THANKSGIVING

Today the Pilgrim Fathers and Governor Bradford appear as mythical characters and the Mayflower looms as something forgotten from out of the past. We can barely comprehend the feast of Thanksgiving shared so long ago by the white man and his friendly Indian brothers; the meager harvests, the fearless courage in a strange land, the frontier struggles are but hazy visions from another world. Our task today is so tremendous, so demanding of our every effort that the past has faded into the desperate realities of the present—yet we are thankful, even this Thanksgiving.

The Pilgrims came to the new land for freedom and from that day to this, we have sacrificed and struggled to pay for those first principles of liberty. There have been times when peace was almost completely within our grasp but somehow it seems at times to slip through our fingers. Today the cost of that peace cannot even be estimated but we are thankful that we still have the privilege of defending such liberties; we are thankful that there are still democratic countries that cannot wilfully bend to totalitarianism; we rejoice that there are those that will not surrender to force.

In reality we do have much to be thankful for this Thanksgiving and even for many days to come. This last Thursday in November when we take inventory of blessings, we may find much loss but still much for which we are grateful. Thanksgiving is measured by the faith and spirit of one in his attitude toward conditions affecting him. Each has a moment of sacrifice but each has a measure of real gratefulness. So with this in mind throughout the nation we bow our head in deep and humble gratitude and thankfulness that we are still free and that liberty still means something.

Turner, aged 50 years, lease foreman and field superintendent for the King Petroleum Co., and the North Star Co., was murdered sometime Wednesday night in front of his tent in Block 74, near Newtown. A court of inquiry was held before Justice of the Peace J. R. Chatham last night and upon the face of the evidence Wade Adams was ordered arrested and placed in jail to await investigation by the grand jury.

Thousands of people came to Burk Burnett last Saturday to celebrate Armistice Day, this being the only city in Wichita county that devoted the entire day in honoring the boys who fought and died in the great world war.

ing with Mrs. Hub Moore. Games were played and Mrs. O. T. Kimbrough won high score in Pitch and Mrs. Ross White the booby prize.

Rev. and Mrs. B. R. Robinson left Wednesday for Waco to attend the Baptist state convention.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Cannon left Friday for Mexia where they will make their home for awhile.

The great barbecue given on the Wid Philips farm on Armistice Day by Wid Philips and "Fat" Kane was a wonderful success. It was estimated that 800 people from far and near were in attendance.

The charter of the Burk Burnett Rotary club was presented to the members Tuesday by District Governor John Singleton. Sixty-five guests and members were in attendance. Blake Grennell, the president, accepted the charter.

THE OLD JUDGE SAYS...

"Judge, I didn't realize till the other night when I ran across an article in the paper what a whole of a lot of industrial alcohol the government needs for the war."

"I should say it does, Chet. I understand the beverage distillers around the country are producing about 240,000,000 gallons of industrial alcohol this year for ammunition, tires, and other things. I'd say it's mighty fortunate these distilleries are available to do the job. Otherwise, if we still had prohibition, the government would have had to spend millions of dollars and use up a lot of critical materials to build plants... to say nothing of all the time it would take. It might have been just another case of 'too little, too late.'"

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

S. North African Occupation Seen 'Springboard' for European Front; Hitler's Seizure of Southern France Arms Axis Forces for Russ Campaign

When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the writer and not necessarily of this newspaper. Released by Western Newspaper Union.

Italy in North Africa occupied by U. S. expeditionary forces under Dwight D. Eisenhower will be used as a springboard for offensive against Italy, the Adriatic Balkans and possibly southern France, military experts believe.

TIMETABLE: Schedule

Immediate jobs had remained with Dwight D. ("Iron Mike") Eisenhower's American invasion after they had completed spectacular blitzkrieg of Morocco and Algeria in the time of 77 hours.

HITLER: Seizes All France

Military observers agreed that Hitler's seizure of unoccupied France meant a further lengthening of his lines and a weakening of his forces.

The Fuehrer had no other choice than to try to close the "back door" to prospective Allied invasion by ordering his own legions southward to the Mediterranean and the Spanish frontier and those of his Italian "stooge" northward to the Riviera.

But Hitler's move into southern France meant that 20 to 30 Axis divisions would be tied down in occupation duties, thus weakening the English channel invasion coast and also his forces along the far-flung Russian front where action was at a stalemate.

Reports from Russia indicated the Nazis had already begun to withdraw troops to build up their defenses elsewhere in Europe. These were further substantiated by word from Greece indicating the arrival of fresh German units at key seaport bases.

Significantly, Hitler had first stopped his occupation forces 30 miles short of the French naval base at Toulon, designating it as a "camp retranche" to be by-passed and set apart from occupation. Center of speculation since the 1940 armistice, the French fleet comprising 62 warships was the prize at stake with the Axis standing on the near side of the Mediterranean and Allies on the other.

ALLIES OPTIMISTIC: Channel Thrust?

From both sides of the Atlantic official optimism over the war's future outlook was expressed by leaders as a result of the Allied successes in North Africa.

