LIVING BY-LAWS

Man's rights comes under two headings, moral and positive. Without either the individual is lost, and we hear much discussion of both today. Moral laws are those governing man's conscience, telling him right from wrong and thus man is inwardly conscious of his behavior. It has been proven no government succeeds if its moral laws are lost. A behalf in principles of conduct regarding moral actions is vital. The positive laws are the legal laws, imposed and enacted by men and are rules of behaviorism too, concerning man's relationship to society legal or positive laws name individual rights and is a part of democracy, shape a civil structure. The two laws are argued about by some who accuse others of subjugating the human rights to the rule of the majority and making legal or positive law the yardstick. They contend the freedom of the man who be longs to the minority is disappearing. They say it is being taught in schools and that it overlooks such as the Billof Rights and Declaration of Independence, and such is disastrous to democracy. Anyhow, we have given the reader in Burkburnett something to think about, however he

AMERICA'S FIRST TAX BILL

Back in 1797, the tax question might have been more simplified, but it placed an assessment on holdings that was collected by the government and probably caused as much unpleasant discussion as our intricate tax bills of the present day. America's first tax bill on houses, lands and slaves, was for two million dollars from the country and was apportioned to the states in various amounts. Perhaps certain states criticised their levy, since augumentation is not just a modern mental work-out. They started the bill with an assessment of 20 cents on every $100 for property not over $500 in value, 30 cents for property valued over the $500. This climbed to $1 on every $100 for every dwelling house valued at more than $30,000. The amount of 50 cents was the fee for every slave. The simple dw., for dwelling, sh. for shall, C. for collectors, Ds. for dollars, as put down in the first tax bill, was within the range of understanding of those in grade school. The figuring didnot take long though done by candlelight and with the quill pen perhaps, without the attendance of an attorney an dan adding machine. The story is told about a clerk in a bookshop coming across Professor Einstein, the discoverer of the theory of relativity, glancing through a guide to incometax procedure. When the clerk asked him if he wished to buy, the famed mathematician said, "Good heavens, no. It is terrible enough to have to figure out the tax without having to read a whole book about it.'

How Big Are Your Acres?

Measured in YIELDS, some acres are bigger than others - - in COTTON YIELDS PER ACRE, for example, the average acre in Texas is 28 per cent "smaller" than the average acre in the entire cotton belt. This is because the 10-year average yield per acre of cotton in Texas is 162 pounds of lint per acre, compared with 227 pounds for the whole Cotton Belt.

Cotton yields per acre CAN be increased in Texas-research and farm experience have proved that terracing and other soil building practices—better planting seed—insect control—and other sound, practical steps will result in higher yields and greater returns to the grower.

Higher yields per acre from your own cotton crop will pay you big dividends in 1945. Ask your county agent for practical suggestions to make your best cash crop bring you more cash-and get from him a copy of circular 136 "Steps In Growing Cotton."

Hedgerow Fighting Made New Type of War Heroes

Barriers Used Successfully by Nazi War Machine on Western Front

By Ernie Pyle

(Editor's Note): This dispatch was written and first published when Pyle leas with the G.I.s at the Western front. He is now on his way to cover the boys

ON THE WESTERN FRONT-I know that all of us correspondents have tried time and again to describe to you what this weird hedgerow fighting in northwestern France

But I'm going to go over it once more, for we've been in it two months and some of us feel that this is the two months that broke the German army in the West.

This type of fighting is always in small groups, so let's take as an example one company of men. Let's say they are working forward on both sides of a country lane, and this company is responsible for clearing the two fields on either side of the road as it advances. That means you have only about Ernie Pyle one platoon to a field. And with the company's understrength from casualties, you might have no more than 25 or 30 men in a field. Over here the fields are usually not more than 50 yards across and couple of hundred yards long. They may have grain in them, or apple trees, but mostly they are just pastures of green grass, full of beautiful cows.

The fields are surrounded on all sides by immense hedgerows which consist of an ancient earthen bank, waist high, all matted with roots, and out of which grow weeds, bushes and trees up to 20 feet high. The Germans have used these barriers well. They put snipers in the trees. They dig deep trenches behind the hedgerows and cover them with timber, so that it is almost probably wouldn't be following the impossible for artillery to get at

Sometimes they will prop up machine guns with strings attached, so they can fire over the hedge without getting out of their holes. They even cut out a section of the hedgerow and hide a big gun or a tank in it, covering it with brush.

