ESCAPE

We have heard various arguments as to why business should flee from the big city—including the Government's comparatively recent pleas to defense industries to "get out of town."

But perhaps the most potentially productive of all these nudges has just come from the Post Office Department. In its latest ruling on Public Law 199 (that "public be-damned law") the Department permits businesses located on rural routes to send and receive parcel post packages of maximum size and weight (up to 70 pounds and 100 inches combined length and girth). The ruling applies to all rural routes including those served from first-class post offices, even though, under P. L. 199 such post offices may not accept packages over 200 pounds and 72 combined inches—for shipments going to post offices more than 150 miles away.

Back of the new ruling was the plight of the Appomattox Garment Co., located on a rural route out of Appomattox, Virginia, which has been a second class post office. Due largely to the company's success, the gross income of the post office has hit the $40,000 mark, which automatically boosts it to first class, which would make the company's standard shipment unacceptable at the post office. The alternatives were higher shipping costs, extra labor, material and handling for smaller packages—or move out of the area where it had long provided employment.

In a ruling that impresses us as sensible, practical and in harmony with the Department's traditional attitude of helpfulness, assistant Postmaster General N. R. Abrams says: in part "As this firm is entitled to mail on the rural route but the carrier is not equipped to handle all of their mailings, the postmaster will be authorized to accept their packages at the post office, or if the volume warrants at the railway station, under the same conditions as if they were actually accepted by the rural carrier. Therefore, they may continue mailing packages not exceeding 70 pounds in weight or 100 inches length and girth combined, which are the limits prescribed by the Act of October 24, 1951, for parcels mailed on rural routes." Thus, one way of rendering P. L. 199 would be for all of us to move onto rural routes. But then, they wouldn't be rural any more. So the best method is still repeal of public Law 199.

ALWAYS MORE TO LEARN

Learning is the common denominator of democracy. The higher the level of learning in this country, the higher will be the level of our form of government, Freedom to pursue knowledge is the birthright of Americans and this means each individual is privileged to advance and learn with limitations set only by his own ambition and capabilities.

Public education and compulsory school attendance have raised the literacy level higher in this country than anywhere else in the world. With that rise, also have risen our standards of ethics, our social and political institutions. Mere literacy, however, is only a stepping stone to learning. And learning is only the raw material of thinking. Because of our broad base of education, we Americans have become leaders in the sciences, the arts and in human relations.

These thoughts are generated by the recent award of large cash prizes by the publishers of the New Funk & Wagnalls Encyclopedia and of the Unicorn Book of the Year to winners of two nation-wide "information" contests.

The prizes awarded by the publishers of these excellent research and reference works are an interest primarily to the winners. The public has a much more profound interest in the contests. Thousands of contestants, of all ages and walks of life, of all degrees of formal education, have been stimulated to scholarship, research and a thirst for knowledge.

We feel that Funk & Wagnall have performed a noteworthy service in demonstrating that intelligent curiosity need not end in the classroom, that the home, the foundation of our free way of life, can be an important place of learning thru ownership and use of family reference libraries. They have taught us that study can be rewarding and pleasurable hobby which helps build the family ties.

Thought is more powerful than dollars.

BRANCHES OF THE SAME TREE

The Hillsboro, Ore., Argus, says: "Those who argue for more and more government should get a better look at those countries that already have it. Maybe they would change their tune."

Big Government has been the cause of wars and revolutions since time began. Putting all power in the hands of government and a ruling political class has caused oppression, slavery, and the destruction of human rights and human dignity. It makes no difference what label government wears — fascism, communism, socialism, welfare state — do-everything governments are branches of the same tree. They wind up at the same place along the road of history. Freedom dies. The individual becomes a number—a hapless pawn of the state.

Awards Offered 4-H Clubbers With Food Preparation Skills

More than 22,000 awards are being offered 4-H club members thru two National 4-H award programs, Food preparation and Dairy Foods Demonstration.

Last year, over 600,000 4-H'ers participated in the programs, learning how to select and prepare healthful, economic foods, and teaching others new food skills thru demonstrations.

Medals are available for four winners in each county in the Food preparation program. The state winner will receive an expense paid trip to the National 4-H club Congress in Chicago, Nov. 27-Dec. 1, where eight national winners will receive $300 college scholarships, provided by the Kelvinator Divisions of American Motors Corporation.

The top ranking individual and team Dairy Foods demonstrators in each county will also receive medals. The three winning demonstrators in the state will be presented 19-jewel wrist watches by the Carnation Company, and eight sectional winners will attend the 4-H club Congress as its guests.

The Cooperative Extension service conducts the programs, and the awards are arranged by the National Committee on Boys and Girls club work. Complete information is available from county Extension offices.

