Space shuttle debris pulled from the sea

Investigatory team holds first meeting

By HOWARD BENEDICT

AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Ships retrieved some of shattered Challenger's wreckage from the sea today as investigators sought clues to a "national tragedy" that killed five men and two women and dealt a severe setback to America's space program.

An investigation team held its first meeting today to start the long inquiry into why the $1 2 billion space shuttle, seemingly on a perfect course, suddenly blew apart 74 seconds after liftoff Tuesday, raining fiery debris into the Atlantic Ocean.

Jesse Moore, director of the shuttle program, said today that based on the great amount of small debris sighted, he held out little hope that either the crew members or any large chunks of the ship would be located.

"I would always like to hold out hope," he said. Some experts who studied television tapes of the disaster said they thought the problem centered in the external fuel tank, containing more than a half-million gallons of liquid hydrogen and oxygen to power the orbiter aloft.

Moore told a news conference he would not speculate on what caused the diaaster but he said he was confident it would be found and corrected

"Our job is to make sure we don't miss any evidence and to preserve it in as pristine a shape as possible." he said, adding that once the problem is corrected. "we intend to move ahead with the space program."

William Graham, NASA's acting administrator, announced that President and Mrs. Reagan would attend a memorial service for the seven crew members to be held at Johnson Space Center in Houston on Friday, The deaths were the first in flight after 55 successful U.S. man-in-space flights, including 24 previous shuttle missions. The first "common citizen" chosen for a space trip, New Hampshire schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, was one of the victims.

Eight ships including four Coast Guard cutters, searched throughout the night over the 50-by-100-mile rectangle where Challenger's wreckage fell Seven planes and helicopters resumed their hunt at daylight

Lt Joe Kyle of the Coast Guard, which is coordinating the search, said several small pieces of wreckage drifted ashore in the Cape Canaveral area overnight. He asked residents who find anything that might be a part of the shuttle to turn it in to the Coast Guard. He said the large amount of small debris indicated.

Challenger suffered severe explosive damage
Another Coast Guard officer, Lt. Cmdr. James Simpson, reported "there is debris all over the place." He said the largest piece recovered was a chunk of metal about 12 feet long and 4 feet wide but he did not know what part of the shuttle it came from

Simpson said NASA cautioned that because of the shuttle's fuel some of the pieces could be chemically hazardous and requested that searchers seek advice from agency officials before picking up any object. The search area is between 50 and 130 miles southeast of Cape Canaveral, the water between 70 and 200 feet deep. Although the explosion occurred 10 miles high and 8 miles southeast of the launch pad, the shuttle's nearly 2,000 mph momentum propelled the wreckage much farther out over water.

The debris will be examined in a hangar at nearby Patrick Air Force Base

The investigation could take months, just as it did after America's only other space program tragedy, the launch pad fire that killed three Apollo astronauts 19 years ago this week. The Soviets have lost four cosmonauts in flight.

'Nerves' wouldn't stop Midlander

By RON GILMORE and JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writers

Tuesday morning's space shuttle tragedy has left a local woman undaunted in her quest to be the first journalist in space.

Pat Dishman, owner of Write Communications, a Midland marketing and public relations firm, said shortly after the 11:38 a.m. (Eastern Standard Time) explosion of Space shuttle Challenger, that she would not change her plans.

"Absolutely," she said. "If they se lect me I'll go."

Ms. Dishman, who admitted in a Jan. 10 interview that she was "a little nervous," about possibly being picked, said she still has some misgivings

Dishman

"It (Challenger's explosion) has not created any doubt in the NASA program itself," she said. "But it has definitely created some fear. Sure, it would be in the back of my mind if I got selected, but I would definitely still go."

The former couper and publisher of Petropley Focus

The former owner and publisher of Petroplex Focus, a regional magazine, expressed empathy for the families of the seven people killed on the flight and said that if she was selected she would go "in their honor."

Although no word has been heard from NASA whether the Journalist in Space program win 30 ahead as scheduled, Ms. Dishman believes the next launch "will most certainly be postponed. Current plans call for five semi-finalists to be selected from the list of applicants on April 4. The names of the finalist and an alternate will be announced on April 17.

According to Gail Sifford of the Journalist in Space Program's administrative offices in Columbia, S.C., plans for the next civilian in space launch are up in the air.

"We don't know what is going to happen with the program," she said. "We just have to wait and see what they (NASA) decide to do."

Ms. Sifford said she wouldn't hear anything from NASA until a 4 p.m. (EST) press conference Tuesday. During the press conference, Associate Administrator for NASA Jesse Moore said NASA had suspended operations for a few days until "they could get a handle on what the problem was."

When questioned about future flights, Moore replied "we feel confident we'll be flying again and we'll do it as soon and as thoroughly as we can."

Challenger catastrophe stirs community

By RON GILMORE Staff Writer

"I was reminded of when John F. Kennedy was killed," one observer was heard to comment Tuesday as he watched a network news reel of space shuttle Challenger's explosion on take-off.

It was that sort of tragedy. Most Midlanders can tell you exactly where they were and what they were doing when they first heard the news. Stunned, many watched television screens in silence, hoping against hope that what they were seeing was not happening.

The catastrophic event, although taking place hundreds of miles away off the coast of Florida, was brought home in different ways to Midlanders. Perhaps none, however, were more personally affected than the teachers and students at area schools.

teachers and students at area schools.

Like the school children gathered at the launch site to view the teacher's send-off into space, many Midland schools allowed their pupils to watch.

"My 10-year-old son saw the launching at school," said Lorinda Kilgore of Greenwood. "I talked to him over the phone to ask him if he was OK and he cried and said. 'Oh Mama, it was horrible,' "she said.

"How do you explain death to a 10-year-old?" asked Ms. Kilgore. "It really broke his heart. He wants to be an astronaut but now I don't know how this is going to affect him."

Others at area schools — teachers who had applied for the Teacher in Space program — were shocked, yet undaunted in their support of the space program.

Trudy Lewis, 36, of Lee High School reflected on her

Ms. Lewis shared many similarities with Christa

"I felt real confident that there wasn't much danger."

McAuliffe, the New Hampshire social studies teacher killed in Tuesday's explosion.

Both were approximately the same age (Ms. McAuliffe was 36 at the time she was chosen in July.) Both taught social studies. And both had taught at one school for a number of years (Mrs. McAuliffe, 15 years; Ms. Lewis, 13 years.)

Ms. Lewis, despite her apprehensions, has not wavered in her enthusiasm for the program.

"I think I would reapply if they ever offered it again," she said. "The benefits are too great and the people involved knew that they were taking a risk. Let's face it, you're taking a risk if you just fly or drive to Dallas."

MISD wants single-member order reconsidered

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

The Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees on Tuesday asked a federal judge to reconsider or clarify his decision ordering the MISD's at-large election method be abolished in favor of seven singlemember districts.

Trustees are unhappy with U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton's decision which ordered the district be divided into seven single-member districts — two of which would serve to represent minority voters.

MISD contends in the motion that the two single-member districts—proposed by the League of United Latin American Citizens and the Black Advisory Council—"were not outlined until the night before or the morning of (a federal) hearing," and that attorneys for MISD "did not have an opportunity before the hearing to review" the proposal. The district also contends the boundaries for the two single-member districts were not the same on both maps. In its motion, MISD claims a "review of the two districts indicates that the population numbers given for the districts are incorrect."

MISD officials assert the population figures given for District I is 11,523 while LULAC and the Black Advisory Council report population figures of 11,198 in the same district.

In District II, MISD reports a population figure of 12,872 while the plaintiffs reports a total population of 11,510.

In addition, MISD officials believe the boundary line for the two districts "appears to cut across voting precinct lines" thereby causing "a great deal of trouble for the people charged with running elections" and "considerable confusion to the voter"

MISD maintains that its original 3-4 (three at-large and four single-member district) proposal "offers minorities a constituionally fair opportunity to be elected" to the Board. Officials there say, however, they will accept and abide by the Court's ruling to adopt the two minority districts, but hopefully as clar-

MISD proposes to incorporate the two minority districts and allow the remainder of the MISD to be comprised of one single-member district from which five members of the Board of Trustees would be elected on an at-large basis.

The implementation of the plan also would allow current trustees to serve out the remainder of his or her term and each sucessor would serve a three-year term. Trustees in this year's election would be elected as follows: — The election for Positions 1 and 3 would occur at the regular school board election in April.

— The election of the District II representative (Postion 2) and the District III representative (Postion 4) would occur at the regular school board election in April, 1987.

 The election of the remaining District III representatives would occur at the regular school board election in April, 1988.

Three Midland women killed, another injured in auto mishap

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Three Midland women were killed and a fourth Midland woman was critically injured in a one-car accident on U.S. Highway 80 early today. Odessa police spokesman Rusty Baker said the 1975 Ford two-door was eastbound in the 6700-block of East Highway 80 about 2:10 a.m., when it slammed into a utility pole in front of Fields & Co.

Baker said three of the women were pronounced dead at the scene and it took rescuers one hour and two "jaws of life" to free Pam Flores, 3329 W. Wadley, from the wreckage and transport her to Medical Center Hospital, where she remained in critical condition with multiple injuries this morning.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite mandated spending cuts, President Reagan plans to seek a nearly 9 per-cent increase in foreign aid in his upcoming budget, including a 33 percent jump in military assistance programs and a 25 percent hike for Central American allies, according to an internal document.

The 16-page State Department paper, dated last Friday and obtained by The Arsociated Press, proposes $16.2 billion in worldwide foreign aid in fiscal year 1987, compared with $14.9 billion for the budget year that ends Sept. 30. That is an 8.8 percent increase.

The proposal's figures, distributed in Congress this week, fly in the face of the new Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law that the House Foreign Affairs Committee estimates could force a 25 percent cut in foreign aid or outright elimination of some programs.

One administration official, involved in preparing the foreign aid budget, said the proposed figures had been "pretty much put to bed" and would be submitted formally to Congress next week with few changes.

But he acknowledged they stood little chance of approval.

"We know this is going to be aughed out of existence when it goes up there," said the official, insisting on anonymity. "But it reflects the president's priorities."

The Senate Foreign Relations members already indicating that the proposal faces stiff opposition.

Mark Helmke, spokesman for Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., panel chairman, quoted Lugar as saying he was going to have to take a real hard look at these numbers."

"Where have these people been," asked Rep. Sam Gejdenson, D-Conn., a House Foreign Affairs Committee member. "It's utter insanity to expect Congress to look at any increase in foreign aid this year."

Some of the most dramatic increases would occur in Central America, where four allied countries would receive a total of $1.1 billion in combined economic and military aid in fiscal 1987, compared to $875 million in 1986, a 25 percent increase.

The largest Central American recipient is El Salvador, which has been fighting a leftist insurgency for six years. Under the proposal, it would get $136.3 million in military aid and $377.7 million in economic aid, a combined 18.6 percent jump over 1986.

The Apollo fire, in a test, grounded astronauts for 21 months, and Tuesday's explosion is expected to halt space shuttle flights for many months. Jesse Moore, director of NASA's shuttle program, said a shuttle will not fly again until the cause of the accident is pinpointed and corrections made.

Scobee; Miss Resnik, America's second woman in space; McNair, the nation's second black astronaut, and Onizuka, a Japanese-America, were making their second shuttle flights. Jarvis, an employee of Hughes Aircraft, was on the trip to conduct fluid dynamics tests developed by his company.

"We mourn seven heroes," a somber President Reagan told the nation. Moore called it "a national tragedy.

Reagan delayed for one week his State of the Union speech, which had been scheduled for Tuesday night, and ordered American flags to be flown at half staff through Monday on public buildings and military installations

At the president's request, Vice President George Bush flew to Cape Canaveral to offer condolences to the familes of the astronauts, who watched in horror as Challenger was transformed into a raging fireball. There was no immediate explanation for the Mission Control reported there had been no indication of any problem with the shuttle's three main, liquid-powered engines, its twin solid-fuel rocket boosters or any other system. Officials said the shuttle just suddenly blew apart and that radio data ceased at 74 seconds The absence of any concrete radio information could hamper the investigation, especially if no large parts of the destroyed shuttle can be recovered. In the case of the Apollo fire, the spacecraft was on the ground, and the evidence was there to examine. "Data from all the shuttle instrumentation, photo-the liquid tank. My only conclusion is that something apparently happened to the liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen, probably the liquid hydrogen because it's aft and it will burn in any proportion. He cautioned that he was only speculating based on what he could see. Leo Krupp, former test pilot and NASA engineer, said on the "CBS Morning News" today that analysis of video tapes indicates the source of ignition appeared to be abnormal flame patterns from the nozzle area of the left solid rocket booster. He said the flames can be seen moving upward despite the high speed of the vehicle, suggesting the flame was "a high-velocity exhaust gas of some sort." "We will not speculate as to the specific cause of the explosion based on that footage," said Moore.

Mattox announces for re-election

Texas politicians turned their attention on the state Capitol to get campaign Attorney General Jim Mattox, who says he once considered a Democratic race for governor, formally announced Tuesday for re-election.

Capitol news conferences were scheduled today for two other interests in the gubernatorial contest.
State GOP Chairman George

Strake says he has a new statewide voter poll that shows Democratic Gov. Mark White is not as strong as he thinks he is.

A. Don Crowder of McKinney, a former law partner of Mattox, who announced recently as a Democratic candidate for governor, also scheduled a session with reporters. Mattox, the former Dallas congressman who is finishing up his first term as the state's chief legal officer, added his name to the ballot

He said he was confident he could outpoll any of the possible four Re-publican candidates.

"They're all pretty weak sisters, the best I can tell," Mattox told a news conference.

"I will put my experience and my capability as a prosecutor, as a per-son who has drafted criminal laws and as a person who has enforced them, up against any one of my op-ponents any day of the week," Mattox said.

Mattox said friends and advisers had urged him to run for governor. However, he said, "It didn't feel right. It didn't have exactly the right feeling. I prayed about it and decided that it was not the correct course at this time.'

Mattox said that four years from now, if he wins re-relection, the governorship would be one of two alternatives open to him.

"When I finish my work as attorney general, the two logical alterna-Senate or for governor. I'm not in a postition to make that decision now. I'm not making those plans ahead of time," he said.

Mattox said recent news reports about him receiving $200,000 from a Dallas condominium builder on a real estate deal shouldn't affect his re-election campaign.

"There's nothing to it," he said.
"I'm not under investigation for anything. That transaction took place before I took office. There has not been one single thought that I have done anything as attorney that was not appropriate."

Arms sales to Saudis, Chinese proposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Reagan administration wants to sell $500 million in radar and navigation equipment to China and plans to renew a pitch to sell arms to Saudi Arabia, officials say.

At the same time, the officials said, the administration is debating whether to withdraw a controversial $1.9 billion proposed arms sale to Jordan rather than face outright congressional rejection of the plan.

The proposed arms sale to China would be the United States' biggest military deal yet with Peking, said Edward Ross, a China specialist in the Defense Department's Internationa Security Affairs Office.

Ross told a forum on U.S.-China relations Tuesday that Congress would be formally notified in a few weeks of the administration's intention to proceed with the sale of the equipment, which would be used to upgrade 50 jet fighters. The deal, which could strain U.S.

relations with some European allies, Japan and Taiwan, was described by Ross as a "modest upgrade of Chinese air-defense ability" that will help China protect its air space, especially along its border with the Soviet Union.

On the proposed arms sale to Jordan, Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said Tuesday that barring a decision by President Reagan to withdraw the sale, the issue would probably come to a vote in both the House and Senate next month. He indicated it appeared impossible for the administration to win such a test of strength.

They might prefer not to have a vote at this particular time," Lugar said of administration officials. He said he doubted opinion has shifted on the issue since Congress decided by lopsided vote to shelve the plan

Nuclear terror studied

WASHINGTON (NYT) - A panel of experts on nuclear weapons design, terrorism and intelligence matters will study the danger of terrorists stealing a nuclear bomb or the material to make one.

At a news conference Tuesday, leaders of the group asserted that the risk of nuclear terrorism is increased by poor security at storage depots and weapons plants, and by the growing amount of weaponsgrade plutonium that has been entering the commercial market after being separated from power plants' nuclear waste.

According to Paul Leventhal, a former congressional staff member who is the group's executive vice chairman, if current processing rates continue, there will be 400 tons of separated plutonium in private nands by the year 2000. amount now contained in Soviet and American nuclear weapons.

The panel, the International Task Force on Prevention of Nuclear Terrorism, is financed by the Carnegie Corp. It is headed by retired Rear Adm. Thomas Davies and Bernard O'Keefe, chairman of EG&G Inc., a corporation that has done development and testing of nuclear weapons. Davies is a former assistant director of the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and a former head of the Nuclear Non-Prolifera-

Taped testimony heard

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - For the first time, a witness in the sanctuary alien-smuggling conspiracy trial testified Tuesday that economic conditions in El Salvador were what caused him to leave his homeland.

