Fewer People Feed More People

A farm equipment manufacturer announces that it is approaching the end of the best year in its history. Two reasons are given, improved conditions in agriculture, and the increasing use of modern machinery to do the work on the farm.

The first of those reasons is certainly important. When farm income runs at high levels, as it has this year, farmers are naturally going to spend more freely on machinery as on everything else they want or need. But in the long pull, and aside froms ups and downs in the farm economy, the second reason is infinitely more important.

Successful farming today is virtually impossible without tractors and the other mechanical aids. The cost of hand labor has reached the out-of-the-question point. The modern history of farming has been one of revolutionary technological changes, in which fewer and fewer people have become capable of larger production. In 1910, one out of every three persons lived on a farm-this year the ratio is one out of every eight. In April of this year about 20,827,000 people lived on farms, and that marked a decline of 4,231,000 from as recent a date as April, 1950.

We have a vexatious farm surplus problem. But our increas ing population, along with one hopes, a wiser and more far sighted government farm policy, ultimately will take care of that. Indeed a future problem may be the need to avoid scarcity. Fewer people must feed more people and that means that farmers will require the best mechanized equipment the manufacturers can devise.

Time For Resuscitation Limited

The last Congress enacted the most sweeping transportation legislation in many years. But that does not mean that the problems facing our vital financial distressed railroads are now all warning to this country. Th franc today is worth only 1-84th of solved. The new legislation should be regarded as a fine beginning its 1918 value. If the same fate should befall the dollar, a $100 not as an end.

For example, the World War II excise taxes on freight were repealed-but the excise tax on passenger fares, also of World ance would provide board and room for a widow for about a year. War II vintage, remain on the books. The railroads are still plagued with inadequate and unrealistic depreciation allowances on their plant and equipment. The railroad commercial competitors use publicly, supplied facilities, such as highways and airports, for which they pay no or inadequate user charges. Abuses continue under the agricultural commodities exemption clause. And the railroads are still denied equal opportunity to provide service by other means of transportation, even as they must pay . I. O. G. F. LODGE heavily in taxes toward the support of publicly provided facilities needed in other modes.

More major legislation must be passed before the goal of equality of opportunity and treatment of the railroads is achieved. It is highly encouraging that Congress authorized a long-range study which will deal with the whole philosophy of transportation regulation and policy. An excellent start has been made, now the hope is that obvious remedies will be applied while the patient still has strength to recover.

A Matching Force

There are definite indications that next January members of Congress will come to Washington carrying a mandate from home to do something about union racketeering and to apply a check to the various forms of coercive pressures which can be used to force employees to join a union. That view is expressed in a bulletin from the American Retail Federation.

It also points out that there is a growing realization throughout the country that businessmen must become more active in politics. It cites, as an example, a campaign recently started by the Gulf Oil Corp. to organize grass roots political work. A company official explained the reason for the campaign in these words: "If we are to survive, labor's political power must now be opposed by a matching force.

Nowadays poltics is everybody's business. Political decisions made not only in Washington but in the state capitals, the court houses, and the city halls affect all of us every day of our lives. To follow politics, and to actively engage in politics in one way or another, is an obligation no less than a right. Political activity has become one of the major functions of the big unions. They brazenly spend millions to elect and control candidates. It is certainly true that "a matching force" is needed if something resembling balance is to be kept in the governments of this country, and if the public interest is to be placed above special interest.

A wave of alcoholism has struck the Soviet Union and its satellites, writes Charles W. Thayer in the Reporter. Consumption of liquor has risen by as much as 40% in the countries concerned. Sheer boredom, he says seems the chief cause of drunkennes.

Millions Never Saw An Elephant

Some may wonder why the circus keeps coming year after year. After all, the acts and the animals and the clowns and all the rest of it are pretty much the same. One reason is that a great new audience comes into being in this country each year. Last year, for instance, 4,000,000 babies were born, and none had seen an elephant

In other words, the circus comes back because the American scene is forever changing. There's a lesson in James Dean that for merchants and all other business people. They must keep on selling their wares and attractions to their Delbert Doyle new customers as well as their old. And they must help sell, too, the philosophies and ideals, based on freedom, that have made this country what it is. For the new faces need to learn about them-and all the rest of us need to be constantly reminded.

A wall Street Journal feature article, written by Roscoe Born, reports that organized labor is winding up its worst year at the polls. This has to do with National Labor Relations Board elections during the fiscal year which is about to end. Mr. Born adds that more workers than ever before in the board's 23-year history have cast their ballots against unionism.

The swift depreciation of the franc has been partly to blame for French political undest, in the view of the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and should be a suit of clothes would sell for $8,400; a $100 social security check would buy two pounds of hamburger, and $100,000 in life insur-
