Burk Invited to Have Special Day at Ft Worth Stock Show

Burkburnett has received an invitation to have a special day at the 1962 Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show, scheduled January 26 through February 4th.

W. R. Watt, Stock Show president-manager, said by having a "special day" at the 66-year-old exposition, the city would receive recognition both at the show itself and throughout a wide area of Texas.

The invitation provides a special block reservation of seats at the rodeo, with a spotlight introduction to the rodeo crowd. The local band is invited to play a concert on the Stock Show grounds and be the show's guests at the rodeo. The Fort Worth Rodeo spotlight will fall on television stars Lorne Greene (Ben Cartwright) and Dan Blocker (Hoss Cartwright) of TV's popular "Bonanza," plus 400 rugged cowboys. The two big men from "Bonanza" will appear in person at all 20 rodeo performances. In the livestock department, more than 10,000 entries will be exhibited.

The city also is invited to name a cowgirl sweetheart to ride in the rodeo grand entry on the special day, and be introduced to the audience. Riding clubs in the area also are invited to ride in the opening day parade in the rodeo grand entry on the special day, or both.

Many cities and organizations make annual trips to the Fort Worth Stock Show, the nation's oldest major livestock show and site of the world's original indoor rodeo.

NOTICE

Burkburnett residents who vote at Box 29 will cast their votes at the Educational Building of the Church of Nazarene, 116 West 3rd St. in the special election, Saturday, December 16th.

The car is becoming a status symbol. Our purpose in getting into one is to wait in a traffic jam while empty trains go by.

The Chamber of Commerce adjourned its noonday meeting Monday, December 4th, immediately after luncheon, to reconvene at the construction site of Imperial Plastics, Inc., on N. Berry Street, for ground breaking ceremonies.

Bill Browning, President of the Chamber of Commerce, presided at the ceremony, presenting Lawrence Radford, president of the new firm; Alvin Hill, President of the Industrial Foundation, and George McClarty, City Mayor. Each expressed appreciation for all the efforts made which resulted in securing the new industry. Both Hill and McClarty expressed hopes that Imperial Plastics, Inc., was only the first of other industries to follow.

The new company, a $100,000 investment, plans to be ready for operation by March 1, 1962, with an initial group of 10 to 15 employees. The number of employees will probably double after the firm gets into full operation.

Style Show Staged November 30th

Glistening silver Christmas trees with red balls, and pink and red satin balls in various sizes which hung from the ceiling, decorated the stage of the Town Hall for the Style Show, "Holiday Belles," which was presented November 30th. A beautiful pink table cloth with a white net overskirt covered the table from which coffee was served. Centering the table was a white net Christmas tree decorated with miniature pink and silver bells.

The guests were seated at tables covered with pastel cloths, each centered with a crystal candelabrum and miniature Christmas balls the same color as the table cloth. As the models walked from the stage they completed styling from a pink "T" shaped ramp framed with silver fringe.

Theta Epsilon Sorority would like to thank The Elite Dress Shop, for presenting their fashions to the public through the style show "Holiday Belles," and also the following models for modeling: Miss Jean Page, Carolyn Horton, Sue Revier, Anita Sweet, Carolyn Howard, Donna Thompson, Dixie Van Reenan, Donna Rose Gibson and Mrs. Keith Hubbard, Toby Green, T. Preston, Jr., Neal Tullis, Cliff Wampler, Raymon Scruggs and son, OJ Wayne.

Helping to make our style show complete we wish to thank Mrs. Jo Brookman, commentator; Mr. James Green and Norworthy Music Center for the organ music; Kathleen and Karen Reasoner for dance numbers; Mrs. Bryan Farris for vocal selections; Miss Karen Burdett for the beautiful reading and Mr. James Howard for poster printing.

If You're Starting As a Baby Sitter, Heed These Tips

If you have never been a baby sitter before, your chance may come along during the holiday season this year.

A good sitter is one who has a sense of responsibility. There are certain things a good baby sitter does not do, such as raid the icebox without permission or make long distance telephone calls.

If you are serving as a baby sitter for the first time this holiday season, the National Board of Fire Underwriters offers these suggestions:

Get His Phone Number

1. Ask your employer to leave you a note, in writing, the phone number of the place where he will be. Tell him this is merely a precautionary step, and you will not call him except in an emergency.

2. Also, have him give you the phone number of a friend of the family who lives nearby or the phone number of a next door neighbor.

3. Ask your employer to leave the telephone number of the fire department and the family doctor beside the phone.

4. When you enter the home where you are to baby sit, make a mental note of where the exits are; then, in case of fire, you can get the children out of the house quickly.

5. Know Where Flashlight Is

5. Ask your employer where he keeps his flashlight. You might need it suddenly if the lighting should fail.

6. Take a look around and make sure that any matches in the home are out of reach of children.

7. If fire should break out, follow this procedure: Get the child, children out of the house, then call the fire department, then notify the parents.

IT'S A FACT

There are approximately 1300 companies in the drug industry in this country — and no single company accounts for more than 10% of the market. A 1960 study made by the National Industrial Conference Board showed at least 300 other industries had a higher concentration ratio than the drug industry.

Hi Boys and Girls:

Be sure and write old Santa Claus a letter and tell him what you want for Christmas and maybe you know of some little boy or girl who may not have a good Christmas like you or maybe you know of some needy family who won't have a Christmas dinner with all the goodies like you will have. Santa don't and won't forget anyone. He has toys for boys and girls. Let's make this a Christmas for those who may not have one.

Love to all of you, SANTA CLAUS

Address all letters and gifts to Santa Claus and drop them in the Santa Claus mail box in front of the local post office.

Christmas Leave Policy Set by The U. S. Army

Again, as in the past, a Christmas leave policy is being offered by the U. S. Army. According to M/Sgt. Drue McBride, Recruiter men enlisting from December 11 through New Year's Day may request as much as 15 days leave before reporting for basic training.