President Roosevelt predicted the Axis' inevitable defeat, and welcomed the increasing number of Frenchmen who are joining the United Nations' cause.

In London Prime Minister Churchill for the first time since the bleak days of 1940 told the British public to rejoice. Mr. Churchill pointed out that a direct thrust across the English channel was coming in due time. He suggested that the day would be nearer as soon as it was evident that Germany was becoming "demoralized."

The extent of the armada that had carried American and British forces to the shores of North Africa was disclosed by Oliver Lytton, British minister of production, who said that 500 transports and 350 warships had comprised the mammoth invasion fleet.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

ETTA, MALTA: British Malta opened a new airfield ceremonies presided by Lord Gort, commander in chief. Lord Gort said he was glad to see the day when which he had withstood so many aerial attacks would be advanced base for an offensive Italy in movements in Africa.

HAVANA: President Fulgencio Batista of Cuba will pay an official visit to the United States, arriving in Washington December 8, it was announced here. The Cuban chief executive will confer with President Roosevelt and then visit various American cities. General Batista will make the trip on the invitation of President Roosevelt and will be a White House guest overnight.

Merchant Marines Taught 'Abandon Ship' Methods

Canadian Oil Reserve Harnessed by Science

Ten thousand square miles of prehistoric, mineral-rich oil sands in Alberta, Canada, will provide the United Nations with huge quantities of oil. Experimental production has been in effect for more than a year at McMurray, 300 miles northeast of Edmonton. Photos show (left) conveyor belts carrying oil sands to the separation plant where, through flotation, hot water washes oil free from sand. Right: "Black gold" flows freely through the pipeline after the separation process is completed.

Bullets for Offense and Defense

U. S. Flying Fortresses not only spell death in the form of heavy bombs. Their excellent armor plating provides a good defense against enemy fighter attacks, and the many guns with which the Fortresses are equipped make them deadly to the would-be attacker. Somewhere in Great Britain a Flying Fortress prepares for a raid over Hitler's Europe. Picture shows its cartridge belts that feed the machine guns being checked.

Air Raid Signal

Police Chief James Gray of McKeesport, Pa., with home-made air raid signal which he put together with a couple of pieces of old pipe. He devised this signal after McKeesport was unable to agree on a signal. Gray got the idea from an old police whistle, and submitted his creation as an alternative to a $100 air horn which the defense council had contemplated buying.

Notes of an Innocent Bystander

The Magazines: Lieut. John Mason Brown takes a civilian wallop at Archibald Henderson, G. B. Shaw's blogger, in The Saturday Review. Henderson kept "I-ing" his way into the narrative, said Brown, until "what was supposed to be Shaw's life managed to become Mr. Henderson's scrapbook" . . . Irving Wallace quotes a couple of fabulous Hollywood shoestringers in Coronet on how they can make profitable flickers so fast. "Because," explained the quickie wizards, "we don't have to struggle through red tape, stooges and relatives" . . . Pearl Buck's story, "The Enemy," in Harper's reminds you what wonderful things can be done with words, if you have talent . . . Woolcott's brilliant story of a refugee in Reader's Digest points out that our first refugees were called Pilgrims—an observation that this dept last-lined more than a year ago . . . Looky, you mag correspondents at the Fronts: We aren't panting to know how bumpy your plane rides are, or how ousyly your meals. Let's have something about the war and the warriors . . . Commenting on the news that three thousand dead Japs received medals from their gov't, Time observes: "The interesting thing was not that Japan had so many heroes, but that the heroes were dead." Punchy sarcasm.

The Front Pages: With a second front raging on African sands and a third front blazing on Guadalcanal, some editorialists are still whooping it up for a second front . . . Hanson Baldwin's lucid military essays about the Solomons, in the Times, are another glorious page of journalism's war reportage . . . As soon as the gazettes finished patting Congress for having the moxie to pass the 'teen age draft bill before the elections, Congressional monkey-wrench throwers made certain it would be deferred until after them . . . The editors have jumped to the defense of the AP in the gov't anti-trust action against the news service. They claim it threatens freedom of the press. Could be. But who tried to defend that freedom when the racing sheets were banned from the stands?

The Intelligentsia: Carl Sandburg's epic four-volume treatise of Lincoln and the Civil War has been digested into a single meaty volume, "Storm Over the Land" (Harcourt, Brace). It's a gold mine of historical knowledge . . . Two decades of Thomas Mann's wisdom have been put between covers in "Order of the Day" (Knopf). You don't have to be told that it contains a shining intelligence worth wrapping around your mind . . . Like the dress suit in "Tales of Manhattan," a passport strings to gether the arresting story of Ed Beattie's life as a UP foreign newsboy in "Freely to Pass" (Crowell) . . . The typewriters of foreign correspondents may be turning out oceans of books, but each performs a vital function—painting an important segment of the background for the global struggle.

