Reese welcomes new Base Commander

by A1C Greg Spraggins
Editor, Roundup

Col. Mark H. Lillard, III rolled into Reese and took command of 64th Air Base Group Jan. 20 from Col. Charles Edwards, who is now wing commander at Columbus AFB, Miss.

"When I first arrived at Reese, I saw the obvious: pride, spirit and enthusiasm of both the Reese family and community," said Colonel Lillard. "This started as A1C Kevin Dye, one of three members of the elite gate guard, greeted me and helped me with directions. He was extremely friendly, a superior airman in both dress and attitude, and he gave me my first impression, which has continued ever since then.

"With this being my third tour in Texas, it's like coming home," said Colonel Lillard. "When Lt. Gen. (John A.) Shaud asked me if I would like to return to ATC, my only question was, 'how quick can I get there?'"

"I have also had the opportunity to meet with several of the 'Friends of Reese,'" he said. "Those folks have a dedication and interest in our community that I have never seen during my time in the Air Force."

From the view of an Air Base Group Commander, Colonel Lillard feels the problems and challenges are the same regardless of the size of the base. "I view the challenge at Reese rather differently than other bases," he said. "I view the challenge at Reese of moving from satisfactory and excellent in every category to excellent and outstanding. This is my first time to see Reese, and it has a tradition of winning that I've never seen before," he said.

"The missions of ATC and SAC are different, the mission of SAC is tuned to exercise and simulation, since we are practicing for something we hope will never take place," said Colonel Lillard. "We have a real mission in ATC. We can actually see the product we have produced at the end of every class graduation."

According to Colonel Lillard, the goals in Air Base Group are extremely people oriented. "Our goal is to improve the quality of life for the people here, and that heavily involves the MWR, CBPO Customer Service and Civil Engineering functions," he said.

"I have been dazzled and amazed by the quality of the individuals here at Reese," said Colonel Lillard. "The facilities are gorgeous, and that indicates a depth of caring and a sense of pride in the Reese community that I feel is unparalleled and untouched, and that's why I'm proud to be a part of this organization."

Colonel Lillard was commissioned a second Lieutenant through the Reserve Officer Training Corps at Bowling Green University, Ohio. He attended navigator training at Mather AFB, Calif., and received his navigator wings in 1966.

Following combat crew training at Castle AFB, Calif., he was assigned to the 911th Aerial Refueling Squadron at Seymour-Johnson AFB, N.C., where he flew 57 combat missions in Southeast Asia and served as an instructor pilot and stan/eval crew member.

In 1970, he was selected to attend UPT at Laredo AFB, Texas. He received his pilot wings in 1971 as a distinguished graduate and was assigned as a T-38 instructor pilot there. He later became a flight commander for his squadron.

Colonel Lillard was reassigned to Randolph AFB, Texas in 1973 as an instructor pilot in Air Training Command's Pilot Instructor Training Program. He served as a flight commander and participated in Operation Homecoming, the repatriation of American Prisoners of War from Southeast Asia.

In 1975, he was transferred to Headquarters Manpower and Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Texas, as a resource manager.

June 1976, Colonel Lillard graduated from the Air Command and Staff College as a distinguished graduate.

He was then assigned to the 596th Bombardment Squadron, Barksdale AFB, La., as a B-52 pilot. He served as an instructor pilot, flight commander and as chief of training flight prior to his reassignment in 1980 to Yong Son Army Garrison in South Korea, where he served as the Combined Forces Command's Director of Special Actions.

