Oryx announces personnel moves

Snyder Gasoline Plant superintendent Larry McConkey has announced personnel changes at the Oryx plant, effective July 14.

McConkey said Thursday that he and plant engineer Roland Longoria will both be leaving the local plant to function on regional levels for the company.

MIKE POST

Replacing Longoria as engineer will be David Pierce. Pierce is currently working for Oryx in Oklahoma City. He has been with the company 11 years and he and his wife, Cindy, have three sons — Brian, 5, and twin boys, Michael and Alex, 3, — and are expecting their fourth child in August. Longoria, also a member of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers, will be moving to Houston.

Mike Post, current operations foreman, will replace McConkey as plant superintendent. Post is a former Snyder city councilman.

McConkey, who has 23 years of service to Oryx, will be moving to Edmond, Okla., to be superintendent of all Oklahoma plants. He has been plant supervisor for 2½ years.

Being promoted to fill Post's position will be J.R. Walker, who is currently employed as plant operator. Walker has lived in Snyder for 12 years, moving here from Post to work at the plant. He and his wife, Karen, have twin daughters, Tammi and Kimberly, age 6.

Express slams into freight; at least 100 reported killed

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — An express train crowded with sleeping passengers slammed into parked freight cars before dawn Saturday, killing at least 100 people and injuring 225 others, railway officials said.

The death toll was expected to rise after workers finished cutting through the twisted wreckage of the train, considered one of the nation's finest and often used by middle- and upper-income travelers who cannot get plane tickets.

Railway officials said they believed it was the country's second-worst train accident.

The "Taz Gam," or fast runner, was traveling from the southern port city of Karachi to the eastern border city of Lahore before continuing to the federal capital of Islamabad.

The 18-car train was traveling about 40 mph when it hit the freight train sitting at the station in Ghotki, about 400 miles north of Karachi. Most of the passengers were asleep when the accident occurred at 1:10 a.m., officials said.

"Witnesses said it was like a bomb exploding. The whole place shook," said a railway official. (see TRAIN, page 12A)

Cogdell board oks bills, past minutes

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers discussed a Joint Commission lab survey, approved accounts payable and past minutes, and briefly reviewed plans for the next several board meetings on Friday.

The board also thanked assistant district controller Patti Bethke for her work with the board. Bethke announced that she would be leaving St. Mary of the Plains Hospital to take a position with South Park Hospital.

Hospital CEO Tim Lancaster told the board that the second of three separate visits by Joint Commission teams was complete and that survey results were favorable. The Joint Commission for Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) made its visit to the hospital on May 13-14 and conducted a lab survey on May 28-29. Team members are scheduled to survey the home health agency on July 15-16.

Lancaster said the team's survey of the lab went well.

"They asked us to run some additional quality control on blood gasses and had a few suggestions but it was equally a good report," said Lancaster.

The CEO also told board members that next year's budget for the hospital will be presented during the June 27 meeting.

The board also discussed eliminating its evening board meeting for July, and combining it with the noon accounts payable meeting in August. Lancaster said he will make the board aware of necessary agenda items as they come up, and members can make the decision of whether they wish to hold the evening meeting in July.

Present for Friday's meeting were board chairman G.A. Parks Jr. and members Roland Longoria, Doug Foster, Bill Wilson III and Jim Palmer. Brenda Hedges was absent.

Browning; and an addition at 2008 Ave. R., owned by Ricardo Madera.

The city has issued 65 building permits for the fiscal year, including 21 for carports and accessories and 20 for dwellings. Fees collected amount to $1,977.09.

The city also made 70 inspections during May, including 30 plumbing and 18 electrical.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The trouble with keeping fit after you get older is that it doesn't leave you time for much else."

Leon Autry and his neighbor, Wayne Monroney, decided to play golf. Autry arrived at the course and experienced a long wait before his golfing companion arrived.

"Why are you so late?"

"I had to toss a coin between working around the house and playing golf," Monroney said.

Leon wanted to know why that would have caused such a long delay.

"Well," replied Monroney, "I had to toss the coin 19 times."

A trio here in the office has kicked the smoking habit. It was tough sledding around here the first couple of weeks, but only rarely have any of the three sneaked into the backroom for a quick puff

They credit their stop-smoking success with a seminar held out at Willow Park a few weeks ago. For an investment of $39 and 90 minutes, our office trio believe they got a bargain with the use of hypnosis. They can be seen from time to time with a walkman listening to their reinforcement tapes.

It was suggested to us that the same technique might be used for those of us around the office wanting and needing to lose weight by cutting back on our eating.

Frankly, we don't believe in any type of organized weight loss program because they insist on using one of those confounded doctor's scales.

We have our scale at home pretty well trained. We know exactly where to stand to shave a few pounds. In fact, we've learned that if you hang on to the shower curtain, you can make that needle stop almost anywhere you please.

Judge throws out 13 counts

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge threw out 13 counts of fraud against Lincoln Savings chief Charles H. Keating, accused of misleading thousands of investors into buying junk bonds that became worthless when the huge thrift collapsed.

Superior Court Judge Lance A. Ito also ruled Friday that defense attorneys can present arguments June 28 challenging the remaining 21 counts of securities fraud stemming from Lincoln's collapse.

Those 21 charges make up the heart of the prosecution's case: that elderly investors were duped into buying the risky junk bonds issued by Lincoln's parent company, American Continental Corp., after being steered away from insured certificates of deposit.

Keating's attorneys had urged Ito to dismiss all charges against Keating.

Oil spilled into Brazos River

KNOX CITY, Texas (AP) — Torrential rain apparently washed out an oil pipeline, allowing about 2,000 gallons of crude oil to spill into the Brazos River on Friday, officials said.

A break in the Diamond Shamrock line occurred five miles west of Knox City, said Fred McNeel of Wichita Falls, District 9 director of the Texas Railroad Commission.

Richards: prisoners may be transferred

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards said Friday she wants to know whether the state could transfer state prisoners out of jails in counties that don't agree to a compromise bill intended to lessen county jail crowding.

The Legislature on the final day of the session passed a measure aimed at resolving lawsuits brought by county jails backlogged with state prisoners.

A federal court order caps the number of inmates that can be held in the Texas Department of Corrections, leaving overflow prisoners for the counties.

Twelve counties, led by Nueces County, successfully sued in state court, winning an order that the state pay them $40 per day for each state prisoner they hold.

In addition, a federal judge has said the state must set up a $750,000 fund for Harris County to use to rent jail space in other counties to hold the approximately 1,200 state prisoners it is holding.

The new bill would require the state, beginning Sept. 1, to pay all counties $20 a day for every state prisoner over a certain number, or $30 if the total climbs too high.

The bill also would require that after Sept. 1, 1995, the state prison system accept all felons from county jails within 45 days of when prison processing work is completed.

Counties have until June 17 to agree to the proposal, or it becomes meaningless.

Richards has not yet signed the measure. Friday, she said she had asked her staff to tell her whether under the bill, the state could transfer prisoners if one or two counties don't agree to the deal. The inmates would be moved from those county jails to other county jails, she said.

Such a move, Richards said, would "completely reduce or minimize any claim that the state is not doing its part to reduce the jail numbers."

"My inclination though is that unless all the counties go along, to veto the bill. If they do not go along, then it's going to be only a couple counties in this state that accept the responsibility for what transpired," she said.

If the initiative fails, Richards said there probably won't be a second chance.

Noriega trial delayed until September 3

MIAMI (AP) — A judge Friday delayed Manuel Noriega's trial until Sept. 3, acting after the defense pleaded for more time to sift through mountains of classified material. Noriega's attorneys on Wednesday had asked U.S. District Judge William Hoeveler to postpone the scheduled July 22 trial until the end of September, and the judge issued his ruling Friday afternoon.

Neither defense lawyers nor the U.S. attorney's office immediately returned calls from The Associated Press.

FUMC will act out marketplace on June 14

The First United Methodist Church will recreate a marketplace similar to those which existed in 29 AD on Saturday, June 15.

In the marketplace, children are transported, in a sense, back to biblical times.

In this environment, they become totally involved in the learning process, drawing upon all their senses, feelings and imagination.

Children experience in a real life setting many of the things they have been taught in Sunday morning church school classes. As a result, their learning is reinforced and internalized.

Market place will be carried out from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

It is planned for children aged four years old through the fourth grade.

Call 573-4770 for more information.

Volcano erupts again in Japan

TOKYO (AP) — After a day of relative quiet, Mount Unzen erupted again today, sending lava and superheated debris down the east slope. Several homes were set afire and electricity was knocked out in a city of 45,000 people at the foot of the mountain.

The national Meteorological Agency said the eruption was bigger than the one Monday that killed at least 37 people. There were no immediate reports of casualties from the eruption this evening.

The residential areas closest to the volcano were evacuated after Monday's disaster.

Dark gray plumes billowed from the 4,452-foot volcano and lightning shot through the smoky night sky. Tiny volcanic rocks reportedly rained down on Shimabara, the city at the base of the mountain in southern Japan.

Shimabara was blacked out and several homes were burning, said prefectural police in Nagasaki. There was no word on what caused the blackout.

Berry's World

Financial Focus

One investment principle that informed investors have learned to respect is that higher interest rates can mean higher risk. Unfortunately, this lesson is sometimes learned too late.

An example of this principle can be found in high-yield income mutual funds. Although many of these funds still hold excellent corporate bonds that continue to pay high interest, their net asset value (NAV) has typically declined far more than the NAV of their conservative peers. This is due to an overall re-evaluation of high-yield, or "junk," bonds.

Other high-yield funds, trying to squeeze out the last bit of extra income by investing almost entirely in low-quality junk bonds of questionable corporations, have lost not only NAV but also income from poor-quality bonds that are in default.

Neither scenario thrills shareholders, but if the risks of high-yield funds were fully explained before investing, the declines would seem more inevitable than surprising.

Uninformed investors aren't the only ones to have been surprised. Informed investors who purchased high-yield government funds have been surprised when NAV and income dropped. After all, government securities aren't considered junk, so why the drop in NAV? Likewise, government securities always pay interest, so why the drop in income? The culprit has generally been the call options written on the fund's securities. These are agreements that are sold to investors giving them an option to purchase the security at a stated price for a specified period of time.

In order to get maximum income, the fund sells these call options against a portion of the portfolio and passes the premiums, or the money paid by the option buyer, on to shareholders. This offers a total higher income than one could expect from a simple, or unoptioned, government fund. That's the good news.

The bad news is that the optioned portion of the high-yield portfolio must be held in the event the option is exercised. That means those bonds generally cannot be sold. They remain exposed to market declines as interest rates rise. This explains the drop in the value of the fund's shares.

The fund manager is now faced with an income dilemma. With the value of the bonds down, he hesitates to write new call options against them. If interest rates reverse and begin to fall, the value of the bond portfolio, any potential price recovery is lost. The shareholder loses NAV that cannot be recovered from these bonds.

On the other hand, if the manager does not option the bonds, he loses that extra premium income that has enhanced his dividend to shareholders. Most fund managers choose this as the more responsible alternative. The immediate effect is that monthly distributions are reduced. The longer-term advantage is that if lower interest rates are ahead, the fund's assets could recover.

Even with the income reduction, however, the better managed high-yield government funds plan to keep their distribution rates at the high end of the competitive rates that are available.

If the message isn't clear, just remember that high yields typically mean high risk. But you can always limit your risk by understanding what you buy and paying attention to the quality of your investments and the success of your fund manager in consistently meeting the fund's objectives.

Straight Talk.

Answers to your questions about cellular service.

Q. Isn't a cellular phone just a luxury or toy that only the rich can afford to enjoy?

A. Most customers view their cellular phone as a tool - not a toy - that they can't afford not to employ! Value - not cost - is the bottom line for these customers. And the fact that having a cellular phone portrays a certain image of prosperity and peace of mind...well, there might just be something to that.

Value that only increases. Another cellular advantage.

Judge upholds largest libelaward in history

WACO, Texas (AP) — A judge Friday upheld a jury's decision to award former McLennan County district attorney Vic Fezell a record $58 million won in a libel suit against a television station and a reporter.

The award, which was handed down in April, is the largest for libel in U.S. history.

"Well, I'm very pleased but this is what I expected him to do," Fezell said Friday.

Fezell, 39, said the 11-part series by Dallas television station WFAA and reporter Charles Duncan ruined his reputation and led to an FBI investigation.

The series accused him of taking payoffs in exchange for dismissing drunken driving cases. Fezell contended in a lawsuit the series was malicious and filled with inaccuracies and defamatory statements.

Fezell was indicted in 1986 on federal racketeering charges and acquitted in June 1987. He resigned in September 1988 to go into private practice in Waco.

Mike McCarthy, senior vice president and general counsel of A.H. Belo Corp., which owns WFAA, said he had not reviewed the judge's order and would have no comment.

Attorneys for Belo have contended that Duncan's series was fair comment on the performance of a public official.

The libel award exceeds the $34 million a jury ordered The Philadelphia Inquirer to pay in May 1990 over a 1973 story that criticized a lawyer's handling of a homicide case when he was an assistant district attorney.

Fezell's 1986 lawsuit named Duncan, Belo Broadcasting Corp. and A.H. Belo Corp. as defendants.

A.H. Belo was dismissed from the lawsuit last March after attorneys for WFAA proved that Duncan never worked for the parent company. Duncan no longer works at WFAA.

Registration due now for next cosmetology class

Students interested in enrolling in the Western Texas College cosmetology course starting Sept. 3 are urged to complete the application process now, Judy Border, instructor said.

Persons planning to enroll should go to the Admissions Office to pick up the required forms. These forms should be completed by June 17 when prospective students will interview and take an oral entrance exam.

