — The two Reese NCO's who become master sergeants Saturday receive congratulations from their group commander, Col. Joseph Payne. TSgt. Joseph Bloomer shakes hands with the colonel as TSgt. Willard Burgy looks on.

Workers Get Service Pins

Eight employees of Reese Air Force Base who have served the Federal government 20 or more years Monday were presented 20-year service pins in ceremonies in the office of Col. Roscoe B. Woodruff, Jr., commander of the Pilot Training Group.

Recipients of the pins were Jack L. Browder, engine test cell; Delbert E. Stone, aircraft repair; Roy W. McNeese, hydraulic shop; Dessie R. Mears, parachute shop; Alyse M. Kahn, radio shop; Tolaver S. Newman, fire department; Ralph H. Bradford, automotive maintenance; and Bill B. Faulkner, fire department.

Col. Woodruff, in making the presentation, congratulated each employee.

Eight other Reese employees received 10-year pins, with presentation by their immediate supervisors.

Awarded 10-year pins were Alfred O. Zeman and Chester Dean, field maintenance; Joe Greer, civil engineering; Raymond A. Forster, petroleum oils and lubrication; Deloris Collins, military personnel; Henry Ussery, film library; Lillie M. Ivey, Hospital; and Carl Norris, automotive maintenance.

Commander's Comments...

By COL. JAMES A. GUNN III
Wing Commander

"Everyone appears extremely mission-conscious, which is necessary for the successful, effective accomplishment of our primary object. In this regard, I consider discipline in all its aspects to be the underlying factor in determining the success of an organization."

You may recall that this observation appeared here last July, shortly after my arrival. Since then, we have continued to accomplish our mission in the professional manner for which the 3500th Pilot Training Wing is well known. The key to our success has been, and will continue to be, self-discipline.

There is more to self-discipline than wearing a neat uniform, being punctual and carrying out orders. Self-discipline must be maintained by the individual and be generated from the supervisor through his subordinates. Making sure the job is done perfectly and to the best of one's ability; making sure all procedures are well known, assuring that one's subordinates are professional in every aspect—all this and more is involved.

Self-discipline in a professional means he is satisfied with nothing less than excellence. It means he leaves nothing to chance. It means he is continually aggressive, full of initiative and never permits his standards to relax.

In a business such as ours, where human life actually depends upon the ability, knowledge and self discipline of members of an organization, we cannot afford to relax, slip or coast for even an instant. The gamble is just too great.

President Supports Pay Increases

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—President John F. Kennedy submitted his federal employee pay proposal which would give classified employees a supplemental pay increase averaging $322 or 4.7 per cent annually. This increase is in addition to the second phase of a pay raise granted by Congressional action in 1962 which goes into effect next January.

The President's pay proposal would give employees an increase ranging from 2.2 per cent for those in GS-3 to 27.5 per cent for GS-18s.

Meanwhile, the Senate Armed Services Committee continued to study the contents of HR 5555, recently passed by the House of Representatives, for the first military pay hike since 1958.

Talent Winners In ATC Contests

The four Reese men who carried off first place prizes in three different categories from the District 'A' ATC talent contest earlier this month are back at Sheppard AFB today participating in the ATC Conference talent contest.

If they win today's competition, they will be eligible for the Air Force world-wide contest at Edward's AFB, Calif.

Second Lieutenant Vernon Hodgden is entered in the instrumental solo category; A3C Vincent Benjamin in the vocal solo and, along with A3C Lester Grant the specialty group category.

The men are expected to appear in Command Performance 1961' which will tour all ATC bases later in the year.

Parson-to-Person Chaplain Decries Fading Of Faith In God's Power

By Chaplain Wayne L. Stork
In the lives of multitudes fundamental religious faith is in eclipse. There seems little that is steadfastly believed. To be sure, spires are lifted to the skies, but what of men's souls to God.

Our generation has been so busy finding flaws in ancient creeds that often it seems that the "baby has been thrown out with the bath." Open-mindedness has been so exalted and extolled that the mind is often kept open at both ends, with no convictions finding lodgment between. Today, vital beliefs about God and man are fighting for their lives in confused minds.

The contemporary scene is full of dedicated people who, instead of trusting with child-like dependence a power outside themselves, think they can blow on their own hands and lift themselves up by their own boot straps.

In our living, we confess our faith by the things we put first. And today, our faith is often so dim because of the way we live.

The only thing that can save the soul of modern man is a belief in the mighty power of god. Only a renewal of faith can burn away the barriers blocking the way to brotherhood. Our faded faith will flame anew when from the heart there is offered and answered the prayer: "O Lord, take the dimness of my soul away."

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — The Air Force announced it will withdraw its KC-97 refueling aircraft from the Canadian Air Bases at Churchill and Frobisher this summer with personnel and equipment being phased out during the summer.

Reese Wins Third Place

Reese has been awarded third place in Category II competition in the annual contest to designate the outstanding library publicity contest. The category is for bases with less than 7,000 population.

Randolph took first place and Moody second. In Category I, bases of more than 7,000 population, Lowry was the winner, Shepard second and Chanute third.

Reese receives $150 for third place and may use the money for library projects up and above normal budgeting.

Scrapbooks entered in the ATC contest by the winners, including the Reese book prepared by Mrs. Helen K. Fuller, librarian, represented base library publicity campaigns for the past year. All six winning books were entered in the Air Force-wide publicity award contest.

Reese People Aid Memorial Services

Reese participated in Memorial Day Services in Lubbock and Brownfield Thursday.

Chaplain James D. Taylor was the speaker for the morning services sponsored by the American Legion in Lubbock city cemetery. The Air Police color guard also participated in the service.

Chaplain Wayne Stork delivered the Memorial Day address at Brownfield in services held downtown and at the city cemetery.

Summer Safety Program Opened

The summer safety program at Reese is under way with unit commanders urged to direct safety in every field. Emphasis also is being placed on the three major holiday weekends; Memorial Day, Independence Day and Labor Day.

Colonel James A. Gunn III, wing commander, has directed that in the traffic safety field emphasis be on trip planning, highway hypnosis, fatigue, defensive driving and counseling of all persons going on trips.

All persons going on trips will be briefed on action expected of them prior to leaving the base for holidays. Special programs will be offered on the base each holiday weekend.

Safety in all recreational and sports activities also is expected of all personnel — in intramural sports, water sports, hiking and camping.

"Through teamwork, I am confident that we will enjoy a safe summer," Col. Gunn said.

CHOSEN — Barbara Mangum, daughter of Capt. and Mrs. James Mangum of Reese, was chosen "Most Beautiful Girl" of Frenship High School's senior class. She is shown here with Mike Burgamy of Carlisle, the "Most Handsome Boy" of the class.
