

Two receive nation's top military award

President Ford presents Medals of Honor to former prisoners of war

WASHINGTON (AFNS) - The Nation's highest decoration, the Medal of Honor, was presented to two Air Force officers March 4 at the White House.

The medals were awarded to Col. George E. Day, vice commander of the 33rd Tactical Fighter Wing, Eglin AFB, Fla., and posthumously to Capt. Lance P. Sijan. Captain Sijan's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Sijan, accepted his medal from President Ford.

Both men were awarded the Medal of Honor for "conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity in action at the risk of life above and beyond the call of duty" while in captivity in North Vietnam. Captain Sijan died in captivity on Jan. 22, 1968.

Colonel Day's citation reads as follows: "On Aug. 26, 1967, Colonel (then Major) Day was forced to eject from his aircraft over North Vietnam when it was hit by ground fire. His right arm was broken in three places, and his left knee was badly sprained. He was immediately captured by hostile forces and taken to a prison camp where he was interrogated and severely tortured. After causing the guards to relax their vigilance, Colonel Day escaped into the jungle and began to trek toward South Vietnam. Despite injuries inflicted by fragment of a bomb or rocket, he continued southward, surviving only on a few berries and uncooked frogs. He successfully evaded enemy patrols and reached the Ben Hai River where he encountered United States artillery barrages. With the aid of a bamboo log float, Colonel Day swam across the river and entered the demilitarized zone. Due to delirium, he lost his sense of direction and wandered aimlessly for several days. After several unsuccessful attempts to signal United States aircraft, he was ambushed and recaptured by the Viet Cong, sustaining gunshot wounds to his left hand and thigh. He was returned to the prison from which he had escaped and later was moved to Hanoi after giving his captors false information to questions put before him. Physically, Colonel Day was totally debilitated and unable to perform even the simplest task for himself. Despite his many injuries, he continued to offer maximum resistance. His personal bravery in the face of deadly enemy pressure was significant in saving the lives of fellow aviators who were still flying against the enemy.

"Colonel Day's conspicuous gallantry and intrepidity at the risk of his life above and beyond the call of duty are in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Air Force and reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Captain Sijan's citation reads: "While on a flight over North Vietnam on Nov. 9, 1967, Captain Sijan ejected from his disabled aircraft and successfully evaded capture for more than six weeks. During this time, he was seriously injured and suffered from shock and extreme weight loss due to lack of food. After being captured by North Vietnamese soldiers, Captain Sijan was taken to a holding point for subsequent transfer to a prisoner-of-war camp. In his emaciated and crippled condition, he overpowered one of his guards and crawled into the jungle, only to be recaptured after several hours. He was then transferred to another prison camp where he was kept in solitary confinement and interrogated at length. During interrogation, he was severely tortured; however, he did not divulge any information to his captors. Captain Sijan lapsed into delirium and was placed in the care of another prisoner. During his intermittent periods of consciousness until his death, he never complained of his physical condition and on several occasions, spoke of future escape attempts."

Captain Sijan's extraordinary heroism and intrepidity above and beyond the call of duty at the cost of his life are in keeping with the highest traditions of the United States Air Force and reflect great credit upon himself and the Armed Forces of the United States."

Both men have distinguished Air Force careers.

After he was shot down over North Vietnam, Colonel Day spent 67 months as a prisoner of war (PW). Colonel Day was the only PW to escape from a prison in North Vietnam and then be recaptured by the Viet Cong in the South. He holds nearly 60 military decorations and awards, of which more than 40 are for combat.

He is married to the former Doris Merlene Sorensen of Sioux City. They have four children: Steven, 20; George, 13; Sandra, 11; and Sonja, 11.

Captain Sijan was born April 13, 1942, in Milwaukee, Wis. He received a Bachelor of Science degree from the United States Air Force Academy, Colo., in June 1965. He served on active duty from June 9, 1965, until his death on Jan. 22, 1968.

He was listed as missing in action Nov. 9, 1967. On April 23, 1974, the Air Force officially changed his status to killed in action.

