McIntyre to Pentagon

Col. Lillard takes command

Lieutenant General John A. Shaud, commander of Air Training Command at Randolph Air Force Base, San Antonio, Texas announced Monday that Col. Mark H. Lillard, III will become the new commander of Reese Air Force Base's 64th Flying Training Wing.

Colonel Lillard will replace Colonel James W. McIntyre who will be moving to the Pentagon in Washington, D.C.

A change of command ceremony is scheduled for Thursday, July 9, 1987.

Colonel Lillard is presently serving as the Commander of Reese's 64th Air Base Group. He began those duties on January 20, 1987, when he moved to Reese from Strategic Air Command headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base, Neb.

Colonel McIntyre is completing his third tour at Reese. He worked during his first assignment as an instructor pilot and progressed to the command of Reese's 3,500 member military and civilian work team during his present tour. His second Reese assignment had him working as the commander of both the 64th Student and 54th Flying Training squadrons.

These key changes in personnel at Reese follow a number of reassignments among Reese's operations staff announced earlier and also scheduled to occur in early July. Those assignments are:

Colonel James L. Higham, coming to Reese from the National War College at Maxwell Air Force Base in Alabama, will take Colonel Lillard's place as the Base Commander.

Colonel William M. Drennan, Jr., the 64th Flying Training Wing's Deputy Commander for Operations will move to the National War College at Fort Leslie J. McNair, Washington, D.C. He will be replaced by his assistant since August 1986, Colonel (selectee) Kenneth W. Hess.

Lieutenant Colonel Stephen B. Maddox, present 64th Student Squadron commander will move into the Assistant Deputy Commander for Operations position vacated by Colonel Hess. In turn, Colonel Maddox will be replaced by Lt. Col. Bill Ford who comes to Reese from Laughlin Air Force Base, Del Rio, Texas.

Lieutenant Colonel David C. Turner, present 54th Flying Training Squadron commander, will leave Reese for a position with Headquarters Air Training Command Directorate for Operations at Randolph Air Force Base. He will be succeeded by Lt. Col. John Dalton, who comes to Reese from Air Training Command Headquarters.

Outstanding Unit Award presented Thursday

The 64th Flying Training Wing will receive the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award for the second time in six years Thursday.

Lt. Gen. John A. Shaud, commander of Air Training Command will present the award on behalf of the Secretary of the Air Force during a 9 a.m. ceremony in front of wing headquarters.

The award is unique in that it includes all the subordinate and tenant units assigned to Reese.

The Secretary cited the wing for performing "exceptionally meritorious service from April 1, 1984 through March 31, 1986." During the period of time the wing's personnel "clearly accomplished its mission in an outstanding manner," the Secretary said.

Factors contributing to the presentation of the award were numerous. Among the most important were the graduation of 697 professional military pilots during the period of time covered by the award; the Air Training Command's most improved flight safety program; a succession of flying training and management inspections that produced better and better results; and six unit and individual awards won at Air Force level and 26 unit and individual awards won at Air Training Command level.

Also contributing to the award was the inclusion of the wing as one of the Air Force's five original Model Installation Program (MIP) test bases. The program, initiated by the Secretary of Defense affords the Reese wing commander the opportunity to manage his allotted resources with fewer regulatory restrictions. During the time of the award, 25 proposals made under the MIP by Reese personnel were adopted Air Force-wide. These and other suggestions adopted at Reese saved approximately $350,000 and several thousand man-hours while productivity increased dramatically throughout the wing.

In 1984, Air Training Command awarded Reese the General Frank P. Lahm Trophy for the excellence of its flying safety program. As of March 31, 1986, the wing's flying training squadrons had amassed a combined total in excess of 500,000 flying hours without a serious mishap and flight safety was recognized as "impeccable."

Topping the list of unit awards were two that were judged by professional organizations not affiliated with the Air Force. The Fuels Management Branch was cited by the American Petroleum Institute as the best operation of its type in the Air Force and the Billeting Office was recognized as the best of its kind by the receipt of the Air Force Innkeeper Award.

Colonel James W. McIntyre, 64th Flying Training Wing commander cited "a contagious attitude of excellence that has become the standard for personnel throughout the wing and contributed much to the success enjoyed by the 64th Flying Training Wing and all its subordinate units" as the reason for the wing's Air Force Outstanding Unit Award nomination. "Our operation at Reese has become the standard by which all other pilot training wings are evaluated," he commented.

"Proud Day," Wing Ding Thursday

"We're going to host the best Wing Ding in the history of Reese between 11:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. this Thursday," reports Lt. Col. Richard Galloway, the project officer in charge of making the arrangements.