Meanwhile, renewed contentions that the government failed to disclose information to which the defense was entitled caused U.S. District Earl H. Carroll to recess testimony until a further hearing Wednesday.

When Jose Ruben Torres, a 23year-old Salvadoran, testified that in January 1985 United States immigration agents had tape-recorded him during an interview, defense attorneys demanded to discuss the situation outside the jury's presence.

Prosecutor Donald M. Reno Jr.

told U.S. District Judge Earl H. Carroll that he knew nothing about any meetings at which agents had recorded Torres. Reno said he previously had asked them to provide him with any such material regarding interviews with any Central Americans.

Smithsonian to divest

WASHINGTON (NYT) - The Smithsonian Institution said Tuesday that it would sell its $10.6 million in holdings in international investment companies to meet criticism that the companies might have investments in South Africa.

The decision was a victory for members of Congress who have as-serted that the Smithsonian, which gets most of its funds from the federal government, should not be perceived as supporting South Africa's policy of apartheid. A bill requiring divestiture, sponsored by Rep. Mary Rose Oakar, D-Ohio, was approved by a House committee last year and was heading for likely approval on the floor.

State of the Union address postponed until Tuesday

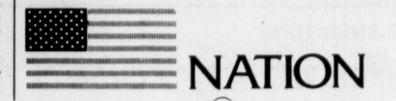

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan initially planned to deliver his State of the Union address as scheduled — even after the space shuttle Challenger disaster — but reversed himself quickly and postponed it for one week.

The president is set to make the speech at 9 p.m. EST next Tuesday before a joint session of Congress in the House of Representatives. It had been set for the same hour Tuesday

At first news of the Challenger disaster, Reagan interrupted a meeting with senior aides and went to an adjoining study, where he saw the shuttle explosion replayed on television. Seven people, including New Hampshire school teacher Christa McAuliffe, were killed.

Speaking with television correspondents and anchors in the early afternoon, Reagan said he would deliver his speech on schedule.

"Yes, I feel that we — things like that have to go on," the president

He said he would not deliver the speech "without mentioning this. But you can't stop governing the nation because of a tragedy of this kind. So, yes, one will continue."

Within an hour, however, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes announced the postponement.

He said Reagan, after consultation with congressional leaders, decided it would be "entirely appropriate" to delay the address.

"I think the president, like all Americans, has seen this tragedy unfold on television and has felt keenly what those family members (of victims) must have felt watching that shuttle go into the air at the Cape first pride and then, second, horror," Speakes said.

He said it was Reagan's idea to delay the address

Steven J. Wayne, a George Washington University professor and a specialist in the presidency, said he did not know of any precedent for the address being delayed. "So much goes into the preparation" that postponement is unlikely without very good reason, he said. News reports suggested that Reagan's speech was to be "happy talk, and obviously this isn't a time for happy talk," Wayne said.

Reagan's aides have described the speech as upbeat and visionary.
As a result of the speech delay, other events planned for this week have gone to Capitol Hill to address the House Republican Conference. Speakes said the scheduling changes probably will result in a de lay in the unveiling of the administration's new budget until next Wednesday. It had been set for next Speakes said. He said the timing is still being worked out.

Reagan had been scheduled to sign a message Wednesday outlining his legislative agenda. That same day, he was to have made appearances at the Treasury Department and the Department of Health and Human Services.

On Thursday, Reagan was to have made a speech at Thomas Jefferson High School in a northern Virginia suburb. And on Friday, he was to

Shuttle tragedy

he tragic explosion that destroyed the shuttle Challenger during the early minutes of its liftoff Tuesday understandably shattered a lot of confidence in the shuttle program and left a stunned and shaken nation in its wake.

Foremost concern, of course, is for the seven members of the shuttle crew, including teacher Christa McAuliffe, who obviously perished when a giant fireball engulfed the Challenger. That loss of life is a great personal tragedy for their families that is shared by a saddened nation.

Reason for the explosion was not immediately known, although literally millions of people watched the Challenger as it was engulfed by a fireball little more than two minutes after takeoff. Finding the cause of the explosion is obviously the next step in helping pinpoint any problem that might cause another similar tragedy. Certainly during coming weeks or months, the cause will be determined and will dictate any further action.

How could it happen? Former astronaut John Glenn, now a U.S. Senator, seemed to put the tragedy into perspective shortly after the explosion Tuesday when he noted that civilization progresses because of the courageous men and women who have continued despite tragedies to bring about successes in the space program. The tragedies, the senator said, are only the indication that man is human and prone to fail. But by rising above the tragedies, men and women have made the space program successful.

Ironically, the explosion of Challenger came only one day past the anniversary date of a 1967 NASA tragedy. On Jan. 27 eighteen years ago, fire broke out in a command module at the John F. Kennedy Space Center and killed astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, Edward H. White II and Roger B. Chaffee.

Yet that tragedy didn't sound a death knell for the space program and neither should Tuesday's explosion end or slow the shuttle program.

The sympathy of the nation rests with the families of the shuttle crew's families. But there had already been numerous "picture perfect" shuttle missions and there undoubtedly can be many more.

Those flights should occur. Only through progress of the shuttle program can the deaths of the shuttle crew be justified.

Thatcher's battle

he British Parliament has Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher battling for her political life over the future of Britain's only helicopter manufacturing firm.

The firm, Westland, is in financial trouble. It can either turn to the United States or to Europe and Thatcher, with the majority of her cabinet, believes the correct choice is a combined rescue bid from United Technologies of the United States and Fiat of Italy. A counter bailout offer was made by a consortium of five European countries, and they are angry over Thatcher's role in the matter. They fear the U.S. will end up with all the advanced technology and all the NATO helicopter contracts. Now there is a government crisis. One of Thatcher's ministers who sided with Europe has resigned in a huff. A second also has resigned after getting in trouble for leaking a confidential government letter on Westland that tunnel to be built between Britain and France. It's easy to think big about a project proposed since before Napoleon. Some say the tunnel will bind Britain to the Continent, and may even weaken France's lingering aloofness from fellow Europeans.

So that's the big picture, and we're all for it. But the little picture looks like trouble. We worry about the conductors on the tunnel trains, for instance. Deep in the chalk beneath the middle of the English Channel, must they switch national character and allegiance? The feat defies imagination. British conductors often try to make their passengers feel upper class. French conductors make clear that passengers have no class at all that they ought to feel grateful to have their tickets taken by officials of a superior civilization. And will French conductors consent to call the channel English?

Traffic is another worry. In just a few years the trains-only tunnel is supposed to be paral-

TODAY IN HISTORY

t's hard to think small about leled by a tunnel for cars and trucks. Someone will have to figure out the meeting and commingling of right-lane drivers coming from France with leftlane coming from Britain. That puts two sets of vehicles head-tohead, one breaking the speed limit in kilometers per hour, the other in miles per hour. Who will sort them out? This French connection will require Star Wars technology. The diplomatic challenge will be worse.

Indeed, diplomacy and protocol give us our biggest worries in trying to think small about the channel tunnel. The cooperating countries are rivals. Each will be digging from its own shore toward the middle, trying to beat the other to the center line. But assuming that they get there together and manage to meet instead of miss, what historic words will they say to each other? "Brittania rules the waves"? 'Apres moi, le deluge"?

That's tricky. We hope Europe's best minds are thinking it through now.

Possibility raised Mengele still alive

Mengele still alive, congratulating himself on a stupendous hoax that led a team of respected experts to declare that skeletal remains exhumed in Brazil last June were his? Did the Auschwitz "Angel of Death" pull off one last devilish trick to throw the world's Nazi hunters off the trail just as they were closing in on him?

This slim but tantalizing possibiliis raised hesitantly, to be sure by the World Jewish Congress and a former Justice Department prosecutor, Eli Rosenbaum. Dissatisfied with the initial findings of the international team of forensic medical experts, the congress, with Rosenbaum's help, conducted its own investigation into Mengele's death. The World Jewish Congress kept its inquiry secret, to avoid raising false hopes among Holocaust survi-vors that the old death-camp doctor might still be capable of being brought to justice for his war crimes. Our associate Lucette Lagnado has read internal correspondence about the WJC's Mengele investigation and interviewed some of the people involved in it, as well as other experts in the field.

Here is what she learned: - Rosenbaum, convinced that the examination done by the medical team in Brazil was inadequate, said the experts would be "lucky" if their work had led to the correct conclusion. Though he stressed that he thinks it highly probable that Mengele is dead, it was Rosenbaum who persuaded the WJC to conduct its separate investigation.

The medical team based its conclusion that the remains were Mengele's on mostly circumstantial evidence - no X-rays, fingerprints or other "concrete" identification.

— The team of experts seem to have ignored evidence suggesting the possibility of an elaborate hoax. "Mengele had earned a Ph.D. in anthropology," a WJC document noted. "Mengele's family is among the wealthiest in Germany ... moreover, he was in contact during his years in South America with ... Nazi sympathizers." Therefore: "Mengele was in a position, from the standpoint of scientific, financial and logistical resources, to pull off a fairly sophisticated hoax.

- The total lack of postwar dental records on Mengele is so mysterious as to be suspicious. He was known to have had extensive dental work done in exile, yet the experts were unable to find an X-ray of even a single tooth. All they had to go on were inadequate dental records dating to World War II and earlier. Even dentists who admitted working on Mengele could produce no X-rays.

- The most crucial discrepancy is that the skeletal remains showed no evidence of osteomyelitis, a serious inflammation of the bone marrow, although Mengele's S.S. records show that he suffered from the disease when he was a teenager. And a medical school colleague of Mengele has stated that the osteomyelitis was so severe that a piece of diseased leg bone broke off and had to be removed surgically.

No X-rays or medical records could be found on any serious physical ailments, even though Mengele's diaries reveal that he suffered from several. For example, in 1972 Mengele required extensive hospital treatment for a hairball in his stomach. This common affliction of cats is rare in humans, and is usually associated with psychotics who pull out their hair and eat it. In Mengele's case, he apparently chewed on his mustache and swallowed the indigestible bristles. One pathologist finds it strange that no medical records have been found on this unusual case, which surely would have been the subject of professional discussion.

Evidence of hairball treatment would hardly survive six years underground in the grave, but the absence of records is suspicious. Not knowing when hot pursuit might force him to produce his supposed remains, Mengele would have destroyed all his medical records in case an earlier exhumation had been

Footnote: Members of the official U.S. team of pathologists said they were confident that their final report would clarify the discrepancies.

EXECUTIVE MEMO: The Secret Service lost its battle to stop construction of a 130-foot office building overlooking the White House grounds, but it is still not reconciled to the danger from snipers that such a vantage point poses in this age of terrorism. In a newsletter for retired Secret Service agents, an agency official said: "The Secret Service objection hasn't changed. But there is only so much we can do. MINI-EDITORIAL: Like any consumer who doesn't own an oil well, we're pleased at the continuing slide in world petroleum prices. But we find it hard to equate that good news with the bad news we get every time we drive up to the gas pump or open the fuel bill. Why aren't those prices dropping? Be patient, the experts say, prices will drop in the spring. You see, they explain, the industry has to get rid of the expensive gas and oil it has stored before it can pass along savings on the new stuff. But it never works the other way. When crude oil prices were rising. the price at the pump went up overnight.

to behave or come out and fight, neither of which this sawdust dictator is likely to do.

Meanwhile, Vice President Bush has been shaking his feeble fist at all terrorists, and trying to ambush Gov. Mario Cuomo of New York by calling him, in effect, a wimp. But the president, who doesn't have to run again, has his mind on other things: Not only on the budget deficits, which he can't resolve, but on the nuclear surpluses, which he might. How he handles this latest series of proposals by Gorbachev may be the most important decision of his presidency.

"IT JUST DOESN'T SEEM FAIR FOR HISO TO SCRAMBLE ITS PROGRAMMING AFTER WE PAID SO MUCH TO STEAL IT.

He would have preferred that the Soviet leader put forward these complicated technical proposals in Geneva, where the U.S. and Soviet experts could analyze them privately. In the storm and thunder of the cold war over the years, both Washington and Moscow have come to regard public pronouncements as propaganda rather than as serious diplomacy.

Nevertheless, officials here think they see in these latest Gorbachev suggestions not only some hookers, but also some steps that are different and hopeful.

For example, they believe that Gorbachev has accepted the principle of on-site inspection for any agreement that might be reached. This has always been a sticking point in the past with the executive and legislative branches in Washington.

Second, in dealing with the balance of nuclear missiles in Europe. Gorbachev has indicated that this issue should be settled on the principle of U.S.-Soviet equality, rather than, as before, on equality between Soviet and American missiles on the one hand and British and French nuclear missiles on the other.

Third, in previous offers by Moscow to remove its missiles from Europe, it was never clear whether Gorbachev meant merely to move them behind the Urals into Soviet

Asia or to destroy them. This was a critical point. For the thought merely of "removing" them disturbed Japan and China, and didn't reassure the NATO allies, since the missiles could always be moved back again. This time, when asked to clarify, Moscow replied that it meant not merely to "remove" the missiles but to "destroy" them.

Gorbachev's message did not remove the central conflict over Reagan's Strategic Defense Initiative, At first, there seemed to be some ambiguity in the Russian word he used, indicating that he might accept "research" but not testing or deployment of such weapons; but again, upon inquiry, Moscow insisted: no testing or deployment of outer space weapons, and no research.

Here then, at least in the present phase of negotiations, the two sides are in fundamental disagreement.

"The Soviet argument," one responsible negotiator here said, "is that the United States is engaged in purposeful research, that the intention of this research is not just to look at scientific principles, but is done with the intention of moving the arms race into outer space." In simpler words, Moscow is asking: What's the point of such research if you don't intend to do something with it?

cludes allowing inspection of the relevant laboratories. The Soviet leader's offer to refrain unilaterally from testing nuclear weapons for another three months and his repeated proposal for a permanent comprehensive test ban are rejected by the Reagan administration, making for another serious difference between the two sides.

The view here is that the Soviet Union is ahead on testing, and that much of the testing in the U.S. would make nuclear weapons safer, for example by developing ways to prevent the leakage of radiation into the atmosphere if planes carrying warheads crash.

Anyway, it's clear that there are fundamental questions to be discussed in the light of Gorbachev's proposals. They may be a trap, as some folks here say, but that is not Reagan's answer. He has said he isn't sure exactly what Gorbachev is saying, but let's take it easy and find out. That has been the best news around here for a long time.

Seeing Halley's Comet now matter of honor!

he country seems to be divided between those who have seen Halley's Comet and those who say they have. It isn't like 1910 when everyone did see it. This time if you blinked your eyes you could easily have missed it.

Yet, as Halley's Comet fades behind the sun, more more Americans are pretending they sighted it. These citizens will tell "I saw Halley's Comet last night with my opera glasses." There is no reason for you to doubt them until you remember it was so foggy last night that they had to shut down the airport.

Why do otherwise honest people, the pillars of our communities, many who wouldn't even pick up a discarded newspaper from a bus, lie about what they saw in the heavens? The answer is that since Halley's

Comet has been so hard to spot, status seekers are forced to resort to perjury in order to impress their If claiming you saw the comet

when you didn't is just a way of keeping up with the Joneses, then I say more power to the fibber. But what makes this practice so dastardly is that it does injustice to the people who actually have spotted it.

Those who stood outside all night in the freezing cold stabbing their fingers at the skies deserve a lot more respect than the ones who stayed in bed with their heads under the blankets looking at photos of Halley's in People magazine.

The reason I am incensed about all this is that I happened to see Halley's Comet the other night. I refused to mention it to anyone because it's the sighting and not the bragging that counts with me.

Then Novak came down the hall and claimed that he had seen it.

I have been suspicious of Novak's comet sightings ever since he an-nounced in 1973 that he viewed Kohoutek and told everyone it was on a crash course with earth.

The people in the office were quite impressed that Novak had seen Halley's Comet, but no one thought to find out if he was telling the

"What did it look like?" I wanted to know. He replied, "A dirty snowball."

He could easily have read that in Penthouse magazine, so I asked him, 'How long was it?" "As long as the dirtiest snowball

I've ever seen," Novak replied.
"That long?" I said. "Did you see the tail on it?" I thought I had him. Novak said, "It was too dirty to see the tail. I was lucky to get a glimpse of its mouth." I was leading him right into a trap. And what did the mouth look like?" "A big dirty snowball streaking across the sky.

"Did it fly past the moon?" "Of course it flew past the moon. What kind of comet do you think it

"Not so fast, Novak," I said. "I saw Halley's Comet last night and it was nowhere near the moon.'

"Well, it was so dirty I couldn't tell what it was passing. All I know is the sky is falling." People have been lying about Halley's Comet for 2,225 years." Novak was adamant. "I know what saw. It was a snowball, and it whizzed right past the moon."

"Where was it going?" "It was on a crash course with earth."