Captian Sijan has been awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross, Air Medal with five oak leaf clusters, and Purple Heart with one oak leaf cluster.

He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Sijan.

Fewer flying hours affects cockpit jobs

Washington (AFNS) - Continuing reductions in the flying hour program are causing problems for both Air Force flyers and personnel managers.

Since 1969, flying hours have been cut by 60 per cent and the number of available cockpit seats has been reduced by half. The impact of these reductions has been severe.

In 1969, a young pilot could expect to be in a line unit, or fill a command or staff job which required flying, for about 15 of his first 18 years of service. Today the young pilot can expect to fill an operational flying position about 10 of the first 18 years. Additionally, he will fly at a reduced rate while in the flying jobs.

The rapid reductions in available crew positions, coupled with problems in rapidly cutting back long lead time flying training programs, have resulted in some rated overages. As a result, the Air Force now has line units temporarily overmanned with young pilots who, because of reduced flying hours, are gaining flying experience at a somewhat slower rate.

Alternatives

Forty per cent of today's pilot inventory has less than five years rated service. Air Force and major command managers have studied alternatives and are recommending several new initiatives to ease the problem.

The initiatives fall into three broad categories: (A) Increasing experience levels in all aircraft system; (B) creating a more stable force; and (C) insuring that all pilots and navigators have an equal chance to fly during their careers.

The issue of experience is a long-range problem, Air Force officials say. Although the Air Force now has sufficient rated experience, this experience was built during the 1960's. With a surplus of young (Continued on page 9)

Reese is tops again. For the second straight year the 64th Flying Training Wing has earned the ATC TOPS trophy. This trophy is awarded by ATC to the UPT base with the best flying safety record over a one-year period.

While we did not have an aircraft accident during 1975, several other UPT bases were also accident free. To break the tie, ATC based their selection on the wing with the highest number of flying hours since their last accident.

We suffered our last flying accident in January 1973 when a T-37 lost power during takeoff and crashed. Since that time, the wing has accrued 227,576 accident free hours through December 1975.

This impressive accomplishment has been possible only by the dedication and hard work of all of you aircrews, the maintenance force, and the support people. It took thought and effort, and you can take pride in making the 64th Flying Training Wing the safest UPT wing in ATC.

As professionals, we should be proud of our accomplishments, but be ever watchful for insidious complacency. Remember that just over four years ago we had also completed over 200,000 hours of accident free flying. We were leading the command and we knew it. Then disaster struck with several flight accidents in a row. Don't let up. Let's stay on top in flight safety.

Let's also do better in the ground safety area. Reese should be the leader in every area of safety in the air, driving, industrial, recreational. Look for ways to get things done safer, drive defensively, think safety. We are the best, the TOPS, let's keep it that way.

Reese participation in AFAF continues

Reese participation in the Air Force Assistance Fund (AFAF) Drive continues. Contributions to the drive will support the efforts of the Air Force Village, the Air Force Aid Society, and the Air Force Enlisted Widow's Home.

Air Force Village

What do these organizations do? The Air Force Village, although primarily for widows, is also home for retired Air Force Officers and their wives. Although the cost of living is far less in the Village than in comparable complexes, it receives no government funds. The Air Force Village also provides general nursing care, not normally included in retirement benefits, to its residents.

A key objective of the Air Force Village is that no qualified applicant shall ever be refused admission because he or she cannot pay.

Air Force Aid Society

The Air Force Aid Society (AFAS) was created to aid members of the Air Force in emergencies and to help their children attend college and vocational schools.

Most emergencies servicemen run into arise from unexpected expenses and the lack of funds to meet these expenses. AFAS can provide needed money in the form of a no-interest loan for situations such as emergency medical and hospital expenses, food and rent payments due to nonreceipt of pay and allowances, emergency transportation, and many others.

Through the Henry H. Arnold

Education Fund, AFAS provides no-interest loans to help dependent children obtain their college or vocational education.

