Hospital to provide veteran health care

Reese Air Force Base and the Veterans Administration announced Monday the signing of an agreement between the two facilities providing for the sharing of inpatient services.

The agreement will enable the VA Medical Center in Amarillo to admit certain VA patients to the Reese Air Force Base Hospital. This will serve to provide needed beds in Lubbock for VA patients and benefit Air Force patients by increased resources. The care of these patients will be provided jointly by staff from the VA Outpatient Clinic in Lubbock and the Reese Air Force Base Hospital. Under this agreement, Reese AFB agrees to provide hospital beds for VA patients that require continued, intermediate (non-acute) hospital care. This would allow the VA Medical Center in Amarillo to transfer South Plains area patients to the Reese Hospital so that their hospital care can be provided at a facility closer to their families. The first patient under this agreement was admitted Monday.

Pay Day set to change

DENVER (AFNS)—End-of-month paydays will become extinct in September, victims of a Congressional deficit-reduction plan that delays paychecks by a day.

Effective Sunday, Sept. 30, end-of-month paychecks will be dated on the first day of the next month. First checks under the change will be dated Oct. 1, according to a news release from the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center.

When the first day of the month falls on a Saturday, Sunday or holiday, pay checks will be dated on the last workday of the previous month.

For example, the Jan. 1 payday, a holiday, will be backed up to Dec. 31. For this reason, year-end W-2 Forms for tax year 1987 will show 12 months of payments.

The news release said the change will have no effect on mid-month pay or on one-time, installment or separation payments, which still will be payable on the day they are otherwise due.

The payday change was included in an omnibus continuing resolution signed into law by President Reagan Oct. 18. The one-day delay will reduce the budget deficit by $2.9 billion this Fiscal Year by pushing the September payday into Fiscal 1988.

SARSAT van on display at Open House

The SARSAT van, a traveling exhibit unit, tells the story of the effectiveness of satellites in saving lives. The satellite-aided search and rescue project (COSPAS/SARSAT) is an international cooperative program between the United States, Canada, France (SARSAT) and the Soviet Union (COSPAS). The U.S. program includes NASA, the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the Coast Guard and the Air Force.

The SARSAT van portrays the goal of this humanitarian project—using satellites to reduce the time required to rescue air and maritime distress victims and increase the possibility of saving lives. The rapid detection and location of downed aircraft or ships in distress is of paramount importance to the potential survivors.

Studies have shown that even those who survive an aircraft crash have less than a ten percent chance of survival if the rescue is delayed beyond two days. In contrast, if the rescue can be accomplished within eight hours, the chance of survival increases to better than fifty percent.

Rapid location can reduce search and rescue costs significantly and lower the length of exposure of search and rescue teams to the hazardous conditions frequently encountered.

In the first two years of the test and evaluation period, more than 300 lives were saved with the help of the COSPAS/SARSAT satellite systems. As of July 15, 1987, the total number of lives saved had reached 847.

The SARSAT van—a large, walk-through trailer—features six exhibits that detail the satellite-aided search and rescue project. Of particular interest are highlights of four "rescues" traced on a computer-enhanced world map. When a marine or aviation accident occurs, an emergency radio beacon is automatically activated. The marine device is called the Emergency Position-Indicating radio Beacon (EPIRB), and the aircraft device is called the Emergency Locator Transmitter (ELT).

The signal from the beacon is received by the SARSAT and/or COSPAS satellites, which retransmits the signal to a ground receiving station. The signal is processed, and the location of the aviator or mariner in distress is recorded. The location information is then sent to the U.S. Mission Control Center at Scott Air Force Base, Illinois, which in turn sends the information to the proper land or sea Rescue Coordination Center—the Air Force or the Coast Guard.

The SARSAT van made its first appearance at the Experimental Aircraft Association's Oshkosh, Wisconsin, 1985 Fly-In. The van travels nationwide to air/boat shows and aeronautical/maritime conventions to acquaint the public with the strides made by space technology in simplifying search and rescue endeavors.

The van will be on display here during the Sept. 19 Open House.

Drinking while driving outlawed

by Capt. Drake H. Charles
Asst. Staff Judge Advocate

A new section added to Article XIII of the Texas Uniform Act Regulating Traffic, effective September 1, 1987, makes it a crime for a driver to operate a motor vehicle on a public highway and at the same time consume any volume, whatsoever, of an alcoholic beverage.

This law is separate and apart from Texas' drunk driving law and the crime is complete once the driver partakes of even the most minute amount of alcohol. There is no need for the state to show that the offender's ability to drive safely was impaired by drinking.

Prior to this enactment, it was lawful for a person to drink while driving as long as the driver remained sober and drove safely.