The Wing Ding is the chance for everyone to relax and celebrate said colonel Galloway.

"This affair is being held in honor of all base personnel who contributed to the 64th Flying Training Wing winning its second Air Force Outstanding Unit Award in the past six years," he said. Everyone at Reese is invited to attend.

Colonel James McIntyre, wing commander has declared a down day for flying training activities in order to enable everyone to take part in the festivities which are scheduled for the new picnic area.

According to Lt. Col. Galloway, there will be plenty of hot dogs, hamburgers, soda pop and beer on hand for all to feast on during the afternoon. "Big Al" Wallace will provide recorded music and the colonels and chiefs will engage in a traditional volleyball game.

Gene Ray of the Mathis Recreation Center, and her staff will be handling the serving of all food for the event.

Top personnel visit Reese

Lieutenant General John A. Shaud, commander, Air Training Command, will visit Reese Wednesday and Thursday. He will be accompanied during the visit by his wife, Mrs. Janelle Shaud and the Air Training Command Senior Enlisted Advisor, CMSgt. Bobby Renfroe.

Mrs. Shaud is a native of Lubbock, Texas. The couple first met in Lubbock while he was a Reese student pilot and she was a church organist.

General Shaud will be visiting Reese to present the 64th Flying Training Wing with its second Air Force Outstanding Unit Award in the past six years and to be the featured guest speaker at the Annual Civilian Awards Banquet. The Civilian Awards Banquet is scheduled for 6 p.m. Wednesday in the Officer's Open Mess while the flagpole in front of Wing Headquarters will be the scene of a 9 a.m. Thursday Air Force Outstanding Unit Award ceremony.

During their stay at Reese, General Shaud and Chief Renfroe will spend much of their time visiting with as many Reese personnel as possible to see how they help accomplish the Reese mission so well.

On their itinerary are a mission briefing and visits with personnel from each deputation in their duty sections.

While visiting work areas, General Shaud will personally present seven ATC 1986 "Outstanding" awards to individual and unit award winners.

Individual awards will go to Ms. Debbie Markart who is the Legal Services Civilian for the second consecutive year; Mr. Chris Davis, Readiness Civilian, and TSgt. Don Minnis the NCO Leadership School Professional Military Education Instructor.

Unit awards will go to the NCOIC, MSgt. Everett Timm, in behalf of the Munitions Supply Branch and Capt. Mary Evan, Chief of the Disaster Preparedness Branch for having the best Installation Disaster Preparedness Program. Lieutenant Col. Dane Morvant,

Introduction

Monday, Gerry Burton, a writer for the A-J and long time friend of Reese, came to the office to conduct an interview covering Lt. Gen. Shaud's presentation of the Wing's Air Force Outstanding Unit Award coming up on the 28th. It so happened that moments before her arrival, a message had been received which she queried me about, and I felt obligated to confirm, before getting down to the business at hand which was your AFOUA. Tuesday AM proved conclusively that the morning edition of the AJ enjoys wide circulation around here. Many of you read the story over your morning coffee, but in case you missed it, on July 9th, Karen and I will end the best assignment we'll probably ever have, and Col. Mark Lillard and Marie Jacques will begin theirs. Reese is a special place. The reason is you, all the folks at Reese, whose undying pride, professionalism, and winning attitude has made our tour unforgettable. My next assignment to the Pentagon is a great one, and represents a new challenge and opportunity—that's what makes the AF tick. I have no doubt, it will be very difficult for us to pull away from Reese, but given that, we couldn't be more excited about our new chapter, nor the outstanding couple that has been given the nod to replace us.

In the meantime, join me with the business at hand, continuing our ongoing mission of training the best pilots in the world.

Something of Substance

At this morning's monthly commanders/first sergeants breakfast and subsequent Wing Staff meeting several good points were made that I want to share. First, the mission. Our operators have held a healthy position "above the timeline" (2 to 5 days) for over a month straight. Good flying weather has contributed, but so has excellent maintenance and supply. The whole team is clicking. Fully Mission Capable rates for T-37s and T-38s are above 90% and nearly 87% respectively, and being kept there. The product of your efforts was once again celebrated at Monday evening's Phase II graduation as 40 shining faces of Class 88-01 walked across the O'Club stage to receive their T-37 completion certificates from their individual IP's in Capt. Paul Nelson's B Flight and Capt. Al Guyott's D Flight. This Friday, Class 85-07 graduates and receives its silver wings. Congratulations to each graduate, their families, and wives. Maj. Gen. Larry Tibbetts, the commander, Lowry Technical Training Center, is the special guest and graduation speaker. At the graduation ceremony, a group of Capt. Danny Thomas' SPs, the proud "Reese Defenders," will represent all the support functions in this wing that make up the Reese team.

