POKER GAME QUARREL RESULTS IN KILLING

PILOTING

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a second of a series of Pilotings designed to give the readers of this newspaper a clear, concise picture of the Naval Service and to aid the men eligible for military service in making their decision as to which branch of the nation's military service can best use their talents.

What are the chances of a skilled tradesman getting a good job in the Navy?

If you are now working as a mechanic, electrician, or in any of many other jobs, you will have every chance to continue your present type of work. Men up to the age of fifty who have had special training or are particularly skilled in their trade may qualify as Petty Officers immediately, with the higher pay and allowances that go with such a rating.

Men with construction experience are now being recruited for Construction Battalions—or "Seabees" as they are popularly known. These construction units are being formed to build Naval bases the world over from which the Navy will operate. Each battalion will be a complete construction unit, able to move into location and carry operations through the final stages. The trades needed are many—rock drillers, carpenters, mechanics and shovel operators, concrete workers, divers, transit and level men, cooks, riggers, engine runners, labor foremen, plumbers, etc. Construction Battalions are primarily for older men—men who have had several years experience at their trade, men who are thoroughly familiar with very phase of their trade.

Even more skilled tradesmen are needed for duty afloat... electricians, machinists, shipfitters, boiler-makers, radiomen, firemen... to man the ships sent sliding down the ways each day. Ships to strike the enemy wherever and whenever he can be found... America's first line of offense.

The Navy offers this specific opportunity to skilled men to cash in on their experience... and to get the expert Navy training that will fit you for a better job after the war than you ever held before.

The third article of this series, rate of pay and allowances for dependents, will appear in the next issue.

Work Of The Chamber Of Commerce Praised By Local Minister

(Editor's Note: The following comment on the efforts of the Rockport Chamber of Commerce was voluntarily contributed by the Rev. Almus D. Jameson, pastor of the First Methodist Church.)

What makes a town grow? The blessings and attractions of a town do not just happen. A going institution of this kind is not the result of chance. The advantages of a city should not on any account be taken as a matter of course—an incident of nature like the sunlight or the jaunty seabreeze which may caress it, and render life there a joy.

First of all every town that is a success has been fortunate in the man or men who made the wise choice in the place which was selected for the site. Sometimes we, in our self absorption forget and fail to take into account that at sometime back in the past serious thought and careful consideration were given by the founders to just this thing.

Second, and what is equally important as the former, there must have been a progressive, public-minded citizenship. No town builds permanently without the latter. Witness the many ghost towns that haunt the vast countryside; mementos

A. R. Curry Elected Sheriff In Run-Off Primary Sat.

O'Daniel Gets Majority In Aransas County

Voting Lighter In 2nd Primary, 732 Cast In Sheriff's Race

Saturday's run-off Democratic Primary made A. R. Curry sheriff, tax assessor and collector of Aransas county in the only local race to be decided by the second primary. Curry received 395 votes, M. W. Haynes 337.

Curry is a real native of Aransas county, having been born here and has lived here all his life to date except for a few short periods. He has been manager of the Port Bay Hunting and Fishing Club for the past 25 years. This is his first try at a public office.

Aransas County helped make W. Lee O'Daniel junior Senator from Texas. The ballots are reported as follows:

For Senator:

W. Lee O'Daniel—413.
James V. Allred—311.

For Lieut. Governor:

Harold Beck—336.
J. L. Smith—294.

For State Treasurer:

Jesse James—467.
Gregory Hatcher—181.

For Railroad Commissioner:

Pierce Brooks—364.
Buford Jester—294.

Lt. Joe Caldwell Arrives Safely In Foreign Port

Lt. Joe Caldwell, Jr., former Rockport attorney and manager of the Chamber of Commerce who entered the Army last spring, writes to friends here from aboard ship during his recent crossing to an unknown foreign port.

Highlights of his letter state: "We have had a most pleasant voyage, am writing this in the dining salon as blackout regulations require that the cabin be tightly closed when a light is on, and it is too hot."

"One good submarine scare has livened up the trip, but we haven't actually seen a sub—yet! We are due to land tomorrow."

J. P. Headrick Charged In Fatal Clubbing

Headrick Released On $2,000 Bond In Slaying Of J. L. Haineman

James Price Headrick, charged with the murder of John Longoria Haineman following a quarrel over a poker game around midnight Sunday, was released from jail Wednesday morning, on making bond which had been set at $2,000 at an examining trial before Judge B. S. Fox, acting as magistrate.

Thaddeus Bunker and Henry Garcia, held as witnesses, entered pleas of guilty to gaming charges, and were released Monday after being questioned. Both men made written statements regarding the affair.

The killing occurred between 12 and one o'clock Monday morning on an old railroad pier near the fish house belonging to S. F. Jackson. The four men are said to have been playing poker in a small oyster shed then being used as sleeping quarters by Haineman. During the argument, supposedly about the number of times a pot could be raised, Haineman and Headrick stepped out on the pier where Headrick found a piece of two by four lumber with which he struck Haineman.

Port Little Will Be Trained For Naval Aviation

Odis Porter Little, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. D. Little of Rockport, has been selected for training as a Naval Aviation Cadet and will be ordered to active duty shortly. Port attended the Rockport High School, graduating in 1941. He was active four years on the high school basketball team, three years in football, and two years in track.

When ordered to active duty, he will report to the U. S. Navy Pre-Flight School, University of Georgia, Athens, Georgia, for three months of physical conditioning, instruction in naval essentials, military drill and ground school subjects. After completing this course, he will be sent to one of the Navy's numerous reserve bases for primary flight training.

O. V. Dye Enters Service As Fireman

Oscar V. Dye was recently accepted by the Army for service as a fireman. He is stationed at Camp Hulen.

forth from one town to another, but would more than likely, having procured his license in a given place, remain right there for the duration of his outing. In my humble judgment every citizen of Rockport, and particularly every business man owes a tremendous debt of gratitude to our local Chamber of Commerce for this accomplishment alone.

Incidentally, the people of Rockport should be proud of our local Coast Guard office, manned as it is by a splendid personnel under the direction of Ensign E. E. Sneeringer of Corpus Christi, and Chief Boatswain's Mate C. L. Grant, captain of the port of Rockport and in charge here. The courteous treatment that one receives at the hands of these gentlemen renders any business with them pleasant and enjoyable.

They already have 75 more pennies saved toward more bonds and are each filling 10-cent War Savings Stamp Books.

Jimmie Pentecost Tells About Army Life In Alaska

Rockport boys are in all branches of the service, and by now are scattered all around the globe. Letters from them to the folks back home have been printed at various times, giving glimpses of scenes of war all around the world. This week the word pictures come from Alaska, taken from the letters of James Pentecost, Pvt. 1-c, in the U. S. Army Signal Corps, written to his foster parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Hunt.

Jimmie has been in the service since last October, and in Alaska since early summer. Most American boys find the strange lands exciting, and he is no exception, taking advantage of the opportunity to see and learn new things.

The gifts he has sent home are significant of Alaska. To Mr. Hunt he has sent a tie bar made with a string of gold nuggets; and a pair of boots made of reindeer hide with walrus hide soles. Mrs. Hunt has the walrus tusk, which originally measured 25 inches.

Alaska trout failed to excite a boy accustomed to the catches in Aransas Bay. In one letter he tells: "We went on a week end fishing trip and got back late last night. Fishing up here does not appeal to me much. We did not see a trout over 12 inches, most of them were four and five. They call a 12 inch a nice trout and keep any size."

"And the mosquitoes! We think they are bad once in a while in the summer down home, but they are small beside these up here. They are like dive bombers and make the Jap Zeros look like pikers. We are trying to get the artillery to roll out their anti-aircraft guns and shoot some of them for practice. I believe they would eat us alive if we did not wear nets on our hats and over our beds."

A good soldier is always trying to be a better soldier, another letter says: "I am studying every spare moment. I like the work and think I can make it O. K. It really is a swell job. Still taking some code, too."

"We have quite a few sports. The first sergeant likes sports and I am with a good bunch of boys. We had a softball game Saturday night and I played volleyball Saturday afternoon."

Jimmie is lucky, he can get packages from home. "We have sure enjoyed the cookies and candy you sent. It got here fresh and in good shape."

"Maybe I am nuts but I went swimming this afternoon. Alaska water is plenty cold, and the wind was, too, but it was fun. Wish I were down home to go swimming."

The Hunts keep Jimmie informed of how things are here by sending snapshots. He commented on the progress of the Oleanders and palms, and was glad to hear that the subchasers were being built on schedule.

A late letter shows that winter begins up north right away: "We didn't go into town today, but stayed here and put up stoves in our tents."

Finally they have been advised not to worry about him, that the country evidently agrees with him because, Jimmie confided, "I have gained 35 pounds since I arrived."

Mrs. Mable Bryant was at home several days this week on business. She returned to her work in Alpine Thursday.

Perry R. Bass of Fort Worth Buys Property for New Ship Yard at Fulton; Work On Boats to Start By Sept. 22

CAPT. C. JACOBSEN TO BE CONSTRUCTION FOREMAN; NEW YARD TO EMPLOY TWENTY MEN; LOCAL MEN TO GET PREFERENCE

Work will start at once on construction of a second shipyard in Aransas County to build boats for the U. S. Navy. The new yard will be located at Fulton and Capt. C. Jacobsen, veteran shipbuilder, will be foreman of construction, it was made known today.

First contract for the new ships calls for the construction of six 37-foot fire-boats for the Navy. They are to be under construction by Sept. 22.

That the new shipyard was to be built at Fulton became known today, when deeds to 150-foot of waterfront property were recorded here. The purchaser is Perry R. Bass, of Fort Worth, nephew of Sid Richardson, oil operator and owner of St. Joseph Island ranch property. The land was bought from S. F. Jackson and is the site of a fish house operated there by Jackson for 25 years.

Material for the building has been purchased and is due to be moved onto the site this week.

Ways will be laid for the six boats at one time. About six weeks will be required to complete a vessel.

The boats will be equipped with apparatus to fight fires along waterfronts and will probably be stationed in harbors where there is danger of fires or bombings.

Capt. Jacobsen said that all construction would be for the Navy and that probably other types of boats would be built later.

About twenty men will be employed at the start of the work.

"We are going to employ Rockport men as much as possible", Capt. Jacobsen said, "because they are natural ship builders."

Captain Jacobsen, who is to be construction foreman, has been a boat builder here for many years. He was a foreman with the Heldenfels Bros. during the World War, having built the largest warship ever built here.

Rockport Women Learn "Knit Two, Purl Two" In Red Cross Defense Class of the others had knitted years ago and thought they had forgotten how. They remembered well enough to start a garment right away.

"Many women think they will never have the time to knit a whole sweater", Mrs. Booth said, "but really it goes very quickly. It is something that can be done while one sits under the dryer at the beauty parlor, down at the beach while the children swim, or sitting in the car waiting for the mail to be up, there are all sorts of odd times to knit."