Wealth of animal fossils found on shores of Nova Scotia bay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Scientists have made the largest fossil find in North America, uncovering more than 100,000 bone pieces of animals 200 million years old at a site in Nova Scotia, the National Geographic Society announced today.

The fossils, representing the crucial period in history when dinosaurs emerged to become masters of the Earth, were discovered on the shores of the Bay of Fundy north of the coast of Maine.

Geologist Paul E. Olsen of Columbia University's Lamont-Doherty Geological Observatory and biologist Neil H. Shubin of Harvard University led the field work that made the discovery last summer.

"Bones were sticking out all over the place. They were everywhere," Shubin said of the site, located on the north shore of the bay near rural Parrsboro.

Some of the more significant finds so far are 12 skulls and jaws of Tritheledonts, the reptiles that are closest evolutionally to mammals. They are the first found in North America and represent the largest single collection of these rare fossils in the world, the scientists said. Other skulls, teeth, jaws and bones unearthed at the site along the water's edge belong to dinosaurs, ancient crocodiles, lizards, sharks and primitive fish. The work, supported by the National Geographic and done in cooperation with the Nova Scotia Museum in Halifax, resulted in the researchers trucking three tons of rocks from the Canadian site to their laboratories for further examination.

Only a small portion of these rocks have been examined in detail, they said, and new specimens are uncovered every day.

The fossils were found in a rock formation known to geologists as the Newark Supergroup, the remains of an ancient, deep rift which stretches from Nova Scotia to South Carolina. About 200 million years ago, scientists say, this rift valley was close to the Earth's equator. The sedimentary rocks of the formation, which is between 225 million and 175 million years old, had not been considered a good source of fossils and essentially been considered a good source of fossils and essentially were ignored for this purpose, the scientists said. The discovery should spark more exploration along this formation, they added.

The fossils represent life in the boundary between the Triassic period, which began 240 million years ago, and the Jurassic, which began 200 million years ago. Reptiles were the dominant land creatures during the Triassic, and the earliest dinosaurs appeared toward the end of that period. By the beginning of the Jurassic, dinosaurs proliferated and dominated the Earth until they vanished 65 million years ago.

The scientists said the new findings point to a catastrophic extinction right at the Triassic-Jurassic boundary.

ary - such as an asteroid impacting the Earth - that wiped out more than 40 percent of the land and lake animals of that time.

Airman charged with espionage attempt

A federal official said the suspect, Airman 1st Class Bruce D. Ott of Beale Air Force Base in California, was arrested Jan. 22 after he contacted the Soviet consulate general in San Francisco and offered to provide Soviet agents with sensitive material involving national security.

The Air Force did not disclose the arrest until this week, saving it did not routinely announce arrests of its

The authorities declined to comment when asked if Ott had attempted to pass information involving two highly secret spy planes, the U-2 and its successor, the SR-71, based at Beale, which is about 50 miles north of Sacramento.

The needle-nosed SR-71 is a highaltitude surveillance jet that flies on the edge of space and can travel at speeds of nearly 2,000 mph.

A federal law enforcement official said it appeared that the airman was arrested before any classified material had been passed to the Soviet

The arrest was the most recent in an extraordinary series of espionage cases in the United States over the last year. Nearly a dozen current and former government employees have been charged with espionage.

Ott, an administrative clerk at the base, was taken into custody by Air Force authorities after he attempted to meet with a federal agent who was masquerading as a Soviet diplomat, according to a law enforcement official who asked not to be named.

The arrest took place in Davis, Calif., not far from Sacramento, officials said. The Air Force said it decided to release information about the arrest when reporters inquired about rumors of espionage.

Unseasonably

Unseasonably warm temperatures will continue to dominate the Midland-Odessa area through Thursday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal calls for clear skies tonight with the low in the upper 30s. Winds will be from the south at 5 to 10 mph.

Forecasters say Thursday will be sunny and warm with the high expected to reach the low 70s. Winds will be from the south at 10 to 20

Tuesday's high of 77 was two degrees below the record set in 1950. The morning low of 36 was 34 degrees above the record set in 1948. STATE

Texas remained under the influence of high pressure aloft today with generally clear skies statewide. A weak cold front cut through the northwest portion of the state extending from east of Wichita Falls to near Midland.

Temperatures fell into the upper 30s from the Red River Valley west-ward into the South Plains and Panhandle. Readings were also in the 30s over far West Texas, with the remainder of the state mainly in the 40s and 50s. Overnight temperatures varied from 36 at El Paso to 62 at Brownsville. Behind the front, winds shifted to the north at speeds of 5 to 15 mph. Elsewhere, southerly winds of about 5 to 15 mph prevailed.

The National Weather Service said skies should remain mostly fair statewide through tonight. Lows tonight should range from the 30s north and west to near 50 in South Texas.

Midland Lee's Earl Miller ...replaces Jack Tayrien as head football coach

Earl Miller gets Lee job

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Assistant Sports Editor

Midland Lee defensive coordinator Earl Miller was named Tuesday night as head football coach of the Rebels during a closed session of the Midland Independent School District board of trustees, ending a short-lived week long search.

Miller, 42, replaces Jack Tayrien, who resigned last week to become a secondary coach at Texas Tech University. Miller inherits a program that has been playoff bound for the past three seasons while posting a 35-8 record over that span of time.

As defensive coordinator under both Spike Dykes and Tayrien, Miller played a big role in Lee's current playoff string.

Midland athletic director Gil Bartosh said last week that the search for Tayrien's replacement would begin and end in Midland, and it didn't take long for his search committee of Dr. Joseph Baressi, superintendent of schools: and Stan Cobb. Lee High principal, to come up with Miller's name as a recommendation for the school board.

"We're very pleased to an-nounce that Earl Miller is the new head football coach at Midland Lee," said Bartosh. "We felt all along that we had the talent within our system and the Lee staff has rallied behind Earl during this past week. It is great to promote within the system if you have qualified people because we can eliminate major changes in a program that has already proved

The formal announcement came at 10 a.m. this morning when the school board introduced Miller to the public via a news conference.

"I feel good about the situation," said Miller. "I feel fortunate to have this opportunity and I accept the challenge. We're going to do the things we've done in the past and the program won't change at all at Midland Lee."

Bartosh stated last week that the search for Tayrien's replacement would begin with the current Lee coaching staff. No infighting ever developed for the position, according to Miller.

"I want to point out that any of the coaches I came here with in 1978 under Bartosh would have been a great coach for Lee High School," said Miller. "We met together as a staff when Jack resigned and talked over the situation. Everyone felt like it was my turn and I was the only one to apply for the job from the Lee

Lee captures 8th straight

By ERIC SCHURER Sports Writer

Midland Lee looked like it was ready to create a logiam near the top of the District 45A race Tuesday night, but instead the Rebels came away with a 62-58 win over Abilene Cooper and found themselves alone atop the district race.

The Rebel win, combined with Abilene's 87-77 upset of Midland High, makes Lee's 8-1 mark tops in the district. It was also Lee's 20th win overall this season against six losses with five games yet to play. The Rebs have now won eight straight league games after losing its district opener to San Angelo.

Rebel coach Paul Stueckler was unable to enjoy a minute of it, however, as Lee never could get its offense untracked with the Cougars, 2-7, 14-12, smelling upset. Lee trailed by five at the close of the first quarter, but railied to go ahead by one at the half, 35-34. And although the Rebels only let the lead slip away once, they never managed to stretch it much wider.

The only good thing you can say about this game was if you can get a win when you're playing that bad, well that's something," Stueckler said. "I guess after playing two excellent games in a row (wins over MHS and San Angelo), we were ready to come up with a bad one.

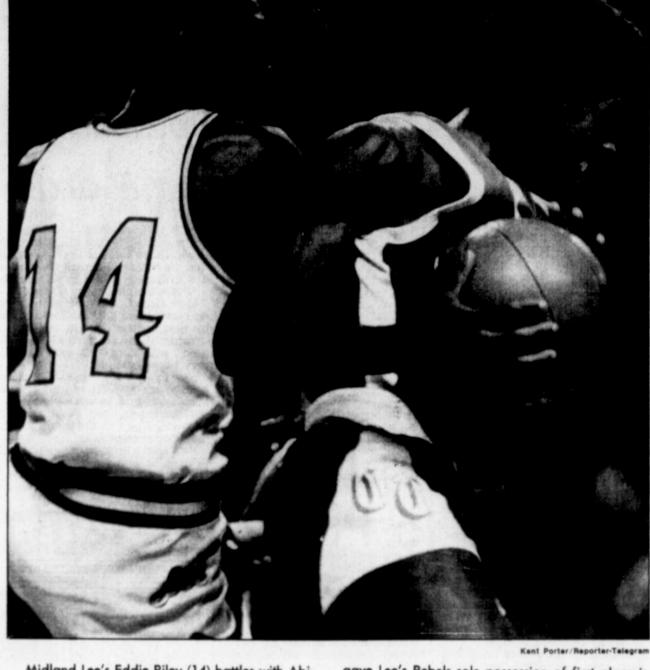

Though the Rebels wouldn't have earned a "10" in style marks, the win counts just the same, and that's the important thing at this point in district play.

WHILE THE Rebel offense was sputtering most of the game, Lee Dixon threw together a pair of fine quarters to keep Lee close. Dixon, the 6-1 senior shooting guard, scored 16 points in the second quarter and 10 in the fourth on his way to a season-high 32. Post Anthony Dickens muscled his way to 14 points, the only other Rebel in double digits.

Sometimes my shot starts feeling good and they go in, other times I start taking bad shots or I get off balance. When I don't take my time, that's when I get in trouble," Dixon said of his streaky shooting which saw him hit seven of nine in the second quarter, but miss five of six in "Some of the guys talked to me and they said I had keep scoring, so that made me come out and want to make them even more," Dixon said.

You can talk about Lee's shooting, but I'd have to say that it was our man-to-man defense that won it for us tonight," Stueckler added. We were getting beat in our zone so we had to get pressure on their shooters. That No. 21 (Les Graves, 22

"I WAS afraid to go to the man-toman at first because they set such great picks. They set 46 picks going every which-way, But we had a step in quickness on them so we went to the man.

The result was Graves, who had dead-eyed Cooper within upset distance all night, was held to four points in the final eight minutes, two on free throws. Meanwhile, Dixon was leading the Rebels with an onagain four of five from the floor and a pair of clutch free throws. "Our offense was putrid tonight, everybody was just standing around," Stueckler said and Dixon agreed. "When that happens, Lee is the one that makes things happen for us on offense.

When we're behind, I like to be the one with the ball," Dixon chimed

The Rebels were behind only Estes converted a steal from Byron James to go ahead 42-41. Mike Courtney layed in his only two points of the night on a fine pass from Rodney Sims just before the quarter ended however, and Lee never trailed

The Cougars pulled within one, 52-51, with 3:03 to play, but a corner jumper by Dixon and a three point play by Eddie Riley gave Lee a safer margin and single room at the top of the 45A standings.

IN THE JV game, Midland Lee upped its district mark to a perfect 9-0 with a slim 48-46 win over the Cougars. Danny Allen led the Rebels with 10 points in the low scoring contest. Wes Watson added nine for Lee.

Eagles spill MHS' Bulldogs, 87-77

MHS.

From Staff Reports

ABILENE - The Midland High Bulldogs handed first place over to crosstown rival Midland Lee Tuesday by taking a 87-77 beating at the hands of Abilene High

The loss drops the Bulldogs, 7-2, 17-8, into a tie with Odessa Permian, a 76-66 winner over Big Spring Tuesday, for the second and final playoff spot in District 45A.

Abilene, 4-5, 10-15, played probably its finest game of the season, hitting on 56 percent from the floor to knock off the favored Bulldogs. The Eagles forced MHS into more than 20 turnovers and found a way to break MHS' pressure defense.

The Eagles jumped all over the Dogs full court pressure in the third quarter to score the first six points and stretch their lead to 10 points. MHS was cold from the field the rest of the period as AHS rolled to a 24-9 edge in that quarter.

The Bulldogs made a final run at the streaking Eagles to open the final quarter, outscoring their hosts 13-2 to pull within eight. Moments later, however, Jeff Jones hit on a three-point play to put Abilene back up by 13 and MHS did not threaten the rest of the way.

Mondragon knows Juco role

The way Joe Mondragon looks at it, Clarendon College has a place in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference but it isn't playing the role of an Oklahoma or Nebraska. That, he obliquely infers, is for the Midlands, Odessas and Western Texas Colleges of the WJCAC.

"We don't have the budget or resources to fly recruits in to look at the campus," the Clarendon coach explains. "We have to depend on someone pointing a player in our direction or word-ofmouth or recruit in our area, places we can reach

"We're like some of the teams in the Big Eight that don't have the budgets of Oklahoma or Nebraska, but still expect to compete. Some just try to be competitive with the means at their disposal. That's the way it is with us in the WJCAC."

CONSEQUENTLY, Clarendon's roster is sprinkled with players from places like Dera, N.M.; Sapulpa, Okla.; Lorain, Ohio, with an occasional surprise like Kingston, Jamaica.

But most of the players list Texas hometowns like Lubbock, Fritch, Dumas, White Deer and Goree....Goree, that's just a the kind of sharp curve in the road you don't forget on the state highway from Snyder to Wichita Falls.

"How in the world did you ever get a basketball player from Goree?" Mondragon was asked in disbelief.

"You mean Virgil Reagins. He was recommended by the daughter of his high school coach." said Mondragon, who also coaches the Clarendon women's team. "Virgil attended Tyler Junior College, didn't like it, but stayed to gain his hours and then came home. Last year he joined us as a freshman. When he was first recruited for college ball he was coach at Clarendon. 6-31/4. When he came to us he was 6-41/4 and now he's 6-51/2." Virgil's sister plays for Mondragon on the Clarendon women's team. 'He's a great kid on and off the court and he's also leading the conference in scoring." One night he 39 points and 38 on another in conference games What's amazing is the way he beat their big men inside to get his baskets." Perhaps the best part of the Goree story is yet to come. "His younger brother is averaging 35 points a game in high school and is planning to come here Mondragon's problem is that players like Reagins don't happen along often enough, so instead of Oklahoma or Nebraska, Clarendon is Iowa State,

Kansas State or, in a good year, Kansas. APPARENTLY, Mondragon likes the challenge. He has been at Clarendon for seven years now. And considering his roots, it took something he felt was worthwhile to keep him in the flat plains

I admit it was quite a shock and took a while to get used to," agrees Mondragon.

He was raised north of Albuquerque (Bernalillo, where he was a high school All-America), went to college at Western New Mexico in Silver City, and coached three years at Cloudcroft in the Lincoln National Forest. "We lived in a cabin at Cloudcroft and that's where our first baby was born."

In his first season, he won the state Class A championship and in 1979 he took over as women's

MONDAY Mondragon brought his Bulldogs in MONDAY Mondragon brought his Bulldogs in to the Chaparral Center, looking forward to the challenge of playing the nation's No. 2 ranked junior college team. When they left, they could sympathize with the New England Patriots.

"The thing Midland does so well is execute," says Mondragon in awe. "Jerry has eight or nine really good kids. We were flat for that night, but I think Midland had a lot to do with it.

"We were concentrating on keeping them from etting inside and I think we did a good job, but they hurt us with their outside shooting. That's where this team may be better than the 1962 national champions. That team had Nate Burford and Puntus Wilson. Spud Webb wasn't that good a shot from outside, but he could do so many other things it didn't matter.

"This team," he goes on, "has three or four kids who are real cannons from outside."

Even after the Midland experience, Clarendon is 3-5 and still in the running for a shot at a spot in the Region V tournament, which for an Iowa State, is a realistic preseason goal. And, of course, the Buildogs get another shot at Midland in the sea-son's final game and this one will be in friendlier

Chicago Bears' defensive coordinator Buddy Ryan was hired Tuesday as the head football coach of the NFL's Philadelphia Eagles.

Ryan takes Bear defense to Philly

noon news conference, was signed late Tuesday according to team owner Norman Braman and General Manager Harry Gamble. Braman, reached by phone at his Miami home, told The Associated Press early today that "I can confirm that we've signed Ryan." Gamble said he negotiated most of the day Tuesday with Ryan before the 51-year-old coach signed a fiveyear contract, ending a search that began Dec. 16 when Marion Campbell was fired.

In the following weeks, there reports that Braman strongly favored David Shula, the 26-year-old son of Miami Dolphins Coach Don Shula, followed by reports that Jim Mora, coach of the United States Football League Baltimore Stars, had agreed to coach the Eagles of the National Football League.

Mora became the coach of the New Orleans Saints on Tuesday. Ryan has been an assistant coach in the NFL for 18 years, the last eight with the Bears. In his tenure with Chicago, the Bears were among the top 10 defensive teams six times. The Bears this season led the NFL in total defense, capping their success by smothering the New England Patriots in a record setting 46-10 Super Bowl triumph.

