Brazilian Christmas features 'sense of the past'

Gladys Shedd *

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second of a four-part series of stories about Christmas in other countries. This story deals with vuletide holiday customs in Brazil.

By JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writer

Spending Christmas in Brazil is an urban, cosmopolitan experience that features a sense of the past.

Brazil, South America's largest nation, has managed to preserve much of its tradition while creating one of the "hot spots" during the holiday season, according to native Brazilian Gladys Shedd.

Christmas in Brazil is affected by influences from Africa and Europe, as well as from the country's original Indian inhabitants, she said.

About 60 percent of the Brazilian population have European ancestry, many of whom descended from early Portuguese settlers or from immigrants who came to Brazil after

Ms. Shedd said in her native Bahia, an east Brazilian coastal state, families celebrate the Christmas festivities on Christmas Eve first by attending midnight Mass and then by gathering for ceia or dinner afterward.

Brazilian law provides freedom of worship and forbids any religious group from actively participating in the government, she said. Most Brazilians are Roman Catholics with slightly more than five percent being Protestant, Jewish or members of other religious groups.

The ceia normally consists of turkey or other foul, vegetables and grapes, melons, oranges, papayas his family. But they save what they and pears. Although coffee is the can for the holiday carnival that chief beverage, many families in southern Brazil prefer mate', a tea- and ends before Lent.

My mother combined traditional fruits, nuts, flowers and other ornathousands of people dressed in ments into a table centerpiece for native costumes who crowd the the ceia," she said.

A visit by Papai Noel, or Santa known as Sambe. Claus also occurs Christmas Eve rather than Christmas morning, according to Ms. Shedd. Because most Brazil is hot year round, Papai Noel rarely enters down the chim-

"Life is hard for the people in Bahia," she said. "A sugar plantation such fruits as apples, bananas, worker earns barely enough to feed begins shortly after the New Year

The carnival in Rio de Janeiro — a four-day celebration - attracts streets for parades and concerts featuring a traditional brand of music

"Sambe is the principal music of Brazil," said Ms. Shedd. "It was brought to the country by slaves from Africa. It's the only music that's truly representative of Bra-

Police dispatchers leave job at office

By PAUL CARR Associated Press Writer

WACO, Texas — "Attention all units, be on the lookout for an armed subject who just held up the liquor store at the corner of First and Third. Shots were fired."

Masked bandits robbing stores at gunpoint make for exciting television police drama, with the voice of a police dispatcher alerting the show's heroes, who then jump on the criminal's trail and nab him before the last commercial.

In real life, the police dispatcher's job is not only to assign officers to investigate calls, but to keep track of where the officers are and to send help should an officer need it.

Exciting? Yes, but stressful, too. "Anytime there is a weapon involved, you tend to be more cautious and you try to get as much information as you can (from the person calling in)," says Lori Jimenez, 21, a dispatcher for the Waco Police Department.

The stress such a call adds to a regular working day is enormous, she said. "The trick is that when you leave the building, you leave (your work) at the building," said Mrs. Jimenez, who has worked for the department for a year.

There are times when the bottom drops out and everything happens at once. That's when you're ready to pull your hair out," she said, adding that to ease the stress from such a day, you have to "just walk away from it. But like any job, the stress from the work of a dispatcher does take its toll. "It's more of a mental tiredness rather than a physical tiredness," said Jennettie Holliday, 45, who has worked for the police department 91/2 years, 61/2 as a dispatcher.

"It's not any more (stressful) than any other job would be if you had a real busy day," Mrs. Holliday said, quickly adding, "But you have to be able to walk out and leave it.

'You don't know stress until an officer has been shot — then you know stress.

One way dispatchers and officers deal with the daily stress of their jobs, is to joke about it - "to let off steam," she said. People who overhear the jokes tend to believe that people who work at the police department are unfeeling, but "You have to not let it bother you that three people have been shot or that a child has been abused, which is especially hard for me because I have a child," Mrs. Halliday said.

"One thing people tend to forget is that we're human, too. They think we're unfeeling, but we're not, or we wouldn't work up here in a public service job."

A dispatcher's job is stressful, but for Wendy Lees, 23, it is less stressful than her previous job. "I was a paramedic for four years," she said. This isn't very stressful compared to being on the scene (where people are injured).

"I pretty much knew what it would be like (from watching ambulance dispatchers). It is more stressful than I thought it would be, because you have to keep track of all the officers.

Another sometimes stressful aspect, is that the dispatcher, who talks with the public and listens to their pleas for help or takes calls that crimes are being committed, must always be courteous on the phone, because the public is quick to notify the police supervisors, Miss Lees said.

The public, however, is not always courteous to the dispatchers. Often the callers are angry at being victimized or angry at a neighbor's actions, and vent their frustrations on the police dispatchers. "They're not mad at you, they're just mad," Mrs. Jimenez said.

If a woman calls and screams that someone is breaking into her house, a dispatcher must scream back to get the address, she said.

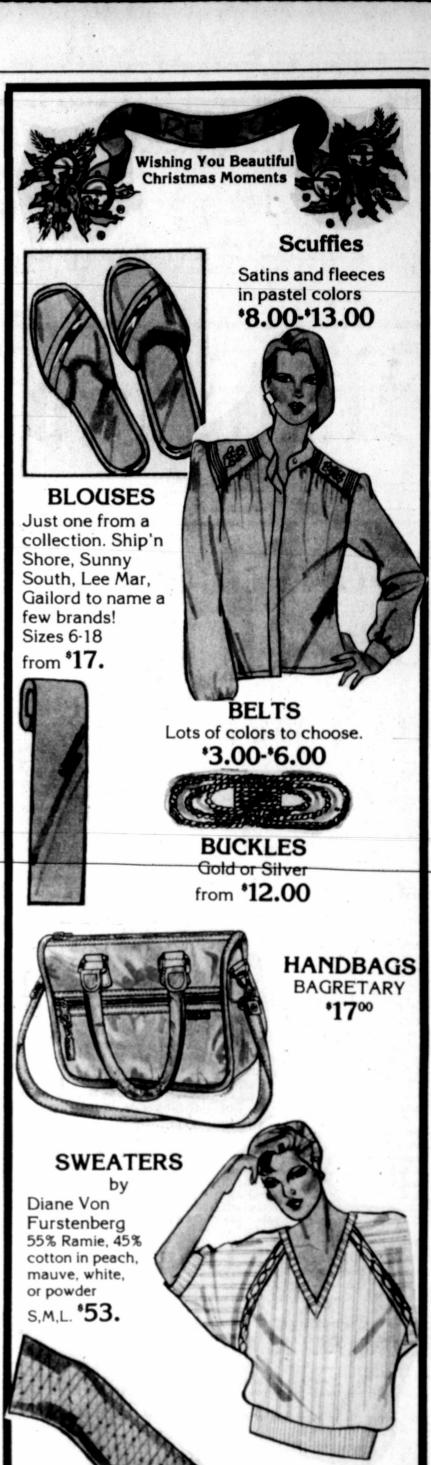

Some callers seem to think they are the only ones requiring police assistance, Mrs. Holliday said. Those types of people will call the dispatcher and "I called you yesterday, and the same thing is happening. and the same thing is happening again." When asked what is happening and where, the caller will say, The officers know where I live, and hang up the phone.

There are four teams of two dispatchers each with one extra dispatcher who fills in during vacations and holidays. The partners on each team work together on rotating schedules.

Waco police units had responded to more than 17,000 calls this year and, almost all of them went through the dispatchers first. But despite their work to help both officers and the public, dispatchers receive few thanks.

Most of the time," Mrs. Holliday added, "you only hear when you've done something wrong." Occasionally, officers or a citizen will call up and give the dispatchers a verbal reward, but not often, she said.

"If you have to have that, don't be a dispatcher," she said. "With dispatching, there's no in between you either like it or you don't."

Girl undergoes liver transplant at Baylor University Medical Center

DALLAS (AP) — A 5-year-old Indiana girl was doing well Friday after undergoing a life-saving liver transplant at Baylor University Medical Center - the first such operation performed at the center.

Amie Garrison, who helped Nancy Reagan decorate the White House Christmas tree, got a call from the first lady after doctors beat their race with the clock to find a hospital that could do the surgery early Fri-

Mrs. Reagan told Mrs. Garrison, What a wonderful Christmas present for you. I'm so happy for you," according to Mrs. Reagan's press secretary, Sheila Tate.

Mrs. Reagan told the mother she knew the doctor who performed the operation — Dr. Thomas Starzl and that he was a "heroic man."

Mrs. Tate said Amy's mother replied that Amy would send Mrs. Reagan a thank-you note as soon as she is able to write. A team of surgeons from Pittsburgh and doctors from Baylor performed the 81/2-hour transplant operation, during which the Clarksville, Indiana, girl received a liver from a Canadian child. Doctors said Amie had an abscess in her congenitally malformed liver and could have died within weeks without the operation When news that a donor was available reached Amie's surgeon at the University of Pittsburgh Thursday afternoon, a frantic search began for a place to perform the operation. 'We were doing a lot of hustling,' said Starzl, the first doctor to successfully perform a liver transplant.

After contacting a number of hospitals, Starzl arranged for surgery at Baylor, which will launch its transplant program in a few months under the direction of Dr. Goran Klintmalm, currently a member of the Pittsburgh team.

Doctors said Amie was at the top of a list of 25 children at the Pittsburgh hospital awaiting a liver from a donor with type "O" blood Amie, born without bile ducts, has

Juror gives two-page note to judge saying she knows, fears defendant

HOUSTON (AP) — A fearful juror passed a note to a judge, complaining she knows the defendant in a drug possession and attempted murder trial and fears harm

State District Judge Michael McSpadden dismissed the juror, intending to continue the trial with only 11 people on the panel. But as McSpadden questioned the woman, defendant Kenneth Ray Humphrey agreed to plead no contest to two of the charges he faced

Humphrey, 23, pleaded no contest to a charge of pos session of a controlled substance - methamphetamine - and to attempted murder. Three other attempted murder charges were dropped.

McSpadden sentenced Humphrey to two 10-year sentences, to be served concurrently.

The woman passed McSpadden a two-page letter
Thursday morning as jurors filed into the courtroom.

The juror's letter said in part, "I would like to voice my extreme displeasure in being selected to be a juror in this case. My ability to make a fair and impartial decision in this case, should not have been used against me in the selection of jurors.

The woman wrote that state and defense attorneys knew that Humphrey knew her and "also knows where

New rules could delay drilling for waste site

AUSTIN (AP) - New state rules for drilling wells through water bearing formations could indefinitely delay test drilling in Deaf Smith County for possible storage of high level radioactive wastes, according to the Texas Water Development

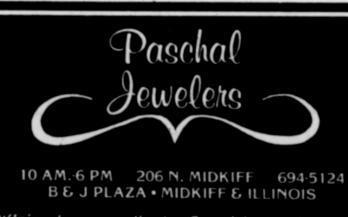

The new rules require a permit for certain drilled or mined shafts that penetrate a major or minor lier, or water bearing strata The rules have been under review

State officials said it was a coincidence the rules were finally adopted the day after the U.S. Department of Energy announced Deaf Smith County was one of three possible sites for storage of used nuclear fuel and other hazardous wastes.

After a series of public hearings, test drillings will be conducted at the three sites to help determine which will be finally selected.

Harry Pruett, head of the permits section of the Texas Department of Water Resources, said one provision of the rules adopted Thursday prohibits his staff from processing mining applications until all litigation concerning the proposed waste dump is cleared up.

Suits challenging selection of two of the sites have been filed by Texas and California.

ODESSA - The 19-year-old Midlander sentenced to life in prison for capital murder Nov. 1 gained a reprieve Friday as he received 60 years for murder in the 161th District Court.

new trial was granted by District Judge R.L. McKim.

According to Texas law, Galindo would have been eligible for parole after serving 20 years of either sentence. A hung jury ended deliberations Nov. 1 that could have meant the death penalty for the Midlander.

McKim granted the motion for a new trial, which was based on his having excused prospective jurors without just cause. Galindo, who has been in the county jail since the capital murder conviction, then pleaded to the lesser offense and was sentenced to 60 years in prison.

Medicare bans hospital stay after cataract surgery

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — New federal rules that ban Medicare recipients from staying in the hospital overnight following cataract operations will probably cause com-plications and difficulties for some patients, eye specialists warn.

"It's going to compromise a small portion of the public," said Dr. H. Dwight Cavanagh of Emory University. "And if you're one of those people, you're not going to like it."

Cataract operations are the most common form of surgery for the

The new Medicare rules, intended to save billions of dollars, have already gone into effect in many states and will start soon in the rest. Except in unusual cases, they require that doctors perform the half-hour operations in their offices or out-patient clinics without admitting patients overnight.

At a meeting of the New England

Ophthalmological Society, specialists complained that the new rules are inflexible and fail to consider the patients' home lives or some of their physical conditions.

The specific rules vary from state to state. Dr. Robert A. Gorn of Harvard Medical School noted that the Massachusetts regulations, for instance, don't allow one-eyed patients to be admitted to the hospital after a cataract operation. Since they have to wear a patch over their one good eye, they must be sent home temporarily blinded, even if they have no friends or relatives to care for them.

"Everyone needs post-operative care," said Dr. Richard J. Simmons of Harvard. "Once the system took care of it. Now the burdon is being placed on the patient.'

About 800,000 people undergo cataract surgery in the United States each year. Studies have shown that "One thing you can depend on is that they (cataract patients) are all old or severely disabled. Some of them have no family. Some people are simply not intelligent enough to understand and carry out instructions. You have to somehow get them into a home environment and give them some reasonable minimal level of care."

typically the operations are about themselves following surgery.
$1,000 cheaper if the patients are not Dr. Jared M. Emery of Baylor College of Medicine said that until the admitted to hospitals.

A decade ago, patients were rou-tinely put in the hospital for five days, but there has been a movement toward shorter stays. Now, many people are operated on and sent home the same day with no difficulty. But the doctors say they need the flexibility to admit people who are too infirm, frightened, incompetent or isolated to look after this system. I spend a lot of my time

"One thing you can depend on is that they are all old or severely disa-bled," said Dr. Howard M. Leibowitz of University Hospital in Boston. 'Some of them have no family. Some people are simply not intelligent enough to understand and carry out instructions. You have to somehow get them into a home environment and give them some reasonable minimal level of care." However, Dr. Joseph L. Dowling Jr. of Brown Medical School said he doubts that more outpatient surgery will cause any problems.

"We haven't found one person yet in the last thousand who didn't have a friend or someone to take care of them," he said. "We find that patients with one eye do better going home than they do in the hos-pital, because they usually have a relative who's more interested in them than the nurse is.

Simmons said doctors are also worried about the success of outpatient surgery on people whose cataracts are complicated by other eye problems, such as glaucoma or scars from previous surgery. Some of these people should be watched closely afterward, he said.

Since patients typically require a follow-up exam the next day, many who don't live nearby check into a hotel for the night after their surgery. "There's no medical care at the Holiday Inn," said Simmons.

Allergies may be hurt by air conditioners

BOSTON (AP) - People who turn on their auto air conditioners to ease respiratory allergies may actually make their symptoms worse if the cars' air vents harbor mold and other fungi, according to a study published this week.

"I'm not suggesting that everybody who rides in an air-conditioned car would get worse," said Dr. Prem Kumar, who directed the study. "I think a large majority of people do feel better. But there's a significant proportion of patients who do get worse, as shown by this study."

