GRASS ROOTS OPINION

LENNOX, S. D., INDEPENDENT: "Definition of a socialistic bureaucrat, and there are plenty of them in government: One who has nothing himself and is willing to share it with everyone else."

ABILENE, KANSAS, DAILY REFLECTOR-CHRONICLE: "Efficiency, economy and the elimination of pork barrels offer us the only hope of reducing the cost of government."

CROWN POINT, IND., LAKE COUNTRY STAR: "Any lingering doubt that the need for income tax rate reductions had reached the full-blown status of critical urgency was dispelled at the 24-day House Ways and Means Committee public hearings."

"A parade of witnesses, representatives of all facets of the nation's economic life, offered strong evidence that the current business recession results largely from oppressive personal and corporate tax rates and that reform of these rates is vital to recovery."

NORTHPORT, N. Y., OBSERVER: "We say that most small-town people, or rural folks, have a sort of dignity of simplicity which is both wholesome and refreshing, and which is one of the characteristic traits of the typical American."

GARNER, IOWA, LEADER: "Our business is no different than others in the community. We are faced with constantly increasing costs—and frankly economic conditions in this area have not been good enough to make it possible for us to increase charges and keep up with our increasing costs. The situation was intensified recently with announcement of the big paper mills that print paper is going up another $4 per ton—which will mean that it will cost us more than three times what it did 20 years ago."

STORM LAKE, IOWA, PILOT-TRIBUNE: "The Crusade for Freedom—is the program whereby Uncle Sam's messages are beamed via radio into the home of unfortunate residents of the Rusk satellite countries. And even unto the residents of Russia itself. Many American newspaper men, have visited the satellite countries and have penetrated to Moscow. They bring back word that Radio Free Europe is getting thru. They testify that Uncle Sam's efforts to combat the distorted propaganda put out by the Russkies is giving down-trodden peoples under the red boot hope and inspiration."

CARLSBAD, N. M., CURRENT-ARGUS: "Supply and demand has a certain amount of say so' in our everyday living, despite so-called controlled economy. An economy that withstands the onslaught of 'depression talk' is desirable. We are optimistic enough to think there will be an upturn in the economy before the end of this year."

ENSLEY, ALA., THE INDUSTRIAL PRESS: "A major part of the unemployed are from the ranks of highly paid industrial workers who have enjoyed a considerable advantage and a higher standard of living than ever before."

"They are finding it extremely hard to adjust to conditions that millions of their fellow men have been battling for a number of years—white collar workers, teachers, pensioners, aged, small business men and many others. Fifty cent dollars buy very little food."

NAPLES, TEXAS, MONITOR: "While the big majority of American people and all of the businesses are heavily taxed by the federal government on their incomes, there is one type of organization that gets by without so much as a token payment."

"Those organizations are the labor unions. While their incomes dwarf many so-called 'big businesses,' they pay nothing to the federal government in taxes on that income."

STARKVILLE, MISS., NEWS: "Freedom of giving is a basic part of the democratic American way of life. We create, maintain and support our own charities. We help the organization and the people we think need a lift. It is voluntary agencies that have brought our nation's health and welfare services to the forefront."

ABILENE, KANS., DAILY-REFLECTOR-CHRONICLE: "The nation's prosperity has been at such a high level for so long that a flat tire on the highway now is getting to be regarded as a major auto accident."

JUNCTION CITY, ORE., TIMES: "—Interest cost on the national debt has risen $1.7 billion since 1953. Thus, a smaller part of each tax dollar goes to pay for actual government services: a larger part to those who lend money to the government through bonds and notes—"

CANTON, GA., NORTH GEORGIA TRIBUNE: "Obviously, the nation has millions of citizens who read carelessly, with resulting confusion as to facts, figures, ratios and relationships. . . There are educators in the United States today who assert that education is largely a matter of acquiring the habit of intelligent reading. The columns of a daily newspaper, for example, take on a new significance if one understands the background and implications of events. The same observation applies to reading, in connection with any subject."

QUINCY, MASS., PATRIOT LEDGER: "No form of transportation is isolated from the weather but railroading is less affected than any other."

HOW BOUT THAT

Drawn Especially for Burkburnett Star
By RALPH TEE

HARTFORD, WISC., TIMES-PRESS: "We still maintain that if the postal service were turned over to private industry, and given exactly the same budget that it now operates on, said private enterprise would make a fabulous profit and give far better service than is now the general rule. The sooner that Uncle Sam starts stepping out of an activity that could be handled by private enterprise, the sooner that the government will start shrinking back to the job that it was originally designed for—the simple (not really so simple) task of running the government. Any other activity simply does not belong."

ADDISON, N. Y. ADVERTISER: "It is true enough that industries as well as individuals are over-taxed. But the remedy is not to be found in shifting the burden from one pair of shoulders to another's. The remedy is to seek out waste in government and unnecessary expenditures. Double taxation is one of the greatest burdens now pressing down the brow of the people."

"Nor can the individual owning no stocks escape the effect of this double taxation. No one will willingly invest their money in a company which pays no return. To have anything left after taxes for dividends, every company is obliged to sell its product for higher prices. And since every individual must at some time buy their products of some of these corporations, they, in turn are helping this double tax."

"It is as simple as two plus two makes four."