Some financial aid is available for cosmetology students. Those forms require four to six weeks for processing and need to be filled out as quickly as possible for the September quarter.

Cosmetology students receive 1,500 hours of training in a 12-month period and are then eligible to take state Board of Cosmetology tests for licensing.

Former sheriff sentenced

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Former Eastland County Sheriff Dee Hogan has been sentenced to three years in prison and can never again work as a law enforcement officer for his part in shielding a drug ring.

Hogan, who faced up to five years in prison, also was fined $50 and must be supervised for three years after his release, said assistant U.S. attorney Baker. Hogan's sentence Friday came in an agreement with prosecutors that was approved by U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings.

In the plea bargain, Hogan agreed to drop his objections to a pre-sentencing report, entered a plea of guilty to a state charge of aggravated perjury for lying to an Eastland County grand jury and agreed to never work again in law enforcement, Baker said.

In a statement released by attorney Chuck Lanehart, Hogan seemed unrepentant. "By the court's action Saturday, I have been vindicated and legally acquitted of any active part in the...drug conspiracy," Hogan said.

Hogan admitted in court documents that he knew or should have known about the 16 methamphetamine labs and a distribution network operated out of Steve Beniefel's Ranger wrecker service, Baker said.

"I fail to see how a person who has been sentenced for obstruction of justice... has been vindicated when he has been convicted," Baker said.

Beniefel, 39, was sentenced Friday to 12 years for conspiracy and money laundering.

Baker said Hogan hoped for political gains by tipping off Beniefel about pending drug investigations.

"Beniefel provided information to the sheriff that allowed him to make busts and obtain publicity," Baker said.

Federal authorities say their investigation has resulted in 30 convictions and will involve more arrests.

In 1912, at the tender age of 22, Katherine Stinson of San Antonio became one of the first women pilots in the United States. She was the first woman to fly an air-mail route and the first woman skywriter to perform at night using fireworks. By 1918 her endurance flights won her fame as the greatest woman pilot in the world. All this happened five years before Charles Lindberg started flight training.

Bulls beat L.A. in OT, 104-96

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Yes, even Michael Jordan can have bad spells. It's just that his usually don't last long.

He snapped out of one Friday night in time to assume his customary hero's role as the Chicago Bulls grabbed a 2-1 lead in the NBA Finals with a 104-96 overtime victory in the Los Angeles Lakers' building.

"I didn't think we played that well," Jordan said. "When we were able to take the game into overtime, that gave us some new life and the opportunity to steal one."

It went into overtime because Jordan, who had made just eight of his previous 24 shots, hit a 14-foot jumper with 3.4 seconds left to tie the game 92-92. Then he went 2-for-3 and made both his free throws in the extra period.

"It came down to Michael hitting a tough shot" to force overtime, Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said.

The next two games in the best-of-7 series also are in Los Angeles, on Sunday and Wednesday nights.

"I'm not down," Magic Johnson said. "If we didn't play a hard, aggressive game (Friday) night, I would be."

Although he went 16:56 between his first and second baskets of the second half, Jordan still scored 29 points and has led Chicago in scoring in all 15 of its playoff games. In overtime, he had six points, three rebounds, an assist and a steal.

The Bulls' deeper bench helped erase a 69-56 deficit with 4:19 left in the third quarter. Their younger legs enabled them to outlast the Lakers by scoring the last eight points after the score was tied 96-96. Los Angeles tied an NBA Finals record with just four points in overtime.

"At some point in the fourth quarter, we felt we had the edge in conditioning," Bulls coach Phil Jackson said. "We felt they were tired."

"I felt we had great energy and perseverance, and we made a great comeback, but we didn't play well."

The Lakers just played worse. "We beat ourselves," Johnson said.

The Lakers had made 39 of 70 shots in the first four quarters but only 1 of 9 in overtime when Chicago was 5-for-8. Los Angeles built its 69-56 lead with an 18-2 run. But with the score 72-60, Chicago's 14-2 spurt tied the game at 74-74.

The Lakers, Jordan said, are "known for letting other teams back in games, and... we just had to keep pounding on them defensively. And that's what we did, boxing out and getting hands on the ball.

"The Lakers are an experienced team and have been in this position before."

Tark to step down after '92 campaign

LAS VEGAS (AP) — UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian, who built a basketball dynasty in the desert and fought a long battle with the NCAA, said Friday he was resigning effective the end of the 1991-92 season.

Tarkanian 61, choked with emotion as he told a crowd of media and supporters that he would quit at the end of his 19th season as head of the Runnin' Rebels.

The resignation announcement came 13 days after publication of photos showing three former players with convicted sports fixer Richard Perry. Tarkanian has said he warned his players repeatedly to stay away from Perry.

Tarkanian said the flap over the Perry photos was difficult for him and devastating on his family.

Tarkanian is the nation's winningest college coach and could retain that position if his 1991-92 team, void of any starters from last season, wins 20 games. The Rebels are banned from television and post-season play next season, as the final resolution of the battle Tarkanian has had with the NCAA dating back to 1977.

Tarkanian is 811-146 in 30 years of coaching and 483-103 in 18 years at UNLV. His UNLV tenure has included four trips to the Final Four and a national championship in 1990.

"The latest round of inaccurate, but damaging rumors has proven to be the final straw," Tarkanian said. "The pain I now see in my children's eyes makes me realize none of this is fun for anyone."

"If it weren't for the latest incident, this wouldn't have happened."

"He took the basketball program to national prominence," UNLV president Robert Maxson said as Tarkanian sat with his chin in his hand, looking glum.

"There's no question Jerry Tarkanian is a legend," Maxson said. "This marks the passing of an era."

He said a search would begin for a new coach in the fall.

Possible candidates include John Thompson of Georgetown, Billy Tubbs of Oklahoma and Bobby Cremins of George Tech.

Tarkanian took a final swipe at the NCAA in his letter of resignation, saying he has been a vocal opponent of "improper and unethical investigative practices on the part of the NCAA's enforcement division."

Tarkanian said he wanted to stay another season to help defend the program in a current NCAA investigation. The NCAA has alleged 29 infractions by the Rebels program, only a couple of which involve Tarkanian. That case is scheduled to be heard later this year.

"Most people figure when you're a basketball coach you spend six months with a gun at your head, then you go out and recruit," Tarkanian said. "That's not true with me. The easy part of it for me is the season."

Tarkanian said he wanted to stay as coach next season, so he could mold a new team. He lost all five starters from the team that went through the 1990-91 regular season undefeated before losing to Duke in the national semifinals.

"We're going to circle the wagons," Tarkanian said.

Partner-mony suit filed vs. tennis star

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A former companion of tennis star Martina Navratilova filed suit seeking as much as $10 million from the world's No. 4-ranked player.

Judy Nelson filed documents in a Fort Worth court this week alleging that Navratilova failed to comply with a "non-marital cohabitation agreement" made after the two moved into a house together in 1986.

"It's a whole new concept," said Jerry Loftin, an attorney representing Ms. Nelson. "There's alimony, palimony and this is partner-mony. We're not asking for support."

"We're asking for half of the assets accumulated during the partnership. We're talking $5 to $10 million. We're saying (Martina) doesn't want to abide by the agreement to turn over the property and money."

A June 20 hearing has been set in the court of Tarrant County civil Judge Catherine Adamski Gant on Ms. Nelson's request that someone be appointed to distribute the pair's assets.

The agreement contains "the mutual promise of each partner to act as companion and homemaker to the other," attorneys said. It also specifically states that neither woman would owe the other support, but would split what assets they had if their living arrangements changed.

Navratilova was served with notice of the lawsuit Wednesday in Hilton Head, S.C., said Mike McCurley, a Dallas attorney who is representing her.

McCurley said Navratilova is in England to compete in the Eastbourne Grass Court Tennis Tournament. The tournament, scheduled for June 17-22, precedes Wimbledon, where Navratilova has won a record nine singles titles.

Navratilova said she was "very upset about the lawsuit" in a statement issued late Friday afternoon.

"It is terribly malicious that Judy would choose to sue me at this time, and have me served the day before I left for England and Wimbledon. This is obviously a pre-meditated move on the part of Judy and her lawyer, Jerry Loftin, knowing how important Wimbledon is to me and how I need to concentrate on playing tennis," she said.

Navratilova said Ms. Nelson and Loftin scheduled the hearing for June 20, which is in the middle of the Eastbourne tournament.

Dusters sign cage standout Kearney

Wharton High School post player, 5-11 Andrea Kearney, is the latest high school standout basketball player to cast her lot with Western Texas College's Lady Dusters.

Kearney guided her WHS squad to a District 22-4A title in 1991, the first championship in the school's history, and a 25-4 record.

She averaged 41 percent from the floor and almost 50 percent from the free-throw stripe as a senior center for the Lady Tigers.

system and are very supportive."

"She needs to work on the fundamentals of the game," Chadwick said, "as well as work on her scoring skills. I think, however, that she is really a diamond in the rough who can become an outstanding player."

"I believe her best basketball is ahead of her and with work and intensity, she can become a great post player at WTC."

Kearney boasts a 3.1 GPA.

ANDREA KEARNEY

"Andrea will play the post for us," said Lady Duster coach Kelly Chadwick.

"She is a good rebounder and will become an outstanding defensive player with good shot blocking skills."

Chadwick also likes the intangibles that Kearney will bring to WTC.

"I saw her play two or three games this season and she has the ability to step up her performance a notch when the situation calls for it."

The Wharton talent averaged 10 points and nine rebounds per game as a senior.

"Terry Grey, one of the outstanding young basketball coaches in Texas, came to Wharton her senior year," Chadwick reported.

"He turned their program from a 3-20 record to 25-4 in one season, so Andrea knows the difference in winning and losing."

"She is a good athlete," the Duster coach continued.

"She participated in track and softball, as well as basketball, in high school."

"Her parents are faculty members of the Wharton school

Perry leads Buick after 36 holes

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP) — Chris Perry birdied the last two holes for a 3-under-par 68 on Friday and a share of the lead, with Paul Azinger and Denis Watson halfway through the Buick Classic.

Perry, who is at 8-under 134 after 36 holes, is atop the halfway leaderboard for the second time in three weeks.

"They're thinking, 'Perry? Oh, he hasn't won yet. We don't have to worry about him,'" the son of former major league pitcher Jim Perry said.

"One of these days they won't be saying that," said Perry, not yet a winner in a 7-season PGA Tour career.

Greens troublesome in Atlantic City

SOMERS POINT, N.J. (AP) — There's a great equalizer at the Atlantic City Classic and it has nothing to do with the top eight money winners on the LPGA Tour being absent.

The equalizer, according to Amy Alcott, is the greens at the Greater Bay Country Club. They are soft, bumpy and caused a lot of mistakes in Friday's opening round of the $300,000 event.

Only six players in the field of 117 broke par-71 on the tree-lined 6,270-yard course, led by Jenny Lidback's 3-under-par 68.

French Open...

Finals are American affair

PARIS (AP) — The French Open used to be the tournament American men couldn't win. This year, the title is guaranteed to go to one of a pair of power-hitters who used to battle each other at a Florida tennis academy.

Andre Agassi and Jim Courier each beat hard-serving Germans in four sets Friday to set up an all-American final — the first since 1954.

Agassi, the losing finalist last year and No. 4 seed this year, outran and outfoxed Boris Becker 7-5, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1. Courier, the ninth seed, beat Stich, 6-2, 6-7 (8-10), 6-2, 6-4.

Both will be seeking their first Grand Slam championship in Sunday's final.

"Agassi wants this tournament really bad," Stich said. "I think he's going to win."

In Saturday's women's final, defending champion Monica Seles was to face 1989 winner Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, who handed Steffi Graf the worst beating of her pro career, 6-0, 6-2, in the semifinals.

The men's finalists trained together at Nick Bollettieri's tennis academy in Florida in the mid-80s before Courier left, feeling he wasn't getting enough attention. Agassi has a 4-2 edge in their head-to-head matches, but they have split encounters at the past two French Opens.

Their showdown will be the first French Open final between two Americans since Tony Trabert beat Art Larsen in 1954.

It ensures that an American will win the title for only the second time since 1955 — Michael Chang broke the drought in 1989.

"American tennis has really taken a step up," Agassi said. "We're on a roll with a few good players now."

Courier was more bellicose. "I'd like to slap around the people who said, 'Where is American tennis?' about five years ago," he said. "Here we are."

Becker, had he won, would have passed Stefan Edberg atop the rankings list even if he had lost in the final. Instead, it became Becker's third semifinal loss at Roland Garros in five years.

Agassi, No. 4 in the world, can't advance in the rankings, even with a championship.

Let me start by saying that baseball purists, those who hate the idea of the designated hitter, batting gloves or the hitters' doughnut, will probably disagree with my opinion.

I think big-league umpires are going to have to get tougher on pitchers.

I don't mean "balls and strikes" tougher. I mean "tossed out of the game for brushback pitching" tougher.

This season already has seen its share of bench-clearing brawls, most of which are caused by pitchers throwing at batters who feel obligated, and rightfully so, I might add, to deliver something along side the offending pitcher's head.

The Rangers and the Mariners mixed it up about a week ago when Texas reliever Kevin Brown hit Seattle's Dave Valle, for the second time in two trips to the plate against Brown.

Chicago pitcher Bobby Thigpen beaned Oakland catcher Terry Stenbach the same night, causing a melee and lots of hard feelings.

Steinbach has yet to play again for the A's.

It's not like Major League Baseball has just noticed the problem, it's been around for as long as the game.