Energy levels both on and off the flightline seem to continue to escalate. You can't miss it. Self-help projects are evident nearly everywhere you look. A special pat on the back to our OMS troops who have dressed-up their new parking lot on Hangarline Road with new landscaping and "64th OMS" spelled out with white rock.

Monday was also Mission Enhancement Day and was extremely well planned and productive. Every unit participated and I'm confident that the time spent will pay us big dividends. Both ground and flight safety will be high emphasis items as we enter the "101 critical days" between Memorial Day and Labor Day.

Rain at last—A community struggle pays off

A reprieve from the long dry spell finally occurred—1.22 inches in fact, according to Capt. Bill Wolfenbarger at Wednesday's staff meeting. As we all know, the situation was serious, with imminent loss of greenery that took years to nurture and would be prohibitively expensive to replace. Watching this community rally to save grass and shrubs says a lot about "pride" as well. I want to thank all of you for your tremendous efforts, particularly the "adopt a yard" program stretching hoses across streets to wet hard-to-get-to areas not really your unit's. Another example of Reese perseverance and teamwork, I'd say, and a blessing in disguise too. Now, with an uncommonly dry March, April, and 3 weeks of May behind us, you've prepared yourselves well to handle the long dry spells of summer which are sure to occur.

Col. James McIntyre

Next week—Reese stands tall

For those of you traveling to visit families and friends over this long holiday weekend, "drive smart." For those joining me in the Annual Reese Invitational, good luck. For all, whatever your activities, enjoy the long weekend and return refreshed in anticipation of next week, as all of Reese stands tall.

As you know, Lt. Gen. and Mrs. Shaud arrive Wednesday to see, first hand, how Reese does it best. Their two itineraries will take them to nearly every area in the Wing to meet and get to know the proud folks they've undoubtedly heard quite a lot about. That evening our Annual Civilian Awards Banquet proves to be the best ever, with our ATC Commander as the honored guest speaker.

We've dubbed Thursday as "PROUD"—People of Reese's Outstanding Unit Day. That it shall be, from start to finish, and for good reason. The superb record of accomplishment and the high standards of excellence exhibited over the last two years by every unit in this Wing has earned the 64th FTW another AF Outstanding Unit Award. Gen. Shaud will make the presentation. The post ceremony celebration begins with a reception at the EOM, followed in the afternoon with a Wing Ding at the park. See you there, standing tall.

AS I SEE IT, there is no greater sense of accomplishment than to be a part of a winning team which has worked like clockwork to meet a common goal. That's Reese.

MEMORIAL DAY

In observance of the Monday Memorial Day holiday, the Reese Honor Guard will provide a color guard and flag raising team for a parade in Floydada, Texas, Saturday.

On Memorial Day they will provide a firing party and perform "Echo Taps" at a ceremony held at Resthaven Cemetery, 19th and Frankford in Lubbock, beginning at 10 a.m.

A color guard and bugler will travel to Meadow, Texas Monday to participate in a ceremony there.