Braman's selection of the gruff defensive coach contrasted with his earlier statements that he wanted an innovative offensive coach - namely Shula, coach of the Dolphins'

But young Shula balked at a fiveyear option after a five-year contract expired. Braman dumped him. Then, the owner turned to Mora, who had directed the Philadelphia Stars, later Baltimore, to championships in two of the three USFL seasons.

Mora was offered the job and a contract negotiated. But an unexplained disagreement developed, and Mora on Tuesday took the Saints' job. The Bears, meanwhile, posted a pair of playoff shutouts bringing Ryan to Braman's attention.

The Eagles talked to Ryan and agreed to wait until after the Super Bowl to complete negotiations that would make Ryan the 17th coach in the Eagles' 53-year history.

Ryan has been given much of the credit for the Bears' 18-1 record and NFL title. After the Super Bowl rout Ryan off on their shoulders. Chicago linebacker Mike Single tary said Ryan's chance to become a head coach was a good opportunity. "At the same time I don't want him to go because I'm afraid it would spoil the chemistry we have going here," he said. "I guess that sounds selfish, but that's how I feel. That's how we all feel.'

Chicago head coach Mike Ditka said, "what Buddy Ryan has done with the defense and his use of personnel, has been outstanding.

Before his eight years with the Bears, Ryan coached eight years the New York Jets and two with the Minnesota Vikings.

Ryan, who has gained recognition as one of the more innovative minds in football, handles the linebackers in addition his duties as coordinator. He uses multiple alignments and coverages. His popular "46" defense is a 5-1-5

"I have indications from the staff that they plan to stay with the pro-gram," added Miller. "I know some of them are looking at other possibilities if a position opens where they can better themselves. But that's the only reason any of them will leave if they can better themselves." Miller's salary hasn't been set yet as the board has elected to study the salary structure in District 4-5A. The two new coaches in Odessa are getting in the neighborhood of $45,000 a year while the two new coaches in Abilene are receiving around $42,500. San Angelo pays $49,000. So far, the only position Miller must fill to complete his coaching staff is his own, and he indicates that slot may already be filled. Ernie Johnson, Lee's head baseball coach, has indicated that he would like to take a defensive coaching position. "Ernie worked with us last year for nothing and has indicated to me that he would like to join the varsity staff," said Miller. "There are still a few details to work out with Ernie. but if he wants the job, it's his."

Miller isn't new to the head coaching ranks. He owns an overall record of 41-19-4 as a head coach, doing tours of duty in Plains and Tulia. In his one year at Plains in 1972, Miller posted a record of 10-2-1, winning a regional championship before sing to state finalist Clarendon, 20-ranked Rankin in bi-district that year, and the team scored 363 points to the opponents' 83.

In 1973, Miller moved to Tulia where he posted a 31-17-3 record in five seasons. He also served as athlet-when he got the call from Bartosh 'I always wanted to coach with Bartosh and had the chance in 1972 when he was at Odessa Permian, but I turned him down," said Miller. 'You always wonder if you made the right decision in those cases and I took him up when he approached me again in 1978. I always wanted to coach in West Texas and in this district. I felt then this was my best opportunity."

Miller started his coaching career in 1966 after graduating from Sul Ross in Alpine. His first coaching job was at Cunningham Junior High in Corpus Christi. In 1967, Miller became a varsity assistant at Monahans and then went to Devine as an assistant coach in 1969. In 1970, Miller joined Dykes at Alice as defensive coordinator. He stayed there until 1972 when he got his chance to be the head coach at Plains.

Miller grew up in Seminole where he made All-District at linebacker in 1962, helping lead the Indians to their first district championship. Seminole lost that year to state champion Dumas in the region game, 6-0.

At Sul Ross, Miller lettered in both track and football. He was an All-Conference linebacker in the Lone Star Conference and made the All-Texas defensive team. In 1964 and 1965, Sul Ross lost only one conference game, winning 18 in a row before losing in the NAIA national championship semifinals in 1965. Miller was a team captain that year and Sul Ross was the only regular season undefeated college or univer-sity team in the state of Texas.

Miller and his wife, Catherine, have two sons, Clay, 16; and Monty 11. Catherine is a teacher in Midland

Greenwood trips No. 10 Stanton

From Staff Reports

GREENWOOD - Brian Morgan's 14 points led Greenwood past struggling Stanton in a key District 8-2A contest Tuesday night, 46-38.

The Rangers improved their second half season mark to 1-1 and 16-6 overall, while the No. 10 state ranked Buffs, undefeated champions of the first half, fell to 0-2 in the second

Chad Longley tossed in 11 points to aid the Ranger cause, while Mark Gonzalez topped the Stanton scoring with 16. The Buffs are now 19-5

In girls action Tuesday, Green-wood improved its second half mark to 2-0 with a 54-28 trouncing of Stanton. Stephanie Smith scored 14 and Terri Busick 10 for the 15-6 Rangers.

Both Greenwood teams will host Wall Friday night in a crucial district contest for both teams. Wall and Greenwood tied for second in the first half of boys' play, but the Hawks defeated the Rangers to win the second spot. Stanton will host Eldorado in another 8-2A contest. Also Tuesday night, Wall climbed to 2-0 in the boys race with a 84-64 win over (1-1) Reagan County while the state ranked girls of Reagan County stopped Wall, 62-52 as Sandra Gooch scored 30 points.

Rankin sinks MC Mustangs

From Staff Reports

RANKIN - The Rankin Red Devils avenged an earlier loss at the hands of Midland Christian here Tuesday night, handing the Mustangs a stinging 67-46 loss in a non-district game. Rankin's Steven Cole paced win with 22 points while Martin Castillo scored 14 points and Jim Lee added

12 for the Devils. The Mustangs, 9-11 overall this season, were led by 16 points from Kevin Wallum and 11 from Lucas Hendrickson. The MC girls escaped with a win, however, 32-31, over Rankin's girls. Kristi Grady's 11 points led the Mustangs, but it was a seven-foot jump shot by Amy Fuller with one second to go that saved the game for MC. The Midland Christian girls upped their season mark to 10-10.

SWC ignores promising recruits

Proposition 48 already taking heavy toll

Each earned a generous supply of post-season awards and appeared on the all-state ballot. None missed a down because of the no pass, no play rule. Yet all three are limited in their choice of a college because of Proposition 48, the National Collegiate Athletic Association's new eligibility standard. And they're not alone.

College coaches say the new eligibility standard — which mandates a 2.0 grade average in core curriculum courses and a predetermined minimum on college board tests - is altering recruiting practices and leaving many borderline students behind.

THE RULE goes into effect in August, but coaches already are checking to see if recruits meet the 2.0 core-course requirement and have scored at least 700 on a Scholastic Achievement Test or 15 on an American College Test.

"When I meet with a high school coach, I don't ask, 'How big is he?'" Arkansas State coach Larry Lacewell said. "The first thing I ask is, 'What did he score on his ACT?"

Spence, a 6-3, 200-pound linebacker at Euless Trinity, averaged 12.5 tackles per game and was named to the Class 5A all-state team and was voted defensive player of the year in the Fort Worth

So far, Spence has visited one Southwest Conference school, Texas Tech. Most of Spence's letters have come from smaller colleges, Trinity coach John Reddell said, because Spence does not have a 2.0 grade-point average in core-curriculum

Miller, quarterback at Fort Worth Trimble Tech, performance last spring.

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Judging by the statistics, it would be difficult to find three more promising football recruits than Ron Spence, Michael Miller and Sean Fisher.

Lacewell suggested he might have have been a non-recruit under Proposition 48 because of low moth area, but is in a similar predicament. His overall grade average is 2.0, but less than that in core courses. Despite last season's 2,139 yards poor math background, Lacewell said, he played total offense and 39 touchdowns. Miller's primary total offense and 39 touchdowns. in core courses. Despite last season's 2,139 yards total offense and 29 touchdowns, Miller's primary suitors have been North Texas State, Texas A&I and area junior colleges.

> FISHER, QUARTERBACK at Mineral Wells, was named offensive player of the year on an allarea team after throwing for 1,664 yards and 20 touchdowns last season. He averaged 1,500 yards per season in three years as his team's starter.
> However, Fisher plans to play junior college football next year because his SAT schore was below NCAA standards.

This year, they are considered risky signees for a Division 1-A or 1-AA school and may wind up playing at a junior college or National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics school.

"Some youngsters are going to get shut out that would have made it a couple years ago, maybe even last year," Baylor Coach Grant Teaff said. "If there's an exceptional athlete available, you might see some schools take a chance, even if he has to miss a year to bring up his grades."

Teaff added, "But overall, I think we'll see more players weeded out because of grades.

Had Proposition 48 been in place four years ago, Teaff said he never could have recruited Ervin Randle, a 1984 all-SWC defensive end who spent last season with the Tampa Bay Buccaneers in the National Football League.

Just as important, Teaff pointed out, Randle earned a spot on the dean's list for his academic football and earned a bachelor's degree from Arkansas A&M in 31/2 years.

Louisiana's Grambling State University was one of the predominantly black institutions to vote against Proposition 48. Grambling coach Eddie Robinson said he's seen studies that indicate 70 percent of black athletes would not meet Proposition 48 eligibility requirements because of SAT or ACT scores.

"I'm for higher standards, but I don't think one test score should determine eligibility," Robinson said. "I've had a lot of players come through that Last year, any of the three — and dozens like them — probably would have signed with a Southwest Conference school, college recruiters say.

> ROBINSON ADDED, "Proposition 48 is going to hurt a lot of people, but we'll adjust. We're already adjusting in the kids we're looking at for next

> Some coaches, such as Iowa's Hayden Fry, said they have yet to alter recruiting practices. But high school coaches say they have noticed a shift

> "If a kid doesn't have the grades in core subjects, most schools won't touch him, no matter what kind of player he is," said Tim Edwards, the coach at Hurst Bell. "Before they come in to check a transcript, they ask us to circle his grades in core subjects. If it's not (2.0 or better), they usually just

Bears' Super Bowl win 73-0 on humiliation scale

By FURMAN BISHER New York Times News Service

NEW ORLEANS - Once upon a time there were several Bears who played the Washington Redskins for the world championship of football and beat them 73-0. That was two score and some years ago. There has never been such devastation in a game between two teams playing for such a prize since, and nobody ever thought there would be again.

There has been, just Sunday night. Only the score was different. It reads closer than 73-0, but it was no more a contest. The New England Patriots were in this one just as much as the Washington Redskins were in that one. The Chicago Bears won this one, 46-10. On the humiliation scale it was 73-0.

IT'S A horror story that should be shown to adults only. The children should be sent to bed early. About the only thing you can say for the Patriots Tuesday is that they're all still living. Humbled and tattered but breathing.

Forty-six points sounds like an offensive massacre. It wasn't. The massacre was defensive, and watch all the coaches hurry out and start putting in the "46 Defense," which will work if they have defensive backs who can cover the secondary with 9.5 speed and seven linemen who rush like 11 and come through blockers like water over Niagara Falls.

The player who won the most valuable trophy was one of them. All Richard Dent had to do was make three tackles, sack the quarterback one and a half times and bat down one pass. The jury could have picked Steve McMichael, Dan Hampton, Wilber Marshall, Reggie Phillips and others too numerous to name and got no argument.

It was a defense so merciless that the New England quarterback probably would have been less ill Tuesday if he had stayed in bed with the flu. Poor Tony Eason was gone by the second quarter and Steve Grogan, older, crustier, more experienced in such hours of excruciation, came forth too late to save the fort, not that it could have been saved.

Here is a brief synopsis of Eason's evening at work: Six incomplete passes in a row. Handoff to Craig James for no gain. Sacked. Handoff to James, who fumbled. James gained 3. Incomplete pass. Handoff to Greg Hawthorne, who lost 4. James no gain.

Eason sat in his locker after the disaster, lights glaring in his face, undergoing the third degree. His head was down. His face was a little boy's. His voice was a murmur. He'd have chosen to be any other place in the world, except that he'll get about $54,000 as a loser. If you ever saw a kid with stage fright, you've got it here.

GET THE other picture. Jim McMahon swaggers into the interview room, wearing the dark shades with the white frames. He even has a swagger to the way he chews his gum, like a street corner punk itching for a fight.

"One thing I'm looking forward to is getting away from press conferences like these," he tells these people who will present their word picture of him, all crowding and shoving around the podium below.

They're going to have to do something about the "Super" in Super Bowl. In the two before this, the 16 (49ers over Dolphins). That means the margins total 87 points. This had to be the worst game this observer has seen all season, and one should remember that he has been watching the Atlanta Falcons.

The distractions increase by the year. You might say of this one that they gave a concert at The Superdome Monday night and a football game broke out. Between the dancing girls, the singing chorals, a jazz band's gigs and illustrated historical sketches flashed upon the big screen, it wasn't easy to remember just what 73,818 people had come there for. Enough! he cried.

This was a game begun with an introduction by the president of the United States. If he isn't more effective with the budget, we're in a mess. He was invited to pick a winner, and with Tip O'Neill's state ready to get a kick in the chops, all he could say was, 'May the (ital) best (end ital) team win." ("Better," Reagan, "better.")

The Patriots set a bunch of records, all of them

non-offensive. Here was a team that gained 7 yards carrying the football. The only thing you can say for that is that it tied William Perry for the season. They returned more kickoffs than any team in 20 Super Bowls. That's embarrassing.

The reason was granted official accord when Dent, a distinguished alumnus of Murphy High School in Atlanta, won the MVP award. The defense strangled the Patriots. It's a simple thing that Buddy Ryan picked up from a high school coach in Gainesville, Texas, 32 years ago. The quarterback feels like he's in the middle of a street riot. It works so well that Ryan, the defensive coach who looks and talks like a country banker, will probably wind up coaching somebody else's team next year.

AN ACTUAL audit will show that the Bear defense outscored the Bear offense, 26-20. That is, giving credit for points set up by an unforgiving charge as well as actually scored. Two fumble recoveries prepared the way for 10 points. Phillips, a rookie cornerback from Southern Methodist, ran one interception back for a touchdown. Jim Morrissey, a rookie linebacker from Michigan State, set up another with another interception. Both were Grogan's and both were passes that bounced off Patriot receivers. Then Henry Waechter, a reserve tackle from Nebraska, sacked Grogan for a safety, the final most unkind cut of all.

You've seen better dogfights between a terrier and a mastiff. The Six Day War was closer. You wonder if the Patriots were so happy just to be invited to the dance they went and sat it out.

Here's a team so abundantly blessed, with Walter Payton in the backfield, you hardly realize he's in the building except when the visitors from Chicago start chanting, "Wal-TER! Wal-TER!" New England at least had the pleasure of shutting him down to 2.8 yards when he carried the ball.

Now, about that utterly fantastic offensive line from New England, I'm not exactly sure what to tell you. Apparently they couldn't decide which one to block or where they were coming from. It was like being caught with a pitchfork in a rainfall of nickels. Next year, just give me more football and less song and dance. If I want a floor show, I can go to Las

Drugs rock NFL again

NEW YORK (AP) - The revelation that the New England Patriots have a drug problem puts football back into the glare of an unsavory spotlight to which it

One of the first athletes to be sentenced to jail on cocaine charges was Patriot running back Mack Herron, whom New England picked up after he was waived by all of the Canadian Football League teams because of his alleged problems with drugs.

In 1973, Herron set a National Football League record with 2,444 yards in total offense. Five years later, after stops with the Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams, Herron was in jail, sentenced to five years on a cocaine

He was one of the first of many NFL stars who were connected with drugs, a number of them receiving jail sentences and several being suspended by Commission-

Two Miami Dolphins, Don Reese and Randy Crowder, were jailed in 1977 for selling cocaine. After being released in 1978, Reese signed with the New Orleans Saints, where he later blew the whistle on several teammates in a magazine article in which he said "a cocaine cloud covers the entire league.

Rozelle said Reese never appealed to the league to help solve the problem that Reese said was rampant in New Orleans, but running back Chuck Muncie, one of the players accused by Reese of using cocaine, admitted there was widespread use of the drug on the team.

Eugene Klein, at the time the owner of the San Diego Chargers, said in 1978 that he believed some pro athletes used narcotics, but dismissed as "ludicrous" that Another former Patriot who was involved and jailed because of drugs in the late 1970's was Rommie Loudd. On Sept. 11, 1978, Rozelle said that although the NFL had not eliminated its drug problem, it was greatly improved from what it was in the 1960's and early

That was during the time Pittsburgh Steeler quarterback Joe Gilliam was in and out of prison, fighting his dependency on drugs, and rookie running back Mike Moore admitted that he had been cut by Miami because of five grams of marijuana, and Mercury Morris, a Dolphins star runner, was jailed for his involvement

It wasn't until 1982 that Dolphins owner Joe Robbie said that several players had been cut from his team or traded following the 1976 season because they were suspected of using drugs.