A story with accompanying photos in the June 24, 1957 Sports Illustrated tells of a "Donnybrook" that occurred in the June 13 game between the Yankees and the White Sox.

"Major leaguers smote each other like Greeks and Trojans," the story gushes.

"The roughest thing I've ever seen," said Enos Slaughter, who took part in the struggle."

The whole thing started, you guessed it, when a pitcher, New York's Art Ditmar "sent a blazer past the head of the White Sox' Larry Doby."

On that same date in history Dodger immortal Don Drysdale, on the mound at Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, started a brawl when he slammed a fast ball into the ribs of the Milwaukee Braves' Johnny Logan.

If a pitcher faced the possibility of being tossed for hitting a batter, or even getting close on the inside, these little tantrums which endanger a man's life, not to mention his livelihood, might happen a little less frequently.

Steinbach was lucky, he'll get to play again. How about the Red Sox' Tony Canigliaro who had his left eye turned into stew meat by a fast ball high and tight, or Dicky Thon, formerly of the Houston Astros, who was partially blinded by an overzealous hurler.

Both of these men were victimized by the Neanderthal thinking that gives the plate, especially the inside edge, to the pitcher.

Cheap shots in football are cause for ejection and a 15-yard penalty against the offenders' team. In basketball it's a technical foul or a flagrant foul call, also coupled with the possibility of being given the thumb.

But in America's pastime a man has to be hurt before punishment is handed out, and sometimes its just a free pass to first base for the hit batsman.

Purists will, and have, argued that "maybe the ball just got away from him".

A man earning the salary of today's athletes, who is able to throw a baseball, in some cases, in excess of 100 miles per hour, shouldn't let it "get away from him."

Maybe a little time in the clubhouse while his team plays on without him would improve his accuracy.

It goes without saying that there are accidents, and people will get hit with the ball now and again.

But, come on guys, intentionally hitting a batter from the opposing team is not the way to keep a team in a pennant race, or even a game, especially if the commissioners' office becomes involved and stiffer punishments are meted to the bean-baller or brushback artists.

Robstown captures 4A baseball crown

AUSTIN (AP) — Mike Gutierrez picked up the victory on the mound and hit two doubles as Robstown edged West Mesquite for the Class 4A baseball championship Friday.

The Cotton Pickers (27-6) won their first title in front of an overflow crowd of 5,273 of mostly Robstown fans. They've made the trip to the tournament four of the last five years and finished second a year ago.

Gutierrez improved his record to 9-1, while allowing only five hits and three walks. The junior right-hander also fanned four.

At the plate, Gutierrez was 2-of-3 with a run batted in. J.J. Velasquez and Domingo Garza also each collected two hits for Robstown.

The Cotton Pickers pounced on Wranglers starter Chris Byrd for five runs and four hits in the top of the first, sending nine batters to the plate. Byrd (5-3) did not last the inning and was replaced by freshman Dale Mason for the final out.

After Jesse Garcia opened the game with a walk, Velasquez singled and Gutierrez — Robstown's top hitter with a .369 average — brought home Garcia with the first run with a ground-rule double to left.

Charlie Salazar singled, Garza had a sacrifice fly and Dion Ysassi doubled to make it 5-0.

West Mesquite (25-9) finally got to Gutierrez in the fourth, after three perfect innings, for three runs and four hits to cut the lead to 6-3.

David Turkoly, who had an RBI double in the inning, also keyed a seventh inning comeback with a two-run triple to help slash the score to 7-6.

The first American polo matches were played in 1976 at the Jerome Park race track in New York.

Boxes help track bees

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — Blue boxes sitting in trees in Refugio County have drawn the attention of passing motorists, but scientists say the boxes are nothing more than a series of traps being installed to help detect the advance of the so-called killer bees.

Scientists with Texas A&M University and the U.S. Department of Agriculture began setting up the traps in May and they should be finished within the next 10 days. There will be five lines of traps across South Texas with three running east to west and two running north to south.

Texas A&M entomologist John Thomas said the traps resemble cardboard shoe boxes about 10 inches wide, 18 inches deep and 21 inches long with an entry hole in the bottom. They're wrapped in blue plastic to protect them from the weather.

Change pondered

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal health experts tracking the spread of AIDS are seriously considering changing the definition of the disease to include many more people infected with the HIV virus, an official said.

Dr. Gary Noble, a deputy director of the federal Centers for Disease Control, on Friday said the change might double the number of people considered to have AIDS.

Twin sisters in S. Dakota face murder and conspiracy charges

BELLE FOURCHE, S.D. (AP) — Jurors convicted one woman of conspiracy to commit first-degree murder but acquitted her twin sister of charges that they helped to kill the 85-year-old man each had married twice.

Darlene Phillips was convicted of the most serious charge but cleared of all other charges. Her sister, Delores Christenson, was acquitted of all charges.

The jury returned after deliberating about five hours. Phillips received mandatory life in prison.

When asked by the judge if she had anything to say before sentencing she quickly blurted out, "I'm not guilty, sir."

One of the twins was named beneficiary of the man's estate.

Phillips and Christenson, 46, each has been married four times. Both had brushes with the law before they were indicted in the death of Walter Gibbs, who was slain April Fools Day 1990 at his home in Lemmon.

"Walter was a nice guy until he got mixed up with those nitwit twins," said Lillian Burns of Morristown, whose husband, George, was a close friend of Gibbs. "They're crazier than a couple of bedbugs."

Jerome D. Phillips, 38, a convicted rustler who's married to Darlene but says he's in love with her sister, confessed to smothering Gibbs with a pillow. He testified at the twins' trial this week that Darlene helped hold down Gibbs.

Phillips pleaded guilty May 21 to a murder conspiracy charge. He is to be sentenced July 2.

The twins are charged with planning the murder and helping to kill the frail Gibbs.

Phillips said he and the twins had several discussions about ways to kill Gibbs, who had named Christenson as heir to his $178,000 estate.

State Assistant Attorney General Mark Smith said in closing arguments Friday that the sisters had persuaded Gibbs to change his will in January 1990.

Smith told the jury Mrs.

Phillips admitted to investigators that she helped smother Gibbs.

He said Christenson "sat in the kitchen while Jerome and Darlene went into the living room and did in Walter Gibbs."

Mrs. Phillips' lawyer, Bruce Hubbard, said in his closing argument that the sisters were intimidated into helping kill Gibbs, and that Phillips was the mastermind of the plot.

Hubbard, and Christenson's lawyer, attempted to discredit Phillips' testimony, saying he lied on the witness stand.

"Mr. Phillips would not recognize the truth if it reached up and bit him," Hubbard said.

He said Mrs. Phillips obeyed her husband, who is 6-foot-1 and 280 pounds, because she was afraid he would harm her if she didn't.

Bob Van Norman, who represented Christenson, told the jury his client essentially has the mental capacity of a second-grader and is not nearly smart enough to either plan Gibbs' death or to know that she should report the murder scheme to authorities.

MICHELLE MARTIN

Michelle Martin receives special math recognition

Michelle Renee Martin, a Snyder Junior High School student, has been named a U.S. National Award winner in mathematics. She was nominated by her math teacher, Darlene Stokes.

Michelle is the daughter of Jerry and Suzette Martin of Snyder and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Sonnier of Winnie, Tex. and Mrs. Yvonne Martin of Snyder.

The academy recognizes less than 10 percent of all American high school students each year. Criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or director.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Friday approved a $295 billion defense spending package that makes wholesale cuts in President Bush's budget for the Strategic Defense Initiative and B-2 stealth bomber.

Rejecting Bush's argument that the high-priced weapons are key to the nation's defense, the Democratic-controlled House voted 273-105 to adopt the appropriation that largely tracks the separate authorization legislation approved two weeks ago.

The legislation cuts money for weapons designed to counter the Soviet threat, which has diminished since the collapse of the Warsaw Pact. The bill adds funds for weapons that proved successful in the Persian Gulf War, many of which were on display here for Saturday's National Victory Parade.

"I think the results of Desert Storm have been a perfect example of how you can be very careful and frugal with the money we've spent and at the same time build systems that will actually reduce the amount of casualties," said Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., chairman of the House Appropriations defense subcommittee.

The legislation provides $990 million for the V-22 Osprey, a tilt-rotor aircraft that takes off like a helicopter but can fly like a plane. It is built by Bell Helicopter in Fort Worth. The administration proposed no money.

Bush has threatened to veto the legislation, citing the cuts in SDI, the B-2 bomber and the bill's rejection of the administration's proposed reduction in the National Guard and reserves.

The Senate has not acted on its versions of the defense authorization and appropriations bills, which eventually will be compromised with the House-passed measures.

Among the major provisions in the bill are:

—$2.7 billion for the anti-missile Strategic Defense Initiative, commonly known as Star Wars, and $858 million for theater missile defenses. Bush had proposed spending $5.2 billion on the two programs.

—No money to buy four new B-2 stealth bombers in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Bush had sought $3.2 billion for procurement of the radar-evading plane. The administration hopes to buy 75 of the aircraft, priced at nearly $860 million each.

—About $225 million to upgrade the M-1 tank and $90 million to buy new tanks in fiscal 1992 — $46 million more procurement money than Bush sought.

Rep. Jim Traficant, D-Ohio, launched a parliamentary challenge to sections of the defense bill dealing with the Navy and Marine Corps. But he backed down after Murtha promised to allow a "buy American" amendment to the bill.

Murtha appeared surprised by the attack and said Traficant "doesn't even know and understand the impact of what he's doing" and was acting "to satisfy his own ego."

Traficant denied the accusation, but said he would undo his challenge if Murtha would pledge to support his "buy American" amendment in a conference with the Senate.

By voice vote, the House approved a Traficant-sponsored measure requiring the defense secretary to withdraw funds for foreign products if he determines foreign countries are violating trade agreements.

Another parliamentary challenge removed an abortion amendment in the bill, which had been added to the legislation by the full Appropriations Committee.

Bathtub refinishing business opened here

Worldwide Refinishing Systems, the nation's oldest bathtub refinishing company, opens in Snyder this week.

Darrell Stout, local owner, has attended Worldwide's International training school in Waco, where the class prepares the new associate to provide service to the customer with an in depth study of professional management and technical training in the refinishing of porcelain, fiberglass, ceramic tile, acrylic, china, cultured marble and other surfaces found in the bath and kitchen.

Stout says "Worldwide is a unique service business. We can make any bathtub look like new in a very short time...even change the color. We warranty our work like new. We can also refinish lavatories, fiberglass shower-tub combinations, toilets, and the tile in the bath or kitchen."

Stout and his wife, Leatha, along with their two children, MiMi, 9, and Jeremy, 5, will operate the business from their home. Besides Scurry County, they will also service Lynn, Dawson, Borden, Fisher, Jones, Mitchell, Nolan, Garza, Kent and Stonewall counties.

For more information call Stout at 573-7758.

Nation's capital basks in glory of war victory

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — President Bush Saturday offered "humble homage" to Americans who gave their lives in the Persian Gulf War in a solemn prelude to a victory celebration featuring a parade, feast and fireworks.

Bush choked up briefly as he said Kuwait is a free nation Saturday because "we dared risk our most precious asset, our sons and daughters, our brothers and sisters, our husbands and wives — the finest troops any country has ever had."

A short distance away, thousands of Operation Desert Storm veterans mobilized under brilliant sunshine for the largest military parade through the nation's capital since World War II — complete with a fly-over by scores of military aircraft. Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf was their leader for the day, just as he was during the desert war.

"It's a lot better when people are throwing tickertape than eggs," enthused Army specialist Ken Jones, a 20-year-old Dayton, Ohio, man who served in the Gulf. Katy Joseph, a Crofton, Md., housewife, said she and family had been camped on sidewalk along parade route since early in the morning. She wore two American flags in her hair.

"This time we're going the whole nine yards," she said, noting the absence of celebrations after the Vietnam War. "Times have changed. That was then and now is now.

The military had some of its most sophisticated weaponry on display along the National Mall, including a Patriot missile launcher of the type that repeatedly shot down Iraqi Scud missiles in the Persian Gulf campaign.

Bush's short trip across the Potomac River to Arlington National Cemetery, final resting place of America's war dead, kicked off a daylong commemoration of the allied victory in the Gulf War against Saddam Hussein's Iraqi forces. More than 370 Americans gave their lives.

The president noted the large throngs gathered for the parade, but said a solemn tribute was an appropriate prelude.

"... War also deserves quiet sober remembrance," he said, "and we can offer humble homage to people who last summer answered their country's call and never returned."

"We say, 'Thank you,' said Shaikh Saud Nasir al-sabah, Kuwaiti ambassador to the United States, who joined the president at the ceremony. "May God rest in peace the souls of our martyrs and bless their families."

Earlier, Bush laid a wreath at the Tomb of the Unknowns and stood silently as a lone bugler played taps in tribute to fallen warriors.

The parade was the day's highlight, starring some 8,000 fighting men and women from Operation Desert Storm, led by their field commander, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf, and reviewed by Bush.

Base closing group spares 4 Naval installations

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission, embarking on its mission to pick which military installations to close, has spared four naval homeports in the South and West.

"We have let the people sleep tonight in Mobile, (Ala.) and Pascagoula, (Miss.)," said Bo Callaway, a member of the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

He made his comments Friday after the panel voted not to touch those ports or ones in Everett, Wash., and Ingleside, Texas.

But the seven-member panel voted to keep the homeport at Staten Island, N.Y., on the hit list, meaning it is a step closer to being axed.

Jim Courter, the panel's chairman, stressed that the decisions are tentative. Those military installations that remain on the list will be given further study.

Panel members will travel to bases on the target list next week "to gain an increased sensitivity to the installations' mission," Courter said.