Edward W. Beattie Jr., the United Press correspondent, whose new book, "Freely to Pass," is a click, tells this one . . . At the Munich conference there was a large bowl containing a lone goldfish on a table . . . Someone suggested that they all try to catch it . . . Daladier cautiously rolled up a starched cuff, put his hand into the water and made a grab, but the fish easily got away . . . Chamberlain tried to hook it with his umbrella handle and failed . . . Mussolini shot out his chin, put on his most awesome scowl and lunged with both paws. He almost got it . . . Hitler stepped up and started bailing out the water with a teacup . . . Soon there was only a little water left and the fish flopped around dismally on its side . . . "Grab him, grab him!" cried Benito. "No," said Hitler, "first he must cry for help!"

Dewey got this telegram on his election: "Congratulations and all the other headachings that go with being a winner."

Judith Evelyn of "Angel Street" relays the latest draft fable. A near-sighted youngster with thick lensed specs was put in IA. "Didn't they examine your eyes?" asked a pal. "No," he said, "they just counted 'em!"

Typewriter Ribbons: Ring Lardner: He looked at me like I was a side dish he hadn't ordered . . . Edith Wharton: A lady of energetic eyebrows . . . B. Alexander: Her wrinkles proved that time had dug in for a long stay . . . Margaret Bailey: She wore conviction like a well cut gown . . . Anne Parrish: A face as calm as custard . . . O. Henry: She gave him a well-manufactured glance of a cultured lady . . . John G. Pollard: Genealogy means tracing yourself back to people better than you are.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

The government's goal is to produce synthetic rubber at a rate of more than $00,000 tons per year by the end of 1943. Even without a war program requiring tremendous quantities of rubber, the U. S. used 648,000 tons of rubber in 1940. Any tire made in the last two or three years is good for eight to ten years if not worn out in service. In 1933, 900 farm tractors were sold with rubber tires and 3,000 steel wheeled tractors were changed over to rubber. Six years later 161,500 rubber tired tractors were bought by American farmers and in addition 48,300 were converted to rubber wheels. Following a steadily advancing position, tire life in the U. S. has roughly doubled in each of the past decades. Jerry Shaw

MEATS—Fast Cookers and Slow Cookers

Both belong in wartime meals
Dorothy Greig

Hamburgers with Savory Sauce, on snowy mounds of whipped potatoes are fast cookers to serve on a war-working day.

"NOW wouldn't you know," fretted a friend recently, "that just when I should spend more effort on meal getting, with all this war work I actually have less time for it."

That's the pickle most of us are in these days. We must do a better than ever job of feeding our families—but in less time. Short cuts—we need to know them all. We should remember how quickly we can serve nourishing soup, by simply opening a can. We should know how to make use of packaged flour mixes, know how to cook a substantial meat dish in double quick time.

For meat on busy days, we select a fast cooker—something that can be even broiled or cooked top stove in little time.

For instance, here's a fast cooker—meat patties. But fixed this way, they're not only fast but extra flavorful because of the mock turtle soup used as moistener in the mixture, and also in the sauce:

- Hamburgers with Savory Sauce
- 1 tablespoon butter
 - 3 tablespoons onion, chopped
 - 1 pound ground beef
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 2 slices white bread
 - 2 tablespoons condensed mock turtle soup

Cook the chopped onion in butter until soft, but not brown. Trim crusts from bread and make crumbs from the slices. Combine ground beef, cooked onion, seasonings, bread crumbs and mock turtle soup (just as it comes from the can). Mix well and shape into fat patties. Brown hamburgers on each side in a little butter or fat then reduce heat and pour the hot "Savory Sauce" over the browned hamburgers. Simmer the hamburgers in the sauce for 4 to 5 minutes. Serve on toast or on a mound of mashed potatoes.

Savory Sauce: Add 3 tablespoons water and 3 tablespoons milk to the remainder of the can of mock turtle soup. Heat and pour this sauce over the browned hamburgers in war time. On unheated days, let's trot out our long time simmered pot roasts, roast chickens, slow oven baked casseroles.

This pork chop casserole is a long timer. It demands time to cook. But what melting tenderness is ours, how rich the gravy, what appetizing whiffs greet us as we set it proudly on the table!

- Pork Chop and Rice Casserole
- 4 pork chops (approximately 1 1/2 lbs.)
 - 4 tablespoons uncooked rice
 - 4 slices onion
 - 1 can condensed tomato soup
 - 1 can (14 oz.) tomato juice
 - 1 tablespoon sugar
 - 2 teaspoons vinegar
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 3/4 teaspoon cinnamon—ground
 - 1/2 teaspoon cloves—ground

Trim the fat off the pork chops, leaving only about 1/4 inch of fat on the edge and put the chops in a casserole. Put a tablespoon of rice on each pork chop and a slice of onion on top of the rice. Make a sauce of the remaining ingredients and heat to boiling. Pour the hot sauce over the pork chops in the casserole, cover and bake in a moderate oven (350° F.) for two hours. Serves 3 to 4.

Christian Science Services

"Soul and Body" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 22.

The Golden Text is: "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" (I Corinthians 3: 16).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "...yea, though we have known Christ after the flesh, yet now henceforth know we him no more... Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Corinthians 5: 16, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "A demonstration of the facts of Soul in Jesus' way resolves the dark visions of material sense into harmony and immortality" (page 428).