Air Force Enlisted Widow's Home

Newest and least known of the three agencies is the Air Force Enlisted Widow's Home, the 100-unit Teresa Village apartment complex, four and one-half miles from Eglin AFB, at Fort Walton Beach, Fla. The program provides residences for elderly widows and widowers of retired Air Force enlisted personnel. Also, young widows and their dependent children may be accepted immediately after the death of a husband. Monthly charge for an apartment is based on ability to pay, with subsidization from the foundation supporting the home.

At the official opening of Teresa Village last October, the Air Force Vice Chief of Staff Gen. William V. McBride said that the home is "one more example of how people caring for one another can despite enormous obstacles make a lasting contribution to our society."

Project officer for the AFAF Drive at Reese is Lt. Col. Ivan R. Jenkins, chief of the Personnel Division.

Contributors will designate which charitable organization or organizations they wish their donations to go to.

All contributions are tax deductible, since the organizations are nonprofit and tax exempt.

For further information, contact your unit project officer or Lieutenant Colonel Jenkins at Ext. 2444. The campaign ends April 1.

Dear Editor

Safety is everyone's business. It's like a major league baseball team, where you have nine team members, a manager and a host of coaches. The manager and coaches can have the team working like a well oiled piece of machinery in practice, but when the team takes the field, it is a whole new ball game.

Each team member has a position to play. He is a professional, well schooled in playing his position. If his mind is not on the game, he will commit an error that could cost him and his fellow players the game, or at best, put them in a hole that would be hard to overcome. This is not the fault of the manager or coaches and other team members. The man made the error.

I know what you are going to say next, but before you lay the blame on the coaches and manager, remember this man is a professional who is not supposed to make an error. The coaches and manager can only train the man. They cannot go on the field and play his position. He has to do this himself.

When a member of the team is injured, it hurts the whole team and we cannot win ball games. It behooves all of us to teach safety and practice what we preach.

Controllers save lives

By TSgt. Charles Carney
2053 Communication Sq.

During 1975, 80 air traffic controllers of the Air Force Communications Service (AFCS) were credited with saving 58 aircraft involving 166 persons.

AFCS air traffic controllers were cited for either warning pilots of developing danger, or guiding distressed aircraft to safe landing by using radar or visual sightings.

Involved in last year's "saves" were 30 military aircraft and 28 civil aircraft, the monetary value of which exceeded $47.6 million.

Since AFCS was activated in July 1961, air traffic controllers throughout the world have saved 1,419 aircraft worth almost $1.5 billion, carrying 5,158 passengers and crew.

A "save" is defined as "the safe recovery of an imperiled aircraft through extraordinary and timely application of air traffic control knowledge, techniques, and procedures where there is reasonable doubt that the aircraft would not have been recovered without such action."

A "Save" is credited by the Aircraft Save Review Board at Headquarters AFCS, Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo. The board applies stringent criteria, determines the validity of all claims, and issues a certificate to all controllers involved.

Grad study via AFIT

To prepare selected officers for future air attache duty the Air Force Institute of Technology (AFIT) has developed a graduate school program which leads to the award of a master's degree in national security affairs from the Naval Postgraduate School (NPS).

Officers selected for this program undergo 12 months of area study at NPS followed by language training at Monterey, Calif. for their designated country. Classes convene each six months with 10 students scheduled to enter in July. To meet the rated requirements of the attache system the majority of the class quotas will be filled by pilots.

Officers desiring to enter this program should contact Captain Chase, autovon 354-6036, for further details.

AFA membership drive starts April 1

Col. Edward Mendel today announced that the Air Force Association (AFA) will conduct its annual membership drive at Reese AFB beginning April 1.

In announcing the drive, Colonel Mendel pointed out that AFA's current membership is 140,000. Citing the fact that membership in the Association is entirely voluntary, he also went on to say that "the AFA provides a strong voice nationally in support of the Defense of this country. The AFA naturally represents all Air Force and is, in essence, the professional society of the Air Force."