This new law is not the same as the "sealed container" rule in force in many states which makes it a crime for there to even be an opened container of alcohol anywhere in the driver or passenger area of a vehicle.

The practical effect of this law is that if a driver is stopped with an opened alcoholic beverage in his lap, hand or mid-seat console, that person could be cited for a criminal traffic offense.

It is still lawful for passengers to drink in a car being operated on a public highway—but a front seat passenger, drinking from an opened container, could possibly create a misleading perception that the driver was "sharing" the drink with the passenger while driving and therefore the driver would run the risk of being cited for drinking while operating a vehicle.

Draw your own conclusions regarding yourself and your passengers — and avoid problems.

Bits and Pieces...

Col. Mark Lillard, III
Wing Commander

Job Performance—a priority at Reese

I often get asked what I consider to be my top priorities as wing commander. The answer is simple; I have three.

First, the mission; second, the mission and third, the mission. As I've said before, the overall mission at Reese AFB is to graduate the best pilots in the world, and everyone's job is to support that mission. The mission for the folks in life support is to provide top-notch life support equipment; the mission for the folks at the hospital is to provide the best patient care possible; and so on for every organization on base. Each person's mission is to do their job the best they can. This not only ties in with the Reese mission but also with OERs/APRs. The most important criteria when assessing a person's potential is job performance, not such things as whether a person is a member of the NCO Club.

Also, recent Air Force changes to Professional Military Education (PME) timing are intended to allow people to do their jobs without the additional pressure of "square filling."

Last year, PME eligibility for officers was changed to re-emphasize the importance of job performance. Prior to the change, many officers felt pressured to complete non-resident PME before they were eligible for resident courses. They did this to be more competitive for promotion and to increase their chances of getting into resident programs.

"Ticket-punching" is not what PME is all about. It should not be an obstacle to a person's first priority—job performance.

All this re-emphasizes the commitment to keep job performance as the primary consideration for promotion. PME must be completed at the right level at the right time—as training for future duties, not as a square to be filled.

Kudos to...

1st Lt. Joseph Martin (ABG/DEE) for winning the Air Force Association's Gen. E. Rawlings Award and Ms. Karen Etheredge (AFROTC Texas Tech) for winning the Air Force Association's Dianne O'Malley (Angel Flight Member) award. These awards will be presented in Washington D.C., Sept. 14. Congratulations.

How do you keep America free?

by SSgt. Ada Martin
Staff Writer, Air Force News Service

Ask any gathering of people, "How do you keep America free?" and there will be as many answers as there are people.

Some will say the answer is a strong national defense protecting us from communism and the insanity of terrorism. Others will say the answer is to put the proper political party or candidate in power.

Certain ecologists claim returning to a lifestyle more respectful of nature will keep us safe. Some religious sects believe America is doomed and only they have the saving lifestyle.

The groups are many, their solutions bountiful. Each has an answer, but is it the answer to keeping America free?

To me, the answer is adhering to and working with the basic government concepts of individual "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." Those concepts built our nation and kept it strong, and will keep America free in the future.

America built its government on the belief that individual freedom is essential for meaningful life. Our doctrine states that all people are equal and should have the opportunity to make the most of their existence.

We believe that as long as a person does not infringe upon the freedom of another, he has the right to explore life the way he wishes, as best he can.

The critics raise their voices and in droning unison list America's faults and shortcomings. America's errors are many. Yet, one of our greatest strengths is the right of individuals to say: "This is not right. This should change."

But is the criticism just? Is there an offered, plausible solution? Is there willingness to foster change? Or is it just criticism? European analysts humorously observe that America is great at assuming guilt.

There is no claim of perfection for my country. Many of America's faults are those of humans struggling with their limitations in an imperfect world. There are good and bad sides to people and they imprint those dual characteristics into their governments.

But what other nation has tried to build its essential doctrine or design its constitution for the good of the individual human being? None. America stands alone.

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common Defense, promote the general Welfare and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

This document was the first written constitution of a truly free and independent nation. Into the document are built six basic principles of government: federalism; representative government; granted and limited power; separate legislative, judicial and executive branches; superiority of constitutional law to statutory and administrative law; and an orderly amendment process.

In 1791 the Bill of Rights was added to the Constitution. Within those amendments individual rights were guaranteed. The freedoms of religion, assembly, speech and press were established. Respect of personal rights during due process of law became law.

Our Constitution is a remarkable monument to humanity. If Americans follow it, they will continue to rise to new heights in human character and dignity. Belief in and adherence to our basic government doctrine—the Constitution—will keep America free.

Care line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Mark H. Lillard, III, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885-3273.

Base tornado shelter needed?