Local and state officials have protested many of the closure recommendations, as have congressmen whose districts are involved, pointing to job losses and other economic harm to the areas.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney reiterated Friday that Congress must face base closures if the defense budget is to be held in check.

The Courter panel culled Friday from a list of 36 installations that its staff had drawn up. In addition, Cheney has provided the panel with a list of 43 bases that the Defense Department believes should be shut down.

On Friday, the commission voted to spare a number of other bases besides the four naval homeports.

They were: —Griffiss Air Force Base in Rome, N.Y., Homestead Air Force Base in Miami and Mountain Home Air Force Base in Idaho.

—Army fighting and maneuver installations at Fort Richardson in Alaska and Fort Drum near Watertown, N.Y.

—Agana Naval Air Station in Guam and the Great Lakes

Naval Training Center near Chicago, Ill.

The commission voted to study the realignment — not closure — of Treasure Island Naval Station near San Francisco, Calif.

Naval communications facilities that were removed from the commission's list, meaning they are out of harm's way:

U.S. Marine Corps at Barstow, Calif.; Nescac, San Diego, Calif.; Naval Depot, Jacksonville, Fla.; U.S. Marine Corps Depot, Albany, Ga.; Naval Depot, Norfolk, Va.; Nescac, Portsmouth, Va., and a Navy electronic repair facility at Pensacola, Fla.

The following bases remain on the list: Plattsburgh Air Force Base in Plattsburgh, N.Y.,

Goodfellow Air Force Base in San Angelo, Texas, and MacDill Air Force Base in Tampa, Fla.

The commission's decision to keep Goodfellow on the list was meant to "placate" Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., said Texas Sen. Phil Gramm, a Republican.

Schroeder has complained that the Air Force "cooked the books" to make its case for keeping Goodfellow open and closing Lowry Air Force Base in Denver.

Additional Army bases that remain on the commission's closings list:

Fort McCoy, Sparta, Wis.; Camp Pickett, Blackstone, Va.; Fort A.P. Hill, Bowling Green, Va.; Fort Indiantown Gap, Annapolis, Pa., and Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico. They are major training areas.

Also, Army command and control installations at Fort Hamilton, N.Y., and Fort Totten, N.Y.

But Meridian Naval Air Station in Mississippi, Kingsville Naval Air Station, in Beeville, Texas, and the Naval Training Center and Marine Recruit Training Depot in San Diego, Calif., will remain for further consideration.

Police note three arrests; accidents

Snyder police made three arrests and worked three minor traffic accidents Friday and early Saturday.

Arrested in the 2700 block of Ave. U for disorderly conduct-fighting were two males, ages 17 and 18. They were transported to the county jail at 12:34 a.m. Saturday.

At 3:52 a.m., police arrested a 20-year-old male in the 2800 block of Ave. M for driving while intoxicated. He was also taken to the county jail.

Both vehicular accidents occurred within minutes of each other Friday. At 5:09 p.m., police worked an accident at 37th St. and Ave. U in which a 1979 Chrysler Cordoba driven by Joni Leah Huffman of 413 33rd St. was in collision with a 1986 Dodge Lancer driven by James Ronald Baker of 3758 Avondale.

At 5:12 p.m., police investigated an accident at the Movie Stop involving a 1982 Pontiac Firebird driven by Denise Aguilar of 905 28th St. and a 1989 Ford Tempo driven by Pamela Breuer of Box 1296.

Another minor mishap was worked by police at 8:08 a.m. Saturday at the intersection of 37th St. and College Ave. Involved were a 1983 truck owned by the city of Snyder and a driven by Elias Vasquez Torres of 412 28th St. and a 1991 Chevrolet driven by Dana Rae Chesser of 321 35th St. Damage was reported as minor although the Chesser vehicle was towed from the scene.

In one other report Friday, Denise Bennet of 2200 41st St. notified police at 11:44 a.m. that someone had stolen a spare wheel and tire. A report for Class B theft was submitted.

Police also responded to several routine calls, including music and noise disturbances and domestic disputes. All were handled without incident.

who spoke on condition of anonymity in line with official custom.

The crash was heard for miles, jolting awake residents in surrounding villages, who rushed to the station to help with rescue efforts.

Officials said at least 100 people were killed and 225 injured.

In Islamabad, Prime Minister Nawaz Sharif ordered an investigation into crash. Authorities were searching for station workers who fled after the accident. They said they would be arrested and questioned.

The officials said they did not know why railway workers allowed the express train, which daily carries hundreds of people on the 21-hour, 900-mile journey, to move into the station.

At least eight cars, which can hold about 50 people each, were knocked off the track, said railway officials, who cannot be identified under briefing rules. Four freight cars were derailed.

Before noon Saturday, one of the two tracks were cleared, they said. Trains were diverted from at least three towns to bring relief supplies and carry injured people to hospitals.

The accident was similar to a December 1989 collision near Sangi, a town in the Sindh province. At least 400 people died when a passenger train collided head-on into a slow-moving freight train. Investigators determined that station officials mistakenly allowed the trains onto the same track.

2 more Florida students slain

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — The terror that gripped this college town last fall returned when two women students were found slain in their apartment. But police say the new deaths aren't linked to five mutilation slayings last year.

"Just when we feel safe, it's happening all over again," said Dorie Weekley, University of Florida student.

The bodies of students Eleanor Anne Grace, 20, of Fort Myers, and Carla Marie McKishnie, 22, of Brandon, were found Friday by a boyfriend of one of the victims. He became concerned and broke into their off-campus apartment, police said.

John Joyce, a spokesman for a special task force formed after last year's five slayings, said it appeared the women were strangled, but autopsies had not been completed.

Authorities quickly discounted any link between the latest slayings and last year's, which remain unsolved.

"There is no indication whatsoever that this is connected with the serial homicides that took place in the fall of last year," said Lt. Spencer Mann, an Alachua County Sheriff's Office spokesman.

Although the killings don't seem connected, Mann said they may have been the work of a copycat killer, or a killer who could strike again.

Gov. Lawton Chiles ordered 20 to 25 Florida Highway Patrol troopers into Gainesville Friday night for extra security.

Students still worry.

"I pray it doesn't keep going on," said student Petra Magnusdottir of Iceland.

Police emphasized the differences between this week's slayings and last year's.

"The crime scene does not look like the crime scenes that we encountered earlier last year," Joyce said.

The victims of the earlier slayings were mutilated and the two women killed this week were not, police said.

John Lombardi, president of the 34,000-student school, tried to reassure students and their families that last summer's nightmare was not being repeated.

"The police tell us these two tragic murders are not related, as far as they're able to determine, to the previous difficulty and tragedy we had on this campus last fall," he said.

McKishnie, a graduate student with an education degree, and Grace, a sophomore psychology major, were among about 16,000 students enrolled in summer classes as of Friday.

They lived about a mile from the apartment where two of last summer's victims were killed.

Their apartment also was in the same complex where student Tiffany Sessions lived. Sessions disappeared while jogging in 1989 and was never found.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Writing, both as work and as a hobby, has been a part of Aline Parks' life for more than 40 years. And, though she retired in May as publicity director at Western Texas College, she has not retired from writing.

Like most local residents, she was excited at the prospect of a junior college being built in Snyder. She attended the groundbreaking ceremony and each open house that was held as each building on campus was completed.

An experienced news writer, Mrs. Parks wanted to be a part of the new college, and she convinced both Dr. Robert Clinton, first president, and Dr. Ben Brock, first vice-president, to give her a chance "to make the Scurry County area aware of the college and the opportunities it offered."

Both men agreed and she was hired in the fall of 1973, a very busy time for the then fledgling college.

"The first week I worked there, a lot was happening," she said. "Among other things, WTC was exhibiting rocks brought back from the moon. The Snyder Daily News gave us a front page news story about the moon rocks and stories about other college events were on almost every inside page. I really made a good first impression thanks to Wacil McNair, (then editor of the SDN), and events which happened just at the right time," she said.

According to Mrs. Parks, "Working at WTC was always interesting." Her work changed as circumstances dictated, she said, "It was never dull because there was not a set routine."

Everyone was easy to work with and always cooperated in helping her to develop stories.

Mrs. Parks said she was especially gratified to "hear from a student or parents how much they appreciated seeing news about that student's successes at WTC."

Her first office was located in the Administration Building which now houses the Continuing and Adult Education offices. Several years ago her office was moved to its present location in Building 7A.

Mrs. Parks' position was basically a "one woman job." It was her responsibility to keep up with activities at the college and accomplishments of both faculty and students and to distribute such information to area newspapers.

Throughout the years, her basic job description remained the same, even after Darla Doty began working in public relations and recruiting.

In the beginning, Mrs. Parks turned out all of her copy on an electric typewriter. When word processing equipment was added it speeded up her work. She has also learned how to use the MacIntosh system which was added to the journalism department about four years ago.

Once her office was moved to Building 7A, it brought her into greater contact with students enrolled in office careers, Mrs. Parks said. That helped her to realize a greater respect for those students because of their "motivation and specific knowledge of what they wanted to do when they graduated."

"College is a great investment because it helps students to discover what they really want to do," she said. "I'm always proud to see students graduate."

She has observed, along with other WTC staffers, that "each student body has its own personality." Some are very committed and get involved while others choose not to.

Mrs. Parks has a great deal of respect for the junior or community college system and considers it an honor to have devoted so many years to working at WTC.

"The retirement reception given in my honor was just that — an honor," she said. "I left WTC with some really wonderful memories."

Mrs. Parks, however, did not always just work at the college; she also took a variety of courses, which she said helped her to learn as much about herself as she did about the subject matter.

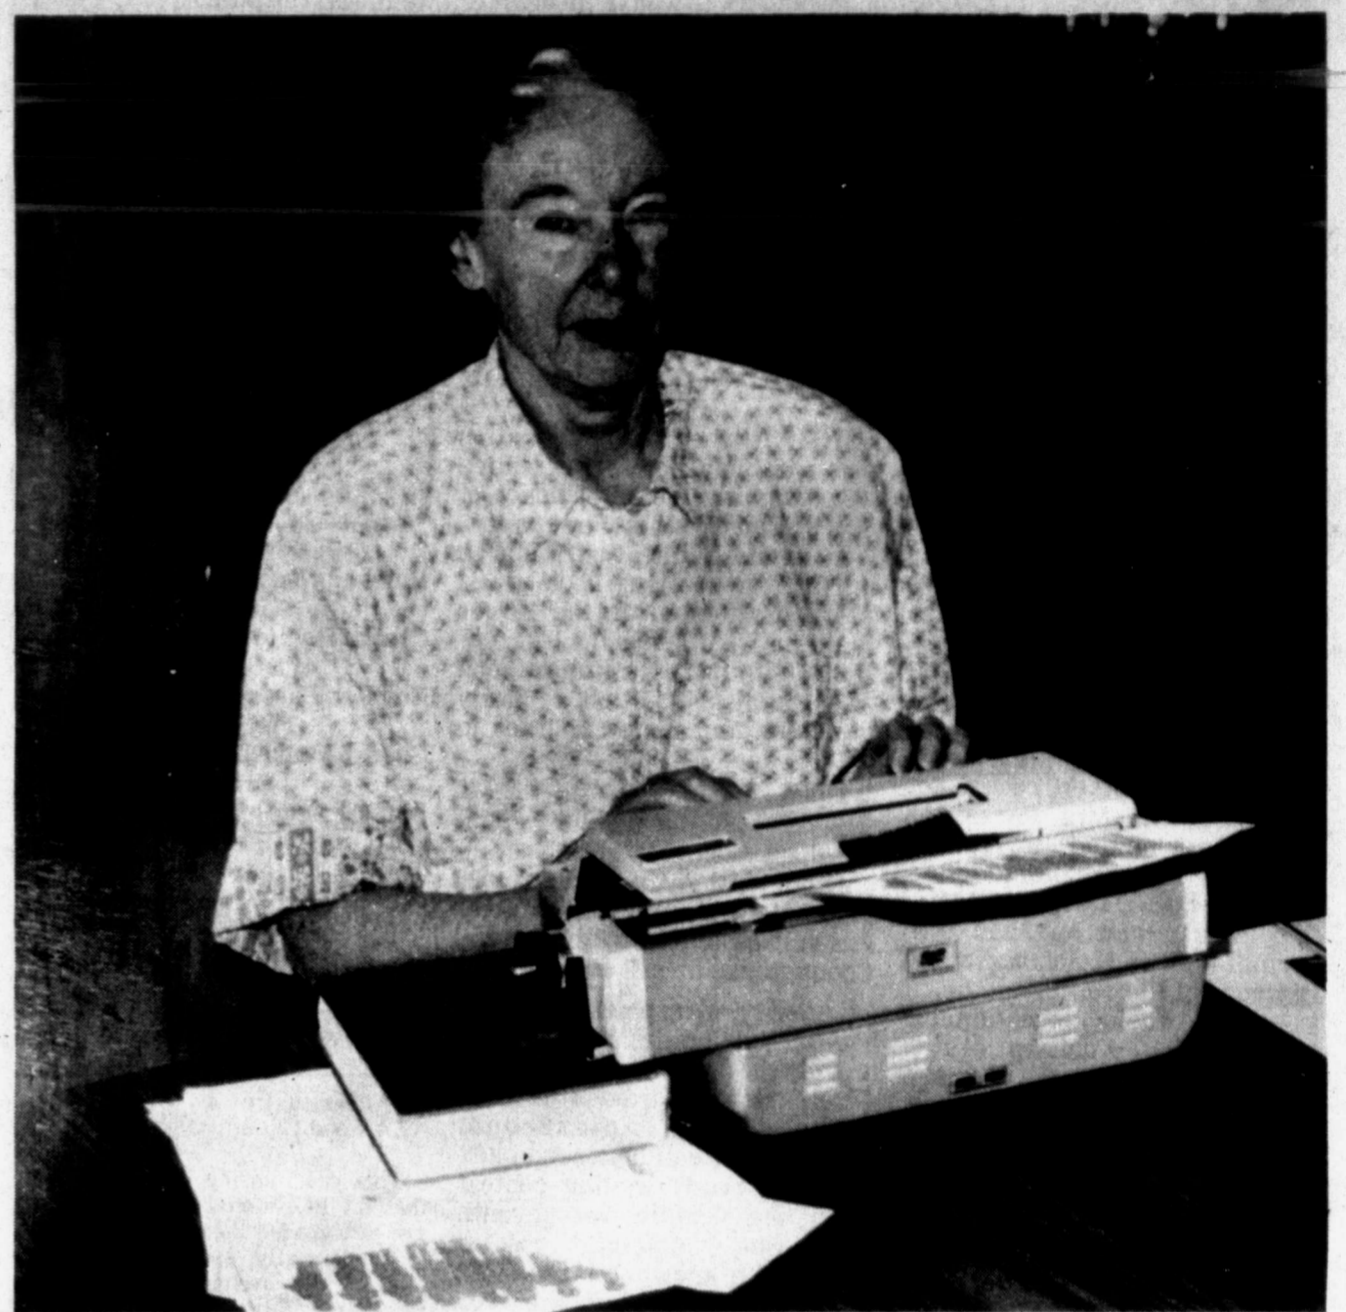

She recalled that one sociology instructor really made an impression on her when he brought a box with two rattlesnakes in it to class. After informing the students of the box's contents he held his hand above it and said "I have the right to choose to stick my hand in this box if that's what I want to do. But, I cannot decide the consequences of that act."