Included in the Monday group were Mrs. Della Wollison, Mrs. Marvin Davis, Mrs. Henry Camehl, Mrs. J. M. Roden, Mrs. Fred Brundrett, Mrs. J. S. Atchley, Mrs. Travis Johnson, Mrs. Fred Bracht, Mrs. Carrall Sanders, Mrs. Hettie Weber, Mrs. Jim Hanway, Mrs. J. W. Townsend, Mrs. J. H. Piper, and Mrs. Charles Davis and others.

Some stitches were dropped but before the class was over all of the women who joined the Red Cross knitting group Monday were at the "knit two, purl two" stage and many of them were issued the thread for a soldier's sweater.

Fifteen women were present for the initial instruction meeting, and several who could not be present have been issued material to work with, according to Mrs. Fred Booth, chairman in charge of the group. Another meeting will be held Thursday afternoon in the Red Cross rooms in the Mayer building, Mrs. Booth said, and beginners are invited to come.

At least half the Monday class were rank beginners but they quickly learned to "cast on and knit and purl" and each went away with a bit of "ribbing" to practice on and will be knitting a sweater before the week is out. Very few skilled knitters were present, most

Natives of India Turn Out to Fight Foe

In the Punjab region of India recruiting officers have no trouble in getting volunteers to fight against Hitler and Hirohito. As the war comes closer to India young men from far-flung districts are turning out to fight the common foe. In the recruiting center shown, at the left the doctor, an Indian, vaccinates each recruit at the point of his left shoulder. Right: An Indian officer (captain) gives each recruit a small advance of pay on enrollment.

At the right is a view in the Long Branch high school during one of the canning sessions, during each of which about 200 jars of vegetables were canned.

Dress Rehearsal for Solomon Assault

Before the hard-hitting U. S. marines stormed the Solomon islands they went through maneuvers that shaped them for this particularly tough assignment. In picture at top a land mine huris mud and sea water high into the air as the marines land troops and stores after establishing a bridgehead in the South Sea Islands, where U. S. forces and the Japs have been exchanging heavy counter-blows. Below: Unloading a heavy gun, part of the equipment of a landing party in the South Sea islands.

Ensnared in a horse-drawn buggy, "General" Jacob S. Coxe, who once led an army of the hungry to Washington, is shown leading a small army of war workers in Massillon, Ohio, during the tribute paid to Massillon war industry by the army and navy. High officials of the war and navy departments and heroes of the army and navy participated in the "salute to Massillon."

Bundist Arraigned

Hans Diebel is shown entering a U. S. marshal's car in New York. Diebel, leader of the German-American Bund in Los Angeles, pleaded not guilty to an indictment accusing him and 28 others of conspiring to have bund members evade the alien registration act of 1940. He is also charged with attempting to evade the selective service act.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

Allies Demonstrate Growing Strength In 'Dress Rehearsal' Raid on Dieppe; Solomon Victory Forecast of Further Pacific Offensives by United States

(EDITOR'S NOTE: When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of Western Newspaper Union's news analysis and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

The English channel area which was the scene of the most daring and extensive daylight raid by Allied forces on the French coast thus far. British and Canadian Commandos, supported by American Rangers, took part in the nine-hour foray which ravaged the Nazi defenses at Dieppe, destroyed artillery batteries, ammunition dumps and radio stations and left Dieppe in flames.

COMMANDOS: In Dress Rehearsal

Adolf Hitler learned that no matter how deep into Russia his eastern armies might penetrate, his western flank was open to attack that might be costly.

That was evident when British and Canadian Commandos supported by American Rangers swept across the English channel and back again in a nine-hour daylight raid that was a dress rehearsal for the forthcoming Allied invasion of Europe.

The Nazi-fortified coastal defenses at Dieppe, midway between Calais and Le Havre were the target. Although German sources estimated the force at 15,000 men, its number remained an official Allied secret. The raiders carried tanks and artillery with them.

While losses on both sides were considerable, the raiders were reported to have destroyed a six-gun shore artillery battery, an ammunition dump, a vast anti-aircraft battery and a radio location station. Moreover, it was reported that the city of Dieppe had been left in flames.

A strategic feature of the assault was the vast aerial umbrella in the form of 1,000 Allied fighter planes shielding the raiders. This was reported as the greatest aircraft canopy yet sent aloft. While it protected the operations of Commandos below, it succeeded in downing or damaging 273 enemy planes.

The attack demonstrated that landings in force could be successfully made against the strongest Nazi-fortified points on the French coast. And as a reminder of the growing air strength of the Allies, American and British planes swept over France the day after the raid, striking out in the greatest force ever seen over western Europe. The air raiders, 500 strong, included fighter-escorted American Flying Fortresses and other bombers.

RUSSIA: Gloom Persists

Only in the northernmost area of the Russian fighting front—at Voronezh and Bryansk—were the Soviet forces able to report any success. At these points several towns had been taken and thousands of Germans had been killed.

But elsewhere the picture remained gloomy. Stalingrad, key industrial city on the Volga, was menaced by a Nazi pincer. Further to the south, Maikop, fertile center of the Kuban valley wheatfields and source of some of Russia's oil, had been taken and Russian communiques admitted the Germans were moving trainloads of foodstuffs out of this area.

The loss of Maikop opened the way for the capitulation of the strategic city of Krasnodar, a railroad and river in the northwest Caucasus, and gateway to the Red's naval base of Novorossick, less than 60 miles distant.

Although Prime Minister Churchill's visit to Moscow had roused hopes that strategic moves from western Europe or from the Middle East by the Allies might take some of the mortal pressure off Russia, the situation remained critical. The successful Commando raid on the French coast was at least a token in that direction.

SOLOMON ISLANDS: Important Victory

At last it could be told, for the news revealed in a laconic navy communique was that the offensive in the Solomon islands had been completely successful. The enemy-held islands in the southeast Solomon chain were now firmly in the hands of United States marines. Only remnants of once strong Japanese forces remained on the islands and these were being mopped up.

The navy's communique announcing the victory said also that an enemy cruiser or destroyer was bombed and set afire by American planes in the area.

"United States marines are engaged in mopping up remnants of the Japanese forces on the islands which were recently captured in the Solomon archipelago," the communique said.

"Casual bombardments of our shore positions by enemy aircraft, destroyers and submarines have inflicted only minor damage. An enemy destroyer or cruiser was bombed and set afire by our aircraft."

The main offensive had been launched on the strategically important Tulagi harbor area on Florida Island, 930 miles from Australia. The enveloping attack included landings on smaller islands nearby.

Viewed in its strategic perspective, the Solomons offensive meant that Japan's thrusts toward New Caledonia would be forestalled, and that the pressure on southern New Guinea and Australia would be lifted.

MARRIED MEN: Face Early Draft

Married men under the age of 45 with dependents faced the prospect of being called in the draft "in the not far distant future." This prediction was made by a spokesman for Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey's national selective service board.

Speaking before the 52nd annual reunion of the Legion of Valor in Boston, Ted Luther, Hershey's aide, said "the nation's reservoir of 1-A men was practically exhausted" and that it would be necessary to obtain men from 1-B and 3-A classes.

BRAZIL: Irked at Axis

Submarines which for weeks had persistently attacked Brazil's coastwise shipping roused that nation to fighting pitch when they sank five merchantmen within a few days' span, with a loss of more than 600.

Thus a tacit state of war existed between Brazil and the Axis, without benefit of a formal declaration. "Brazilians know how to fight decisively and with or without arms will know how to die for Brazil," Air Minister Joaquim Salgado declared, as the nation's warships and planes combed the sea for submarines and raiders.

HIGHLIGHTS . . . in the week's news

LONDON: One of the largest troopship convoys to cross the Atlantic arrived in Britain recently after a fast, peaceful voyage escorted by American and British warships, it was announced here. Nurses from the convoy were the first to go ashore, followed by troops who proceeded to camps in Britain where thousands of their countrymen are completing training.

NEW DELHI, INDIA: Devadas Gandhi, son of the Hindu leader and managing editor of the Hindustan Times, was arrested here under the defense of India rules. His father, Mohandas K. Gandhi, was taken into custody by the British several weeks earlier, after the All-Indian Congress party had made him generalissimo of a civil disobedience drive for Indian independence.

RATIONING: Meat and Oil First

Two rationing programs loomed on the near horizon for American citizens with others in the background. These two were fuel oil in the East and meats generally throughout the nation.

The food branch of the War Production board had drafted a preliminary order embodying recommendations of Agriculture Secretary Wickard's food requirements committee. These included allocation of meat supplies to different sections of the country, adjustment of price ceilings to stimulate the flow of meats into shortage areas, allocation among packers of government purchases of meat for the armed forces—and finally, rationing.

Rationing of fuel oil for Eastern heating purposes appeared near as industrial establishments and homes using oil for heating were warned they would have to get along on less than normal supplies.

MIDDLE EAST: Command Is Changed

As Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck had joined a growing list of ousted commanders of the precarious Middle East front, the infusion of new brains in the person of hard-hitting Gen. Sir Harold R. L. G. Alexander, focused attention on the importance of that sector. The visit of Prime Minister Churchill to Alexandria on his way to Moscow, too, had shown how vital the Egyptian sector loomed in Allied strategy.

Observers pointed out that because of its strategic possibilities, North Africa might become the United Nations' second front.

Biggest task confronting the United Nations before snow flies was halting Hitler's gigantic pincer drive against the Middle East by way of the Russian Caucasus from the north and via Marshal Rommel's Egyptian Nazi armies from the southwest.

WAR PRODUCTION: Nelson Gets Tough

Criticism of the War Production board's management of the war program had been mounting in recent weeks.

Thus when Donald M. Nelson, WPB chief, returned to his desk after a much-needed rest there was considerable speculation about the next move.

The usually quiet production chief made himself forcefully clear. Challenging his critics to a showdown, he indicated a new spirit of pugnacity by asserting: "From now on anyone who crosses my path is going to have his head taken off."

He underscored this declaration by immediately dismissing a $5,600 WPB employee. He declared he was "going to get tough enough to get this job done and the job will be done."

DIMOUT: For West Coast

Spurred by the ever-present danger of enemy air attack, the West coast dimmed out officially for the duration of the war.

Until peace comes night baseball will be only a memory. Automobiles will be driven with parking lights. Theater and store entrances will be dark. Movie companies in Hollywood will no longer use glaring lights for outdoor shots.

Residents up and down the Pacific coast will blackout their windows.

Dimout technique had been practiced for days before regulations became official.

LABOR PEACE: Green Urges Unity

Another olive branch was waved in the cause of labor peace when William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, called for an end to "the economic tug-of-war whereby each group seeks to get the best bargain it can from the other."

The economic fight "must be abandoned for the duration," he told the 50th annual convention of the Wisconsin State Federation of Labor.

Green termed the CIO-AFL split a "dangerous and wasteful civil war." Earlier he had disclosed that representatives of the two organizations would confer late in September on the proposed re-union of labor.

"I trust those participating in these conferences," he said, "are conscious of the fact that private interests are secondary to the national necessity."