With this liberal leave policy young men can enjoy the holiday season with their families and still draw full pay and allowances from the U. S. Army. Those who desire more information on this leave offer and the many other benefits available to young men should contact Sgt. McBride at 1007 Lamar, Wichita Falls or phone 723-5976. After 6 p. m. week ends, 1209 Shady Lane, Burkburnett, Phone 569-3972.

DINING? OUT?

A manual of politeness published in Philadelphia in 1859 suggested:

"In the case of a dinner party when dinner is announced, the mistress or master of the house gets up, invites the company to follow to the dining room and sets them the example by passing out first."

MIGHTIEST MONARCH

The addition of the USS Enterprise, the first nuclear powered aircraft carrier and the world's largest ship, to our Naval forces on December 20 marks a tremendous advance in the defense posture of the nation. The further fact that she was rushed to completion nine weeks ahead of the scheduled contract date by the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company indicates not so much urgency as the capability of American builders, from the ship's designers to the construction crews.

The eighth Naval vessel to bear the proud name "Enterprise" is not only a formidable aircraft carrier but also a "floating city." More than 1,100 feet long, displacing 85,350 tons, her four-and-one-half acre flight deck would accommodate four football fields. Her eight nuclear reactors, the largest nuclear power plant ever built, develop "over 200,000" horsepower to give her a speed of more than 40 miles per hour.

The attack aircraft carrier was a vital factor in World War II and can be expected to play a mighty role in the free world's survival. The strategic advantage of such floating landing fields to serve our heavier, faster aircraft anywhere on the high seas should be obvious. Not only sea-faring men, but the nation at large—whose security is at stake—will be watching anxiously to evaluate the strength that nuclear-powered vessels, surface and undersea, add to the nation's defenses. Most significant such propulsion provides unlimited cruising ranges for the first time in all Naval history.

With the completion of her spectacular builder's trials, the U.S. Navy and the American shipbuilding genius, at management and labor levels alike, are entitled to a heartfelt "well done" from all of us on shore. And of the 4,600 sailors and fliers under the command of Captain Vincent P. dePoix who man the ship, our best wishes for fair winds and smooth sailing.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

While it did not get to vote in the past session, it is quite certain that the proposal to expand Social Security to provide medical care for the aged will again be introduced in Congress in January.

It is significant that in a nationwide poll of the nation's independent businessmen conducted by the National Federation of Independent Business, almost three-fourths of them are opposed to this measure.

There is an old Arab proverb to the effect that once the camel gets his nose into the tent, he soon takes over the tent. And it is proved time and time again that once bureaucracy gets into a free institution, that institution is gone.

It is not necessary to go further than the British Isles to see this principle at work. After nibbling away at what was once a fine system of medicine, bureaucracy came into full bloom with the National Health Service.

Today, more British taxes go to support this welfare medical scheme than is devoted to supporting the national defense of the country. It is estimated today that the average British wage earner pays out in taxes for this system two or three times the cost of good private medical insurance.

And what does he get? Very little evening or Sunday aid for one thing. And in addition, according to reports, the quality of medical insurance is poor.

Grass Roots Opinion

HINSDALE, MONT., TRIBUNE: "We've had too much socialism already. Millions of Americans right now would like to see the trend reversed instead of intensified and we are among that number. If this sounds like we are against sending our money, great gobs of it to Washington, and then getting a little of it back as federal 'aid' in order to nationalize our schools and every other phase of American life, you're absolutely right."

There will be a dance Saturday night, December the 9th. Eddie Cerday and his Western Swing Band will begin the music at 9:00 o'clock.

F. H. A.

The F. H. A. had their third meeting of the year, Monday, November 27th in the High School Auditorium. The meeting was called to order by the President Mary Durham. The opening ritual was read then Secretary Marilyn Vaughn called the roll and read the minutes of the last meeting. Twenty-five people attended with three sponsors.

We then discussed if we should have the meeting at night or during activity period. It was decided that we would have them twice a month on Wednesday during activity period in the library room.

Then Mrs. Hutchinson and Mrs. Faulk showed a film on the degrees that could be obtained in F. H. A.

The programs for the following meetings were discussed and five groups were chosen. Each group was given a program.

The meeting was then dismissed by the President, Mary Durham.

Sharon Smith, Reporter

Ray Matherly, who suffered a heart attack Thanksgiving Day, is improving slowly in the Wichita General Hospital.

Onions contain an oil, similar to that used in tear gas bombs.

of men entering British medicine is deteriorating.

As British medicine has now become a civil service function, with automatic pay raises according to time served, and all the other stultifying aspects of civil service work, British medicine is attracting a different type of person.

While there are some imperfections in the American system, any one who wants to practice medicine must have a spirit of dedication to carry him through the long rigorous schooling and training program, knowing at the end of it, there is no automatic income guaranteed. It is in some aspects a most brutal system of selection, yet usually only those the fittest to practice medicine survive.

However, under the British system, anybody who can manage to keep up the minimum grades is guaranteed immediate rewards, a lifetime of security, with automatic income increases.

It also seems significant that when former Prime Minister Anthony Eden became ill, he was first operated on in Britain, but was finally sent to America for surgery and recovery to health.

In Britain it all started innocently enough. The government got into the practice of medicine in just a small way. Then it got in a little more. The next thing, medical practice became government.

For never in the history of mankind has any bureaucracy, once started, stayed static, let alone shrunk, for the unseen motto of every bureaucrat is "Every day and in every way, this bureau must get bigger and bigger."

Remnant counters in fabric shops often yield interesting materials at a saving.

Another suggestion is to buy a ready made article such as a sweater, scarf, or a pair of gloves and apply beading or other special trim to give a personal touch to the gift.

