DON'T GET THE JITTERS

There are too many men and women throughout the country who are "waiting for something to turn up" and who "wonder what is going to happen." That condition has been overcome before. But just remember that when prices of everything jump skyhigh, and the value of securities go down into the basement, that the situation is bad. Labor disputes and unprofitable production in big and small business, even if only temporary, cannot be carried on indefinitely. The only chance for one's salvation is to keep cool, go slow, and keep going the way you did before the World turned upside down and inside out. Look out for Number 1—and his and her families. You can't get rich quick. But, be careful, or you may lose your shirt.

THE BUILDING INDUSTRY

There is a great shortage of materials for constructing new houses and business establishments. That has increased the costs and slowed down the boom in building. A large part of those millions of new homes for returning soldiers have already gone on the waiting list, as lower prices are already in sight.

Besides, all the oldsters still remember the tremendous boom in real estate and buildings immediately after World War I. And they also remember the crash and crisis in the buildings and real estate markets that followed. The old Proverb tells us: "History repeats itself."

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS No Tax Reduction in Sight as U. S. Uses Funds to Cut Debt; Foreign Relief to Continue

Released by Western Newspaper Union

EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.

GREECE: Civil Strife

King George II of Greece faced a happy return to his homeland as open civil war raged in the mountainous northwestern border region and the Red-dominated Albanian and Yugoslav governments were charged with actively aiding the rebels.

Premier Constantin Tsaldaris bluntly attributed the strife to Russian efforts to tighten their grip on the Near East. Said he: "It is as clear as noon-day that this is... for the benefit of those who aim to take advantage of our troubles with a view of securing an outlet to the Aegean sea."

As a last resort, 40,000 British troops encamped in Greece were being readied for intervention in the dispute if the government forces failed to check the left-wing uprising. With the country occupying a strategic position near the Dardanelles and Suez canal, Britain and Russia have been waging a bitter diplomatic war for control—the British to protect their lifeline to the East, the Russians to weaken their rivals and to extend their own dominance over the rich area.

NATIONAL DEBT: Being Cut

With reduction of the huge national debt one of the administration's primary goals, the U. S. can expect no immediate slash in taxes, Secretary of the Treasury Snyder told the American Bankers association meeting in Chicago. It was agreed that the debt should be pared during prosperous times when people are able to pay higher taxes, he asserted.

FOREIGN RELIEF: To Continue

End of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration does not portend termination of American relief to war-ravaged European countries, President Truman told congress in a report on operations of UNRRA for the second quarter of 1946. Declaring that devastated countries would need further assistance after UNRRA wound up its work early next year, Mr. Truman said that U. S. agencies were formulating plans for continuation of necessary aid. Poland, Byelorussia, the Ukraine and China were singled out as nations especially hit by the war and requiring further help. UNRRA aid to Poland has been pointed toward redevelopment of the agricultural economy of the country, the President said. Shipments have included 25,000 draft animals, 10,000 dairy cattle, 16,632 tons of seed, 74,918 tons of fertilizer, 5,000 tractors and numerous plows, harrows, binders and hand tools.

MEAT: Dems Differ

Heightening of the meat crisis found Democratic leaders at odds over the retention of controls, with President Truman calling for continuation of regulations and other party heads favoring a relaxation, if necessary. Declaring there was a shortage but no famine in meat, Mr. Truman looked to a fall run of grass-fed cattle to relieve the nation-wide scarcity. Attributing the current shortage to heavy livestock marketings during the recent suspension of OPA, the President asserted that removal of controls now would add to difficulties later.

Mr. Truman spoke shortly after the Democratic national executive committee took cognizance of the meat situation and instructed Chairman Hannegan to discuss higher prices, decontrol or other remedial measures with government authorities. The committee's action came close upon Democratic House Leader McCormack's plea for a 60 day suspension of meat control.

Farm Prices

Warning farmers that agricultural prices bear an important relationship to the overall price structure, Secretary of Agriculture Anderson declared that present ceilings appeared adequate for large-scale production and few readjustments are in the offing. "Increasing food and fiber prices mean increased wage demands and increasing price demands for manufactured goods," Anderson said. "Agricultural prices are basic in inflation trends."

Referring to higher livestock ceilings, Anderson stated that readjustments were made to encourage farmers to feed animals and thus increase the total supply of meat. While marketings in the immediate future may remain low, he said, use of the record supply of feed crops in the coming months will assure adequate numbers of fattened livestock in 1947.