The Church of Christ Presents

A CHANGE OF HEART
By Austin Varner, Minister
Members of the church of Christ are accused of not believing in a change of heart or in heart felt religion. But the members of the church of Christ do believe in a change of heart and the preachers preach on those subjects quite often. We believe that it is absolutely essential that the heart of man be changed before one can be saved from his sins. However we do not believe nor teach that there must or can be a change of man's old physical heart that pumps the blood to the different parts of the body. It cannot be changed any more than man's liver or any of the other vital organs of man. When we read in 2 Sam. 15:6 where Absalom stole the hearts of the men of Israel we do not understand that to mean that he stole their physical hearts. We understand it to mean that he stole their affections. Which one of Lydia's hearts did the Lord open? Act. 16:14. It could not have been her physical heart. In which heart was the Pentecostians pricked? Act. 2:37. In Act. 15:4 we find that some were cut to the heart because of Stephen's discourse. Was it their physical hearts? No, for had it been their physical heart they would not have had strength to stone Stephen to death. Then the Bible heart that must be changed is not the physical heart.

WHAT IS THE SPIRITUAL HEART? If it must be changed before one can be saved we must learn what it is. We have learned what it is not. We know that the spiritual man is not the physical man, and that the inner man is not the outer man. We can better determine what the heart is by learning what it does. If we should see a man building a house we would not have to ask him what he is for we would know by the tools he is using that the man is a carpenter. We may learn what a thing is by what it does. We can describe the physical heart by giving what part it plays in the circulatory system. So it is with the spiritual heart of man.

In Matt. 9:4 Christ said, "Wherefore THINK ye evil in your hearts." One thing then that the heart does is to THINK. In Mk. 2:8 He said, "Why REASON ye these things in your hearts. In Jno. 12:40 we learn that we UNDERSTAND with our hearts. See Matt. 13:15 and Act. 28:27. In these last two passages we also learn that the heart may WAX GROSS as well as understand. Our eyes and ears are avenues to our hearts. In Rom. 10:10 Paul said, "For with the heart man BELIEVES unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." Also in Act. 8:3 we learn that man BELIEVES with his heart. Too our hearts can IMAGINE things. Lu. 1:51. All of these things that we have mentioned as THINKING, REASONING, UNDERSTANDING, BELIEVING, etc. are functions of the INTELLECT. The intellectual part of man then is spoken of as man's heart.

Another function of the heart is to LOVE. Christ taught that we are to LOVE God with all our heart, Matt. 22:37; Mk. 12:30,33; Lu. 10:27. Love has to do with man's AFFECTIONS. LOVE is a function of the HEART, his AFFECTION.

Paul speaks of another function of the heart of spiritual man in 2 Cor. 9:7, "Let each man do according as he has PURPOSED in his HEART." We may PURPOSE with our heart that the Bible speaks of PURPOSE as a function of the WILL of man. Man's WILL then is spoken of as his heart.

John teaches us that our hearts approve and condemn us. 1 Jno. 3:2. If our HEARTS CONDEMN us, God is greater than our HEARTS, and knoweth all things. Brethren if our HEARTS CONDEMN us not, we have boldness toward God." That which condemns us is a function of the CONSCIENCE. Then our CONSCIENCE is referred to as the Bible heart.

HOW DO WE CHANGE THIS HEART? This can only be done by changing the function of the heart. We have learned that the heart is man's INTELLECT, AFFECTION, WILL, and CONSCIENCE. To change the heart then the INTELLECT of man must be changed. This can be done only by testimony. When Christ gave the apostles the great commission to "Go and make disciples of all nations," Matt. 28:19, He intended for those men to change man's heart in changing intellect. Make DISCIPLES, He said. The design of the Gospel record is to change that part of man's heart. John said, "... these are written that ye might BELIEVE that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and that believing ye might have life in His name." Jno. 20:31. One has to have his testimony concerning Jesus before he can believe in Jesus. "Faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God." Rom. 10:17. But faith only is not a complete change of heart. In Jno. 12:42,43 we read of some that had a change of their intellect concerning Jesus in that they had BELIEVED but their heart was not changed because of a lack of LOVE or AFFECTION. "Nevertheless even of the rulers many believed on Him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess it, lest they should be put out of the synagogue; for they LOVED the glory that is of men more than the glory that is of God." These rulers BELIEVED. That is their intellect was changed concerning Jesus, but they did not LOVE Him. Their AFFECTIONS were not changed. Love comes after faith. "And if I have the gift of prophecy, and know all mysteries and all knowledge; and if I have ALL FAITH, so as to remove mountains, but have not LOVE I am nothing." 1 Cor. 13:2. We must have our affections changed from this old world to the Lord. Our affections must be set on the things that are above, Col. 3:1,2;

Matt. 22:27. This change of affection is produced by God's love and His loveliness. Then LOVE produces OBEDIENCE which is another function of the heart. Christ said in Jno. 14:15, "If ye LOVE me ye WILL keep my commandments." Paul said in Rom. 6:17, "But God be thanked that ye were the servants of sin, but ye OBEYED from the HEART that form of doctrine which was delivered unto you, being then made free from sin ye became the servants of righteousness." Then to change the heart the WILL must be changed. This is done in repentance. Because of our faith in Christ and our love for Him we WILL to quit that which does not please Him and determine to do His will.

