Two Burk Burnett Girls Will Attend York College In Neb.

Two Burk Burnett girls have been accepted as freshmen at York College in York, Nebraska.

Diane Holland of 105 Mockingbird Lane has stated that her field of study will center around her interest in Elementary Education. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Holland.

Evelyn Joyce Fletcher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Fletcher, has chosen Secondary Education as her field of study.

York is a private two-year liberal arts college operated by members of the Church of Christ. The curriculum is designed to supply the first two years of college training leading to the B. A. Degree; to provide a program of general education in preparation for rich home and community living; to provide terminal training in secretarial science and family living. Special emphasis is given to moral and spiritual values and leadership training.

Little League Baseball Over . . . Starting Of Little League Football

Little League Baseball is now a thing of the past for another year. The kids have played their games and the record books are closed for another year.

The majority of Burk families are completing their vacation plans, and many have already returned home.

This leaves junior without too much to do to run off that extra vigor that those so young are blessed with.

Not so, says Pete Landrum, director of the Burk Little League Football Program. This is the ideal time for Burk youngsters to start preparing for the coming football season.

The Little League Football Program, which has proven so successful was developed to prepare the local youngsters to learn the rules of good sportsmanship, to prepare them to meet the battles of life itself, and to prepare them for further competition on the gridiron in high school and college.

It takes two important things to make this program work. First, of course, we need interested youngsters who want to learn football and who will stick with the program — win, lose or draw.

Secondly, and equally important, the program needs the help of adults who are willing to coach the football teams.

We do not have too much trouble finding the kids for the Little League Football program has become a way of life with the Burk youngsters.

The important need now is for responsible adults who are willing to give a little of their time to coach the teams. If you have any training in football either in high school or college, and if you have always wanted to work with kids, here is your chance to be of great help, not only to the kids but to yourself.

There is no feeling quite like that you receive from seeing "your" team win an important game. To the kids, you are as much of a hero as the pro who runs 100 yards for a game winning TD.

You are the one who will benefit from this program just as much as the kids you coach. The feeling of satisfaction which can be realized from coaching kids, and equipping them to meet the battles of life is one that can not be matched.

The football program will be starting soon, and now is the time to offer your help. Registration will be at 6:30 p. m., August 21 at the Junior High football field.

NOTICE

Cub Scout Pack 155 will hold their regular monthly pack meeting at Town Hall Monday night, August 26, 7:30 p. m. Plans will be made for the new year and committeemen and leaders will be named. All interested persons are cordially invited to attend.

A Lesson That Needs Learning

If the medical profession had wished to do so, it could easily have fallen into a dog in the manager attitude following passage of the medicare law — a law that was opposed by a great majority of the nation's doctors on the grounds that such massive federal intervention in the field of health care was neither wise nor needed. But once medicare became law, the medical profession entered wholeheartedly into making the law work.

In the face of rising costs brought on by inflation and overloading of health care facilities, physicians have sought to make the patient's health care dollar go as far as possible. They are characteristically rising to their public, as well as professional responsibilities.

The rapid and costly extension of government health care holds a lesson that should not be overlooked by the people. Senator Carl T. Curtis says, "I hope the American people learn before it is too late that the appropriating of money by the federal government is no guarantee that a problem will be solved, neither is it a guarantee that it will not create more problems." He also warned of the "financial crisis" faced by the U. S. government and said, "if our Republic goes under financially, the federal government will not be able to participate as a partner in any medical advances or meet other national needs."

Expansion of a welfare state at the price of national solvency is a dead end street.

A GREAT ENCOURAGEMENT

There are indications that more people in the U. S. are beginning to think about the spending spree that their elected officials have been indulging in for some years, and they still have time to quit asking the government for charity under various high-sounding names. It always seems so difficult to realize that government can give the people nothing it does not first take from them in the form of taxes or through inflation. But, new ways are being found to make people help themselves and to enlist the job producing, job training, creative energy and vast resources of private enterprise. More must be done.

Immediate past experience with huge federal spending programs has shown that money alone doesn't solve social problems, but it can raise hob with economics. It is also becoming evident that the federal government can't steam shovel money out by the billions for all manner of give away schemes and still remain solvent and able to meet its obligations. Greater awareness of the shortcomings of "welfarism unlimited" offers much encouragement for the future life, health, and freedom of the United States and its people.

Mr. Thomas M. Goodfellow, president of the Association of American Railroads, urged labor and government to cooperate with railroad management in "getting to the roots" of safety problems and helping to correct them. At a hearing on proposed rail safety legislation before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, Mr. Goodfellow said, "cooperation rather than legislation is the most effective way to achieve the goal we all are seeking — the ultimate in railroad safety."