If you are not a woman who sews, maybe you have someone on your list who does. There are many sewing aids available at the notion counters today, to make sewing more efficient. A new pair of scissors or pinking shears, a skirt marker, cutting board, or a convenient sewing box might appeal to someone on your list. And since pressing is such an important part of sewing, a steam iron is sure to please the seamstress.

Home freezers have given a new slant to the old tradition of giving homemade food gifts for Christmas. Gifts of frozen food can be stored now and enjoyed later, when other Christmas goodies are gone.

Here are some suggestions: A package of frozen cookie dough, made by your favorite recipe, frozen jellies or preserves, or seasonal fruit which you have frozen.

Package these frozen gifts carefully and deliver by hand in insulated containers. Lucky recipients will need to put them into their own freezer immediately to prevent thawing.

Another way in which freezers can help with the gift problem, is to serve as a storage place for pre-cooked food gifts, such as cakes, homemade breads, cookies, etc. They can be delivered fresh for Christmas Day.

Shrubs make long lasting gifts for a young couple just starting out or for anyone on your list who enjoys adding plants to the landscape.

You will find a wide variety of ornamental shrubs to select from now at you local nursery. Also native shrubs of ornamental value are found in all parts of Texas, according to Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent.

Native plants found near home will be especially well adapted to the soil and climate of the area. They may take less care than introduced plants.

Example of ornamental native shrubs include the ceniza and agrita, or algerita, which grow in the southwestern area; native hollies, bayberry, cherry laurel and Indian cherry in East Texas. Evergreen sumac or kiniknik, mountain laurel, Texas Madrona, Texas Arbutus and cedars are found growing wild in Central and West Texas.

Rose plants make fine gifts, too.

Members of Wichita County HD clubs are hard at work for Christmas. They have assembled all their clever ideas and are working in club groups. This Christmas work saves money and makes gifts and decorations more attractive and makes for a more enjoyable organization.

Mrs. Harrison McAllister and Mrs. Albert Arnold, from Enterprise, do many interesting things all year that easily adapt themselves to Christmas.

Mrs. Sidney Smith and the Ray HD Club members also have Christmas ideas all year.

TAKE YOUR PROBLEMS TO CHURCH -- MILLIONS LEAVE THEM THERE

Whiter than Snow...

"Purge me with hyssop, and I shall be clean: wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." The Psalmist desired to be pure and white as snow, and knew that this could come only from God.

Complete joy, and gladness of a pure heart can be yours too, when you walk close with the Lord. Attend Church Sunday and worship in the Lord's House.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

HOTTEST NOVEMBER IN FORD HISTORY!

And here's what started the heat wave!

Last month more Americans bought Fords than in any November in history. The blazing success of the long Ford line was end-to-end, all across the country and up and down it, too. Everywhere the people flocked into their Ford Dealers and bought smart new Falcons, and the new Falcon Squire, the glittering swift Galaxies, the famous Ford Station Wagons and the hot Thunderbirds. And they poured in to see and buy up the brand-new Fairlans just introduced. There are four magic reasons why behind the smashing success of the long Ford line for 1962. First of all is utterly modern styling, the fresh crisp lines that are now being so widely copied by other car-makers, the smart look that dominates the industry. Second is absolute power in eleven kinds of engines, giving you anything you could want in engine options. Third is total economy—every Ford model is priced directly at your pocketbook, and every Ford, large, medium or small, gives you gasoline mileage outstanding in its class. Fourth is the service-saving concept—every Ford car is built to cut down maintenance worries and problems, with service-saving features other cars may have some day. Ford leadership from Falcons to Thunderbirds is founded on trend-setting innovations. The hot ideas come from Ford. And at the heart of Ford success is an almost revolutionary new concept of quality. . . . most serious and direct concern with the actual part-by-part quality. For the hot trends in the hot cars, for a new experience in quality, and for the best buys on the American Road, see your Ford Dealer.

PRODUCTS OF FORD MOTOR COMPANY

NOW THERE ARE FOUR CLASSES OF CARS ...AND ONLY FORD HAS ALL FOUR!

COMPACT CLASS:

FORD FALCON

This class includes cars with 106- to 114-inch wheelbase. Most popular by far (a million happy owners!) is the Ford Falcon. Falcon is America's lowest-priced* 6-passenger car, set a 25-year record for Sixes or Eights in last spring's Mobilgas Economy Run, gives you a choice of 13 models, including the Futura and new Falcon Squire wagon.

FAIRLANE CLASS:

FORD FAIRLANE

The Ford Fairlane is the first member of a new class which combines the advantages of both compacts and big cars. . . you get big car room, ride and performance. . . compact savings and maneuverability. Priced below many compacts, Fairlane even rivals some in gas economy. Has twice-a-year maintenance introduced by the Galaxie.

FULL-SIZE CLASS:

GALAXIE BY FORD

The class for families who want big car comfort, performance and prestige. Value leader is the Ford Galaxie—which has every essential feature of far costlier fine cars. With the optional Thunderbird 390 V-8 engine, a Galaxie will outperform America's most expensive luxury cars. Requires servicing only twice a year, or every 6,000 miles.

LUXURY CLASS:

FORD THUNDERBIRD

The top class—cars for people who want the very finest. First of the trim-size luxury cars, the 4-passenger Thunderbird is the most distinctive car in this class. Its styling set the trend for an entire generation of cars and now finds a new elegance in the Landau. And Thunderbird's performance is just this side of flight.

Spotlight On Burk, Band Director

The Burk Burnett High School Band has had an outstanding record for a number of years now. The success of the band depends of course on the ability of the director as a teacher. Burk Burnett has been fortunate in having Mr. James C. Wickersham as its band director.