In 1979, Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Bob Hayes, a gold medal sprinter in the Tokyo Olympics, pleaded guilty to narcotics charges and was sentenced to five years for selling cocaine to an undercover agent.

In 1980, San Diego safety Peter Shaw was among eight people arrested on cocaine possession, while in January 1981, Dallas linebacker Thomas "Hollywood" Henderson admitted that his failure to stay in pro football was due in large part to a $1,000-a-day cocaine

The same year, former Minnesota Viking defensive star Carl Eller said a $2,000-a-week cocaine habit almost ruined his life.

In 1980, the NFL's security division investigated three

Former president, chief executive of Hearst Corporation dies in New York

Hearst News Service

NEW YORK - Richard E. Berlin, who for three decades was president and chief executive officer of the Hearst Corporation, one of the nation's largest diversified media companies, died Tuesday at his home in Rye, New York. He was 92 years old. When he retired in 1973, he had spent 54 years with the Hearst organization.

Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of the Hearst Corporation, said of him: "Dick Berlin played a tremendous role in the growth and success of the Hearst Corporation. All of us in the Hearst organization today are the beneficiaries of his countless contributions over so many years."

William Randolph Hearst Jr., son of the founder of the company and currently chairman of the executive committee of the corporation and editor-inchief of the Hearst Newspapers, commented: "Dick Berlin's remarkable 54 years of dedicated service to the Hearst Corporation and his role as captain of the ship during a major reorganization of the company more than 40 years ago means simply that every member of this vast organization owes him a sub-stantial debt of gratitude. His was one of the most noteworthy careers in the history of American service will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, the family asks that contributions be made to the Alzheimer Disease and Related Disorders Association Inc., in Chicago, Ill.

Berlin began his career with Hearst in 1919, soon after his discharge as a World War I U.S. Navy lieutenant, when he applied for a job with Hearst's Motor Boating and Sailing.

Because of his knowledge of boats and seamanship, he was hired as an advertising sales trainee by Charles F. Chapman, the magazine's editor and

In 1930, William Randolph Hearst, the founder and owner of the company, named Berlin executive vice president and general manager of Hearst Magazines, which at the time included Cosmopolitan, Good Housekeeping, Harper's Bazaar and Town and Country. Shortly afterward he was appointed president of the Magazines Division. In 1934 Berlin was instrumental in acquiring House Beautiful magazine, the first of several acquisitions the company made during his tenure.

The year 1941 was a time of financial difficulty for the corporation and Hearst tapped Berlin to head a management team that launched a massive reorganization. Some newspapers were merged, others sold, and new financial policies were initiated. Within two years, the company once again was operating efficiently and profitably. On November 29, 1943, Berlin was elected president of the Hearst

After Hearst's death in 1951, Berlin continued as president and became the corporation's chief executive officer, a role he maintained until his retirement 22 years later.

HOLLYWOOD (LAT) - Lilli Palmer, the spirited and beautiful stage and film actress who in her middle years became a best-selling author, is dead at 71, it was learned Tuesday.

The elegant, always tasteful star of such films as "Body and Soul," "Cloak and Dagger" and "The Four Poster," the last with her former husband Rex Harrison, died in her Los Angeles residence Monday.,

Her second husband, the former Argentine actor Carlos Thompson, issued a statement through Forest Lawn Memorial Park in nearby Glendale in which he said only that services would be private.

No cause of death was given, but Victor Ross, Miss Palmer's brother-in-law, said by telephone from London that he believed the actress had suffered a heart

In many of her American films she was seen as an exotic Viennese vixen, but in truth Miss Palmer was one of three daughters born to a Jewish surgeon and his actress wife in Posen, Germany. And Miss Palmer facetiously credited Adolf Hitler with her success.

It was Hitler's rise to power that forced her father to put her on a train to Paris where she found herself in cabarets, putting to use the acting and entertaining skills she had studied in Berlin.

It was also there that she changed her name from Lillie Peiser to Lilli Palmer.

She was appearing at the Moulin Rouge when given a letter of introduction to film producer Alexander Korda.

"But I was too young and too fat," the diminutive actress said years later. Korda was not interested. She made brief appearances in some obscure British films in the mid-1930s and had achieved some stage successes in the provinces where she met Harrison in 1939.

Lewis Elias. The 73-year-old former president was hospitalized Monday after vacationing at the exclusive Cat Cay retreat of his friend Charles "Bebe" Rebozo in the Bahamas. Nixon was receiving glucose, a saline solution, and

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) - Singer Kate Smith, famous for her rendition of "God Bless America", has been released from the hospital where she underwent surgery earlier this month to amputate her right leg. "She's getting along well and is in splendid spirits," said Miss Smith's sister, Helena Smith Steene. She said Miss Smith had been in good condition for the past few days and was released from Raleigh Community Hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Miss Smith, 78, was admitted to the hospital Jan. 11 with circulation problems stemming from diabetes. The next day, her leg was amputated above the

Miss Smith, who lives in Raleigh, became one of the nation's most popular radio entertainers in 1931. That year, she helped write the lyrics to her theme song, "When the Moon Comes Over the Mountain."

She is best known for "God Bless America," to which composer Irving Berlin gave her rights in 1938 after it had sat on the shelf for 20 years.

Investigation began seconds after shuttle explosion

By PAUL RECER AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston - The search for the cause of space shuttle Challenger's explosion began even before all burned and twisted pieces of the craft had splashed into the

NASA engineers started the investigation within seconds of the accident Tuesday, and it may well continue for months and involve hundreds of experts. Its outcome could determine the shape and future of NASA's manned spaceflight

Shuttle program director Jesse Moore announced that a formal board of investigation will be named soon, but that an interim panel already was formed to collect data. When the formal board meets, the members are expected to face a mountain of data, thousands of photographs, and libraries of papers tracing the history of each and every one of the millions of parts that made up space shuttle Challenger.

Flight controllers in Mission Control at the Johnson Space Center moved quickly to preserve all clues to the cause of the accident. Even as the smoke from Challenger's fireball hung in the blue Florida sky, a spokesman said the Houston controllers were storing computer data to make certain it was not erased and

"Mission Control is frozen at the point of the explosion," Johnson Space Center Public Information

Chief Harold Stall said. It will stay that way for the investigation, pre-served at a moment of disaster, he

Miles and miles of computer tapes from the maze of mechanical brains in Mission Control's backroom will be reviewed "millisecond by millise-cond," a computer engineer said..

NASA officials generally declined to be named, but most said the investigation will follow the pattern of earlier space agency accidents, in-cluding the 1967 fire that killed three astronauts in an Apollo spacecraft.

An official said experts will be searching the Mission Control data for hints that might have led to the explosion, looking particularly for clues of anything out-of-normal, such as temperature or pressure increases or aerodynamic buffeting.

At the Kennedy Space Center in Florida, ships and helicopters rushed to where debris from the shuttle fell into the ocean. Some pieces were recovered, and officials said it is expected that other pieces will be reclaimed from the ocean floor.

The chunks will be examined microscopically and chemically for clues to the cause, direction, and force of the explosion, an official

Investigators also will have thousands of photographs to study. At least six television cameras were focused on Challenger as it lifted off the launch pad. Film from the cameras will be enhanced by computers and then analyzed frame by frame.

Contractors who built the space-craft components will play a major role in the study. At the Martin Marietta plant in New Orleans, where the shuttle rocket fuel tank is made, company officials already were assembling data on the tank used for Challenger's launch. The silo-like vessel is 154 feet long, 28 feet in diameter, and contains 1.6 million pounds of super-cold liquid hydrogen and oxygen at the moment of launch.

Television views seem to indicate that Challenger's explosion centered on the tank, but Martin Marietta officials refused to speculate.

"We don't know what could have exploded," Matt Siebel, the NASA manager at plant, said. "There are so many failure modes."

If the investigation board is able to firmly determine a cause, engineers for NASA and its contractors will then attempt to design a way to prevent a reoccurence. This may require new hardware that then will have to undergo tests that could take months. Finally, if NASA is satisfied the problem has been corrected, only then would shuttle flights resume. Following the 1967 Apollo fire, it took NASA 22 months to find the cause, correct it, and finally launch

the first Apollo spacecraft. "The Apollo was a simple space-craft compared to the shuttle," one space center official said. "It may take even longer for the orbiter

What will future hold for shuttle?

By SHARON HERBAUGH

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) -The year 1986 was supposed to be one of NASA's most spectacular and ambitious with 15 shuttle missions

The plans, however, now lie in shambles like the debris that fell into the Atlantic Ocean on Tuesday from the incinerated shuttle Challenger.

The loss of the Challenger and its seven-person crew prompted the space agency to halt temporarily its future missions until a reason is found for Tuesday's tragedy.

"We're obviously not going to pick any flight activity until we fully understand what the circumstances were relative to launch," said Jess Moore, associate administrator for spaceflight and newly appointed director of the Johnson Space Center, home of America's astronauts.

The schedule included the launch in May of two science probes that would be sent toward Jupiter. The Ulysses satellite, set for launch on May 15, was to fly aboard Challenger, and then speed on to Jupiter for a major scientific study of the largest planet in the solar system. Another satellite, called Galileo, was to be launched from space shuttie Atlantis on May 21 and cruise toward Jupiter. It was to use the gravity of the planet to be slung toward the sun and become the first manmade object to orbit the solar poles.

Also wrecked are NASA's plans to study Halley's Comet. A special camera and satellite aboard Challenger was to gather irreplaceable data on the comet as its nears the sun.

In March, another comet study was planned aboard space shuttle Without these two missions, the major U.S. studies of the comet are

Another major loss will be the delay in launch of the Hubble Telescope, the most powerful astonomy instrument ever built for use in orbit. NASA expected it to view celestial objects that are 10 times farther away and dimmer than any seen from Earth. The telescope was to have been launched on Atlantis on Oct. 27.

Also planned for 1986, in March, was the first launch of a shuttle from Vandenberg Air Force Base in California. The mission, on space shuttle Discovery, would have flown over both of Earth's poles.

Launch delays also will affect a number of routine shuttle flights: - March 20, a Department of Defense flight on Discovery with a secret payload. June 24, a Columbia flight that was to include material sciences

- July 15, a Challenger flight that was to include recovery of a satellite that has been in orbit for more than a year, testing the effects of the space environment on a variety of metals, glasses and plant seeds.

— Aug. 18, a Columbia mission that included instruments to study the Earth and its environment.

Sept. 4, a secret Department of Defense mission set for launch from the Kennedy Space Center.

Sept. 24, a Challenger flight that was to include launch of a major communications satellite, a twin to the one that was lost in Tuesday's

- Nov. 6, an Atlantis flight that was to include the launch of three satellites. — Dec. 8, a Department of Defense mission on Challenger.

Moore declined to speculate Tuesday how long an investigation might take, saying only that flight safety is the agency's first priority.

"It's got to be a function of what the (investigation) board finds and where the difficulties were and what corrective actions must be taken before we feel confident and safe to fly again," he said.

Challenger, nicknamed "Old 99" and considered the most dependable of the four-shuttle fleet, blew apart 75 seconds after an apparently flawless liftoff from Florida's Kennedy Space Center.

Moore said a panel of senior NASA members has collected and impounded debris recovered from the Atlantic Ocean, along with photographs and notes from the ground and launch support teams. The data will be reviewed by a panel, to be appointed soon by acting NASA director William Graham.

Moore refused to estimate how long it might be before the board makes a finding.

"It will be done just as quickly, but as prudently as we possibly can and as thoroughly as we possibly can," he

The only comparison to be drawn is the investigation that followed the flash fire that killed three astronauts aboard the Apollo 1 spacecraft on Jan. 27, 1967 - nineteen years and one day before Challenger exploded. It was 22 months before the next

"I liken this whole thing to the Apollo fire," said Bruce Murry, a vice president of the Planetaary Society in Pasadena, Calif., and former director of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory there. "That was a terrible blow. We picked ourselves up and went on to do the greatest achievement ever in space - humans going to the moon.

"I think the same thing will happen here," he said.

By SUZANNE GAMBOA Associated Press Writer

In the hours following the explosion of the Space Shuttle Challenger, communities and individuals mourned, psychologists considered the likely effect of the tragedy, and officials reviewed the accident and reconsidered the safety of space travel.

Space shuttle travel had become so reliable and the spacecraft for travel had become so big, that the safety feature of ejection seats was eliminated after the first four test flights of the shuttle, a NASA spokesman said Tuesday.

"With small craft that was practical.... But the shuttle was too big. You had people on two decks and crews of up to eight. How would you arrange something like that?" asked NASA spokesman Terry White.

"After launch, there is no egress except for an intact landing," he said. "It's basically like a commercial aircraft. How do you rescue 300 people?

Such a safety measure would not have helped the seven aboard the shuttle Challenger, which exploded Tuesday with no warning, White

But the perils of orbital adventure were sidestepped by Challenger crew members and buried in the back of their minds

Schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe, who was one of the seven killed in the explosion, had laughed away her

"I'm going to watch the astronauts and as long as they're not scared, I'm not going to be," she said recently. But Tuesday's doomed flight of the shuttle Challenger exposed the danger concealed behind that image and the cool, computerized facade of

"There is always a possibility and we know it. We all pray every time that it doesn't happen, and it finally

For Paul Haney, former NASA

public information officer, the risks of space travel had not faded into the shadows.

Haney says he still hears the dying screams of three Apollo astronauts as their space capsule burst into flames on a Cape Kennedy launch pad on Jan. 27, 1967. "Ed White came on the radio and said, 'There's a fire in the space craft.' Then (astronaut Roger) Chaffee came on and said, 'And it's a big fire.' And (then there were) bloodcurdling screams," Haney recalled. Teachers nationwide had been preparing their students for two lessons that Mrs. McAuliffe was to have delivered in a broadcast from space on Friday via public television stations.

As a result, the explosion was viewed live by many schoolchildren watching on television.

"Why did it have to happen to a teacher with a child?" asked 12-yearold Rebecca Griffith of Lamar Junior High in Irving. "Seeing that fireball go across the sky and knowing there weren't any survivors - that's what stunned everybody.

Youngsters raised on the Space Age called it the disaster of their era and compared it with the trauma of the Kennedy assasination.

But youths aren't the only ones feeling shock and disbelief. In Houston, residents may have a more intense reaction, one psychologist said, because the space program is a part of the city's psyche. Betsy Schwartz, Mental Health Association of Houston and Harris JCounty executive director, sid the organization is offering counseling to NASA employees and family who are upset by the tragedy. "Because (Mrs. McAuliffe) was the first civilian, and because the first civilian happens to be a teacher, we can easily identify with what she experienced and what her family is experiencing.' Several television and radio stations featured interviews with psychologists asking what effects the televised accident could have on the The tragedy threw the suburban Houston area around Johnson Space Center into mourning. Flags were dropped to half staff and motorists turned on their headlights in honor of the shuttle crew.

Texas journalists still want chance to ride shuttle

By STEVE LEVINE

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Three Texas reporters who had applied to become the first journalist in space say Challenger's explosion has not deterred their drive to perform their job aboard the space shuttle someday. "I'm still ready to go," said Mark Hanna, a reporter for KTBC-TV in

"I haven't changed my mind," said

Bill Thompson, a reporter with the El Paso Herald-Post. "They had 24 good flights. You can get killed crossing the street." "I feel probably safer than ever," said John Kanelis, editorial page editor of the Beaumont Enterprise. "The odds of this happening again would be even more astronomical than this time."

Clay Robison, Austin bureau chief of the Houston Chronicle, however, said the disaster may have shaken his resolve.

"I don't know," Robison said. "I wouldn't say, 'No,' but it's something I'm going to have to think about

A reporter was scheduled to join a shuttle flight in late September. The Association of Schools of Journalism and Mass Communication, the coordinator of the selection process, referred all calls about the future of the journalist-in-sp. ce program to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Jesse Moore, director of the Johnson Space Center, Tuesday placed all future shuttle missions "on hold," pending the outcome of an investigation into the Challenger crash. "Our hearts go out to the families of the crew members aboard the flight," said Robert Hoskins, dean of the College of Communications at Arkansas State University and president of the association

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) - The U.S. dollar fell to a seven-year-low against the Japanese yen and was down against most other major currencies today in hectic European trading as dealers expected a cut in U.S. interest rates. Gold was mostly up.

Expectations of a cut in interest rates sprang from news that the Bank of Japan had cut its official discount rate, the rate at which it lends to commercial banks, from 5 percent to 4.5 percent, dealers in Europe said. In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar plunged to a closing 194.30 yen from Tuesday's 195.40. It was down 8.13 yen in just five days and at its lowest since December 1978. Later, in London, it was quoted at 193.60

Analyst expects oil prices to fall below $20 a barrel

By FRANK TROMBLEY Staff Writer

ODESSA - A federal energy expert said Tuesday he "can't think of any reason" why oil prices should not drop below $20 a barrel.