She recalled another professor who prefers not to think that prisoners make mistakes which get them incarcerated, but that their incarceration is the direct result of a choice or choices they made.

She also took organ lessons long enough to realize she didn't like it and had no intention of practicing. Instead, she sold her organ and purchased an electric typewriter which has been far more use to her.

Mrs. Parks had much writing experience before taking the job at WTC. She came to Snyder in 1950, after being hired by the Snyder Daily News. In all, she worked two different times for the local newspaper.

"Snyder was an exciting place when I came here in the fall of 1950," she said.

New people were arriving every day as the oil boom was then in full swing. Since no vacant apartments existed then, she said she rented a bedroom in the home of Mrs. Eunice Weatherbee, who was then the district clerk. Those lodgings were located on 27th Street across from the First Baptist Church. "I still remember the first assignment the Daily News editor, Ed Harte, gave me. I was to go to a meeting of Girl Scout (See FOLKS on page 2B) leaders in the First Christian Church which was then located at 27th Street and College Avenue. The front door was locked and when I walked around the building I didn't hear any voices, so I went back to the office. Mr. Harte patiently explained that the meeting was to be held in a basement classroom so I went back, found an open door and slipped into the meeting very quietly, hoping no one would notice. The group went on with their meeting with no comment on my late arrival. I was extremely grateful and tried to repay their kindness by giving them publicity whenever I could while I worked for the Daily News."

At the SDN, Mrs. Parks did a little of everything including taking information about oil field activity from the James Watson oil news service in Midland at 11 a.m. Monday through Friday.

She took down short articles about drilling applications filed, completions and drilling reports. She knew nothing about the oil field nor did she need to as long as she "spelled the words correctly."

Along with other newspaper staff members, Mrs. Parks was sometimes invited to special events. These included a barbecue hosted by Mr. and Mrs. C.T. McLaughlin for then U.S. Senator Lyndon B. Johnson at the Diamond M Ranch.

Another was a reception for some visiting dignitary at the country club during which she had a near "fatal" encounter with boiled shrimp which was served along with caviar canapes and other elegant foods.

She attempted to eat one large boiled shrimp which did not turn out to be her liking at all. She said she almost choked before getting rid of that morsel. Needless to say, since that time she has always avoided shrimp.

Mrs. Parks met her husband, G.A. Parks Jr., after moving to Snyder. They were married in April of 1952. He was a native of Snyder and for a time they lived in his parents home in the country, which they still own today.

After her husband was drafted into the Army, Mrs. Parks resigned from her newspaper job and moved to Camp Roberts, Calif., where G.A. was in basic training.

After he was sent to Korea the following February, she returned to Texas where she worked for the San Angelo Standard Times.

"The biggest story I helped cover there was a tornado that caused extensive damage to the Lake View area of town," she said.

She returned to Snyder late in 1953 and worked for the Snyder Daily News again until 1955 when she quit to become a full time homemaker after their daughter, Paula, was born. They became the parents of a son, Whit, in 1965.

Paula and her family now live in Houston and Whit and his family have recently moved to Haskell.

During those "at home years," Mrs. Parks said she and her husband became interested in genealogy and began to do research on the Parks family. From their research, they learned that the Parks family came to Texas around 1848, and after piecing their story together she said they both "developed a new interest in Texas history."

They wrote a brief family history to try to weave the lives of the family into the history of the period. She hopes someday they will be able to update that document.

In 1969, the Parkses were invited to join the then newly formed Ranch Headquarters Association which then sought to create a ranching museum at Tech.

As their interest grew, Mrs. Parks said they began to gather information about local ranching history which was later published.

In 1970, the first publication was a tabloid newspaper called "The Coming West" in honor of Scurry County's first newspaper.

A second publication followed in 1971, a 50-page book titled "First Cattlemen on the Lower Plains of West Texas."

Then in 1972, a similar book was published titled, "Early Ranching and Water Sources in West Texas."

These two books were later combined and reprinted in a hardback volume, "Early Ranching in West Texas," for the 1986 Texas Sesquicentennial. Copies are still available in the Scurry County Museum gift shop.

Someday, Mrs. Parks said she hopes "The Coming West" will be reprinted.

Her first memories of writing, other than classroom assignments, can be traced back to a UIL ready writing contest when she was in the seventh grade. She volunteered to enter though she knew nothing about ready writing nor had she ever been on a college campus. But she joined other UIL students at West Texas State University in Canyon and was very surprised to win first place. She still has the medal she received.

After graduating from Dumas High School, Mrs. Parks studied journalism at Texas Tech and worked on the staff of the campus newspaper.

She worked for the newspaper in Dumas, the Moore County News, one summer for college credit. Another job during her college career was working in the college library.

"We were paid 40 cents an hour," she said. "There were two great benefits to that job. It really made me appreciate any job that paid more than 40 cents an hour and it helped me get in good physical condition. There were no elevators in the library, so we carried books up and down three flights of stairs during a large part of the 20 hours we were required to work each week. There was a tremendous turnover in personnel."

Upon graduating from Tech, Mrs. Parks went to work for the weekly Pecos Enterprise in Pecos. The following year she moved to Snyder.

Now that she has retired, Mrs. Parks intends to remain active with various activities including volunteer work. In past years, she has served on the Scurry County Museum Association Board and earned her 100-hour pin through volunteer service with Cogdell Memorial Hospital's Auxiliary.

G.A. currently serves as the chairman of the board at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

He retired from Chevron a couple of years ago, and both are looking forward to several activities which have been delayed for "one reason or the other."

We think Snyder's a great place to retire as well as to work, and we want to continue to be contributors to its future."

This year, spring is truly proving that the hot, humid days of summer are just around the corner.

Traditionally, as the temperature rises we all search for foods that offer refreshing relief. Especially palatable for a midday break or evening treat are icy, fresh-fruit sorbets.

Homemade ices or sorbets can be light and satisfying and a good way to take advantage of favorite fruits at their peak of ripeness.

Homemade versions are a way to control the calories, too. Sylvia Rowe, vice president of the Sugar Association, enjoys making fruit ices and sorbets, which she refers to as ideal low-fat summer desserts or snacks.

"They are refreshing and skinny in calories and are easy to make," says Rowe. "The secret to these frozen desserts is adding small amounts of sugar to stabilize fresh-fruit flavors and add body or the 'mouthfeel' of fat."

A cantaloupe sorbet and a watermelon ice are both light and thirst-quenching while a raspberry frozen yogurt is creamy and smooth. Serve these mouth-watering creations individually or use them to top a fruit plate. Freeze in an ice-cream maker or in a freezer container.

WATERMELON ICE

- 2 1/4 cups watermelon, seeded
- 3 tablespoons orange juice
- 2 tablespoons sugar

In a food processor or blender, thoroughly process all ingredients. Pour into the freezer can of an ice-cream maker. Freeze according to manufacturer's instructions.

Or to prepare without ice-cream maker, pour mixture into an 8-by-4 inch rectangular freezer container. Cover and freeze for 4 hours or until firm. For an even smoother texture, remove container from the freezer two or three times during freezing and blend mixture in a food processor or blender and return.

Before serving, let soften in refrigerator for 20 to 30 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 1/2-cup servings at 57 calories per serving, less than one gram fat.

Atterbury, Robinson marry

GATESVILLE — Ronda Kay Atterbury and Kinney F. Robinson exchanged marriage vows in a double ring ceremony held April 6 at the First Baptist Church in Gatesville. The Rev. Miller F. Robinson, pastor of Colonial Hill Baptist Church and father of the bridegroom, officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Ronald N. Atterbury of Gatesville. Parents of the bridegroom are Rev. and Mrs. Miller F. Robinson of Snyder.

Vows were promised before an altar centered with a large heart shaped candelabra. English ivy and candles aligned the choir loft. The church was decorated with English ivy and pink bows.

Pianist was Doris Layne, cousin of the bride, and Dorothy Walker was organist. Randy Tierce sang "The Lord's Prayer," and Tina Turk sang "Nobody Loves Me Like You Do." Joining together, they sang "Cherish the Treasure."

The bride wore a designer original gown of satin and imported lace, styled with a fitted bodice that was accented with pearls and sequin-embroidered lace appliques, an Elizabethan neckline, and long puffed sleeves. Pearls draped the back of the open bodice. The full skirt trimmed with matching lace appliques swept into a full cathedral train accented with a Dior bow. Her silk illusion veil fell from a headpiece studded with pearl and blossom sprays, and was accented with a crystal V-shaped forehead design.

In keeping with tradition, the bride carried her mother's Bible that she carried in her wedding for something old; something new was her gown; she wore pearls borrowed from the groom's mother, Sandra Robinson; and her garter, made for her by Peggy English, was blue. She also carried an English lace handkerchief given to her by the groom's mother.

Margo Atterbury, the bride's sister, was maid of honor. Kristi Atterbury, her sister-in-law, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Tina Turk, Christi Jones and Tracey Barnes. Each attendant wore a tea length burgundy dress fashioned with a fitted lace bodice and gathered satin skirt featuring a satin over lace Dior bow at center back. Kelsey Sage and Claire Davidson were flower girls. They wore powder pink taffeta dresses with lace sleeves.

John Robinson served his brother as best man. Groomsmen were Todd Turner, Malcolm Crawford, Dale Sands and Lee McCathern. The groom wore a white fullness tuxedo, white shirt and bow tie.

Ringbearers and groomsmen were attired in gray fullness tuxedos accessorized with burgundy cummerbunds and ties.

Candlelighters were Jay Atterbury, brother of the bride, and Megan Harris. Cal Sage and Casey Davidson were ring bearers, carrying the rings on heart-shaped pillows made by Mrs. Burton Tankersley.

Jean Turner directed the wedding and Sheri Talifero registered guests.

Parents of the bride hosted a reception in the church parlor. The bride's table, covered with a white cloth, held silver appointments and was centered with a candelabra, belonging to Mrs. Charles Walker. The three tiered bride's cake was solid white and was decorated lavishly with white handmade gum paste roses. Serving were Melissa Merritt, Angie Lindsey and Tammy Atterbury.

The groom's table was covered with a burgundy cloth belonging to Mrs. Bill Hartsfield. Silver candelabrum, centering the groom's table and the cheese and coffee table, also belonged to Mrs. Hartsfield. The chocolate cake with basket weave design icing, was decorated with chocolate and white chocolate dipped strawberries. Serving were Denise Merritt and Mary Sands.

The wedding cakes, made by Beth Hicks of Graham and Becky Hicks of Snyder, were wedding gifts.

Others in the houseparty were Peggy Shelburne, Darlene Wicker, Betty Bartlett, Judy Woods and Carla Donaldson.

Parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at the Branding Iron Restaurant.

The couple's honeymoon trip was to San Antonio.

The bride, a 1989 graduate of Gatesville High School, is employed at First Texas Insurance Agency in Gatesville. The bridegroom, a 1984 graduate of Snyder High School, is employed at the Gatesville branch of the National Bank.

Graham church site for vows

Ruth Johnson of Snyder and Robert L. Cardwell of Borger were married in a double ring ceremony at 6 p.m. May 25 in the Grace Chapel in Graham. The Rev. Charles Watson, pastor, officiated.

Baskets filled with white gladioli, pink snapdragons and greenery decorated the church.

Mrs. Fred Owen, accompanied herself as she sang, "I Love You Truly."

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Clinton Johnson, wore a soft gray street length dress. Her bouquet was of pink and white carnations and baby's breath which she carried on a white Bible. Bonnie Thetford of Graham created her headpiece of pink silk roses.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister, Leurene Holman of Jacksboro. She wore a pink linen suit and a corsage of pink and white carnations.

Grady Johnson of Graham, brother of the bride, was best man. The groom and male attendants were attired in dark gray suits, pink shirts and burgundy ties.

Grace Rhoades of Graham, sister of the bride, registered guests.