Mr. Wickersham went to High School in Cooper, Tex., where he played bass horn and trumpet in the Cooper High School Band. At East Texas State College, Mr. Wickersham majored in music on baritone. Mr. Wickersham came to Burk Burnett in the fall of 1953. Since then the band has become noted for its first division standard. Last year's band won Interscholastic League Sweepstakes. This year's band is off to a good start with a first division in marching.

Recently Mr. Wickersham received a trophy honoring him as the best band director of this area for 1961, an award this writer thinks was well deserved. We hope Mr. Wickersham will remain in Burk Burnett for years to come.

News From The County Agent

Homemakers shopping for turkey often ask how much to buy. Thelma Wirges, county home demonstration agent offers some suggestions on this problem.

Small turkeys have a larger percentage of bone than do the larger birds. Allow 3-4 to 1 pound of ready-to-cook turkeys for each serving—if the bird weighs less than 12 pounds. Allow 1-2 to 3-4 pound per serving if the bird weighs 12 pounds or more.

For each serving of roasted turkey, quarter or half, or braised drum sticks or thighs, cut from large birds, allow 1-2 to 3-4 pound of ready-to-cook weight.

If you are expecting your family and guests to have big appetites, you may need to allow more than one serving per person.

Too, you may want planned left overs to take care of some extra holiday meals. If so, make allowances as you shop.

For more information on buying, preparing and cooking turkey, ask your county home demonstration agent or contact a member of the county foods and nutrition committee. Mrs. E. A. Moore is chairman of the committee.

Mrs. L. L. McHugh and Mrs. E. F. Pflugers, past members of the committee are both excellent managers of a poultry flock and can answer many questions, because of their practical experience.

Do you feel your family is too small for a big Christmas turkey? Try a half or a quarter turkey this year. Thelma Wirges says it will cut down roasting time and you won't have the problem of left overs.

Here are directions for roasting a half or quarter turkey. Rub the cut side with salt. Skewer skin to meat along cut edges to hold the skin and meat together during roasting. Tie the leg to the tail piece and tie a cord around the breast to hold the wing flat.

Place the bird, skin side up, on a rack in a shallow pan. Grease with cooking fat and cover with a fat-moistened cheesecloth. Baste during roasting. Set oven for 325 degrees.

Here is a guide for roasting times:

3 1-2 to 5 lbs. 3 to 3 1-3 hrs.
5 to 8 lbs. 3 1-3 to 4 hrs.
8 to 12 lbs. 4 to 4 1-2 hrs.

Prepare your favorite stuffing as usual and bake in a greased pan or casserole during the last one or one and one-half hours of roasting time. To perk up the stuffing, baste with pan drippings or giblet broth.

What Would You Do In the Event of Attack?

(Is Civil Defense important? The following article gives you a blow by blow account of a definite possibility. Civil Defense knowledge, knowing what to do to protect yourself, will prevent much of the death and horror described here. Have an interest in your Civil Defense program—your community needs your help, and you need the help that Civil Defense can give you. If war never comes, and certainly we hope it doesn't, the time you spend in Civil Defense you never be wasted. CIVIL DEFENSE

Red Alert: What if an H Bomb Hits in Vicinity of Burkburnett
It is Monday and shortly after high noon in Burkburnett, an unusually clear day with a welcome touch of autumn in the air. Down town many men and women stroll toward the coffee shop, post office; or chat as they stroll from the city's buildings for a quiet luncheon. In the various schools throughout the district and surrounding communities, youngsters and teenagers gather together, or stand in hot-dog lines. Stores, shops and markets are busy despite the hour, and traffic is moderate, moving at nominal speed. Office workers, store clerks and other workers are on their lunch break. Hundreds of housewives sit down for coffee and a sandwich.

There is talk of vacations, parties, sports, marriage and divorce, and neighborhood gossip. International tension focused on a sharp new incident in Berlin. But there has been tension before, and Berlin is so far away. Far away also is the Arctic Circle, and above it, in Greenland, the Thule Station of the Ballistic Missile Early Warning System with its giant antennas longer than a football field and higher than a 15-story building. Activated just a few months ago, this first of three BMEWS stations is always on the alert, but particularly so now because of the tension abroad.

The radar beams scan ceaselessly into space for the tell-tell track of an incoming missile.

At 12:30 p.m. Burkburnett time, the scopes show the incredible — in tiny flecks of light, a series of radar blips rising high over the ice locked top of the world. Tension coils in the darkened rooms. Complex electronic equipment whirs softly into action. Computers race figures through mechanical brains. Answers are available in a matter of seconds—the speed, range, track, and the probably target areas prove the unbelievable — hostile warheads.

Warning is flashed to the Combat Operations Center of the North American Air Defense Command at Colorado Springs. "Missile attack . . . multiple . . . 15 minutes . . . primary and critical targets . . . Strategic Air Command bases . . . cities: Dallas, Fort Worth, San Antonio, Houston, Wichita Falls . . ." The roll of doom — high over the Arctic Ocean the Warheads streak on at 15,000 mph, vaulting through space. One of them on perfect trajectory for Wichita Falls — another for San Antonio and its Air Base, and a third for Houston, and its industrial activity. There is nothing to stop them — no defense.

Within 100 seconds Colorado Springs snaps a warning to the target areas. Red Alert. Attack imminent . . . Sirens everywhere take up their wail to send the first shiver of fear through the city and its environs. Radio stations and TV stations go off the air with the terse and startling announcement: Air Raid: tune immediately to Conelrad stations 640 or 1240 on your radio.

Conelrad comes on with a calm, pre-recorded message: "Red Alert, Air Raid Imminent . . . Take cover. There is no time to flee. Don't panic . . . Take cover . . . remain indoors . . . Red Alert . . . Take cover . . . Disbelief, the first reaction; confusion, the second; then fear. Fear that edges panic to the minds. Fear that twists in self-survival. Fear that stabs for the safety of loved ones. Fear shackled to an implacable horror, scorching through space.