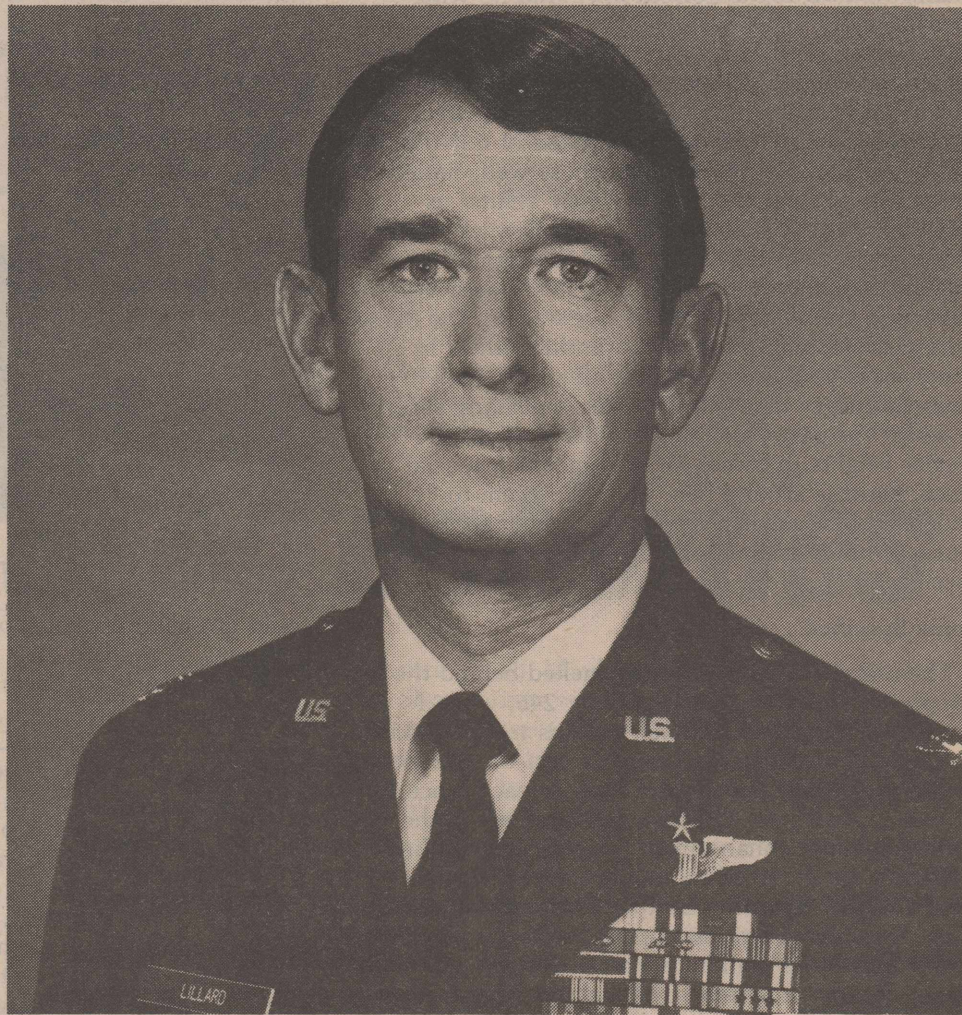

He returned to Barksdale in 1981 as the Assistant Deputy Chief of Staff for Plans at Headquarters, 8th Air Force.

He returned to the 596th Bombardment Squadron in January 1982 as its commander.

Following command, Colonel Lillard attended the National War College in Washington, D.C.

In July 1985, he moved to the Strategic Air Command Headquarters as Chief, Force Management Division, Directorate of Command Control, Deputy Chief of Staff, Operations.

Colonel Lillard's prior duty assignment was Senior Controller in the SAC Command Center from April 1986 to January 1987.

Three ATC colonels up for star

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—Three colonels assigned to Air Training Command were nominated for promotion to brigadier general. Two of those recently held key positions at Reese AFB.

Jeffrey T. Ellis, Ralph R. Rohatsch Jr. and James P. Ulm are among the 51 colonels. Air Force-wide who were on the promotion list President Reagan sent to the Senate Jan. 21.

Colonel Ellis is the ATC director of operations. He previously served as the ATC Inspector General and has been assigned to Randolph since July 1986.

He is a former prisoner of war and a command pilot with more than 3,400 flying hours, including 122 combat hours, in the F-105. Since his release from Vietnam, he has held many command positions within ATC.

Colonel Ellis commanded the 80th Student Squadron and the 88th Flying Training Squadron at Sheppard AFB, Texas. Later he moved to Vance AFB, Okla., and served as the 71st Flying Training Wing deputy commander for operations. Before transferring to Randolph, he commanded the 47th Air Base Group and the 47th FTW at Laughlin AFB, Texas.

Colonel Rohatsch is the 12th FTW commander here, assuming that position in February 1985. A San Antonio native, Colonel Rohatsch began his Air Force career in 1963.

He is a command pilot with more than 3,300 flying hours. In the early 70s, he was assigned to the Military Assistance Advisory Group as a flying training plans adviser with the South Vietnamese air force at Tan Nhut Air Base, Republic of Vietnam. Later he moved to ATC Headquarters as a T-38 flight examiner and executive officer.

He was next assigned to U.S. Air Force Headquarters in Washington, where he worked in the Congressional Inquiries Office. He later served as the deputy chief of the Senate Liaison Office in the Russell Senate Office Building.

Colonel Rohatsch next commanded the 25th Flying Training Squadron at Vance AFB before moving to the U.S. Air Force Academy, Colo., as the deputy commandant for operations with the Commandant of Cadets office.

Before assuming his present position, Colonel Rohatsch was the 64th ABG commander at Reese AFB, Texas from April 11, 1984-Jan. 20, 1985.

Colonel Ulm is the ATC Inspector General. During his 25-year Air Force career, he logged more than 5,000 flying hours, including 740 combat hours while with the 39th Air Rescue and Recovery Squadron at Tuy Hoa, Republic of Vietnam.

Colonel Ulm also commanded various ATC units. He was assigned as the 8th FTS commander and later became the director of operations and assistant deputy commander for operations at Vance AFB. He later was assigned as the 64th FTW deputy commander for operations at Reese AFB, Texas from July 1, 1982-Aug. 5, 1983.

Colonel Ulm then served as the director of standardization and evaluation in the ATC Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff for Operations at Randolph and later took command of the 14th FTW at Columbus AFB, Miss.

As I see it

Preface

What a tremendous week. The fleet was launched nearly every day into fair skies, and we're back where we need to stay—above the "timeline." Safe, quality training is the bottom line. And no wing does it better.

Second, as Yogi Berra said "You can observe a lot simply by watching." As I moved out-and-about to several organizations this past few days, it occurred to me that perhaps the deserved pause of our recent holiday season had served its purpose well. Batteries were charged. January 1987 is nearly behind us already. But as the challenges of this new year pick up speed, so does the energy level throughout the entire community. Everywhere, in every area visited this week, the evidence was visible—again, the Reese team was stepping out smartly, and together. In many ways you are already in full stride, with renewed energy that will only turn the many successes of the past year into confident visions of greater heights to come. Reese is indeed a special place, because around here you folks seem to understand better than most that "Excellence is a journey, not a destination." Let me share a couple of specifics.

Some Specifics

The recent snows had hardly melted behind the Supply Headquarter's Section Bldg. 246, when I noticed SMSgt. Jim Grimmett and his troops staking out another ambitious self-help project—a new exit in the back leading to a patio with privacy fence to provide an area for squadron get-togethers in the spring. A super enhancement for your troops, Jim. Congratulations. Even though I missed their new hard chargin' Squadron Section Commander, Capt. Tag Tartaglione on this stop, the section's new secretary Beth Sams couldn't be more pleased with their plans. Take time to drop by Bldg. 246, if you want to see what a bit of Reese self-help spirit can accomplish. In case you don't know, the whole structure was a storage area not long ago. These guys are literally renovating the place from top to bottom, with some well placed help from Lt. Col. Paul Baker's pros in CE, like MSgt. Jim Edwards.