ALMOST any plain washstand or dresser may be given long smart lines by adding open shelves at the ends. Here, a top of plywood with a plain moulding around the edges extends across the top of the stand and shelves. By adding a plain baseboard and a coat of paint the piece is finished with a modern air. The paint should match the woodwork and if old hardware is removed to make way for simple new drawer pulls the screw holes should be filled with plastic wood and sanded before painting.

The diagram at the upper right shows how to make the wall decoration from a remnant of flowered chintz. If you use an old frame, the chintz picture may be given the appearance of an oil painting by applying several coats of varnish, allowing plenty of time for each coat to dry thoroughly.

When you hear a Marine called a "Leatherneck," it has nothing to do with the epidemics of his neck. Years ago the Marine uniform was equipped with a high stiff leather collar supposed to give a more military carriage. From that time on, "Leatherneck" has been the word for a Marine. The word for his favorite cigarette is "Camel"—the favorite cigarette also of men in the Army, Navy, and Coast Guard. (Based on actual sales records from service men's stores.) GHOST PLANE

By ARTHUR STRINGER

W. N. U. SERVICE

CHAPTER I

"Lindy's in!"
Cruger, at his desk, heard that cry from a ground-worker passing the open window. He smiled as he looked up from his time sheet. There was always a note of triumph in the call of the port boys when Lindy came in.

Cruger got up from his chair and crossed to the doorway, where the sunlight fell flat against the river slopes and proclaimed that spring had come again to the North Country. He stood there until he caught sight of his long-legged bush pilot swinging up from the landing dock.

Cruger went back to his desk and his figure-stimpled time sheets as the long legs strode into what was overgenerously known as the Administration Building of Norland Airways. It was a place of plain boards and tar paper, with only the two poles of its radio antennae to crown it with any passing sense of dignity.

Slade, when he stepped into the map-hung office, again made Cruger think of a panther, but this time it was a panther in a cage. He seemed too big for the room.

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger. "And I want to tell you, first crack out of the box, that we're going to take the crepe off the door."

"What does that mean?" questioned Slade.

Cruger, instead of answering, took up an official-looking envelope.

"Before we begin," he casually observed, "you'd better give this the once-over." He surrendered the envelope. "You know what it is?"

"I've an idea," said Slade, after inspecting the insignia.

"You're a quick jumper, aren't you?" retorted Cruger, his eye on the weathered young face that held a touch of discontent somewhere.

Slade's smile was wide yet non-committal.

"They yelp for flyers," he said, "and while they're yelping they turn me down." He got up from the safe and paced the narrow floor. "I must be bad."

Cruger's shrug was a condoning one.

"I'd say it's because you're good," he parried. "Good enough to be needed right here on this northern run. And those tin hats happen to know you hold a key position."

Slade turned on him.

"Did anyone in this outfit broadcast that, just to block my enlistment?" was his indignant demand.

Again Cruger shrugged.

"Who are we to interfere with the War Office? It ought to be big enough to make its own decisions."

But Slade didn't seem to hear him.

"They hot-air about wanting men who're hard-trained and resourceful. Well, I ought to ring in on that. I've kept more than one lemon-crate up when every law of aeronautics said it ought to be down."

"You're resourceful, all right," accented Cruger, "but you'd be in clink with a broken heart after two weeks of army rules."

"I'd learn," said Slade, "along with the other leathernecks."

"But they'd all move too slow for you," contended Cruger.

"That fight doesn't look slow to me. And I ought to be over there while the show's still on."

Cruger smiled the smile of a man with an extra shot in his locker.

"There was a time," he observed, "when bush flying seemed to stack pretty high with you."

"But if you can't get a little excitement in your day's work," Slade was saying, "you may as well give up. And you said, two weeks ago, we'd have to."

"Before we go into that," retorted Cruger, "we ought to check up on the all-round dullness of this bush run of ours. I s'pose there was no excitement in that mercy flight of yours to Murray Bay when you picked up those two frozen huskies? Or in finding your Flying Padre when he was stymied on Lac de Gras last winter with a busted propeller and a factor's wife in labor and delirious with flu all at once?"

Slade had his own memories of that event. But his smile remained morose.

"She had her baby in the plane, four feet behind me high-tailing it for the Fort Smith hospital," he acknowledged. "The nose-over on the lake ice gave Doc Morlock a bad arm, so his girl Lynn had to get busy."

The softened note on the name did not escape Cruger. But he let Slade go on.

"She knew what was needed, all right. When we were swinging over Lesser Slave Lake I heard that baby give its first squawk."

"But you saved two lives, didn't you? I suppose there wasn't any excitement in that?"

The shrill of the desk 'phone cut off Slade's impending response. And while Cruger answered the 'phone the man in the flyer's jacket walked to the window and looked out. Beyond the rough-boarded hangar and the landing docks he could see the friendly cluster of planes on the Enye.

"I'm glad you swung back early," said Cruger, "We're going to take the crepe off the door."

But what held his eye the longest was the smaller blue monoplane that looked faded and weathered and sadly the worse for wear. That, he knew, was the plane of the Flying Padre, the mercy-flyer and man of medicine who was sometimes known as the Grenfell of the Outer Gulf. And in it the Padre's daughter had gone along as pilot and helper. But never again, Slade remembered, would the clear-eyed Lynn Morlock take over the controls while her tired father held back the hand of Death two thousand feet above the lake-spangled Barrens. That, he surmised, was already a thing of the past.

Cruger, as he hung up his receiver, caught the passing look of raptness in the Viking blue eye.

"It's just about as big a game, Lindy, as a man could get into," he said out of the silence. "It's still as good as dog-fighting Messerschmitts. And we're both going to stay in it."

Slade swung about and faced his partner.

"That wasn't the tune you were singing two weeks ago."

Cruger's laugh was slightly defiant.

"They had us backed against the wall two weeks ago. I told you our shoestring was wearing thin and we couldn't buck the big companies another month. But Norland Airways is going to stay on the map."

Slade's face lost its diffidence.

"What's changed the picture?" Cruger's answer to that was not a direct one.

"We've both got all we own in this one-horse outfit and we can't afford to see it fold up. While you were out fighting head winds I've been in here doing a little fighting of my own. And I've just got my hands on a reconditioned Lockheed that'll give us a second air truck and release Abbott and his Postcraft for Winnipeg and Toronto passenger traffic. You'll like that Lockheed. They've slapped a fresh coat of aluminum paint on her."

"What'll she carry?" asked the flyer.

"A pay load of thirty thousand pounds a trip if she has to."

"Where'll you get your pay loads?" exacted Slade, remembering how war conditions had put a sag in sub-arctic mine work.

"I'm coming to that, stick-jiggler. The traffic's still there, if you're willing to go after it. And I've gone after it. I've under-bid the big outfits and corralled enough business to keep us busy till freeze-up. I've got Fort Norman oil and a new slice of the Yellowknife stuff for you. I've got a renewal of the Coppermine contract. And what's more, I've got a Santa Claus in spectacles who's handing over enough ready dough to keep our cash tank from running dry."

The Viking blue eye became more alert.

"Who's your Santa Claus?"

"He's a passenger," said Cruger, "you're going to fly into territory that'll make London look like a tearoom on a rainy afternoon."

Cruger sat back, apparently waiting for a question. But Slade, with his world to reorganize, merely walked to the window and looked out.

"You're flying," Cruger was saying, "into the Anawotko country."

Slade's turn, at that information, was quick.

"What nut's going into that wildness?" he demanded.

"They go into some queer places, these days," observed the older man.

"But the Anawotto's as empty as Sahara. Why, the only human beings north of the Kasakana are two frost-bitten old quartz-pounders, two half-demented old derelicts who've been bused for three years and would bump off if I didn't tote 'em in their flour and sowbilly."

"You're going well past the Kasakana this time," Cruger announced. "Into country you've never seen before."

"For what?" asked Slade.

Cruger took his time about answering.

"For swans' eggs, I understand." Slade's sun-bleached brows came a little closer together.

"Just what does that mean?" Again Cruger took his time.

"It means we've got a simple-minded naturalist out there, an ornithologist answering to the name of Frayne, who wants to be flown north so he can find the breeding ground of the trumpeter swan. I never saw a trumpeter swan. Did you?"

Slade stood thoughtful a moment.

"Yes, I saw a trumpeter, only last spring. I played tag with him over Lac la Martre. He must have had a wing-stretch of nine or ten feet."

"I'd call that quite a stretch," said the man at the desk.

"You're telling me?"

"They may be impressive," said Cruger, as he opened a desk drawer, "but from what I can gather they're dying off. And this man Frayne wants to sleuth out their nesting quarters before they follow the dodo and disappear for good."

"And he's going in to the Anawotko alone?"

Slade's brow-pucker seemed one of incredulity.

"No, he's taking an over-sized blond named Karnell along with him."

"A blond?" croaked Slade. "You don't mean a skirt?"

"Anything but. This blond is all male. He's square-headed and gorilla-jawed and looks like something that's been worked on by a snarling iron."

Slade found the picture unpalatable.

"But who's your friend Frayne?" he persisted with a shrug of distaste. "Where does he come from? And why does he pick on us?"

"That's neither your problem nor mine. But he's the Norland's friend, all right. He may be a simple-minded crank. But he's so well heeled that money doesn't seem to mean much. And at this stage of the game we're going to handle a Christmas present like that with care."

Slade nodded his understanding.

"But he must have a screw loose somewhere," maintained the younger man, "or he wouldn't be heading for what he's sure to get in that Anawotko country."

"You needn't lose sleep over that," contended Cruger. "He may be after birds' eggs, but he seems to have a working knowledge of sub-arctic conditions. I didn't find him much of a talker, but I stumbled on the fact he'd been trophy-hunting in the Himalayas last winter. And the winter before he hunted the snow leopard in Siberia and Tibet."

"Then I suppose he's English," said Slade. "One of those English big-game guys who go around with a monocle and a tin bathtub."

"He's got equipment, all right," conceded Cruger. "And he's paying us quite handsomely for flying it in."

Tipsy, He Lassoes A Mountain Lion

Police Get Surprise When They Examine Auto.

MUSKOGEE, OKLA.—Arresting a tipsy cowboy, Policeman James Hunter made a routine search of his prisoner's automobile.

He raised the lid of the trunk compartment, pecked boldly inside, then jumped back with a howl. Inside, securely tied, was a mountain lion, alive and growling.

"Where did you get that thing?" Hunter demanded.

"Why, me and John roped it down the road."

"I'll tell you," Policeman Hunter said, "you come down to the jail and sleep it off and tell your story again in the morning."

Next day the cowboy took a look at the lion, turned a little pale, but stuck to his story.

"Me and John saw this critter loping down the road last night. It sure looked like a lion but we figured that was on account of the stuff we had been drinking."

"I got out on the running board and John drove alongside him and I got a rope on the sucker. When I reared back that big boy came up and slapped me with his paw and I knew I had hold of a lion, shore enough."

"Reckon I'd have been chewed to pieces if John hadn't jumped out and got another rope on him and took a hitch around a tree. Then we tied him up and pitched him in the car."