The people, hundreds of them, move and react myriad ways as the sirens shrill their insistent warning. There are those who scream in hysteria, and those who run blindly. Those immobilized by terror and those who struggle and fight in the violence of panic. For the most part, the people contain the fear that floods their minds and tremble their bodies. They take the first shocked steps toward self-preservation that occurs to them; or, accept direction from police officers or others who remain calm — outwardly at least. Shelter is the first law of survival. There is no time to flee.

Downtown people all but stampede into indicated shelter areas. They crowd into basements of stores and buildings, through into corridors. On the fringes of the city they jam into shops, run deep into culverts, jump into ditches. In residential areas they wriggle under houses, shut themselves into closets, slide under beds and tables. In schools, long time training procedures pay off. The children obey automatically . . . march into basements, curl under desks — their arms across pale faces and tight closed eyes.

Churches are centers of crowded sanctuaries in all areas, regardless of creed — particularly the massive edifices that appear so invulnerable. Downtown traffic is snarled at once. Police try to maintain some order, but chaos engulfs them. A vast tangle of cars and trucks sprawls through the streets, locked with the vehicles of those who sought frantically to flee the city in the few moments available. The traffic slams to a skidding, crashing stop on the thoroughfares as fear-ridden drivers, speeding for a place of safety, collide and spew wreckage across all lanes.

Here and there are autoists who are amazed at the crazed antics around them. These are those who have no radios, or, are not listening to them, and ignoring the distant wail of the sirens.

Now the warheads are streaking down the near site of their targets, slamming toward the heavy atmosphere and covering city — toward the targets. Crews at the control center watch in growing tension as more red lights wink to green on the system readiness panels. Long moments ago the officer in charge had received the firing command on the Red-hot line — telephone; verified it, and has ordered the missiles launched at pre-set targets, thousands of miles away.

Two can play at this savage millie game, but the retaliation birds must boost their hydrogen anger into space before the inevitable strike. Otherwise???. The panels are all green. Flame roars from the distant missiles, erect on their pads, silver in the sunlight. They rise in salvo, almost as one, and thunder northward to pass the incoming warheads somewhere in space. At the Air Base, sweating crews have used the precious minutes to clear most of SAC's bomb laden Stratojets from the field before they are smashed. Now airborne, they push toward refueling rendezvous — and toward enemy targets etched in memory constant study and training.

Eleven minutes since the sirens first sounded; two to go. Much has been achieved by the dazed, terror stricken people. Hundreds have taken shelter, each in his own way — each with his own prayer. But there are still hundreds in the open — running, crying, clawing, fighting; those who heard the alarm too late — mothers seeking their children, terrified youngsters stumbling their way home, people who seek better shelter at the last moment; others who are determined to beat their way to their families in this night-mare, disbelieving fate that rushes at them.

The warheads are turning cherry red now in the beginning friction of the atmosphere, ripping their way through the final miles above the earth, above the city and air bases. But the warheads zeroing in on our Air Force Base will never reach the earth, for its masters have decreed that its 10 Megatons — equivalent to 10 million tons of TNT and 500 times greater than the Hiroshima Bomb — will blast its fury at optimum height to lash the city with maximum damage. To kill the city and its will to live and fight.

Perhaps missing its precise target — which may have been the Air Force itself, or downtown Wichita Falls, or refineries or other industries around Wichita Falls — or maybe its precise target was just in the vicinity of this area — the hypersonic warhead reaches a point 11,000 feet above an area between here and Wichita Falls.

At that instant it erupts with violence into a man-made sun, 3.6 miles in diameter, a searing hell born in shattering thunder. In a fraction of a second the monster fireball, with sun center heat of millions of degrees, has burst and flashed 1,496 feet of ground, to heave the earth for miles. The indescribable blast and charring heat of the explosion instantly flattens and blackens every structure beneath the fireball and perhaps to a radius of three miles, killing, or hideously injuring every living thing within the central circle of horror encompassing more than 28 square miles. Outward the hellish white ball of radiant gas streak thermal heat radiations, at the speed of light, to melt, char and blind, so fantastically hot at reception that they ignite fires and inflict third degree burns on exposed skin at a distance of 21 miles in all directions. Instantly, too, the fireball radiates its deadly invisible gamma rays and neutrons; triggered by radio-active decay to mantle an area about four miles in diameter with a rain of penetrating initial nuclear radiation.

Across the land a massive blast hurls itself in a rushing, expanding circle from ground zero, spearheaded by a shock front like a mighty wall of compressed air, to rend and tear, collapse and crumble in a million echoes of the blast itself.

No building stands in the vast cipher of death and destruction that reaches 3 or 4 miles in every direction. The devastation is instant as the fireball starts to rise and suck up the shattered earth in aftershocks like the updraft of a chimney, to produce the rolling dirt-colored stem and presently the familiar, spreading mushroom cloud.

Meanwhile the thermal radiation, flashing outward at 18,000 miles per second, blinds and burns hundreds who found no shelters; sets uncounted fires, in a sweeping 40 miles diameter circle reaching in all directions. Shade — any kind of shade, gives some protection against this radiation. Everything exposed, however, is seared if it is not charred or melted. Paper, trash, awnings, drapes, dry grass, leaves, etc., exposed to the blinding radiance ignite at once, many miles from ground zero; some to flare briefly and die out, others to ignite quantities of combustible material close by and start major fires.