I hadn't been over to visit the Fuels troops for a while—and that too set me up for a pleasant surprise. SMSgt. Bill Burkhardt's troops have done it again. To meet new safety standards in their parking area, the POL Control Center will have to be relocated from Bldg. T-49 to Bldg. T-46. Frankly, I could not believe what those people had done on their own to prepare their new work place. I was given a tour of a complete renovation—ceiling, walls, paneling, and a tile floor with the inlaid letters "POL." TSgt. Rickie Covalt, I'm told, was the ramrod for the whole project. And to top it off, A1C David Carr, an artist extraordinaire, had all but the finishing touches on a ten foot mural. Again, like always, this project was made possible because of the superb cooperation of our civil engineers. In particular, thanks to SSgt. Melvin Ollie of CE for excellent support and for his tour and briefing. And congratulations to the best Fuels Branch in the Air Force, bar none. API repeat performance, here we come.

Two or Three Liners of Significance

- No doubt there is one group who would cry foul if I didn't publicly acknowledge the Colonel's narrow defeat at Windmill Lanes last week. Congratulations, Chiefs. Next is racquetball.
- At Reese "we don't have fires." These were the words of Inspector, A.P. Miranda, in one of the best, most enthusiastic deliveries I've heard on fire prevention, made during Maj. Dale Frost's monthly safety meeting to the 54th IPs.

• Thanks to the BEET for last Friday's outstanding MARE scenario. Lt. Col. Dane Morvant's debriefing at the Wing Standup highlighted several real top-notch performances, with others that need some fine-tuning. READINESS is a source of pride at Reese. Thorough training BETWEEN exercises remains the key to success. If you or your people need it, see to it.

• "REESE MANOR" will be up and running next month. Bill Droll and Mitzie Hallgarth are putting the final touches on it now, and I've asked our new Base Commander, Col. Mark Lillard, to disseminate "use policies" that will make REESE MANOR useful and easily accessible to everyone at Reese. Be there for the grand opening. Mr. Robert Stone, the "Father of the MIP," has agreed to come from Washington on Feb. 20, 1987 to cut the ribbon.

Congratulations To Three More Winners

At the CGOC Quarterly Awards Banquet, honors were bestowed upon Capt. Tom Pfeiffer from the 35 FTS as IP of the Quarter while Capt. Chuck Sinclair from the Hospital garnered recognition as Support Officer of the Quarter. Super job! And once again, Joyce Holeman showed her mettle in her selection as Reese's Resource Manager of the Year. Thanks for all your dedication and hard work Joyce.

"Lead The Way"—The Focus For '87

There are indeed some profound challenges facing this Wing in the coming year, and years. I chaired an all-day closed-door session this week with all your Colonels designed specifically to address where we are, and where we are going, given resource limits, changing policies, and so forth. You need to know immediately that there's no "gloom and doom." On the contrary, Reese has the where-with-all to press forward with some exciting enhancements in every area. I'd like to thank the Colonels for their thorough preparations, and innovating thinking about what is best for Reese. It was a most productive meeting, establishing real focus for every functional area in the Wing.

Actually, the PREFACE of this article is, in fact, the CONCLUSION. Stated simply, AS I SEE IT: This Wing is off and running in 1987, with the right spirit and focus to again lead the way in ATC.

Moonlighting under the blue moon

by Lt. Col. William L. Faris
Wing IG

For those avid fans of the television show, "Moonlighting" this title may conjure up thoughts of Dave and Maddie heatedly bickering at each other or DePesto carrying on a romantic conversation with an obscene phone caller.

Although our duty in this matter is not nearly as exciting as chasing criminals in wheelchairs, the reality of our folks participating in off-duty employment demands our attention.

Air Force Regulation 30-30 lays responsibility for compliance squarely on the shoulders of those involved in off-duty employment. In addition, all levels of supervision and command have a vested interest in insuring that off-duty employment does not interfere with the mission.

Air Force personnel must not engage in outside employment or activities, with or without compensation, that:

- Interferes or is not compatible with performing their Government duties.
- May be expected to bring discredit on the Government.
- Or is otherwise inconsistent with any other provision in Air Force Regulation 30-30.

Furthermore, all commanders must ensure that each request for such employment is adequately reviewed. We must ask the question, "Will this job cut into duty time or cause inappropriate stress or strain on the individual?"

Commanders are tasked with developing an internal procedure to evaluate each applicant for off-duty employment. The bottom line is that each commander must have a good track on how many folks are moonlighting and ensure that the regulation is complied with.

For those who are engaged in off-duty employment, don't panic. We are NOT out to terminate your activity. On the contrary we need to ensure that your interests are served as well as those of the Air Force. The simplest way to do this is to ensure that ATC Form 239 is completed and reviewed by your commander prior to reporting to your off-duty employment.

Please help us in this effort to keep Reese on the right track. That's what team work is all about.

Care line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. James McIntyre, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885-(Ext.) 3273.

Kudos to...

Capt. Dave Bellamy for four years of committed service to the folk choir at Christ the King Cathedral. His skills and experience have been a great asset to the group...Ms. Mary Prindle, Folk Choir Director.

Maj. Wayne Boudreaux, Capt. Chuck Todar and 2nd Lt. Randy Allen for their outstanding presentation to the Lion's Club...Mr. Dutch Wilkinson, Littlefield Lion's Club.