Several callers voiced concern that Reese Village does not have any tornado shelters for the military families. Severe weather can be a frightening thing when viewed on a newscast, but when a major storm is experienced firsthand, it can never be forgotten or dismissed lightly. One of our caller's use of a shelter let her survive a tornado that destroyed her hometown. With this kind of experience as a background, the need for a shelter can be easily understood, especially in an area where tornado warnings are as frequent as they are on the South Plains.

Historically, a key ingredient to survival of a severe weather storm is to have ample warning and to heed the warning. Shelters have to be within easy access when a severe weather warning bulletin is issued. While it is true that Reese Village does not have any storm shelters, the Base does have at least two major buildings that can be considered as suitable shelters. Therefore, I am directing that Bldgs. 920 (Mission Support Sq) and 930 (Director of Ops/Simulator) be designated as tornado shelters during weekday duty hours. However, after duty hours, and weekends it is highly recommended that all housing personnel stay in their quarters, as the chance of being injured by stumbling over fallen limbs, or other debris, or being electrocuted by downed power lines, are greater in the darkened evening hours. I believe we have made available adequate shelter for those who believe they need one, but in all sincerity, I would recommend that all base housing personnel stay in their quarters during a tornado watch, as chances of injury are greatly increased by unnecessary travel at this time. Directives for use of these facilities as tornado shelters will be publicized as soon as possible. Thank you for sharing this concern with us.

X-Ray Procedures

What are the standard procedures for reading X-ray results and reporting those results to the patient?

All X-rays are read by a radiologist who provides a written report of significant findings to the medical official requesting the X-ray. This report is given to the requesting official within 24 hours of the X-ray and that official then determines the appropriate medical action.

Kudos to SPs

I would like to thank the security police for the caring attention they provided to me when I was in an automobile accident. I really appreciate everything they did.

It is always a pleasure to receive remarks of appreciation about members of the Reese Team. The security police always do their best to provide base personnel with the best service possible. Thank you for taking your time to call and express your appreciation. Hope you are getting along well now after the accident.

Open Mess Memberships

What are the appropriate civilian grades to become members of the Officers' and Enlisted Open Mess and can someone select which club he wishes to belong to? Also, is the Chief of MWR authorized to be a member of both clubs?

Federal civilian employees, contractor employees and technical representatives may join the open messes as authorized by the base commander. Civilian grades GS-7, UA-7, WG-12, WS-8, WL-6 and above may join the Officers' Club. All other grades are eligible to join the Enlisted Club.

The Chief of MWR is a member of the Officers' and Enlisted Open Messes since he must attend functions at both clubs.

Will you become a statistic?

by MSgt. Royce O. Stewart
Deputy Fire Chief

Sun, wind, and a more than generous helping of warmth, has been enveloping the high plains area for some time.

For the vast majority of sun seekers, summer presents the opportunity to get out of the house and pursue favorite hobbies, interests, or pastimes. Most, if not all, of these endeavors will require the use of some form of a heat producing device and the inevitable hazards they present. Because of the familiarity and design of most of these items, we take them for granted because "accidents and fires only happen to the other guy."

40th Anniversary

Reese will celebrate the 40th Anniversary of the U.S. Air Force with a twilight Tattoo of the South Plains ceremony starting at 7:30 p.m., Friday, Sept. 18. The event will also honor POW-MIA Day.

Also scheduled for Sept. 18 will be a UPT Career Day with major command briefings in the base theater and static display aircraft on the flightline. Events start at 8 a.m. and run through 3 p.m.

Saturday, Sept. 19 will be the annual Reese public Open House from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

The Reese Air Force Base Fire Department offers you a few tips to keep you from being one of the increasing statistics in the national fire incident records.

- Barbecues are a favorite summer pastime, but use them wisely, OUT-DOORS! Charcoal produces huge amounts of carbon monoxide. Using gasoline or other highly volatile liquids to start a fire is the first step towards a hospital trip or worse. Use the proper type of extension cord if your grill requires one. Don't Substitute! Three feet of clearance between the grill and your home is the absolute minimum for safety. Steaks cook cheaper than houses.

- Lawn mowers get hot when used; don't fill the gas tank until the engine has cooled. How cool? If it is too warm to keep your hand on, it's too warm to refuel safely. This technique also applies to any fuel operated appliance.

- Dead grass and vegetation are a ready source to help a fire spread. More than one house has burned down from the "outside in."

- Portable air conditioners and fans need to breathe to keep from overheating. Keep adequate clear space around these items so that air may properly circulate. Electric cords and switches take a real beating this time of the year. Frequent inspections are a necessity.