Sad Note From The Bugle

All of us on the Clarion were alarmed to learn that our principal rival in the newspaper field — the Balesville Bugle — might have to shut down.

Crops were bad in Balesville last year and one of their factories moved out of town. Just temporary hard times, of course — but the Bugle needs help now if it's to survive.

So, this paper is going to scrape up a little money to help tide them over, and we hope other local concerns will do the same. We've seldom agreed with them editorially over the years—but we want their competition keep us on our toes.

From where I sit, this one needs papers with different points of view — just as it needs papers with different ideas and news. You may prefer lead us to weather cooler... I prefer choose a cold glass of beer. If either of us couldn't express his opinion, and act on it, would be "bad news" for whole community.

The film action begins as the "outlaw" ship steams out of the harbor at Sydney, Australia under cover of night and moves to

The Board of Directors held a meeting and decided that no merchant or executive manager or their immediate family living at home with them will be eligible to win the automobile to be given away June 25th.

The rodeo for 1955 is shaping up very nicely. A number of committee meetings have been held and most of the details have been worked out. Lets all make this the most successful rodeo yet.

The Finance and membership Committees held a meeting on May 23rd, and they have some good plans in the making. More about these very shortly.

Your Chamber of Commerce now has 191 members. When we started our membership drive at the first of the year we had 117 members. This is a fine increase but we need more members. We have only got pledges for about three-fourths of our budget for the year.

It is the desire of the management of the Burk Burnett Chamber of Commerce to bring to your attention some of the problems concerning the development of our City as a retail center for our trade territory.

The ability of a community to develop as a retail trade center depends on a host of factors. Some of these, such as the natural resources of the region in which the community is located, are more or less immutable and must be accepted as given. Others, such as the degree to which the agricultural and industrial resources of the region are exploited can be modified and developed over time. Our Chamber of Commerce can take an active part in such a development thru their Agricultural, Industrial and civic activities. Still other factors are under the control of the merchants themselves. They include such things as the quality of the services offered by the retailers, the attractiveness of their merchandise and prices, the extent and effectiveness of their sales and advertising efforts of all merchants so as to bring about a community-wide improvement in retailing practices and a fuller exploitation of the opportunities available to the merchants.

Obviously, the extent of the trade area varies by lines of merchandise. Few consumers find it necessary or advantageous to go far out of their way to buy such "convenience goods" as foods, tobacco or gasoline. They buy these things from the nearest retail store or filling station. Hence, it is difficult to speak about the trading area for such commodities. On the other hand people will travel considerable distances to purchase men's and women's wear, furniture, automobiles, farm equipment and amusements. It is merchandise of this sort we have in mind when we measure the trading area of a city.

The merchants need information about the buying habits of the people in the trade area. They need to know their likes and dislikes, as well as their evaluations of the local retail establishments. Information of this sort is invaluable in uncovering weaknesses that may be corrected and directions in which improvements should be made.

Except for the largest cities, there is hardly a community which does not complain that a considerable amount of "its" retail business is lost to some competing metropolitan center. Much of this loss is probably inevitable. It grows out of the inherent competitive advantages of the metropolitan store, and to enjoy themselves in new places, even so, however, it is probably true that almost every town and city can recapture a considerable amount of the business now lost by an intelligent program of community merchandising. Some of the elements of such a program have already been suggested. A few words of caution should be added, however.

To be effective, such a program must be truly constructive. It is useless to start a mere "buy at home movement." Hundreds of campaigns of this sort have been tried, and they have all failed. People go out of town to buy for good reason. They seek wider selections, better quality, lower prices, or more intelligent and courteous service. Unless the local merchants are able to provide the things that the consumer wants, it will do no good to implore him to buy at home or to play on his local patriotism. The only way to make a loyal customer is to serve him as he wants to be served. That is a fundamental tenet of the free enterprise system.

With the above in mind, several committees will be given the responsibility of helping to formulate a working plan to carry out a program for retail development.

Remember, Mr. Retailer, it is your program and the success or failure thereof depends upon your cooperation. In order for such a program to succeed, it is necessary to have the full and enthusiastic support of the majority of the retailers.

Remember the monthly luncheon to be held at Town Hall 12:00 noon, June 6th. Come and bring someone with you.

People up East call these sting-ers "buck moths", presumably because they are most active in the fall of the year, during deer season.

Females deposit eggs on oak leaves and twigs, and occasionally on other trees and shrubs. The larva get along very well to gether, frequently feeding in clusters.

In addition to their harmful effect, the dorms are economic pests in that they damage young foliage. After completing their larval development, they drop to the ground to transform into the harmless adult stage.