If one believes Christ to be the Son of God and loves Him with all of his heart his conscience will not be at ease until he has obeyed all that the Lord has commanded. To change our HEART we must change our CONSCIENCE. One cannot have a conscience clean from guilt until he has OBEYED. Paul believed, loved, and repented, but he was not clear of conscience until his sins were washed away. Act. 22:16. "Let us draw near with a true heart in fullness of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil CONSCIENCE; and having our bodies WASHED with pure water." Heb. 10:22. The sprinkling is a figure referring to the blood and the washing to baptism. Then Peter tells us that baptism SAVES us in 1 Pet. 3:21. "... which also after a true likeness doth now SAVE you, even baptism, not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the interrogation of a good CONSCIENCE toward God, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ." The baptism is for the remission of sins. Remission takes place in the mind of God. The change of heart takes place in the mind of man. Man's conscience is clear when he knows that he had done that which God requires of him to be pleasing in His sight.

Thus when one's heart is changed he is like the Eunuch that obeyed his Lord in baptism. He went on his way rejoicing. Why? Because he had a clear conscience knowing that he had believed in Christ as the Son of God, and had repented of his sins, confessed Christ as the Son and was baptised. His heart was made to rejoice because of this. His was a heart felt religion.

This is a War Time Thanksgiving

The first Thanksgiving was not observed in wholly peaceful times. For the Pilgrims were just establishing themselves in a new world, and the time was to be long until they no longer had to fight enemy tribes, privation and lack of adequate homes. But they were thankful for what shelter and food they had—and the fact that they were securing liberty for future generations gave them courage and hope.

Kathleen Norris Says: Nancy Is the Most Unhappy of Wives

Bell Syndicate—WNU Features.

I met at a canteen dance the man who seemed everything wonderful in the world to me. Our attraction was mutual; Paul was a second lieutenant, handsome and popular.

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

NANCY ROBINSON considers herself the unhappiest young wife in all the world. She isn't that, but she has indeed a sad problem to solve, and one that probably won't be the only one of its kind, as these war years go by.

"Last February," she writes, "I met at a canteen dance the man who seemed everything wonderful in the world to me.

"Our attraction was mutual; Paul was a second lieutenant, handsome and popular; old friends of my family knew all about his people, and there seemed no reason for our delaying our marriage, which took place in April. I was then the happiest girl in the world, as I am now the most miserable!

"Shortly afterward Paul was sent away to Central America; it was a hard parting, for we had had five wonderful weeks in a little beach home borrowed from a friend, and felt ourselves an ideally companionable couple. But I had expected it, and bore it as heroically as I could. In a few weeks a long letter came from Paul, then a shorter one, and several cards and notes. In my heart I felt that something was wrong, but nothing to really prepare me for the shock I received this morning, when a long letter arrived. In it my husband writes me that he feels that our hasty marriage was a mistake; that we were both too young. He is 26; I will be 21 in December. That does not seem too young to me.

Wants His Freedom.

"He assures me that there is no other woman in the case, but says he would like to be free. He says that since our marriage was a very quiet one, and I live in a small Nevada town, there need be no publicity, as he has not told any of his new friends that he is married, and I live alone with my mother, things can be 'sort of hushed up until every one loses interest."

"Paul has met some friends at his new post; they are evidently making a great deal of him, for he speaks of dinners and dances, and that in one Spanish-American family there are lots of brothers and sisters and cousins and they keep things moving. Beach parties and singing every week-end; that sort of thing. He says he is very glad that a little scare I had about a baby coming turned out to be nothing, and that he will always think of Mother and me affectionately. I will give you the actual words with which he finishes his letter:

"It is up to you, of course, Nancy, to do as you think best. But under the circumstances I can feel that nothing but divorce is the solution. You may be sure that I will send you all the money I can, as much as your lawyer thinks right, and more, and always remember those happy days at Beachwood. We surely had a terrible crush on each other, but as we grew older we would be sure to grow apart, and the best thing is freedom for both now, no matter how badly we feel at breaking up things this way. So take a big kiss and a hug from your ex-hubby, and write me that you think this is the wisest way. If I had been at home it would have been different, but as it is I feel that my whole interest should belong to my country, without any distractions from home. After the war I intend to settle somewhere down here, so we may not meet again for a long, long time."

PASSING FANCY

When the first thrill of far places has been dulled by the reality of their distance from home; when the seductive effect of soft, tropical moonlight is sharpened by the conflicts of war; when the memory of fried chicken and church on Sunday and thick, clear ice on the neighborhood pond cannot be shaken by the sights and sounds of a foreign land; then "Paul Robinson" may understand why Kathleen Norris has told his wife to refuse him a divorce. He may see the things he thinks are mere passing fancies.