SHIPBUILDERS: Probe War Profits

Figures, figures and more figures featured the house merchant marine committee's investigation of wartime shipbuilding profits, with these prominent faces emerging after the mathematical smoke had cleared away:

- 1. Because of applying shipbuilding profits against losses of its Pontana steel mill, Kaiser company showed a deficit of 13 million dollars on its wartime operations. Another Kaiser-controlled company used shipbuilding profits to pay off a 26 million dollar magnesium plant in full.
2. The government's general accounting office's charge that California Shipbuilding corporation had realized a 44 million dollar profit failed to take into account funds recaptured by the U. S. through negotiation and taxes. After these reductions, the firm showed a five-year profit of $2,782,863.
3. Failure of the accounting office to include renegotiation and taxes resulted in its estimate that New England Shipbuilding corporation had made a 1 1/2 million dollar profit instead of approximately 1 1/4 million.

Higher Earnings Deprive Workers of Low-Cost Housing

Not only the demobilized veteran but the demobilized war worker as well is being enmeshed in the critical housing shortage, according to the National Association of Housing officials. The dilemma centers on the need for construction of rental housing to fit families with incomes about but not much above $2,000. The war is over; most of the boys are back—but public rental housing is still deep in the throes of reconversion. Big problem is to find other dwellings for higher wage earners to make room in public housing projects for those at the bottom of the income ladder. In an attempt to put public housing back on a peacetime basis, housing authorities have ruled that tenants with top family incomes ranging between $1,500 and $2,000 are no longer eligible for continued residence in public housing projects.

PAUL MAKES A NEW START

LESSON TEXT—Acts 26:9-18; 1 Cor. 15:8-10. MEMORY SELECTION—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptance, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners.—1 Timothy 1:15.

All that a man has by nature is not enough. We saw last week the preparation by heredity, education and environment which Paul had for a place of leadership. But it was not enough. The capable, well-born, well-trained young Jewish aristocrat had to be born again spiritually before he could do God's work. Careful Bible students regard the conversion of Paul and the resurrection of Christ as the two outstanding events of the New Testament. Without the resurrection of Jesus, the conversion of Saul of Tarsus (whom we know as Paul the apostle) would not have been possible, and at the same time his conversion is one of the strongest proofs of the resurrection.

I. By Nature—Contrary to Christ (Acts 26:9-12).

It is not enough, as some of us suppose, that a man be sincere. Paul was entirely sincere in his conviction that he ought to persecute the Christians. He did it with a good conscience (Acts 23:1), for a man's conscience commends him for doing what he believes to be right, even though he may be wrong in his thinking. He was sincere, but he was anti-Christian. By nature man is at enmity with God. No good thing dwells in the flesh apart from the redeeming grace of God (Rom. 8:7; James 4:4; Rom. 7:18).

Stricken, probably by the faithful testimony of Stephen, to even greater zeal against the followers of Christ, Paul had to find new worlds to conquer, so he set out "breathing out threatenings and slaughter to destroy the church in Damascus" as he had sought to do in Jerusalem.

He was a bold persecutor, doing all he could "contrary to the name of Jesus" (v. 9), until he met the Lord himself on the Damascus road. Ah, that meeting made him a different man and he became

II. By Faith—Converted to Christ (Acts 26:13-18).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he found himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He heard from his holy lips the solemn indictment of those who persecute God's people—"Why persecutest thou me?" He who lays unkind hands upon, or brings untrue accusation against, God's children had better beware, for so closely is our Lord identified with his people that when they suffer, it is he who bears the hurt. In a single sentence the Lord disposed of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul entered into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished. He spent three days shut in with his own soul and God; not seeing, not caring to eat, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life was pulled up by the roots as it was displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus. God had a great commission awaiting Paul as soon as he was ready for it (vv. 16-18). He was to be the apostle to the Gentiles, and that includes so many of us. The gospel which had come first to the Jews, was now to go out into all the world and to all people.

The change in Paul was a drastic one. He was as one who was alive from the dead. It was not a case of adjusting or refurbishing the old persecutor Saul—here was a new creature in Christ, ordained to good works (Eph. 2:8-10).