Behind the thermal radiation storms the shock front, hurled outward at many times the speed of sound, like an invisible tidal wave. Its circle of heavy damage covers a diameter of 16 miles — more than 200 square miles — sparing no part of the community within its path. Major buildings, from three to five miles distance, are first burned by the searing heat of the flash, the heaved by the tormented earth in a rolling quake, and finally slammed by the shock wave. Roofs collapse and crash down through upper stories. Walls crack wide open and tremble perilously. Most buildings still stand after the blast, but all are badly damaged, particularly their upper sections that caught the brunt of the shock. Of course, there is no glass in any window, store front or door hit by the blast wave. Fires begin everywhere, gutting the wreckage in a smother of a story brick apartment are almost completely within a diameter of miles from ground zero. Transport aircraft port are either destroyed or damaged economically.

Light damage Megaton blast rears a diameter of about a mile. The blast has effect — in some extinguishes fires, normal radiation about the other hand, it for hundreds of by rupturing gas turning stoves, water heaters, etc.

The fireball has skyward like a ring over its victim minute it had dropped to 15,000 feet, rose. In 60 seconds longer visible, but marked by a cloud that continues and spread as it toward the base of sphere. One minute and those who have a chance, being crushed, by late falling debris.

Radiation is a problem. The damage radiation ended in seconds and therefrom this airburst the fireball did earth. While the is highly radioactive this radiation was ground.

HEALTH AND SAFETY TIPS

One of the meanest crooks on record today is the medical quack. The men with the phony cures and bogus remedies, the useless "health" foods and the trick electrical gadgets bilk the public of a billion dollars every year.

Some of the quack products actually are harmful; others are harmless, but also are useless. How can you avoid wasting money on quacks? There are six simple rules for spotting a quack, developed by the Department of Investigation of the American Medical Association.

—If he uses a special or "secret" machine or formula he claims can cure disease.

—If he guarantees a quick cure.

—If he advertises or uses case histories and testimonials to promote his cure.

—If he clamours constantly for medical investigation and recognition.

—If he claims medical men are persecuting him or are afraid of his competition.

—If he tells you that surgery or X-ray or drugs will cause more harm than good.

Next time you are tempted to try a new pill or a new diet for that aching back, remember these six points. If any one of them applies, save your money.

The worst danger from the quack is that their "medicines" or machines may cause a patient to waste valuable time in getting to a genuine physician. Many cancers can be cured for instance, but if the patient wastes time with quack remedies the cancer may grow into an incurable one.

No one can cure arthritis. The best that the arthritis patient can hope for from remedies is temporary relief from aches and pains. Beware of anyone who claims he has a cure for arthritis. He hasn't.

If you have doubts about a remedy or a cure, ask your family physician. He will know whether the product will be good for you.

Want Cotton Bowl Tickets?

Sorry, all sold out. These bonds have fallen on many a disappointed ear belonging to a would-be Cotton Bowl attendee.

To help decrease the number of disappointed, the Cotton Bowl has twice been expanded. Once in 1948 by adding 21,924 seats and again in 1949 by the addition of 7,073 seats.

Realizing the competition for tickets, sales for the bonds to finance the expansion of the Bowl were spurred by promising bond and option holders priority on tickets.

It worked too. And now 19,892 Cotton Bowl seats are set aside and given priority to the holders of the bonds and options. These priorities last for 20 years.

Bond holders of 1948 receive priority to buy one ticket for each $100 bond held. The other priority goes to those who paid $50 for a ticket option in 1949 to finance the construction of the east deck. The option holder's priority is limited to the upper deck tickets.

GARDENING FOR BEAUTY AND PLEASURE

MRS. ROY MAGERS

A series of articles on "Gardening for Beauty and Pleasure" by Mrs. Roy Magers, will be a weekly feature in the Burkburnett Star. Mrs. Magers, whose home address is on Shannon Road, is chairman for the Wichita Falls Garden Club.

Mrs. Magers is one of three accredited flower show judges in Burkburnett. She has been very active in Burkburnett and Wichita Falls in various club activities for several years. Among her many club activities she has devoted a considerable amount of time and effort to the Garden clubs. Her articles on "Gardening for Beauty and Pleasure" are of an informative nature, backed by experience and knowledge of the work.

Regal lilies can be grown by any rank amateur who knows enough not to chop them up as weeds when they first emerge from the ground.

The regal lily can be propagated from seed, new bulbs, bulblets, or by scaling. The quickest and easiest way, is by separating the newly formed bulbs, but often the tiny bulblets which form along with the new bulb may be cared for and brought to full size in a year or two. All they need is to be planted in a protected spot where the small plants will not be disturbed by mistake.

Scaling and seedling are a little slower than the other processes. Scaling simply means taking off a few of the larger outer scales of the bulb, exercising care not to bruise or injure the base of the scale.

These are then planted about one and one-half to two and one-half inches deep. If these plants are left alone to grow undisturbed for one or two years, they will produce nice plants. The seed of the regal lily may be planted in pots, bulb pans, or flats. These containers should be arranged with an inch or so of pebbles underneath the potting soil for drainage. They should be planted as soon after gathering the seed as possible, and after wintering in the pots or flat.

They should be transferred in August or September to open beds where they should be left undisturbed for two or three years.

One should exercise care in buying only those bulbs which have been freshly dug or at least bulbs which have received proper care to prevent their drying out during shipment.

Lilies should be planted as soon as possible after they are dug. They must not be allowed to dry out before replanting.

The regal lily should be planted in the early fall as soon as it is available commercially. Before planting, one should dust the bulb lightly with a mixture of powdered dusting sulphur with five percent DDT to insure healthy plants. Regal lily bulbs should be planted about eight inches deep in slightly acid soil. The hole dug for planting these lilies must be large enough to spread out the roots of the bulb rather than to force them into a cramped position in a small hole.

A handful of plant food mixed into the soil beneath the bulb will give it a vigorous boost in growth. Although the lily will grow beautifully in rather poor soil, it will benefit substantially from a generous feeding once or twice while in growth in the spring.