Commander's Column

Reese represents professionalism

By Col. Ramon Broerman
Deputy Commander
for Maintenance

Last Saturday, I was privileged to attend the commissioning ceremony and banquet for the most recent Texas Tech ROTC graduates. The guest speaker was Lt. Gen. Bernhard Mittermeyer, soldier, doctor, leader. The lead-in to his speech, Professionalism. General Mittermeyer used the Webster definition of professionalism. I'm not sure he needed to define it. You don't get to be a Lieutenant General, a doctor, and the overall leader of an organization the size of the US Army Medical Corps unless you are a consummate professional. The question is—why did he choose that particular word as his initial attention getter? Why did he think that particular thing needed to be addressed? I won't attempt to put words in his mouth—I'm going to make the basic assumption that—since he chose that as the very first thing to talk about—it is of all-consuming importance to him. It's also important to all of us. In fact, it's one of the three most visible expressions of our Reese way of life, another word emblazoned across the side of one of our hangars. Much more than a word, though, it expresses the viewpoint of the men and women of Reese. I'm not going to quote the dictionary definition. What I will do is tell you what I see as Reese professionalism. At least a part of it is the Security Policeman I talked to on the line late Saturday night after the storm—his business is protecting our flight line and aircraft against bad guys. He stretched that business to noticing that a lot of the hail covers had blown off—leaving the aircraft unprotected—and notifying the maintenance duty officer so the right action could be taken and the situation rectified. I didn't get his name—sorry—but he was the one driving the patrol sedan that night. I'm sure Captain Thomas will find out who he was and pass along the kudos. Another part of professionalism—MSgt. (SMSgt. select) Barnes from CE. He looked at the new sidewalk beside Hanger 70—didn't think it was right—had it done again—the right way. Our CE folks also looked at the road onto the flight line south of Building 52. They could have patched it again, but didn't. They built a new road, one that will last and protect our expensive engines from Foreign Object Damage. All you have to do is look around the base. You'll see all kinds of evidence of professionalism. Our audio visual folks—Captain Keith Clifton, Lieutenants "Spanky" Barber, Chuck Gutierrez, Larry Massey, and Bill Shaw plus our narrators Captains Bob Waters, Dan Sanders, and Lieutenant Tammy Rank have done and redone the Wing mission brief innumerable times in the past couple of weeks, to make it as close to perfect as is humanly possible. It was good to begin with, but knowing it's the first introduction to the Wing that most distinguished visitors see, they wanted it just right. They've made it that way. Other professionals? Captain Ted Knowles, recipient of the Secretary of the Air Force Leadership Award, athlete, planner of itineraries for our distinguished visitors. I've spent a lot of time with him recently. He even tolerates, with equanimity, my tirades when I think some of my folks are being left out of the limelight, and works out ways to include them. That's professionalism. More professionals: the sometimes unsung heroes of maintenance. I say sometimes, because more and more folks are noticing them. We needed new decals for our T-37 cockpits, to finish up the professional job the folks are doing in refurbishing our 26-year-old aircraft. Anyone will tell you, for aircraft that old, you can't get cockpit decals. Lt. Andy Zaprzala didn't believe that, so he went out and found someone to make them for us. Because of his efforts, our aircraft will have yet one more nuance of professionalism. TSgt. Ronald Dunkle, down in Task Oriented Training, not satisfied with doing one of the biggest self-help projects ever to build classrooms in Hangar 70, now is leading another major effort to landscape the grounds around the hangar. Where does it end? It doesn't! I could continue and fill this paper with the manifestations of professionalism at Reese, and in fact, I started to list some more of the folks I deal with on a day-to-day basis that strike me as true professionals. Problem is, the list just kept growing, and there's no way I can get enough space to name all 3,247 of the professionals of Reese.

The definition of professionalism? easy. It's you folks. I used a line in a speech once, and I'm chagrined that I don't remember the source, but I'll use it again anyway with apologies to the author for losing his name. He said, 'a job is something you go to—a profession, you carry with you wherever you go.' The Reese folks carry their professionalism always, wherever they go.

Weekend begins 101 critical days

Lt. Col. Phillip Marzolino
Chief, Safety Division

Today is the beginning of the Memorial Day week-end, which is also the traditional beginning of the "101 CRITICAL DAYS." This period runs from Memorial Day to Labor Day and is the target of an intense nation-wide publicity campaign for safety. I'd like to take this space to discuss why so much attention is paid to this particular period of time.

First, the summer months, with their long days and pleasant weather, are the ideal time for outdoor activities. Additionally, this is the usual time for the family vacations, since the children are out of school. Finally, a large number of family moves are planned in-between school years. The result is that most of us do more during the summer and spend more time engaged in physically active endeavors outside.

Reese experienced one of it's safest 101 Critical Days in history last year; however, it was not accident free. A total of 149 of our base population ended up in the emergency room for treatment of injuries sustained off duty. These injuries, by category, were: 82-sports and recreation, 62-miscellaneous, and 5-motor vehicle accidents. Not surprisingly, 39 of the 149 accidents (over ¼) occurred at home. This points very clearly to the area each of us must target our attention if we wish to avoid becoming one of this year's statistics. A review of the causes of these mishaps showed one very clear and preventable common trend: inattention. Psychologists have known for years that our emotional attitudes vary considerably based on weather. Hot, dry days tend to make us emotionally tense, so we become more impatient and less resilient. Consequently, what should be rather pleasant (i.e. sports) or routine (various jobs around the house) activities can result in irrational or inattentive behavior that leads to a mishap. Our previous record of mishaps certainly tend to support those observations.

Last year, we did the big things right evidenced by the small number of motor vehicle accidents and the absence of fatalities. It was the little things that took their toll. This year, I urge each of you to continue the proper planning for trips, and wearing of seatbelts, but in addition, take those few extra minutes to ask yourself, "Am I doing this smart?" One hundred and forty-nine of our co-workers at Reese wished they had done it last year!