Police finally informed the cowboy he was free to go on his way, providing he would take the lion with him.

Asked the whereabouts of John, he replied, thoughtfully: "Now, I wonder where he went to?"

Lad Wakes, Nabs Pistol Pointed in Fun and Dies

CHICAGO.—Elmer Swanson, 18, awoke with a start when his Sunday afternoon nap was interrupted by the pressure of an object against his head.

The object was a pistol. Not fully awake, he seized the gun without noticing it was in the hand of his best friend, Ned Benigno, 16. It discharged and wounded Swanson fatally.

Ned sobbed as he told the story. He first said the gun had discharged lying on the bed. Then he admitted he had lied because he "couldn't confess that I had killed my chum."

"Elmer and I had a date with two girls, but I had no money," Ned said. "I took a pistol that my brother, Vito, had left when he went to California. I intended to pawn it."

"I went to Elmer's home and he was asleep. I went up and lay beside him. He didn't wake up. Then I playfully put the pistol against his head. He suddenly woke up and grabbed it. I yelled at him, but the gun went off."

He Cannot Find a Job, So Fugitive Returns

RALEIGH, N. C.—Credit the war industries with an assist in the return of an escaped prisoner to jail.

So many of the war industries these days are taking the fingerprints of applicants for jobs that it is next to impossible for an escaped prisoner to find honest work.

That was the reason advanced by the North Carolina penal division for the voluntary return to prison of a man who escaped from Caledonia prison farm on April 27, 1931.

The man was listed by Penal Director Oscar Pitts as John Johnson, sentenced in Stokes county in 1925 to five to ten years for manslaughter.

6-Month Burial Of Yogi Called World's Record

India Reports Novice Lived Without Food or Drink, Beard Ceased Growing.

CALCUTTA, INDIA.—Word has come from Benares in northeastern India, that a Yogi, a mere novice at that, has rung up a world record by living in a state of suspended animation for six months, in a grave without food or drink.

When he emerged his clothes were said to have been worn away and his body covered with white ants. However, by rigid body discipline he was said to have forced his beard to stop growing, and his whiskers were no longer than when he was interred.

The claims were advanced by Dr. B. L. Atreya, professor of philosophy in the Benares Hindu university and general secretary of the Indian Society of Psychic Research.

The Sannyasi—a novice of the art of Yoga, which consists of suppression of all mental activities, discipline of the body, control of involuntary muscles, withdrawal of senses from natural outward functioning and a few other things—lay in the pit from September 5, 1941, to March 21, 1942, according to Dr. Atreya.

The Yogi passed his time in a pit cell reinforced with brick and cement.

Inspected Inside of Pit. "I inspected the pit, the cell and the enclosure around the cell just two hours before the Yogi entered the grave," the doctor's report said.

"He entered the pit in my presence; the door of the cell was closed with bricks in my presence. The whole structure was open to police and public inspection at all times before two hours of his entry into the grave."

The doctor said there was a large crowd around the grave when the Yogi prepared to descend into it. He said he watched the proceedings "critically," both on the day of entry and emergence. On the day the Yogi emerged from the tomb a crowd of more than one hundred thousand was on hand, the doctor said.

"Certain selected people were allowed to enter the enclosure," the report said. "Dandiswami Shri Madhusudana Shramaji, the high-souled teacher of the Yogi, passed a very anxious time and was prepared for all sorts of emergencies before the Yogi came out."

At 2:30 p. m. he ordered an opening to be made in the outer enclosure. Then an opening was made in the all-around closed cell. The first slab of stone was removed with great difficulty on account of its heaviness by four or five selected persons, some of whom were professors of the Hindu university.

Clothes Eaten Away. "The Yogi was already awake, and he raised his hand to indicate that state. Then he was dressed with new clothes. His old clothes were partly worn away under the influence of the atmosphere inside the pit and partly eaten up by white ants, some of which were found collected over portions of his body. He was then brought out covered with blankets and placed on an easy chair, on a high platform, so that he could be visible to everyone."

"The Yogi looked just the same as when he entered the pit. Even the beard on his face had not grown. He looked hale and hearty, and saluted the crowd assembled to welcome him. He insisted on walking about 25 yards from the place, but we did not allow him to do so for fear of his being crushed by the crowd, which wanted to touch his feet."

U. S. naval raids on the Gilbert and Marshall islands were hit and run affairs. There our navy had no idea of enemy strength, but depended on quick surprise hits and speedy withdrawal.

In the battle of the Coral sea also, we were able to take the Japs by surprise. And in the battle of Midway, we knew the enemy was coming, while the Japs did not know we knew.

But in the Solomon Islands battle, our reconnaissance planes had made advance surveys and we knew fairly accurately the size of the enemy—knew also that we were up against a tough job that would exact heavy cost.

There is every reason to believe, too, that the Japs knew about our preparations, because troop transports cannot be loaded and brought within striking distance without enemy scouting planes sighting them. Therefore, this was a real test in more ways than one.

For instance, this was the first time land, air and sea forces all have co-operated in a single striking force.

Upon the final outcome of that cooperation will depend whether the United States follows the advice of many high army-navy strategists and concentrates more on the Pacific than on Europe.

BRITAIN'S FUTURE

A U. S. official, back from London, tells of standing in line for breakfast at the Hotel Waldorf. Just ahead of him he heard an English lady say:

"After this war is over, we'll have to fight a war of independence to save ourselves from becoming the 49th state of the United States."

This semi-good-natured, semi-grousing attitude, according to Americans returned from London, is rather typical of the apprehension which exists as to what will happen to Britain after the war.

There is no hostility in this, but a realistic awareness that the war is strengthening United States ties, and weakening British ties, with Australia, Canada and Africa.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

Washington, D. C.

WOMEN INFLUENCE HISTORY

All through history, from Helen of Troy to the Duchess of Windsor, women have influenced the tides of fate. And if it had not been for a woman in the life of Gen. Douglas MacArthur he probably would not have been in a position to perform his heroic defense of the Philippines and command Australia today.

Just after the last war, the belle of Washington society was vivacious Louise Brooks, step-daughter of the millionaire Edward T. Stotesbury, a partner of J. P. Morgan. She was the toast of Washington. General Pershing, just returned from France, was one of her most devoted attendants. Admiral Beatty, hero of the battle of Jutland, was another.

Once, after a dinner at Mrs. Marshall Field's both Pershing and Beatty escorted Louise to her car, nearly had an altercation over who was to take her home.

But General MacArthur, then superintendent of West Point, stepped in and married the lady. Shortly thereafter, General Pershing, not at all happy over MacArthur's victory, transferred him to the Philippines.

MacArthur and his wife were stationed in the Philippines for several years. And although the marriage later ended in divorce, it was MacArthur's tour of duty in Manila which acquainted him with Filipino leaders and later brought about his return as field marshal of the Philippine army.

BORED BY WASHINGTON

As a reward for selling $25,000 worth of war savings bonds and stamps, Delbert Hudson, Reno, Nev., newsboy, recently was given a free trip to the nation's capital by the Kiwanis club.

For several days young Delbert led the life of Riley.

He was entertained by Vice President Wallace, U. S. senators and high treasury officials. He lived in an expensive hotel, toured all the showplaces and polished off numerous ice cream sodas.

"Well, Delbert," asked Sen. Pat McCarran of Nevada when it was all over, "what do you like best about Washington?"

"My bed," yawned Delbert, "I'm tired."

SOLOMON ATTACK—A TEST

Inside fact about the attack on the Solomon Islands is that it was very carefully planned six weeks in advance, and was different from any other naval action in the Pacific.

U. S. naval raids on the Gilbert and Marshall islands were hit and run affairs. There our navy had no idea of enemy strength, but depended on quick surprise hits and speedy withdrawal.

In the battle of the Coral sea also, we were able to take the Japs by surprise. And in the battle of Midway, we knew the enemy was coming, while the Japs did not know we knew.

But in the Solomon Islands battle, our reconnaissance planes had made advance surveys and we knew fairly accurately the size of the enemy—knew also that we were up against a tough job that would exact heavy cost.

KAYS M KOLUM

HERE'S THAT RECIPE FOR BAKED CUSTARD we promised. It's delicious and takes only 10 to 15 minutes to bake. It is something of a family heirloom, having been handed down to Mrs. Marshall Anderson by Marshall's mother, Mrs. Wm. W. Anderson, whose grandmother taught her to make it.

While the custard is being mixed set a roaster filled with water up to the rack on a burner, so that the water will be boiling when the custard is poured into the cups. The baking is done on the top of the stove and takes from 10 to 15 minutes, never any longer.

Beat together slightly 4 whole eggs and a pinch of salt. Add 1/2 cup of sugar and 3 Tablespoonsful of honey (more if you like it sweeter). Beat well to dissolve the sugar and add 1 quart of sweet milk, 1 teaspoonful vanilla. Strain the mixture into custard cups and sprinkle with nutmeg. Set the cups on the rack over the boiling water and place the lid on the roaster. Do not uncover for the first ten minutes, then it may be tested. When a silver knife comes out clean the custard is done.

Somebody new will be added and somebody mighty pleasant and accommodating will be taken away from the Corner Drug store next week. Bigger York is quitting the soda fountain to take up house-keeping. She will be missed. Frieda Diederich goes to work there this week.

The new siege of knitting reminds me of the encouragement I once got from a friend named Monty, he said "Knitting is a good thing because it gives women something to think about while they talk."

Circle Two Sponsors Picnic For Sunday School Children

A picnic for the Primary and Beginners of the Presbyterian Sunday School was sponsored by the members of Circle Two Friday afternoon.

A basket lunch for the youngsters was spread at a roadside park. The mothers present were Mrs. Hugh Morrison, Mrs. Fred Clobertants, Mrs. Ted Little, Mrs. Harry Mills, Mrs. J. T. Barker, Mrs. Lloyd Smith, and Mrs. Edric Deason.

The children were Jimmie Ben Clobertants, Tommy Cron, Harry Lee and Jimmy Mills, Kenneth and Wanda K Barker, Carolyn Ruth and Jackie Smith, Linda Beth and Frances Lee Deason, Pat Smith, Bobby Little, Marilyn and Eddie Morrison.

SPARK'S COLONY NOTES

Mrs. Frank Frandolig of San Antonio was a visitor in the colony last week. She was looking after some property.

Mrs. J. E. Tedford visited in Portland Tuesday, the guest of Mrs. B. L. Tedford and family. Mrs. Bob Ince has returned from a visit with her children in San Antonio. James Ince made the trip with her.

Mrs. George Harrell returned Sunday from a week's visit in Seabrook with Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Harrell.

Mrs. Robert Tedford and Little Kittie Easter have been on the sick list this past week.

Elizabeth Rouquette Accepts Position

Miss Elizabeth Rouquette has joined the staff in the County Collector's office, beginning her employment there Wednesday.

Miss Rouquette attended the first term of the summer school at Texas State College for Women, Denton.

Mrs. John C. Young of Edinburg is visiting Mr. and Mrs. M. W. Haynes. She will remain two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Fisher, and daughter, Margie, returned Thursday from McDade where they had spent two weeks visiting relatives.