Maj. Eileen Sullivan, Capt. Kathleen Koles, 2nd Lt. Cindy Lemay, 2nd Lt. William McCoy, TSgt. Lafayette Butler, Sgt. Elliot Chambliss and SrA. Lisa Sharp for their outstanding "patient-first" attitude and professional dedication while performing their duties at the hospital...Mrs. G. Boudreau.

1st Lt. Pete Edgar for his outstanding support of the Cadet of the Year (CAP) tour of Reese. His superb coordination and positive attitude produced an excellent two-week visit for the young cadet...MSgt. (USAFR) Joseph Langlois, CAP, Ontario, Calif.

The January 16 Roundup showed an NCO getting his hair cut in the Exchange Barber Shop along with a caption that reads "the sergeant keeps his hair in AFR 35-10 by getting a trim." It is apparent in the photo, that his hair does not even meet the minimum standards set forth in 35-10.

You're right—poor wording in the caption, since the troop needed a haircut. I am encouraged by the professional attitude of our Reese folks, like you, who are so quick to notice things like this. Congratulations and thanks.

Commander's Column

Superior pilot is one who. . .

by Col. William Drennan
Deputy Commander for Operations

Way back when I was a First Lieutenant, I came across a quote in a flying safety magazine that made a lasting impression on me. Although I can't remember the author and, therefore, can't give proper credit, the quotation said something to the effect that "a superior pilot is one who uses his superior judgment to keep him out of situations requiring the use of his superior skill." That statement is just as true today as it was when the now-forgotten author wrote it. It's something every pilot needs to remember, but particularly the younger ones who don't yet have a broad base of aviation experience to fall back on. Every pilot finds himself in situations from time to time for which there is no school solution—that pilot is expected to exercise good judgment so that he or she can maximize the sortie's effectiveness while also terminating it safely. Knowing how to fly is an obvious prerequisite to earning your wings. Knowing when to fly (and when not to) calls for a different set of skills, the most important of which is judgment.

Some people seem born with more than their fair share of judgment ("good common sense"). Others seem capable of developing it only through trial and error—which may not be conducive to longevity in the flying business. One aspect of good judgment is knowing what your personal limits (and limitations) are, and not exceeding them. Another aspect is leaving yourself an out. A young and very wise IP once told me, "Don't ever put yourself in a position where what you're doing has to work." In other words, give yourself some room to maneuver, literally.

Another indispensable part of good judgment is strict adherence to air discipline. There is absolutely no room in this business for anybody who cannot live up to the professional standards we must have in order to fly safe, productive sorties. The environment in which we work is too unforgiving, and the margin for error too small for us to accept anything but absolute professionalism in the air. Demand it of yourself, and demand it of those you fly with.

Reese is plentiful on activities

by CMSgt. Coy Martin
Senior Enlisted Advisor

How many times have we heard "there is nothing to do around here?" Nothing could be further from the truth.

In talking to individuals making this statement, I find most of them are not aware of the opportunities available for them to participate in activities on the base. When told there are a lot of things happening at Reese, they invariably ask, "How do I find out what's happening?"

There are several ways of finding out what's happening. The quickest way is to ask your friends. The ROUNDUP always lists upcoming activities or events taking place on base. The best way to stay abreast of the activities about to occur is to visit with the people who run the programs. Go by the gym and talk to Jake Trevino, our Athletic Director, and you may be surprised to find out how much is happening in sports. We have some outstanding athletic facilities just waiting for you to use.

Interested in activities for your children? Don Schilling, the manager of the Youth Center, will be glad to brief you on the youth activities available.

Not interested in sports and don't have children—why not visit Jean Ray at the Recreation Center or Christine Raynor at the Arts and Crafts Shop. Both of these facilities have lots to do and you never have to get out in the heat or cold.

How is the old car running? How much did you pay for your last tune-up? Stop by the Auto Hobby Shop and chat with Harry Mechin. He'll gladly show you how to do the work and you will save a considerable amount of money.

Like your exercise in small amounts? Stop by the Bowling Center and have Janet Duke show you around. Bowl a couple of lines and have one of the great sandwiches from the snack bar.

How about just a little more physical activity out in the fresh air? Pay a visit to the Golf Course and check out a set of clubs from Dick Davis. You'll enjoy playing one of the best nine hole layouts anywhere.

Really like the great outdoors? go to MWR Supply and take a look at all the great items they have for you to use on your next fishing trip. You will be amazed. Maybe you like to spend your evenings reading a good book. We have a tremendous library and Mac Odom would like to show you around. The library has a lot more than books to offer and I think you'll be surprised.

Now—if you have managed to visit all these places in the same day, you are most likely tired and could use a little relaxation and refreshment. Go see MSgt. Jerald Phillippe at the Enlisted Open Mess or Pauline Reed at the Officer's Open Mess and they most likely will be able to fill that need.

If after visiting all these people you still can't find anything that interests you, do us a favor and call Mr. Beam at Ext. 3006 and tell him where your interests lie. We are always looking for ways to improve or expand our MWR programs and welcome everyone's suggestions. We have some super people in our MWR Division and they all do a first rate job in providing programs for all of us.

I suggest we get to know them.

The measure of all love

by Chaplain (Capt.) Peter B. Otto

One evening a young mother was putting her daughter to bed. The little girl looked at her mother and said, "Mommy, you have beautiful hair. I love your hair. And, Mommy, you have beautiful eyes. I love your eyes. You have a beautiful face, Mommy, I love your face. But, Mommy, your arms are ugly and I cannot love them."

The young mother leaned close and explained how, when her daughter was a baby, there had been a fire in the house and she had to reach through the flames to snatch the infant to safety.