Mr. Arthur F. Burns, chairman of the National Bureau of National Research in a Tax Foundation newsletter said that a reduction in governmental expenditures is a much more potent device for restraining inflation than a temporary increase in taxes, but there is little prospect of cutting expenditures in the present political climate. He says that even if spending plans are cut back by $5 or $6 billion, federal spending in the next fiscal year is still expected to rise about $10 above this year's level.

"A bureaucracy is springing up," observed Mr. Howard H. Bell, president of the American Advertising Federation before the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee, "but I thought that consumer protection was the role of all people in government. Health, Education, and Welfare, the Justice Department, the Federal Trade Commission — all these were designed to protect the consumer."

FOLLOW THE LEADER

BACK IN THE OLD DAYS, FOLLOW THE LEADER WASNT FOR CHILDREN OR LANDLUBBERS... BUT EARLY AMERICAN SAILORS ON THE HIGH SEAS! DRESSED IN BELL BOTTOMS AND GOB HATS, THE YOUNG SALTS USED TO BREAK THE BOREDOM BY FOLLOWING THEIR LEADER IN A MERRY CHASE.

TODAY'S YOUNGSTERS FIND THIS HISTORIC GAME JUST AS MUCH FUN ON DRY LAND. IN BLUE JEANS AND SNEAKERS, THEY FOLLOW THE LEADER OVER COUNTRY ROADS AND CITY STREETS WITH THE SAME ENTHUSIASM AS THOSE SEAMEN OF OLD.

SENSING THE NEWS

By THURMAN SENSING
Southern States Industrial Council

Whatever the immediate outcome of the Czechoslovakian situation, it should be clear from a reading of recent news that Communism has not changed its character. Hopefully, American "liberals" who have been saying that the Russia of today is vastly different from the Russia of Stalinist times will acknowledge to themselves and to others that they were wrong.

A few years ago Walt Whitman Rostow, then head of the State Department Policy Planning Council and now a top White House adviser, was the author of the thesis that Communism is "mellowing." The Czechs, however, have discovered that there is nothing mellow about the thinking or actions of the Soviet Union. As soon as the Soviets saw that their power position in Czechoslovakia was even slightly threatened, they began to display their military muscle. They demanded that the Czechs fall into line.

One of the pet phrases of recent years has been "polycentricism," meaning a variety of centers. The "liberals" vowed that Communism no longer has a single center, Moscow, but is decentralized and developed in a variety of independent ways. From the Czech situation, however, we can see that the Russians hold that they are the one and only source of policy for the Communist world. They demand that their Central European satellites toe the mark and respect the authority of Communism in the Soviet Union.

The end result of these developments on the international scene is that Communism can be viewed as having the same face it had under Dictator Joseph Stalin. It is still an armed doctrine representing the Soviet dictatorship and utterly opposed to the slightest breath of personal or economic freedom.

It is instructive that the Czech situation should develop in this period before the American presidential election. The future of the cold war is still the chief issue facing the American people. If the U.S. fails to actively strive for victory in the cold war, it will continue to lose ground in the worldwide conflict between capitalism and Communism.

A new generation of Americans has grown up with no memory of the Communist record of tyranny and betrayal. Young Americans in their twenties aren't old enough to remember the soft-on-Communism outlook of the Roosevelt New Deal, the giveaway of lend lease supplies to the USSR, the surrender of Eastern Europe to the Russians at the end of World War II. These young Americans don't have personal recollections of the Soviet spy cases which showed the Russians built their first atomic weapons on the basis of information stolen from the U.S. or supplied by traitors. They don't recall the case of Alger Hiss, the high-ranking State Department official who served as a Soviet agent.

Older Americans need to help educate younger Americans and explain to them how the interest of the U.S. were sacrificed by disloyal elements and appeasement types in our midst. The young also need to know about the struggle of anti-Communists in this country over a 20-year period. They should be informed as to who stood for firmness against Communism and who had an ignorant or sentimental view of the Communist threat to freedom. Young voters should ask themselves where the leaders and candidates of today stood on the decisive struggle involving Communism and the cold war. For example, what was Hubert Humphrey's view of the Hiss case when it was the raging issue of the moment? Or looking at more recent events, what was Mr. Humphrey's view when President Kennedy ordered withdrawal of U.S. missiles from Turkey in exchange for the alleged removal of Soviet rockets from Cuba?

These questions aren't ancient history. They are living questions that pertain to basic attitudes regarding the cold war, the struggle between the forces of freedom and the forces of tyranny.