The research was based on a survey of 224 hay fever and asthma victims who travel in air conditioned cars. Eighteen percent said they thought their breathing problems were worse when the air condition was running. The researchers said their study may actually underestimate the prevalence of the problem because all the people surveyed were taking drugs for their maladies, which could have blunted the moldy air's

Ordinarily, air conditioners are thought to filter out pollen and other contaminants. But the new research shows that sometimes they can have just the opposite effect.

When 13 of the people in the survey were tested in their own cars, they found that their breathing was impaired when the air conditioning was on. The researchers also sampled the air vents in these vehicles and found mold and other fungi, and concluded that the growths were causing the problems. The problem does exist. There's no question about it," Kumar said in an interview. "Some patients can get into difficulty if their car air conditioner is loaded with mold. The study was conducted at Louisiana State University Medical Center and published in today's New England Journal of Medicine. Kumar said that for the past year, he has been studying what can be done to decontaminate auto air conditioners but hasn't reached any

Among the fungi found growing in the cars' air vents were penicillium, alternaria and aspergillus, all of which are known to aggravate asthma and hay fever. In their study, the researchers had nine people with asthma and four with hay fever undergo congestion checks while sitting in their cars first with the engines off and then after breathing air-conditioned air for 15 minutes. The asthma victims' lungs and the hay fever sufferers' noses were considerably more congested after inhaling the cooled air.

However, when the experiment was repeated in a test car with clean air vents, they had no unusual breathing problems.

John Kappler and a team at the are taken care of." Washington Post News Service

Researchers from Denver have completed the long search for the structure of an important part of the immune system: a protein known as the T-cell receptor. The protein identifies infected cells, cancer cells and transplanted organs and triggers their destruction. In finding the gene for the soNational Jewish Hospital in Denver provide a full picture of the structure of this important molecule.

The discovery reported in this week's English journal Nature is "just a start to get a better grasp of the wonderful properties" of T cells, said Gek Kee Sim, a molecular biologist on the Denver team. "These are the guys that sort of guard your

The protein is called a receptor because it "receives," or binds chemically, with molecules it recognizes as foreign to the body. Knowing the receptor's structure is key to understanding how the body distinguishes normal cells from abnormal or for-

This, in turn, promises to lead to a clearer understanding of diseases such as juvenile diabetes, in which the body attacks itself, and cancer. Because T cells are also central to rejection, the advance should also lead to improvements in organ eign ones.

The importance of the advance is analagous to the discovery of antibo-dies, the receptor proteins for the other class of important immune cells, called B cells. Antibodies identify foreign molecules floating in the bloodstream (as opposed to those on the surface of cells). The discovery of antibodies led to vaccines and to medical tests that identify a wide range of conditions, including preg-nancy and infections.

In addition, scientists use radioactive antibodies as chemical ID tags for a tremendous variety of pur-poses. Possessing the T-cell receptor structure will give them another set of ID tags with very different prop-

Mark Davis, a molecular biologist from Stanford University who has also been working on the T-cell receptor, called the Denver research "heroic biochemistry." The Denver team found the gene by working backward, first finding the sequence of protein subunits in parts of the receptor and then, with a knowledge of the genetic code, deducing the structure of the gene that would code for such protein fragments. Knowing that, they manufactured a molecule that could link to the gene and identify it.

The Denver discovery is the latest link in a long chain of scientific events. The T-cell receptor, like an antibody, is made of two protein chains that are cross-linked to each other. Last spring Davis' team and another from the University of Toronto identified the gene for one of these chains, the beta chain. Another team from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology found the gene for the other chain, called the alpha chain, in mice. Now the Denver team has found the human gene for the alpha chain, completing the structure of the human recep-

Extracted from the body, the receptor protein has been available only in tiny amounts. The funda-mental advantage of finding the gene's structure, Davis says, is that it will allow scientists to create large amounts of the T-cell receptor by genetic engineering, which will speed research. "We'll start where people were with antibodies...20 years ago," he said, "and leap straight forward."

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A county judge Friday ordered supporters of jailed minister D. Douglas Roth to end their occupation of the Lutheran church where he once preached in defiance of court orders, but the clergyman's followers vowed to stay until they were arrested at the altar.

"This is our church. Why should we get out?" Wayne Cochran, church council president at Trinity Lutheran Church, said in a news conference at the altar of the 62-year-old church in Clairton about 20 miles southeast of Pittsburgh.

Allegheny County Common Pleas Court Judge Emil Narick ruled that officials of the denomination were within their rights to oust Roth and temporarily disband his congregation.

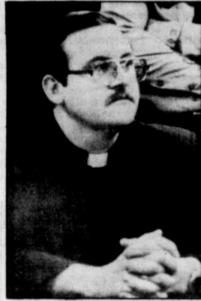

Narick ordered the church council to turn over all church property Dec. 27 and to make a full accounting of church income and spending for the year.

Lutheran officials stressed they would return to court next week - possibly to seek a contempt order - if the dissident church members fail to follow Narick's ruling.

The judge ordered the county sheriff to arrest Roth's supporters if they refuse to leave the church voluntarily: Cochran said his group would not violently resist arrest but would not leave

He has been active in the Denominational Ministry Strategy, a group of outspoken ministers who blame local corporations for the decline of steelmaking in the Pittsburgh region, and was ousted by regional Lutheran officials after half his congregation complained that the pulpit was not the proper forum for him to press his case.

The West Virginia-Western Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church in America declared the Clairton church defunct last month, but Trinity Lutheran's council continued to hold Sunday services.

Narick said the synod, led by Bishop Kenneth May, was within its rights in seeking to take control of the Trinity Church build-

Narick said a "long established and deeply imbedded" principle of law holds that local church property belongs to the overall church organization. "The guarantee of religious freedom has nothing to do with property," Narick said. "Membership in a church does not confer on any individual the right to violate the laws of the church or the late the laws of the church or the commonwealth.'

After Roth was jailed Nov. 13, Trinity Lutheran's council refused to allow a minister sent by the synod to conduct Sunday services, prompting the synod to disband the congregation.

During four days of testimony that preceded the decision, the council's attorney, Thomas Craw-ford, argued that the Lutheran Church's constitution and bylaws did not give the synod authority to take control of the local church.

But Narick, calling Crawford's arguments "remarkable and novel," said it was up to the synod to interpret the denomination's constitution. "This court cannot question this interpretation or secondguess it," Narick said. "The council may not pick and choose which decisions of the church's hierarchical organization it will

Council estimates holiday deaths

Associated Press

Millions of Americans began the long Christmas weekend Friday, many encountering snowy highways.

The National Safety Council estimated that between 370 and 470 people could be killed in traffic accidents by midnight Tuesday, the end of the holiday period.

Statisticians said 430 traffic deaths could be expected during a non-holi-day weekend of similar length at this time of the year.

No matter how late a book is, a can of food will pay the bill. One recently returned book was due in November 1983.

"We get soup. We get vegetables. It's not all generic items. People are giving good canned stuff," Jane O'Brien, head of the circulation department, said Friday. They (readers) just love it, and

Ms. O'Brien said people also have been donating toys and even money a total of $30 from patrons and $56 more from library employees. "Most people are giving in the Christmas spirit," said Roy Mansberger, head of the library's maintenance program and the man who thought up the program.

Mansberger said librarians were discussing the problem of missing books. "And I thought of an amnesty idea - that if they brought in food, people would be more likely to bring back a book," he said.

This year, the library has collected about 20 cases of food in addition to eight or nine cases at its Hoffman Estates branch. The amnesty runs through Dec. 31 and applies to all library items except video and reference materials.

"One year, we had 47 cases of food," said Mansberger. "The book may be due a $1 or a small fine, but they bring in maybe $10 or $12 worth of groceries.

'Boll weevils' still nibbling away at heart of Democratic Congress

By KATHRYN BAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) - They've been sprayed with political pesti-cide, but the "boll weevils" are alive and squirming.

"We're going to be a force to be heard," says Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, who co-founded the Conservative Democratic Forum in 1980.

The group of congressmen was at its height in 1981 when it bucked the Democratic Party leadership to back President Reagan's economic proposals and earned its nickname. But membership dwindled from 46 to 33 during the last Congress.
"Of the 13 that we lost, three retired from office, three ran for other office, three switched parties, three were defeated and one just dropped out," Stenholm said.

"As a group, the Congress is right of center," says Rep. Buddy Roemer of Louisiana, another boll weevil. "But within the Democratic Party," he adds, "the numbers (of conservatives) are shrinking, not expanding."

Nevertheless, the group expects to recoup its lost membership and make some gains in unofficial support during the upcoming Congress. Roemer estimates there will be a core of about 70 House members backing boll weevil positions.

"That's enough to win some votes in the House," he said.

After fading for two years, the Conservative Democratic Forum was back in the headlines last month when, on behalf of conservative Democrats, Stenholm threatened to challenge House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts for the leadership role.

Stenholm dropped out of the race after he said O'Neill promised conservative Democrats "a place at the table." He says now it is up to them to get their share.

Roemer, who had set up the meeting between Stenholm and O'Neill, said he and Stenholm promised the speaker they would try to work within the party first before seeking Republican support for an alterna-

"We'll go where we think the best budget is," Roemer said. "We're open to other coalitions, but we will begin within the party."

Despite some talk about broadening the group's concerns to include defense and foreign policy issues, the main focus remains centered on the budget and the federal

Democrats are advocating a reduc-tion in federal spending, including

"We're going to be a lot smarter than we were four years ago," said Stenholm. "We learned a lot in the budget process. We've learned a lot in the last two years about what's doable and what's not, about what a package has to look like if you're going to get yotes." going to get votes.'

The boll weevils say they have been forced into the role of mavericks by party leadership that has abandoned the middle of the road

What do moderates and conservatives in the Democratic Party do?" asks Roemer. "I don't want to change the party as much as add to it. I don't want the Democratic Party to back off civil rights. Call me a liberal. I don't want the party to back off environmental considerations. But on economics we tend to drift off to the left.

"I think that's bad economics and I think the last election proved it is bad politics, too," he said.

Rep. Marvin Leath of Texas said that if the Democratic Party doesn't give, conservatives may consider changing their affiliation.

BETHLEHEM, Israeli Occupied West Bank — The pre-Christmas lament of Elias Fredj, mayor of Bethlehem in the Israeli-occupied West Bank, has become traditional.

The Israelis make life unnecessarily difficult for the 50,000 Palestinians who live at Jesus' birthplace, he says. The economic crisis of Israel has spread to the occupied areas. Tourists are becoming more frugal. Briefly stated: money, everywhere,

Only with a certain amount of prodding will the small, rotund mayor divulge the information that the new Israeli government has permitted him to receive a gift from Saudi Arabia — $700,000 to do with as he pleases.

So accustomed is Fredj to tribulation that his face does not lose its look of suffering even as the mayor tells of the unexpected cash blessing for his town.

A playground will be built, and if possible also a sports center. Then, modestly, he says: "What we need and demand are $50 million the United States and $50 million from the Europe-

Though not bringing very much money with them, American and European tourists coming here for the Christmas holidays will be spending a sizable amount when, as expected, they show up in record numbers.

This year, the Israeli Tourism Ministry estimates, around 25,000 Christians will come to Jerusalem, and 10,000 will likely be on hand in Bethlehem when midnight Mass is celebrated at the site of the Nativity.

With a hand sweeping over the square, where on the other end the basilica Church of Jesus' Nativity stands, Fredj says quietly and emotionally: "Once a year this is the center of the

Only about 1,000 invited guests are allowed to attend midnight Mass in the Roman Catholic St. Catherine Church located next to the basilica. The large majority of Christian pilgrims will have to experience for themselves how cold the nights are in the Holy Land, even though at this time of year they may still tan themselves in the sun during the day.

The pilgrims may watch a large screen set up in the square to see the live television coverage of midnight Mass in the St. Catherine's Church, conducted by Patriarch Giacomo Beltritti. On Christmas Eve, only those who may have brought along a pocket flask can expect any comfort. In a rare case of unity three years ago, the Greek Orthodox Fredj, the Catholic clergy, and the Jewish occupation authorites decided that no alcohol may be sold in the square.

Since that time, Christmas in Bethlehem has not been what it once was: an unforgettable mixture of odors of incense, gin and hashish

During the afternoon, and bridging the hours of waiting until evening, seven foreign choruses provide the atmosphere. All the while, the Israeli occupation forces, for security reasons, have begun sealing off the town, located picturesquely

Genealogists find Reagan has several Scottish cousins

In a study of Reagan's maternal ancestry, the British genealogists found fourth-, fifth- and sixth cousins in the rugged Argyll country of southwest Scotland

One fourth cousin, Flora Blue, 71, works as a shop assistant in Carradale, a fishing village on the rocky east coast of the Kintyre peninsula, said Harold Brooks-Baker, Burke's Peerage publishing director.

"I think in that immediate group, there are between six to 10 cousins," he said, adding six have been located.

Miss Blue's sister, Isabella Fisher, 74, lives in the Mull of Kintyre at the southern tip of the peninsula, as do most of the others.

"These living close relations make the president of the United States not only half-Scottish, but more understandably Scottish than Irish,' Burke's said in a statement.

Mrs. Fisher has a daughter, 51-year-old Mary Robinson, who is Reagan's fifth cousin. Another fifth cousin is British Telecom engineer Charles Reppkie, 56. Nan Wilde, 67, is Rea-

Reagan's maternal grandparent's generation, Brooks-Baker said. "Her father was probably a first cousin once removed of the president's grandfather," he said.

Hugh Peskett, senior genealogist of the Burke's Peerage guide to British bluebloods, is spearheading the research into Reagan's ancestors. He began his research last summer after a request was received from first lady Nancy

Reagan, Brooks-Baker said. Several years ago, Peskett traced Reagan's paternal ancestry to the tiny Irish village of Ballyporeen, which he visited in June. The latest research goes back to Reagan's great-great-grandparents, Claud Wilson and Margaret Downie. It says Wilson was an weaver and a political radical who campaigned against child labor. The couple were married in 1807 and migrated from London to Nova Scotia to Lowell, Mass. Their younger son, John, who became a farmer at Fairhaven, Ill., married Jane Blue, whose family was from Kintyre. Flora Blue is the last living member of this family, Brooks-

olunteers seek to save Dorothy Six

PITTSBURGH (AP) - Union volunteers have borrowed $20,000 as part of an effort to save Dorothy Six, once the world's largest blast furnace but now deemed unprofitable and targeted by U.S. Steel Corp. for

The volunteers began winterizing the furnace Wednesday to keep it in condition while a consultant studies whether former furnace workers could operate it at a profit.

"The corporation said we'd have to get workmen's compensation insurance and property insurance costing $16,000. We borrowed the $16,000 from our international union. We're borrowing $4,000 out of local funds for materials," United Steelworkers Local 1256 President Mike Bilcsik said.

Twelve volunteers, the most allowed to participate in the project under the insurance policies, drained water from cooling lines fitted to the furnace, Bilcsik said. To prevent water left in the lines from freezing and splitting the pipes, the volunteers pumped in several hun-

The work took three days, he said. The 21-year-old iron-making furnace was scheduled to be demolished along with several smaller blast furnaces, a steel-making basic oxygen process shop and related equipment at U.S. Steel's Duquesne Works, south of Pittsburgh along the Monongahela River in

The company still intends to level a 100-acre portion of the plant for conversion to an industrial park.