The little girl was quiet for awhile. Then she looked into her mother's eyes and said, "Mommy, you have beautiful hair. I love your hair. And Mommy, you have beautiful eyes and a beautiful face. And I love them too. But Mommy, your arms are the most beautiful of all and I love them the best."

Self-sacrifice is the measure of all love. We are willing to give in the measure in which we love, and when love is perfect, the giving is complete. Sometimes, sacrifice is heroic and noble. However, more often than not in our daily lives it is just simply difficult and bothersome. Yet, love can make it easy, and perfect love can make it a joy. Without love, self-sacrifice is harsh and inhuman; but love without self-sacrifice is sentimental and fatuous. Together, refined and tempered, they forge that strength of character which is the only foundation for a life of genuine excellence: fidelity and loyalty.

Each day brings us many opportunities to demonstrate the quality of our

Booze, drugs, thrills—fun?

by Ken Gadbois
Editor, Border Eagle
Laughlin AFB, Texas

"Buckle up! Wear a helmet! Slow down! Don't drink and drive!" the young man chanted at me, smiling. "You're wearing it out, Gabby. I'm sick of hearing it."

He was being facetious, of course, throwing a good-natured jibe at the guy who picks and chooses what goes into the biggest English language weekly publication in Del Rio. The crush of business at the moment prevented me from giving him more than a "that's too bad for you," crack, and it wasn't until later that I had time to compose a more thoughtful response. It goes like this:

Get a doctor, sonny, cause you're going to keep hearing it. I'm sick of hearing about busted bones and bodies, ruined lives, foreshortened careers, crippled and maimed victims of the social diseases of thoughtlessness, carelessness and sheer stupidity.

love in the sacrifices we are called to make in faithfulness to our duties and our vocations. It may be a simple thing, like giving up some time to listen to a child, a spouse, or a friend in need. It is certainly there in the challenge to do our

I'm tired of tragedies reported daily, all associated with one form or another of that apocalyptic Four Horseman of our generation, Booze, Drugs, Thrills and Fun.

I'm mad at those who lack the self-discipline and concern for others to use every available form of safety devices to protect themselves and their children from the consequences of inevitable accident experiences.

I'm disgusted with the "it can't happen to me" mentality of people who ought to know better, based on what they see and hear around them. The laws of average, and Corrigan's Corollary to Murphy's Law combine to dictate that it will happen, because it does!

I'm contemptuous of those who refuse to exercise self control in their use of recreational alcohol. Booze is like fire; a little can warm, but too much is a devastation, consuming life, liberty, property and soul. A recent beer commercial says, "Drunks aren't funny, anymore. People appreciate others who know the difference between a few, and a few too jobs just that much better.

Someday, it might even be the ultimate call to give up one's very life for others. God Himself has given us the perfect example of purest love. With His daily help, we too will measure up.

many."

I'm angry at the people of every age whose violations of America's controlled substance laws endanger a whole civilization, a whole democratic experiment which has, thus far, proven to be the best possible way of life ever attempted by mankind. Drug abuse destroys, not some things, but everything we citizens and patriots of this nation hold sacred; life, liberty, the pursuit of happiness, our fortunes, the dignity of man. There is no punishment too capital to inflict on those who exploit the stupidity of drug users.

Plan to stay sick, sonny, because I will use every opportunity at my command to remind the people of this community that speed kills, helmets and seatbelts save lives, and drug abuse is a cancer that destroys the vital organs of liberty itself.

If our efforts can spare one person, one family, the pain of experiencing the tragedies of accident or addiction, it is more than compensation for your discomfort.

Air Force Academy, Officer Training School and Reserve Officer Training Corps Graduates may apply for the two-year academic program at an overseas University.

The program provides officers with an in-depth understanding of the social, political and economic characteristics of the particular countries in which they study. The program seeks officers with demonstrated language, leadership and scholastic abilities, officials said.

Applicants must be regular officers who will have completed at least three years but not more than eight years of commissioned service, and not more than 10 years active Federal Military Service at the time of the July meeting of the Olmstead Foundation Board of Directors. The Board will select two Air Force Academy graduates and one OTS or ROTC graduate.

Eligible officers may volunteer by submitting a letter with the required documents to HQ AFMPC/DPMRPC2, Randolph AFB, Texas, 78150-6001 by March 1. Additional information is available at the Reese Base Personnel Office Customer Service Unit, Ext. 3276.

Luncheon Scheduled at Center

The Child Care Center Luncheon will be held Feb. 10, 11 a.m. to 12:30 a.m. at the Child Care Center.

Newcomer's Supper held Monday

A Newcomer's Supper will be held Monday, 6:30 p.m., at the Base Chapel. Everyone is invited to attend.

Lowry to remain open

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—The Deputy Assistant Secretary of Defense for Installations has removed Lowry AFB, Colo., from further consideration for closure, ATC officials said.

The base was nominated as a candidate for closure in 1986. An Air Force study determined that closing Lowry would not be appropriate. The study indicated that relocating Lowry's training facilities would be very costly—probably prohibitively expensive, officials said.

As a result of the decision not to close the base, Lowry is now authorized to proceed with military construction projects that had been placed on hold.

IRA: Still A Sound Investment

The IRA is still the best retirement savings instrument and a sound investment vehicle. Changes brought about by Tax Reform will begin with 1987 taxes so all contributions made for 1986 are still fully deductible. Deductible contributions for 1987 taxes will be based on the filer's adjusted gross income and whether or not the individual is covered by a company-sponsored pension plan. Most people will still be eligible for the full deduction or at least a significant partial deduction of taxable income.