The record will show that American "liberals" have been consistently wrong about Communist for 20 years. They have laughed at anti-Communists, saying they "see Reds" under beds." Meanwhile, the Soviets have swept on from success to success, capturing Cuba and penetrating Africa, the Middle East and Southeast Asia. The "liberals" have been determined to see Communism as containing reforming elements, whereas Communism is as brutal and ambitious as ever. The United States is in danger today because "liberals" have guided American foreign policy. It is imperative that there be a change in leadership in Washington, in foreign policy thinking as well as in the handling of domestic strife, which also stems from Communist agitation.

America hasn't much time to adopt a new, vigorous posture toward the Communist threat. The people need to act in 1968.

STRIKING FACTS ON LIGHTNING PROTECTION

LIGHTNING STROKES, shown in time exposure, occur 9,000,000 times over land or sea every 24 hours — or 6,000 times a minute.

Lightning is nature's most striking phenomenon, as the pun goes. It strikes the earth six thousand times a minute. In just the brief period it took you to read this, lightning has struck the earth somewhere a hundred times.

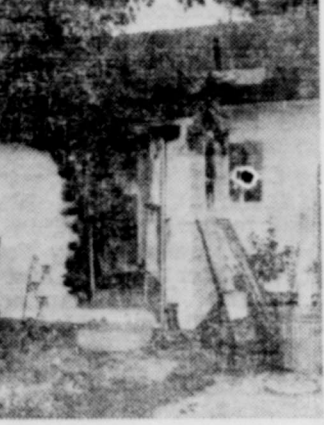

There's nothing you can do to make it go away, but there are, for instance, a number of things Americans can do to reduce the 600 fatalities in the U.S. each year and the more than $100 million in property damage caused by lightning.

The precautions we can take are simple in regard to saving our lives and inexpensive in regard to protecting our homes and valuable appliances.

For your own protection when caught outdoors in a thunderstorm, here are a few easy rules to follow: avoid hilltops, isolated trees, wire fences or small exposed sheds. At home, stay away from open doors and windows, fireplaces, and electrical equipment. Do not take a shower or bath during a thunderstorm and avoid using the telephone.

When lightning is striking near your home, don't choose that moment to unplug appliances. If you do, you are putting yourself in the same danger from which you are seeking to protect your appliances — a surge of lightning current through the house wiring.

It is this danger from lightning surges, rather than a direct hit by lightning, that causes the most damage in the home. While lightning rods can protect your home from damage by direct lightning strokes, insurance statistics reveal that 75% of damage claims resulting from lightning activity are the result of electrical surges. They can be caused by either direct strokes of lightning to the power line, or near misses, both of which can channel thousands of destructive volts of electricity into the electrical wiring of your home. These surges can puncture, burn, melt and destroy any wiring, appliances, and other electrical equipment.

You can now protect your house wiring and appliances from lightning surges with an inexpensive home lightning protector. The tennis ball sized device, developed by General Electric, is connected at the service entrance fuse or breaker box. This device channels the destructive voltage surges harmlessly to ground in a fraction of a second. It can be installed by any qualified electrician, and is the only one of its kind listed by Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc.

Unlike a fuse, it works over and over again. Most electrical contractors and distributors throughout the U.S. can supply you with the GE Home Lightning Protector. The cost for the device is no more than two good seats at the Astrodome.

With the tremendous investment most homes and appliances represent today, and the $50 deductible insurance clause presently in effect in most states, you can't afford not to spend the small amount on a home lightning protector to protect against lightning surges. The $10 cost, plus installation, is small compared with the value of your home, or just any one of the many electrical appliances you own.

Teens Flip Over Milk Happening

What's the biggest hit on the Go-Go circuit these days? It's Milk-anilla—the great new way of drinking milk that teens and grown-ups are flipping over across the country.

For the dreamiest, creamiest, coolest "teen-saver" when the heat gets to be too much, just mix a batch of Milk-anilla. Everything you need is right in the kitchen now—a glass, a spoon, vanilla extract, liquid food colors and milk. Simply add 1/4 teaspoon of McCormick's Schilling pure vanilla extract, 1 teaspoon sugar or equivalent liquid sweetener, and 1 to 2 drops yellow food color to 8 ounces of frosty milk; stir and serve the top "cooler-off-er" of the season.

But the fun doesn't stop there! With a little imagination, fruit-flavored extracts, and different food colors, there are endless possibilities for whipping up some exciting Milk Flips. Change the food color to match the flavor—one or two drops will do—always add vanilla and 1/4 or 1/2 teaspoon of your favorite flavor.