The church fellowship hall was the site for the reception following the ceremony. The table was covered with a white lace over pink cloth and featured a three tiered wedding cake decorated with pink and white carnations and topped with two satin doves holding wedding rings, created by the bride's niece, Johnnie Pyburn of Snyder.

Stella Bailey and Ms. Pyburn, both of Snyder, served cake, punch, and white and pink flower and heart shaped mints, made by Ms. Bailey.

Following their honeymoon trip to Lake Worth, the couple are at home in Snyder where the bride works as a reflexologist. Snyder has been her home for 25 years. The groom is retired from Phillips Petroleum Co. in Borger.

Polly's Pointers' by Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — We have started a compost heap for kitchen scraps as advised by our town's recycling coordinator. However, animals are getting into it, eating it and spreading the garbage all over the yard. Is there any way to prevent this? — SALLY

DEAR SALLY — If your compost is simply a backyard heap, it could well provide a free banquet for every animal in the neighborhood — including such undesirables as rats. There are many animal compost bins on the market, available through gardening catalogs and at garden supply shops. However, if you're a little handy with a hammer, you can make your own at a fairly low cost.

One method is to construct a simple four-sided wooden bin. It doesn't have to be fancy or of the finest construction: Just take planks, pieces of plywood or sections of particle board and nail them together into a four-walled square or rectangular bin. Cover the top and bottom with hardware cloth stapled to the wooden sides. The hardware cloth allows air to circulate while it keeps the animals out. A couple of hinges and a simple latch on one of the walls makes a door to provide access to the compost inside; or you can staple the top hardware cloth on one side only, then attach some kind of a latch to the opposite side so it can be opened like a lid.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Vegetable Garden Pointers," which offers more hints for making and using compost, plus tips on starting seeds indoors, foiling garden pests and getting the most out of your vegetable garden harvest. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for each copy to

DEAR POLLY — When a recipe calls for a clove of garlic, can garlic powder be substituted? — MRS. D.K.

DEAR MRS. D.K. — Although garlic powder will not provide the full, delicious flavor of fresh garlic, it can certainly be used as a substitute. In general, use 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder or granulated garlic as a substitute for 1 small clove of fresh garlic.

You might want to check your supermarket for jars of fresh garlic packed in oil or water. This garlic comes chopped coarsely or finely, as you prefer, and is an easy way to get a flavor closer to fresh than garlic powder — without the inconvenience and mess of storing and chopping fresh garlic.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Kitchen Tricks," which tells you how to substitute for other common kitchen staples you may run out of such as baking chocolate, cake flour, honey, baking powder and more. It also offers dozens of tricks to perk up the flavor of family meals, rescue cooking mishaps such as burned stew or pale gravy and make various cooking chores easier and faster. DEAR POLLY — Keep those round disposable tins that pot pies are sold in. Wash them thoroughly and use them to bake small cakes. When baking a cake to take to the office, pour 90 percent of the batter into a regular cake pan, then pour the remaining batter into the small tin for your children to enjoy at home.

Here's a quick and easy hors d'oeuvre. Present a cake of cream cheese with chutney and crispy crackers on the side. Guests can spread the cheese on their crackers, then top with chutney. It's delicious. —

DEAR POLLY — Can you tell me how to remove a shiny spot from each of the knees of my good wool pants? They're not stains, just shiny spots on each knee. — E.P.

DEAR E.P. — Try this: Sponge the spots with warm white vinegar, then cover with a damp cloth and press with a warm iron. Allow the fabric to dry completely, then brush gently with a soft brush. This should raise the nap of the fabric so the shine disappears.

This is just one of the handy household uses of vinegar. Did you know that you can practically clean your whole house with just two kitchen staples — baking soda and vinegar?

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter "Cleaning with Vinegar and Baking Soda," which shows dozens of ways these inexpensive, safe cleaners can replace commercial cleaning sprays and compounds, while solving many household problems. Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. — POLLY

Polly will send you a Polly Dollar ($1) if she uses your favorite Pointer, Peeve or Problem in her column. Write POLLY'S POINTERS in care of this newspaper.

Barber cuts cool bargain with teens

WEBSTER GROVES, Mo. (AP) — Smart kids get clipped at the Lee Moss Hair Salon.

That's because Moss gives free haircuts to school children who get all A's and B's on their report cards.

Hair, he's found, is a great motivator.

"Hair is important," Moss says. "Kids take pride in their hair. They all want to look well-groomed, and this gives them something to strive for."

Moss, who has three daughters, sees himself as more than just a generous businessman in a predominantly black section of this St. Louis suburb.

"People are out there seeking role models, and I would like to be that type of person," he says.

So as of last fall, kids in the neighborhood who have proof of all A's and B's are entitled to a free 'do after each semester. Straight-A students also get a $25 gift certificate to a department store.

So far, only a few have met the standards.

"But I think it's going to catch on," Moss says. "I hope there will be a lot more."

Though he's most interested in high school, where peer pressure is at its greatest and drugs and gang abuse are prevalent, he won't turn down the younger crowd.

Candyce Handley, 11, a fifth-grader at Clark Elementary School, already has cashed in twice.

"It made me eager to get good grades," she says. "You can't pass up a deal like that."

Moss charges $8 for a basic cut at his eight-chair shop. He also does a lot of novelty business — imprinting the Nike logo, an inflight Michael Jordan or any number of other designs on the sides of his customers' heads. Not to mention the fade-cut, the high-rise styles popularized by rap artists.

Moss has an associate degree in business from Forest Park Community College in St. Louis, but his concerns go beyond the bottom line.

Pair to be honored on June 15

Betty and Chubby Davis of Rt. 1 will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary June 15 at a reception hosted by their children at Reta's Cake Shop.

Children of the couple are Gary and Jerry Davis of Snyder, Sam and D'Ann Davis of Fort Stockton, Jack and Johnna Babb of Eldorado and Paul and Glenna Glover of Snyder.

Davis, born May 6, 1922, in Granite, Okla., and Mrs. Davis, born Dec. 31, 1924, in Median, Kan., met in McCamey in March of 1941 and were married in Coleman on June 13, 1941.

Retired from Chevron Oil Co. in Snyder, the couple has lived in McCamey, Big Lake and Iraan.

They are members of the Pentecostal church and have seven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Hostesses invite friends and family of the couple to join them in celebrating the occasion.

Prove dad's importance

By RICK SAMMON
AP Newsfeatures

Father's Day — June 16 — is only days away. It's the day we get to show Dad how important he is in our lives.

Most dads say they don't need anything on this special occasion — but don't believe it! There are many gifts you can give your father that will be useful and appreciated throughout the entire year.

For the father who takes pictures, there are plenty of photography-related items available. Anything from the following list of recently introduced, inexpensive photo accessories would make a welcome Father's Day gift that will help Dad document and preserve the family's activities.

To protect all types of cameras — compact 35mms, SLRs and camcorders — Coast Manufacturing offers a wide variety of affordable, rugged and waterproof camera bags.

The Oasis Black Sand models, for example, feature an attractive professional black-and-tan exterior, and an interior lined with silklike, non-scratching material. These bags not only protect Dad's camera from rain and snow, but also from those milk and soda spills that can occur when traveling with youngsters. Coast offers a wide choice of bags, each one designed for specific needs.

For those who want to get Dad several rolls of 35mm film, but whose budget is tight, 3M's Scotch color print film is a good buy. It is available in ISO speeds of 100, 200 and 400. Unlike some other major film manufacturers, 3M doesn't spend a small fortune on national consumer advertising, so its films usually sell for less than other national brands.

These films deliver good color and sharpness in a wide variety of lighting situations. 3M also manufactures some store-brand films, including K mart's Focal brand.

For fathers who truly love the art of photography, an art-quality photo book makes an excellent gift.

But, no matter which gift you get your dad, remember this: A proud father's favorite pastime, next to spending time with his children, is taking and showing off photos of them.

Supermarket packages are shrinking

NEW YORK (AP) — The days of the broad-shouldered, large economy-size packages that have filled American supermarket shelves since the end of World War II are coming to an end, reports a New York-based marketing communications concern.

In their place, consumers are beginning to find smaller, functional containers, according to the Howard Marlboro Group. The new units use considerably less packaging material and take up some 40 percent less shelf space than their bulky predecessors.

The move toward smaller packages is spurred largely by environmental concerns. The decreased sizes mean less solid waste, and less fossil fuel and pollution expended in shipping the product.

One example is the introduction of a 21-ounce refill package of a popular liquid fabric softener, that when water is added, makes a gallon of the original formula. The re-fill paperboard carton uses 75 percent less packaging material than the original gallon bottle.

Other packaging efficiencies can be achieved through slight modification, and not just for products that can be concentrated, the report notes.

Southwestern design

NEW YORK (AP) — Mexican Chocolate Cake is a tortelike dessert flavored with ground almonds and coffee liqueur.

MEXICAN CHOCOLATE CAKE
12 ounces semisweet chocolate, melted
4 eggs, separated, at room temperature
¾ cup sugar
1 cup mayonnaise (real, light, or cholesterol-free mayonnaise), at room temperature
¾ cup ground almonds
¼ cup flour
¼ cup coffee liqueur
Confectioners' sugar (optional)
Cocoa (optional)
Line the bottom of a 9-inch springform pan with waxed paper. Lightly grease the waxed paper and sides of the pan. Melt chocolate; cool to room temperature.

Gradually add sugar and beat until light, about 4 minutes. Add mayonnaise; beat 1 minute. Add melted chocolate, beat 1 minute longer. Stir in ground almonds and flour until blended. Stir in liqueur.

In a medium bowl, using clean beaters, beat egg whites until stiff; fold into batter. Pour into prepared pan. Bake in a 350-degree F oven for 55 minutes or until firm. Cool in pan on wire rack 10 minutes. Remove sides of pan; cool 30 minutes longer. Invert onto wire rack; remove bottom of pan and waxed paper. Cool completely. If desired, use a stencil, confectioners' sugar and cocoa to create a Southwestern design on the top of the cake. The cake can also be served with whipped cream. Makes one 9-inch cake.

CHOLESTEROL LEVEL

What should my cholesterol level be? Less than 200. A reading between 200 and 240 is borderline high - above 240 you are at serious risk of developing clogged arteries. If your cholesterol test comes out high, have it retested. If still worrisome, find out your levels of HDL and LDL. What are they? Simply put, HDL is the 'good' type of cholesterol, LDL is the 'bad' type. HDL values should be higher than 40; anything below 35 is a major risk factor.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

Buzzzzzzzz. Buzzzzzzzz. That ought to be enough warning. Your Texas Legislature is at work again. God help us all.

Texans are struggling to make a dollar stretch to unbelievable limits; insurance covers less and costs more; a 20 dollar bill will buy a half-sack of groceries (no meat or cigarettes); and an income tax is just around the corner.

Buzzzzzzzz. Buzzzzzzzz. Here comes good ol' State Representative Buzz Robnett. He's here to make sure lawmakers don't get stuck down the same road to the poor house as the rest of us folks come retirement time.

An amendment authored by the Lubbock Republican and hastily tacked onto a retirement benefit package during the final few weeks of the legislative session effectively gives legislators what amounts to a raise. Pretty nice one, too.

Buzzzzzzzz. What, you say? Texas' lawmakers can't give themselves a raise. The voters have to do that.

Technically, yes. In reality, no. There's more than one loop in the hole of the law. To a state lawmaker, loopholes are like gravy on a chicken fried steak.

So what's the deal? The deal is, Texas lawmakers don't get paid a large salary, just $7,200 a year. That ranks 46th in the nation. The national average is $17,669. They don't have much of a salary because Texas voters won't give 'em one.

What Texas lawmakers do have, however, is the third highest retirement pay of legislators in the United States. And that was BEFORE Buzz's amendment.

Under the amendment, the age at which lawmakers can get full benefits will be lowered from 55 to 50. It also reduces from 30 to 12 years the length of service required for lawmakers under 60 to receive full benefits.

That means that a retired legislator in Texas who served for 12 years will receive $1,526 a month. It's not a ton of money, but in contrast to legislators' $600 a month in salary, that's a pretty hefty retirement. You might say it pays for lawmakers to retire.

That's about the only thing good about this bill with its Buzzzzzzzzzz amendment, which our governor has until June 16 to sign, veto or sweep under the rug. The retirement hike isn't exactly new. Texas legislators who retired before 1983 received similar benefits to the ones proposed by Robnett. The eligibility rules were tightened in 1983, however.

Now, the state constitution and statutes prohibit a legislator from voting on bills that would benefit him personally or one of his clients. Robnett turned 50 on March 31 and has been in the House since 1979 so it would be fair to say, yep, that this amendment definitely benefits him. However, as you might have guessed, an exception to the law is made when the legislation benefits "a certain overall class" — in this case, legislators.

Another loophole. Pass the gravy. Then there's the ethics bill that lawmakers batted around this spring. Except...it doesn't address the issue of a legislator voting for or sponsoring legislation which benefits him or his clients.

Buzzzzzzzz.

SDN Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor,

With the end of another school year at hand, it is a time for reflecting on past accomplishments, not just for graduates and their parents, but for teachers as well.

Many teachers do their jobs day after day without any form of recognition or thanks. In Snyder, there are many teachers doing their jobs above and beyond their calls. I believe it is time that teachers get a little credit for a job well done.

Let me explain it like this: If a child is given a lovely gift but doesn't know how to unwrap it, is it of any use to the child?

If the child unwraps it to find a book but doesn't know how to read, is it of any use to the child? If the child learns to read but doesn't understand the book, is it of any use to the child?

When the child learns to understand it, the gift becomes useful to him or her.