Mrs. C. J. Crow, and daughter, Julia Kathryn, Mrs. Kate Ezell and Katie Lee Clark spent Monday in Corpus Christi. Mrs. Crow visited her son, C. J., Jr., and family and Mrs. Ezell visited her daughter, Mrs. Walter Butler.

Bomb 'em with JUNK

Let's blast Japan—and Germany—and Italy—with the chain lightning of destruction that can be built from the scrap in our cellars, attics and garages, on our farms and in our places of business.

Scrap iron and steel, other metals, rubber and waste materials. It will all be used to make tanks, ships, planes and the fighting weapons our boys must have. It is needed at once.

Sell it to a Junk dealer—give it to a charity or collection agency—take it yourself to the nearest collection point—or consult the Local Salvage Committee... If you live on a farm, and have found no means of disposing of your Junk, get in touch with the County War Board or your farm implement dealer.

Throw YOUR scrap into the fight!

OVERWEIGHT FATHER LOSES 55 POUNDS TO JOIN NAVY Binghampton, N. Y.— Determination and a daily workout have done the trick for Hary A. Lason, father of five children Now he's in the Navy, 51 pounds lighter than he was three months ago. Lason weighed 236 pounds when he applied for enlistment last March. He was rejected because of excess weight. They told him he could join if he worked off an unusually protruding tummy. So he went to work—every day in a gym. "There was no diet to it," Lason explained. "I kept on eating everything I always had. Whipped cream, even. I worked out on the rowing machine. I ran. I played handball and basket ball. I swam and I even did calisthenics." When he applied again and was accepted as a second class machinist's mate, Lason boasted a waist reduced by 11 inches. "And you know," he commented, "it's a funny thing, but I never felt better in my life. Why, for the past two months, I've walked 12 to 15 miles on Sunday."

It's Spikes Become Threat to Japs

52-YEAR-OLD COURT HOUSE FENCE TO DO WAR DUTY

Pointed at the Japs are the spikes of the historic iron fence around the courthouse via the salvage heap and defense plants.

Having decorated the local scene for over half a century the delicately wrought iron pickets now have a more serious job to do.

By a recent decision of Commissioners Court the fence is to be donated by the county to the war effort, according to Judge B. S. Fox.

The square has been enclosed by the wrought iron fence 52 years. Nobody around the courthouse could remember when it had not been there, so Bonnie Townsend, deputy clerk, dug into the well-kept county records and uncovered some interesting facts about it.

On Wednesday, May 28th, 1890 it was ordered by the Court "That a good and substantial iron fence be put around the courthouse."

Two days later the Court proceeded to enter into a contract with R. P. Smith builder. The members of the court signing the contract were County Judge P. P. Court and S. B. Allyn S. P. Walker R. D. Walsh, James C. Fulton, county commissioners.

Specifications in the contract read: "Said fence to be in length around the four sides of said public square one thousand and twenty four feet and all of said fence to be 39 inches from the ground."

Decoration was not to be the sole purpose of the fence, its utility lay in the fact that stock often grazed unhindered across Rockport's acres and the dignity of the courthouse lawn needed protection.

Gates were not fashionable in 1890 so the builder "further agrees to erect four iron steps or 'styles' each opposite an entrance of the courthouse, said styles to be made for the purpose of entering the courthouse grounds and to be used in the place of gates."

All "to erect one double iron gate at some point on the west side of said fence" and "all of said work to be performed in a good and workmanlike manner."

The fence cost $1,584.00. The amount was issued in certificates of indebtedness to be paid in two years and drawing 6 percent interest until paid off. Nobody can complain that the county has not gotten its money's worth. Having been in use 52 years the investment amounts to a few cents over $30 a year.

But the iron fence was not the end of the story. A year later it appeared something new must be added. The record of July 10, 1891 reads: "It appearing to the court that a necessity exists for the building of a brick foundation under the fence around the courthouse yard and Messrs. Nigrl and Wittie (who were the contracting firm for the courthouse) having agreed build such a fence with brick laid on cement for the sum of $1.25 per running foot and placing pillars every eight feet" according to certain dimensions, "and place the present iron fence on top of aforesaid brick wall."

This foundation was also to be done "in a good and workmanlike manner" and it was specified that first class brick be used and the best

Portland cement. And the foundation cost nearly as much as the original iron fence, $1,280.00. On this contract the names of the commissioners are the same but E. A. Stevens was county judge.

The brick base and iron fence have stood the years equally well, where one is gone the other is also. Much of the West and North sides have disappeared but the East and South yet present an attractive appearance. The styles have gone long since, though the sidewalks of the iron steps still show in the south entrance.

The southeast corner of the grounds makes the prettiest picture as the slender, wrought iron pickets lace in and out of the pink and white blossoms of the oleander hedge, palm trees and

Miss Lorraine Millican Of Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation First Texan To Take Kenny Course

"You can't build an airplane or a battleship to fight infantile paralysis, but you can send someone to study a successful method of treatment and put those qualified persons in charge," famed Sister Elizabeth Kenny told an Iowa audience. "Way down in Texas Nurse Kenny's advice was heeded, and the Gonzales Warm Springs Foundation today has Physio-Therapist Lorraine Millican at the University of Minnesota studying under the internationally famous Australian nurse."

Miss Millican will return from the ten weeks course October 1. Only Texan attending the school, she was sent to Minneapolis by the directors of the Foundation at her request to learn the revolutionary Kenny treatment for the disease that "cripples if it doesn't kill."

Read About Cure
Miss Millican had read extensively on the new treatment in her field of work. Intensely interested, she saw the need for personal study and asked to be relieved of her duties at Warm Springs that she might take Sister Kenny's course at once. Directors granted her permission and arranged for Mrs. Betty Louise Cook, physio-therapist of Austin to do her work for ten weeks.

And so down here at Warm Springs, Superintendent Allie Thomas takes on double duty with the 16 little infantile paralysis victims, looking forward to the first day of October when Miss Millican returns with the know-how on the new hot-pack and muscle re-education method of treatment for their suffering Texas boys and girls.

High spot in the quiet days of the little patients and their nurse is cheering news received from Miss Millican. Right now they're most gratified to hear from her that the Kenny treatment is proving effective for even five year cases.

Mainly Effective in Earliest Stages

the dome of the courthouse in the background.

The records further show orders for painting, first time in May 1895 and then intermittently throughout the years. The last time was in 1929.

Always the repairs on the fence seemed to occur to the court as an afterthought to work on the courthouse. First the building was put in order, making the fence, look shabby, then something was done about it.

War is never a nice business, and sentimental sacrifices must be made along with everything else. For Rockport the donation of the fence is a sentimental sacrifice. Its loss will sadden the picture of the county square, as war inevitably saddens the picture of the whole world.

WHERE DID IT COME FROM?
WHERE DID IT GO?

Alan Slade had an idea. What he does about it involves a swan hunter, two old prospectors, the flying Padre and his brown-haired daughter—and some of the most fearless flying to be found anywhere.

A thrilling story of the conquest of one of the last frontiers—the "New North."

A large electric fan contains enough steel to make three .38 caliber revolvers, enough zinc for the zinc parts of an Army motorcycle, enough copper for 77 .30 caliber machine gun bullets and enough aluminum for the aluminum parts of seven gas masks.

THE somewhat steamy late summer air is still rife with the buzz of many voices trying to name the world's best golfer.

Byron Nelson? Ben Hogan? Sammy Snead? Craig Wood? At least these are the four well in the lead, although in the last year Craig Wood has gone in more upon the instructive side than tournament play.

The phrase "best golfer" covers more than a few details or angles.

Winning golf means something more than shot-making. It must also mean determination and the ability to keep concentrating under fire.

I haven't seen a finer stylist than Sammy Snead, now in the navy and far from the fairways.

By stylist I mean the ability to get results with less effort, with greater smoothness and ease.

But the lean Virginian or West Virginian, a product of both states, has too many concentrative lapses at critical moments.

Navy Sam at times finds it difficult to keep his mind on the next shot or to keep his grip on the situation through 72 holes. But before going into the navy he was still the one that always carried more than his share of the gallery who liked to watch an easy looking swing that sent the ball so far and so straight.

Sam Snead

Nelson and Hogan, two Texans who came along together from Ft. Worth, take up most of the arguments. This is natural enough. In the first place they are the two big money winners of the year, the two leading stars of the last two years over a stretch of tournament play.

Hogan won the $3,500 open at Los Angeles. Nelson won the Masters' at Augusta in a play off against Hogan. Hogan won the Hale America. Then Nelson followed by winning the $15,000 Tam O' Shanter scramble. The two have had one important meeting so far.

In the Augusta National test Nelson led Hogan by a single stroke in 90 holes of play. This margin of course is thinner than the rubber of a toy balloon.

Hogan's tournament record in the way of average strokes per round and his money record for two years has been slightly better than Nelson's. They are a tough pair to separate, if you take in all the elements that go into winning golf.

Nelson has been the big stake winner. Hogan has yet to win a national title—U. S. Open or PGA.

Styles of Play
Byron Nelson, without any question, is the best all around shot-maker in the game.

He has a greater variety than Hogan can call upon. For example, Hogan must depend upon a controlled hook off the tee. Nelson, if the occasion demands, can use a fade or a hook.

Hogan believes in banking upon control of a more limited assortment, which makes concentration an easier matter.

They are both long. Both are fine, long iron players. But neither over any extended period of play could be classed as a fine putter.

At least neither belongs with such green experts as Jerry Travers, Walter Travis, Bobby Jones, Walter Hagen, Freddie McLeod, Tommy McNamara, Horton Smith or Paul Runyan — to mention only a limited list.

But golf has its peculiar ways. It gave Harry Vardon control of every shot in the game—up to the putt. If Vardon had been a first-class putter he would have finished with more U. S. and British Opens than any two men in golf.

Both Nelson and Hogan can putt in spells. But there is nothing consistent on either side. Neither looks like a good putter, to start with.

Nelson can gear himself up higher in a big stake than Hogan can. This may be due to the fact that Hogan is willing to work harder through a longer stretch.

Hogan gives himself no rest. He takes no vacations. Nelson does, giving much less thought to tournaments that he considers not quite so important.

The wonder is that 135-pound Hogan can take such physical and nerve and mental beating—not only week after week and month after month—but also year after year. Hogan practices endlessly, steeling himself for every tournament. His ability to stand up under the strain is little short of miraculous.

If you're looking for the best shot maker—the nod goes to Nelson.

If you are looking to the hardest worker—the same goes to Hogan.

And it might be mentioned that both can play their full share of winning golf.

YEARS OF SACRIFICE FOR AMERICAN YOUTH

One evening I was in New York city for almost five hours, for my apartment served as a reunion place for the members of the two summer institutes sponsored by the International Student Service at Asheville, N. C., and Campobello, Canada.