Now that those hazy, lazy, crazy days of summer are here, you're probably looking for some great party ideas. Want to turn "just a plain get-together" into something really different? Then discard the old "soda-peanuts-pretzels" plan—and stage your very own Milk-anilla Happening! Another twist—add a scoop of ice cream and a splash of ginger ale to a Milk Flip and have a Flip Shake.

Have lots of pretty parfait glasses, pastel straws and—if you can swing it—a blender—ready when the crowd arrives. Then, let everyone choose their glass and flavor, turn on the blender—and stir up a storm of Milk-anilla and Milk Flips.

House Care Is Becoming 'Pane-Less'

While sociologists are studying ways for Americans to spend their increasing leisure time constructively, homeowners are studying ways to shuck home upkeep chores that rob them of their leisure.

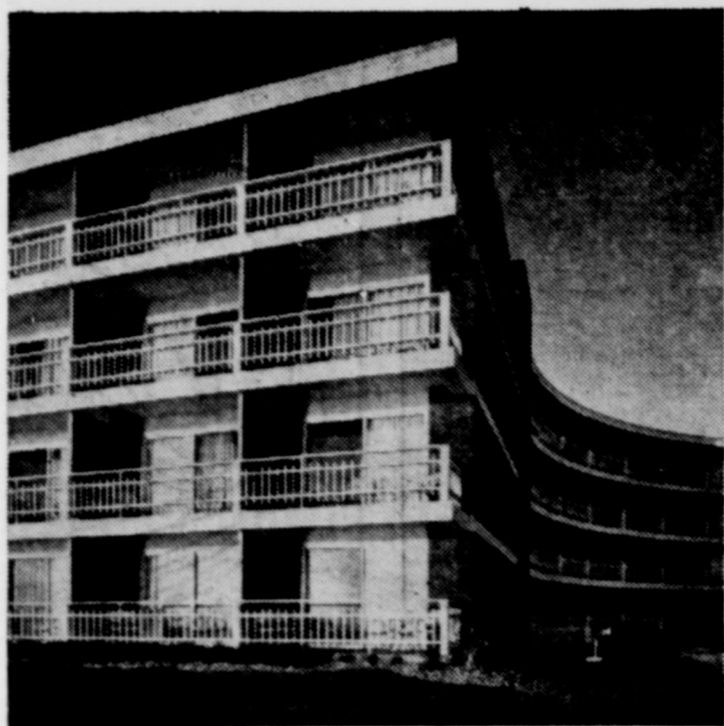

Scientists may consider house maintenance a healthy spare-time interest, but no homeowner in his right mind would rather paint the house than play golf, or change storm sash instead of fishing.

In the battle for who gets custody of a man's leisure time—the step ladder or the sand traps—manufacturers and builders have come to the homeowners' aid. Manufacturers by producing a wide variety of low-maintenance building materials, and builders by specifying or suggesting them for homes.

Such a low-care building product—which pays off in leisure-time dividends over the years of homeownership—is insulating glass. Once solely a custom feature, welded insulating glass is now included in most of the windows made by Andersen Corporation, the leading window manufacturer. Andersen's Perma-Shield windows (which have a vinyl sheathing over the wood sash that doesn't need painting and won't pit, rust or corrode) feature welded insulating glass in all units.

Welded insulating glass is actually two panes of glass fused together at the edges. The dry air space between the panes acts as insulation and reduces heat loss by transmission.

Insulating glass eliminates the seasonal chores of hanging, cleaning, painting and storing storm windows. A year-round timesaver is the fact that insulating glass presents two less glass surfaces to wash than a single-glazed window with storm sash.

This oceanfront hotel was specially designed to withstand the corrosive effects of salt spray and sea air. The Andersen Perma-Shield gliding doors used in the Washington Club Inn, Virginia Beach, Va., feature a vinyl-clad wood sash that doesn't need painting, and will not pit, rust or corrode.

Seaside Structures Need Protection Against Elements

Salt water and sea air may be an invigorating combination for vacationers. But they're a double threat to seaside homes and resorts.

The corrosiveness of these elements, plus wind-blown sand and hot sun, can cause serious maintenance problems for shore buildings. Salt tends to pit and corrode metal, while sun and sand can play havoc with painted surfaces.

One way to overcome these problems is by using building materials especially designed to withstand this type of damage.

For example, when the Washington Club Inn was built on Virginia Beach, Va., the owner and architect selected exterior materials that would lessen the expense of periodic upkeep and maintain the building's appearance.