Freedom is worth the costs

by SSgt. Dale Cunningham
Fuels Management Branch

Freedom has many costs, unfortunately, life is one of them. This great country of ours, from its beginning, has had two different types of people: the realist and the idealist.

At one point in my life, I was an idealist, a wantner. I learned quickly after joining the Air Force that if I wanted something, I had to go out and earn it!

I recently read an article written by an idealist. He wrote about the revolution going on in Nicaragua, of how our money and support to the "rebels" has cost not only their lives, but also has put shame on our name! Is it that easy for this kind of people to forget how America gained her freedom from Great Britain? If it wasn't for the French support we would have been in a much longer battle costing more lives in our own revolution!

Did the French people object to aiding the American Revolution? These "rebels" in Nicaragua are fighting for their freedom and a democratic way of life. As long as the spark of freedom exists in their heart they will continue to fight.

Yes, all through history we have been fighting to keep our freedom and aiding those who wish to have theirs. My home state, New Hampshire's motto is "LIVE FREE OR DIE." Freedom costs a lot, but it is well worth it!

Twenty-five Reese civilian employees are competing for top "Civilian Employee of the Year" recognition in eight different award categories. The winners will be announced during Wednesday's Civilian Awards Banquet in the Officer's Open Mess.

The banquet begins with a social hour at 6 p.m. and will feature an address by Lt. Gen. John A. Shaud, commander, Air Training Command, as the featured guest speaker.

General Shaud will talk about the significance of each individual employee as a member of the Air Force team. He is also expected to touch on the quality of Air Force, and particularly Air Training Command, people and to discuss his perspective of ATC as he sees it.

Dinner will be preceded by a welcome and presentation of colors at 7 p.m. Following dinner, Capt. Dan Sanders will narrate a new audio-visual history of Reese with emphasis on the role of civilian employees. Many of the visuals included in the history are newly uncovered and will be seen for the first time in a historical presentation.

The announcement of award winners will follow with each deputy commander taking a hand in presenting the awards. The evening will conclude with General Shaud's comments.

Tickets for the banquet are still available at $10 per person. For reservations and tickets, call Cheri Re, 3448.

Poster contest nears

The theme for the 1987 Project Warrior Poster Contest is "American Fighting Spirit and Aviation Heritage."

The contest is open to all Reese military personnel, their family members and civilians.

To enter:

Name, duty or home phone number and duty section or address must accompany all entries;

Entries should be full color renditions in medium the artist desires;

Entries should be in vertical format, at least 1" by 14", but no larger than 16 by 20 inches;

All entries must be submitted by June

25, to Maj. Greg Jolda of the 64th Resource Management, Bldg. 800;

Entries will be judged on originality, theme and artwork. Winners will be announced June 29, at the Mathis Recreation Center.

The first place winner will receive a $100 U.S. Savings Bond, second place, a $75 U.S. Savings Bond, and the third place winner will receive a $50 U.S. Savings Bond.

The winning poster will be used as an advertising display for the 1987 Base Open House, Sept. 18-19.

For more information, contact Maj. Greg Jolda, 3604.

IP of the Month chosen

The 54th Flying Training Squadron Instructor Pilot of the Month for April is 1st Lt. Gary Seifried.

Lieutenant Seifried is the "D" Flight Assistant Flight Commander and the flight Unit Standardization/Evaluation Member (USEM). As Assistant Flight Commander, Lieutenant Seifried is directly responsible for the training of 10 student pilots and oversees four other Instructor Pilots in his flight. As USEM, Lieutenant Seifried works closely with Stan/Eval ensuring quality and standards are maintained. Lieutenant Seifried is also a Center Runway Monitor in the Runway Supervisory Unit program.

Lieutenant Seifried keeps busy with activities away from the flight line. He has given simulator rides to members of the Lubbock community and presented briefs to elementary school children. Lieutenant Seifried was chief T-38 scheduler for the recent Operation Peticoat, where over 110 taxi rides were given for both pilot and maintenance wives.

Lieutenant Seifried is active in the Great Commission Church. He is a home group leader for approximately 15 other members and leads two meetings a week. He also plays the guitar for their Sunday services.

Lieutenant Seifried, and his wife DeAnn, have an eight month old son, Grant. He is originally from Naperville, Ill., and is a 1984 graduate of the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo.

Big brother reenlists sibling

After 11 years of service in the U.S. Air Force, SSgt. Robert Whitefield reenlisted for the third time.

What makes this reenlistment so special? Sergeant Whitefield asked his older brother, Lloyd, to administer the oath of enlistment. Lloyd Whitefield is a captain in the U.S. Army.