Also they tunnel under the hedgerows from the back and make the opening on the forward side just large enough to stick a machine gun

But mostly the hedgerow pattern is this: a heavy machine gun hidden at each end of the field and infantrymen hidden all along the hedgerow with rifles and machine pistols.

Now it's up to us to dig them out of there. It's a slow and cautious business, and there is nothing very dashing about it. Our men don't go across the open fields in dramatic charges such as you see in the movles. They did at first, but they learned better.

They go in tiny groups, a squad or less, moving yards apart and sticking close to the hedgerows on either end of the field. They creep a few yards, squat, wait, then creep again. If you could be right up there between the Germans and the Americans you wouldn't see very many men at any one time-just a few here and there, always trying to keep hidden. But you would hear an awful lot of noise.

Our men were taught in training not to fire until they saw something to fire at. But that hasn't worked in this country, because you see so little. So the alternative is to keep shooting constantly at the hedgerows. That pins the Germans in their holes while we sneak up on them The attacking squads sneak up the sides of the hedgerows while the rest of the platoon stay back in their own hedgerow and keep the forward hedge saturated with bullets. They shoot rifle grenades too, and a mortar squad a little farther back keeps lobbing mortar shells over onto the Germans. The little advance groups get up to the far ends of the hedgerows at the corners of the field. They first try to knock out the machine guns at each corner. They do this with hand grenades, rifle grenades and machine guns.

Retreat to New Line Usually, when the pressure gets on, the German defenders of the hedgerow start pulling back. They'll take their heavier guns and most of the men back a couple of fields and start digging in for a new line. heaps of still smoking rubble.

They leave about two machine guns and a few riflemen scattered through the hedge, to do a lot of shooting and hold up the Americans as long as they can.

Our men now sneak along the front side of the hedgerow, throwing grenades over onto the other side and spraying the hedges with their guns. The fighting is very closeonly a few yards apart-but it is seldom actual hand-to-hand stuff.

Sometimes the remaining Germans come out of their holes with their hands up. Sometimes they try to run for it and are mowed down. Sometimes they won't come out at all, and a hand grenade, thrown into their hole, finishes them off.

And so we've taken another hedgerow and are ready to start on the one beyond.

This hedgerow business is a series of little skirmishes like that clear across the front, thousands and thousands of little skirmishes. No single one of them is very big. But add them all up over the days and weeks and you've got a man-sized war, with thousands on both sides being killed.

No Set Pattern

If you were to come over here and pick out some hedge-enclosed field at random, the fighting there general pattern at all. For each one is a little separate war, fought under different circumstances.

For instance, you'll come to a woods instead of an open field. The Germans will be dug in all over the woods, in little groups, and it's really tough to get them out. Often in cases like that we will just go around the woods and keep going, and let later units take care of those surrounded and doomed fellows.

Or we'll go through the woods and clean it out, and another company, coming through a couple of hours later, will find it full of Germans again. In a war like this one everything is in such confusion, I don't see how either side ever gets any.

Sometimes you don't knew where the enemy is and don't know where your own troops are. As somebody said the other day, no battalion commander can give you the exact location of his various units five minutes after they've jumped

We will by-pass whole pockets of Germans, and they will be there fighting our following waves when our attacking companies are a couple of miles on beyond. Gradually the front gets all mixed up. There will be Germans behind you and at the side. They'll be shooting at you from behind and from your

Sometimes a unit will get so far out ahead of those on either side that it has to swing around and fight to its rear. Sometimes we fire on our own troops, thinking we are in German territory. You can't see anything, and you can't even tell from the sounds, for each side uses some of the other's captured weap-

The tanks and the infantry had to work in the closest cooperation in breaking through the German ring that tried to pin us down in the beachhead area. Neither could have done it alone.

The troops are of two minds about having tanks around them. If you're a foot soldier you hate to be near a tank, for it always draws fire. On the other hand, if the going gets tough you pray for a tank to come up and start blasting with its guns.

In our breakthrough each infantry unit had tanks attached to it. It was the tanks and the infantry that broke through that ring and punched a hole for the armored divisions to go through.