Dr. Mark E. Rodekohr, chief of the U.S. Dept. of Energy Demand Analysis and Forecasting Branch, told about 75 people attending the monthly luncheon meeting of the Permian Basin Economics Club at Mission Country Club that $20 a barrel for oil is "not (low) enough to create increased demand" that would end the current over supply that is driving down the price of

As Rodekohr sees it, a price of $15 a barrel may be low enough to stimulate consumption, but probably not. At $12 a barrel, he said, the price of oil would be lower than coal and industries in the northeast would switch to oil.

Oil at $10 a barrel, Rodekohr said, would shut out Alaskan oil because of production costs and a price below $10 a barrel is anybody's guess. Rodekohr expressed the belief the price of oil will stabilize, but indicated that belief is based more on faith than anything else.

Describing Saudi Arabia, as the conscience of OPEC, a role that country appears to enjoy, Rodekohr speculated it would probably be to Saudi Arabia's advantage "to let prices dive," because low prices would kill exploration and production development prospects for the next five to 10 years.

next five to 10 years.

Rodekohr said that whatever the price of oil falls too, he believes Saudi Arabia will allow it to remain there for a time.

As to the United States, Rodekohr said there are "a couple of bright spots in the U.S. market. In spite of smaller cars that burn less gas, the consumption of gasoline has in-creased in recent years. He speculat-ed that what we think of as conservation will probably stay around in years to come, but, regardless of how low the price of gasoline drops, peo-ple won't rush out to trade in their small cars for bigger ones that burn more gasoline.

Regarding Texas and natural gas production, Rodekohr expressed the belief demand for gas will decrease in the future as more nuclear power plants come on line to produce elec-tricity. He also speculated that nuclear power plants will not be turned off just because the price of oil makes oil a more economical fuel to

Noting that the price of oil has remained relatively stable, but at relatively high prices because of the value of the U.S. dollar, in Germany and France, Rodekohr France is quickly bringing nuclear power generating plants on line to decrease that country's dependence on oil.

In a brief discussion following his presentation, it was sugested that OPEC is in a position that in 10 years they're going to completely control oil prices.

Exxon, Chevron profits up in fourth quarter

Associated Press

Exxon Corp., the world's largest company, said Tuesday that its refining and retail operations rebounded strongly in the fourth quarter, keying a 26.4 percent gain in after-tax profit over the same period a year ago. For the full year, however, earnings declined 11.9 percent. Chevron Corp., the nation's fourth largest oil company, reported a 38 percent rise in fourth-quarter earnings and a 1 percent gain for the year. Exxon, which is based in New York, said it netted $1.805 billion, or $2.43 a share, in the last three months of 1985, compared with a profit of $1.428 billion, or $1.81 a share, in the same period of 1984. Revenues edged up to $24.680 billion from $24.557 billion.

Exxon's total 1985 profit was $4.870 billion, or $6.46 a share, which was down from $5.528 billion, or $6.77 a share, the previous year. Revenues fell to $93.211 billion from $97.288 billion.

San Francisco-based Chevron said its post-tax profit in the last three months of 1985 was $601 million, or $1.75 a share, vs $434 million, or $1.26, in the same period a year earlier. Sales decreased to $10.7 billion from

For all of 1985, the company said its earnings totaled $1.547 billion, or $4.52 a share, as opposed to $1.534, or $4.48 a share, in 1984. Revenues dipped to $45.3 billion from $47.4 billion. Company officials noted that Chevron's revenues include those of Gulf

Corp. for all of 1985, while the 1984 figures include Gulf revenues only after May 1, when the two companies merged. The decrease in quarterly and yearly revenues was mainly due to sales of certain assets during 1985, including Gulf Canada and Gulf's southeast U.S. refining and marketing operations, they added.

On Monday, Mobil Corp., the nation's second largest oil company, said its earnings rose 49 percent in the last quarter of 1985, but yearly income fell 18 percent; Atlantic Richfield Co., the sixth largest oil company, said quarterly net earnings fell 50 percent; and Unocal Corp., the 13th largest oil company, said it lost $134.7 million in the quarter.

In a prepared statement, Exxon Chairman C.C. Garvin Jr. called the company's strong fourth-quarter showing "a gratifying turnaround from the depressed market condition of last year's fourth quarter."

"Petroleum and natural gas operations led the improvement as chemical margins remained soft. Downstream petroleum operations enjoyed one of the best quarters in a number of years as European refining and marketing operations were profitable compared with 1984 losses.

"Colder weather resulted in increased fourth-quarter demand, especially for heating oil and European natural gas. Product margins im-

HOUSTON (AP) — Financially troubled Sakowitz Inc. has repaid more than half of the bank debt it had accumulated before seeking protection from creditors in federal bankruptcy court.

The 83-year-old, family-owned retailer paid back $14.5 million of $20 million owed to a five-member banking group led by Chase Manhattan, N.A., Chairman Robert Sakowitz said Monday.

Since filing under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code in August, Sakowitz has dramatically scaled back its operations. It has closed seven stores and cut its work force from 2,200 to 500.

The company's four Houston stores posted an operating profit in December, earning $630,252, according to a report filed with the court. However, the company posted a $104,512 loss after corporate overhead and interest expense, the report said.

Since filing the bankruptcy petition, the four stores contributed an operating income of more than $1 million but posted an operating loss of $2.5 million, the

Railroad Commission to plug two wells

AUSTIN (AP) — The Railroad Commission said Tuesday it has authorized funds on an emergency basis to plug two abandoned wells that have leaked saltwater and threaten two freshwater sources in North Texas and West

An estimated $7,000 will be needed to plug a well in Palo Pinto County about 10 miles south of Mineral Wells.

The commission said a staff investigation showed that the well has been leaking five to 10 barrels of saltwater a day into a dry watercourse that flows into the Brazos River.

An estimated $10,000 will be necessary to plug a well near Snyder in Scurry County, the commission said. Commission investigators said the well threatens a nearby freshwater stream that flows through Snyder.

Union Texas completes 7.6 Mmcf confirmer

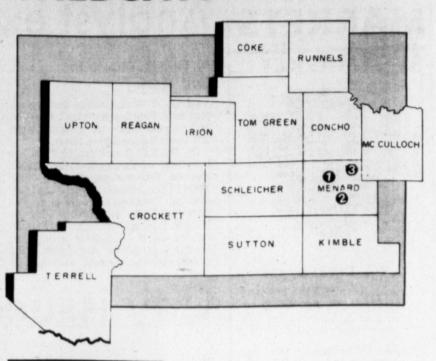

HOUSTON, Jan. 28, 1986-(SWN)-Union Texas Petroleum today announced that a recently completed well in state waters off St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, confirms the discovery of significant natural gas reserves the company made there in 1983.

Located some 25 miles southeast of Intercoastal City, Louisiana, the East Lake Sand State Lease 10251 No. 2 well flowed on a short-term test at a rate of 7.6 millon cubic feet of natural gas and 60 barrels of condensate daily through a 11/16-inch choke with 12,900 pounds-per-square-inch flowing tubing pressure. The gas and condensate were tested from perforations between 17,700 feet and 17,720 feet. The company said that the confirmation well penetrated 379 feet of net productive pay below 15,900 feet and that the well is capable of producing up to 40 million cubic feet of natural gas daily.

The discovery well, the State Lease 10251 No. 1, which was completed in 1983 tested at a rate of 15.4 million cubic feet of natural gas and 102 barrels of condensate daily through a 17/64-inch choke.

EPNG initiates transportation

under FERC 'open access' rule

EL PASO (SWN) — El Paso Natural Gas Company has announced that it has initiated the transportation of natural gas on its interstate pipeline system to California and to Arizona under the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's new "open access" transportation rules.

Under agreements with units of Shell Oil Company and Texaco Inc., El Paso is transporting to Southern California Gas Company up to 150 million cubic feet of gas per day for Shell and up to 200 million cubic feet of gas per day for Texaco. The gas is trans-ported in California by SoCal to the producers for use in enhanced recovery operations in the central California oil fields. Under an agreement with South west Gas Corporation of Las Vegas, Nevada, El Paso is transporting up to 30 million cubic feet of gas per day to Tucson, Arizona for use by Tucson Electric Power Company in electric power generation.

Pursuant to the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's "open access" transportation regulations, El Paso will enter into new transportation arrangements on behalf of local distribution companies and intrastate pipelines on a "first-come, firstserved" basis.

Q. What are the requirements for transferring ownership and tax liability of our Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, to our minor grandson? These bonds are about 20 years old. Some are in my name, some in my husband's name, some in both our names as co-owners. We are anxious to accomplish the transfer as soon as possible.

A. You can change the ownership of the bonds by having them reissued in your grandson's name. But you can't transfer the tax liability.

To arrange for the reissue of savings bonds from living owners to new owners, you fill out and sign the necessary forms — PD 4000 for bonds in single ownership or beneficiary form and PD 1938 for bonds in co-ownership form. Your local bank or other savings bond agent should have those forms on file.

However, that will be a "taxable event." You will be liable for federal income tax on all the interest that has built up on the E bonds since the time they were issued. You will be required to report that accumulated interest on the federal income tax return you file for the year in which ownership of the bonds was transferred.

Your grandson will be liable for federal income tax on interest that accrues on the bonds after the Many grandparents, parents, aunts, and uncles who are in relatively high income tax brackets would love to shift the tax liability on accumulated savings bond interest to young family members. Their notion is to transfer the bonds and then have them cashed. And, because youngster usually have little or no other taxable income, the tax bite on the accumulated interest should be small or nonexistent.

That plan just won't work. There is no legitimate way to transfer the tax liability on accrued savings bond interest from one living owner to another.

Q. Is it possible to have my U.S. Savings Bonds reissued in my name and a co-owner's name? A. Yes. If the bonds are in single ownership form, you can add a co-owner or a beneficiary on your own say-so. Things get more complex when the bonds are in co-ownership or beneficiary form.

When savings bonds are in co-ownership form, both co-owners must sign for the change. When E and H bonds are in beneficiary form, the owner and beneficiary must sign. When EE and HH bonds are in beneficiary form, the owner can change the beneficiary without the beneficiary's

Q. When I exchanged my old Series E bonds for Series HH bonds, I added a co-owner's name. As a result of the exchange, I did not have to pay federal income tax on the interest that had built up on the E bonds. That tax was postponed until the HH bonds are cashed. I am paying federal income tax on the HH bond interest which arrives by check every six months.

If the co-owner cashes the bonds after I die and my estate has been settled, who will pay the tax on the old E bond interest.?

A. The executor or administrator of your estate will have the option of paying that tax when your final federal income tax return is filed. If that is done, your estate will pay the income tax on that old E bond interest.

If the tax is not paid at that time, the co-owner will be liable for that tax when he or she redeems the HH bonds.

Q. I have some U.S. Savings Bonds dating back to 1968. They belonged to my father and are in his name. Both he and my mother have passed away. I remember my father saying he had lost these bonds. I do not know if he ever put in a claim and received money for them. Is there any way I can find out?

A. Yes. Write to Bureau of the Public Debt, 200 Third Street, Parkersburg, WV 26101. That unit of the U.S. Treasury Department keeps a record of every savings bond ever issued and can tell you whether or not your father put in a claim. If he did, he could have received duplicate bonds.

If your father never did anything about the "lost" but now found bonds, they can be reissued in your name - and the names of his other heirs. Or, they can be redeemed by heirs who prove they are entitled to them and provide a copy of your father's death certificate.

proved as demand rose and a further weakening of the dollar lowered foreign raw material costs," Garvin said.

Garvin said restructuring costs had reduced fourth-quarter earnings slightly. Losses from sales of the Federal Pacific Division of Reliance Electric Co. and several large crude ships were partly offset by a gain from the sale of refining, marketing and chemical facilities in Sweden, Exxon said its fourth-quarter capital and exploration outlays were up 15.9 percent to $3.643 billion, while exploration and production earnings rose $84 million in the United States and $80 million abroad.

The company said it spent $567 million to buy back 10.6 million shares of its own stock in the fourth quarter, bringing the yearly total to $2.749 billion for 54.1 million shares.

billion for 54.1 million shares

Commenting on the yearly results, Garvin said there were stronger earnings in both domestic and foreign petroleum and natural gas operations, offsetting lower chemicals earnings and higher corporate and

He said Monday's Supreme Court decision not to review the Hawkins judgement, a crude oil pricing case, which resulted in Exxon's having to pay back $2.1 billion for consumer overcharges, "has no additional impact of 1985 earnings, since previous provisions against earnings have provided for Exxon's potential net cost, including interest."

Chevron Chairman George M. Keller called 1985 "a difficult year, with sluggish demand for petroleum products and declining crude oil prices. "While refining and marketing margins improved relative to last year, largely due to higher gasoline prices, exploration and production earnings were reduced by significant demand and price declines for natural gas and by lower prices for crude oil," he said.

"In one important area, our 1985 performance was very strong," Keller added. "We reduced our total debt, both short- and long-term, by $6.1 billion, including $1.5 billion in the fourth quarter.

"The integration of Gulf and Chevron operations is essentially complete now, and we are moving to create a stronger, more efficient

Rodekohr said, "Market analysts would tend to agree with that, that the low prices of lafter 1981 have not been seen in statistics yet, but they will be," he stated.

"When you get on these big de-cline curves, like especially Alaska, once Alaska starts to go, it's going to go quick," the DOE demand-forecast expert said, "So you'll get big drops in non-OPEC production, combined with fairly stable to slightly growing demands, which will put OPEC back in the position of being a real major. in the position of being a real major world producer.

Asked about indications that resistance to imposition of an oil import tax may be weakening in Congress Rodekohr said he was not in the policy part of it, but this comes up every year and they're looking awfully hard.

He said Congressman John Dingell, D-Michigan, "asked us to look at import fees last week and we will look at them and put out a report looking at some of the alternatives and the effects of them."

Should an oil import tax be imposed what would the affect be, Rodekohr was asked

"It would boost U.S. prices for crude, it would boost, you know, if you kept it on, it would keep U.S. production higher than it otherwise would," he said, and observed, "It would also put more pressure on

Attention Geologists and Engineers PRICES ARE PLUMMETING. ARE YOU?

Things are getting a little scary in the oil business. And as much as we would like to give you a pep talk, tell you to keep the old chin up, facts are facts. Costs keep going up and prices keep going down. And the whole situation seems to get crazier everyday.

SOME SANITY

So, let's pause and talk a little sanity. Maybe we can't do anything about falling prices. But we can do something about rising costs. We can be more efficient. We can do our work faster and better. And we can provide more quality.

A NEW TOOL

At COREDATA we have a new tool geologists and engineers can pick up and use today to do their work more efficiently and with better results. The new tool is called a "rock property database." Soon, the database will have 150,000 core analysis reports computerized for easy access (even if you don't use a computer). COREDATA already has over 13,000 Permian Basin reports available for your access right now.

BETTER DECISIONS

With COREDATA's new system you don't need to take all day to make a plot using just a handful of core reports. You can plug in far more data than you are using now and get your plot done in a fraction of the time. That means more informed decisions reached faster with improved results at lower costs. It's a system that will be used by those who survive in this business.

ENROLL NOW

Register now for an informative, half-day seminar presented by COREDATA. You'll see how the new database can improve your efficiency and problem-solving abilities. We will be using real life Permian Basin examples. Anyone who makes investment decisions based upon reservoir descriptions should also attend.

Oil price drop scrambles Mexico's plans for recovery

Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

MEXICO CITY - As Mexico prepares to reduce the price of its oil to keep pace with the world market, Mexican experts and foreign diplomats say that the continuing decline in the nation's earnings is fast scrambling plans and predictions for its crippled economy. Each drop of a dollar a barrel in oil prices costs Mexico about $1.5 million a day in revenue. As the price for Mexican oil, which now averages close to $23 a barrel, approaches $20, the country will find it difficult to maintain payments on its massive foreign debt, observers say.

In addition, financing the imports necessary to stimulate its economy and funding government programs will become even more difficult, further complicating the problems of a country with high unemployment rates and few prospects for growth.

Less than a month ago, Mexican and foreign officials were predicting that Mexico would require $4 billion in new international loans this year to pump up its sagging economy. But, given the slide in world oil prices, that figure may jump another 2 billion.

"All bets are off," a foreign observer said. "Mexico's needs seem to be growing by the day."

Mexico owes $96 billion to scores of foreign banks, most of them in the United States. Only Brazil is deeper in the hole.