"I thought it would be more personal to have my brother reenlist me," 31-year-old Robert said. Robert is a carpenter for the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron. He has been at Reese for one year.

"I was honored to be asked," said Lloyd. The 32-year-old captain is stationed at West Point, N.Y., as a Battalion Adjutant. He has been in the Army for nine years.

"I feel like I am following in my father's footsteps," said Robert.

Lloyd and Robert's father, Lloyd Whitefield, is a retired

Air Force Technical Sergeant. The brothers' uncle, Patrick Whitefield, is a retired Army Colonel.

FAA official visits Reese

by SSgt. Gayle Gustafson
1958th Communications Squadron

The 1958th Communications Squadron Air Traffic Services recently played host to Ms. Pat Petosky, the new Program Manager for the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) at Lubbock. Ms. Petosky is responsible for the daily operations interface with Reese AFB for air traffic procedures, and resolves any problems that may arise between the FAA and Air Force Air Traffic Systems.

Ms. Petosky toured the Control Tower where she was briefed on the air traffic mission of the 1958th Communications Squadron, in support of the flying training mission at Reese. She also visited the simulator building and a Runway Supervisory Unit (RSU).

Ms. Petosky came to Lubbock from Little Rock, Ark. She is a native of this area and has spent a number of years with the FAA in this region, and is a qualified pilot and owns her own Cessna-182.

UPT Graduation Section
Reese AFB, Texas

The Roundup

Class 87-05; The easy life was over

It was a warm spring day in early June when 51 fresh-faced, eager, newly commissioned second lieutenants converged upon Reese AFB to become Class 87-05 in UPT. We eagerly awaited that first day on the flight line when we could fly the mighty Tweet—but first we had to endure hours of learning how to fall off a platform into the gravel pit so that we wouldn't break our legs when we went parasailing. Nobody broke a leg, but I think there were a few cactus needles pulled from a couple of derrieres! We also had academics to attend so that we would know all about the T-37 before we actually got to the flight line.

We finally made it to the T-37 and the 35th Flying Training Squadron. Were we ever in for a shock! The easy life was over! It began with 4:30 a.m. reports to the flight line, followed closely by the dreaded STAND-UP EP!! This was where some poor soul (usually you when you were least prepared) had to stand up in front of the section and handle whatever problem you were given.

The real EP (Emergency Procedure) was watching that poor person sweat and shake until the problem was resolved. We went out on our Dollar Rides (first flight) and many of us discovered the practical use of those little bags the IP's always carried with them. It was hot, usually bumpy, and a little smelly, but we were flying! Most of us made it through those first weeks. We soloed and went on to our checkrides. However, we did lose a lot of our buddies along the way. Those of us that remained went down the street to fly the super-sonic Talon.

We arrived at the 54th Flying Training Squadron's doorstep, 28 in number, eager to begin a new challenge: flying the T-38! It was a little rough being the Freshman class again doing the snack bar and pubs shack jobs, but as we later discovered, everyone pays their dues. Initial solo and contact checkrides came quickly in the T-38. Thank goodness we had been adequately prepared by our instructors to accomplish such a task in a minimum amount of time. With new-found confidence in our abilities, we moved on to the formation and instrument phases of the program. Oh yes, the EP's and the weekly EPQ's were still with us, but somehow they weren't quite as scary as they were in T-37s. Our self confidence was increasing, our airmanship was improving, and our ability to respond under pressure was developing.

As the end neared, the year seemed to have passed quicker than most of us thought possible. The 23 of us that are left realize just how hard and special it is to wear the wings of an Air Force pilot. Over the year we said goodbye to many of our friends, who for one reason or another, didn't make it to this day with us. To all of them, we raise our glass in a toast, for it is better to have tried and not succeeded than to have never tried at all. As for the rest of us, we are all looking forward to beginning our Air Force flying careers and being the best pilots and officers we can be.

Maj. Gen. Tibbetts speaks to graduates

Major General Larry N. Tibbetts is commander of Lowry Technical Training Center, Lowry Air Force Base, Colo. The center conducts technical training in avionics, space operations, munitions, air intelligence, logistics and audiovisual fields for members of all services, Air National Guard, Air Force Reserve, federal civilian employees and foreign students from 29 countries.

General Tibbetts was born Sept. 2, 1934, in Trenton, Mo., and spent his junior high and high school years in Plymouth, Ind. He received a bachelor's degree in English and speech from DePauw University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1956 and a master's degree in public administration from George Washington University, Washington, D.C., in 1968. He completed Squadron Officer School in 1961, Air Command and Staff College in 1968 and Naval War College in 1975.