One afternoon we drove in our jeep into a country like that. The little rural villages of gray stone were demolished - heartbreaking

Making That Problem Window Fit Perfectly Into the Room Setting

By Ruth Wyeth Spears

THE smart plaid curtains shown herewith match the window seat and several slip covers, and the wooden curtain pole, rings and draw cord match the dominant color in the plaid repeating the color of small cushions and lamp base. The window lets in the maximum of light and you would never guess that originally it looked like a postage stamp in the middle of a blank wall. At first it seemed impossible to curtain it because fixtures could not be screwed to metal casements or the plaster. The built-in book shelves helped that. A space a foot wide was allowed at each side of the window so that the curtains could hang over the wall, and the painted to the sides of the shelves. The diagram shows this and how the

Strange, Did He Say?

"You have such strange names for your towns," an Englishman remarked to an American soldier. 'Weehawken, Hoboken, Poughkeepsie, and others."

"I suppose they do sound queer to English ears," said the American, thoughtfully. "Do you live in London all the time?"

"Oh, no!" said the unsuspicious Briton. "I spend part of my time wooden pole was then screwed at Chipping Norton, and then I've a place at Pokestogg-on-the-Hike."

Meet the Men

WHO USE YOUR BATTERIES!

The Navy and Merchant Marine send rapid ship-to-ship messages by batterypowered flasher signal lights when radio communication might give a ship's position to the enemy.

It's difficult to locate men drifting in the sea! Water-tight battery lights on buoyant lifesaver suits have meant the difference between life and death for many Merchant seamen.

For emergency communication by voice, the Merchant Marineuses a portable megaphone to broadcast orders and instructions. Dry batteries give necessary power to the megaphone.

Two men and a bazooka make a winning team! But it takes large quantities of ammunition and dry battery power to keep these portable, hard-hitting weapons firing at the enemy.

Deadly flamethrowers are blazing the road to Victory! Dry batteries help to create the spark that sends these efficient weapons into instant, flaming action against the enemy.

The Signal Corps man with a Walkie-Talkie has freedom of speech as long as he has plenty of dry batteries! Handie-Talkies also use thousands of war batteries to power vital communications.

When they come Home - Burgess Batteries will be back again, too ... powering flashlights, radios, telephones, instruments and controls for millions of homes, farms and industries throughout America.

Russians Strike for Berlin As Nazis Plan Last-Ditch Defense; New Landings Aid Manila Drive

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysts and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

Members of Fifth division of Third army warm themselves about bonfire in Luxembourg comfortably ensconced in furniture salvaged from the town's debris.

EUROPE:

Berlin Goal

Berlin was their goal as the First White Russian and the First Ukranian armies plunged to the winding ice-packed Oder river on a wide front, with German resistance growing stronger as columns of reenforcements rushed to the front and took up their positions in the flaming battle line.

With the two Russian armies drawing up to the Oder on an almost solid front from above Berlin clear down to the Czechoslovakian border, Berlin was imperilled by a powerful outflanking maneuver by Marshal Zhukov from the north and Marshal Konev from the south.

The great thrust on Berlin promlsed to put the Germans' vaunted Oder river defense line, over two years in the making, to the test, and further strain Nazi strength, already outnumbered by about three to four in the east. In early assaults on the Oder in the Silesian area, German regulars, reenforced by fanatical 16 to 65-year-old home front troops, stubbornly held their ground against the powerhouse attacks of the First Ukranian army, which had been the first to reach the defense line from central Poland.

Finish Fight

Long the hallowed center of Prussianism, Berlin, it appeared, was not to be spared the fate of other great European capitals as the Nazis made strong points of its public buildings and institutions for a des-

Declaring "there is no evidence yet of any rout in the German retreat," Navy Secretary Forrestal said: "They are withdrawing to the great line of defenses on the Oder river . . . where . . . they may fight with the same tenacity and ferocity they have shown in the west. . . . All that will beat Germany is power, sheer, crude power."

perate stand and prepared to blow up all factories and installations In the district.

"Not one stone atop another . will be left . . . when the Russians enter," proclaimed Propaganda Minister Goebbels. Meanwhile, as thousands of German refugees streamed into the Reich from the east and Hitler called upon all able-bodied men for a last ditch fight and all others for industry, Nazi leaders threatened ". . cowardly creatures who try to desert the fatherland in its hour of need." Said they: "We shall not permit them to throw a wrench in the works. . . . Germany will fight on no matter where or under what conditions. . . .