The demolition was delayed until Feb. 2 at the request of union and local officials, who wanted more time for a New York consulting firm to finish studying the feasibility of former furnace workers operating the facilities profitably.

Man wishes for his children at Christmas

By JEFF HANAN

MOUNT PLEASANT, Texas (AP) While most people wish for extra things that would be nice at Christmas time, an East Texas man wishes for something that is rightfully his - his children.

Tommy Modrall has been battling leukemia for more than four years, three of those spent searching for his missing daughters.

After 4½ years of marriage, Modrall and his wife, Diane, filed for divorce, but Mrs. Modrall left the area with the couple's two daughters before the divorce was final.

Modrall, 40, was granted custody of the children after hiring a private detective to find them. He had cusody of the children, Carrie, now 9 and Kimberly, now 6, for about 11/2 years, and Mrs. Modrall was granted visitation rights.

But on Dec. 5, 1981, Modrall let his ex-wife take the children for a visit. Carrie and Kimberly have not been seen since

Modrall's story is a complicated one - his most recent ordeal is not "Even before we were married, she was hiding Heather," said Modrall, referring to his former wife's daughter from a previous marriage. "She made up all kinds of stories about (her previous husband)," Modrall said. "She said he was beating her up, that he was out to kill her and stuff like that. Since then, we have talked to him and found out that none of that was true.'

Shortly after Modrall was diagnosed as having leukemia, and a week after he remarried, Diane Modrall took the two girls.

She told me that she could hide them and that I could never find them," Modrall said. "When they ran off in 1979, we found them in Portland, Oregon.

Then they came back here, moved to Gilmer and it wasn't long after that that she took them again. he said. She and the girls have not been seen since, he said.

Modrall's former wife has two brothers, one living in Portland and the other in Seattle.

The most recent tip on the whereabouts of the girls came more than a year ago, when the FBI informed Modrall that his ex-wife's brother told agents where she was. "He told them where they were, but they (the FBI) never were able to find out where they lived, where they went to school or anything like that," Modrall said. Modrall said his former wife has used a number of aliases during the long ordeal, complicating the "She has used her nickname 'Dee

Dee' and usually picks names that begin with 'D'," he said. "She has gone by Denise and Danel and has also used the last name of Martin. 'I believe that she had this planned all along," he said. "It just went off too smooth." Compounding the problems in Modrall's search is a tangle of bureaucratic red tape.

"People just say 'I don't know' and that's it," he said. "Our problem is trying to get somebody with authority to talk.' J.D. and Lera Modrall, the girls' paternal grandparents, also expressed concern over the snags involved in the investigation. "They have caused us a lot of heartaches and sleepless nights," said J.D. Modrall. "It's just like they disappeared. I just wish there was some way to find them.' Said George Ousterhous, the FBI agent in charge of the case: "In this type of violation, we have no authority to wiretap or to get a court order. We have a lot of techniques, but some we are not able to Diane Modrall is charged with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution, a felony that carries a maximum sentence of five years in prison, a $5,000 fine or both.

The children are listed with a child-find agency in New York, and the Modralls have offered to drop the charges if the children are

"The offer can't stand forever," said Tommy Modrall. "We are just hoping that the offer would get her to bring the kids back."

Dorothy Six, with a 29-foot hearth, was once the world's largest blast furnace, but its technology has been surpassed. U.S. Steel officials say that under current industry conditions, too few orders for steel and too many furnaces, Dorothy Six cannot operate profitably.

Lee Rebels roll over Mustangs

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY Sports Writer

Coach Paul Steuckler and his Midland Lee Rebels basketball team got a nice Christmas turkey a few days early Friday night.

No, not the edible type. This was "a yawner" of a game even in Steuckler's words, as his talented squad buried Andrews 79-49 at the Lee High gym in the team's final outing before the holiday.

As usual, as goes Brian Marczynski, so go the Rebs. Marczynski has in no way carried this team which has playable talent deep along the bench. But he has been the man with the glossy numbers in Lee's 11-3 start, and he drilled in 27 more points against the Mustangs on a variety of jumpers and baseline

"Hey guys," laughed Stueckler amidst his players after the rout, They want to know why nobody's stopped Marczynski. I'll tell you why. Raymond Morney was the key to the Rebels' fast start. Morney caught fire in the second quarter and scored nine points, finishing with 15 at the half.

By that time, Lee had staked a 36-20 lead. If the Mustangs were to make a rally, they had to do so early in the third period. Before the game Rebel coach Paul Steuckler wasn't taking Andrews lightly.

"Our junior varsity team only lost four games last year, and two of them were to Andrews," he warned.

But Stueckler had nothing to worry about, especially after a series of technical fouls called on the Mus-

The call was too quick, in the eyes of Andrews coach Frank Bice, who leapt onto the floor and promptly earned a technical of his own. Then while arguing the call the other official got into the act and slapped the coach with another tech.

Marczynski nailed three of the five tries, and split a pair of throws on a shotting foul seven seconds

Then he swished a 19-footer from the left side and Lee led 42-20. That was about the final nail in the Mustang coffin, and Marczynski went on to another big night.

The Rebs got a boost in the arm with the return of the 6-5 junior Dickens and another football player. Jakie Young. Dickens and Thurman both showed some rustiness, but the ability is not in question.

BYU keeps title hopes glowing

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Robbie Bosco shrugged off a first-period knee and ankle injury and passed No. 1 Brigham Young to a pair of fourthquarter touchdowns that gave the Cougars a 24-17 victory over Michigan in the Holiday Bowl Friday night and may have brought them their first national championship.

Bosco, the nation's total offense leader, threw scoring pases of seven yards to Glen Kozlowski with 10:51 remaining to tie the score and then hit Kelly Smith with a 13-yarder with just 1:23 left for the victory.

The first drive covered 80 yards in eight plays, with Bosco completing six passes in as many attempts for 76 yards. The winning drive took 10 plays and covered 83 yards with Bosco connecting on six of seven passes for 61 yards.

The 6-foot-21/2 junior finished with 30 completions in 42 attempts for 343 yards and his late heroics offset five personal turnovers — three interceptions and two fumbles.

THE VICTORY made the Cinderella Cougars, unranked at the start of the season, only the second. major-college team in the last 80 years to post a 13-0 record. It also was BYU's first perfect campaign in 60 seasons of football and stretched the nation's longest winning streak to 24 games.

Michigan finished 6-6, the first time since 1967 that a Wolverine team had dropped that many games. The setback also gave Michigan's Bo Schembechler, one of the nation's winningest coaches, an embarrassing 2-10 record in bowl games.

Brigham Young committed six turnovers altogether and had a field goal blocked. Michigan took advantage of three of the mistakes, including several costly penalties, to score all its points.

The underdog Wolverines took a 14-10 lead on a 10-yard pass from Chris Zurbrugg to Bob Perryman with 19 seconds left in the third quarter. They made it 17-10 on a 32yard field goal by Bob Bergeron just 46 seconds into the final quarter.

But with its back against the wall and a shot at a possible national championship slipping away, Brigham Young turned to its vaunted passing game to pull out the Bosco hit David Mills for 12 yards one of his 11 catches for 103 yards and then was sacked for a threeyard loss. But he winged a 20-yard pass to Adam Haysbert, hit Mark Bellini for 19 and Mills for nine.

That put the ball at the Michigan 7 and Kozlowski grabbed Bosco's next pass in the rear of the end zone although he was sandwiched by defenseive backs Erik Campbell and Ivan Hicks.

Bosco threw his third interception with 8:23 remaining, a pass that caromed off Kozlowski's hands and was returned 12 yards to the BYU 45 by linebacker Jim Scarcelli. The Wolverines moved to the 34, but linebacker Kurt Gouveia sacked Zurbrugg for a 16-yard loss that pushed them out of field goal range.

Monte Robbins punted to the BYU 17 with 4:36 to go, but Bosco and the Cougars were not to be denied.

THREE RUNNING plays gained 18 yards and Bosco whipped a 20yard pass to Bellini. A face mask penalty against Michigan's Garland Rivers put the ball at the 30 and six plays later the Cougars had the winning touchdown.

A scoreless first period before a sellout crowd of 61,243 in unseasonably chilly 51-degree weather was marred by the injury to Bosco. He suffered a slight ankle sprain and a slightly torn ligament in his left knee and was carried first to the sidelines, and then to the locker

But he trotted back to the bench at the start of the second quarter with his left leg visibly bandaged and he promptly completed five of seven passes for 43 yards and scrambled 13 yards for a key first down as BYU drove 80 yards in 11 plays. Smith's five-yard run through a big hole on the left side of the line gave the Cougars a 7-0 lead midway through the period.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) - Plagued by injuries Stadium. almost from the day they opened training camp five months ago, the Los Angeles Rams received more bad news as they prepared for Sunday's wild-card playoff game against the New York

Outside linebacker George Andrews, who had been sidelined by minor knee surgery six weeks ago, sustained another, more serious injury earlier this week on the threshold of moving back into the starting lineup.

He underwent surgery to repair ligament damage in his left knee Thursday and won't be back again until camp opens next July.

Safety Johnnie Johnson (broken ankle), tight end Mike Barber (knee) and valuable reserve defensive lineman Gary Jeter (back) also missed a lot of time earlier in the season and are just now approaching peak form.

You have to believe that the guys you have playing behind your starters can do the job if they get the chance."

'Mojo Magic' shoots for state title

They call it "Mojo Magic" - but what the Odessa Permian Panthers really have is tradition.

The unbeaten Panthers, 15-0, will have the mystique of being the mightiest Texas high school football power on their side when the tackle underdog Beaumont French today in the Class 5A title game.

Kickoff is set for 12:45 p.m. at Texas Stadium with a statewide television network beaming the game. The game can been seen locally on Channel 9.

There are five title games today to climax a season that began in hot and steamy early September and is finishing three days before Christmas.

French has been underrated all season. The Buffaloes finished second in their district with a 6-4 record, but began a streak of five consecutive victories just in time for the playoffs.

Permian is making its seventh state title appearance and will be going for a fourth title The Denison Yellowjackets and pionship game before and the Yel- yards and scored three touchdowns lowjackets haven't participated in a playoff game since 1965.

"I don't think the perspective will settle for years," said Denison Coach Marty Criswell. "It's been very emotional for everybody. People spend time laughing and crying.

In other title games today, Daingerfield, 14-0-1, tries to repeat as Class 3A king in an 8 p.m. clash with the Medina Valley Panthers, 15-0, in Baylor Stadium. Munday, 15-0, and Union Hill, 14-1, collide at 2 p.m. in Weatherford for the Class A crown. For unbeaten Denison, 15-0, it Greely is a 5-foot-5, 165-pound junior who scored on runs of 55, 21, and 19 yards. He set up another with a 33-yard dash.

Daingerfield has a 31-game unbeaten string on the line at Baylor Stadium. A team hasn't repeated as Class 3A champion since Cuero did it in 1973 and 1974.

Groveton will be trying to makeup for a loss in the 2A finals to Boyd last season while Panhandle is fresh off a 35-0 slaughter of Olney in a semifinal meeting.

Seahawks, Raiders go to basics

SEATTLE (AP) — There's nothing complicated between the defending Super Bowl champion Los Angeles Raiders and Seattle, insists Seahawks head Coach Chuck Knox.

The Seahawks and the Raiders, second and third-place finishers, respectively, in the AFC West, meet in the Kingdome at 3 p.m. CST. The winner will go on to face AFC East champion Miami in Miami Saturday, Dec. 29. The thing we have to do is have a fine focus on what we're doing or it's going to come to a quick end," said Knox, "because we're in a sudden-death, single-elimination tournament." Seattle, which had a 12-4 regular-season National Football League record, will go into the game with a two-game losing streak while the 11-5 Raiders will take a one-game losing mark into the contest. The Seahawks had a chance to win their first division title last Saturday at home against the

'Those people have been there," he said of the Raiders, "and, besides, some of their families probably have already spent that extra money from last season. So I don't think just because they were there last year that they're any less hungry this year.'

Coach Tom Flores of the Raiders will start 14 year veteran Jim Plunkett at quarterback. He called Plunkett off the bench against Pittsburgh to replace fifth-year pro Marc Wilson.

It was the most Plunkett had played since being injured in the sixth game of the season. "It's primarily experience in the playoffs," Flores said in explaining his decision to go with

The following day in Los Angeles, the Raiders said. "Once you go with a quarterback, you want to feel he can get the job done.

The Raiders will be trying to become the first team since Pittsburgh did it in 1978 and 1979 to win successive NFL championships.

In 1980, the Oakland Raiders, coached by Flores, became the only wild-card club in NFL history to win a Super Bowl. 'We've got to play a solid football game,"

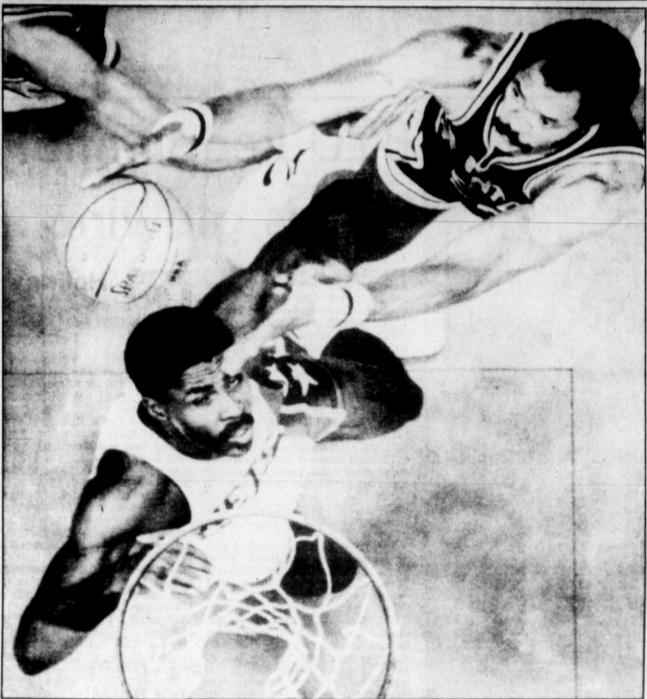

Flores said. "We've got to eliminate the big play. We've got to play good, solid defense and, we have to be more consistent offensively and score some points." Third-year running back Marcus Allen, who

Freshman cager arrested

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Freshman center Chris Washburn was arrested Friday and charged with second-degree burglary in connection with a break-in at the North Carolina State athletic dormitory, and was being held under $1,000 bond, according to

The magistrate, who refused to give his name, said the incident happened the night of Dec. 19 and involved stereo equipment. He said Washburn appeared before a judge in a preliminary hearing

Washburn was dismissed Friday from N.C. State's 14th-ranked basketball team because of "personal behavior," said head Coach Jim Valvano.

"We want to emphasize that his academic progress has been satisfactory, but it appears that he has personal problems that make it inappropriate for him to represent the university or our basketball team," said Valvano in a prepared state"We are all saddened that this step is necessary because Chris is a young man who had been making progress," said Valvano. The 6-foot-11 Washburn, a Hickory, N.C., native, was one of the nation's most highly recruited high school players. He was Parade Magazine national coplayer of the year as a senior, when he averaged 30 points, 17 rebounds and nine blocked shots per

BOWLING BEAT Vera Vincent gives up pins

BY RANDY ISENBERG

Vera Vincent has retired from the Midland bowling scene after 28 years of active service.