- Store gasoline and combustible liquids in your carport. Children don't always use these items to start fires. THEY ALSO DRINK IT!

- Take a close look at your home, and ask yourself this question. "Is my home a safe place for my family?" If your answer is not a positive one, you are a prime candidate for the fire statistic journal.

Upon request the Reese Air Force Base Fire Department is available to inspect, counsel, or give fire training to any individual or family on Reese Air Force Base.

101 Critical days draws to an end

by MSgt. Donald Bushey
Wing Safety Division

Labor Day, the last three-day weekend of summer, is also considered the last three days of the "101 Critical Days of Summer."

As with most long weekends, people tend to drive longer distances to visit relatives or just "get away from it all" for a few days. The highways will be more crowded than usual and the chances of being involved in a mishap will be on the increase.

Last year during the Labor Day weekend, in the state of Texas, there were 38 traffic related fatalities and single vehicle mishaps accounted for more than half of those killed.

The leading causes of traffic fatalities are driving under the influence of alcohol, falling asleep at the wheel, and driving too fast for conditions. Obviously, you have no control over the other driver, but by staying alert and driving defensively you can reduce the odds of being involved in a mishap. The use of seat belts and helmets will not prevent a mishap but will reduce the severity of injuries if involved in a mishap. Besides, the use of seat belts is a state law.

Let's have a mishap free weekend and close out the 101 Critical Days of summer with no injuries or fatalities.

Back to school

by SrA Felix Saenz
Base Crime Prevention Manager

Would your child know what to do if a stranger approached or your child became lost in the neighborhood?

Do your children know their full name, address, and phone number?

Parents can take positive actions to protect their children and help them learn how to respond to threatening situations. Walk your neighborhood with your children. Show them safe places they can go to in an emergency like a neighbor's house, or a friend's house.

Walk the route to school with them, so they can become familiar with the route, and at the same time you can show them how to safely cross streets. Rehearse with children your/their full name, address, and phone number, to include the area code, and how to make emergency phone calls from home and public phone booths. Show your children how to operate a phone in case of an emergency. Make sure you teach your children to use the same route to and from school.

Furthermore, teach your children to stay away from strangers, and what to do if a stranger should approach them.

Any questions should be directed to the Base Crime Prevention Manager, ext. 3615.

Mrs. Erlene F. Stolk assigned to the Procedures and Analysis Section received $225 for a Model Installation Proposal implemented Air Force wide under the Suggestion Program. Mrs. Maxine R. Brow, assigned to the same office also received $225 for the suggestion implemented Air Force wide. # Establishing the ground work

Lt. Col. William Faris

by Lt. Col. William Faris
Wing Exec/Inspector General

Last Friday we received our official notification that the ATC inspection team will be at Reese from September 21 through October 1 to conduct our Unit Effectiveness Inspection (UEI). As I have mentioned before, Reese's strength comes from you and your winning attitude. We now have the opportunity to formally show the command just how good we are. This is indeed a chance for all of us to excel and I wish you all the very best in your portion of the inspection.

Preparations for this inspection have really been going on since we completed our last one in April 1986. A key ingredient to a successful inspection is a sound self-inspection program. If you are satisfied that you have conducted thorough, indepth self-inspections, then you have established the ground work needed to be a winner. If you are not comfortable with your own efforts in this area, then it is definitely time to review your self-inspection program and ensure that you are in compliance. My review of UEI reports clearly indicates that ratings received are tied directly to the quality of the unit's self-inspection program.

Another important part of doing well is "reading the mail." Take another look at the most recent UEI reports from other bases. They provide valuable insight to the inspection team's emphasis areas. Additionally, alot can be learned from past mistakes made by others.

Studying the directives that govern your duties is also one of the cornerstones of doing well. This is something that we all do on a recurring basis but, it doesn't hurt to "take another look." For the operators, testing is an important part of the rating. Don't wait until the last minute to brush up on your knowledge.

One final note seems worth mentioning. First impressions do count. Let your pride show through. Make sure that both your personal appearance and the appearance of your work area are the best that they can be.

Displaying proper military courtesy means alot and coupled with good appearance establishes a lasting impression with the inspectors. LOOK SHARP AND BE SHARP. I am looking forward to working with you during the next few weeks in making the final preparations for the inspection.

Commander's Column

First Impressions Do Count!

Col. James L. Higham

by Col. Jim Higham
Commander, 64th ABG

It's official. We can expect visitors from the Inspector General team starting Sept. 21. I know you have already been briefed on UEI preparation and read articles about "excellence is our path."

Take what you are being told to heart. All of it is important.

Each one of us plays a role in that "first impression" of Reese AFB. This "first impression" the inspectors see is personal and base appearance, including courtesies, housekeeping and customer service.