During the last of May and the early part of June, plant food should be added to the lily bed. Liquid plant food solutions may be poured around the base of the plants, or one may dig a small trench six to eight inches from the stem and bury a spoonful or two of commercial fertilizer. Organic fertilizer may be added to the bed in the very early spring before growth starts.

The regal lily is a stem rooting plant. For this reason, shallow cultivation is desirable. The lily likes plenty of sun, but its base should be protected by a good mulch. Ground cotton seed hulls are excellent for this purpose. Later they may be spaded into the soil to make it light and porous, a huge burlap bag of hulls may be purchased for $1. These hulls, scattered an inch or two thick around the plant, will retain moisture in the soil and cool the roots of the plant. Peet moss is the ideal mulch, of course, but cotton seed hulls will serve the purpose for the gardener who must economize.

Since lily roots need this protection from hot summer sun, planting some fast-growing, colorful petunias around the clumps of lilies will provide the coolness as well as make an attractive cover for the somewhat denuded lily stems after the flowers fade and the seed pods are removed. You may pull the stems down and anchor them to the ground by means of a small stake. Bent sections of old wire hangers make excellent stakes for this purpose.

This procedure allows the bulb to mature while the petunias cover the pinned down stems and hide the otherwise awkward phase of lily growth. There is a pretty ruffled petunia named Blue Lustre which begins blooming about the same time as the regal lily. This flower makes a striking combination with its velvety dark blue flowers as a border plant before a clump of glistening white lilies.

Merchants Stay Open until 8 p. m. From Dec. 1-23

Merchants are cooperating, not only in keeping their stores open until 8 p. m. beginning December 1st, but many of them will also have Christmas drawings.

Jim Harwell, Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, hopes that the merchants will hold their drawing on December 23. Jim informed the reporter that he had received word from the North Pole that Santa Claus will be in town during the afternoon of December 23rd, for his annual Kids Party, therefore he is hoping that the merchants, that have not already made other arrangements, will hold their drawings between 2:00 and 3:00 o'clock on the 23rd. The Chamber of Commerce will make available a pickup with a loud speaker system for the drawings.

The regal lily will grow under almost any conditions; hence the lily fancier need not fear insects or plant disease. Although it seldom happens, lily mosaic, botrytis blight, and basal rot sometimes attack the plants, but the regal lily grower can combat this problem by maintaining a bed or 2 of bulblets, seedlings or scalings for replacements in case he does lose his original plant. This solution seems to be much easier than trying to combat the diseases.

Lilies seem to profit more from a deep soaking by filling the bed with water than from a shallow watering with a sprinkler hose. After a good watering it is best to allow the bed to dry for about a week or 10 days before wetting the bed again. It is best to keep the water off the plants entirely. Proper drainage is important since the bed should not be allowed to have standing puddles of water which will rot the bulbs. Plenty of sunlight is important, but the bed must be protected from high winds. A bed with a background of evergreens provides not only protection from winds, but also a lovely background for the white trumpets of the regal lily.

CIVIL DEFENSE

Questions have been asked about the NEAR warning system. This column is in answer to those questions.

A little black box—potentially the most valuable electrical appliance ever plugged into a wall outlet—holds the solution to a serious problem in national defense.

The problem has been how to sound an attack warning signal inside millions of American homes, schools, factories, and offices. The solution is the National Emergency Alarm Repeater System—NEAR.

Behind the solution are more than five years of research and tests involving the development of a rugged, inexpensive, reliable receiver—the little black box—and a unique method to activate the receiver and sound an alarm by a signal sent over regular commercial powerlines.

A system of attack warning has always been of major concern in civil defense. Shortly after enactment of the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1951, the Federal Government started to help meet the cost of outdoor warning systems, such as sirens installed by states and localities. Today, many communities have these systems, all tied to a National Attack Warning System maintained around-the-clock by the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization in close cooperation with the United States Air Force.

But from the beginning there was recognition that outdoor sirens sometimes couldn't be heard indoors, and that many municipal siren systems didn't reach suburban and rural areas. There was need for an indoor system to supplement outdoor sirens.

The search for such a system started in 1952 and was intensified three years later when the Congress appropriated funds for a series of research projects aimed at development of an indoor warning system that would be absolutely reliable, available to everyone and at the same time, economical.

A number of different methods were tried, including use of electric powerlines, telephone lines, radio. The search narrowed to use of electric powerlines as the one method that met all three major requirements of an indoor warning system.

The studies focused on finding the best way of sending a special signal, over commercial powerlines. After many tests, the answer was found. Convert a small portion of the regular current carried by commercial powerlines to a 240-cycle signal. This type of signal could be transmitted over long distances by equipment requiring only routine maintenance. And the signal system would not endanger continuity of regular power service.

Meanwhile, work progressed on designing a receiver for the system a small instrument that could be plugged into any standard 110-volt outlet and left there all the time. The receiver had to be designed so that it could be manufactured at low cost, but the first requirement was reliable. It had to receive a signal and sound an audible alarm, but never a false alarm.

The instrument was designed with built-in safeguards. One of these is a small timing mechanism. When the 240-cycle signal is sent to the receiver, it activates the timing mechanism which delays sounding the alarm for 10 to 15 seconds. This delay eliminates the possibility that a sudden, brief surge of electrical power, such as a stroke of lightning, would result in a false alarm. Another safeguard is a small light on the front of the receiver that provides a check on the operating condition of the instrument.

When all phases of the work were completed on a method to transmit a signal, receive it, and activate an alarm, the result was the National Emergency Alarm Repeater System—NEAR.

Basic research for the NEAR system has been completed. The system has been successfully tested many times. It is a reliable indoor warning system. By making use of existing electric power systems, which serve more than 95 per cent of the buildings in the United States, and by a relatively simple method of interconnecting individual power networks, the NEAR system could send an alarm throughout the nation within ONE MINUTE. This presupposes, of course, installation of NEAR signal generators at strategic points, and general distribution of the NEAR receiver. But the potential is there—the nation alerted within ONE MINUTE.