This is what a teacher shows the student to do with the God-given gifts he or she may possess. I want to say that the teachers in Snyder, WTC included, have done this or at least tried to do this for their students.

To those special teachers who have taught my children and myself, I would like to say thank you for caring enough to do your job beyond its description.

Sincerely,

Gigi D. Tharpe

Dear Editor:

Last week the Snyder Daily News printed a letter from Mr. Bill C. Parker who indicated that he knew my voting record on workers comp and held me responsible for the closing of Walls Industries.

Mr. Parker apparently does not know my voting record on workers comp since I voted in favor of the bill that I am told he supported.

I am always happy to defend the positions that I have taken on behalf of the people that I represent, but it is impossible to defend something I have not done. If I cannot please Mr. Parker by voting the way he would have me to, then he simply cannot be pleased.

Sincerely,

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Have you ever noticed how small-town life is portrayed, stereotypically, in most books, TV and movies? It seems those of us who live in small-town, rural areas are woefully ignorant, backward, uneducated, incapable of articulate speech, bigoted, somewhat lazy, narrow-minded, and have poor dental hygiene.

I've always been aware of this stereotype, but no more so than this past weekend, when I read a book written by a friend of mine from Connecticut. Her husband is a lawyer in "The City" (New York, of course), and she has been quite successful with her paperback suspense tales, garnering six-figure advances and a recent TV-movie sale.

Now, this friend, (whom I met, via the mails, through my publisher and later, Mystery Writers of America), has been tremendously kind to me, particularly through my recent contract-agent battles. She calls frequently with encouragement and support. So when I bought three of her books recently, I wanted very much to like them as much as I do her.

This particular story is set in an artist's colony outside a small town in Massachusetts. The main character, the daughter of an artist who owned the colony, is returning there with her three children to settle the estate after his death and turn over the now unoccupied colony to an arts foundation. The idea was to give her children two weeks (only two weeks, after all), of fresh air, sunshine and bucolic pastoral pleasures.

Yet, the first thing she does upon arrival is to open up the local paper and begin making snide wisecracks about the local news and how nothing ever happens in that town, even though it is within driving distance of such places as the prestigious Tanglewood classical music festival and a Shakespeare festival.

After that, I noticed that not one single character in the book — no matter how minor — not one waitress, shopkeeper, traffic cop, or newspaper editor — is described in a favorable light.

The women all heap on their makeup and jewelry, the men are all fat and have bad teeth, the youth are all lazy and stupid. The townspeople are hostile to outsiders and shockingly selfish — when her pre-adolescent stepdaughter, in a pout, locked all the doors in the car on a summer day and promptly passed out from the heat, slumping over the steering wheel; the shopkeeper who helped get her out was concerned only with the noise the car horn was making. The only likeable character in the entire story was the art colony's only resident, a man from the big city of Chicago. He, alone, had dignity, grace, kindness, and a measure of sophistication.

My friend's book upset me because it reflects the predominant view of small-town life among those involved in the publishing business and the entertainment industry — both of which are responsible for shaping so many of society's views, and both of which are headquartered in the huge, sprawling, pollution-and-crime ridden metropolitan areas of New York and Los Angeles.

And it seems that, just as the new kid in school will act out of character in order to be thought "cool" to other students; those who grew up in small towns and moved to the big cities to work in those industries are embarrassed to admit to the benefits of that upbringing, and so write and perform as their urban counterparts dictate.

And it makes me wonder what my friend must really think of me, with my "Route 2, Texas" address.

I guess it's up to those of us who live and write out in the hinterlands to be as responsible as we can in portraying small-town life as it really is, with its foibles and follies, its pride and power, with affection and humor — and to fight for the right to present that picture without cynicism.

On a recent episode of Burt Reynolds' fine situation comedy, "Evening Shade," his wife went into serious trouble during childbirth and they feared losing the baby. During the night, he stepped outside the second floor waiting room for some air, and there on the lawn in front of the hospital, at that ungodly hour, was a loyal little crowd of friends and family, waiting and praying, right along with him. Tears came to my eyes because I knew that's just how it is, and I was so grateful that somebody had the guts to say it.

If we all join voices, sooner or later we'll drown out those cynics, and I have a feeling they'll take a closer look at these small towns, and feel a sadness in their souls that they just don't understand.

Our Language

By Jeffrey McQuain

The dialect word FEIST refers to a small dog that snaps. This noun's pronunciation is a steal: FEIST rhymes with HEIST.

The color ECRU ("EK-roo") is defined as "beige, light tan." To cure a spelling problem, rearrange the letters of CURE for ECRU.

Q. When I say something like "He laughed," a guy I work with will say, "He WHAT?" Is there a term to describe his question?

A. The best description may be "irritating." That kind of repetition, however, is formally known as an ECHO QUESTION, a grammatical term in use for the past three decades. In an ECHO QUESTION, the listener essentially repeats a sentence but changes a word in order to form a question. For example, after hearing the words "They went home," the questioner will echo, "They went WHERE?"

Favorable changes where your career is concerned could be in the offing in the year ahead. You may become involved in a new enterprise that is glamorous and/or extremely unique.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) More responsibilities than usual might be dumped in your lap over the next few days. You'll be able to handle some of these matters in stride, but others might take a bit of doing. Gemini, treat yourself to a birthday gift. CANCER (June 21-July 22) This is not a good time to loan money to or borrow money from close friends. Conditions are rather uncertain and obligations may be hard to fulfill.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Unexpected opposition could thwart your aims today. You may compound this and lose momentum by switching your focus from your target to your adversary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It's best not to volunteer unsolicited advice regarding something you know little about today. Your suggestions might be accepted only to do more harm than good.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you want to be generous today, do so with your own possessions. Don't loan or give something to another that isn't yours.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Things could get abrasive in dealing with authority figures today. Even though you'll get your licks in, they may be the ones who end up with the last word.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're not likely to do today what you think can be put off till tomorrow. Unfortunately, your rationalization is a sure-fire formula for a logjam later in the week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Under most circumstances, you're a rather conservative player. But you could be a bit of a risk-taker today, gambling on things for which you haven't accurately assessed the odds.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The one thing you definitely do not want to do today is place yourself in between two opposing factions. Both could turn on you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Braggadocio isn't going to work for you today. Don't attempt to top the other guy's fish story without having the trophy mounted on the wall to prove it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Begin to manage your resources more prudently as of today; for a brief spell, you may see them drained from several angles.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Things of interest to you might find favor with your companions today. If you get pushy, an uncomfortable situation could turn into something quite serious.

Your Birthday

June 10, 1991

Make it a point to elevate your goals and objectives in the year ahead. You can achieve what you want, but be patient; it will require considerable time and effort.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're likely to fare better today by dealing with developments as they occur instead of stirring things up on your own. Be more reactive than assertive. CANCER (June 21-July 22) Socializing with friends whom you can be yourself with should turn out to be quite pleasurable today. Conversely, you may not be too comfortable with individuals you don't know well.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) While you may not be the first one out of the blocks in competitive developments today, you do have the tenacity to prevail.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your comprehension today is not apt to be confined to mere details. You have the wherewithal to comprehend the whole picture rather than just a few brush strokes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If someone offers you a proposal you find extremely intriguing, do not appear to be chomping at the bit. An indifferent air could get you a better deal.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Be willing to play second fiddle to your mate today in a situation where your partner is opting for the lead role. Harmony will enhance your strength as a team.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do your waistline a favor today and don't overindulge in foods, sweets or drinks you should avoid. Self-discipline in this area could need reinforcement.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your fix for a fun day today is to associate with friends who think and feel young. These are the types of companions whose exuberance will prove infectious.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you fail to complete what you start, you're not likely to have peace of mind today. Conversely, finalizing things as you intended will give you gratification and enhance your feelings of self-worth.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your greatest asset today is your sincere concern for others. People with whom you'll be involved will sense your care about them, and this will serve as a settling influence.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Treat events in a practical, logical fashion today, especially those that pertain to your financial affairs or commercial interests. Reason precedes success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Individuals with whom you're presently involved might not feel your sense of urgency regarding things you deem to be of top priority. It's time to take charge yourself.

House oks new bill on defense

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House today approved a $295 billion military spending package that slashes President Bush's request for strategic weapons while adding money for military personnel and non-nuclear arms.

Despite the threat of a presidential veto, the House approved the appropriation that largely mirrors separate authorization legislation adopted two weeks ago. The vote today was 273-105.

The authorization bill sets spending ceilings. Actual money is provided in the appropriations bill.

Included in both bills is $990 million for the V-22 Osprey, a tilt-rotor aircraft that takes off like a helicopter but can fly like a plane. It is built by Bell Helicopter in Fort Worth. The administration proposed no money.

Debate in the Capitol came as weapons from the Persian Gulf War went on display on the nearby Mall in preparation for Saturday's National Victory Parade.

"I think the results of Desert Storm have been a perfect example of how you can be very careful and frugal with the money we've spent and at the same time build systems that will actually reduce the amount of casualties," said Rep. John Murtha, D-Pa., chairman of the House Appropriations defense subcommittee.

Among the similarities in the two bills, which meet the overall budget levels set by Congress and the administration last year in their deficit-reduction agreement, are:

—About $2.7 billion for the anti-missile Strategic Defense Initiative and $858 million for theater missile defenses. The administration had sought about $5.2 billion for the two programs.

—No money to buy four new B-2 stealth bombers in the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1. Bush had sought $3.2 billion for procurement of the radar-evading plane. The administration hopes to buy 75 of the aircraft, priced at nearly $860 million each.

—About $225 million to upgrade the M-1 tank and $90 million to buy new tanks in fiscal 1992 — $46 million more procurement money than Bush sought.

The bill, crafted by the House Appropriations defense subcommittee and approved by voice vote Tuesday by the full Appropriations panel, adds money for two weapon systems Congress believes performed well in the Persian Gulf War.

The legislation includes $83 million for improvements to the F-117 stealth fighter plane and $143 million for the Patriot missiles. Bush had sought no money for the F-117, while the budget request for theater missile defenses covered the Patriot.

Administration officials have said Bush vetoed the legislation based on the cuts in SDI, commonly known as Star Wars, and the B-2 bomber as well as the additional money for conventional weapons, the levels for the National Guard and reserves and an abortion amendment.

The latter would allow U.S. servicemen and dependents to undergo abortions at military hospitals overseas at their own expense — a provision already in the defense authorization bill.

Although the measure was added to the military spending bill in the full Appropriations Committee, it was removed in a parliamentary challenge on the House floor.

DEAR DR. GOTT: You wrote that you could think of no way WD40, the spray lubricant, could help arthritis. I work with a chiropractor who says that WD40 contains DMSO, a chemical that penetrates the skin, enters tissue and controls inflammation. Is this true?

DEAR READER: I have heard that some patients with arthritis spray WD40 on their joints to relieve pain. In fact, patients occasionally believe the treatment really works. I don't have an explanation for why WD40 might be effective — and, I'm afraid, neither does your chiropractor.

WD40 is composed of petroleum products; it is, in a word, oil. Such oil does not penetrate the skin. WD40 does not contain dimethyl sulfoxide, a chemical that enjoyed a brief burst of popularity several years ago because of its alleged curative qualities. Proponents claimed that DMSO (in cream form) penetrated the skin, entered the body and traveled to sites of inflammation where it reduced pain. Several professional athletes offered testimony about the supposed benefits of DMSO.

However, like any bubble, this one burst when investigators discovered that some unscrupulous practitioners were adding steroids to the DMSO. Therefore, it was the steroids, not the DMSO, that helped the pain. (Since steroids are dangerous for athletes — or anyone else — to use without medical supervision, the practice was condemned.)

Subsequently, DMSO pretty much disappeared from the shelves in stores. Like the pet rock, the hula hoop and other fads, DMSO lost its appeal and the public turned its attention to other, more pressing problems, such as Madonna's love life and sightings of Elvis Presley.

To give you more information on arthritis, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Osteoarthritis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had all my teeth pulled out about five years ago. About six months later my gums began to hurt and have gotten progressively worse. I've been to doctors, dentists, specialists and a neurologist. I don't wear dentures any more and can't get relief. What would you suggest?

DEAR READER: This appears to be a dental problem. I do not have dental training; therefore, I suggest you make an appointment in the dental clinic at a medical center. Medical and dental schools operate clinics for patients with unusual or difficult ailments.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

The hottest new topic in nutrition research is: excitatory amino acids, naturally occurring basic constituents of protein that are necessary for good health but, some experts warn, are dangerous when consumed in excess.

The prototype of excitatory amino acids — and the most studied — is glutamate. This simple compound is abundant in proteins of all kinds and is frequently added to food, as the flavor enhancer monosodium glutamate. Although most people can eat glutamate without becoming ill or suffering health consequences, many individuals are highly sensitive to the amino acid and develop flushing, headache, sweating and heart irregularities.

More important, some people may have a genetic or acquired abnormality in glutamate metabolism that renders them especially susceptible to permanent neurological damage. In essence, rather than performing normally as a neurotransmitter, excess glutamate may actually stimulate nerve cells until they die.

For example, a severe nerve disorder, called Guam ALS Parkinson's dementia, may be caused by beta-methylamino-alanine, an amino acid that resembles glutamate. BMAA is present in a certain type of seed that was eaten by people on Guam during the famine that followed World War II. The substance is suspected to cause a neurological syndrome that combines characteristics of amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (a type of untreatable nerve degeneration known as Lou Gehrig's disease) and Parkinson's disease.

According to Marcia Barinaga, writing in the January 1990 issue of Science magazine, scientists are concerned that people with the disease may have exhibited an undefined intolerance to BMAA that affected them many years later.