A Bitter Blow.

To a loving, lonely woman, only six months a wife, this letter might well be a thunderbolt. Nancy isn't to be blamed for almost collapsing when she received it. Somehow she is keeping its contents from her mother, who works in a garment factory, and somehow she is managing to act before her friends and neighbors as if nothing was wrong. My advice to Nancy is to put her chin up, summon her dignity to her aid, and write Paul as if she were twice her 20 years. He has so evidently lost his head in an atmosphere of tropical sunshine, leisure and enjoyment that all his values of honor, obligation, decency, character have gone up in smoke—or rather, evaporated in silver moonlight and the music of the sea.

She must write him that talk of separation or divorce is ridiculous; that she will wait for him as his wife, of course, and that she has entered into correspondence with his mother and father, who live in Kentucky. It seems that out of shyness and diffidence Nancy didn't get in touch with them until after her marriage, but that then they wrote her cordially, glad that their boy had found a good young wife. If she can she ought to visit them; in every way she can she ought to strengthen the tie that Paul would break.

Make Marriage a Success.

It is highly possible that these two really are not congenial mates, that their hurried young marriage was a mistake. But even so, when the war is ended, they may decide to make it a success, as any man and woman may, by resolutely building a life together, and with patience and courage learning to depend upon each other.

But it is more likely, if Nancy can be strong enough to forgive, to overlook this youthful, cruel, selfish letter, that Paul will come home to find that he loves his young wife, after all, that the glamour of the southern beaches and the charms of the dark-eyed enchantresses were not permanent things, that after the war he wants to come back to his own country, and live the life his father and his ancestors did before him. If Paul had a sister, and some man wrote to her the letter he just sent Nancy, he would perhaps be able to get some idea of just how brutal it was. If, as I definitely suspect, Paul is in love again, and hasn't had the courage to tell his new friends that he has been less than a year the husband of a girl in the United States, then he may be in for a rude awakening. For Spanish-American mothers have their firm religious convictions, too, and Paul's concubine will be locked in a remote upper bedroom and himself forbidden the hacienda entirely, the moment the family gets the news.

ON THE HOME FRONT

HERE is a hooked hearth rug that may some day grow up to room size. So far every female member of the family has hooked at least one square, and the males are all represented by materials from cast-off suits, socks and sweaters. The turquoise flowers and red cherries in the alternate squares are from dyed pieces of the old cream colored wool blankets. When the squares are hemmed and sewn together with strong carpet thread, they form a fascinating pattern of circles, flowers and fruit.

NOTE: Mrs. Spears has special pattern for the rug sketch with detailed directions. So, even if you have a hooked rug, you can start a square for a rug of any size. Book 7 in the series of home arts contains 21 of these and instructions; also design series. Send your order to:

Twelve-inch squares of burlap overcast around the edge made the foundation pieces. Patterns for the repeat design were cut from paper and the burlap was marked by drawing around these with wax crayon. Loops of fabric strips were drawn through with a steel rug hook. Red was used for the curved lines shown at the upper left. Tones of brown for the flower and gray for the cherry background. Mixed colors for the rest of the design.

THE STORY SO FAR: Jeff Curtis and his wife, Lee, are already on their way to Tierra Libre when he receives a note from Zora Mitchell warning them not to come. When they arrive in Tierra Libre they find both Zora and her husband dead. It is Mitchell's job as chief engineer for a fruit company that Jeff has been called to fill. Later Jeff's friend Bill Henderson is also killed, and Jeff suspects his employer, Senor Montaya, of murdering him and the Mitchells because they had found a clue to the strange things going on at the plantation. Other suspects are the company chemist, Dr. Toenjes, and the Byers, Ryden and Lanestock. Jeff and Lee discover that their housemaid is spying on them. A man named Collins arrives from the Canal Zone to see Mitchell, and Jeff hires him without arousing Montaya's suspicions. Jeff finds his cartridges have been tampered with.

CHAPTER XIV

Before going to bed Curt talked with Monahan about Collins. "He'll make a good man," Slat reported. "A little awkward at first, but he knows Diesels and I'd say he had the makings."

Evidently Collins had raised speculations in Monahan, too, for Slat's voice was asking questions—what, why? But Curt didn't know the answers himself—and Emilio shared the same tent with him now that he had shared with Montaya on his first visit to this camp.

But the matter of Collins didn't end there. As Curt called at Montaya's office on his return to San Alejo—the following noon, Friday—he found "The Dark Lily" frowning and in a bad humor. The Spaniard came to the point without his usual circumspect approach to a subject.

"You hired a man named Collins, no?" he commenced bluntly. "I had not forbidden this special, Mr. Curtis, but it must not be repeated. If the occasion arises to hire a person locally, I must first interview that person and decide for myself."

Curt stared, unbelieving, then flared. "In other words, you don't trust my judgment? Or is it me you don't trust?"

Montaya's voice became icy. "Such is not the question. If I had not trust in your judgment I would not have hired you. This, Mr. Curtis, is an ironclad rule I will not have broken." He paused, then added, "Do you know this man?"