Earnings on the IRA are still tax-deferred and the contribution limit remains at $2,000 with a spousal limit of $2,250.

An RFCU Individual Retirement Account may be opened with as little as $10.00 and contributions for 1986 will be accepted until April 15, 1987. Come by for details on how an IRA can still build your retirement fund for the future and provide a tax break for today.

Tag takes over squadron

Capt. Dana P. Tartaglione (Tag) has been appointed commander, Squadron Section for Resource Management. He succeeds Capt. Laurence K. Rucker who transferred to Randolph AFB, Texas.

Captain Tartaglione is not a stranger to Reese. He was originally chief, International Training with the 64th Student Squadron, and has been assigned to Reese since Dec. 4, 1984.

Before receiving his commission from the Utah State University AFROTC program in 1980, he had been a security policeman for five years. His previous assignments include a long tour at Ramstein AB, Germany, and a short tour at Iraklion, Crete.

His hobbies include racquetball, weight training, and softball. Among his many additional duties, he will be immediately put to work plotting strategy to capture next year's Commander's Trophy.

Weltzin taught 'right'

The Instructor of the Quarter for the Field Training Detachment 429 is SSgt. Charles L. Weltzin. Sergeant Weltzin is a T-37/T-38 maintenance instructor.

"This is the best job in the Air Force, and the people at the detachment are a super group to work with," he said. On accepting the award, Sergeant Weltzin added, "This award is a product of several people who taught me the right way."

Sergeant Weltzin will now compete for the Instructor of the Year. If he is selected he will then be in competition to win NCO of the Year.

Sergeant Weltzin is originally from Chicago, Ill. but now calls Dallas, Texas home. He and his wife Sandy reside in Lubbock.

by SMSgt. Jimmy L. Robinson,
1958 Comm Squadron

Cadet Flight Officer Christopher Dillard, Squadron 20, Civil Air Patrol (CAP) Cadet of the Year for 1986, spent several days at Reese AFB, touring various units on base.

Capt. Joe Langlois, commander, squadron 20, CAP, Chino, Calif., is also a Master Sergeant IMA Reservist who works in the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron. Last year, during his yearly two-week tour of duty, he made arrangements with Col. James McIntyre and Col. Charles Edwards (then Base Commander) to bring the Cadet of the Year to Reese in January, 1987.

During his stay at Reese, he toured the 64FTW, 54FTS, CE, Security Police, flight line, 1958CS Control Tower and much more.

Cadet Flight Officer Dillard has been in the CAP since 1984, and has worked his way from Cadet Basic to Flight Officer. He has also received the Air Force Communications Command (AFCC) Maj. Gen. William "Billy" Mitchell Award along the way. He just turned 18-years-old, and he plans to be a pilot.

Grandmother read it and smiled

by SSgt. Rickey E. Harrell
ESC Public Affairs

SAN ANTONIO, Texas—As the noncommissioned officer in charge of media relations at Electronic Security Command headquarters, I monitor the Hometown News Release Program.

When I receive the forms, I check for a valid reason for submission and other factors, including timeliness, accuracy and a valid signature.

At times, the checking and logging of names is tedious. The other day, though, while going over several forms, I noticed something that underscored the whole meaning and purpose of the hometown program.

The young airman who submitted this particular release was from Torrington, Wyo. She had just arrived at her first duty station in Germany, according to block eight on the form which lists the event or reason for submission.

Under the section that asks about parents, guardians or other relatives, the young airman had put her grandmother's name. That's not unusual, so I continued checking the form. I noticed that she had put one year in block 15 that asks for "total years active duty."

She had filled in all the required blocks correctly, even signing a readable signature in block 20 at the end. It was at this time I noticed the comments she had scribbled in the "remarks" section.

Most people who make remarks in this section add information concerning the event. Others ask for a specific hometown newspaper they'd like the release to go to. Usually, the section is left blank.

On this particular release, the one-striper had written, "Thank you so much for caring. I miss you so much."

Now, I know nothing of her frame of mind when she penned that personal message. Maybe she wanted her grandmother to know that she had arrived safe and sound and simply missed her home. Maybe she hoped her grandmother would read the words of appreciation and smile in silent understanding.

Whatever her reasons, they were important enough for her to use the Hometown News Release Program as a means of expressing herself to friends and family back home in Torrington, Wyo.

Turning in a hometown news form is not a requirement for anyone. Most people, regardless of the miles or years involved, like to maintain a positive image in their hometown community...be it through a promotion, move or decoration.

I'm glad the airman from Torrington was given the opportunity to complete the hometown news release. More importantly, I hope her grandmother read it and smiled.

Prayer Breakfast to signal world

WASHINGTON—AFNS—Secretary of Defense Caspar Weinberger says the National Prayer Breakfast on Thursday shows the world we are a "people who know our heritage, who seek to live by noble convictions and high moral values."

The annual prayer breakfast, held in the nation's capital, is attended by the President, members of congress, and other government leaders. Military bases throughout the world join in similar celebrations.

The celebration of this event at Reese is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 18 at the Officer's Open Mess at 7 a.m. The guest speaker will be Chaplain Donald C. Ofsdahl, command chaplain, ATC.

In a Jan. 18 memorandum to the military departments, the secretary said, "The occasion is not just historical, it is much more important than that. It signals the world that we are a nation, a people, who know our heritage, who seek to live by noble convictions and high moral values, and that our ultimate trust is in our creator.

"As Americans, we are richly blessed with a land of freedom, a government that conscientiously pursues peace among nations, a people who are concerned for the well-being of others and who hold high moral and spiritual values. These are priceless attributes to our heritage.