Several banquets have been held in honor of her service to the Midland Women's Bowling Association, including a visit by bowling dignitary Lil Poole, the secretary of the Texas Women's Bowling Association. Vincent has been presented a lifetime gold membership pin by the Vincent is truly one of the pio-neers of the early Midland Bowling years, dating back to 1956 when she first served as president of the Mop & Broom Bowling League.

Vincent's bowling story begins in Texarkana, Ark., where she began bowling when "pin boys" were used to set the pins. Vincent says she started bowling to keep from babysitting her daughter Connie and a Her accomplishments read like a Bowling ran deep in the Vincent family. Vera's husband, B.C., was also very active. B.C., a painting contractor, sponsored two teams a year and rolled a 600 series just a few months before his death.

As a bowler, Vera was unable to take the normal four-step approach. A back injury force her to use a twostep approach and she averaged over 140 with this style.

In the last two years, Vera's bowling has been curtailed by an injury she suffered while attending a bowl-

San Francisco quarterback Joe Montana has guided his 49ers to 15 regular season victories in 1984, an NFL first.

Montana key to 49er success

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - While other players broke long-standing individual records this season, Joe Montana settled for a National Football League team record as the San Francisco 49ers' key man. In his sixth NFL season, Montana passed for a career-high 28 touchdowns and ran for two as the 49ers became the first team to win 15 regular season games in one year. They'll take a ninegame winning streak and the NFC West championship into the playoffs next weekend.

The more games we win, the less room there is for losing," Montana said.

It was his way of saying that, having established themselves as heavy favorites to reach Super Bowl XIX, the 49ers are a team under heavy pressure. If they don't claim the National Conference championship, their 15-1 record will be degraded by some, called a reflection more of the team's 1984 schedule than its true strength.

MONTANA IS a $1 million-aseason quarterback now and would reap a hefty bonus, through contract incentive clauses and NFL payoffs, by reaching the Super Bowl. The championship game on Jan. 20 at Stanford Stadium could match Montana against fellow Pennsylvanian Dan Marino, who tossed an NFL-record 48 touchdown passes for the 14-2 Miami Dolphins of the American Confer-

"The fans would love it," 49er receiver Dwight Clark said. "But I don't think Joe is the kind of guy who would look at it like that. He'd see it as Montana against the Killer Bees (Miami defense). He wouldn't go out thinking he has to be better than Ten of the 49ers' regular season games were against teams that finished under .500. They faced only four teams that qualified for the playoffs, beating the Washington Redskins, New York Giants and Los Angeles Rams (twice), and losing 20-17 to the Pittsburgh Steelers.

"But there's no team out there we couldn't have beaten. I believe that," Coach Bill Walsh

Saturday in a playoff test, and it will be put up-or-shut up time for the 49ers.

One must suspect that this will bring out the best in Joe Mon-

"The 15-1 record is something we can look back on. But if we lose in the playoffs, that's it," he "We're in the record book and nothing else after all that hard work. I'd trade it for 9-7 to go all the way to the Super Bowl."

Three years ago, at age 25 and in his first full season as the 49ers' starting quarterback, Montana was named Most Valuable Player in Super Bowl XVI, won by San Francisco 26-21 over the Cincinnati Bengals The 49ers reached their first Super Bowl by driving 89 yards to score against Dallas in the closing minutes of the NFC title game at Candlestick. Montana, throwing on the run on third down, got the football to a leaping Clark in the end zone for a six-yard touchdown play, and Ray Wersching's extra point made the final score

"He handled himself on that long drive just like he did back on Family Day in training camp,' tackle Keith Fahnhorst said o Montana. "It's unbelievable, just unbelievable.

Montana became the 49ers' No. 1 quarterback during 1980, a 6-10 season, after a five-interception day by his predecessor, Steve

One of Montana's first winning efforts with the 49ers was in a team-record comeback performance. Down 35-7 at halftime, the 49ers roared back to beat the New Orleans Saints 38-35.

IN LAST January's NFC title game at Washington, the 49ers were down 21-0 after three periods. Montana then passed for three touchdowns within a 21/2minute span but the 49ers fell 24-21 when pass interference penalties helped the Redskins drive for a late field goal.

Montana, the NFC's top passer this season and the all-time NFL leader under its quarterback ranking system, is right on Walsh's schedule.

Montana wants to prove it now with a second Super Bowl ring.

Seahawks, Giants get playoff nod

By DAVE GOLDBERG AP Sports Writer

One rule for the playoffs is to pick the hot team. Or, as Kenny Easley of the Seattle Seahawks says: 'It's not necessarily the best team that gets to the Super Bowl, it's the hottest Someone's going to have to get hot quickly the four teams that play in this weekend's wild-card games all lost their last games. In fact, the Seattle Seahawks and New York Giants lost their

Now let's go to Joe Theismann of the Washington Redskins, who won their last game and don't have to play for another week. "It's the playoffs," he says. "Everyone who's in it starts 0-0."

So here's a look at the first four 0-0 teams.

To put it another way, guess the identity of the only wild-card team ever to win a Super Bowl.

On the other hand, as they say at Moe's Deli, Seattle ain't chopped liver. They have Kenny Easley, Jacob Green, Joe Nash and a defense that led league in takeaways; they have Dave Krieg and Steve Largent, and they have the Kingdome crowd, which is guaranteed to drown out the signals of Jim Plunkett, who starts at quarterback for the Raiders over Marc Wilson. In fact, that teams in the league — Eric Dickerson right, Eric

Then there are the Giants, who probably played the worst game played by any NFL team this season in losing to the Rams 33-12 in Anaheim last September. Among other things, they allowed an NFL-record three safeties in one period. They also may have played the second worst game in their 10-3 loss to New Orleans last

But Phoenix-like (no relation to the Eagles), they tend to rise from the ashes to clobber teams like the Cowboys or the Redskins. They're missing All-Pro cornerback Mark Haynes, but the secondary isn't where the Rams are best prepared to attack.

Schott takes shot at Reds

Schott, a Cincinnati auto dealer who had been a minority partner in ownership of the Cincinnati Reds. has purchased a majority share of the National League club, the team announced Friday. Schott, who had been one of 11 minority partners, has bought controlling interest from brothers James R. Williams and William J. Williams, who have been co-chairmen and co-owners of the Reds.

The Reds, who play their home games at Riverfront Stadium, will remain in Cincinnati, team officials told a news conference at the stadium Friday.

THE AMOUNT of the purchase wasn't announced. Team officials said at the end of the 1984 season that the ballclub lost about $4 mil-

Schott, one of the more publicly visible owners, showed up at the news conference with her St. Bernard dog, Schottzie, who was wearing a Reds' baseball cap. Schott then handed out little Reds helmets as decorative ornaments.

Schott said she bought controlling interest in the team because she was concerned that the Williams brothers might sell the ballclub to an outof-city group if no one stepped forward locally to buy the Reds, baseball's oldest professional team. The Reds trace their history back to an 1869 practice game.

"This is our Christmas gift to the people of Cincinnati. I hope they are as happy as I am. I think I'm going to cry," Schott told a news conference.

Army worries Perles

Associated Press

Michigan State Coach George Perles apparently would like to keep things simple as his Spartan's take on bowl newcomer Army in the Cherry Bowl today.

Unfortunately, the Cadets may not be very accommodating.

"Army's wishbone offense is a very, very complicated one," Perles says. "It looks like it's the same thing over and over from the stands, but it isn't. They have different reads, different people that they're keying on, and they run the wishbone as well as anyone in the country now.

KICKOFF FOR the Cherry Bowl, which will be televised in many parts of the country by the !Mizlou network, was scheduled for noon CST in the Silverdome in

Two other bowl games were set for Saturday: Georgia, 74, vs. No. 15 Florida State in the Florida Citrus Bowl at Orlando (11:30 a.m. CST-NBC), and Tennessee, 7-3-1, vs. No. 12 Maryland, 8-3, in the Sur Bowl at El Paso, Texas (2 p.m. CST-CBS). "We're not taking them lightly," Michig an State linebacker Jim Morrissey says of Army. "We've seen the films. They're a fine football team. They go up and down the field. They never make mistakes. They don't turn the ball over.'

Army, 7-3-1 this season, has never been in a bowl game, while Michigan State has not been to postseason play since the 1966 Rose Bowl.

Coach Jim Young believes the key to the contest could be Army's ability to control Michigan State's size. The Cadets run a ball-control wishbon e, seldom throwing, and accumulated 4,390 total yards. Two runners, quarterback Nate Sassaman and fullback Doug Black, gained more than 1,000 yards each.

'Michigan State will be much bigger than we will," Young said. "Their defense is excellent. Looking at film, they have the best overall defense we've met.

Michigan State, a four-point favorite, limited opponents to just 3,614 yards this season, but they did not face a wishbone attack. Florida State also is a four-point favorite, and Mary-ers to one another. Georgia leads the overall series 5-4, having won the last four times. The Bulldogs, facing the prospect of finishing out of the national rankings for the first time in five years, have lost three in a row, during which their defense has yielded 83 points. Georgia's Vince Dooley has lost four games in a row only twice during his 21 seasons as

"All I know is that in this business, if you stay in it long enough, everything that can happen to you will," Dooley said Friday. "I just hope it will happen another time, not tomorrow.

FLORIDA STATE quarterback Eric Thomas threw for 1,218 yards and 14 touchdowns this season, while Georgia has only two players who have accounted for more than 500 yards offense. Andre "Pulpwood" Smith ran for 655 yards and quarterback Todd Williams had 620 yards passing and another 163 rushing.

Maryland and Tennessee will be facing each other for the fourth time in postseason in the Sun Bowl. Last year, the Terrapins lost 30-23 to Tennessee in the

"We're always seen as a team who can't win the big ones," Maryland quarterback Frank Reich said. "If we win this one, I think that not only will it put us in the top 10, but it will prove to people we can win the big games." Reich passed for 1,446 yards this season with a school-record 64 percent completion rate.

Musicians making most of Christmas

By PHILIP ELWOOD Hearst News Service

Christmas carols are the oldest and the most popular body of North European folk songs in America. Here are a number of recordings, mostly recent and still available, that are favorites within the traditional Christmas vernacular music

"The Holly and the Ivy," by Made-line MacNeil (Kicking Mule), is a beautiful combination of voices and hammer dulcimers, harpsichord, guitar and flute. Ms. MacNeil and her 10 colleagues are from rural Virof music played by the ensemble at Belle Grove Estate, Middletown, Va., each Christmas. Lovely sounds are highlighted by Ms. MacNeil's gorgeous, light soprano voice. The material is from the 13th century ("Of the Father's Love Begotten") through the 16th ("Blessed Be That Maid Marie") and some a bit newer.

"A Collection of Favourite Christmas Carols," by the New American Guitar Ensemble (Revere Records), features Lewis Ross on acoustic steel-string guitars. On some tracks Ross uses up to six parts (each of which he overdubbed) to create a warm "guitar gamelan" sound. These are mostly familiar hymns, but they're presented in a distinctive, attractive manner.

On "Pastime With Good Company - Dulcimer Music for the Christmas Season" (Kicking Mule), producer Robert Force has taken 10 contemporary instrumentalists (dulcimer, harp, cello, guitar, etc.) and given them a track or two to play old seasonal tunes. Janita Baker, Neal Hellman, Michael Rugg, Brian Ruffo and others get way back on this one, as well as performing some carol "standards" with remarkable care and Another appropriate recent release is "John McCutcheon — Winter Solstice" (Rounder), on which McCutcheon's dulcimer, a small backup ensemble and members of the Washington Bach Concort join together. Most of the numbers are familiar standards, but some are quite interesting resurrections like "Un Flambeau, Jeanette Isabella" or Handel's "For Unto Us a Child Is Born." Here's a gorgeous recording with a splendid balance between instruments and voices.

Guitarist John Fahey has issued a number of Christmas-oriented LPs over the years. "John Fahey's Guitar Solo Christmas Album" (Takoma) and "Popular Songs of Christmas and New Year's" with Terry Robb (Varrick) are the best. Fahey is a technical master who uses shadings, strange and rich chords and other artistry to create distinctive sounds. Some of his selections on the "Popular Songs" LP aren't fully Christmasy, but they're in the holiday mood. The solo album is a must, with both familiar and unfamiliar Master of the Spanish guitar Charlie Byrd has two solo LPs still available. The older, "Christmas Carols for Solo Guitar" (Columbia), has been around for years, while "The Charlie Byrd Christmas Album" (Concord)" dates back to 1982. Byrd's careful picking and the beautiful tone he achieves make these discs as mellow as a glass of port after Christmas dinner. His "Coventry Carol" ("Lully, Lullay"), "Holly and the Ivy" and "Good King Wenceslas" are especially bright.

"David Grisman's Acoustic Christmas" (Rounder) is mandolinist Grisman's crisp, swinging versions of material old and new. On some tracks there are recorders, fiddles, mandola, etc. There's even a hurdy-gurdy (played by Lyn Elder) on Good King Wenceslas." From Respighi to Irving Berlin, Grisman bounces through everything.

Although certainly not of the American folk-music scene, The Waverly Consort's "Renaissance Christmas Celebration" (Columbia) utilizes some of the same instruments we've become used to in the U.S. in traditional carol performance — woodwinds, fiddles, gui-tars. Playing 16th and 17th century orks, the consort's sounds are like an ancient organ in performance.

RCA Victor has given its assurance that "Christmas With the Canadian Brass and the Great Organ of St. Patrick's Cathedral" is still available three years after issue. If so, you'll find the combined brass horntones and the reedy woodiness of the organ a grand blend, indeed. Especially on the old traditional Christmas hymns ("O Come, All Ye. "The First Noel" and others), the burnished brass notes and the booming organ create magnificent musical structures.

A fine LP to have on the turntable during the holiday season is "A Music Box Christmas" (Columbia). Eighteen selections ("O Sanctissima" to "Jingle Bells") are played on authentic 19th century music boxes. The effect is startling. Along with a crackling log fire and a cup of Christmas cheer, the music box sounds create a splendid holiday atmosphere in the parlor.

Beulah holds onto hotel room, life with 'beautiful people

By WILLIAM E. GEIST New York Times News Service

NEW YORK - Bianca, Brooke, Bjorn, Bette and Beulah slept here, at Morgans, a new hotel on Madison Avenue opened by Steve Rubell of Studio 54 fame as host to the hip.
So, who the heck is Beulah? Beulah Baer: a sprightly 96-year-old who would not leave when her old building was converted to this "boutique hotel."

She has a People magazine that she has been reading to help her figure out just who in the heck all these people in the halls and on the elevators are anyway: Halston, Cal-vin Klein, Diane Von Furstenberg, Andy Warhol. She thinks she recognized "that British fella," that rockand-roll singer. Mick Jagger? "That's the one," she says with a smile.

Beulah says everything but her is up to date - up to the nanosecond at Morgans. The men who open the door for her and the desk clerks who take her messages are freshfaced and tucked into uniforms by Georgio and Calvin. Rubell sends them for haircuts to the Astor Place Barbershop, the East Village shop specializing in all that is important today, hairwise.

