S. D. "Sam" LILES

Dallas — Lone Star Gas Company directors have elected S. D. "Sam" Liles vice-president in charge of the company's exploration and gas supply division. He succeeds the late Carl M. Hill.

Liles started his Lone Star career as a part-time laborer, working during the summers of 1937-38 in the Long Lake field near Palestine in Anderson County. He became a regular employee January 10, 1941, in Palestine as a clerk in the production department and four months later was appointed a production engineer. He was in the United States Navy, starting in December, 1942, as an apprentice seaman assigned to the officers' training program at Northwestern University in Chicago. After three months he was made midshipman and was graduated from the training school as an ensign. He served with the Atlantic Fleet and the Pacific Fleet during World War II and was decorated with three battle stars. He was discharged in January, 1946, as a senior grade lieutenant.

Several weeks later he resumed his work with Lone Star as production engineer and on December 1, 1946, was promoted to district production engineer in the production department at Athens.

In 1949 he was appointed assistant field supervisor in the exploration and gas supply division and three years later was stationed in Dallas as division field supervisor in the exploration and gas supply division. He was made manager of the exploration department May 1, 1958, and on January 1, 1964, became superintendent of operations in the exploration and gas supply division.

Little Ladies Enjoying Watermelon

Little Beverly Sue Benson of East 3rd was one of the many enjoying watermelon at the festival, sponsored by the Retail Merchants Council of Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce, held August 7th on the main street of town. The wet condition of the front of her dress will attest to her obvious pleasure in eating watermelon. (The look of fright was for the flash of the camera.)

Three little ladies, apparently sisters, dig into juicy, cold watermelon with a relish, on the night of August 7th, at the Watermelon Feast, sponsored by the Retail Merchants Council of the Burkburnett Chamber of Commerce. Though made a bit shy by the fast her picture was being taken, the tiny one none the less managed to get that big piece of melon to her mouth, while her other sister, on the other end, was not the least disturbed.

Questions & Answers

Q—I am a widow with an infant child. Soon I will marry a disabled veteran who receives maximum pension. How much will his pension increase with two dependents?

A—Assuming the veteran is single now, the maximum pension would be $85 a month if his income was below $600 per year. A veteran with two dependents with income below $1,000 per year would be entitled to $95 a month.

Q—Under the above circumstances, will the VA pay any medical or dental expenses for my daughter and me? If I should become pregnant, will the VA pay the maternity costs, in part or in full?

A—The VA will not pay any medical or dental expenses for your daughter or you, nor will it pay any maternity costs.

Q—Does a veteran who served between September 16, 1940, and December 31, 1956, earn any gratuitous Social Security wage credits?

A—Yes. These gratuitous credits amount to $160 for each month of duty, but are not listed on the Social Security earnings record until benefits are applied for.

PUNY, POINTLESS, POLITICAL

Examining the President's billion-dollar "war on poverty" against the background of the combined Federal, state, local and private social welfare efforts that add up to more than $100 billion a year, shows it to be puny, pointless and political.

"It would be better for the general welfare," says the Council of State Chambers of Commerce in its analysis, "to reduce deficits, minimize the inflationary build-up and protect the value of the $100 billion which is already being spent to fight the causes and relieve the effects of poverty."

The Council's study, prepared by Eugene F. Rinta, director of research, goes on to say: "The proponents of the anti-poverty legislation attempt to convey the impression that poverty is of crisis proportions in the United States and that now at last a massive attack will be made on the causes of poverty. The facts are that the proportion of low income families is less now than it has ever been, and that there has been a constant war on poverty in this country over the years which has been far greater and far more effective than the pending proposal could possibly be, even though it should be expanded many fold.

In its presentations on the anti-poverty bill the Administration has arbitrarily selected a $3,000 family cash income as the dividing line between poverty and relative well-being. US census Bureau surveys indicate there were 9.3 million families comprising 30 million persons with annual family income below $3,000 in 1962. But is $3,000 cash income an accurate measure of the poverty line in the United States? According to studies by the University of Michigan Survey Research Center reported in the U. S. News and World Report of January 20, 1964, a $3,000 income hardly indicates a condition of poverty in a large proportion of cases. Here are some of the findings:

"(1) In 1962, 45 percent of the families reporting incomes of $2,000-$3,000 range owned their homes; and 66 percent of the home owners had no mortgage on their homes. Also, homes were owned by 42 percent of the $1,000-$2,000 bracket and by 35 percent with cash incomes less than $1,000.