The exterior walls of the crescent-shaped building are brick. Andersen Perma-Shield gliding doors are used on the balconies of all the guest rooms. These units, which have rigid vinyl sheathing over a preservative-treated wood core, do not require painting and are impervious to pitting, rusting or corrosion. They proved so satisfactory, that the same low-maintenance units were used in an addition to the inn.

According to owner Charles Gardner, "Salt air eventually corrodes even anodized aluminum. But it won't affect rigid vinyl, which will last indefinitely."

In addition to its low-maintenance qualities, the hotel, which was designed by Evan J. McCorkle, Jr., A.I.A., offers luxury attractions for guests. These include color television in every room, two pools, extensive recreational activities, and central air conditioning with individual room thermostats.

SHOULD BE DRY

All freshly cut lumber is saturated with water. As the moisture evaporates, wood cells contract and the lumber shrinks. This loss of size should occur at the mill—not after lumber has been placed in the framework of a home. To protect home owners, grading rules of the Southern Pine industry requires that framing and other items of lumber be properly seasoned and preshrunk before being surfaced to final size.

BRIGHT IDEAS

By Elizabeth Meehan, Sylvania Lighting and Design Coordinator

Play Ball!

"Game called on account of darkness." If that's how most of your family athletic events have been ending, it's about time to think up your sports area.

Providing the necessary illumination is simple. Use poles 10 feet or taller equipped with adjustable flood units (150-watt PAR-38 bulbs). These bulbs can be used without a protective covering. If you prefer 200-watt white bulbs for a diffused affect, a reflector to protect them from the elements is necessary.

Badminton or ping pong areas can be lit by Sylvania 150-watt PAR-38 on four flood lamp poles facing each other. Set two about three feet out from the net and about five feet to the left and right of the net line. Then place the other two on the opposite side of the net in the same position. Adjust the sockets so that they face directly across the court.

For an archery range, two poles are suggested. One 12- to 16-foot pole with a pair of adjustable floods—one directed for general lighting, and the other aimed at the target—which will illuminate the area between the archer and the target itself. Another lamp should be located close to the target, with the light beam directed beyond the target, to make it easier to retrieve arrows.

IT'S UP TO YOU

By Howard E. Kershner, L.H.D.

A Safe Spending Limit

IN recent years we have poured out about $130 billion of the people's money for so-called foreign aid, administered by an army of Federal employees. This program has often created more misery than it has alleviated. By interfering with indigenous effort we sometimes reduce the local food supply below what it would have been without our aid. People have sometimes stopped milking their own cows because it is easier to get powdered milk from Uncle Sam.

The fundamental difficulty with this whole program is the fact that men are not capable of understanding a world-wide economy or of planning how to carry it on effectively and efficiently. The job is too big and too complex for the planners to master. It needs the initiative of all the people working to advance their own interest in a free and flexible economy which shifts manpower, raw materials and capital quietly and quickly away from industries, activities and services which are less in demand into others which are more in demand.

Another important fact is that human ingenuity is not able to devise methods of accounting and control properly to administer sums running into hundreds of billions of dollars every year. These vast uncontrolled expenditures give rise to innumerable opportunities for wastefulness, kick-backs, favoritism, back-scratching, swollen payrolls and innumerable ways of siphoning off the public's money for the enrichment of individuals. Some of these scandals come to light but most of them are like an iceberg, only one-eighth of which is ever exposed to sunlight. The rest is submerged deeply below the water.

Students of the matter have concluded that when government spends more than one-quarter of the earnings of the people, it is on the way to destroying the economy. We are fast approaching the expenditure of about 40% of the income of the people for carrying on the activities of the various levels of government. As a result our difficulties multiply. Debt is on the upward-bound escalator and the purchasing power of the dollar is on the downward-moving stairway.

The only answer is to limit the function of government and to free the people to work out their own problems in their own way. This they can and will do if they are not saddled with expensive taxation destroying their initiative and absorbing the fruits of their labor.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Schroeder were able to attend the Sunday gathering for a few hours. Also from Burkburnett were Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Eaton; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Schroeder, Kenneth, David, Mark and Kathy; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Klinkerman, Charles, Judy, Jan, Griff and Joy; Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Klinkerman, Alexa and Laura; Mrs. Tom Goins, Jimmy, Kathy, Lisa and Mark; and Mrs. Clara Klinkerman.

CONTACT LENSES AND YOU

EYEING CONTACT LENSES?

New York (NAPS)—Thinking about contact lenses? Wonder if they're for you? How do you go about finding out? At one time or another, millions of contact lens users pondered these questions, too.