Recently, we received the criteria the IG team will use in evaluating us. To achieve a satisfactory rating on Standards (personal appearance, courtesies, housekeeping, and customer service), 95 percent of personnel and activities observed must be satisfactory or higher. This 95 percent leaves little room for slack on anyone's part—again, each one of us counts. The scope of what will be looked at under standards is:

Personal Appearance

- Uniform (condition, cleanliness, fit, proper wear and condition of accessories). Get rid of those high water pants!

- Grooming (haircut, shave, personal hygiene). Men, get those Ollie North haircuts. Women, no hair below the bottom edge of the collar.

- Profile (weight-to-height relationship posture)
Courtesy

- Saluting. Be snappy and sharp!
- Retreat ceremonies, Know what to do when you hear the music.

- Verbal (answering phones, answering questions). Be customer service oriented.

- Respect (For customers in customer-oriented activities and students in training environment).

- Housekeeping: Office, work and classroom areas; customer and reception areas; storage and break areas; and restroom facilities (cleanliness, clutter, neatness, condition of furniture, broken or salvage items to be turned in).

Customer Service

- Customer area (clearly marked for efficiency)

- Timeliness (prompt, efficient, and courteous service).

The second part of that "first impression" is base appearance. The IG folks will look at:

- Facilities and Grounds (pavement conditions, signs, trash and litter control, grounds maintenance, facility condition, paint quality, color scheme, and landscaping).

- User Care (self-help initiatives, building user maintenance, trash and litter control).

I can't stress enough the important role each individual plays in that "first impression." I know pride in yourself, your organization and being a part of the Reese team will prevail when we host the IG team.

Planning your family budget

by Hal Haskins
American Forces Information Service

"I disagree with the notion that budgets are futile," said the wife of a serviceman stationed in West Germany.

Even with the frustration of the falling dollar there and in other overseas locations, this family found budgeting the key to living within their means and even saving some money.

"It isn't easy," she said, "but it is possible, provided people don't spend more than they earn and maintain a standard of living that matches their salary."

That statement puts family budgeting in a nutshell. But to get a budget working for you, it takes some thought, attention to detail and determination.

Before setting up a budget, however, sort your family's financial goals into three groups:

- Immediate needs—things you and your family can't do without. This includes food, clothes, rent or mortgage, utilities and health care.

- Short-term goals. These are things you want or need in the near future, such as appliances, a car, and home or car repairs.

- Long-term goals. Some examples are the down payment on a house, college for the kids, and vacation and retirement.

Immediate needs and some short-term goals normally are covered under monthly expenses. Other short-and long-term goals are best accomplished through savings.

A budget is just a master plan for managing your family's money. And while there are many such plans, most of them have some basic ingredients in common.

First, determine your family's total monthly income. This will include all regular sources of money, such as wages and salaries, Social Security, child support, alimony, pensions, rent, second jobs and interest and dividends.

Second, figure out your total monthly expenses. This includes fixed expenses, such as rent or mortgage, insurance, car payments and loan payments, and variable expenses, such as food, clothing, transportation, utilities and recreation. You can do this by reviewing past bills and canceled checks or by keeping a "spending diary."

Third, match your expenses and financial goals with your income.

Here's one type of chart you can use:

EXPENSES	LIMITS/GOALS	ACTUAL AMOUNT PER MONTH
		Jan.	Feb.	Mar.	Apr.	May
Fixed Expenses	$	$	$	$	$	$
Rent/Mortgage
Loan payments
Car payments
Insurance
(Other)
Variable Expenses	$	$	$	$	$	$
Food
Clothing
Heat
Gas
Electricity
Water
Phone
Appliances Recreation
(Other)
SAVINGS	GOALS	Jan.	Feb.	Mar.	Apr.	May Savings account	$	$	$	$	$	$
Credit union
(Other)
TOTAL EXPENSES AND SAVINGS	$	$	$	$	$	$
TOTAL INCOME	$	$	$	$	$	$

Fill in the "Limits/Goals" column of the chart with your planned spending limits and savings goals. In the monthly columns, record the actual amounts you spend and save.

In a balanced budget, total expenses and savings will match total income for the same period.

To make a budget work, counselors recommend these tips:

- Be flexible. Budgets should not be "set in stone." Make adjustments as changes occur in your needs, income, family size and goals.
- Use credit wisely. Charge only what your planned expenses will allow.
- Shop carefully.
- Involve the whole family.

For more ideas and assistance in setting up a family budget, contact the family services personnel at your installation.

Have you registered your vehicle on base?

by TSgt. Ben Burrell
Pass and Registration

Driving your car, truck or van on base is a privilege, not a right.