"(2) In 1960, 40 percent of the families with income below $3,000 owned cars and one-third of the cars had been purchased new.

"(3) During the year 1960, among families with incomes less than $3,000, 700,000 families bought television sets, 500,000 bought refrigerators, and 300,000 bought washing machines.

"Whether $3,000 or some other level of family income is accepted as the poverty line, the record shows that considerable progress has been made in reducing the proportion of poverty in this country. On the basis of family income adjusted to 1962 prices, the proportion of families with cash incomes under $3,000 has been reduced from 32 percent of all families in 1950 to 25 percent in 1955, 21 percent in 1960 and 20 percent in 1962. This has been accomplished primarily through the growth of the economy under our private enterprise system."

It should be plain to all by now that the government can do nothing for a man that he cannot do better for himself.

The gas industry spent some $1,680 billion on construction last year, bringing its total worth to about $26.4 billion, a jump of 7.8 per cent from 1962. Distribution companies led all segments of the industry in this spending.

ROGER W. BABSON

Babson Discusses Changing Consumer Habits

BABSON, PARK, Mass.—Consumer markets are being reshaped so fast, so dramatically, and on such a wide geographic scale that I sometimes wonder how many of my readers recognize the extent of the "revolution." The people I most want to talk about this are, of course, those of you involved in manufacturing, retailing, the services, advertising, or promotion in general.

Personal incomes Climbing Fast

One of the key reasons why consumer habits are experiencing such a dynamic change is the unprecedented growth in personal incomes. During 1963, for instance, about a million family units were newly raised into the income bracket of $10,000 a year or better, carrying the total for this secure economic group of buyer units to an all-time high of 12.3 million. It should be noted, in fact, that at least a third of these had incomes of over $15,000. Also important is the knowledge that 1963 saw a reduction of 700,000 in marketing families earning less than $4,000 a year.

The thing I want to stress about this trend is that it does not mean that families simply buy MORE of what they have always bought, but they are learning to look for better-quality goods. The tendency towards luxuries and toward higher living standards is also strongly on the increase. More money is being laid out for foreign travel, better automobiles, boats, and—probably most important of all—higher education. As a matter of fact, the education "explosion" is having a tremendous effect on buying habits, and will continue to do so over the years ahead.

Education's Effect On Sales

Searching out the latest statistics, I have found that, while the population of our nation contained only 7.5 million college-educated men and women 20 years ago, it now has 16 million. In fact, government observers anticipate that the college-educated will total 20 million by 1970, and will reach as high as 28 million during the following decade. Already, estimates have it that 20 percent of our households are headed by at least one parent with a higher education.

Add these facts to the increasing personal incomes and you have a buying public with far more sophisticated tastes than ever before, especially when you consider that the college-educated people are almost always in the best salary brackets. Hence this growing part of the consuming public must be an important consideration in your planning for future goods, promotion programs, packaging, and sales attitudes generally.

Circling Out From This Center

Whenever there is a revolutionary social trend, as in the current outburst of enthusiasm for higher education, its effects circle out and sweep along those not directly involved. While millions are going to college, other millions not college-bred are becoming sympathetically interested in cultural objectives. Self-learning is strongly on the upgrade, as is evidenced by a massive turnover in paperback books, bigger attendance at concerts and art centers, increased library use, more educational TV programs, higher record sales.

Free seminars on science, law, painting, sculpture, and even more highly specialized subjects are attracting larger numbers, both in person and by way of TV. This is true not only in the big cities, but throughout virtually all parts of the country. Summer theaters, rare and just about unknown not too many years ago, now flourish everywhere. I hope that my emphasis on this change of perspective in an ever-wider section of the purchasing public will be taken seriously by all connected with distribution. Those who pay no heed to the surge will be caught short in the years ahead.