If you're one of 120 million persons who require a vision correction — notably far- and near-sightedness—you are probably a candidate.

First step is a visit to a reputable contact lens practitioner. He may be your family eye specialist or one he recommends who has the essential skills. Fitting contacts is exacting work, more complex than slipping eyeglass frames onto your nose.

Today's lenses are aspirin size and made of plastic. Miraculously thin, they rest on the eye's tear layer, covering the cornea or transparent part of the eye. Prescription changes are infrequent, even rare.

If contact lenses are for you, "trial lenses" will be placed on your eyes as the first step to adaptation. Motivation is important as this tells the specialist how willingly you'll follow a program of instruction in order to achieve day-long, comfortable use of the lenses.

Next visit you'll try on your new lenses for brief periods, undergoing close observation until the practitioner is satisfied with the results.

According to officials of Barnes-Hind Ophthalmic Products, makers of solutions and accessories for the wear and care of contact lenses, later visits will find you practicing how to put on and remove your lenses, how to care for them before and after wearing and how to clean them. Special cleansers designed for contacts should be used, for soaps can cause eye irritations.

Your office visits will span the duration of your adaptation to the contact lenses, about 2 to 6 weeks. The next six months you may see your practitioner three or four times, but the cost of these visits is often included in the price of the lenses. After the first year, he may prescribe one or two visits annually.

Most important, these visits will help to assure that you, like countless others, can enjoy the unique experience of wearing contact lenses.

Students of the matter have concluded that when government spends more than one-quarter of the earnings of the people, it is on the way to destroying the economy. We are fast approaching the expenditure of about 40% of the income of the people for carrying on the activities of the various levels of government. As a result our difficulties multiply. Unconventional House Design Creates Modern-day Castle

A home can be a castle in more ways than one.

Such a house can be found on New York's Long Island. By virtue of its comfort, warmth and beauty, it qualifies as "home" in the best tradition. By breaking convention in design, shape and form, it creates an enchanting mood reminiscent of story-book castles. It is also an exciting example of some new departures in contemporary architecture.

The structure of the house—complex, multi-faceted, high and sharply-angled—is unique. There are three stories; but ceiling heights and roof lines vary so greatly, that the stories seem to rise and descend into one another. The Gothic upward-thrust of the house is offset by attached horizontal fences. Rounded geometric openings in the fences soften the house's angular appearance.

The imaginative use of windows is responsible for much of the home's distinctive charm. They seem to have been placed everywhere: some high, some low, some in the roof.

Standard Andersen operating windows and fixed-glass units were selected by the architects for this unusual residence. In addition, there are trapezoidal-shaped fixed-sash windows specially designed to complement the building's lines. Andersen gliding patio doors open the first-floor living and dining rooms to a large, rear polygonal deck that faces the sea.

The windows flood the house with light. As one climbs from floor to floor, they offer an increasingly panoramic view of the surrounding countryside.

If the house design defies description, so do the rooms. They vary in shape and height. The "squared" dining room has a 16-foot sloping ceiling. The living room has a cathedral appearance: a ceiling that reaches up through two floors; arched doorways that open into the dining room, study and entrance hall; and an elegantly simple corner fireplace with raised-hearth "wings" that spread along the length of the adjoining walls.

Other rooms are, by contrast, intimately small and low-ceilinged. On the second floor there are two bedrooms and baths (another bedroom and the kitchen are on the ground floor). A third-floor L-shaped studio crowns the house.

Architects Vernon and Jay Sears of Quogue, N.Y., sought to create a medieval mood in this unusual weekend home for the owners, who wanted "something mysterious . . . a house that invites you to explore it." They succeeded beautifully.

Even the entrance—an angled wooden walkway leading to a paneled dark wood door—reflects the mood. Window "mystery" was added with black shingle overhangs and projecting side fins. Inside and out, the house is a fascinating combination of lights and shadows: white-stained cypress siding, rough plaster walls, extensive sun-lit glass areas, dark plank wood floors and ceilings. Imaginative features like seethrough stairways, indoor bridges, and "nook and cranny" rooms that open suddenly into lofty areas do inspire—and delight—the adventurous.

News From The County Agent

Due to competitive price, wheat could become a suitable substitute for feed grain in the livestock ration, county agent B. T. Haws says.

Up to 50 per cent of the grain portion of the ration may be wheat. More than this is not advisable since wheat is a heavy feed and forms a paste in the mouth and stomach of the animal, said Haws.

Protein from wheat can be used as satisfactorily as protein from other sources in balancing a ration. Wheat is about 105 per cent the feeding value of corn.