This privilege, extended to assigned active duty military and civilian personnel working on base, retired military personnel and survivors of deceased active duty and retired members authorized to use base facilities, is granted by the base entry policy, Air Force Regulation 125-37, requiring all vehicles to be registered.

It is the installation commander who provides authorization for the registration of vehicles that are in the custody of or owned by dependents, step-parents, or guardians of minor children authorized to use base facilities.

Individuals must report to the Pass and Registration Office located in Bldg. 920, room 213, three days after arriving on base to register their vehicles.

To register a vehicle for use on base, proof of ownership must be provided. This may be in the form of state registration, title or a bill of sale. For the state of Texas, a minimum insurance coverage of $20,000 for personal liability each person, $40,000 personal liability each accident and $15,000 property damage liability is also required.

Valid license plates must also be displayed on the vehicle to be registered.

After filling out a Private Motor Vehicle Registration form, a registration decal will be issued along with an installation tab decal.

Motorcycles may not be registered for use on base until the operator has completed the Motorcycle Riders Course or Better Biking and MOST II. The operator may be issued a temporary vehicle pass until the next motorcycle course is available.

Temporary Vehicle Registration or a Vehicle-Visitor Pass is used to control vehicles in a temporary status. Temporary registration may not be used for more than 30 days.

Vehicle-Visitor Passes are issued to contractor vehicles, as well as military personnel for those vehicles that display temporary license plates.

When an individual is transferred to another stateside base, the Reese AFB installation tab must be scraped off and returned to the Pass and Registration Office in order to properly deregister the vehicle.

If an individual is transferred to an overseas base, all of the decals must be returned.

If the ownership of a vehicle is transferred, the decal can be transferred if the new owner is also eligible to register the vehicle on base. If not, the original owner must scrape the decals off and return the remains to the Pass and Registration Office.

Vehicle registration privileges will be withdrawn from all personnel who fail to remove registration decals when required by base regulation. An individual who allows an unlicensed or untrained person to operate a vehicle, will have their on-base driving privileges revoked for 6 to twelve months. For more information concerning the registration of privately owned vehicles, contact the Pass and Registration Office, 3742.

Women equality celebrated

by Federal Women's program Committee

This month notes the fourth anniversary of President Reagan's proclamation making Aug. 26, "Women's Equality Day." The day marks the 67th Anniversary of the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which guarantees women the right to vote.

Not many people are aware that the official printer of the Declaration of Independence was a woman, Mary Katherine Goodard. Some forty years later, Sarah Astor, wife of John Jacob Astor, was paid five hundred dollars an hour to judge the quality of fur pelts brought to her husband for sale. These women, and others like them, are now brought to life—and to the forefront of American economic history.

Traditionally, economic history has been written in terms of men. However, women have always contributed to the economy whether they were paid for their work or not. From 1776 until today, women have managed family businesses while their men were away at war or in quest of new ventures. Following the industrial revolution, when business moved from the home to factories, women created products, founded institutions, and provided services directed to and for women. These innovations have had a profound impact on the way we live today. In addition, throughout history enterprising American women have found loopholes in the male-dominated economy that enabled them to escape from sex-segregated, underpaid, and undervalued jobs.

The Federal Women's Program Committee's approach is to emphasize the multitude of changes in the rights of women over the years. With changing views occurring continually, the fight for equality will someday only be past history.

In commemoration of Women's Equality Day, the Reese Federal Women's Program Committee is planning a luncheon on Thursday, Sept. 3, 11:30 a.m., at the Officers Club. Attendees will go through the lunch line and assemble in the Jack Davis Room. Ms. Shirley McClure, guest speaker, will address "Equality in Consumerism", specifically in auto repair and maintenance. RSVP to Teresa/3802, Elaine/3805, Penny/3100, or Shirl/3973.

Guides and speakers needed

With the fall and a new school year approaching, community relations activities around the base will be increasing. Many organizations and schools in the Lubbock area will be requesting tours of the base and speeches by base personnel.

In order to be prepared for these requests, the Community Relations Branch of the Public Affairs Office is looking for base personnel to be tour guides for base tours and members of the Base Speaker's Bureau.

Either position can give you an opportunity to interact with the people who provide vital support to Reese.

If you are interested in participating in base tours or the Base Speaker's Bureau, contact 2nd Lt. Cecily Christian in the Public Affairs Office at 3410.

Reminder: All speeches to off-base organizations and all tours of the base must be cleared through the Public Affairs Office prior to confirmation of that activity.