Locally, strong support to Reese is provided by the president of the Lubbock Chapter of the Association, George E. Morris. More than 1,000 persons, Military and civilians, are now affiliated with the Lubbock Chapter. Morris expressed the hope that this year's drive will substantially increase this number.

Membership in the Association is open to all active duty, reserve, or retired military personnel, and to all others who have served with the Armed Forces of the United States. Others may affiliate with AFA by becoming Patrons of the Air Force Association. AFA members receive many benefits including a monthly copy of "Air Force" magazine and eligibility for a number of low cost group insurance programs.

Membership dues are $10 per year, or $24 for a three year period. Life membership in the Association is also available for a one-time fee of $200.

The drive will continue through April 30. Many long lasting benefits are derived from the effort of the AFA and membership in this organization is worthy of consideration.

Inside Laboratory Services

By 1st Lt. Lynn E. Leppo
Laboratory Officer

For most of us, a trip to the USAF Hospital Laboratory is not a sought after experience. Most people usually associate the lab with a prick of a finger, a needle in the vein, or some form of specimen that must be given. These are only some of the services the lab provides in the process of rendering quality health care to Reese personnel.

In this article we hope to familiarize military personnel and dependents with some of our laboratory procedures and policies. By doing this we hope to avoid confusion and delay in patient service.

The Laboratory plays an essential part in the medical benefits of military personnel. In some cases physical symptoms are not enough for the doctor to diagnose. In these cases the doctor relies on laboratory test to assist in determining how best he can treat his patient.

Suggestions

When patients arrive in the lab, we always try to greet them promptly and pleasantly, tell them what is to be done, and instruct them in the correct method for specimen collection. Here are some suggestions to help us provide better service to you.

- If you are given a lab request slip, insure that your name, your sponsor's SSAN, home phone and/or duty phone, are correct and clearly written.

- Specimen containers should be obtained at the lab so that specimen contamination does not occur. Most times jars and other containers are not appropriately cleaned or sterilized enough to be used.

- Allow sufficient time for the lab to process routine lab requests before your next doctor appointment. Separate or special tests require additional time and cost to perform.

Special Tests

Some test need to be scheduled with the lab for more efficient conservation of material and manpower. Three test that require such scheduling are: Glucose Tolerance Test, Semen Analysis, and 24 Hour Urine Collection.

Tests such as Prothrombine Times, should be done from 8-9 a.m. so that these tests can be done together.

Other test call for fasting for certain periods of time. Lab personnel can answer any questions concerning fasting.

Pregnancy test results can be reported only to the person tested or that person's sponsor. The specimen should be collected from a first morning urine and brought to the lab before 1 p.m. for results to be completed by 3:30 p.m.

Pre-marital blood test will be performed upon receipt of a properly completed lab request which is obtained at the General Therapy Clinic on the second duty day after the specimen is drawn. A physician's signature validates the certificate. In Texas, the marriage license issued under this certificate will expire 21 days after the medical examination, if the marriage ceremony has not been performed. If you plan to be married in another state, find out what test is necessary and how long it is valid.

Results

The lab cannot give results directly to a patient. Patients may obtain lab tests results at the General Therapy Clinic for those special tests which require a certificate or other form. For the more routine test, clinic personnel will notify the patient or sponsor of other than normal results. Positive Beta Strep throat culture results will be phoned to the patient as soon as the results are completed.

Comments or suggestions about Laboratory Services are welcomed and can be directed to myself at Ext. 2723.

AWARD WINNERS

Seven Reese personnel were presented with decorations during February. From the 64th Supply Squadron, 1st Lt. David E. Donze earned the Air Force Commendation Medal (1 OLC) and MSgt. Don R. Roberts was awarded the Meritorious Service Medal (10LC).

Air Force Commendation Medals were presented to MSgt. Roger D. Barton (1 OLC), Sgt. Johnnie D. Griffin, MSgt. Edward C. Bugg (20LC), and MSgt. Ancile L. White of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

SSgt. Keith L. Yaney, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, also earned the Air Force Commendation Medal.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CUT

The Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) is no longer authorized to pay for Christian Science services.