Fear Yank Drive

Attacking in snow and slush in strength along an expanding front below Aachen, Yanks put the enemy's vaunted Siegfried defenses to the test again even as Berlin feared an all-out drive to break the deadlock in the west.

At the same time, the Germans began to slowly break ground in Alsace to the south, where nixed U. S. and French forces increased heavy pressure on their huge pocket below Strasbourg and threatened the enemy's escape roads eastward to the Rhine.

No less than 100,000 U. S. troops reportedly burrowed their way into the outer defenses of the Siegfried line along the sector from which Von Rundstedt had burst into Belgium

ARMY PURCHASES

The army quartermaster corps in 1944 placed more than 65 per cent of its prime contracts, representing 46 per cent of the dollar value of all QMC depot contracts, with smaller business organizations, the war department said.

Total purchases of subsistence and other supplies for the army and military services by the quartermaster corps amounted to $6,037,-872,909.

CONGRESS:

Busy Session

With publication of President Roosevelt's agreement to the separation of the Reconstruction Finance powers from the U. S. department of commerce, the senate passed the George bill authorizing the action 17-21). by a 74 to 12 vote and thereby paved Henry A. Wallace as the department secretary.

Although Wallace's confirmation was postponed to March 1, it was considered likely at that time, since principal objection to his appointment had been based on the fact that he would have controlled the vast resources of the RFC in the postwar period, with fear of their use on government projects to provide full employment. House approval of the bill to separate the RFC from the commerce department was expected to meet speedy approval.

At the same time, the house passed, and then sent to a none too sympathetic senate, a work or fight bill, under which all men between 18 and 45 would be frozen in essential occupations or asked to take jobs designated by their local draft boards under penalty of induction or fine and imprisonment in case of re fusal.

TREASURES OF THE KINGDOM LESSON TEXT-Matthew 13:44-46; 14:

GOLDEN TEXT-Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning.—James 1:17.

Hidden treasure!-there is something about it that catches our imaginations and stirs our expectancy of discovering great riches. Men are constantly going on expeditions to seek out lost treasure. Others are engaged in study and research to bring out new treasures in nature or in the realm of learning or art.

Why not stir up a little excitement about the unbelievably rich treasures which are hid in Christ and in the life of faith in Him? It is not hidden, except to the eye of unbelief, but it is greatly neglected and all but forgotten by many.

The Scripture portions assigned for our lesson are not as well adapted to it as one could wish, but we may make good use of them. We learn

I. The Cost of Redemption (13:44-

(See Eph. 2:8).

Obviously, we here have the Saviour with His all-seeing eye and loving heart noting in fallen humanity the pearl of great price, His own Church. He then gives up all the glory He had with the Father, comes to the earth, and even becomes sin for us that He may bring us to God.

Salvation in Christ is no little thing, not something which was purchased with gold or silver, but with the precious blood of Christ. We mattress. ought to value it highly, and because we are bought with such a price we ought always to glorify God from rusting, tack a small bag of (I Cor. 6:28).

Little is much when God is in it, and by the divine touch of Jesus the multitude was fed. Could we not do far more for Christ if we would only use the little we have, with corporation with its vast loaning His blessing, for the help of our fellow men?

III. The Miracle of Provision (14:

We pray, "Give us this day our the way for the confirmation of daily bread," and it is only as God provides it that we have it. He gives life to the seed, and multiplies it in rich harvest, and we eat, we trust, with thankful hearts. That is a miracle-so oft repeated > and glory of it. Here in the story of the feeding of the five thousand and more (v. 21) with five loaves and two fishes, we have such a miracle of provision taking the little and making it enough for the multitude. The Lord may not work in exactly the same way today, but do not God's servants see Him multiply their meager store as they give it out in His name? That is true whether the gift be of material or spiritual things. God can and does bless those who trust Him. Letting what we have pass through the hands of Christ results in transformation and multiplication. Try it! Men and women are value-conscious in our day. While money is plentiful, goods of real quality are scarce, and one must look for that which has durability and worth. The treasures which Christ offers are enduring. He says, "Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt. and where thieves do not break through nor steal" (Matt. 6:20). By contrast, "the things Satan offers are temporary. In a few years most earthly honors and wealth must be laid aside. But the treasures of the kingdom are treasures which God intends that we should possess forever.