III. By Grace—Confessing Christ (1 Cor. 15:8-10).

Twenty years had passed since Paul's conversion. He had been out serving Christ, in season and out of season. He had known persecution, suffering and opposition. Now he was writing, by inspiration of the Holy Spirit, about the resurrection, telling of those who had seen the risen Christ. He included himself as one born out of his time. It is a personal vision of the living Saviour which vitalizes the spirit of a witness and makes his testimony ring true. Paul saw Christ. We too may see Him with the eye of faith, and by His grace become witnesses. Effort and labor are involved. This matter of witnessing is not something which automatically does itself. "I labored more abundantly," said Paul, and yet he knew that it was the grace of God in him which accomplished the result (see v. 10 and Phil. 2:13).

That is it! The grace of God working on and in and through a man. And at the same time, that man laboring diligently that the grace bestowed upon him should not be found vain. It is in this manner God's work gets done on earth!

Household Hints

Enameled bathtubs and wash bowls that have become yellow may be restored by washing them with salt and turpentine.

When ironing sheets and tablecloths, place a card table in front of your ironing board. This will catch the sheet or tablecloth before it falls to the floor and gets soiled.

An iron heats more rapidly than it cools. With that fact in mind, start out with fabrics that require low temperatures and progress to those that require higher ones. Arrange dampened clothes in the laundry basket accordingly with those that come first placed on top.

When disconnecting the cord on your electric iron, pull on the plug that fits into the outlet, never the cord.

If a door sags, just a wee bit, throwing the bolt out of line with the striker plate, you can correct the difficulty quickly by filing the striker plate.

Save the material from the children's worn out cloth-covered rain coats. These can be made into serviceable aprons or handy capes to wear when applying make-up.

to be done to encourage better health and livability among your chickens?

First, see that your flock is not too crowded. Allow for at least four square feet of floor space per bird for heavy breeds and three square feet for light breeds. Disease is more easily spread when chickens are crowded.

Keep the litter dry and clean, removing when damp and adding clean litter periodically. Stir it often.

See that the roosts are clean and sanitary and that they are constructed so that the birds are unable to contact the accumulated droppings underneath the boards. It's a good idea to remove the droppings at frequent intervals.

Keep Waterers Clean

Waterers should be clean. Watch them closely and when the litter surrounding the waterers becomes damp, replace it with clean, dry litter. Be sure your birds have adequate watering space as well as enough room at the feeding troughs to avoid crowding.

Make a special effort to keep every part of your laying houses sanitary. You yourself may be guilty of spreading disease when you enter the house with dirty boots or bring in contaminated feed sacks or crates. There are countless other ways for infection to gain a foothold in the house, and constant vigilance on the flock owners part is necessary if this is to be avoided. The importance of sanitation cannot be overestimated.

Make sure there are no cold drafts in the building for they may weaken the birds to respiratory infections or possibly other diseases. At the same time the ventilation should be good enough to insure that there is plenty of fresh air at all times.

Miss Maurine Goodwin of Corpus Christi, is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Goodwin.

Those communities which have been far-seeing and wise enough to establish municipal light plants will tell of innumerable benefits derived from such projects. They will mention advantages aside from dollars and cents, and they will speak of profitable revenue.

Disease Lurks In Your Chicken House

Through fall and winter the average laying house is a breeding ground for disease and parasites. During this period of cold weather the birds are living under crowded conditions, cooped up in an enclosure that often either is ventilated poorly or is drafty and cold.

Under conditions like these, the health of your birds is in jeopardy. Your hopes for financial gain are at stake.

Winter Is Danger Period
At no time is good management of your flock more important than during cold weather — for this is the time when sudden heavy losses due to disease may be expected.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

Are Returning Veterans "Different"?

During the war you heard a lot about how hard it was going to be for returning veterans to get adjusted to civilian life ... how they'd be "different."

Well, plenty of them have returned to our town, and a finer, steadier bunch you couldn't ask for. Most of them are back at the same jobs ... going with the same nice home-town girls (getting married, some of them, and setting up families) ... renewing the same old friendships.

Even their amusements are the same. Nothing more exciting than fishing Seward's creek or pitching horseshoes ... enjoying an outdoor barbecue with friendly wholesome beer and pleasant talk.

If they've changed at all it's in the direction of maturity and tolerance ... tolerance for everything except dictators, and those who would destroy our democratic principles of live and let live. And from where I sit, that's another reason to be proud of them.

Building farm telephone lines

is one of our biggest jobs

We're hard at work at the job of providing more and better telephone service to farmers throughout the Southwest right now. Shortages of copper, lead, poles, steel, and other equipment have kept us from building as many lines as we had planned, but the future looks brighter.

The jobs of surveying, interviewing, and building are now under way in more than 250 rural areas. Sooner or later we'll get to every farmer who is waiting for a telephone.