If the situation were not so urgent, the performance of the government of President Miguel de la Madrid in managing Mexico's economy might well discourage new loans. Efforts by his government to curb inflation, stop the flight of dollars out of the country and stimulate exports have, at best, been only partially

But with bankers already heavily committed to Mexico, they have little choice but to help keep the coun-

SWIRLED ENGLISH MUFFIN BREAD

- 6 tablespoons sugar
- 2 teaspoons cinnamon
- 1-1/4 cups water 1/2 cup skim milk
- 1/4 cup vegetable oil margarine 3-1/2 to 4-1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 2 teaspoons enriched corn meal 1-1/2 cups quick or old fashioned
  - oats, uncooked

  - 1 teaspoon salt

Grease two 8x4-inch loaf pans. Sprinkle sides and bottom of each pan with about 1 teaspoon corn meal. Combine 4 tablespoons sugar and cinnamon; set aside. Heat water, milk and margarine until very warm (120° to 130° F). Pour into large mixer bowl. Add 1 cup flour, oats, raisins, undissolved yeast, egg substitute, remaining 2 tablespoons sugar and salt. Beat at low speed on electric mixer until moistened. Increase speed to medium; continue beating 1 minute. Stir in enough remaining flour to form a stiff dough.

Knead on lightly floured surface 8 to 10 minutes or until dough is smooth and elastic. Divide dough in half. Roll each half into 15x7-inch rectangle. Spread half of cinnamon-sugar mixture over each rectangle. Starting at narrow end, roll up dough tightly. Pinch together ends and seam to seal; place seam side down in prepared pans. Cover; let rise in warm place about 45 minutes or until double

Heat oven to 375° F. Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until loaves sound hollow when tapped. Remove from pans; cool completely on wire cooling rack. To serve, cut into 1/2-inch thick slices and toast. 2 Loaves (16 Slices Per Loaf).

If you find yourself reaching for a bran muffin from the coffee cart and ordering a crisp green salad for lunch, you're just one of millions of Americans who have taken the U.S. Dietary Guidelines to heart.

How are we changing our diets? We're eating a variety of foods from the Basic Four but limiting those which are high in fat, cholesterol, sodium and sugar. We're also beginning to eat more fruits, vegetables and grains - and, as a result, more dietary fiber.

Fiber was once a far more common part of the American diet. But over the years, more refined foods, fats and sugars have replaced the high-fiber foods our grandparents enjoyed. Although we can live without any fiber, diets lacking in fiber have been linked to a number of diseases, including America's major killers - heart disease, stroke and some forms of cancer.

Each type of fiber has specific health benefits. Water insoluble fibers such as those found in wheat bran aid digestion and laxation. Water soluble fibers, plentiful in oats and dried beans, have been shown to reduce cholesterol levels when incorporated into a low-fat diet, thereby reducing the risk of heart attacks. This type of diet may also help stabilize blood sugar levels for some types of Breads made with whole grain oats are one of the tastiest ways to add more fiber to your diet. Scottish Oat Scones, a European favorite, make a quick and delicious American breakfast bread. Skim milk and vegetable oil margarine keep fat and cholesterol levels in check, while raisins add extra fiber and natural sweetness.

Treat the family to toasted slices of Swirled English Muffin Bread at breakfast time, snack time, anytime. The golden loaves, lightly swirled with cinnamon-sugar, owe their hearty flavor and moist texture to oats. Preparation is streamlined for busy bakers. Only one bowl is needed for mixing, and just one rising is required.

When ground into flour, oats can thicken sauces, soups, puddings and stews and become a tasty coating for poultry, fish and veggies. Nutrition-conscious cooks substitute this hearty whole grain flour for up to one-third of the all-purpose flour called for in favorite cake, cookie and bread recipes.

Ground oat flour, quickly made in the blender or food processor, enhances the nutritional value of Flaky Oat Biscuits. Merry Time Muffins, developed by the home economists in The Quaker Kitchens, feature ground oat flour exclusively. Molasses adds a rich taste and deep color, or try honey for a lighter appearance and milder flavor.

Chilled Apricot Oat Breakfast gives cereal-lovers a nutty, fruity, high-fiber change of pace. This wholesome mixture of oats, dried apricots and nuts, lightly sweetened with orange juice and honey, is assembled ahead, and refrigerated overnight. You can wake up to a breakfast that's ready to eat!

Chicken, shrimp team up

By CECILY BROWNSTONE AP Food Editor

A recipe for chicken and shrimp in wine is said to have come into fashion in 18th-century China. When it was tried recently in my test kitchen, my tasters applauded. The recipe comes from "Wild Blackberry Cobbler and Other Old-fashioned Recipes" by English food writers Katie Stewart and Pamela Michael (Salem House). The cookbook offers chapters on ancient Greek, Roman, Chinese, Persian and Indian cookery; Renaissance to 19thcentury English food; early Australian and European recipes and 18th-and 19th-century American cookery CHINESE SHRIMP AND CHICKEN

1 pound shrimp, shelled and

deveined 1/2 pound boneless skinless chicken breasts, cut in 1/4-inch cubes

2 teaspoons cornstarch 2 tablespoons corn oil

medium onion, coarsely chopped (about 3/2 cup)

1 teaspoon finely chopped ginger tablespoon sesame oil

% cup frozen peas, thawed and drained

2 tablespoons rice wine

2 tablespoons soy sauce

11/2 teaspoons sugar

In a large bowl, toss together shrimp and chicken. Add cornstarch; toss to coat well. In a large skillet, heat corn oil over medium-high heat. Add onion and ginger; stir fry 1 minute. Add shrimp mixture; stir fry 1 to 2 minutes. Stir in sesame oil until blended. Add peas, wine, soy sauce and sugar. Stir constantly over medium heat until boiling, thickened and clear. Serve tablespoon medium sherry tablespoon soy sauce 6-ounce green pepper 6-ounce red pepper Vegetable oil

Drain pineapple, saving juice (½ cup) for Sweet-Sour Mixture. Cut pineapple slices into small wedges. Reserve juice and wedges. Make up Sweet-Sour mixture and

Shell and devein shrimp. In a medium bowl stir together cornstarch, sherry and soy sauce until smooth; add shrimp and mix well to coat;

Seed and derib green and red pepper; cut into about %-inch squares. In a 10-inch skillet, over medium heat, heat one tablespoon oil. Add peppers and stir-fry for a minute or two. With a slotted spoon remove peppers and reserve. Wipe skillet with a paper towel and set aside for later use.

In a wok, heat two cups oil to 375 degrees. Add half the reserved shrimp, one at a time, and fry until golden brown and crisp - a few minutes. Remove shrimp to paper towels to drain. Repeat with remaining shrimp; reserve.

Into the 10-inch skillet over medium heat pour the reserved Sweet-Sour Mixture and, stirring constantly, cook until clear, thickened and boiling. Add reserved pineapple wedges, peppers and shrimp. Mix and reheat briefly. Serve hot with rice. Makes 4 main-dish servings. Sweet-Sour Mixture: In a small bowl stir together one tablespoon cornstarch and 3 tablespoons sugar. Gradually whisk in 1/2 cup pineapple juice (reserved from pineapple slices), ¼ cup cider vinegar, ¼ cup ketchup and 11/2 teaspoons soy sauce until smooth. Stir in 1 finely chopped garlic clove.

Gourmet group goes Chinese

By ELIZABETH EDWIN Lifestyle Writer

"There were no restaurants to go to Midland," said Colleen Scury, a Couples Gourmet group member.

'And that was before liquor by the drink here, and whether we like it or not that is what can make or break a restaurant," said Joan Henry, also a

That's why 15 members of the American Association of University Women got together and formed the Couples Gourmet Group in 1969, they explained.

'It was a way to have a lovely dinner," Mrs. Scury said.

Mrs. Scury and her husband Vincent moved to Midland in 1971 when he was transferred from Bakersfield, Calf. He is a geologist with Harrison Interests. They have two sons, Daniel and Bryan of Midland, and two granddaughters.

Mrs. Scury worked as a children's librarian in California and has continued her library work as a past president for the Midland County Library Advisory Board and the Friends of the Library. She has also done work for the Casa de Amigos Library and is a member of the United Way Allocations Board.

Mrs. Henry grew up in Michigan and lived in Louisiana, where she had a finishing school, for a while. She and her husband Bill, also a geologist, moved to Midland in 1969. They have three children and four grandchildren.

As a buyer for the Midland Memorial Hospital Gift Shop, Mrs. Henry travels to the Dallas Market twice a year. She works as a freelance model as well as coordinate and commentate for area fashion shows. Mrs. Henry is the past president of numerous organizations including the State Hospital Auxiliary, the Geological Auxiliary and the Republican Women.

Mrs. Henry's advice for serving a large dinner party was, "Don't ever say 'I can't.

This group lets you be innovative. will do things for this I won't try for just the two of us at home," Mrs. Henry said.

Mrs. Scury's advice was, "Don't be intimidated by anything."

Members of the Couples Gourmet Group have served meals in almost every room in the house in order to fit all 15 couples at a seated dinner, including moving the furniture out of the way in bedrooms or decorating garages.

'By now, no one's kitchen is a stranger. We have all worked together at one time or another," Mrs. Scury said.

The dinners served by the Couples Gourmet Group are usually themed. There are four hostesses for the once-a-month dinner who select a theme and then plan, cook and serve the meal for other group members and their spouses.

The theme selected for this series by Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Scury and Nita Ivy, the group's chairman, is Chinese in honor of the Chinese New Year Feb. 9 in the Year of the Tiger. One piece of advice all three ladies agreed on is it is usually better to

DES MOINES. Iowa (AP) - No longer are health foods marketed only to humans.

For the past year, a cheese-filled feed has been helping baby pigs grow strong, while emptying overflowing government storage lockers.

This results from the development of a process to sterilize spoiled cheese that had been stored in the lockers. By adding the sterilized cheese to animal feed, a feed producer provides pigs with a good-tasting health food.

DEAR ABBY

Too many visitors ruin Christmas cheer

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Your answer depends on whether I should apologize or not. My husband and I have three children. Both sets of grandparents live out of state, so we invited them to spend Christmas at our house. All four arrived on Dec. 23. On the 24th, my two brothers, their wives and a total of seven children arrived unannounced. (They live 275 miles from here.) They said they heard the folks would be here, and they wanted to see them, so they invited themselves to my house for Christmas. My own mother and two sisters-inlaw sat around talking to each other while my mother-in-law and I prepared the entire dinner for 20 people (11 of whom had not been invited). The two of us served the dinner and cleaned up while everyone else entertained themselves.

When I was hanging up my dish towel, I said to my mother-in-law, "Mom, I could use a good stiff drink and a little peace and quiet." She said, "Grab your coat. I'm buying." We filled in the hubbies, then Mom and I went to the neighborhood bar for a couple of drinks. When we got home, my mother said I owed my guests an apology. She said, "A gracious hostess doesn't walk out on her own party to get plastered some-

Abby, I was not plastered, and don't think I owed anybody an apology. What do you think? — HAD IT WITH CHRISTMAS

DEAR HAD IT: Skip the apologies. You were understandably overworked and under a lot of pressure with a houseful of unexpected company, but instead of allowing them to sit around while you did all the work, you should have asked them to

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a guy who is so cheap that instead of buying Christmas cards, he uses the cards that he's received from other people? He just crosses out their name, writes in his own and gives it to someone else.

I'm not making this up, Abby. John (his real name) has a nice little auto parts business in town and makes a pretty fair living. Oh, he doesn't mail out these recycled cards; he waits until he runs into someone on the street, or they come into his store, and he just hands it to them. Everybody in town likes John, but he's got to be the cheapest guy in Indiana — or the craziest.

If you put this in your column, leave my name off. This is a very small town and everybody knows me, too. — "ME" IN ROME CITY,

DEAR "ME": I think John's Christmas cards are hilarious. But don't write him off as penurious. He's crazy like a fox.

DEAR ABBY: Well, Christmas has passed, and we are demoralized by the unabashed neglect of our many nieces and nephews. High in expectations, we sent them all greeting cards now that most of them are grown up and married. Only three responded! My wife is downhearted, and I am bristling! When they were youngsters, we showered them with lovely gifts and were the exalted "Aunt Wonderful and Uncle Great." Now that we are in our senior years, living on a small fixed income, we think it's our turn to be remembered with a small gift or card. But now that it's their turn to shell out, they say that Christmas is too commercial. Ha!

It's a time of reckoning: Too many young people are tenderly preserved as do-nothing ornaments, breeding self-serving lifestyles. They fill their bellies full of pizzas, hot dogs, colas and french fries, then loosen their belt another notch to give vent to rousing choruses of "We Are the

As my Mrs. Wonderful keeps a stiff upper lip, I agonize whether to cool it, hang loose, keep quiet or sound off! — IRATE UNCLE

DEAR UNCLE: I'm for sounding off. You did. You're entitled, and I hope you feel better.

Oil drilling applications denied

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Assistant City Editor

Residents in southwest Midland feel they made history Tuesday evening and a lawyer for an independent oilman contended the city condemned the property set side in the 1950s for drilling oil and gas wells when six of seven applications for drilling were denied by the Midland City Council.

The meeting itself made history when the council decided to move the public hearing scheduled for 2:15 p.m. from an overflowing Council Chambers to Midland Center. Twenty minutes after lawyers for the two sides and the council agreed the meeting should go to a larger spot to accommodate the people, one large room of Midland Center was ready. for the 400-plus crowd,

F.E. Forster III, president of FEF Oil Corp., had filed applications to drill oil wells on seven drill sites that had been set aside by the Fasken family when the land was platted for development in 1952. But that area has since become heavily residential with schools or churches being near three of the seven sites.

Barbara Shupp, one of the residents who began organizing the protest movement about seven days ago and suffering from laryngitis, said hoarsely after the council's decision that she never "really doubted I had a chance. It still shows how democracy works in the United States. People still listen to the little people. I feel this does set a precedent for drilling inside the city limits. People thinking about drilling will look at

And Forster said he had expected to get more permits than just the one, nor had he analyzed how it would affect his plans.

APPROVED AS a drilling site is a 300-by-300 foot tract on the west side of Brinson Lane and 520 feet north of U.S. Highway 80. The council's vote was 43.

Rejected were: · A site 500 feet east of West Loop

250 North and 1,000 feet north of Ric Drive, vote of 34 on motion to · A site on the east side of Illinois

Avenue between Graceland Drive and Kristie Lane, vote of 2-5 to

· A site on the east side of Benwood Drive between Brookdale Drive and Pleasant Drive, vote of 6-1 to approve

· A site on the west side of Burchill Drive between Pleasant Drive and Brookdale Drive, vote of 7-0 on mo-

· A site on the east side of Eisenhower Drive between Graceland Drive and Erie Drive, vote of 7-0 to

· A site on the west side of Eisenhower Drive between Cherokee Drive and Kiowa Drive, vote of 7-0 to

During the five-hour hearing, Martin Allday represented FEF Corp. while attorney Terry Rhoads served as spokesman for the neighborhood. Petitions with 9,000 signatures of residents opposing the drilling permits were presented to the council. According to the city ordinance, if a well bore is less than 175 feet from a residential or commercial structure or public building, a permit won't be granted unless there is the unanimous consent of all the property owners and a three-fourths vote of the council. If property owners are less than 467 feet from the boundary of the drill site a public hearing is required and only a simple majority of the council's vote is needed for a permit.

Allday's arguments looked at the historical background and precedents already established. Rhoads cited health and safety factors involved in drilling an oil well, along with an expected drop in home

IN TEXAS, said Allday, mineral estate is dominant over surface rights. The land on top can be sold or leased but the mineral rights' owner has ultimate authority to go onto the land to get his "property.

Attorney Richard Brooks, who has represented the Fasken family for more than 40 years, recalled the area in west Midland used to be pasture. In 1952, David Fasken sold surface rights for development as Midland was expanding in that direction. But tracts measuring 300-by-300 feet were included in the plat to allow for drilling oil wells. In conclusion, Brooks asked the council to consider the mineral owners' interest in the Allday then cited the list of city ordinances written and amended over the years that he said protect the residents. It was re-written and amended again in 1984 and since then Parker and Parsley have received several permits to drill in northeast Midland, the attorney

"It's not right to not allow a mineral owner to drill for his property. These folks try to protect them-selves. Everyone who lives out there (in west Midland) is in actual notice of the drill sites. If everyone will examine their deed, it will refer to the drill sites," Allday said.

And that area is prime for oil development, he contended. Geological tests have shown an "excellent Ellenburger prospect," Allday added.
Also part of the FEF presentation was Realtor Thomas B. King, who said property values wouldn't drop and cited the case of one producing well at Dewberry and Eisenhower. Also mentioned was a plan to put landscaping around the drill sites.

In his arguments against granting the permits, Rhoads said the residents aren't against the oil industry because most of them are involved in it as professionals or support help. But drilling in a densely populated area, where housing prices range from $50,000 to $100,000, "just is not

FEF, incorporated in May 1985, has no track record, he contended.