WEEKEND COOKOUTS give Dad a chance to shine in the food department. Juicy, sizzling burgers, grilled to sizzling perfection—tender, fresh Mrs. Baird's buns, plus sizzling extras satisfy ravenous appetites.

Burgers 'N Buns Star at Weekend Family Cookouts

Cookout season is here again. It's time to bring out the grill and let burgers and buns resume their popular place in the cooking schedule. Weekends usually find big, sizzling burgers and tender Mrs. Baird's buns. That's when the man of the house demonstrates his talent as an outdoor chef. For those who are new at the grill, here are a few suggestions which make for masterful burgers. Recipes from Mrs. Baird's provide several hearty weekend versions of the hamburger. First, the hints. When selecting meat, be sure the color is bright red. A little fat adds flavor. If you have beef ground to order, chuck, top round or sirloin is best. Have two or three ounces of suet ground with each pound, if the meat is lean. Medium or coarsely ground meat produces a light-textured burger. The less you handle the patties, the juicier, more tender the burgers will be. Pat the meat loosely into shape. When entertaining a crowd, shape and stack the patties ahead of time with waxed paper in between each layer. That way they are ready to broil at a second's notice. An easy way to shape patties is to roll out meat between waxed paper. Cut patties with large biscuit cutter or large rimmed drinking glass. While broiling, turn the burgers only once. Do not turn the meat back and forth. Your burgers are at their best when served between buns that are warm or grilled. If you like garlic, brush the inside slices of the bun with garlic butter before warming them. The weekender is a tasty version of the burger that uses your favorite toppings as a filling instead. It's a hearty combination to please man-sized appetites.

Fire Prevention

ANDRA KAY WOODS
Prevention denotes those measures of public and private individuals designed to avoid the occurrence of fire and its resultant loss of life, personal injury and property damage. Thus prevention essentially comprises the definition of the term, fire protection, which encompasses fire fighting facilities for preventing the occurrence of fire and the saving of property after fires have started. Ninety percent of the average annual property losses of $300,000 and 10,000 lives in the United States could be eliminated through the elimination of common causes of fire. These occur whenever there are combustible materials or liquids, gases, or vapors. In order to have fire three conditions must be present: (1) fuel, (2) heat, and (3) air or oxygen. If one of these three is absent, the fire will not start, and if the three are removed the fire will not burn. In fire prevention, therefore, in places where fuel or combustible materials are necessities, attempts are made to avoid heat or source of ignition; and where heat is present measures are taken to prevent combustible materials from reaching any point near their ignition temperature. Discussion is primarily centered with the prevention of fires in buildings or other structures and their contents, such as fires that result in so much needless economic waste in life and property and that affect every individual directly or indirectly. Although the causes of fire in vehicles, airplanes, forests, etc., are similar to those in buildings, the control of fire in the former requires separate treatment.

Hazards: The prevention of fire is no longer a problem of wastepaper, oily rags and provision of safe lighting and heating. It increasingly includes processes, materials and operations. Many new hazards have arisen in the past decade, but science is just as effective in providing remedial materials which develop new processes and measures which produce hazards. For example, the fire and explosion record in such dangerous places as munition plants is better than in most ordinary manufacturing plants, where danger to life and property is not nearly so apparent. This has been brought about by a recognition on the part of the management that hazards exist and that it is true economy to spend money to provide adequate protection facilities and to train employees in fire prevention.

Laws governing fire prevention and to control of hazardous materials are promulgated by Federal, State, Municipal and sometimes other incorporated areas. Laws and regulations for fire safety fall into two general classes: (1) those which relate to buildings and (2) those which relate to hazardous materials and machinery used in building construction is generally covered by a building code and fire hazards by a fire prevention code. Under a building code a city controls the construction, alteration, repair, moving and demolition of buildings. It establishes fire limits and defines the type of construction that may be erected therein. Building equipment such as boilers, elevators, electric wiring and appliances, etc., is regulated. Under English common law, in France and in other European countries, a person is liable for damage to his neighbor's property for a fire which spreads from his own premises, where such a fire is the result of his negligence. This principle is not generally applicable in the US the usual attitude being that the person who has had a fire has been punished enough. However, the general use of fire insurance decreases the misfortune. Fire prevention agencies urge persons injured by fire negligence of others to bring suit for damage.

The most effective way of preventing fire is by thorough periodical inspections by persons qualified to detect and correct hazards. Well managed industrial and mercantile occupants have their own fire and safety inspection programs, and modern city fire departments make regular inspections of all buildings. These inspections, in addition to eliminating conditions and practices which contribute to the start and spread of fires acquaint the firemen with the buildings where they may be called to fight fires and thereby increase the effectiveness and safety of their operations.

Grade School News

We are having some very fast baseball games between the sixth grade sections. Mrs. Cole's room has been working very hard and trying to get in condition to give all the other sections the small end of the score. Mitchell Henry is the team captain for this room and he has been doing some very secret work among the boys that seems to make them hit the ball fifteen or twenty feet further than the rest of the room. Sammy Wise, the captain in Mrs. Morton's room has been trying to offset this advantage by having the pitchers throw the ball so fast that the boys do not have time to swing the bat for hits.

The girls have taken up the battle cry and have been playing just as hard as the boys and are in the mood of challenging the boys on the field of battle as to whom will have the honor of wearing the crown of champion.