"No. But I had a man I do know try him out. Monahan tells me he's satisfactory. I need such men badly, my hiring him doesn't tie my hands. He's not under contract."

Curt's anger showed in his face. Montaya went on to an equally irksome subject, but in a milder tone, as though to forestall an explosion. "There is another thing. Emilio tells me you were separated on the trip."

Curt glared. "He—ah, feared I would censure him if I should learn about it. He told me in order to protect himself. Mr. Curtis, I told you distinctly that Emilio is to accompany you—"

This was too much for Curt. He broke out hotly, "Senor Montaya, if I'm in danger I want to know it! And what the danger is! Standing a bodyguard over me hampers my movements—"

"But I do not wish to alarm you. I repeat, you are in no danger personally—so long as Emilio accompanies you!"

Curt was in a rage when he left Montaya—such a rage that he couldn't go home and face Lee at once. Too quick to read him, was Lee. Nor did he want to go to his office in his present state. So he had a Tom Collins at the club bar, then another. With the second drink he recovered himself to the point of lighting his pipe and headed for home.

There he found that Lee and the children were at the swimming pool behind the clubhouse, had been while he'd been fuming to himself just a few yards away. The cook, about to climb into a hammock slung under the house for her midday siesta, called the information to him. Ines was off duty in the middle of the day—from eleven to three—so the house was empty.

Just as well, Curt thought, for this gave him a chance to inspect his stock of cartridges. The incident of the evening before was still sharp in his mind.

He went to the escarpate in the bedroom, the tall two-door wardrobe that held his things and Lee's. From the top shelf he took down the small paper box that held the rest of this lot of bullets.

He turned it over in his hands, read the label, spilled the contents onto the bed. He examined the shells one by one, but could detect nothing wrong with them.

The bullets he'd shot simply hadn't had standard charges. Then the rest could be faulty, too. While turning this over in his mind his hand was pushing the bullets absently into piles of six, the number held in a clip.

His brows knit. He counted the piles again. Yes, six in each, and there were four piles. But here were three bullets left over! Twenty-seven bullets on the bedspread, mightiest challenge. How surprising that fathers (and mothers) who are looking for the greatest measure of usefulness to their generation fail to see it in the privilege they have to rear intelligent, godly children.

shells—from a fresh box. A fourth loading of six from the same box had been in his gun ever since landing here. Each box held fifty. Eighteen and six and twenty-seven are fifty-one. There should have been but fifty. Someone had replaced his supply of cartridges—and those loaded in his gun—with cleverly forged, under-charged shells. Hal but they'd made a mistake in counting his good bullets and had left one too many in their place! This must be the explanation of those duds he'd shot.

Now, who could have done this? Who had access to the house? Ines, of course! Her name leaped to mind, knowing as he did that she deliberately spied on him in his family life. Lee took the children to the pool each day, the girl had plenty of opportunity.

Thoughtfully Curt went to a wardrobe trunk in a corner of the room, unlocked it, and took from one of the drawers a fresh box of cartridges. This he broke open, to load his clip with shells he knew to be good. He also loaded two spare clips which he slipped into his pocket.

The two three-yard shovels ordered before Curt took over, would arrive on Saturday—tomorrow. So Montaya had said. Curt wanted to be on hand at Cabeza de Negro when the ship docked. This meant he would have to go down river on the first boat at daylight, all of which gave him an excuse to spend the night at Tempujo and thus avoid the questions he knew Lee would have for him—when she caught his present mood.

He packed his musette bag with fresh clothing, scribbled a note for Lee, and left.

The afternoon he spent at his office cleaning up detail work, then pulled out for Tempujo. There, too, he plunged into paper work for an hour, then at seven had supper at the mess-hall. Emilio, of course, clung like a leech.

"Senor Montaya will be here early on Sunday," Curt told his shadow. "He wants to talk with Collins. Get word to camp by the supply launch in the morning for Collins to come to Tempujo on its return. It'll be the last chance to get him here in time."

He got to bed early, put in a good night's rest, and, after snatching breakfast in the cold gray of the false dawn, made an uneventful trip down river to Cabeza. Emilio Vargas was silent with early morning sulks.

Two ships were in port. One was Japanese—the Keito Maru. It had docked the day before. The other was a Norwegian steamer chartered by the company for the New Orleans run. This ship carried the two tractor shovels, minus their booms and dippers, as a deck load.

Ryden was on hand and in a short humor. He spoke in grunts or monosyllables. Curt tried a pleasant or two and when these didn't work fell silent.

It was midmorning by the time the tarpaulins had been removed and the first shovel lowered over the side to the dock. Its own brakes released, the big machine was hauled by the dock's baby tractor to the side of the river steamer then loading.

Curt's purpose in coming to Cabeza had been two-fold. First was the natural anxiety to get at the new machines, the child's reaction toward promised toys. But, specifically, he'd intended trying to jolly Ryden into delivering them at the job upriver, instead of at Tempujo.

In any case, Ryden's present humor meant a definite refusal of Curt's plan, together with possible unpleasantness, perhaps even a quarrel, so Curt remained silent, puffing steadily at his pipe as he glumly looked on.