Cleanliness is next to efficiency

by Capt. Mike Himes
Energy Conservation Officer

Fighting energy waste can be a dirty business. Dirt, dust and debris are enemies of energy-efficiency. When dirt gets in the way of what your appliance is supposed to do, the system has to work harder.

Imagine your air conditioner pushing cool air through a wall of dirt! Clogged airflow will make your appliance run longer, increasing energy cost.

This applies to many appliances besides air conditioners. Vents for heaters, air conditioners and dryers should be cleaned or replaced routinely. Also, remember to clear away vines, branches, leaves and debris from your outdoor air conditioner or heat pump unit.

Regular cleaning of appliances not only improves energy efficiency but may also increase their life. Dirt that builds up on appliances can restrict air flow that is needed to cool various components, thus causing them to heat up. Even though the appliance is supposed to create heat, many parts of it will lose efficiency—or be damaged—if they are allowed to overheat.

The coils on your refrigerator or freezer provide a good example of this. Their purpose is to get rid of excessive heat so they can cool your food. Dirt on the condensing coils makes it harder for them to cool off. A refrigerator that cycles on frequently may be signaling that it needs its coils cleaned. Frequent cycling on—caused by grime around motors, blocked vents, and heat from dust on appliances—takes years of life off your appliance.

Dust and dirt also block light. Dirty light bulbs and windows reduce the amount of light available indoors, encouraging you to turn on more lamps.

Remember, conserving energy is EVERYONE'S job. Are you employed?

Flash Flood safety—be prepared

by Capt. Mary H. Evan
Chief, Disaster Preparedness

Remember the headline several weeks ago: "FLOOD HITS CHURCH BUS; 2 DIE." The accompanying article in the July 18 DALLAS MORNING NEWS states that a church bus and van were swept into the rain swollen Guadalupe River which was 16 feet above flood stage and still rapidly rising. First there was hardly any water and then all of a sudden there was a lot.

Floods are a natural and inevitable part of life along the rivers of our country. Some of these floods occur seasonally.

Other floods are raging torrents which rip through river beds, urban streets, coastal sections and mountain canyons after heavy rains and sweep everything before them.

Urban flooding can occur in any terrain and is particularly aggravated by urbanization where natural cover has been removed by construction of buildings, roads and parking lots. Heavy rains can result in flash flooding, inundating cars and causing considerable damage to residential property. Streets can become rivers and basements, swimming pools.

This happened in Minneapolis several weeks ago. Talking to my mother on the phone, she told of people abandoning their cars and swimming across the streets in five feet of water.

My sister's house only had several inches of water in the basement, others had as much as five feet (no need to go to a swimming pool with one in your basement!)

Did you know that only one foot of rushing water can sweep a person away and three feet of rushing water can overturn a car? The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and the National Weather Service offer the following information:

- A flash flood watch is issued when a flash flood is possible within a designated area—BE ALERT!!

- A flash flood warning is issued when a flash flood has been reported or is imminent—TAKE NECESSARY PRECAUTIONS!!

- Flash flood waves, moving at incredible speeds, can roll boulders, tear out trees, destroy buildings and bridges and scour out new channels. Killing walls of water can reach heights of 10 to 20 feet. You won't always have warning that these deadly, sudden floods are coming.

- Get out of areas subject to flooding. This includes dips and low spots.

- Avoid already flooded areas. DO NOT attempt to cross a flowing stream on foot where the water is above your knees.

- If driving, know the depth of water in a dip before crossing. The road bed may not be intact under the water.

- If the vehicle stalls, abandon it immediately and seek higher ground. Rapidly rising water may engulf the vehicle and its occupants and sweep them away.

- Be especially cautious at night when it is harder to recognize flood dangers.

- Do not camp or park your vehicle along streams and washes, particularly during threatening conditions.

- Finally, during any flood emergency, stay tuned to your radio or television.

The information you hear may save your life!!

Before you throw it away

by 2nd Lt. Ronald D. Taylor
Chief, management and Systems Branch

Before you throw away that expendable or disposable supply item, reconsider. Can it be reused? Can it be economically repaired? Are any of its components a precious metal?

Expendable is a generic term, which may not apply to the item you're holding. It's up to you—throw away a potentially valuable asset, or take the extra effort and turn it into Supply for reissue.

Air Force policy concerning the Wastebuster program states: "All XB3 (disposable) materiel, serviceable or repairable, having a potential use or resale value, will be collected, retained and turned in to the 64th Supply Squadron for re-issue or redistribution."

This can be accomplished by calling the Pick-Up and Delivery Section at 3869 during normal duty hours, 7:30 a.m.-4:15 p.m., Monday through Friday. Those items identified as scrap will be taken to DRMO by the using organization(s). This year, Wastebusters returned over $26,000 in assets to the supply logistics system.