Women Still Good Sales Target

My final word of advice: The enormous number of working wives has helped bring up family incomes substantially, and their pay check independence makes them interested in purchases previously left more commonly to the menfolk. So it would be smart to direct more attention to the women than ever before when you are staging promotions for merchandise usually aimed at the nation's males.

"REMEMBER, GRANDPA, WHEN..."

How Grandpa loves to hear that young voice say those magic words that mean, "We had good times together! I appreciate all the wonderful things you did for me when you were younger and able." Old folks love attention. They need it. They deserve to have it. They've spent their lives helping us, many times at the expense of their own desires and plans.

God commands us in Leviticus 19:32: "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honour the face of the old man, and fear thy God. I am the Lord."

Honor the older ones, too, by attending church this week and taking them with you.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Death Never Takes A Holiday

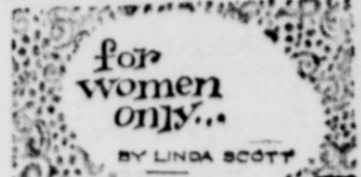

Election year! Whether you are a Republican or Democrat . . . Your vote won't get to be counted unless you arrive at the polls safe and sound. In my opinion for whatever it is worth . . . the man most likely to be elected would be the fellow that could figure out how to stop the toll of death on our highways . . . That extra five or ten miles per hour, the average excess — the speed limit . . . is often the cause of accidents. REMEMBER . . . the traffic tickets you get for violating the law will be yours . . . compliments of the law enforcement officer who writes it . . . Drive as if your life depended upon it . . . it does. . . .

For Women Only
BY LINDA SCOTT

When dusting cake pans for chocolate cakes, use cocoa instead of flour. Result—no white particles clinging to your finished masterpiece.

You can remove the layer of starch collected on the bottom of your iron with baking soda. Apply the soda to your cold iron with a lightly dampened cloth or sponge.

A large corsage pin is an ideal stopper for small cans of oil or tubes of glue. It also keeps the hole unclogged.

Here's a novel gift idea. Cover bricks with a pretty pattern of adhesive backed shelving paper. Used singly, a brick is an unusual doorstop—in pairs, they make handsome bookends.

One manufacturer of water conditioners has thought of everything. New Lindsay models feature a vacation bypass lever. A flick of this lever when you leave on vacation or long weekend turns off the conditioner and permits unsoftened water to flow into the house water lines.

Try cleaning diamonds, shifting silver, gold or any metal jewelry with toothpaste and an old soft toothbrush. It gives a nice luster.

A pretty glass turned over the salt and pepper shaker will help keep salt dry and pouring freely during humid weather.

Have a tip? Send it to Linda Scott, For Women Only, 75 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Ill. 364

New Device Saves Another Life

Mr. Bob Burrier was surf casting with a companion at Cedar Beach Overlook when a wave swept him and his companion from a sand spit where they were surf casting. His heavy fishing gear and chest-high waders were pulling him under until he inflated his Res-Q-Pak. Although his companion who had no device was lost, Mr. Burrier was able to stay afloat until . . .

This pocket size emergency preserver is activated by inflating it quickly. The device breaks a seal on a small bottle, and the gas inflates the tube, and the gas inflates the . . . PUT A TIGER IN YOUR TANK!

NEW HIGH-ENERGY ENCO EXTRA GASOLINE BOOSTS POWER THREE WAYS:

- 1 Cleaning Power! Dirt can clog even a new carburetor in a few months of normal operation—causing hard starting and rough idling. Your very first tankful of New Enco Extra will start to clear away these deposits—in new engines or old—to improve power and mileage.
- 2 Firing Power! Spark plug and cylinder deposits can cause misfiring, pre-ignition and hot spots. New Enco Extra neutralizes these harmful deposits—to help your engine fire smoothly, to help preserve the power of new cars and restore lost power to many older cars.
- 3 Octane Power! New Enco Extra has the high octane that most cars now need for full smooth performance without knocking. You'll get all these extras with New Power-formula Enco Extra gasoline—it puts a tiger in your tank!