The caterpillars have chewing mouthparts and that's the thing that gets them in trouble, entomologists say. It means they can be controlled with most insecticides of the stomach poison type which can be purchased commercially.

Health department entomologists recommend lead arsenate applied to infested foliage at the rate of 1 ounce per 1-2 gallons of water.

Mrs. Nellie McGinnis of Fort Worth, Texas, is visiting friends here this week.

Air Conditioning Costs Much Less In Insulated House

Insulation of your home—or lack of it—has a lot to do with the initial cost of the air-conditioning equipment you may be buying. And it means even more in terms of lower operating cost.

Tests conducted by the University of Illinois on a 4½-room house showed that 6-ton air-conditioning equipment would be needed in a house that is not insulated. But with a minimum of 3 inches of mineral wool insulation in walls and 4 inches between the ceiling joists, 2-ton equipment would do the job.

The cost of insulating the house with mineral wool was estimated to be less than $240, and this would result in reducing the initial cost of air-conditioning equipment by $840. The expense of operating the equipment also would be reduced more than half year after year.

AUSTIN Highlights

By Senator "Cotton" George Moffett

Among the hundreds of letters which come to my office each week in Austin there are many which ask, "Why do we have to raise more taxes?" This is a good question. I will try to discuss it as fully as space permits.

The need for additional revenue (taxes) arises from three sources. More money is needed for our public school system; more money is needed to pay pensions to old people; more money is needed for our highway system. These are the principal needs. In addition, our State Hospitals and Special Schools now have 25,000 inmates. A short time ago they only had 16,000. These people must be taken care of, and it takes money to do it.

In fact, all state expenses go up as our population goes up.

PALACE Theatre Coming Soon

Strategic Air Command

Within the past few years, our public school enrollment shows an increase of more than a quarter of a million students. The State contributes 80 percent of the cost of maintaining the public school system, including text books, teachers' salaries, bus transportation, etc. It will take $18,000,000 more from the State Treasury during the next two years, than it has heretofore to provide the State's part of supporting the public schools. It will take $14,000,000 more in the next two years from State Treasury to comply with the increase in Old Age assistance which the people voted last November and for which the Legislature is duty bound to raise the money.

Texas has the best highway system in the United States. Automobiles can be operated more cheaply over a paved road than any other kind. If we are to continue to build and maintain a good highway system that we all use, it will require more money.

The foregoing are only the high spots in the needs of our State which now contains more than eight million people. It has been only a relatively short time since the State had only five and one half million people. More people necessarily call for more government services and more tax revenue to pay for them.

The Legislature does not relish levying taxes. It is always a disagreeable job. Under the present circumstances, however, there is no other course that we can take. Therefore, many of the members have reluctantly made up their minds to swallow hard and vote for the minimum taxation that is necessary to pay the bill for essential State services.

I would be glad to receive comment on what should be done, what taxes to levy, or where to cut expenses.

Ben R. Newberry
Receives 1955
Shipman Award

Ben R. Newberry of Dallas, director of purchases and materials for the Lone Star Gas Company, has received the 1955 Shipman Award from the National Association of Purchasing Agents for outstanding services to the purchasing field over an extended period. The presentation was made at the NAPA convention banquet in New York following Newberry's selection by a secret committee.

Newberry, former NAPA president, is a veteran of the purchasing field. In 1915 he began his career with Lone Star's purchasing department when general headquarters were in Fort Worth. He moved to Dallas with the company in 1919 and shortly thereafter was appointed purchasing agent, following a brief term as "acting" purchasing agent. He was appointed to his present position as director of purchases and materials in 1943.

A charter member and past president of the Dallas Association of Purchasing Agents, Newberry was elected to the executive committee of the National Association of Purchasing Agents in 1941, as vice-president for District No. 2 and also served as financial officer of the NAPA in that year. He was NAPA president for the 1943-44 term.

Then followed a 5 year term as a member of the National organization's advisory board, last year of which he was board chairman. For three years he was trustee of the NAPA Pension Trust Plan and for two years was one of four members of the Policy Committee, in the committee on education for the NAPA. He was awarded a certificate in 1943 in appreciation of his services to the national purchasing organization. During that same year he taught a war training class at Southern Methodist University based on wartime purchasing and inventory control. He has long been active in the Public Utility Buyers' Group of the NAPA. Since retiring as NAPA president, Newberry has addressed local purchasing agents' groups throughout the country. Several years ago members of the Dallas Purchasing Agents Association established a past presidents' organization and honored Newberry by naming it the Ben Newberry club. In May of 1953 Newberry completed more than a year in a procurement consulting capacity to the United States Air Force Air Material Command. For this work he received commendation from the commanding officer of the Air Force project.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Thaxton had as their guests this week, Mrs. W. O. Mathis of Mineral Wells and Dr. John P. Mathis of Houston.