The outer covering of wheat is hard, therefore, it should be coarsely ground or rolled before feeding.

Since the end of World War II, our population has grown by 55 million or 37 per cent. Our gross national product went from $280 billion to more than $800 billion. More than 20 million people left the countryside for the city. A third of the total population left the city

There may be times when your church seems to be growing slowly, when you become discouraged because your work seems to bear no fruit. Don't be discouraged. The Lord would say to you in Deut. 1:21, "Fear not, neither be discouraged," for I am with you.

During the very time you are discouraged, the Lord may have good news for you. This period of time may be more spring than winter. It is an open secret that God's arm is not shortened that he cannot save; neither is his ear heavy that He cannot hear.

Therefore, let us keep on working and praying that we may in our hearts possess the land of rest and comfort and peace with God. "The glory of the Lord shall be thy reward." He tells us in Isaiah 58:9, "Then thou shalt call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and He shall say, Here I Am."

We pray that the church and its fellowship will be your dearest treasure. May the church be the place where your "heart interest" lies. We invite you to attend services this week.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love, for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Family Fun Takes To The Water With New Swimming Pool Sports

New family sports and games are popular in the backyard swimming pool. They draw kids of all ages together without the usual dry-land squabbles, according to the George Bonfields of Miami, Fla., whose 12 children are all gung-ho swimmers.

A raft of new family sports activities is developing among swimming pool homes across the country.

There's the wet-set version of basketball, called aqua-ball, which kids and grown-ups of every size can enjoy on an equal "footing" (make that "finning") regardless of the length of their legs.

Volleyball, football, baseball, jai alai, badminton, polo, horseshoes, and tug-of-war all are creating a big splash in their new versions.

One of the most spectacular of the new swimming pool games is scatterball, according to the National Swimming Pool Institute. In scatterball, 12 four-inch plastic balls are hurled into the air from a floating net activated by strong rubber strips, and players scramble to recover them.

Among new play accessories are oversize "diving coins" that don't corrode; magnet-hooked fishing pools used to land metal jar-ring fish, and eight-inch square plastic dice.

In the water, children of all ages seem to get along better, parents of large families find. The reason? Each child can find his own active fun or join in group play for just the length of time he wants to. One set of experienced parents, the George Bonfields of Miami, Fla., who shepherded a brood of 12 ranging from 4 1/2 to 21 years of age, have found their pool waterproof family togetherness. A slide and a dozen or so of floating handballs give the family everything it needs to improve water games and healthful exercise. "A swimming pool is better than a full-time maid for families who have as many youngsters as we do," Mrs. Bonfield concludes.

Flavor of Maine

A Sardine Submarine Sandwich is just one of the delectable dishes featured in a new recipe book which has just been issued by the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries and the Maine Sardine Council. Called "Flavor of Maine," the book also includes an interesting article on the catching and canning of this nutritious little fish. The book may be obtained by writing the Superintendent of Documents, U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402.

MAINE SARDINE SUBMARINE SANDWICH

- 3 cans (3/4 or 4 ounces each) Maine sardines
- 1 onion, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
- 1 1/2 teaspoons prepared mustard
- 3 submarine rolls, 12 inches each
- 6 lettuce leaves
- 2 tomatoes, thinly sliced
- Salt
- 6 slices cheese
- Mustard Sauce
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing

Drain sardines. Separate onion slices into rings. Combine butter and mustard. Cut rolls in half lengthwise. Spread bottom half with mustard-butter. Cover with lettuce, tomato slices, and onion rings. Sprinkle with salt. Cover with cheese and sardines. Pour Mustard Sauce over sardines. Spread top half of rolls with mayonnaise. Cover sandwiches and secure with toothpicks. Makes 6 servings.

MUSTARD SAUCE

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
- 2 tablespoons prepared mustard
- 2 teaspoons pickle juice
- Dash liquid hot pepper sauce

Combine all ingredients. Makes approximately 1/2 cup sauce.

83,238 workers. I had grave reservations about the wisdom of such an across-the-board approach to budget cutting. I tried unsuccessfully to temper these cuts.

Right away my worst fears were confirmed. Postmaster General Marvin Watson said the cutback would mean an end to Saturday mail service. About 7,000 fourth-class Post Offices in rural America were to be closed and 5,000 more third-class small town Post Offices would have been shut down. A total of 15 Post Offices would have closed in August. Every Texan would have been inconvenienced by delays in mail sorting and delivery. More than 700 Post Offices in Texas would have been closed eventually.