He was commissioned through the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program at DePauw University in 1956. After graduating from primary-basic navigator training at Harlingen Air Force Base, Texas, he completed jet interceptor training at James Connally Air Force Base, Texas. The general spent the next several years flying F-89 and F-101 interceptors at Presque Isle and Dow Air Force Bases, Maine, and Griffiss Air Force Base, N.Y.

In March 1962 he became an instructor at the U.S. Air Force Interceptor Weapons School, Tyndall Air Force Base, Fla. Two years later he moved to Headquarters Air Defense Command, Ent Air Force Base, Colo., as a project officer in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Plans, During this time General Tibbetts was the principal action officer responsible for the sophisticated reconnaissance aircraft in the Air Force Inventory. After completing Air Command and Staff College in September 1968, he spent a year with the 366th Tactical Fighter Wing, Da Nang Air Base, Republic of Vietnam, where he flew 207 combat missions in F-4Es.

Upon his return to the United States in May 1970, he was assigned to the Interceptor Division, Office of the Assistant Chief of Staff for Studies and Analysis, at Headquarters U.S. Air Force, Washington, D.C., where he planned and conducted studies dealing with employment of interceptors for strategic defense of the United States. He also directed the final series of conceptual analysis involving employment of the airborne warning and control system.

After graduation from the Naval War College in July 1975, General Tibbetts returned to Air Force headquarters as deputy assistant for colonel assignments, Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Personnel. He became the assistant for colonel assignments in May 1977 and transferred with the function to the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center at Randolph Air Force Base, Texas, in July 1978.

In May 1980 the general was named deputy chief of staff for manpower and personnel, Headquarters Air Force Logistics Command, Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. He was assigned to Air Force headquarters in March 1983 as director of manpower and organization in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for technical training, Headquarters Air Training Command, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas. He assumed his present duties in October 1986.

Maj. Gen. Larry N. Tibbetts

General Tibbetts has more than 3,500 flying hours in a variety of jet fighter and trainer aircraft. His military decorations and awards include the Distinguished Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross with one oak leaf cluster, Meritorious Service Medal with one oak leaf cluster, Air Medal with 12 oak leaf clusters and Air Force Commendation Medal with two oak leaf clusters.

He was promoted to major general Aug. 1, 1984, with date of rank Nov. 1, 1980. General Tibbetts is married to the former Leona Bergman of Houston.

Equipment supported by AGE

by A1C Greg Spraggins
Editor, Roundup

In many cases, age is best forgotten, except in the case of Aerospace Ground Equipment (AGE).

The AGE Branch is one of five 64th Field Maintenance Squadron branches. "The branch does not actually work on aircraft, but they are just as important in supporting the mission of the 64th Flying Training Wing as all the other maintenance personnel," 2nd Lt. Philip Friend, section commander for the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron said.

All of the support equipment used on the flight line, such as air compressors, generators, light stands, de-icers, trailers and maintenance stands, fall under the AGE Branch. Eighteen military and 11 civilians are assigned to the branch.

"The Repair and Inspection Section is responsible for 530 pieces of powered and nonpowered aerospace ground equipment, which results in approximately 1,150 scheduled and 750 unscheduled inspections a year," said Lieutenant Friend.

In addition to the equipment assigned here, this section is also responsible for the Aerospace Ground Equipment at the Amarillo Airport and Roswell, N.M. airport. The branch is in the process of updating most of their outdated equipment, according to Lieutenant Friend. "We just received 19 new diesel generators to replace the previously used 30-year-old generators which supply electrical power to the aircraft," he added.

The Pickup, Delivery and Servicing Section is responsible for delivering and positioning all aerospace ground equipment on the flight line used by the crew chiefs and specialists. "All units are thoroughly inspected and serviced by the AGE personnel before being removed from the aerospace ground equipment yard and delivered to the flight line," Lieutenant Friend said.

"When equipment is brought in from the flight line, it is inspected and serviced as needed. The pickup and delivery folks also perform minor maintenance needed on equipment that is being used on the line and develops a problem," he said.

Units being released from phase inspection are given one last look over by these personnel before they position it in the yard, the Lieutenant said. "They are also responsible for inspecting and maintaining the three vehicles assigned to the branch," Lieutenant Friend added.

The centralized Aircraft Support System (CASS) section supplies the compressed air and electrical power needed to start up the aircraft and for required maintenance checks. "The Centralized Aircraft Support System is a much more economical and efficient system than the old individual starting units of the past," Lieutenant Friend added.