The 1976/77 Defense Appropriations Act prohibits CHAMPUS payments for any service or supply which is not medically necessary to diagnose and treat a mental or physical illness, injury, or bodily malfunction as diagnosed by a physician, dentist, or clinical psychologist. This prohibition according to Defense officials, precludes payment for Christian Science services.

The prohibition went into effect on Feb. 9, the day the Act was signed into law.

Although a Report of Separation from active duty (DD Form 214) is prepared for all separating members, copy one (the original) is given only to those members who sign a written request for it. The DD Form 214 is essential for establishing unemployment compensation. Lack of this form when a claim is filled will seriously delay a determination of eligibility for and payment of benefits when due. All military members should specifically request a copy of the DD form 214 during separation/retirement processing.

"China" has become a general term to describe all kinds of dishes, but originally was borrowed from the country of origin to describe the hard, white, thin, and translucent porcelains when first introduced to Europeans some 300 years ago.

Bone China was developed to overcome some of the production problems of "hard" paste porcelain and is so called because an admixture of bone ash is added to the clay to make a "softer" paste. This gives it a unique quality between pure porcelain "china" and the coarser stonewares and earthenwares.

The value of old English pieces has a wide range, with the manufacturer's markings being the most critical determining factor. However, learning to identify bone china is a start.

Bone China, like porcelain, is translucent and is a glazed pottery as opposed to glassware. Chipped areas will appear "grainy" compared to the sharper and cleaner breaks or chips of both "hard" porcelains or glasswares. The glaze is "softer" and less glassy and will feel warmer to the touch when compared to porcelain. Finally, if the piece is not broken or chipped, you scratch your fingernails against the unglazed foot (or base) and test its softness. Porcelain is hard and gritty while bone china will feel softer — more like an extremely hard soap and may even flake like soap.

Marks and patterns are too extensive to discuss here but having identified a piece as genuine bone, you can refer to a book to identify and/or determine its value.

NEW COURTROOM — Reese's new courtroom was dedicated last Wednesday when Base Commander William V. Finn, left, turned over the gavel to the third circuit Military Judge Lt. Col. Forrest W. Thomas. Reese Staff Judge Advocate Maj. Carl J. Kretsinger was also in attendance. (U.S. Air Force Photo by Sgt. Mike Hall)

Flying time shortage . . .

(Continued from page 1) pilots sharing reduced flying hours and cockpit seats, there is concern about future experience levels.

Programs Started

Several programs have already been started to give more hands-on flying for young pilots. Pilots who have made definite plans to leave the Air Force are being removed from cockpit duties and give other jobs to give more time to the career oriented pilots. Other pilots are being moved to rated supplement and supervisory duties early in their careers. They are programmed to return to cockpit jobs after pilot production is cut back during the next few years.

Another problem is the management of Air Training Command (ATC) instructor pilots. About half the number of ATC instructors concerned are on their first assignment out of pilot training. After a three year ATC tour. This group must compete with pilot training graduates for upgrading into major operational command aircraft, for example: F-4, B-52, C-141. Because of the reduced aircrew authorizations, many in the ATC instructor group are currently entering nonrated duties and are concerned about lack of experience in first line operational aircraft.

Although much of the current emphasis is on solving immediate problems. The Air Force is convinced that the real payoff lies in predicting and solving the problems caused by the many variables affecting rated management.

These and other rated management problems are currently receiving priority attention from top Air Force management. An Air Staff rated management group is making recommendations for change with one primary objective: "Maintaining combat readiness while giving our people an equitable share of flying duty."

REESE ON TV

Dick Benedict, news director for KCBD-TV, channel 11 in Lubbock informed the Information Office this week that a four minute special dealing with Reese AFB's response to a simulated aircraft accident will broadcast Sunday.

This special is scheduled to be aired once during the evening news program that runs from 5:30 to 6 p.m. and again during the late evening news between 10 and 10:30 p.m. Both broadcast depend on what other news will be making headlines locally at that time.