Fashion models are being photographed up in the bathrooms, which are designed by Andree Putman, described by Vanity Fair as today's "most exciting interior designer. The bathrooms have stainless-steel sinks - from airplanes. The rooms are equipped with lots of electronic equipment. Zolatone, known as 'Monet in a can," is on the walls not some old wallpaper. There are no spreads on the beds; bedspreads are not happening. Avant-garde Mapplethorpe photographs are hap-pening and his signed works are on the walls in every room. Calvin's jump suits are on the housekeepers. Bianca Jagger is in the elevator.

There she goes now.

Beulah Baer is up in Room 407.

She has been there for 58 years, the first one to move into the new building, between 37th and 38th streets, in 1927. Miss Baer - "Never married, too busy" — stepped into the elevator one day last week, unfazed by a man with a spike haircut. "Good morning," she said cheerily. Heading out the door, she said to the doormen: "See you later boys, I hope" - a reference to the vagaries of life at 96.

"The staff is all so friendly," she said. Rubell said he hires them that way, explaining: "None are from New York."

"There used to be so many trees in the neighborhood," Miss Baer said, walking along Madison Avenue using her cane, "and Steve Rubell is planting trees in front. He is such a nice young man.'

'It's a late-night crowd at the hotel," she said, over split-pea soup at a restaurant around the corner. "I guess they act kind of silly sometimes, but so did I. I loved the nightlife. I can sleep as late as they do.'

Later, she would tell Rubell: "Now you tell me if I cause too much trouble. I can be kind of bad sometimes. Really. I have friends in, and sometimes they stay late. We do a little drinking.

'Beulah is a good biblical name," said Miss Baer, who was raised a Southern Baptist. "I should be a better person, but you kind of go with the crowd.

"I like my cocktails," she explained. "Gin. We used to stir it up in the bathtub during Prohibition. I was seeing a handsome captain from Governors Island then. Handsome. I always liked older men. They seemed to have more sense and more money.

"I had a lot of beautiful relationships," she said with a wink.
"I don't throw my bottles in the trash," she said. "I wrap them in brown paper and sneak them out to a public receptacle. I don't want to get Mr. Rubell in trouble. He doesn't have a liquor license.'

"But I look for the good in every-body," she said. "When you say nasty things about people, you're saying something nasty about your-self. Remember that."

"I went to Studio 54 once," she said. "I didn't see Steve. I just wanted to check it out." Ah, but she was younger then, she noted -

"I read about that birthday party the Jaggers had here for their daughter," she said, "but I didn't go. I don't feel like getting dressed up, and you don't get excited about celebrities when you've been in New York as long as I have.

"I used to be somebody too, you know," she said. She came to New York in 1919 to open the city's first passport office. "Wealthy and famous people were the only ones who traveled abroad," she recalled, "and I met them all."

She has books autographed by Edith Wharton and, in her scrapbook, autographs and notes from the likes of Lillian Gish, Douglas Fairbanks, Mary Pickford, Lionel Barry more, Sophie Tucker and Hedda Hopper. She has saved several newspaper articles written about her, in which she is nicknamed "The Passport Lady." Will Rogers wrote about her for The Saturday Evening Post

and she wound up in "Who's Who of American Women

She lives on her government pension in a room that has not been redecorated. Rubell said he cannot afford to put a lot of money into a rent-controlled apartment that Miss Baer pays him $78 a month for. Said Miss Baer: "It's fine with me, and nobody ever suggested I leave."

"But," she said, turning to Rubell, "you'd better fix the bathroom the workers messed up, and paint the workers messed up, and paint the closet. Those guys took my little footstool and I can't reach the Ritz crackers!" Rubell said that he would, right away, and Miss Baer smiled and said: "Isn't he nice?"

Valuable etchings, prints reported missing since July

BALTIMORE (AP) - Forty-two 42 valuable prints and etchings worth $280,000, including 21 Rembrandts, have been missing from the Baltimore Museum of Art since last July but were not reported until this week, the city comptroller announced Friday. Comptroller Hyman A. Pressman the museum filed an insurance claim for the missing works, which he said were fully insured but were 'irreplaceable. The museum's director said the revelation was delayed by the need for an extensive inventory to see if the works had been misplaced, and said he learned of the losses when that Pressman's announcement went against an FBI request for two weeks of silence. The most valuable items were a Rembrandt print, "The Flight Into Egypt," and a Durer work, "St.

Jerome in his Cell 'each worth $35,000, Pressman said. The director of the city-owned museum, Arnold L. Lehman, said he was not certain when the artworks were removed because they were part of a huge temporary storage plan started in 1979 to make room for renovations. He said each item had been examined or inventoried sometime from the fall of 1982 through spring

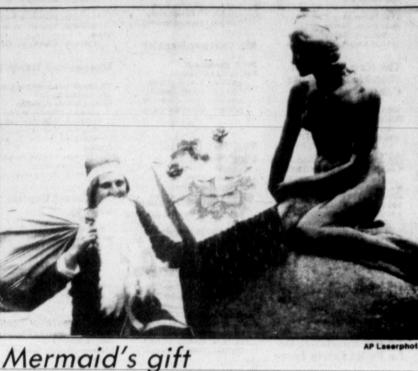

Lehman said that when the artworks were discovered missing last July, museum officials began a thorough search through the museum's inventory of 80,000 works

"We're talking about a handful of (missing) prints," Lehman said. "As soon as we had any indication that works were not where they should be, we immediately undertook an inventory of the collection.'

With 80,000 works, you can imagine, and with the works being used on a constant basis, it is conceivable that the works had been misplaced, misfiled in several boxes. So we did what we thought was responsible before getting to the public, or even getting back to our own board of trustees — acting professionally to ascertain if indeed we had a loss," Lehman said.

Lehman said he was upset that Pressman called a news conference to announce the disappearance because the FBI entered the case Thursday and asked him to keep it quiet for at least two weeks so an undercover investigation could be conducted.

Pressman said he announced the oss because he believed the public had a right to know, and FBI spokes-man Andrew Manning said his agency never told Lehman to keep the matter confidential.

Austin Christmas Collection building musical tradition

Copenhagen's Little Mermaid gets an early visit from Santa.

By BOB DARDEN

AUSTIN (AP) - Craig D. Hillis produces records. In the past he's been a manager, promoter and public relations man. The past three years his small Austin record label, Felicity, has released a number of albums. Felicity is particularly visible around Christmas when it releases the wellloved "Austin Christmas Collection" albums.

This year sees the Collection issue its third edition, which has become a popular item in record stores throughout the state. In making the Collection album, Hill asks top Austin-area musicians to contribute one Christmas-related song.

This year, Willie Nelsons sings 'Silent Night' and Ernie Sky and the K-Tels perform "All I've Got for Christmas Is the Blues." In years past, Steve Fromholtz offered "The Christmas Song," Rusty Weir did Santa Claus is Back in Town," Carolyn Hester did "Happy Birthday, Jesus" and Cactus Pryor read "Is There a Santa Claus?'

That's in addition to dozens of lesser-known, but no less talented, Texas musicians offering their own unique interpretations of famous and obscure Christmas carols, hymns and pop songs. had the idea years and years ago," Hillis said. "It was a logicial progression: Since there are so many bands here and there's such a healthy music scene with so many clubs and so much original music, I though there'd be enough to do an Austin Christmas album. Probably a lot of other people had that same thought earlier. We just had the wherewithal to do it. "The first one was in 1981. In 1982, we re-released the first one because we were still paying for it. The second one didn't come until 1983, and this year's is the third one. Although I think all of them are good, I think this year's is the best because of better production and mastering techniques and skills on our part. The Austin Christmas Collection First Edition" sold 4,500 units in Austin alone, which makes it the best-selling regional album in Austin

Hillis says he has a simple way of working out the contracts with so many diverse artists. The majority of the artists are either unrecorded or on their own labels," he said. "They are no problem. A lot are between labels these days since labels aren't signing peo-TEXAN DRIVE INN - "Breakin" ple like they used to. That's no problem. A few, like Willie, pretty much write their own ticket. But for the others, if I have to deal with some accountant out in

Beverly Hills, I simply won't fool with them. If we can't work it out, I just don't mess with it. That's the beauty of living in Austin. We're certainly not short on artists or music down here. As producer, Hillis tries to match artist with material. Sometimes the group will suggest a tune, sometimes Hillis does the suggesting. He also vious LPs. 'Well, we do have two versions of Elvis' 'Santa Claus is Back in Town,' but they are totally different," he said. "I know all of their styles, so I suggested to Extreme Heat, for example 'I'll Be Home for Christmas.' 14K, on the other hand, came up with their own version of Ring Christmas Bells (Ukrainian tries to avoid duplicating from pre-carol).' I said, 'That's great, we won't change a thing' and went in and recorded it.

Hillis' one criterion is that the artist either lives in Austin, is from Austin originally, or has influenced the Austin music scene. Folk singer Carolyn Hester was a natural because she's from Austin and lives there now. Englishman Arthur Brown - best known for 1969's monster hit 'Fire' - now lives in Virtually every song has somethign to recommend it, but a few stand out, including Beto y los Fairlanes' "We Three Kings" on the first edition. Tomas Ramirez's "Silent Night' from the second, and Brown's "The Lord of the Dance," from the third.

"Those three are classics," Hillis said. "Beto is definitely a brilliant arranger. Some day I'd like to take a vacation and crawl around in his mind and see where all of this stuff comes from. The arrangement of We Three Kings' is unique, so progressive, my words can't touch it. You have to hear it to believe it.

'Tomas' 'Silent Night' is another. Believe it or not, when I asked Tomas if he had something he could wrap that big saxophone for Christmas, he said his uncle taught him a nice arrangement for 'Silent Night' a long time ago. I don't know who his uncle is, but he must be a heck of a sax player.

'Arthur's 'Lord of the Dance' is entirely his own, something he put together in the attic of his mind. When I approached him about doing a song for the 'Third Edition' he went right away and cut this one in his studio. It's just a reel, an old English ballad of some sort. But when he was through, it was something entirely different. We remixed it here, but there was so much neat stuff going on, deciding what to mix up or down was like bobbing for

The three album covers have the same basic design on the front, except that each year has a background of a different color. Austin artist Dick Reeves did the original artwork.

Although he's proud of the success of the "Austin Christmas Collection." Hillis is quick to point out that's not all Felicity does. 'We haven't released too many albums: we're not trying to be the next CBS. We just want to release good music for people who care about it. We've done the reunion of Frummox, an Austin 'all-stars' album with various artists and we've just released a single by Steve Fromholtz and Willie Nelson titled Hondo's Song.' It's a song about Hondo Crouch that Steve wrote ears ago. We've also got a Steve Fromholtz live album.

"Still, I don't have any plans to quit making these Christmas albums, but I think after the fifth year we'll stop and take a look back on what we've done. It might be a good point to re-release all five LPs in one, low-cost package. Then the next year or so, I'd like to do a 'best of' collection, as well.

'I have a lot of goals for the Christmas albums yet. I still want Michael Murphy - who I used to manage - to cut us a song. We've contacted Delbert McClinton, Grimalkin, Joe Ely, Bert Rivera and some others. I'd like to reform both Uncle Walt's Band and Kiwi for songs. But there's lots of time yet."

What is the WORD of Christmas? Is it, "Merry Christmas!" or "Season's Greetings"? Perhaps some would suggest that the word is "giving" or "receiving." John would suggest to us the word is "life." It speaks of why (John 1:4) Christ came.

"What then shall we do?" He replied with radical bluntness, 'He who has two coats, let him share with him who has none; and he who has food, let him do likewise."

He also had special answers for specific cases. To tax collectors under Roman occupation, he said, "Collect no more than is appointed you." To soldiers, he said, "Rob no one by violence or by false accusa-

That was the "good news" of the coming of the mature Jesus, and not long afteward, he appeared there on that riverbank to be baptized. John, stunned and suddenly overcome, WASHINGTON (AP) - After being prohibited for a decade under a court order, a Nativity scene this year was back in Ellipse park behind the White House, installed by the U.S. Interior Department despite some protests.

The display had been part of an annual Christmas pageant for many years until barred by a federal court

But the scene was restored this Christmas under a decision by the U.S. Supreme Court last March, upholding the placing of a creche in a park in Pawtucket, R.I.

Protests against the capital display came from the American Jewish Committee, the Lutheran Council of the U.S.A., the American Civil Liber ties Union and some others, claiming the issue remains unsettled.

Bishops apply pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's Roman Catholic bishops are stepping up pressures on the Reagan administration's policies toward South Africa, particularly for not opposing South Africa's military occupation of neighboring Namibia.

The bishops' president, Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, said in a letter to President Reagan that current U.S. policy "is alienating the black people of Namibia and other African countries and has the cruel result of prolonging the suffering of the Namibian people.'

Malone said detentions without trials are continuing there, along with "beating, torture, spare diet and solitary confinement.

Malone note that the United Nations General Assembly, the U.N. Security Council and the International Court of Justice have concluded that South Africa's occupation of Namibia is "contrary to international law and should be terminated immediately.

Prices and taxes are high and you can't save money like you used to; and things were bad in general, and a man couldn't even dare to hope for such a house, and so on. Ben listened to all this negativism patiently and, when it ended, went back inside the house. He got an old shoe box, put some adhesive tape around it to keep the top on, cut a little slot in the top and lettered 'Building Fund" on it. Then he went back outside and said to the house painter, "John, have you got any change in your pocket?" John pulled out a handful of change and Ben selected a dime. 'John," he said, "you know the old saying, 'Mighty oaks from little acorns grow.' Well, this is only a thin dime, but I'm going to put it in this box." As it dropped through the slot, he said, "There's the beginning of a beautiful new house for you. And that is good sound truth. For when you deeply image a goal, it takes hold of you. Then your hold on it becomes creative.

Ben gave the painter a sound and very wise talk on saving. "It's not a very popular philosophy nowadays, but it's still true that 'A penny saved is a penny earned'." Another thing he suggested was that the painter take one penny out of every dime and one dime out of every dollar and give it to God as a tithe. He quoted the Bible which says, "Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse and prove me now herewith...if I will not open you the window of heaven, and pour you out a blessing to receive it.' 'So important do I regard this law of giving," said Ben to the painter. 'that I'll guarantee that anyone who sincerely shares spiritually, will find

Governors want panel to study tax proposals' impact on oil-producers

AUSTIN (AP) — The governors of Texas and Oklahoma directed the Interstate Oil Compact Commission Friday to form a task force to study the impact of federal tax revision proposals on oil-producting states.

Texas Gov. Mark White and Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh were recently elected co-chairmen of the IOCC, an organization of 30 oil ad gas producing states concerned with conservation of oil and gas to expand U.S. supplies. "If the administration's tax program goes through, it will further depress oil and gas production in Texas," said White. "It would reduce the number of new wells drilled and lead to the premature abandoment of existing wells. This would only increase the severance tax shortfall, aggravating Texas' budget problems.'

Bill will punish computer invaders

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, and Rep. Barry Connelly, R-Houston, say they have a computer crime bill that will punish those who invade computer systems. "Sen. Montford and I recognize there is a serious gap in state law regarding prosecution for breach of computer security," Connelly said. "It is hypocritical for Texas to be on the cutting edge of 'high-tech' but not to have laws that prohibit unauthorzied and reckless access to information in computers. We must give the private sector the tools they need to combat

The Montford-Connelly legislation makes it a Class A misdemeanor for a person to knowing break a computer security code and makes it a thirddegree felony for a person to use a computer to devise a scheme to avoid payment for goods or service.