River Menaces
Span Approach

Red River, rising Saturday, was threatening Oklahoma approach to the bridge north of Burkburnett, according to Claud Neely, state highway foreman for Cotton County, Okla.

Neely said rains three weeks ago cut a new channel in the river which is 150 yards south of the old channel, and as the new channel approaches the bridge it turns north and joins the old one.

When the channels join, the water cuts into the bank at the bridge and has already eaten back six or eight feet of the bank under the bridge. Water is also cutting into banks downstream about 75 to 100 yards, Neely said.

Rocks are being dumped at the site as a temporary measure to force the stream away from the bank. Jetties will be built there this summer, Neely said, when the river goes down.

News From The Congress

By FRANK IKARD

One of the matters that must be disposed of by this session of Congress before it adjourns is legislation dealing with the Federal Highway System. Some time ago the President appointed a commission headed by General Lucius D. Clay to study this problem and to make recommendations. This spring the Clay Commission reported to the president and proposed a plan which has been endorsed by the Administration. This plan for a Federal Highway program briefly is as follows:

It is proposed that approximately $32,500,000,000 will be spent on the program. This money will be raised by the issuing of special bonds which will bear 3 percent interest for thirty years. The bonds will be issued by a special Federal Highway Corporation. The emphasis under this plan is placed on an interstate super highway system. The plan would abolish the present apportionment formula as between the states and would leave the matter of apportionment on roads up to the Secretary of Commerce. If it should be enacted into law, the contribution to the program would be 95 percent by the Federal Government and 5 percent by the states. It is estimated that it will take ten years of construction to build the system outlined by the Clay Commission and, of course, under the plan of financing suggested the bonds would be outstanding for thirty years.

The House Public Works Committee is still considering this measure and as yet has not reported a bill. However, recently the Senate passed a bill dealing with the Highway Program which is substantially different from the program outlined by the Clay group. The bill passed by the Senate authorizes a total expenditure of $12.7 billion which would be financed by annual congressional appropriations over a period of five years. The Senate bill would increase funds and provide for the building of all types of Federal Aid Highways including primary and secondary road systems. It was pointed out that the reason for this is that the interstate system which would receive nearly all the funds under the Clay program carries only about one-seventh of the nation's traffic. The Senate bill also continues into effect the same apportionment formula that is presently being used and provides that for the interstate system the Federal government will bear 90 percent of the cost while the states will bear 10 percent.

It seems to me that the Senate version is probably the best practical approach to the problem and that something about like the Senate bill is likely what will be passed by Congress. However, either bill will provide the most sweeping highway legislation that has been enacted in our country's history.

It is estimated that 350,000 high school students visit the Capitol here each year. This week we were most happy to have about 100 visitors from Bowie, Nocona and St. Jo. and other towns in the district. This group is made up principally of the senior class of Bowie. We were able to plan a short meeting with them in the Speaker's Dining Room in the Capitol at which time they met with Sen. Lyndon Johnson and Price Daniels, Congressman at large Martin Dies, Congressman Walter Rogers and myself.

Recently the Federal Civil Defense Administration announced the publication of "Home Protection Exercises," which is a booklet designed to give to a family information that is necessary for them to prepare for a disaster. The contents of the booklet apply to any peace time disaster as well as what to do in case of an enemy attack. I would be more than happy to send upon request copies of the booklet to anyone who would like to have one.

Visitors from home this week were Mr. James Fillmore, Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Modgling, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Collins, Mr. Flynn Stewart and Mr. Otis Nelson of Wichita Falls and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Kincaid of Decatur.

Davy Crockett

By R. D. Laney

When the frontier hero was first introduced in a series of three TV programs, between 5 and 15, Davy Crockett leaped to fame. A song man raced to the front of the parade. Moppets scrambled for coonskin caps, and maniacs of such items went on a night schedule. The hero was renewed after many letters from parents and children bemoaning the film.

During the many reported deaths of Davy is an old story. His first life 1786-1836, Tennessee frontiersman show back for winning astonishingly. Starting in 1827 when he ran for Congress, and newspapers everywhere ran stories about him and "Crockett's Latest".

about him sold in great quantities. In 1834 a New York paper reported that "babies, horses, steamboats" were after him.

The issue of the Boston Spectator on Feb. 22, 1836 announced his death, although the Alamo wasn't to be until March 6. More accurate newspapers later announced he was killed during this trip in May, the Cincinnati reported that "a man of" had seen him alive the last few weeks. A patent set which has been used many times.