Versatility is another important feature of the NEAR system. In addition to serving as a national indoor attack warning system, NEAR could be used to alert local areas to the approach of a natural disaster, such as a tornado, hurricane or flood.

The alert in a natural disaster or an enemy attack would come from the NEAR receiver in the form of a long buzzing sound lasting for 50 seconds. The alarm could mean: TURN ON YOUR RADIO FOR INFORMATION. If your local radio station is not on the air tune to a CONELRAD frequency (640 or 1240) on the dial for emergency information.

The NEAR system has been proven technically sound. But there are a number of matters relating to production, installation, maintenance, and operation of the system that are now just about worked out by the Office of Civil Defense, power er industries, and manufacturers of electrical equipment. Cost, of course, is an important factor.

The expectation is that each NEAR receiver would cost between $5 and $10. Annually, each receiver would use about two watts of power. This is less than the amount used by an electric clock, and would cost about 50 cents a year.

Between 400 and 600 signal generators would have to be installed at strategic points throughout the nation for the NEAR system. The total cost of this is estimated at approximately 50 million dollars.

There are still some problems to be worked out. But the most difficult phase of the project—development of the system—is in the past. And the future for a national indoor attack system is very NEAR.

Servicemen May Vote If Qualified

Servicemen's voting rights in the upcoming special election in the 13th Congressional District were explained to interested members of the 49th Armored Division at Camp Polk, La., on Friday by Judge Graham B. Purcell, Jr.

Judge Purcell flew to Camp Polk and talked about 10:30 a. m. to a group of re-activated National Guardsmen from the 19 counties of North Texas comprising the 13th Congressional District.

Briefly, he informed them that their voting rights in this special election are essentially the same as any otherwise qualified citizen voters who must vote absentee.

They can all vote by posting two letters, one making application and the later one containing a ballot.

First they should apply by mail to the county clerk of their residence for an absentee ballot. This application may be made starting 20 days prior to election day, which is December 16th. The applicant's poll tax receipt must be enclosed with the letter of application.

Servicemen who don't have their poll tax receipts with them may go before their commanding officer or any notary and make affidavit that they have paid their poll tax. This affidavit can then be mailed to the county clerk in lieu of a poll tax receipt.

The ballot will be mailed back to the applicant promptly and he must mail it back in time to arrive no later than noon December 16, which is election day.

Also, absentee voting by either military or civilian voters may be done in person at their county clerk's office any time between Monday, November 27th and Tuesday, December 12th.

A Fruitful Problem

It has been said that the world is best known by its inconsistencies. Orange County, in Southeast Texas on the Louisiana border, is the bearer of one such inconsistency. Someone pulled a lemon out of the crop of towns in Orange County, for there we find a fine little village with the very distinctive name of Lemonville.

PUBLIC NOTICE

LEAF BURNING TIME ANNOUNCED

City officials have announced that leaf burning will be permitted Wednesday through Saturday, December 6-9.

The public is requested to cooperate by following these simple rules.

1. Do not burn when wind is blowing. If wind is too strong on the days designated, then the first calm day after the designated days will be used for leaf burning.
2. Do not leave fire unattended. Have garden hose handy, and keep fire under control. Do not have too large a fire—it is better to feed leaves to the fire.
3. Make sure all fire is extinguished.
4. If fire begins to get out of control, have someone call the fire department immediately. The fire department phone number is 569-3341.
5. Make sure fire is away from buildings and grass fields so fire cannot spread.

This general permit is granted to help rid the city of fire hazards caused by falling leaves.

City personnel stated that the public has cooperated wonderfully in the past in such matters and they felt sure that such cooperation would be continued at this time. Specific days were chosen for the benefit of the public, as volunteer firemen and police personnel will especially be on the alert ready to immediately respond to a fire call.

Babson Discusses Common Stocks

BABSON PARK, Mass., Dec. 7—Almost every one of my readers has at least one share of common stock, and most of you are interested in many more shares. Unfortunately, few people realize that there are three very important factors involved in the purchase or holding of common stocks.

Asset Value
The first factor (but not the most important) is asset value. To ascertain this, you take the value of the assets from the statement which is sent to stockholders and deduct the total of liabilities (except for common stock). The difference is the net asset value of the company. Next, divide this figure by the number of common shares outstanding. This will give you the net asset value per share.

When you compare this asset value figure just obtained with the price your stock is selling for now, and with the price you paid for it, you will probably be surprised. Over a period of years, the ratio of net asset value to the selling price may average out fairly well, depending upon the industry. The more popular the industry or the company, the higher the price will average in relation to net asset value per share. Today, however, most stocks are selling considerably above their asset value. Readers who have a goodly number of shares of the common stock of any company should make the above computation.

Earnings and Growth
Why do stocks often sell for much more than their asset value? The reason is that most investors are looking at the earnings and the growth. If the earnings gradually increase and there is a chance for an increase in the dividend, then earnings might entitle the stock to sell for the higher figure. In the last analysis, we buy for earnings and not for assets. The Waldorf Astoria would cost more to build on a prairie in Kansas, but its assets would be of no use.

The wise investor, however, does not consider merely the current dividend. Although the dividend may have looked good to you at the time you bought the stock, the market may have caught up with it so that the yield is no longer satisfactory at present prices. To ascertain the yield, you divide the dividend by the price. Many readers will be surprised when they do this, to see what a small yield they are obtaining on the basis of the present price of the stock. You do not figure the yield on the price you originally paid for the stock—but on the price it is selling for today. This means that the growth feature of the stock is very important. On this matter you must depend largely upon your judgment.

Competition
The competition to which the company is subjected may be even more important than the