Could the experts ask, chronic ingestion of high levels of BMAA — or other amino acids — cause the nerve damage (decades later) characteristic of ALS and Parkinson's disease, and how does this relate to our own aging population? Of course, this remains merely a question, an hypothesis: No one knows the cause of ALS or Parkinson's disease. Furthermore, could Huntington's disease, an incurable genetic affliction, be due to hypersensitivity to excitatory amino acids? More research is clearly needed.

In addition, other cases of amino acid poisoning have been reported; notably, in Canada about four years ago, about 150 persons became violently ill after consuming contaminated mussels containing high levels of domoic acid, a glutamate analog. Four people died and 12 suffered memory loss and brain malfunction indistinguishable from Alzheimer's disease. Of the thousands of people who ate the mussels, why did these few develop symptoms? Presumably because they lacked some metabolic element to detoxify the amino acid.

At present, the Canadian government and the U.S. Food and Drug Administration are actively screening mussels for domoic acid contamination.

These provocative findings raise many questions about the safety of substances, such as monosodium glutamate. (Manufacturers have subsequently removed MSG from baby food products.) To a degree, the question of safety has pitted some scientists against the FDA, which has been reluctant to regulate MSG. The controversy rages; until the issues can be clarified by scientific scrutiny, they will not be resolved.

Nonetheless, the Society of Neuroscience is drafting a letter to the FDA, expressing a willingness to extend research on excitatory amino acids, providing the government authorities will pay attention to the research findings. The role of excitatory amino acids in causing neurological disease is still speculative but the concerns are real.

Perhaps one answer to the problem would be to use warning labels on foods containing MSG and similar additives, such as aspartame (Nutrasweet), an artificial sweetener that also activates the brain's glutamate receptors.

Look-alike sought

LAKE GEORGE, N.Y. (AP) — They couldn't get Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf to lead their Fourth of July parade, so people in this Adirondack mountain town are willing to settle for someone who looks like him.

Community leaders announced plans Wednesday for a Schwarzkopf look-a-like contest, with the winner getting to lead the town's July 4 parade.

"Gen. Schwarzkopf's popularity is so high, we thought there must be plenty of people who'd like to walk in his shoes for a day," said Mickey Caputo, who heads the local Chamber of Commerce.

Longest total solar eclipse for next 140 years slated July 11

(Editor's Note: Readers interested in joining the expeditions to Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan, Mexico, to view the eclipse can contact Hausen Future Travel at (713) 480-4020 or call toll free, 1-800-544-4998. The Mazatlan trip costs $659 and includes roundtrip airfare, hotel accommodation and transfers.)

HOUSTON (AP) — The longest total solar eclipse for the next 140 years will occur July 11 in a 160-mile wide strip, stretching from Hawaii across the Pacific Ocean to Baja California and across Mexico and Central America to Brazil, astronomers from the Johnson Space Center say.

"Originally, we thought it would be the longest eclipse of the century. But it's much more significant than that," said Paul Maley of the Johnson Space Center Astronomical Society in Houston.

"It will be visible for about three hours, in various stages, along that stretch that runs primarily through Mexico," Maley said. "The eclipse paths are very long — 6,000 miles in length — but the width of the path is very narrow — about 160 miles wide."

An estimated 40 million people are expected to witness the moon pass in front of the sun, casting the area in total darkness, Maley said. And millions more, like those in Texas and southern California, will be able to see a partial eclipse.

The last total eclipse that passed through Texas was in 1900 and the next won't be until 2024, but it won't be as long as this eclipse. The last partial eclipse in Texas occurred in May 1984 when there was an annular eclipse — when the moon passes before the sun, leaving only a circle of sunlight visible around the moon.

The last total eclipse visible in Canada and Northwestern United States was in February 1979, while on the East Coast and in Mexico was in March 1970, Maley said.

"This will be really exciting because literally thousands of people will be traveling into Mexico to see this eclipse," Maley said. "More people will be seeing this than any other eclipse in history."

Tourist reservations for that period in Hawaii, Baja California, and Mexico City have long since been booked and overbooked, Maley said.

But the Houston astronomical group is organizing two trips for aficionados to Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan, Mexico, where the sun will completely disappear from view at midday for up to seven full minutes.

Maley and Space Shuttle astronauts Jeff Hoffman and Claude Nicollier will lead about 140 people on a bus caravan to Puerto Vallarta. Rice University professor Patricia Reiff will lead a second group of 150 to Mazatlan to observe the eclipse from a beach hotel.

"Most of Mexico been sold out for six months," Maley said. "We still have some spaces for people to go into Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta and we're trying to make it available to the general public."

For Texans who can't make the trip to Mexico, Brownsville probably will offer the best view as 78 percent of the sun will be eclipsed.

"It'll be pretty nice there," Maley said. The moon will begin to pass the sun at 12:54 p.m. in Brownsville and continue through 3:38 p.m., with the maximum coverage occurring at 2:19 p.m. In Corpus Christi, 70 percent of the sun will be hidden at the height of the eclipse.

In El Paso, about 69 percent of the sun will be eclipsed at 12:53 p.m. MDT with the entire movement lasting from 11:33 a.m. MDT to 2:13 p.m. MDT.

Houstonians will see 60 percent of the sun disappear at 2:18 p.m., as the process lasts from 1 p.m. to 3:32 p.m. In San Antonio, 62 percent of the sun will be covered.

In Dallas, the two-hour-and-28-minute episode will be highlighted at 2:12 p.m. with 51½ percent of the sun eclipsed.

For those outside of Texas, Los Angeles will have a maximum eclipse of 69 percent, while 58 percent of the sun will be obscured in New Orleans.

On the East Coast, however, Americans hardly will notice the phenomenon. In New York only 2 percent of the sun will be obscured.

Maley said wherever the eclipse is viewed, observers should not look at the sun directly. Instead, they should use a pinhole device made with two pieces of cardboard. With the sun at one's back, one piece of cardboard with a pinhole in it should be held before a second piece where the image will be projected.

Looking directly at the sun could burn the retina of the eyes, causing blank spots in a person's field of vision in an area used for reading and fine sight.

Legalese attacked by State Bar

AUSTIN (AP) — The State Bar of Texas, fighting for the use of plain English by lawyers, is presenting its first annual "Legaldegoon Awards" to writing that confuses communication.

For example, a 1981 court case between the Mississippi Bluff Motel, Inc. and the County of Rock Island has the winning passage in the 1991 Rise-of-the-Roman Language Award competition: "Parens patriae cannot be ad fundandam jurisdictionem. The zoning question is res inter alios acta."

"Basically, that's a fancy way of saying the court doesn't have jurisdiction," said Bryan Garner, chairman of the State Bar's recently formed Plain-Language Committee.

Mom Learns Live-In Lover Was Also Molesting Her Son

DEARABBY: I am an intelligent, 35-year-old professional woman. Trying to recover from the shocking discovery that my 7-year-old son had been sexually molested repeatedly by a former live-in lover has left me and my son scarred and bitter.

After the bizarre revelations of my 7-year-old began to surface, subsequent investigation revealed that the man was on parole from prison for repeated sexual molestations. Now my son is likely to face years of therapy and counseling. I have great guilt that, as a single parent, I was not more aware.

Perhaps your warning single parents of this peril could prevent more of this awful danger. As a single parent, what should I (we) be on the lookout for?

HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: You obviously did not know the man well enough to be aware of how dangerous he was. No one (man or woman) should leave a child (boy or girl) with a person one knows only superficially.

A good way to judge a person's character is by the company that person keeps. Beware of the new friend who has no friends, relatives or co-workers.

Also, how good is that person's word? If you catch him in a little lie, chances are he will lie about more important things.

Before living with someone, you should know that person very, very well.

Migrant workers sue seed company

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa (AP) — Migrant workers from Texas are suing Garst Seed Co. of Coon Rapids and its farm labor contractor over alleged wage and worker protection law violations. A lawyer for Legal Service Corp. of Iowa filed the federal lawsuit in Cedar Rapids on behalf of 11 migrant workers.

The suit claims the violations occurred while the 11 worked near Emmetsburg in the summer of 1989. It said the workers have tried to settle the issue for several months.

Officials at Garst Seed Co. referred questions to their lawyer, who could not be reached for comment.

State and federal laws were broken, the workers allege, after they were recruited in Washington state to work detasseling corn, a process in which the corn tassels, or flowers, are removed to force cross-pollination.

The recruiter, Efrain Trevino, was the brother-in-law of Benito Contreras of Santa Maria, who was working as Garst's farm labor contractor. Contreras is named as a defendant but Trevino is not.

how many abductions involve cars. I was recently in a personal defense class. We collected newspaper articles concerning abductions and rapes. More than half of those we found involved women being pulled off the sidewalk into cars.

Headphones keep a jogger from realizing that a car has pulled up beside her until it is too late to react. Listening to music also can take the jogger's mind off her surroundings. A car that is "stalking" her may have passed her four or five times, and she wouldn't notice.

Along the same lines, I would encourage anyone, male or female, who walks or jogs alone — especially at night — to take a personal defense course at the local community college, YMCA, or wherever it is offered. You will learn many tips on how to minimize the risk of being abducted and/or raped, as well as some physical defense techniques.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with the same man for three years, and we are talking about marriage in the future. My only problem is that he wants to marry me only if he has a million dollars in the bank.

I met him like he is, and I truly love him for himself, but all he cares about is money, money, money!

Abby, is he giving me excuses? Or does he really want to give me a better life than the one we share now?

I wish I could read his mind and his heart.

DETROIT NEWS READER

DEAR READER: Never mind his mind and his heart. Ask to read his bank statement to find out how close to a million dollars he is. If he's almost there, then I would say he has good intentions, but if he's in the neighborhood of $885,000 short, he's making excuses.

***

DEAR ABBY: "Lisa" and I have been best friends since high school. We even liked the same guy for a while. (I'll call him Bill.) Eventually, Lisa married Bill and I married someone else. I didn't see Lisa for several years, then one night I ran into Bill and he told me that their marriage was over, but Lisa wouldn't get a divorce because of how it would look to her family.

Not long after that, Bill and I had a one-night stand. We both felt so guilty, it never happened again. Then three months later, I saw the two of them together, and Bill couldn't look me in the eye.

Meanwhile, Lisa and I have become very close friends again, and every time we get on the subject of married people who cheat on each other, I want to tell her about Bill. I know if I tell her, I will lose her as a friend, but on the other hand, I wonder if I am being a good friend, if she would just ask. Sometimes when we talk, I say something like, "I'd want to know if my husband was cheating on me," hoping she'll say, "So would I," but so far she hasn't.

I don't know what to do. I probably should tell her before someone else does.

LISA'S FRIEND

DEAR "FRIEND": With friends like you, Lisa doesn't need any enemies. Are you sure you wouldn't like Lisa to end her marriage so you could have Bill? Please do Lisa, Bill and yourself a favor and don't tell Lisa (or anyone else) about your one-night stand with Bill.

***

DEAR ABBY: When you get an invitation to a wedding and you can't go, are you obligated to tell them why?

I received an invitation to a church wedding that is scheduled for 10:30 in the morning. It's a good four-hour drive from where I live, and that's too long a drive and it's too early.

Also, if you get money from relatives as a gift, are you supposed to tell them what you bought, or did, with the money?

PERPLEXED IN TUCSON

DEAR PERPLEXED: It is not necessary to state why you are unable to accept an invitation to a wedding — or to any other affair — but it softens the turn-down if you can truthfully say that you are unable to attend due to a previous commitment or that you will not be in town. When you receive a gift of money, you are not obligated to disclose how the money was used.

Advocate: organic farming gaining favor

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attitudes toward organic farming are becoming more favorable, but techniques for raising crops without chemicals are still in their infancy, a leader of the movement says.

Garth Youngberg of the Institute for Alternative Agriculture said organic farmers have been developing the techniques pretty much on their own and could use more help from the government.

He said the public is worried about dependence on chemicals, declines in soil productivity, loss of organic matter in soil, erosion, chemical hazards to human and animal health and food safety.

"These concerns are not going to go away," Youngberg said, and many people see organic farming as a solution.

But he noted that barriers to more research exist in the form of what he called myths and misconceptions.

Youngberg said many people believe organic farming cannot be done on a large scale, that it's prohibitively labor-intensive, offers low production and profits or is non-scientific.

Leonard Gianessi, a researcher of agricultural chemicals use, is one of those people. He debated Youngberg on Thursday at a conference sponsored by the Center for Science in the Public Interest, a Washington-based consumer group.

Gianessi called organic farming less efficient, more costly and less able to control pests than traditional methods using chemicals.

Report cards are adopted by state board

AUSTIN (AP) — Educating students for success in the "real world" is like preparing troops for war, Texas' incoming education commissioner said as the State Board of Education endorsed a report card for rating schools.

"Let's say we're sending troops into battle, and we found out that if you cannot go over a 3-foot barrier, that 90 percent of the people end up dead," said Lionel "Skip" Meno, who currently serves as New York's deputy commissioner for elementary and secondary education.

"What we're interested in is that everyone can go over the 3 foot barrier ... We're not interested in whether someone is in the 98th percentile. Because if they're in the 98th percentile and only go 2 feet 6 inches, it doesn't do them any good. They're just as dead as if they were in the 10th percentile," Meno said Thursday.

Meno doesn't take over the Texas job until July 1, but he attended a meeting of the State Board of Education on the school report cards. A final board vote is scheduled Saturday.

A preliminary report on school performance will be sent out in August and September to campuses, under a schedule adopted by the board. Districts will publish reports in October and November.

Texas Education Agency staff will continue working on a more comprehensive reporting system.