Official: There's shortage of vaccine

AUSTIN (AP) - Health care providers should postpone diptheria-tetanus-pertussis booster immunizations until more of the vaccine is available, State Health Commissioner Robert Bernstein said Friday. Pharmaceutical companies halted production of the DTP vaccine this year due to fear of expensive damage suits. About one in 300,000 children have bad side effects as a result of the shot. Bernstein said the first three DTP immunizations - give at ages two, four and six months — should be given as usual. But the booster vaccine usually given at 18 months and 46 years should be delayed "until greater supplies are available.'

If the shortage extends into the next school year, students might have to take alternate shots to meet public school requirements.

Chamber against gay rights laws

HOUSTON (AP) - A city councilman who opposes two gay rights measures facing Houston voters says the town's Chamber of Commerce will run a quiet campaign against the ordinances.

Councilman John Goodner said Thursday he has been told the campaign would be "very nice and polite" so Chamber members could avoid being branded as bigots and racists and all that humbug like I have been.

Houston voters will decide Jan. 19 the fate of the referendum, which would prohibit the city from considering sexual orientation in making hir-

On Tuesday members of the Chamber's executive committee voted unani-mously to seek either city council repeal of the measures or to fight for the issues' defeat at the polls.

Grant awarded to ministries

AUSTIN (AP) - A $25,000 government grant was awarded Friday to the Houston Metropolitan Ministries for its runaway outreach program.

The money, administered by the Texas Department of Community Affairs, will be used in a program aimed at preventing young people from running away, according to Gov. Mark White.

The program provides emergency shelter, counseling, job referral and high school equivalency programs.

Lawmakers favor free trade zone

They say it would limit illegal immigration

By PEGGY ROBERSON Hearst News Service

WASHINGTON - A free trade zone 200 miles on each side of the U.S.-Mexican border where citizens could move freely and goods could be imported without restriction would help slow down illegal immigration, Rep. Bill Richardson, D-N.M., said Friday.

Richardson, chairman of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, and others on a recent 14-day trip to Latin America, discussed the idea with Mexican President Miguel de la Madrid who promised to create a joint commission and "talk about it."

At a press conference at the U.S. Capitol, Richardson also urged the creation or expansion of aid programs to encourage the transfer of high technology from the U.S. to Latin American countries.

He wants to create a consortium of border universities in touching on Mexico or the Gulf of Mexico that would set up a "learning center" with hemispheric universities to promote cooperation in education, agriculture and medicine. The New Mexico congressman envisions the University of New Mexico as the lead university" in the proposed undertaking.

The "twin plant" concept already in operation on the Mexican side of the border, should be expanded to the U.S., Richardson suggested. to the U.S. to help harvest perishable crops then return them to Mexico, Richardson said. Now, raw materials or partially-completed products are shipped from the U.S. to be finished in Mexico.

"In the past, the Mexicans considered illegal immigration to be a U.S. problem," Richardson said. Now, however, because the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration bill came close to passage in the last session of Congress and will be reintroduced in the new session, the Mexicans are willing to talk, Richardson said. Whether it will lead to something substantive, I don't know," he

Speaking to reporters for Southwestern newspapers after the press conference, Richardson said the Hispanic Caucus will make good on its pledge to propose an alternative to Simpson-Mazzoli, to be ready shortly after Congress reconvenes on Jan.

"We don't want to be obstructionists," he said. "We want a bill that is passable and one that takes into account the rights of all Americans. Simpson-Mazzoli is too restrictive and it won't work.

The Mexican government is particularly opposed to Simpson-Mazzoli's "guest worker" program that

At the press conference, Richardson was joined by Rep. Esteban Torres, D-Calif., one of the four men on the trip to Latin America. Others were Rep. Robert D. President Reagan is the only person who could influence Pinochet to ease up on repressive tactics against opposition political leaders, Richardson said. "He (Reagan) is one of the few Americans he respects.

He will urge the U.S. to "talk to and encourage leaders of the opposition" to Pinochet's rightist opponents of his leftist government.

To be consistent, Richardson said, he has to condemn violations of human rights whether from the right or from the left. In the past, he has voted against continued U.S. funding of the Nicaraguan guerrillas, or "contras," but now, he said, he doesn't know how he will vote. "I'm in a quandary," he said. NASA announces schedule of shuttle missions for '85

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - The space information about the cargo, but sources have agency announced Friday it plans six shuttle missions in the first seven months of 1985, starting with the Department of Defense flight next month which will carry a secret cargo.

The flight manifest, released at the headquarters of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, calls for a flight a month through May, skipping June, then a Spacelab flight in July.

NASA officials said a manifest for the balance of 1985 is incomplete but should be released next month. It may include six more missions, most of which will involve the launch of communications

The flights, lasting a total of 30 days, not counting the military mission, will carry a total of 36 astronauts into orbit with shuttles Discovery and Challenger each making three flights.

The schedule includes the launch of six communications satellites, recovery of a scientific satellite and two Spacelab missions.

The first mission, aboard Discovery, is the Defense Department flight set for launch Jan. 23. The government has said it will not release any described it as an intelligence-gathering satellite to be launched into orbit over the Soviet Union.

NASA did not announce how many crewmembers the flight would have, but the Air Force confirmed earlier there would be three NASA astronauts and an Air Force captain on Information about the length of the mission was also withheld. But it is expected to be the shortest of next year's shuttle flights.

On Feb. 20, Challenger will be launched with a crew of six on a four-day mission that will include the launch of two communications satel-

One of these satellites, the Tracking and Data Relay Satellite-B, will be the second of a communications systems to be used by NASA to relay TV pictures and high data rate signals to Earth, giving virtually 100 percent communications between shuttles and the Earth during subsequent missions. tion during World War II. Ustinov The 76-year-old Politburo member made his mark in arms production and management and helped develop the Soviets' nuclear capacity and space program. He had pre-sided over the Soviet military machine as defense minister since

In March of that year, Ustinov became a full Politburo member. Although his previous experience had been in production and management, Ustinov was given the rank of army general when he was named to succeed Marshal Andrei A. Grechko as defense minister. Four months later, Ustinov was named a marshal of the Soviet Union.

Ustinov held major posts in both the Soviet Communist Party and the government under five leaders, from Josef Stalin to Konstantin U.

become a Kremlin power in his own right, and to have played an important role in the naming of Yuri V. Andropov to succeed Leonid I. Brezhnev as Communist Party chairman and president.

When Andropov died in February, Western experts on Kremlin politics also believed that Ustinov was one of the elder Politburo power brokers who assured that Chernenko took over Andropov's posts.

Ustinov also was thought to have taken a key role in the Soviet decision to break off the Geneva arms control talks in late 1983. Andropov, then the Soviet leader, was ailing at the time.

During his term as defense minister the Soviets deployed new medium-range nuclear missiles, the SS20s. NATO argued that those missiles represented a new threat to Western Europe, and developed its own medium range weapons, the Pershing 2 and cruise missiles.

Deployment of those missiles led the Soviets to break off arms reduction talks in Geneva in late 1983.

Ustinov also was in charge of the Soviet military when 80,000 soldiers moved into Afghanistan in 1979 to aid the pro-Soviet government in its fight against Afghan rebels. As a young and untested arms commissar more than 40 years ago, Ustinov was responsible for produc-ing the weapons that helped the unprepared Soviet army defeat the invading forces of Hitler's Nazi Ger-

However, during Ustinov's tenure the relatively good relations deteriorated to what the Soviets have characterized as the worst East-West relations since the end of World War II.

Arms control talks faltered. The United States did not ratify the SALT II treaty, and the Soviets continued to build up their SS-20 missile Ustinov was born to a worker's family in the Volga River city of Kuibyshev Oct. 30, 1908, and was graduated from the Leningrad Military Mechanical Institute. Stalin's purges of the Soviet military and

Communist Party in the 1930s left the country reliant on young, untried men such as Ustinov to organize the war effort against the Nazis. Following the war, Ustinov became minister for armaments. and in 1953 he took on the broader portfolio of minister of the defense industry. In that job, he is credited with advancing the Soviet rocket and manned space program that led to the first manned space mission of Yuri Gagarin in 1961.

Under Nikita S. Khrushchev, Ustinov temporarily stepped out of the military establishment to head what was then the top economic planning and administrative body in the country.

He survived Khrushchev's ouster in 1964 to become a candidate, or non-voting member of the ruling Politburo in 1965. Two years later he became a first deputy of the Council of Ministers, the Soviet government apparatus.

Although he spent a lifetime on the civilian side of the Soviet military, he received two major military decorations before becoming defense minister: The Order of Suvorov and the Order of Kutuzov, both named after victorious czarist generals. Ustinov also held a Stalin prize and at least five Orders of royal family gathered Friday at Windsor Castle for the christening of 3-month-old Prince Henry, second son of the Prince and Princess of Wales and third in line to the throne.

Royal family gathers for Henry's christening

The notable absence of his aunt, Princess Anne, caused press speculation she was annoyed at not being chosen as a godparent for Henry.

The baby, known to his family and most of the British public as Prince Harry, was christened Prince Henry Charles Albert David by Archbishop of Canter-bury Robert Runcie in the castle's 15th-century St. George's Chapel, burial place of 10 British monarchs. It was the first time in nearly 100 years that the chapel was used for a royal christening.

"He only cried for two or three minutes while the archbishop was blessing the holy water," said a member of the choir who did not want to be identified.

He was quiet as a mouse throughout the rest of the baptism," the choir member said.

Reporters were barred from the 20-minute christening, which Buckingham Palace called a "private family occasion." However, it is thought that a television crew recorded the event for showing on Christmas Day, and photographs are to be released on Dec. 27.

Instead of going to the cere-mony, Anne and her husband, Capt Mark Phillips, went shooting with friends at their Gatcombe Park estate, 110 miles northwest of London, according to the Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency.

Victor Chapman, deputy Buckingham Palace press secretary, said the couple "had a private engagement at Gatcombe Park." He would neither deny nor confirm that the engagement was a shooting party.

Chapman described as "absolutely wrong" suggestions that Anne skipped the christening because she was angered over not being a godparent, but he gave no further explanation for her

The princess' two children, Peter, 7, and Zara, 3, were among the guests.

Chapman said the princess and her husband would join the rest of the royal family Friday night for the family's traditional Christmas stay at Windsor Castle, the 800-year-old royal fortress 22 miles west of London.

Anne, noted for her frequent public outbursts, has always been one of the royal family's most controversial figures. Speculation that her marriage is on the rocks - consistently denied - is a perennial gossip item in the British press.

Rumors have been circulating for weeks that a rift developed between Charles and his father, Prince Philip, after Charles and Diana decided not to choose Anne as a godmother to their son

Two younger members of the royal family were chosen — Charles' brother Andrew, 24, and his cousin, Lady Sarah Armstrong-Jones, 20, daughter of Princess Margaret, the queen's

The other godparents were portrait painter Bryan Organ; Lady Vestey, second wife of industrialist Lord Vestey, millionaire landowner Gerald Ward, a longtime friend of Charles; and Carolyn Bartholomew, one of Diana's closest friends.

Mexican government bans use of liquified petroleum in cars

MEXICO CITY (AP) - The Mexican government, attempting to prevent explosions and avert shortages for cooking and home heating, has prohibited the use of liquefied petroleum gas in cars.

The ban was announced Thursday in a news release issued by the national oil company, Pemex. The news release said people whose cars burn liquefield petroleum gas have 30 days to convert their vehicles to gasoline. Failure to do so could bring fines up to $1,000, Pemex said.

The Pemex news release said using liquefied petroleum gas in cars was dangerous, and the ban would prevent fuel shortages for home use. Since the devastating explosion, some consumers have complained they cannot get gas for cooking and heating.

Alleged Mafia chief arraigned in U.S. on old narcotics charge

NEW YORK (AP) — Tommaso Buscetta, a Sicilian Mafia figure turned informer, was arraigned Friday on an old narcotics charge after being spirited into the United States from Italy, a federal prosecutor announced.

District Court Judge Joseph McLaughlin, who held the arraignment at the Marine Air Terminal, a facility for small carriers and private airplanes adjoining LaGuardia Airport.

'It was secret for understandable reasons," said U.S. Attorney Raymond Dearie. "The sole consideration was his personal safety.' Authorities believe that Buscetta, who arrived in the United States late Thursday, is a target of underworld assassins to put an end to revelations that have resulted in arrests of mob figures on three continents. Dearie said the arraignment was over in "a matter of minutes" and Buscetta was then removed to an undisclosed site under escort of U.S. marshals and agents of the FBI and the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

The name of his lawyer was not divulged. Buscetta has been under indictment since 1973 on a charge of conspiring with 21 others to import heroin. Dearie's announcement came at 1 p.m. Friday, more than half a day after Buscetta's arrival. Italian news agencies reported Thursday that he left from Naples during the afternoon in a U.S. military airplane. Federal prosecutors in New York City have said they want to question the former Mafia chief about narcotics distribution in the United States. Information Buscetta gave Italian authorities resulted in a major crackdown on the Sicilian Mafia beginning last September and led to arrests of scores of mob figures in Italy, Brazil and the United States.

Buscetta's brother-in-law was shot to death two weeks ago in a suburb of Palermo, Sicily, in what

The security arrangements in New York were likened to those applied last month when Gaetano Badalamenti, 61, called the deposed top boss of the Sicilian Mafia, was extradited here from Spain to face "pizza connection" charges. Badalamenti was accused of running a $1.6 billion multinational heroin ring that used pizzerias

Badalamenti was "not cooperating with the government," U.S. Attorney Rudolph Guiliani said, but nevertheless was surrounded by marshals carrying shotguns and submachine guns after arriving in secret from Madrid. Buscetta reportedly possesses information about local mob activity in New York, including 'pizza connection" operations and the slaying of crime boss Carmine Galante.

Earlier this week, a Justice Department official said Buscetta's extradition was a top item on the agenda of Attorney General William French Smith's planned visit to Italy next month.

Buscetta is the first prisoner to be turned over by Italy to American authorities under a new extradition treaty.

DA files charges against men involved in robbery, murders

LAWTON, Okla. (AP) — District Attorney Dick Tannery filed firstdegree murder charges Friday against two Oklahoma men arrested in the killing of four people at a Geronimo bank last week.

Tannery said the charges, which include four counts of first-degree murder, were filed in the Comanche County District Court in Lawton.

The two men — Jay Wesley Neill and Robert Grady Johnson — are being held in San Francisco-area jails without bond. Both face extradition to Oklahoma They were arrested by the FBI on Monday after federal agents were tipped that the pair were spending lots of money on entertainment, clothes, and a hotel suite. Among the factors to their arrest was that they passed $50 bills which had serial mbers on record in the First Bank of Chattanooga branch in Geronimo, authorities said. In the Dec. 14 robbery, four people were shot to death and three others wounded. An eighth person in the bank, a 12-month-old infant was unharmed. Tannery said he filed four counts of first-degree murder against Neill and Johnson "co-jointly "We also filed a bill of particulars with the court advising them we will ask for the death penalty once the case is brought to trial," Tannery

The district attorney said he also filed three counts of shooting with intent to kill involving the three people wounded in the bank, and one count of attempted shooting with intent to kill involving the

In a court appearance Friday in San Francisco, U.S. Magistrate Wayne Brazil granted the request of Johnson, 22, to be sent to Oklahoma immediately in federal custody.