Some of the students who were at the institutes there were able to remain in New York city for a few days. We had much singing and gaiety, but also some serious discussion on the personal stake of each boy and girl in the war. Most of the boys will soon be in the service. I was interested to find how many of the girls felt that their contribution might be made in factory work.

Sometimes I grow a little weary of the older people, who through the medium of the press, thoughtlessly suggest that everything done for young people today is unnecessary. It is a privilege to fight for your country and the world, but with that privilege must go the assurance that when the war is over, if you survive, you will have a part in creating the conditions under which you want to live.

The fact that we are now obliged to call our youth to this kind of sacrifice, shows that some of us in different parts of the world failed to live up to the ideals to which we gave lip-service in World War No. 1 after it came to an end. Perhaps we did not realize that it meant political and economic changes, not only at home but abroad.

In any case, we were not prepared to face the situation. The boys of today are going into the armed forces as rapidly as they can be equipped, trained and used, and perhaps it is worth while for them to have a conviction as to what they are fighting for. They may fight better. It will help them if they know we really care about their convictions and will continue to carry on the interests which they, as young people, are consecrated to in the future, while they, at present, fight the war.

PLEASANT WEATHER
HYDE PARK.—Between showers one day all of us had a little exercise and a swim. While I was over at the big house sorting out things which are to go to various children, I suddenly realized that rain was falling again as hard as ever. I woke that morning to a sky of clouds, which made me wonder if the sun would ever burn through.

It has, and the birds are hopping around and drying themselves. A beautiful scarlet one flew right by my porch bed this morning and a whole family of small pheasants dashed across the road as we walked home the previous afternoon.

Today I hope we are going to have blue skies all day and a warm sun to lie in for a while. I happened to see a doctor friend of mine in Poughkeepsie one afternoon and he asked me if I didn't feel that I wanted to go away and leave all the things I have been doing. I told him that life was varied enough at home and that I could get plenty of rest and still be busy, and that with three little girls in the house just now we certainly are gay.

THEATER WAR EFFORT
HYDE PARK.—One evening I went to a meeting held on the stage of the National theater in Washington. The American Theater Wing War Service, Inc., which sponsors the Stage Door canteen in New York city, was organizing the Washington Stage Door canteen.

Miss Helen Hayes, a Washington girl, is going to head it. We all had supper and then the speeches began, presided over by Mr. Brock Pemberton, the New York play producer. I imagine there were more stars treading the boards than ever had been on the stage at one time before.

One of the rules of the Stage Door canteen is that the hostesses may not go out with any of the boys. One man, who has been coming regularly for a long time, invited the senior hostess and one or two others over to Governor's Island for an entertainment, saying: "You see we are only allowed to ask our families, but two of my boys have been killed in this war, and you are the only family I have, so won't you please come?"

Running the canteen in Washington isn't going to be easy, if it is as popular as the one in New York city. It will require an enormous amount of food and a great deal of talent to keep the show going night after night.

GOOD-BYE TO HER MAJESTY
One afternoon in Washington, I received the members of the Institute on World Problems of the World Federation of Education Associations. They were a most interesting group. I should have liked to spend more time with them, but since I had been unable to obtain space on a plane, I had to leave them to say good-bye to her majesty, the queen of the Netherlands, and take a four o'clock train for New York city.

Kathleen Norris Says:
Memories of Marriage Are the Richest of All

Do you remember the bewildering day of scare and pain, and the tired look at a blanketed bundle while your heart cried, "If they'll only take care of him until I get on my feet again?"

By KATHLEEN NORRIS
DO YOU remember in little-girl days, walking home from school with a chum, and telling her that you thought no boy would ever fall in love with you because you were so freckled, but that every boy would be crazy about her? To which she promptly replied that she never expected to get married because her hair was so red, but she confidently planned to be your bridesmaid.

Do you remember the funny, thrilled feeling of noticing that one young man was somehow always managing to be in the picture, and the wonder as to whether that was the way it was to be?

Do you remember the happy, half-ashamed, self-conscious feeling of having everyone nice to you because you were going to be married, the little coffee cups, the jeweled spoons and forks, the horrifying spot of poison oak on your chin right up to the wedding day itself?

And the breath-taking beauty of the gown and veil, and the maddening, delightful absurdity of the husband who told you three weeks later that he didn't think your wedding dress was particularly becoming, but he loved you in that checked thing you used to wear in the kitchen when you were engaged?

Do you remember the feeling of admitting that a baby was on the way, and wondering why clocks didn't stop and friends faint away at the news? The long, hot, bewildering day of scare and pain, and strange walls and strange faces, and the tired look at a blanketed bundle, while your heart cried anxiously, "If they'll only let him fall and take care of him until I get on my feet again?"

And the slow processes of a world settling down into place with a new baby and a new mother in it?

Do you remember the snowy Sunday you took him to the Browns and he howled all day, while the Brown baby was so smugly good? And the day he swallowed the end of this thermometer? And the time John lost his job, and got another, and lost that?

The winter you spent with mother, for economical reasons, and how wonderful she was with the babies, but Dad kept telling John that a good man didn't lose jobs, depression or no depression?

Oh, yes, and then selling the scenario, and being able to boast to everyone about a smart husband, and taking the first real holiday in seven years; off in the car, with only leisure and unknown roads and delicious meals and restful little inns ahead, and with plenty of money in the once-emaciated pocketbook, and no one to please but yourselves?

And the dreadful winter when both children were hospitalized with tonsils and adenoid trouble, and John had to go to Hollywood, and a third baby was on the way. That was the time Louise Chase said: "What a fool you are, Mary! What you'll do is lose John!" And from that moment your old friendship for Louise waned like melting ice. For the baby turned out to be Geraldine, the miracle child of all time.

General Exodus.

Star Dust
STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

Released by Western Newspaper Union.

NOW that Vera Zorina has been removed from the role of "Maria" in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," and Ingrid Bergman has been assigned to it, a lot of people are much happier. The role seems made for Miss Bergman. The change wasn't made without a struggle; extra tests were made after the first few days' work, but finally out came the dancer.

Paramount announces that this did not in any way impair the star's career, and put Somerset Maugham's "The Hour Before Dawn" into preparation for her.

Metro's talking about opening "Seven Sisters" simultaneously in America's seven most romantic cities; if you think yours is one of them, they ask you to send in statistics! Of course, Savannah, Charleston and New Orleans ought to be on the list. But let's hope that they won't ignore smaller towns when they make their decision, the ones that are really representative of modern American life.

When Katharine Hepburn made her first picture, "A Bill of Divorcement," Adelyn Doyle was her stand-in. When Adelyn married, her sister Patricia took over the job. Pat married, and Miss Hepburn recently began "Keeper of the Flame" with Katharine Doyle as stand-in. There are two more Doyle sisters, so it looks as if the supply would last as long as the star's in the movie business.

Remember David Niven? Nigel Bruce, working in "Journey for Margaret," had a letter from him saying that he's now a major in England's armed forces. And Robert Montgomery has been promoted by Uncle Sam's navy from commander to squadron commander.

Alice Faye will return to the screen soon after more than six months' absence, to do a musical picture called "Hello, Frisco, Hello." It's another of those costume pictures—she must be getting sort of tired of them—with a story laid in 1900.

When Connie Boswell sings "He Wears a Pair of Silver Wings" it's more than just a song to her. It's a salute to her young brother-in-law, Ben Leedy, a flier-to-be stationed at Mitchel Field. If you've seen her work you'll recall him, rushing out of the wings to lift her into her wheel chair, hurrying out again to take her off stage. She sings it as often as she can on the Friday "Caravan" show.

The kitten, "Zero," heard frequently on "Those We Love" broadcasts, is played by that very versatile actress, Virginia Sale. She also portrays the principal role of "Martha" in the drama series. You've seen her in pictures.

For weeks Phil Baker had USO headquarters in New York searching for service men named Baker—wanted them for his anniversary and birthday broadcast of August 23, when only persons named Baker could take part in "Take It Or Leave It." Celebrities who qualified were numerous enough, starting with Bonnie, Benny, Kenny and Belle. But the program was incomplete without men in uniform.

June Havoc caught the mumps from her young daughter, April, and promptly exposed the entire company of "My Sister Eileen" to them; hadn't the faintest idea she had them. She says she looked as if she were wearing a small balloon for a necktie.

Jack Briggs is going to find "Seven Miles From Alcatraz" especially interesting, if he gets a chance to see it. The young RKO contract player enlisted in the marines as soon as he was 21; a week later he told his family and the studio what he'd done—on the very day that RKO announced him for a pair of important roles in "Ladies Day" and "Seven Miles From Alcatraz."

He just had time to finish the former when he had to report for active duty.

During Mr. Winchell's absence, on vacation, his column will be conducted by guest columnists.

By LIONEL BARRYMORE
(Who needs no introduction.)

Every actor knows what the critics think of him. These industrious gentlemen who distribute plaudits or brickbats, according to their views of plays and performances, have the benefits of their newspaper circulation to broadcast their views.

Now, having been offered the space of my friend Walter Winchell, with whom I often agree and just as often do not, I have the opportunity not often vouchsafed the actor to talk about the fellows who talk about him, in print.

Of the great stage critics there were some who honestly wrote what they believed, in spite of hell, high water and the newspaper's business office. No actor ever resented being criticized by one of these men. In fact, we respected their knowledge and views, and often benefited by constructive criticism. The same applied to playwrights, when these critics analyzed a play.

FIRE DANCER TURNS CRITIC AND ROASTS SHOW
Sometimes critics are evolved in strange ways. Years ago my brother John and I were in a traveling repertory company. We had a friend, Fred Butler, a newspaper man, whom we persuaded to come along and try being an actor. This wasn't in any spirit of discovery. We were great cronies and liked to be together. Also Butler had a gold tooth which could always be pawned when we were broke.

The company got as far as Minneapolis when the director decided that Butler was no actor, and, much to the dismay of John and myself, "fired" him. Butler went out and landed a job on a newspaper. Then he talked the editor into letting him review our shows. Gleefully, he "roasted" them, and John and I used to laugh over his "roasts" at dinner each night. But they drove the manager wild.

I remember one gem in which he deplored that a good play "could be utterly ruined by an insignificant young actor named Lionel Barrymore."

George Bernard Shaw was a great critic, in the days when he reviewed plays for London publications. True, he sometimes wrote terrible things about them. But any criticism of his was tempered with justice. Mark Twain once tried his hand at dramatic criticism on the old Alta California in San Francisco, but never became really interested in it.

The motion picture brought about a new technique in criticism. The early "tintypes" were ignored. Then, as pictures grew in stature, critics were forced to write about them. At first, many had a feeling of hostility, but this gradually disappeared, and today a fine picture like "Mrs. Miniver" is reviewed by the keenest dramatic minds among the writers of the press.

NEW KIND OF CRITICISM EVOLVED BY MOVIES
Motion pictures have evolved a new form of criticism which the public never sees. Pete Harrison started it, with confidential reports on pictures to exhibitors. He told them what to expect from the picture, from a showman's point of view, to equip them with advance information on the handling and exploitation of a film.