Emilio straddled another keg nearby. Ryden came up behind the two and now offered his first voluntary remark of the day.

"Am I handling satisfactory so far?"

There was no mistaking the guttural-voiced sarcasm. Curt swung around leisurely, looked at Ryden a moment, and his lips framed a natural reply. But, determined not to quarrel with the man, instead of answering insolence with insolence Curt indicated a huge, square case then being hoisted by the thick-rope cargo carried to the deck of the river steamer. The box hovered over the open hatch, then slowly disappeared into the hold. There was a twin to the box on the dock awaiting its turn.

Both cases were of heavy lumber, were marked from Hamburg via Vladivostok, and the labeled inscription said they were generators. Electrical equipment was of prime interest to Curt, who was responsible for the electric plants at San Alejo and Tempujo, if not for the small plant at the airfield.

Pointing with his pipe stem, he asked mildly, "Those generators. Are they for me? I didn't know of any on order."

The Swede stared through and through Curt. At length he said thickly, "Ask Senor Montaya, if you must know. I know only my own job."

Curt's temper had been building up for a blow-off ever since his encounter with Montaya yesterday. Still, he'd nursed himself along so far and nothing was to be gained by words. With a jerk of his head at Emilio he strode angrily from the dock. Vargas, his features set incuriously, followed, trotting to keep up.

"Clubby chap, what?" said Curt, with a short laugh, when he could trust his own voice. To help cover his feelings he fumbled with his pipe, knocking out the ashes, stuffing it again. Then he simmered down and added grudgingly, "Of course, he's right in a way, but aren't we all working toward one end here? I need a drink. How about you?"

He was about to turn into the cantina he'd visited the day of landing here, but Emilio held back.

"There's another bar down the street," he said hurriedly. "You may like it better."

Curt, however, was in a mood. "Man, what's the difference, this one, that one? Come along!" He pushed Emilio into the room and to the bar.

Fresh from the glaring sun, his eyes didn't take in the scene immediately. He was half blind as he mounted a stool, ordered a drink, and indicated with a wave of the hand that Emilio should order for himself.

Then his pupils expanded. In the mirror behind the bar he saw the Tierra Libre customs official and his lieutenant. They were drinking and playing poker dice with a man whose face was vaguely familiar. Curt had noticed on the dock that morning that there had been no customs official to inspect freight as it was unloaded. He'd given this no special thought at the time.

To cover his thoughts, but still frowning, Curt pulled a notebook from his pocket, scribbled a few words, ripped out the page. He pushed the paper toward Emilio. "I need a hundred men at Tempujo by one o'clock," he growled. "Also, the launch will have to make another trip to the levee camp to bring down Monahan. Get this message off for me, will you?"

All the while, however, he was racking his brain over the third man with the customs officers. He was a Nordic, certainly. At last it came to him. The man was one of the mechanics who'd been working at the C. A. T. airfield the day of his visit there.

As they returned to the dock Emilio had the radio message sent off, and by eleven they were on their way back to Tempujo with the one machine this steamer could carry.

Reaching the river port by one-thirty, he found Collins and the rapidly gathering gang of men. Monahan arrived by two o'clock, and the rest of the day was spent in getting the two machines assembled, serviced, and on their way to pick up their sectors of levee work.

This job went smoothly, however, and it was just as well, Curt was thinking, that he hadn't made an issue of his plan to unload on the river bank at the job. If things went as well tomorrow, the two shovels would be at work Monday morning.

But it had been a strenuous, tiring job. After an early supper at the Tempujo mess-hall—with Collins and Monahan occupying a table not far from Curt and Emilio—Curt returned to his bungalow.

He switched on the lights, fumbled his hat to the table by the door. Emilio settled himself on the porch, with magazines and his ever-ready pack of native cigarillos. Curt had his trip across the river in mind. This was Saturday, the night he'd arranged to meet McInnis at River-bend. He had to get rid of Vargas somehow.

"I'm going to bed," he told the man. "Need a good night's rest. You'd better get one, too. When you leave, see that the night latch is on. Good night."

"Buenas noches, Senor."

End of the Bowery

The Bowery was one of the gayest streets in New York until about 40 years ago, when it was started on its decline by the publication of the song called "The Bowery." Nearly all America knew, sang and believed its chorus: "The Bowery, the Bowery! They say such things and they do such things, on the Bowery, the Bowery! I'll never go there any more." And most of them never did.

Treat Constipation This Gentler Way!

Many folks say that almost as bad as constipation are harsh cathartics and purges. That's because many medicinal laxatives work this way: they either prod the intestines into action or draw moisture into them from other parts of the body. Now comes news of a gentler and pleasanter way of treating constipation, for the millions of people with normal intestines whose trouble is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet. This way is by eating KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN, a crisp, delicious cereal, and drinking plenty of water. ALL-BRAN, unlike many medicinal laxatives, acts principally on the contents of the colon and helps you to have easy, normal elimination. ALL-BRAN is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, better see your doctor.