"You, the military, of all people, know the cost of peace; the value of freedom; the necessity for vigilance; the demand of personal sacrifice and the roll that it takes upon our families, loved ones and friends. You know the price of dedication and commitment to keep our great nation strong, and a power for good in a world of conflict and turmoil.

"Who ever you are, wherever you are, I join with you in your observance of our national prayer breakfast and in the prayer that our creator may continue to bless us, grant us wisdom, and strengthen us in our pursuit of peace in the world and harmony among the nations."

POW/MIA prayer day set

Sunday has been dedicated a day of prayer for all Americans still missing and unaccounted for in Southeast Asia.

All services in the Reese Chapel will include special prayers to mark the event according to Lt. Col. William McGraw, Installation Chaplain.

The significance of this date is that it is the first Sunday after the 14th anniversary of the signing of the agreements which ended United States involvement in the Vietnam War. The theme of this year's ceremonies is "Unity in Prayer for POW/MIA's."

The purpose of this special day is to convey a message of national unity to the governments of Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia, as well as to support the priority efforts of our President in resolving this humanitarian issue.

Remember

There are some people we need,
To think of every day;
They're the brave but not forgotten,
The POW's and MIA.

They have not been here with us,
They've been gone for quite some time;
To defend and love America,
Was their only crime.

Though the war for us is over,
And we are free to roam;
They will not regain their freedom,
Until we bring them home.

So those of us who care,
Do make this pledge today;
We will never be at rest,
Until they're home to stay.

By SSgt. Raymond W. Courville

The mission has just begun

by Marty Brazil
Company of Military Historians

It was dawn as the waist gunner hoisted himself into the B-17 squatting on its hardstand at a U.S. airfield in rural England.

A well-oiled team, the crew of the big four-engined Fortress settled into their posts.

A B-17 bomber sprouts 10 machine guns, positioned to cover the sky around it in a three-dimensional sphere.

The huge airplane rumbled down the runway. The waist gunner folded his ammo belts neatly into the box alongside his gun. The B-17 picked up speed and rose into the air like a giant condor.

It was a long, slow climb to the assigned altitude and the gunners in the waist spent time relaxing with small talk.

Soon, other B-17s were floating alongside and the battle formation was complete.

"Test-fire your guns," came the command from up front.

The gunner tilts his gun toward the channel and squeezes off a short burst. The gleaming cylinders, lying in neat ranks in their belt, feed into the breech with smoothness. The other nine guns on the ship clear their throats as well.

As the formation passes over the coast into France, the clouds lay far below and the big planes strain into the clear upper reaches of the atmosphere. The cold air is too thin for comfortable breathing. Oxygen masks are strapped on and adjusted; electric leads are plugged into sockets from boots and clothing. The only way to talk now is over the intercom. Conversation falls off self-consciously.

The closer they get to the target, the less they want to talk. No time for thought now; all senses are second to the sense of sight. Suddenly, the dreaded announcement comes clearly through the headset, "Bandits—12 o'clock high." And then, "Bandits—low at 3 o'clock." The sky is full of black specks, growing larger to become the vicious silhouettes every Allied airman knows so well—Messerschmitts, the pride of the Luftwaffe.

The waist gunner squints through the plexiglass and sees the Messerschmitts swooping down out of the sun just off the Fortress' right wing...too many to count. He swivels his gun to meet the threat.

The lead fighter seems to be rushing straight at him, spitting fire from its ugly body. The tracers reach out for him and he tenses for a hit. They fall short, dropping beneath the Fortress' belly.

The gunner waits until the German plane fills his sight, then hits and holds the trigger. His .50 caliber machine gun begins kicking, its tracers flying toward the Messerschmitt, tracking it and finding it. The enemy plane drops sharply to the left, trailing smoke.

By this time, the Fortress is under attack from all sides. Voices on the intercom sound excited and confused.

"Watch out! Nine o'clock high...! Two at six!...What's wrong with the tail gun?"

A sudden hole in the fuselage admits a stream of sub-zero air into the waist position. Instantly, a shield of ice forms on the exhaust valve of the gunner's oxygen mask, blocking the flow. He brushes it away with one hand.

German fighters whistle all around them, trying to break the formation of bombers. They remind the gunner of Indians circling a wagon train in a western film.

The voices on the intercom are fewer now. Five guns, maybe six, are still firing; there's no time to wonder who's been hit or how bad. The kicking of the gun assures the gunner he's still alive.

They can see the target now. Flak begins blossoming around them. As dangerous as the black plumes are, the gunner is glad to see them. A threat to the German fighters as well as the bombers, the Messerschmitts back away from the flak.

Up front, the bombardier wraps himself around the Norden bombsight, aligns the crosshairs and waits as the bomber bucks and buffets its way across a layer of black, shrapnel-spouting puffs.

After what seems like years, the bombardier shouts, "Bombs away!" as tons of high explosive bombs begin their long drop. They fall with neat precision—on target.

Free of the bombs, the B-17s soar high and light on the updrafts pushing at their wings. Despite the cold, the gunner is sweating rivers inside his flight suit.

"Bandits—10 o'clock high."

The sharp-eyed German pilots see that the forward guns aren't working and come in head on. Long lines of holes appear as the bullets stitch the ship. The Fortresses lumber on, homeward bound.

The German attack force is less than half of what it was. A dozen or so had died under the combined fire of the heavy bombers. Others, running short of fuel, were forced to retreat. The force of the attack becomes less and less as the B-17s race back to England.

They patch up their wounded as best they can and anxiously count the number of B-17s still in formation. One or two are billowing smoke as they struggle to keep up with the others. The waist gunner silently urges the wounded birds on.

It was a battered, bruised, but happy and victorious bunch of American airmen who crawled out of their aircraft back in England; the mission is over.