Do your share; contribute to Campaign Wastebuster.

Swim for life results

The Swim-For-Life, sponsored by the Lubbock Unit of the American Cancer Society (ACS) August 16, at the Officer's Pool, raised a sizeable amount to support the programs of the ACS.

The winners for the different events are as follows: Most money by individual: Patricia Mason; Second most money by individual: William Mayles; Most sponsors: Rolf Stibbe; and Second most sponsors: Juanita Williams.

The event was designed to encourage participants to obtain pledges from sponsors for each lap completed. The goal was to get as many sponsors to sign up before the event as possible.

"We are excited that this event received so much response from our community. We all know the American Cancer Society has so many worthwhile programs for cancer patients and educational programs for the public and professionals. We hope by supporting this event and others like it we are doing our part to wipe out cancer and assist those who have already been affected by it," Capt. Pequitte Schwerin, Reese liaison for the American Cancer society, said.

"The Swim-For-Life is certainly an appropriate way to raise funds for an organization as dedicated to health as the ACS. We hope this event highlighted our general concern about health and the dangers of practices such as cigarette smoking," Schwerin said.

The funds raised from this event are a part of this year's overall goal. For more information about the American Cancer Society call 794-5808.

Drugs part V

Alcoholism rehab center helps members fund new 'love object'

by MSgt. Kathleen Grey
ATC Public Affairs

Editor's note: This is the final in a five-part series on drug and alcohol abuse in Air Training Command.

LACKLAND AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—This disease directly affects about 10 million people. Worse than that, 40 million are indirectly affected. Yet, half of those in treatment are resistant. They deny the illness.

The disease is alcoholism and the denial is part of the illness. There are an estimated 10 to 14 million alcoholics in this country.

If an Air Force member is found to be an alcoholic, he or she may be sent to an Air Force alcoholism rehabilitation center, one of which is at Lackland AFB, Texas, at the Wilford Hall USAF Medical Center.

Maj. William Zahler is the direct of Wilford Hall's alcoholism rehabilitation center. He explained that this center is one of 11 the Air Force operates. The rehab program, with a new group of up to 10 people, begins twice a month. The groups overlap, so there's a senior and junior group. This center, like the others, treats active duty members, military retirees and family members.

"Everyone coming through here is an alcoholic," Major Zahler emphasized. "If not, they wouldn't be coming through. And, they don't necessarily have to want help initially to get better during the ARC program. About 50 percent of our patients are resistant to treatment when they first arrive. We try to help them work through that resistance and see that they are harmfully involved with alcohol."

During the 28 days of treatment, patients have group occupational and recreational therapy, says Maj. Karen Bennington, charge nurse at the ARC. "We teach patients about the disease concept of alcoholism; how this disease affects others; and how to improve their family relationships," she said. "We also show films on alcoholism, help patients with goal identification, and require them to go to at least five Alcoholics Anonymous meetings each week they're here."

There's a lot of focus on the family because "family members are victims of the disease of alcoholism," Major Bennington said. One week during the 28-day rehab is set aside for family members.

"Family members have group sessions—with and without the alcoholic—where we try to give them an understanding of the disease and how it progresses,"

Major Bennington said. "We talk about the roles the spouse and children take on in an alcoholic family, and we introduce them to Al-Anon, a recovery program for them. We talk about family dynamics, and we meet to discuss issues that are important to all of them."

The charge nurse added that all family members are encouraged to attend—spouses, parents, brothers, sisters and children.

Major Zahler said, "Our patients, like it or not, are spending 28 days together; therefore, they strongly identify with each other."

"If a patient arrives here with a problem with denial of the disease, the program's impact usually convinces him or her there's a problem. Occasionally, a staff member has to confront a person, but it's a more powerful message when other patients confront a member and tell him he's got a problem with alcohol."

H. Calvin Lee, a former deputy director of the ARC, said the goal is to help patients develop the skills they need to function without being impaired by drugs. "We want them to be able to handle day-to-day pressures without mood altering drugs. This has to involve the commander, supervisor, family and friends—patients need to develop a strong support system because, after treatment, they go back to become functioning members of the Air Force."

Normally, people are referred for inpatient treatment because of a history of problems, says TSgt. Ishtor Green social actions liaison and family program coordinator. "Many alcoholics have had problems getting to work on time, accidents at home where they fall and cut themselves, or tickets for driving while intoxicated," she said.

Sergeant Green added, "Alcoholics need to replace their 'love object'—booze—with something. They can't just remove it from their lives and carry on. They need to replace booze with people. These patients are changing their whole lifestyle, in most cases, and that's very difficult. It takes a lot of time, energy and support."