A lawyer for Neill, 19, had asked

Brazil to keep Johnson in San Francisco until Neill's scheduled preliminary hearing Thursday.

But Brazil refused, saying Johnson could be returned from Oklahoma if needed. And Johnson's lawyer, Jer-rold Lazar, said Johnson would refuse to testify.

Neill is charged with federal bank robbery resulting in death, and Johnson is charged with aiding and abetting a bank robbery resulting in death. Both charges carry a maximum sentence of life in prison. The robbery netted the pair $17,000, according to the FBI.

Lazar, a court-appointed private lawyer, said Johnson wants to return to Oklahoma because no progress can be made on his case while he remains in San Francisco.

To keep it pending here is not in his best interest," Lazar told report-.. He needs to be back with counsel.

.. This case is moving forward in Oklahoma and stagnating here. I don't believe that's an effective way to deal with an onrushing train.

He said someone in Johnson's position has "a lot of potential options in terms of what he can cut for himself." But he said no deal had been

Lazar said he was mystified by the request of Neill's lawyer, Assistant Federal Defender Harry Hellerstein, to order Johnson held in San Francisco as a witness in the scheduled hearing

Tannery said federal officials have told him that Neill could be returned to Oklahoma by the first week in January.

U.S. Attorney Bill Price said he will press federal bank robbery charges against the two men, meaning it could be some time before Tannery gets the case into Comanche County District Court.

Mite infests honey bees

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A mite that weakens honeybees by infesting their breathing tubes has become so widespread in Florida that officials have lifted a ban against in-state transfers of bees.

Fifty-seven areas of 18 counties had been quarantined, but a survey found the mite infestation to be statewide, Agriculture Commissioner Doyle Conner said Thursday. The dissolution of the quarantines means that beekeepers are now free to move their stock to prime feeding grounds around the state.

Since July, mite infestation has been discovered in Texas, Louisiana, North Dakota, South Dakota, New York, Nebraska, Florida and North Carolina. Some states, including Georgia, have banned shipment of bees from Florida.

"I go to all these places," he said. The survey has taken him to every Kentucky county to delve not only into community names but other local names, some nearly forgotten.

"A lot of these are little tiny hol-lows that are barely visible on a map. But a lot of these have names," he said. "There are the names of cemeteries, churches, schools. Each school has a name. Every road in Kentucky has or had a name in addition to the number it may have. Mills, mines, quarries, most of them had names," he

'The average populated place has probably had more than one name,' he added. And many names have been used in several places. Bombay, for example, was the name of three Kentucky communities in the 1890s, in Meade County, Clay County and Wayne County, Rennick said.

Those towns no longer exist, he said, but "Beaver Creek we find in maybe 30 or 40 different counties."

Many names, like Beaver Creek and Dry Ridge, came from wildlife or landscape features in the area, Rennick said.

Thousandsticks in Leslie County got its name from Thousandsticks Creek, "one of the earliest named features in Kentucky," he said. The creek apparently was named by travelers who came on the trunks of hundreds of dead trees, possibly the remains of a forest fire.

Historical figures account for other place names, such as Washington and Monroe counties, named for presidents.

Hazard, and Perry County, were named for Oliver Hazard Perry, a military commander in the Battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812, he said, and Zebulon, Pikeville and Pike County were named for explorer Zebulon Pike.

There are Pike counties in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri," Rennick said.

Louisville was named for the French King Louis XVI, and Lexington was named in 1775 after the Revolutionary War Battle of Lexington in Massachusetts

But sometimes the obvious origins are not the correct ones, he said. Lincoln County, for example, was named for a Revolutionary War general, and "the name was applied in 1780, long before Abraham Lincoln came along.

Most place names are ordinarysounding, Rennick said, and the out of the ordinary names - such as Democrat, a Letcher County town said to have been named in 1902 by its postmaster, the only Democrat in a staunchly Republican area — were usually given later, after the more obvious names had been used.

Golden Circle Farms is one of the largest privately owned hydroponic businesses in the state, he said.

Temperature, nutrients, fluids and pests can be tightly controlled through frequent monitoring, Burkhalter said. Furthermore, because fluid rather than soil is the nutritive medium, many plants can be grown in a small space.

"MAN FOR centuries has tried to grow things in water, but for a long time people didn't think it could be done because they didn't realize that nutrients are nutrients whether they are found in the soil or water,' he said.

One of the tenets of hydroponics is that "soil is nothing more than an anchorage medium that holds the plant in place and allows it access to the solution," Burkhalter said:

"Rather than planting in mineralrich soil and letting rain dissolve the outrients, we supply the solution already mixed," he said. In a warehouse a few yards from the 20, 90-by-20-foot, linked greenhouses, plant nutrients first are dissolved in a large barrel with hot water. Then the fluid is pumped into two, 5,000-gallon tanks.

Fluid from the tanks is fed in timed, regulated doses to each plant through a system of metal and plas-

The plants also are pollinated with an electric blower three times a week," Burkhalter said.

HOUSTON (AP) - Howard Turney grew up thinking it was wrong to be a dreamer. Now, he knows better.

His father, a railroad worker struggling to support 11 children from three marriages, scorned creative play and admonished Turney to use his spare time to hunt rabbits and deer to help feed the impoverished family

Although Turney had read every book in the library of the tiny school he attended in Fort Thomas, Ariz., teachers considered him one of their worst students.

He was a gifted child with geniuslevel intelligence, but nobody, including himself, recognized it. Lacking encouragement and stimulus, he dropped out of high school, spent two years in the Army and then wandered the Eastern seaboard working menial and odd jobs.

He never got a high school diploma or college degree, but he never quit reading. At age 31, he, by chance, read two books that ultimately spurred him to change his life around.

Now, at 53, Turney is a successful businessman who parlayed his daydreams into multimillion-dollar intelligence, you don't need any-thing else," Turney said. "But if it's not identified, you don't have it. My life is the best example I can think businesses and launched a crusade to help gifted children. 'Almost the majority of the time, people will say if you have a genius

He added, "It took a lot of years to try to better myself and learn how to speak, dress and learn how to talk to people.

IT IS HARD to imagine Turney as the insecure, inarticulate and poorly dressed man he describes as the Howard Turney through age 31.

His craggy, wrinkled face and piercing eyes hint at the rough times he experienced, but his gentle manners and carefully chosen words defy that image.

In the corner of the plushly carpeted room in his office 17 floors above the West Loop near San berg Eagle - one of eight in the world - sits perched atop a huge oak pedestal. It symbolizes Turney's fierce determination to achieve. 'You have never heard a hillbilly from Arkansas or any place you can name in the United States who had a vocabulary as bad as mine," he said. 'In my 20s, I was introverted and damn near speechless in front of a man wearing a tie. I had to overcome things most people take for granted. You cannot imagine how far it is from there to here. Turney dislikes talking about himself, but agreed to share his experiences in hopes of helping others overcome similar situations.

He was the oldest of two sons born to a railroad section foreman living in the Arizona desert. His father married three times during his childhood and Turney had one brother, two half-brothers, four stepbrothers and three stepsisters.

HE LEFT HOME at 12 and returned a few months later at the insistence of the school's basketball coach. To return, however, his father required him to pay $1 a day for room and board until he left home for good in the 11th grade.

Turney worked as a logger, cowhand, bronc buster and ditch digger before joining the Army on a dare from two buddies who flunked the entrance exam. He spent two years in occupation forces in Japan before being discharged and returning to the states. I worked in furniture factories, textile mills, restaurants; sold Bibles, blankets and fans door to door; drove a truck, and even did some cooking," he said.

eory was the more things I knew how to do, the better I could make a living. In the 50s, I thought if I could make $36 a week, that would put me on easy street, compared to the $29 a week I was making in the factory

He added, "But, I also decided if I was going to get out of that rut, I had to educate myself and learn how to speak and do things."

Turney was lying in a hospital bed in Columbia, S.C., recuperating from surgery for leg injuries from a car accident when he found the motivation he needed to change his life.

'I read two books: 'Atlas Shrugged' by Ayn Rand and 'Think and Grow Rich' by Napoleon Hill. Those two books had more to do with me turning around than any other one thing," he said.

"THEY MADE the point you are responsible for your own life and can do anything you want to do if ou want to do it badly enough. I began doing it. It goes slowly, but if you constantly strive to improve whatever you are, soon you become what you perceive yourself to be."

Turney took an IQ test issued by Mensa, the organization for people with intelligence levels above 98 percent of the population. His score qualified him as a member. He educated himself through reading and emulating others. And he put his mind to work with a new sense of confidence. He invented toys, liquid cleaners and some food products, including an item called "Otter Pops," fruitflavored frozen popsicles still sold on the West Coast. "I invented a lot of items and easily do without," Turney said. "In 1976. I decided that if I was going to develop products, it would be things that would be beneficial to man-Turney's favorite project is the non-profit Cheon Star Educational

Paintings emblazoned on war-bond ads given to Smithsonian

WASHINGTON (AP) — A handful of oil paintings helped raise billions of dollars for the U.S. war machine that defeated Nazi Germany and Japan nearly 40 years ago, but they never earned a penny for the artist, a natty Baltimorean named J. Walter Wilkinson.

His paintings were emblazoned on hundreds of thousands of billboards, posters and magazine advertisements encouraging Americans to buy government war bonds and stamps during World War II. Wilkinson, a celebrated commercial artist at the time, painted them for free.

On Friday, still sturdy and erect at 92, his waxed mustache turned white, Wilkinson donated his war bond paintings to the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History, as another gift to the American

"I'm very pleased and flattered. I never expected so much fuss over this thing," he said at the official opening of a display of the paintings just outside a museum exhibition of American wars relics.

Man critical of Spacek film mistakenly given her hotel room

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A man critical of the book on which Sissy Spacek's new movie is based was accidentally checked into her hotel room here, and he took film scripts and personal notes from the room what he called an "honest mistake," a newspaper reported

The man, Joe Sweat, executive director of the Tennessee Municipal League, later returned the papers, the Nashville Banner said in a copyright story. Sweat called it "an honest mistake, one of those things that I can't explain all that happened." No charges were

U.S. tax system reinforces impulse to be generous

By CHET CURRIER AP Business Writer

NEW YORK - As most anyone with a mailbox and a checkbook knows, the peak season is at hand for appeals from charities.

The impulse to be generous during the holiday season is reinforced by the American tax system, which makes contributions to qualified organizations deductible on the contributors' tax returns.

And in the waning days of the year, many people are particularly conscious of opportunities to cut their tax bills. To be sure, charity is more than just a financial matter. But as experts in personal finance point out, it makes sense to take the tax rules into account in considering when, how much and to whom you contribute. When charitable contributions are planned with their tax consequences in mind, they can often be arranged to provide maximum bene-It to both the taxpayer and the charity," the accounting firm of Deloitte Haskins & Sells observes. Taxpayers who itemize their deductions can generally write off contributions of up to 50 percent of their adjusted gross income each

People who don't itemize can write off contributions, too, but only up to a limit of $75. This ceiling is scheduled to be lifted by stages in 1985 and 1986, permitting non-itemizers to deduct half their contributions next year and all of them in

So if you don't itemize but plan to make a substantial contribution of some sort, it may be worth considering pledging money now to be paid when the rules are more favor-

"Contributions are deductible in the year of payment," Deloitte Haskins & Sells points out. "If you pay by check, this means the deduction is available to you in the year in which you mail the check, and not the year in which it is cashed.

'A similar principle applies if you pay for a contribution with a credit card: The year of the deduction is the one in which you incur the charge, not when you pay the credit

More complex rules apply in cases where some capital asset like shares of stock or an object of value, rather than cash, is donated. If those rules are followed correctly, the donor can deduct the full "fair market value" of the asset.

Such contributions have great appeal for, say, someone who owns stock bought many years earlier at a price far below its current value, and who wants to make a donation without having to pay capital gains tax on the stock. As a rule, tax advisers note, a capital asset that has a current value below its purchase price should not be contributed directly to a charity. In such cases, they say, it makes better sense to sell the asset, realizing your loss for tax purposes, and then to contribute the money you receive from the sale.

pen Door Mission inspires loyalty

By REBECCA TROUNSON

HOUSTON (AP) - Word trickled

down through the ranks of America's homeless, passing from city to city, one street to another, one man to the next, until it reached the ear of Herman Neely.

Neely, then down and out in Yuma, Ariz., says the news shocked him into action: Houston's Open Door Mission, where he had lived on and off for 15 years, had closed its

"I heard Brother Bob had closed down," said Neely, 56, his years of hard living etched deep in his face. 'I heard they'd closed the place down and made it a parking lot. I had to come back.

Neely hitched a ride back to Houston, only to discover that the rumor was just that. The place he had come to call home, the mission founded by Robert and Emily Finnegan in 1954, was still there, with no plans to close

There are few missions that inspire that kind of loyalty. But then there are few that are quite like the Open Door, in Houston or else-

Not many missions allow people to stay more than a few days or weeks at a time. Fewer still have reading rooms or collections of cats and dogs that give a sense of family, or large front yards like that at the Open Door, where the men sit outside in sunshine and stillness, the peace of the garden seeming to bring them, too, a measure of tranquility.

BUT THE major difference between this and other missions is that this one is called home by those who live here, many of whom have become near-permanent residents. These people, once members of America's vast transient community, are homeless no more.

"This is home," says Neely, who opens the gate for visitors. "It's the only home I got."

Neely, a native of Dallas, came to Houston in 1958 on what he calls one of his wild sprees. Before long, he wound up in jail, penniless and with-

"Brother Bob took me in," he said 'He took me in and fed me. The only thing was, I had to go to church.

Each resident of the Open Door must attend a church service once a day. Under other rules, those wishing to sleep in beds are required to undress and men found drunk or caught with a bottle are tossed out and blackballed for 90 days.

'Lastly, they got to stay clean,' Finnegan says; those with lice, crabs or other vermin are treated

Since that first meeting with

"You don't understand, you've got a job. But these people out there, they think because you're here (in the mission), they don't even have to pay you. Lot of times they don't pay.

"Then they want you to go 50 miles across town for the job. How're you supposed to get there? I ain't got no car. I ain't got no money for a bus. If I had $500 in my back pocket, I could get a great job."

> — John, a resident at the Open Door Mission

Brother Bob, Neely has spent time in countless missions across America; he could probably compile a guidebook listing the high points

"In Tucson, you could eat 12 din-ners," he said. "They bring it right to you and everything.

THE OPEN Door, where residents receive coffee and doughnuts in the morning and soup for lunch and dinner, is not known for its food, according to Neely and others. 'Some of them feed a lot better," he said. "But you got more freedom here and you get to know the guys around here. It's more like being

Since 1954, when he became a Baptist preacher, "Brother Bob" Finnegan has been taking people in, feeding them and making them go to church. Moved by a vague desire to do something for Houston's large transient community, he first set up shop on Franklin Street, armed only with a coffee pot, a few borrowed chairs and a lot of conviction.

The mission has grown since that quiet beginning, moving several times, until in 1966 it reached its present home in the former Fullerton Elementary School at 5803 Harrisburg. Now as many as 100 - no women or families are accepted - can sleep in beds, with room for at least an equal number on the floor or the lawn outside 'The mission has kept going through the years with the help of funding right from the hand of the Lord," Finnegan said.