The 51 CASS stations on the flight line are controlled by a Master Control Console (MCC) located on the bottom floor of the control tower. The MCC insures that no more than three aircraft are started up at any one time by sending out signals to the unused stations and locking them out of the system until sufficient air and power is available, Lieutenant Friend explained. The air is produced by four large compressors and the power by two motor generators located next to the control tower, he added.

"The Centralized Aircraft Support System has supported an estimated 12,800 sorties since the beginning of the year and any mechanical failures are quickly dealt with by the CASS crew, insuring minimum delays to aircraft start up times," he said.

"The AGE Branch is another example of the pride and dedication of the Reese Maintainers," Lieutenant Friend concluded.

Military spouses lead the way

By CMSgt. Walter Zurowski
91st Strategic Missile Wing
Minot AFB, N.D.

Many say that behind a successful military career is a supportive spouse.

Not only is that true for the individual Air Force member, but it also can be true for the overall military installation.

Many times we are so completely involved with our jobs that we tend to take for granted those who are really special to us—our spouses.

One often hears of the many sacrifices and difficulties endured by active-duty members. But those hardships are just as real to our spouses.

The demands on the military spouse are equally great. It takes a special kind of person to face those trying times and to help us in our careers.

Our families are important to each of us and to our having successful military careers.

Our spouses must contend with long hours, job frustrations, late night recalls, and missed dinners and special occasions.

All too often we fail to recognize the hardships our spouses endure—moving on a moment's notice, or putting up with our absence during an exercise, temporary duty assignment, unaccompanied tour—and sometimes we take them for granted. Many times the sacrifices of our spouses are greater than our own.

I think it important that we let our spouses know that without them our jobs would be much more difficult.

Today, Military Spouse Day, let's offer a special thanks to our spouses—and tell them we know that we don't serve alone, that we love them and appreciate all that they do to make the Air Force a great way of life.

Fun, adventure at day camp

"Yes I Can" is the theme for this year's Summer Day Camp sponsored by the Reese Youth Center.

Summer Day Camp is designed to enhance the self-concept and self worth of campers. The camp provides participants the opportunity to learn about nature, group related skills, and develop sports skills.

Activities planned for Summer Day Campers are swimming, arts and crafts, bowling, golf, field trips and out-of-doors activities.

Sign-ups for Summer Day Camp is now underway at the Youth Center from 3-9 p.m. There will be five two week sessions. The first session begins June 8.

Session two begins June 22, session three, July 6, session four, July 20 and the fifth and final session begins August 3.

Each session will be limited to 30 children.

Contact the Youth Center, 3820, for more information.

Volunteers are needed to serve as counselors for handicapped children and adults during the Easter Seal Summer Day Camp. Counselors receive a training session before the camp. For more information, call 3528.

The Youth Center is looking for junior counselors from 3-18-years-old to volunteer 20 hours per week as Aids to regular counselors for the 1987 Summer Day Camp. Teenagers interested should contact the center, 3820.

A1C Paul Snyder of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, Eagle Flight, helps clean up a two mile stretch of Levelland highway as part of the "Adopt a Mile Program." The program allows organizations to help keep Texas clean by adopting a two mile stretch of highway and police it for trash once a month for a year. Other members from OMS participating in the May 12 clean up project were SSgt. Larry Close, Fox Flight, A1C Sean Reiman, Hotel Flight and Amn. Randy Weatherford, Eagle Flight. SSgt. Barron Cornell, OMS Dormitory Manager supervised the group. (USAF Photo)

Fishing tourney held

Bass, Walleye, Crappie, Catfish and all other species of game fish are the target of a Fishing Tournament at White River Lake.

The Rod and Gun Club hosts the May 30 tournament. Registration begins the week prior to the tournament.

Participants can use only rod and reel to catch the fish. Artificial or live bait may be used. There is a 10 fish limit and state bag and length limits apply.

The entry fee is $10 for members and $15 for nonmembers. Eighty percent of the entry fee will be returned as prizes. Prizes will be awarded to first, second and third place winners. The prize breakdown is 35 percent, 25 percent and 20 percent respectively.

Twenty percent of the prize money will also be awarded to the individual with the largest catch of the day.

To register for the tournament, contact Rick Covalt, 3500 or Mark Nabell, 3510.

The Rod & Gun Club now meets on the second Wednesday of the month at 7 p.m. at the Enlisted Open Mess. Anyone interested in hunting or fishing may attend. The club is currently trying to obtain a Hunting and Fishing lease. If anyone has information that may help, contact Mark Nabell, 3510.