While a series of "Crockett" had been started, with jokes and tall tales, through 50 issues and were read in Nashville, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York down to 1836. In them reportedly told in his triumph over a lion in a arena in 1831. And in a theatre between 1836 and Crockett was an outstanding character in about a dozen. In most of these he died in the Alamo during performance, but was on the next night to die again.

When Davy was heard of for years before the Civil War in 1872 he came back very thoroughly in Frank Mardock's highly successful play, "Davy Crockett, or You're Right and Then Some" for years playgoers through the great scenes melodrama wherein Davy his mighty arm against a pack of wolves. Frank Mayo played the title role for 24 years. He kept track of the number of his appearances up to 2,000 he says, then lost count. Davy's hibernation from 1896 to 1954, interrupted only in appearances in a few articles and books, was the longest on record.

His latest reincarnation is like and unlike earlier ones. In his own day and down thru the 19th century, Davy was admired as a coonskin philosopher, and uneducated man who figured out answers to problems because he had a good head on him and much practical experience. "One ounce of the genuine horse sense is worth a pound of your book learning any day," he said, and his admirers agreed. This attitude, of course, still a very popular one in America; but this aspect of Crockett doesn't seem to be getting much emphasis in 1955. Other parts of the old appeal, tho, are still important. Davy's strength, his courage, and his humorous way of confronting danger appeal as much now as ever.

Davy's fame is now being exploited in many ways. By both parties for political purposes. Today, this wild man from the canebrakes of Tennessee is used to peddle merchandise to youngsters. There are Davy Crockett sweaters for the kids by the thousands, tho the real Davy doubtless never heard of any such garments, he was fed on buffalo milk, spiked with whiskey and made stronger by adding rattlesnack soup, but today Davy will adorn cereal boxes and his old time flintlock rifle will be supplanted by toys patterned after the atomic cannon of this day.

Born on a mountain top in Tennessee. Greatest land in the land of the free.

Raised in the woods where he knew every tree.

Killed him a bear when he was only three.

Davy, Davy Crockett king of the wild frontier."

Don't argue with this baby!

All Chevrolet's competitors and most of the high-priced cars tried it recently in official NASCAR* trials—and took a licking!

Meet the champ! The new Chevrolet "Turbo-Fire V8"—the most modern V8 on the road today.

You want facts, don't you? And not ours. Facts instead from an independent, outside source where the only things that count are who came in first, second, and so on. Here they are—

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Acceleration Tests Over Measured Mile From Standing Start. Chevrolet captured the 4 top positions in its class! 8 of the first 11! On a time basis it beat every high-priced car, too—but one!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR Straightaway Running. Open to cars delivered in Florida for $2,500 or less. Chevrolet captured the first two places. 7 out of the first 11 places!

Daytona Beach. NASCAR 2-Way Straightaway Running Over Measured Mile. Open to cars from 250 to 299 cu. in. displacement. Chevrolet captured 3 of the first 5 places! None of its major competition (what competition?) even finished "in the money"!

Columbia, S. C. NASCAR 100-Mile Race on half-mile track. Very tight turns. Chevrolet finished first! Way, way ahead—as in sales! With a new car, and no pit stops!

Fayetteville, N. C. NASCAR Late Model Event. After running the fastest qualifying round (with a new car) Chevrolet again finished first. Because of even tighter turns the driver chose to run the entire 150 laps in second gear! Yet no overheating or pit stops!

These facts you can't laugh off. Sales leader. Road leader. A crowning achievement of Chevrolet and General Motors. Try a Chevrolet . . . and live in a land of going-away where you win all the arguments! Soon, maybe?

Questions & Answers

Q—If a veteran fails to apply for Korean GI term insurance until the last day of his 120-day free coverage, and that final day is a Saturday, does he lose out on his chance to get insurance?

A—Not necessarily. If the final day falls on Saturday, Sunday or a legal holiday, the 120-day period will be extended to cover the next VA workday. With the final day on Saturday, the veteran could obtain his GI term insurance the following Monday.

Q—May a veteran taking Korean GI Bill training allowances at the same time, since he isn't working?

A—No. The law prohibits veterans from receiving GI training allowance and GI unemployment allowances at the same time.

Q—I am a World War II veteran in school under the original GI Bill. At the wind-up of the program on July 25, 1956, I figure that I still will have some unused GI training entitlement. Will I be able to use my entitlement after that date?

A—No. Even though you may have unused entitlement, your GI Bill training must stop on July 25, 1956. GI training beyond that date will not be permitted, under the law, except in certain rare instances.