An adverse report meant that too much expenditure for advertising, for instance, was inadvisable. On the other hand, when he praised a picture, this meant that the exhibitor was safe in "going the whole hog" in exploitation.

Today there are numerous trade magazines, which review pictures in the same manner and for the same reason. They tell the exhibitor what to expect. Sometimes audiences fool them, however. Audiences may flock to a picture the trade critics had no faith in. And vice versa.

For, after all, the only reliable critic is the public itself.

A few days ago a group of studio writers and directors were discussing a certain picture. They picked holes in the story. They thought players were miscast. "When the critics get hold of it, you'll see," they chorused.

One veteran director spoke up. "Well, maybe you're right," he remarked. "It looks like nobody's going to like it except audiences."

He was right. The picture grossed a million.

AILING HOUSE

Roger B. Whitman—WNU Features.
CLOSED SUMMER CABINS

THERE must be more to the closing of a summer cabin for the winter than shutting the doors. Three things to guard against are human marauders, small but destructive animals, and fire. Fire protection should consist of clearing the ground of underbrush and rubbish for a space around the cabin many feet wide, and if the cabin is on posts, clearing everything burnable out from underneath. Doors and windows should be heavily shuttered. All openings by which squirrels, chipmunks and field mice could get in should be closed, and one way to do this is to stretch wire insect screening around the house outside at the level of the floor. The top of the chimney should also be closed, which can be done with a wood box large enough to fit over it and heavy enough to be windproof. Even with these precautions, small animals may get in. Mattresses and bedding can be protected against them by hanging over heavy wires, stretched the length of the cabin, and out of contact with anything that might give access to them. As a final touch, several pounds of moth balls should be scattered in the rooms and on all furniture. This will be a deterrent to insects as well as small animals. Bottles containing freezable liquids should be emptied. If a cabin has a pump or any system of water piping, these should be drained and left empty. Metals that might rust or tarnish, such as the cooking stove, should be coated with grease. Don't leave your dog or cat behind!

Noisy Walls

Question: My upper floor was recently modeled into an apartment, and another bedroom intended to be strictly separated from the apartment. The dividing wall was packed with rock wool for noise insulation. It had no effect. How can the wall be made sound-proof?

Answer: The sound is traveling through the wall by way of the studs; not through the hollows between the studs. For the wall to be entirely sound-proof, it should have been made in such a way that the two faces would not have been joined by anything solid. Without rebuilding the wall, the next best thing to do is to sheathe each side of the wall with stiff insulating boards, furred out from the wall by an inch or so. For surest results, the furring strips should not be nailed through the plaster to the studs; the furring strips should be attached to the plaster by some form of cement.

Keeping Basement Clean

Question: I have moved into an old brownstone house with a large basement, and a coal-burning furnace. What are some of the things I can do in cleaning the basement and keeping it clean and in handling ashes?

Answer: Careful handling of ashes helps keep the basement clean. After shaking the grates, allow the ashes to cool, wet them down and remove while damp. Cement floors painted with the right type of paint will help keep the cellar clean.

Coal Dust for Concrete.

Question: My coal bin has a dirt floor which of course is covered with coal dust. Could this be used instead of sand for making concrete?

Answer: Results would not be good, and I do not advise it. Grains of sand have sharp edges and corners that give good anchorage to the cement. But coal dust is not so effective.

Waterproof Glue

Question: I thought that casein glue was waterproof, but find by experience that it is not. What can I use?

Answer: Some varieties of casein glue are absolutely waterproof; much more so than the variety on common sale. Ask your hardware dealer about them.

Soil Analysis

Question: Where can I get information on the meanings of names for different soils, and whether the soils are good or bad for certain crops?

Answer: Inquire of your state agricultural school, or of the department of agriculture of your state.

Hair Dye Stain

Question: My wash basin is stained with hair dye. Nothing seems to take it out. What can I do?

Answer: Sponge the stain with iodine, which will change the color. Rinse with clear water and then sponge with household ammonia.

Hot Clothes Closet

Question: The clothes closet in my apartment is directly over the steam heating stove. I am afraid this may cause damage to the clothes during the coming winter. What would you suggest?

Answer: I presume one of the closet walls is also part of the chimney wall and the closet is hot. If so, line the closet with a double layer of insulating board. The first layer is nailed directly to the walls, then the walls are furred out and another layer of insulating board is nailed on the furring strips.

Fresh-From-the-Vine Grapes Make Clear, Bright Jelly!
(See Recipes Below.)

Meals—With Zest

Does meal after meal slip by unnoticed, eaten only because it does away with hunger? Do your meals pull their punches so to speak—look good, have proper balance, contrast in texture, etc., but still seem to lack something vital?

A dinner, lunch or breakfast that lacks a sense of completeness is like a ham sandwich without mustard, meat without seasoning, fish without a tart sauce, a pie without a flaky crust. The small things that do big things for menus are the relishes, pickles, jams and jellies, which brings me to today's topic.

Relishes such as pickles, jellies, preserves and preserves can supply that sense of completeness to a meal if you use them with a thought to flavor affinity.

For chicken try strawberry or plum jam. Goose calls for spiced peach jam or apple jelly. Orange and cherry jam or relish are tops with bland duck. Spiced grape jam or gooseberry jams are "musts" with beef just as mint or crabapple jelly are musts with lamb. Pair off that golden brown ham with plum jelly or horseradish mixed with grape jelly. Veal needs currant or blackberry jam.

If you can't get quince jelly, try cranberry jelly with pork. Liver will be extra good with tomato relish.

Think of all the plate lunches and sandwiches you are going to serve the year 'round for lunches, snacks and pack-up boxes. You'll need these:

- Bread and Butter Pickles. (Makes 8 pints)
12 large cucumbers
4 onions, sliced
4 cups sugar
1 quart vinegar
3 cups water
4 teaspoons celery seed
4 teaspoons mustard seed
2 teaspoons turmeric

Cut cucumbers in 1/4 inch slices. Soak with onions in strong salt water for 4 hours. Combine remaining ingredients and bring to a boil. Add strained cucumber and onion slices. Bring to a boil again and boil 5 minutes. Pack into hot, sterilized jars.

Concord grapes are plentiful in the fall and make delicious jelly. You can substitute corn syrup in this one:

- Concord Grape Jelly. (Makes 11 medium glasses)
4 cups sugar
7 1/2 cups juice
1/2 bottle fruit pectin

You will need about 3 pounds of grapes for four cups of juice. Wash and stem grapes and crush grapes. Add just enough water to keep from scorching, bring to a boil and simmer.

Lynn Says:

The Score Card: Cantaloupe supplies for this year will be lighter because of curtailed production, but watch your markets for the "peaks" of the season as supplies come in from California, Arizona, Georgia and South Carolina. Recently a group of prepared cereals have had their whole grain nutritive values restored or are now made from whole grains so watch labels when doing your buying.

The peach crop this year will be like last year—one of the best, according to present indications. Heavy shipments have already started coming in and production will climb up to about 50 million bushels—a new high.

Broilers and fryers will be abundant during these next few months, so don't miss out on good fried chicken or crisply browned and broiled chicken. Young chickens are abundant now because of increased war poultry production.

Canned foods will come in fewer sizes this fall and winter in the effort to cut down on use of tin.

mer 5 minutes. Strain juice through cheesecloth. Measure out 4 cups. Measure sugar and mix with juice. Bring to a boil over hottest fire, stirring constantly. Bring to a full, rolling boil and boil hard 1/2 minute. Remove from fire, skim, and pour into hot, sterilized jelly glasses. Paraffin at once.

Note: 2 cups of light corn syrup may be substituted in this recipe for two cups of sugar. Use 5 1/2 cups of sugar and 2 cups light corn syrup in the recipe for Concord Grape jelly.

- Peach and Plum Jam. (Makes 8 small glasses)
1 pound blue plums
1 1/2 pounds peaches
1 box powdered fruit pectin
4 1/2 cups sugar
Or
2 cups light corn syrup
2 1/2 cups sugar

Peel and pit peaches. Chop finely. Pit plums and chop until fine. Add powdered pectin (or pectin, sugar and corn syrup.) Mix well and bring to a boil, stirring constantly. Bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 1 minute. Remove from heat and skim. Pour into hot, sterilized glasses and seal.

Quinces come into their own in the fall and if you're fond of them, plan to put up some:

- Quince Honey. (Makes 6 small glasses)
1 1/2 pounds quinces
2 1/2 cups water
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 cups sugar

Wash, pare and core quinces. Add water to peelings and cook 30 minutes. Grate quinces very thin, or slice thinly. Weigh pulp and use 1 pound. Add lemon juice and strained liquid from peelings. Cook until tender, add sugar, and cook until two drops fall from spoon at same time, or when a drop jells easily on a saucer. Pour into sterile glasses and seal.

Nothing compares to the sweet, spicy, home-like smell of the making of chill sauce:

- Chill Sauce. (Makes 5 quarts)
1 gallon chopped, peeled tomatoes
1 cup chopped onions
1 1/2 cups chopped green peppers
1 cup vinegar
1 cup sugar
3 tablespoons salt
1 1/2 teaspoons ground allspice
2 tablespoons cinnamon
1 1/2 teaspoons cloves

The spices loosely in cheesecloth. Boil with vegetables until mixture is reduced to half its original quantity, stirring all the while to prevent scorching. Add vinegar, salt, sugar and boil rapidly for 5 minutes. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal immediately.

- Pickled Peaches. (Makes 8 pints)
3 cups honey
3 cups vinegar
2 cups water
1 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon whole cloves
2 sticks cinnamon
5 quarts peaches

Heat honey, vinegar, water and salt. Scald peaches, remove skins and insert cloves. Place a few in the boiling syrup, add cinnamon and cook until peaches are tender, and acquire a slightly transparent look. Pack in sterilized jars, cover with boiling syrup and seal.

JACOB SEEKS GOD'S HELP

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 32:2-12, 27-29. GOLDEN TEXT—God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.—Psalm 46:1.

"O God, our help in ages past, Our hope for years to come, Our shelter from the stormy blast, And our eternal home."
—Isaac Watts.

How true it is that "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble." Jacob found it so, even though his trouble came upon him because of his own misdeeds. God had prospered him at Haran, but in due time he was led by circumstance and by direct guidance to return to his own land (Gen. 31:1-5). Hindrances arose, but Jacob pressed on. As he came toward home, however, he recalled the sin which had caused him to flee. He remembered now how he had defrauded Esau and this

I. Guilt Brought Fear (vv. 2-8). It always does. The sinful act of 20 years before now faced Jacob. He had left it behind and had all but forgotten it. He had hoped that the years would cover it, but they did not—and they never do.

"Be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. 32:23)—perhaps not this week or this year, or next; but until it is dealt with and forgiven it is there to rise up and plague you sooner or later.

Jacob's fear was increased by hearing that Esau came out to meet him with 400 men. He tried by his own devices to meet the situation, but ultimately realized that his predicament had reached the point where only God could help him.