The Open Door receives money regularly from several individuals and is on the monthly budget of as many as 20 churches, he said

AND ONE OF their first successes, the Finnegans say, was Johnny Gasaway, now 76 and a longterm resident and staff member at

Gasaway, a dapper little man in a beige leisure suit and beige canvas hat, said he was a very different man in 1957, when he was living on Houston's Skid Row

"I drank quite a bit in them days," Gasaway explained. "But this one time, I got sick and got sicker. I'd been sick a lot of times but never like that. The Lord was dealing with me, if you know what I mean.

Now known as Brother Johnny, Gasaway made his way to that first Open Door, has been working for the mission ever since.

The Finnegans now are both 79 but, with the help of about 25 parttime staff members, still run the facility themselves, dispensing Bible teachings, kind words, and scoldings in almost equal measure to the difficult men who are their charge.

Each of the mission's residents has a story, and no two are exactly alike. But all are linked by hardship; all share a common thread of disappointment and pain.

Some of the men speak of lost jobs, of injury or illness that forced a layoff and sparked the downward slide. Others speak of lost families, of deaths or divorces that sent them on the road. They talk of alcohol, of brushes with the law, of the fears and pressures of living on the street. And many speak with shame of their lives, saying that pride keeps them from telling wives, children and her relatives of their plight

ROBERT, A large, burly man who said he had been unable to work since 1981 when he broke his leg in an industrial accident, was anxious that his last name not be used. Robert, 62 - who said he had seven children, three or four grandchildren and a 100-year-old mother telephones his children every few weeks but has never told them his circumstances.

"I don't want them to know their old man is staying in a place like this," he said quietly. "They would want to help me if they knew. I don't want to be a burden to my

Now in charge of security at the mission, Robert said he was waiting for a settlement on his injury 'Maybe this year, maybe within this fiscal year.' Most of the mission's long-term residents have become staff mem-bers or work at temporary jobs during the day. And when they return home in the evening after a day of collecting cans or "hanging paper" putting advertising flyers on neighborhood door knobs - they are greeted at the gate by the mission's dogs, in scenes reminiscent of those that occur in many more typi-

On a recent afternoon, a tall man named John received a boisterous welcome, with three dogs yapping at his heels as he pushed a bicycle through the open gate. John had a temporary job, he said, but like many others expressed frustration about the difficulty of finding anything more permanent.

"YOU DON'T understand, you've got a job," he said angrily. "But these people out there, they think because you're here (in the mission), they don't even have to pay you. Lot of times they don't pay

Then they want you to go 50 miles across town for the job. How're you supposed to get there? I ain't got no car. I ain't got no money for a bus. If I had $500 in my back pocket, I could get a great job.

Paul Luitt, 52, a tall, nervous man who is known at the mission as Telephone Paul, said he, too, had grown frustrated with trying to find a job after he hit bottom about 10 years

He had been a groom for many years, following the horses from racetrack to racetrack, from Miami to Chicago and back. But Luitt said he had become too nervous for that life and quit, weary of the frantic pace and the long hours.

Immediately, he ran into trouble getting another job. "I don't have any skills," he said. "Look through the ads. There's plenty of jobs for skilled labor. For unskilled, there's 50 people for every job."

Now on his third stay at the mis sion, he occupies himself with answering the phone and feeding the 30 or so cats who live in and around the building

I'm not really satisfied here but 'm not under the pressure I'd be on the street," Luitt said. "I know at least that I don't have to worry about where I'm going to stay

Chicago parking garage plays 'name that tune'

CHICAGO (AP) — Operators of a said Warshauer, 45, who admits to downtown parking garage have jazzed up the place so drivers need only hum a tune to find their cars.

Instead of memorizing the number of a parking slot, motorists have only to remember the name of a song and the city it extols. If that isn't enough, the elevator areas will be tiled in different colors.

On the first level, for example, Pearl Bailey's "April in Paris" will be piped in over the sound system. To make sure the message sinks in, the word "Paris" is painted on signs. The elevator area has blue tile.

The standard parking designations such as 3A or 5B "are real boring." says Myron Warshauer, owner of the 1,200-space musical garage managed by Standard Parking Service. The company runs 50 parking structures in the Chicago area. Forgetting where they parked "is a constant problem for motorists,"

finding himself in that predicament

He said he came up with the idea while hearing Frank Sinatra belt out 'New York, New York" on his car radio

Ol' Blue Eyes himself is now a fixture in Warshauer's garage, on the New York, or fifth, level, colorcoded burgundy.

Sinatra also is featured on the third level, for hometown drivers who prefer "My Kind of Town" and dark green.

Other levels are marked with Meet Me in St. Louis" by Judy Garland, "By the Time I Get To Phoenix" by Glen Campbell, "Moon Over Miami" by Vaughn Monroe, "I Left My Heart in San Francisco" by Tony Bennett, "Big D" by Shorty Long and Susan, "Kansas City" by Wilbert Harrison and "Please Come to Boston" by Dave Loggins.

DRINKING AND DRIVING CAN KILL A FRIENDSHIP

Feminist organization trying to get Israeli men into kitchen

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A womens' organization has launched a nationwide campaign urging Israeli men to do more around the house to help women.

"Be a Man, Give Her a Hand" is its slogan. But the campaign has angered conservative and liberal Israeli women, who feel it reinforces stereotypic ideas of male-female roles.

Israeli women serve in the army, but seldom as high-ranking officers and never on the battlefield. No woman currently sits in the Cabinet and only 10 of 120 Knesset (parliament) members are women.

Golda Meir, prime minister from 1969 to 1974, is viewed by most Israelis as an anomaly. Even the month-long drive to get men out of their armchairs and into an apron has a very limited goal.

The campaign includes colorful bumper stickers, posters and television advertisements showing smiling men helping out their wives in the grocery store and maternity ward.

"It's been the talk of the country, and the key to bringing social pressure to bear on Israeli men. Some women have asked me why we didn't do it years ago," said Masha Lubelsky, secretary-general of the Na'amat organization which is sponsoring the

But Ruth Resnick, a Na'amat member who runs a shelter for battered women, said she thinks the slogan was a poor choice.

'The word for man in the slogan means 'he-man' in Hebrew, and reinforces the macho idea men here have," Ms. Resnick said.

'I would have gone for a slogan more along the lines of 'Let's be partners,' instead of the little woman looking up to the big man and saying 'Please, help me out,' "she said.

About 37 percent of Israel's 1.1 million women work, but only about 1 percent are in executive positions, according to a study by Na'amat, which is funded by the Histadrut trade union federation.

Even in kibbutzim, the collective farms that are the symbol of Israeli progressiveness, women nearly always are found in the nursery and men usually in Israel's women, while more likely to be found outside the home than women in neighboring Arab countries, still must fight prejudices and preconceived notions.

This was glaringly underlined when Knesset member Shimon Ben-Shlomo of the religious Shas Party was quoted by a Tel Aviv newspaper as saying in early December that "licentious behavior" of Israel's women soldiers was corrupting Israeli society. He claimed this resulted in a weakened military that led to more deaths of Israeli soldiers in South Lebanon.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin said he "rejected with disgust" Ben-Shlomo's comments in the newspaper. Ruth Lev, the Jerusalem leader of Na'amat, sent a letter of protest to Prime Minister Shimon

But Chaim Hefer, one of Israel's leading songwriters, asked in a newspaper commentary why women were seeking help in the kitchen when they should be fighting against Ben-Shlomo's published remarks and men "who insult you with winks and debase

Many reasons are given for the failure of Israel's feminist movement to live up to the promise of the strong women who helped found the state 36 years

One reason is the wars in which Israel has been involved, said Rina Shapiro, a sociology professor at the University of Tel Aviv. The constant security concerns also make many Israelis long for the stability of a strictly traditional family structure, Mrs. Shapiro said. In addition, Israel is strongly influenced by the minority but powerful orthodox religious sector of society, which believes a woman's place is in the "Religious Jews believe a man is a man and a woman is a woman and their jobs are not inter-changeable," said Tovah Lichtenstein, an orthodox Jew whose husband and father are both rabbis.

Indian actors audition for political roles

Indian movie star Amitabh Bachchan campaigns for the position of prime minister in his country's general elections. Bachchan, a childhood friend of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, is among three prominent movie stars seeking to enter the world of politics.

Movies available to most people; Stars widely recognized ber of Indian movie stars, among them a childhood pal of Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi, are auditioning for political roles in next week's parliamentary elections.

When megastar Amitabh Bachchan filed his nomination papers recently in his hometown in northern Uttah Pradesh state, he was mobbed by frenzied fans. Half of Allahabad's police force was deployed to control the cheering crowds. Traditionally, movie stars have been part of the Indian political scene; in southern India, prominent actors have governed states as chief ministers for the last few years. But this year's crop of actors-turned-politicians appears to be the largest yet.

Almost 400 million voters will vote for 509 seats in the lower house of Parliament in elections scheduled to begin Monday and end Friday. The party which wins a majority of seats will form the government to lead India's 730 million people.

Many movie idols already in power will campaign for the new candidates. The opposition will match the governing Congress Party's glamorous nominees with stars of their own.

Gandhi's party is fielding at least three well-known actors to exploit the movie mania of the Indian masses. Since films are the cheapest Leading the star parade is Bach-chan, the "angry young man" of India's Hollywood, who has ruled the world's largest movie industry for more than a decade. He reportedly charges more than $350,000 per film in a country where the per capita income is $150.

Always a supporter of the Gandhi family in times of national crises, Bachchan's entry into politics was expected sooner or later.

"We have got to fight for the ideals for which Mrs. Gandhi stood. I want to go and meet the people and help them," he said in a recent interview. He said he was persuaded to run for office after Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, a close friend of his parents, was assassinated Oct. 31.

"In this, India has scored a bigger hit than America. While that superpower has only a B-grade actor, ours are superstars of the past as well as reigning monarchs," commented the Statesman newspaper.

Other Congress party film stars include Sunil Dutt, seeking a parliamentary seat from Bombay, and Vyjantimala, a classical Indian dancer and actress, who will run from the southern Indian city of Madras.

Dutt, an aging actor, director and producer who has played the romanform of entertainment in India - as tic hero in scores of Hindi films, is president of the rightist Indian People's Party. Political observers are skeptical about the film star's chances.

Vyjantimala, a former Hindi movie queen, will run against Era Seziyan, a noted opposition Janata Party veteran in Tamil Nadu state. She is rated the underdog.

In neighboring Andhra Pradesh state, the ruling Congress Party will be opposed by the Telegu Desam party formed barely two years ago by N.T. Rama Rao, a matinee idol who played Hindu gods in hundreds of Telegu-language films. He achieved prominence when his ministry was toppled last August by forces loyal to Mrs. Gandhi.

Some political observers say India's masses, largely illiterate, tend to vote for charismatic figures because Indian politics is fought largely on the basis of popularity.

British government lifts ban on cheap trans-Atlantic airfares

LONDON (AP) - The government lifted its ban on cheap trans-Atlantic winter fares Friday and said cutprice tickets on the London-New York run can start

The action followed Thursday's announcement by the U.S. Justice Department that it would not take legal action against British Airways if it reduced its London-New York fares by 35 percent this winter.

British Airways said its new round-trip fares, available until the end of March, will be $303 between London and New York, $47 lower than its present lowest Its advance-purchase or late-purchase round-trip fare from New York to London will be $378 on weekdays and $428 on weekends, higher than the British prices because of the falling value of sterling.

The $303 winter fare was just $1.17 higher than the regular fare on Virgin Atlantic, Britain's new low-cost

Britain's decision to reverse its ban on low winter fares ends a stormy two months in Anglo-American aviation relations.

But the underlying cause of the dispute - Britain's demand for a guarantee against future antitrust prosecutions in the United States for setting low fares remains unresolved.

"It's purely a short-term solution for the winter," said a spokesman for Britain's Department of Trans-

Britain's Civil Aviation Authority said it had informed airlines flying the London-New York route that if they filed applications for low-cost winter fares before Dec. 27, "they will be approved for Jan. 1."

Other carriers, British and foreign, were expected to file similar fares on the London-New York run. The Civil Aviation Authority said Friday it had received applications so far from British Airways, World Airways and American Airlines.

The state-run British Airways said Friday it also filed for cheap fares on all its other U.S. routes. But the Civil Aviation Authority said consideration of these new fares would take time.

In Washington, a spokesman for World Airways said World would offer a $338 round trip fare as of Jan. 15 on daily flights between the eastern United States and London. The airline has one flight a day from the Baltimore-Washington International Airport and London's

The airline said it received permission Friday from Britain for the lower fares. World's fares were expected to be slightly lower than those that will be approved for the major carriers because the British classify World as a "low fare carrier" similar to People Express and Virgin Atlantic.

Britain banned low-price winter fares proposed by major airlines on Oct. 18 because it feared the cheap fares would expose British carriers to antitrust suits in

More than 100,000 passengers who bought cheap tickets before the ban were initially ordered to pay higher fares. But Britain later relented

Virgin Atlantic Chairman Richard Branson had threatened possible antitrust action in the United States. He said competitors were using the same "predatory" practice of dropping fares in slack months that receivers for Britain's low-cost aviation pioneer, Laker Airways, claim drove it into bankruptcy.

In Poland, consumer goods are available one day and gone the next.

At one store, a window display of PUBLIC NOTICE FOR BID electric trains is turned on each day from 4 to 6 p.m. and a crowd of parents and children gather to look at the whizzing trains. But when 100 sets of model trains went on sale one afternoon the line of customers swelled beyond 100 would ever come, but they waited patiently on the sidewalk. Inside the store, portraits of Lenin painted on wood were on sale for the equivalent of $14.25, but no one was buying them.

The biggest challenge for shop-pers is the traditional 12-course Christmas Eve meal that includes at least three carp dishes - jellied, in a pate and fried.

The Warsaw afternoon newspaper Kurier Polski announced early in the month that 350 tons of carp had been prepared for the holiday season. Live carp are cn sale from big iron tubs on sidewalks, and lines of people with shopping bags formed to buy the fish.

Christmas trees went on sale all over the capital, and prices were low - between $1 and $3 each.

But even when items are abundant there are complaints about quality. Kurier Polski announced that 1,007 tons of bread would be sold in Poland on Dec. 23 and 24, then added skeptically: "Will it be fresh? We wouldn't guarantee that

The biggest lines at Sezam, a large downtown department store, were for Austrian shirts, Soviet sardines and Bulgarian wine. Some shoppers yearn for a return to the days when stores were stocked with a wide array of quality "I don't feel like Christmas," said one man, an air traffic controller at Warsaw airport. "I was in the United States a few years ago and there I felt like Christmas. Here, people crowd into shops and there's still ficial snow and Christmas trees. Inside there is silence. People wait quietly in line, not talking to each other, and no Christmas music is playing. By most accounts, supplies of food are generally improved. At least this year shoppers are lining up for children's toys, cosmetics and jewelry, not just for food. Newspapers advertise "best buys" such as color slides of Pope John Paul II's 1983 trip to Poland and a video tape of performances by Polish cabaret stars. The holiday film hit at four top Warsaw movie theaters is "E.T., which regularly attracts long lines of parents and children.

Despite one of the calmest years in the country since martial law was imposed 12 days before Christmas in 1981, many Poles remain worried about the future. 'We don't have any kind of stability and everyone lives in uncertainty," said one middle-aged woman shopping in downtown War-