...but there's another to fly tomorrow.

Baggage interlining is the process of checking baggage from origin to destination when traveling involves two or more flights. The military has now made arrangements with civilian airlines to interline baggage on MAC charter flights for overseas destinations. Be sure to advise airline personnel that you are connecting to an international MAC flight and show them your Military Transportation Authorization (MTA). The airline representative should then check your baggage all the way to your final overseas destination.

The new baggage interlining procedures will alleviate the hassle of dragging and rechecking baggage from commercial flights onto MAC flights. It also allows the traveler more time to transfer between terminals and helps prevent the possibility of arriving late for port calls on MAC flights.

Airlines participating in the new baggage interlining program are: American, Delta, TWA, United, Northwest Orient, Eastern, Piedmont, Peoples' Express, and U.S. Air.

For more information concerning baggage interlining contact your TMO passenger service representative, at Ext. 6143/6144.

Blacks in battle from 1775 to now

Editors note: Sunday, Feb. 1, marks the beginning of Black History Month. The theme chosen for this year is "The Afro-American and the Constitution: Colonial Times to the present."

by Tom Joyce
American Forces Information Service

In November 1775, Gen. George Washington signed an order forbidding the recruitment of blacks during the American Revolution. One month later, he reversed himself. Washington's wisdom is demonstrated by the contributions blacks made to the growth of the United States and the shaping of the armed forces that protect it.

The entire nation, the Department of Defense and each military service will once again celebrate Black History Month in February. This year's theme, "The Afro-American and the Constitution: Colonial Times to the Present," calls attention to the extensive military contributions made by black Americans throughout the history of the United States.

The early contributions of black Marines, soldiers and seamen were often omitted from American history books, according to authorities. But the contributions by blacks were many, even in the early Colonial days.

Although blacks first fought for the U.S. armed forces during the American Revolution, many more contributed to America's defense in the War of 1812. Records show that during this period, black men served in Regular Army units, fought in battle and were taken prisoner.

During the Civil War, black Americans took up arms for both the Union and the Confederacy. In 1862, the Union Army allowed blacks to enlist, marking the beginning of the "United States Colored Troops." Twenty-four black men were honored for their bravery with the Medal of Honor during the Civil War.

It was during the Spanish-American War that black officers first assumed leadership roles. National Guard units played an important part in the U.S. military forces, and black regiments were well-represented. The Eighth Illinois Infantry Regiment was commanded by a black colonel, and several other units were commanded by black field grade officers.

Records show that almost 400,000 American blacks served their nation during World War I. Although there were many heroes, two men, Henry Johnson and Needham Roberts, stand out.

Pvt. Henry Johnson was attacked by a group of at least 12 German soldiers one night while he was on sentry duty. Although severely wounded, he went to the aid of a fellow soldier who was being taken away by the Germans. Johnson continued resisting until the Germans retreated. Johnson was one of the first 171 black Americans to be awarded the prestigious French Croix de Guerre during World War I.

Pvt. Needham Roberts also received the French medal under circumstances similar to Johnson's. While on sentry duty, Needham was severely wounded, but continued to resist the enemy, even to the point of throwing grenades from a prone position.

But it was during World War II that black Americans emerged to perform brilliantly in almost every specialty. One author, Robert E. Greene, noted that "the pattern of exclusion because of skin color was beginning to lose its uniformity and strength." Clearly, black officers and NCOs assumed greater responsibilities. For the first time, he wrote, "the achievements of blacks in military endeavors were documented and accepted without debate."

Black Americans' service during the Korean War was reflected by heroes such as Pvt. William Thompson, a Medal of Honor recipient. Thompson's unit was being overrun, but he remained at his machine gun, pinning down the attackers. His actions allowed the rest of his unit to withdraw to safety. Thompson continued to fire at the enemy until he was killed.

From 1962 onward, a new black soldier emerged. He was "not a laborer or body servant, a part-time soldier or a rare hero, but an ordinary soldier, fighting and working on equal terms with whites in the military service of his country," in the words of one observer.

Black contributions in Vietnam are legendary, and it is to this period that many young black Americans look to find their heroes. There were men not unlike Sgt. Rodney Davis, who saved the lives of his fellow Marines by throwing himself upon a grenade. Davis was awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions.

Much is known about the contributions blacks have made to the military in modern times.

But Black History Month is also a time to remember the enormous contributions blacks have made from the day the republic was formed.

Weather

TSgt. Mark J. Campbell
Det. 11, 24 Weather Squadron

Reese has the characteristics of the South Plains once again. The weather has been warming up and the winds are beginning to be felt. The temperature warmed up enough to thaw the area and melt most of the snow last Saturday and Sunday.

No precipitation has fallen during the past week and the temperatures went below freezing only at night.

There are a series of fronts that are developing out west and one of them is producing quite a winter storm for the Sierra Nevada range. The jet stream is moving right overhead and then dips a bit to the south. It is this that will keep the storms mainly to the east of our area. As the fronts come into the proximity of the Reese area, the winds will be the only thing that will change.

On Friday, there will be a front that will extend into the Reese area and Saturday there is a chance that we may get some light precipitation. However, there is no snow expected at this time. The temperatures are expected to cool a couple of degrees by Friday as the front approaches the area. After the passage of the front, the temperatures will be in the upper fifties on Friday and by Saturday, the expected high will be in the low sixties. The winds will have a northly component and gust to about 25 mph during the afternoon hours.

By Sunday the temperature should be back into the mid sixties and the wind will calm down. In summary, the weather will be more spring like and a bit windy. Have a good weekend and for an updated forecast call Ext. 3570.