How like us, trying everything else until we realize its futility, and then turning to God. How delightfully simplified life becomes when we turn to God first. Yet we are glad that Jacob's

II. Fear Brought Prayer (vv. 9-12).

It was real prayer, too, although, as W. H. Griffith Thomas suggests, it is strange that after his blessed personal experience with God he addressed Him only as the God of his fathers and not his own God (v. 9). Then, too, his faith seemed a bit weak, for it was coupled with great fear (v. 11).

We are told that fear is not a proper motive for turning men to God. Perhaps it is not the highest motive, but both in Scripture and in experience we find it to be true that fear often leads men to God in real repentance and faith. If the goodness and grace of God do not touch man's heart, it is assuredly far better that he should be saved through fear than to be eternally lost.

Jacob, however, needed a further experience of dependence upon God before he could be brought back in peace into the land. He was led to send everyone away so that he was alone when the Lord dealt with him and

III. Prayer Brought Blessing (vv. 27-29). Jacob, who had by deceit taken the promise from Esau instead of awaiting God's time to give it to him, was now about to attempt another skillful scheme which would have won over Esau and sent Jacob into his land glorying in his own ability. In spite of all God's dealings with him, he was still Jacob the supplanter. So God had to deal with him.

We sometimes think of the grace of God only as that which brings us blessing and joy, but often God is being most gracious and considerate of our real need by sending opposition and hardship.

The divine visitor let Jacob struggle all night, giving him a chance to submit of his own will; but when it was evident that he would not, he was shown that his own strength would not do, for he was made lame (v. 25).

The very thing which made Jacob sure of his own strength became his weakest point at the touch of God. He was not the last one to learn that lesson.

The comment of F. B. Meyer on this entire scene is most helpful: "Note that Jacob did not lay hold of this visitor, but the visitor lay hold of him. This is not a picture of a man coming to God, to wrestle with God in prayer, but a record of God coming to man, to break the spirit of stubbornness and self-sufficiency which a particular man has for too long a time habitually manifested. One from heaven and the one of earth, and when, at the dawn of day, Jacob saw that he could not prevail against the man, in his exhaustion and weariness he suddenly felt the touch of the stranger's hand on his thigh. Immediately his thigh was out of joint, rendering him absolutely helpless. But now Jacob realized that the one with whom he had wrestled all night was a divine person; and, whereas early in the night he was held in the grip of the other, now he refused to release his grasp of the visitor until he received a blessing from him."

PATTERNS SEWING CIRCLE

DO YOU want an apron which will give maximum coverage and years of long service? Here's one which is practical through and through—yet cheerfully styled so you'll always enjoy wearing it! It fits well too, due to the darts at the waist with the apron strings to hold the line firm! Make it in chambray, gingham, seersucker or calico—you'll prize this apron above all that you own!

Pattern No. 8210 is designed for sizes 14 to 20; 40 and 42. Size 16 takes 2 1/2 yards 32 or 35-inch material, 5 yards rick rack to trim.

School Frocks

THRIFTY mothers who make their children's school clothes will find today's patterns very timely! At top is a panel front style with a flat front guaranteed by sashes to tie in back. Below is a style featuring a raised skirt

Hopeless Customer—Satisfied? Certainly I'm satisfied. I've nothing but praise for you. Tailor—Then I suppose there's no use my sending you another bill?

Wish a Few Bones, Too? "Have you seen my dog, Fido, this morning, Mr. Butcher?" "Seen him? I should think I have. Came in here and chewed up a leg of lamb, and then upset a customer into some eggs."

"Really? Well, I wonder if you'd mind putting this 'Lost' notice in your window?"

Toast His Shins? Wife (preparing breakfast)—There isn't a slice of bread in the house. Husband (absently)—Never mind, dear; just make some toast.

You can fool some of the people all the time, and all of the people some of the time, but the rest of the time they'll make fools of themselves.

Which Kind? Thelma—Do you think I'm conceited about my brains? Virginia—Nonsense! I'm sure that nothing of the kind ever entered your head!

What Causes Your Constipation?

The super-refined foods we eat these days too often do not give us enough "bulk food." And medical science tells us that lack of sufficient "bulk" is one of the commonest causes of constipation! If that is your trouble, harsh cathartics and violent purges are, at best, only temporary remedies. How much better to get at the cause and correct it! Why not make sure that you are getting the "bulk" you need by eating Kellogg's All-Bran? All-Bran is a delicious, crispy cereal that millions of folks rely on. Eat All-Bran yourself—eat it daily—and drink plenty of water—not only to get regular but to keep regular. All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is not helped by this simple treatment, it's wise to see a doctor.

More Men May Join Sea Bees From Rockport

A dozen Rockport men conferred here Wednesday night with Chief Yeoman J. E. Coppersmith, U. S. N. regarding service in the Sea Bees. The recruiting officer came here to spend the evening talking with those interested in the Navy's construction battalion. The meeting was held at Kane's Cafe.

Arthur Kane, in Naval Reserve Construction Battalion on inactive duty awaiting call, has a number of application blanks and will be glad to explain the work to any interested.

Seven Rockport men have already gone with the Sea Bees, while Kane and Travis Owens are at present awaiting call.

Lamar Oil Well Pronounced Dry Following Tests

Pipes have been pulled from the Kate Edwards No. 2 well on Lamar Peninsula and equipment moved out last week. Final and thorough tests were made by the Barnsdall Oil Co. of Tulsa, Okla., and the well was pronounced dry. Tests were made as deep as 8021 feet.

PTA Again Urges Reports On Vaccinations

State Health Department Requires Information On Innoculations

Failure on the part of parents to report first and second week condition of vaccinations done in the recent PTA clinic may cause the organization some embarrassment, according to Mrs. Somer Smith, chairman of the child hygiene committee.

Since the vaccine for the clinic was furnished by the state the PTA is required to report not only the names and number of vaccinations done, but also the number of "takes" and to do this they should have a report on the condition of the children's arms once each week for the first three weeks.

Mrs. Smith urgently requests that parents or children contact either her or Mrs. Paul Dupuy immediately to assist them in this matter; also that parents cooperate to the extent of advising others who might not see this announcement.

County Tax Rate Remains Unchanged

State Rate Is Higher; County Sinking Funds In Excellent Condition

No change in the Aransas county tax rate is due in 1942, according to Judge B. S. Fox, reporting on the examination made last week of county funds by James H. Houlihan, special auditor.

The rate will remain $1.15 per one hundred dollars valuation, as has been assessed for the past four years. The state rate, however, has been raised from .58 cents to .75 cents per one hundred dollars valuation, according to notice from the office of the Comptroller. All school tax rates will be the same as they were last year.

The county budget for 1943 has been worked out and will be on file in the County Clerk's office. Houlihan reported all sinking funds of the county in excellent condition.

Rev. J. F. Stanley Conducts Revival In Ingleside

Ingleside Pastor Will Preach Sermons Here Sunday

Rev. James F. Stanley is conducting a revival meeting in the First Baptist Church at Ingleside this week and next, initiating his services there with a sermon Sunday night.

Rev. L. M. Huff, pastor of the Ingleside church, will fill the pulpit here in the First Baptist church for both morning and evening services next Sunday.

The last Sunday evening service here was in charge of the Rev. Orozco, Mexican mission worker, of San Antonio, who with his family is spending a vacation on Fulton beach.

Mrs. George W. Walton and Miss Minnie Oertling are visiting in Austin, the guests of Mrs. Joseph D. Sayers. They will also visit in Lockhart before returning home.

Mrs. Somer Smith and her sons, Travis Lee and Charles Hammond, spent the week end visiting friends in Corpus Christi.

Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Carden of Tyler and their daughters, Misses Betty and Martha, are spending this week at Forest Park cottages.

Mr. Bob Siddall, oil scout with the Atlantic Refining Company of Corpus Christi, was in Rockport Tuesday, checking oil activities in Aransas County.

Mrs. Robert Terrell of San Antonio, with her party including Miss Geraldine Hammond, Miss Toya Clemens and Miss Madge McDavid returned to their homes this week after a vacation here. They stayed at the Fulton Cottages.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bettley of San Antonio were guests of Mrs. Stephen Bettley over the week-end. Bettley is in the maintenance department at Randolph Field.

Rebekahs Honor Noble Grand With Shower

Honoring their noble grand, a recent bride, the Rebekahs entertained with a surprise miscellaneous shower for Mrs. Ben Earp Thursday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Edmondson.

Summer flowers decorated the entertaining rooms. A table laid with lace was centered with a bride's cake featuring pink and green, the colors of the Rebekah lodge, and pink and green candles were placed in silver candelabra.

From under the cake tiny ribbons drawn by the guests held a fortune telling card. The honoree cut and served the cake while Mrs. Edmondson poured punch. Favors decorated the plates.

The gifts were presented by Mrs. John McLester.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Earp; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Cloberdants; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rooke; Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence McLester; Mr. and Mrs. John McLester; Mrs. A. D. Jameson; Mrs. Virgil Mullen; Mrs. J. H. Piper; Mrs. May Dietrich; Mrs. Val W. Flynn; Mrs. Fannie Townsend; Mrs. Annie Weber; Mrs. C. Small Fry Catch A Big Fry; & Without Aid Of "Those Cards"

They are not old enough to need a Coast Guard identification card, but Jack Fries and Frank Kirby of San Antonio are old enough to bring in breakfast from the bay for a party of vacationers on Fulton beach.

While the grown-ups fussed around with fancy tackle and argued about a sure fire spot for fishing, Jack and Frank went out in a little skiff and caught a string of trout that any Isaac Walton would be proud of.

The boys spent a whole half hour on the job because they "wanted to get enough for everybody." The grown-ups caught nice sun tans.

Red Cross Nursing Program Urged For Local Chapter

Present Class To Be Abandoned For Lack Of Attendance And Interest

Due to diminishing numbers in attendance the class in Home Nursing, sponsored by the Red Cross on the program of National Defense is being temporarily abandoned, according to Mrs. Jim Hanway, instructor.

The class enrolled 20 students, but has fallen off to less than the minimum requirement of headquarters. Mrs. Hanway stated that she hoped to recruit another class at a later date so that all who are really interested may receive their certificates.

The need for a home nursing program was urged by Miss Charlotte Buckner, member of the executive staff of the National Red Cross, in an interview Sunday with A. C. Glass, chairman of this chapter.

Miss Buckner, a guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Hanway, pointed out that women trained in home nursing were to be only resources of medical aid in the coming shortage of doctors and nurses. She suggested that at least one member of each family should have some fundamental training in nursing, and urged that this chapter promote such classes.

Cemetery Association Holds Routine Business Session

A regular meeting of the Cemetery Association was held Monday afternoon in the courthouse. Routine business was taken up, with Mrs. John Sorenson presiding.

Others present were Mrs. J. W. Brundrett, Mrs. G. M. Hooper, Mrs. W. H. Baldwin, Mrs. James Hooper, Mrs. S. F. Jackson, and Miss Ruth Lipscomb.

B. F. Troxell of Houston is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Anderson this week. With his friend Anderson returned here Monday from a business trip which took him to Dallas, Shreveport and Houston.