As a member of the Post Office Committee, I have always worked to make enough money available for the Post Office to handle the growing volume of mail. This year our Post Offices will handle about 84 billion pieces of mail—more mail than the whole rest of the world circulates. Despite this fantastic volume, our United States Post Office is the most efficient system in the world.

Cutbacks that the Postmaster General said would have forced on us would have injured the most vital lifeline in our society—our mail service. The postal service has been a seven-day operation from its creation—even during the Civil War. Under this cutback, all Saturday and Sunday work would have stopped.

Reducing the number of workers and closing Post Offices would not reduce the volume of work. Instead it would have meant too much work for the remaining postal workers. It would have meant a loss of service to every American, and an unavoidable pileup of mail at every Post Office in the country.

I worked to save the Post Office from the budget cutback and to save our postal service from deteriorating. Because we succeeded—Americans can continue to enjoy full postal service.

PERSONAL

Committees for the coming year were announced by the President. Each one present was urged to help the Jaycees with the Concession Stand at the Rodeo, June 13, 14 and 15.

The program on the State Convention at Austin was given by Pat Dunn.

Delicious refreshments were served to the following: Delores Alexander, Mary Ann Conway, Dot Mize, Evelyn Nichols, Barbara Hamilton, JoSharon

Postelwait, Gloria Sykes, Mary Lou Wolfe and Barbara Reed. The door prize was won by Delores Alexander.

ROTC Commissions Record Number

Efram Zimbalist, Jr., is shown the gold bars of a second lieutenant by his son, Efram III, Young Zimbalist, who was graduated from Harvard this month with a BA degree in economics, is receiving his officer's commission in military intelligence through the Army ROTC program. This scene is being duplicated on 247 campuses throughout the United States.

A record number of the men now graduating from 247 colleges throughout the United States will receive officer commissions through the Army ROTC program and will enter military service as second lieutenants. The almost 18,000 new officers is the largest number ever produced in a single year by the Army's on-campus training program.

Army ROTC enables the college man to earn both a degree in the field of his choice and a second lieutenant's commission at the same time.

Many of these new officers have attended college on full-tuition ROTC scholarships.

Each year, the Army awards 800 four-year scholarships to outstanding high school graduates and more than 800 two-year awards to selected college sophomores who complete the first two years of ROTC. All ROTC cadets receive $50 a month during their junior and senior years.

In addition to providing a vital source of new Army officers, the ROTC program provides leadership training and experience and develops personal qualities which employers of college graduates prefer.

Many firms pay a premium to get ROTC graduates with officer experience.

SEN. RALPH YARBOROUGH'S NEWSLETTER

Earlier this month, President Johnson signed into law a bill exempting the Post Office Department from a financial cutback that would have meant a real disaster for the nearly 200 million Americans who rely on regular daily mail service. I fought to save our mail service as chairman of the Senate Post Office Subcommittee, and I was with the President for the signing of the bill.

In an effort to cut back on government expenses to free more funds for the war in Vietnam, Congress approved a $6 billion cutback in spending. The $6 billion budget reduction provided that for every four government workers who quit, only three could be hired to replace them. I thought it too harsh and voted against it. In the case of the postal service, it would have eliminated

40 Million On the Move

If you've left your heart some place recently—or plan to in the near future—you've got company. The love interest in this case is the home, which will be transplanted for about 40 million Americans this year.

Summer is the signal for address changes in this country, accounting for more than 75 percent of the year's family moving. One-third of the grand total will leave their present homes after less than a year of residence. One thing is certain, regardless of whether the household possessions are moved across town or across the country: the strange new house will be full of crates and scattered furniture when the family arrives.

It's one of the times in life when the home and spirit need brightening and Florists' Transworld Delivery experts have some suggestions to offer on the sending of fresh flowers from friends left behind.

First of all, the kitchen by necessity is one of the first rooms ready for living and FTD florists have some arrangements appropriate for that part of the house. A container of daisies set into a wide-brimmed cookie jar will brighten the table; or ask your florist to fill a brightly colored plastic bucket with roses—to be delivered with a new mop tied with a satin bow.

FTD florists around the nation have a knack for creating arrangements which match the particular home decor involved. For example, there are many flowers which fit country-style homes and they can be attractively arranged in a frying pan or sauce pan, as well as the traditional vase.

Another approach is the use of a little humor, such as the prominent display of a bottle of rubbing alcohol among fresh miniature carnations, with a card explaining that the first week is always the hardest.

Whatever the container, the flowers are guaranteed to be a cheering influence when the exhausted "movers" plopp down in their new living room on arrival night.