THE HEALTH and safety of the citizens in that area is the primary concern, said Rhoads. "Yes, drilling techniques have improved, but mis-takes can happen." Numerous times he noted that heavy trucks would be using residential streets, the high chances that a well could blow-out, the noise of the operation and its

Students expelled for alleged arson involvement

From Staff Reports

The Midland Independent School District on Tuesday expelled three Midland High School students for their alleged participation in two recent fires at Midland High School.

The two females and one male were expelled for the remainder of the school year, an MISD spokeswoman said following a student disciplinary hearing. Charges of arson were filed against the two MHS females, one 15 years old and one 16, for allegedly setting a Jan. 13 fire in the projection room of the auditorium which may have caused up to $100,000 in damages.

The 15-year-old male MHS student was charged in connection with a much smaller fire which was set Dec. 20 in a ticket booth near the auditorium.

Assistant County Attorney Janet Copeland reported in an interview last Thursday that two male Lee High School students, one 15 years old and one 17, also were charged with criminal trespass for being on the MHS

The Midland Independent School District will need 231 additional elementary school classrooms during the next eight years, meaning trustees may have to establish a desirable mix of temporary portable buildings and permanent facilities to house its

According to a study presented Tuesday to MISD trustees, the need for additional elementary classroom facilities through the 1988-89 school year is "extensive, immediate, and urgent. Results of the study show 27 classrooms should be in place by the be-ginning of the 1986-87 school year, 31

classrooms in 1987-88, 81 classrooms

24 classrooms in 1990-91, and 22 classrooms in 1991-92. The additions are the result of continued growth in enrollment and legal requirements that limit the maximum class size to 22 in grades three and four. The 22to-1 class ratio already is in effect for kindergarten through third grade.

Dr. James Mailey, advisor to the Board of Trustees, said student enrollment is expected to peak by the mid 1990s, thereby indicating a need to "consider a mix of temporary portable buildings together with construction of permanent facilities" to meet those needs.

Trustees already have agreed to purchase portable classrooms for use next year. In addition, the board will consider proposing to voters a bond election to construct new schools and classroom additions to existing

According to Mailey, the construction of permanent facilities (new schools) would involve the establishment of additional cluster assignments. To maintain a racial balance in a new cluster, he said one of the new schools should be located on the city's east side.

Growth rates in west and northwest Midland also "justify" the construction of a new elementary school, Mailey said, and "consideration also should be given to the possibility of constructing a primary school - consisting of grades K-3 in the Wydewood area to provide some relief for the pressure on the Rusk (Elementary School) facility."

Midland Crime Stoppers 'fertile, productive' program

By MARK LEWIS Staff Writer

In 1976, an Albuquerque police detective who was frustrated by the unwillingness of many citizens to come forward with information about crimes came up with the idea of offering money and anonymity

The Crime Stoppers program soon spread to Texas, "And now it's an international program," according to Sgt. David Cobos of the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

Crime Stoppers is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year, and the Midland program just celebrated its second anniversary with its most productive month ever, according to Cobos, the program's coordinator.

"We've already had, to date, 20 arrests clearing 11 cases" in January, and the $318,805 in stolen property or confiscated narcotics recovered so far this month "exceeded (the total amount of) property recovered for the first two years of operations," he said.

"And we're still rolling," said Sheriff Gary Painter, who calls Crime Stoppers "one of the finest programs to ever come into Midland County.' Crime Stoppers is designed to overcome the average person's unwillingness to get involved with the law-enforcement process.

thy in any community," Cobos said. "There's also the fear of retaliation."

Crime Stoppers pays up to $1,000 for information which leads to the arrest and indictment of an accused felon, depending on the seriousness of the crime, the value of the information and other factors. Instead of giving their names, informants are given a code number — Cobos pays them in cash without ever knowing their identities.

Many of the informants are criminals easily tempted to turn in their friends for cash, according to Cobos. "There's no honor among thieves where money's concerned," he said.

The key to the program's success is publicity. Each Tuesday, the three actment of the Crime of the Week, which is also publicized by local radio stations and newspapers. The Midland and Odessa Crime Stoppers programs alternate weeks in picking

While this crime is often solved through tips received as a result of the media blitz, the main idea is publicizing the program, Cobos said.

"It's a vehicle by which we can keep the name and phone number before the public," he said. Crime Stoppers tips are not admis-sable in court without a special decision by the Texas Supreme Court, according to Cobos. The tips "are an investigative tool" pointing officers local newscasts show a filmed re-en- in the right direction, but any court evidence must then come from their own investigations.

Cobos will soon get some help in handling the 100 calls per month the program averages. The Midland City Council recently voted to assign a Midland police officer to the program.

"He does need some help, and we're certainly trying to expedite the process," said Police Chief Wayne Gideon, who thinks Crime Stoppers "is one of the most fertile, productive areas that I've seen."

Apart from the salaries of Cobos and his future partner and maintenance on their cars, no tax dollars support the program, which is a non-profit corporation run by a board of directors. Among local businesses actively supporting the program are Honda of Midland, Basin Communications, A. Beeper Co. and Jumburrito, Cobos said.

From its inception in January 1984 through the end of last month, Midland Crime Stoppers had received 2,249 phone calls, and paid out rewards totalling $23,035 to 96 people.
As a result of Crime Stoppers tips, 189 suspects had been arrested, 271 offenses had been cleared, five sto-len vehicles had been recovered, $226,719 in stolen property had been recovered and $62,829 worth of narcotics had been confiscated, according to statistics supplied by Cobos.

Mistrial declared in criminal case against hot oil service operator

By RAMONA NYE

Staff Writer Criminal theft charges against a faulty indictment, said 238th District Judge Vann Culp.

David Hale, owner of Hale's Hot Oil Service Co., was being charged with criminal theft for allegedly billing Gulf for propane he never used. The former charges contended that Hale swindled almost $500,000 from Gulf over 38 months.

The absence of seven words, "...without the effective consent of the owner," in the 19-page indictment against Hale ended the trial after two days of testimony, said Dan Mills, prosecutor with the attorney general's office.

"That was all that was missing out of the indictment and it made the indictment bad," Mills said. "It was just something that was left out of the darn thing.

"It was obvious that the owner didn't give his consent or we wouldn't be at the courthouse,"

Mills said he will request a retri-al today before a grand jury.

However, defense attorney John Green said his client will consider filing criminal and civil charges against Gulf, if the state continues to pursue the case. Gulf owes Hale about $40,000 for unpaid work, Green said. "Just because they're a big oil company doesn't mean that they can come back and get the attorney general's office to jump on people," Green said. Before the charges were dismissed, two former Hale employees testified Tuesday that they worked in the company owner's garden while charging Gulf for their labor. Tom Burcham and Jeff Streinz, two former hot oil operators for the Odessa company, said they would occasionally leave the field early and work around Hale's of-

The 1941-built plant at the airport is out of date and parts can no longer be located. As a result, the city may be facing a fine of up to $10,000 a day for violating state laws, according to the Texas Water Commission. Installation of the sewer line to the treatment plant on the southeast corner of the city would ease the sewage disposal problem. "I would like to see the line move forward as quickly as we can," said Lowe. "In 1963 when we evaluated the plant it was past its economic limit. Repairs will be much more extensive over the years."

Baker voiced a similar problem with the 1957-model traffic control system in the downtown area. "We can't beg, borrow or steal parts to keep it functioning. We have to talk to communities which have this kind of traffic controller and buy theirs when they take it out."

Taking each site separately, Rhoads looked at what he considered to be problems: In addition to being too close to houses, the sites also are in close proximity to parks, elementary schools and churches.

Among the residents to lodge their arguments was Jim Campbell, 4509 Pleasant, who said his house is next door to a drill site. "The well bore would be 177 feet from my bedroom. A bore that close to my home scares me because I'm living so close."

Dan McGookey, 4613 Brookdale, works as a consulting engineer and pointed out problems and hazards that could occur at each stage of drilling a well, including blow-outs, drill stem tests, flaring and storage of acids.

Carla Bledsoe, 4613 Pleasant, said if the permits were granted she would be surrounded by wells. There is a drill site within three blocks of her house in all directions.

And County Commissioner Durward Wright, who lives at 100 S. Eisenhower and next to a well, pointed out hazards, including fires which have occurred at that site. The council also was told by another resident that with 9,000 signatures on the petitions, that amounted to "more people than voted for any of

In rebutting the arguments, Allday contended that if the drilling permits were rejected the council would be "condemning that land, making the minerals underneath

After the votes were taken on each site, Mayor G. Thane Akins said he personally saw no problem with living next door to an oil well. "It's a difference in perception," he said.

"It will heighten the use of the park; it's a wholesome activity. It will make use of the cages we have," said Logan.

Another member of Hands of Life, David Heckman, said upgrading of the abandoned zoo area wasn't feasible until the landfill adjacent to Cole Park was closed last fall. The lease will give us time to determine public support and see how much we can get accomplished," he said. Kelley estimated the cost to update all facilities will be $300,000 and will require about $21,000 per month to operate the zoo. In addition to upgrading current facilities, the group proposes to build a barn to keep animals and a pet-ting zoo and a concession stand.

The money hopefully will come from the private sector." Kelley said. Hands of Life has contacted Austin about permits for the animals and some zoos have indicated they will help in acquiring animals. Some local 4-H. organizations have indicated they will donate time to take care of the facility, he added.

Ms. Erskine, however, noted that it costs her $10,000 a year to pay for food and medical expenses for the birds she handles.

In other action, the council delayed a decision on a zone change request by West Texas Consultants for about nine acres on the south side of Loop 250 between Kniffen Drive and Todd Road. Instead of agricultural estates, the applicant is wanting local retail district for a convenience store and office district.

The development south of that tract, known as Kniffen Estates, wasn't taken into the city limits in 1982 when the council was annexing other land in that area east of Fairgrounds Road because of neighborhood objection.

Kevin Sahr. 208 Irvin, said of 45 residents in that neighborhood, 43 don't want the zone change. When asked by Councilman David Godfrey if he lives in the city limits, Sahr replied, "No. Does it

When that area came up for annexation in 1982, said Godfrey,

"You said there was nothing the city could do for you. And now you want the city's protection." Councilman Gordon Marcum II said he had no problem with the location for the zone changes, but he thought the size of the tracts were too large, and Councilwom-an Katie Heck agreed. "It's not the fact that it's retail at the corner or even some office development," she said.

The issue of rezoning will be considered again at 1:35 p.m. Feb. 11 and West Texas Consultants was told to look at some townhouse or duplex development between the retail and office tracts.

The council also approved an improvement project for A Street from Scharbauer Drive to Ventura with existing bond money, and delayed initiating compliance with the dump truck ordinance for another two weeks. City Manager Jim Brown suggested dump truck owners who live in east Midland look at joining their efforts and fence a spot at 500 North Fort Worth where all can park their trucks. He added that a mobile home could be moved onto the land and this would give the owners 24-hour security.

The sizeble number of pupils residing on the city's southside may necessitate the construction of another elementary school to "reduce some of the pressure on the Travis, Burnet, and Bonham facilities," Mailey said. He reported the growth in MISD enrollment over the next 10 years, also is expected to necessitate high school boundary adjustments to maintain equality between Midland and Lee High Schools.

Mailey said the LHS attendance area is growing at a faster rate than the MHS attendance area and, if no changes are made, significant enrollment disparities could begin to occur by 1989.

According to Mailey, the study utilized two sources of data from the school district: a projection of enrollments for 1984 through 1998, and a report of current MISD staffing

He said the ratios used to project

enrollment as students move from one grade to the next, appear to be both conservative and in reasonable harmony with previous district

But he cautioned the use of the projections, saying they "reflect a downturn in kindergarten enrollments after the 1989-90 school year" while "the yearly live births data recorded by Midland Memorial Hospital do not as yet give any indication that such a downturn is taking place.

Infant to get bone marrow

HOUSTON (AP) — Doctors will give a 3-week-old boy about two tablespoons of his mother's bone marrow tonight in hopes of helping him develop the immune system he has lacked since birth.

Oscar Drew Cantu of Corpus Christi suffers from severed combined immune deficiency sydrome, a rare genetic disorder that renders the body unable to fight disease.

The infant will receive marrow intravenously from his mother, Belinda Cantu, said Dr. William R. Shearer, chief of allergy and immunology at Texas Children's Hospital. Cantu, born Jan. 5, has the same disorder that kept David, Houston's "Bubble Boy," confined to a sterile environment for 12 years. David died in February 1984, about four months after undergoing an unsuccessful bone marrow transplant.

Shearer said the procedure will be complicated by the presence of maternal lymphocytes — Mrs. Cantu's infection-fighting cells - in Oscar's body. Maternal lymphocytes usually die out of an infant's body shortly after birth.

The presence of the lymphocytes in the baby's bloodstream may cause graph-versus-host disease, a condition in which the transplanted cells reject the child's body.

TEC investigates fraud

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Employment Commission said Tuesday it is cooperating with the U.S. Department of Labor in a statewide investigation of unemployment insurance fraud.

The joint task force stemmed from theft charges filed Dec. 5 in Houston, which accused 55 area workers of defrauding the TEC of $146,043 in unemployment insurance benefits, according to TEC Commissioner Mary Scott Nabers.

The alleged fraud was discovered by comparing state records with the records of Houston-area employers through the use of a computer match-up system, she said.

AUSTIN (AP) — A University of Texas researcher is seeking improved methods of diagnosing the disease called "desert fever" and developing a vaccine against it.

The fungal disease, formally known as coccidioidomycosis, is the one recently contracted by San Antonio Spurs basketball player Johnny Moore.

According to Dr. Garry Cole, a UT botany professor who specializes in the study of fungi, between 25,000 and 100,000 cases of the disease are reported each year.

The disease also is called "San Joa-quin Valley fever" or "desert rheumatism."

Many cases are not diagnosed. About 60 percent of the people infected by the fungus do not exhibit symptoms, Cole said. Those who become ill often display symptoms so vague they are not tested for the Peres' itinerary included a visit to West Berlin's Jewish community, the largest in Germany with 6,300 members. Before Hitler came to power in 1933, Berlin had 170,000 Jewish citizens, many of whom perished in the Holocaust.

The Israeli leader was met at Berlin's Tegel Airport by Mayor Eberhard Diepgen and West Berlin Jewish Community leader Heinz Galinksi. Peres then was taken on a brief driving tour of the city, where 4,000 policemen have been assigned

Late Tuesday, about 550 demon-strators marched from Wittenbergplatz to Adenauerplatz in West Berlin to protest Israel's policy toward Palestinians. Police said r st of the demonstrators were leftists from the city's Alternative List Party and Palestinians in West Berlin.

Police reported no incidents, but protesters carried such signs as, "Attention For The Victims Of German Fascism Cannot Be An Alibi For Not Calling Genocide Genocide." Peres' one-day trip includes a talk with West Berlin students at the Reichstag, the former Parliament building beside the Berlin Wall.

Making progress toward peace in the Middle East has been a major theme of Peres' tour, which also in-cluded stops in the Netherlands and Hussein has proposed an international peace conference on the Middle East to be followed by talks between a joint Jordanian-Palestinian delegation and Israel. However, Israel opposes participation in the talks by the Palestine Liberation Organization, which refuses to recognize Israel's right to exist.

Dated: December 15, 1985.

Dated: December 15, 1985.

STATE OF TEXAS
COUNTY OF MIDIAND
TO: JEROME RUSSELL DOREMUS, Defendant in the cause herein described.
You are hereby commanded to appear and answer before the 142nd Judicial District Court in the County Courthouse in Midland County, Iraxas, at or before 10:00 A.M. on the first Monday after the expiration of forty-two (42) days from the date of issuance, being at or before 10:00 A.M. on Monday, the 24th day of february, 1986, then and there to answer the petition of LA-VERNE SMITH, in Cause number A-29, 296, styled LAVERNE SMITH, which is a personal injury case, and the personal injury case, and the personal injury case, and the personal injury grew out of an automobile collision. The automobile collision occurred on or about May 12, 1978 at Terminal, Midland County, Texas. On the occasion in question the Defendant operat-ed his motor vehicle in such a manner as to negligently collide with the rear end of the vehicle being operated by Plaintiff. The cause of the collision and end of the vehicle being operated by Plaintfff. The cause of the collision and injuries and damages received to Plaintfff was the negligence of Defendant in being intoxicated at the time Defendant was operating his motor vehicle, in failing to keep a proper lookout where Defendant was driving, and following the vehicle of Plaintfff too closely. Plaintfff suffered automobile damages to her automobile in the amount of $7,500,00, Plaintfff suffered loss of earnings in the amount of $10,000.00; Plaintfff suffered physical injuries to her body and mental anguish to her body in the amount of $20,000.00. The vehicle of Plaintfiff that was damaged was a 1970 Buick Electra automobile which was in excellent condition. Defendant did not have any interest in the property of Plaintiff, and Defendant is not involved in any of the damages of Plaintiff other than being the one who caused the damages and injuries to Plaintiff. If this citation is not served within nine (9) days other date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.
