Music Courses Scheduled At P.JC

Courses scheduled this spring through Paris Junior College's music preparatory program include adult beginning piano, private instrument, voice and piano, according to Barry Russell, facilitator of the program. Reservations for the noncredit music courses should be made by paying the fee in PJC continuing education office, Alford Center, or mailing a check to the office.

The private instrument and voice lessons, which will begin on Jan. 25 and end March 8, will include 30 minute lessons weekly for eight weeks, according to a schedule arranged by the instructor and student. Various instructors will give qualified instruction in several instruments and voice, Russell said, offering students the opportunity to obtain assistance with solo and ensemble literature or to improve skills. The tuition of $65 includes books and materials.

Dessert Topping

That spoonful of whipped topping we love to plop on top of a dessert may be fluffier and more nutritious because of two discoveries by food protein researchers at Texas A & M. The scientists have created a new process for producing soybean and peanut protein flour that is also safer for the environment.

Bring safety and security up and vandalism down. with Leased Floodlighting.

As a business owner or manager, you're concerned with the safety and security of your employees, customers and property. Accidents and vandalism are costly, and interrupt business efficiency. Leased Floodlighting can give added safety and security by illuminating parking lots, stairways, entrances or other areas in which accidents could occur due to poor visibility. And brightly lighted property and equipment is less subject to vandalism. Leased Floodlighting is automatic, on-at-dusk, off-at-dawn, and gives more illumination per watt than conventional incandescent lighting. To get Leased Floodlighting for your business, just give us a call.

he first time I ever saw him step into a ring I knew he was a winner. Left jab like a pneumatic drill and a L powerhouse right hand. He was a carefree kinda kid who really enjoyed boxing. But when he was in trouble he could fight like an alley cat.

Out of the ring he believed everyone. Trusted everyone. Lent money to people who never paid him back. Invested in all sorts of dumb schemes his "friends" talked

"Your biggest problem," I told him, "is you think this will never end. That your legs will carry you forever. Start putting something away for tomorrow."
He'd just laugh. "Max, you worry too much. Hey,

I'm still fighting the main event, right? I'm good for a lotta more years. Don't worry, I gotta live up to my place in the profession. Then I'll open up a little restaurant where I can entertain my pals.

Finally it was over. He couldn't go the distance anymore. He could see the sucker punches coming but couldn't react in time. I tried to cheer him up. "Well, it was fun-while it lasted, kid. We beat em all, but nobody beats old Father Time.

He was staring at his swollen hands through halfclosed eyes. "I can't believe it. I'm broke. I'm washed up in the ring and I'm broke. The only way I can get into the restaurant business is as a dishwasher."

Well, not really. Remember when I asked you to start buying Bonds years ago? You laughed and said you didn't care, that I could buy em for you if it would keep me from worrying. Well, I went ahead and took some out of every purse and put it into Bonds for you. To you it was just another investment a 'friend' talked you into. But I knew if you got your hands on it, you'd blow it.

"You been buying Bonds for me all these years?" he asked.

Yeah, but it was your money. Seeing you had something to fall back on was the least I could do as your manager. Maybe now you can open up that little restaurant voure always talking about."

He tossed his gloves in the air and shouted, "Hey, all right. Joe and Maxie's ... opening soon!"

What's with the Joe and Maxie's?" I asked. He gave me a playful punch in the shoulder and said, "We're a team, Max. I gotta have a manager." He smiled for a second then added, "Ya know, I never thought of Bonds as a way to make a fast buck.

They're not fast, kid, they're kinda slow and steady...but very reliable," I assured him. He looked at me and gripped my hand real hard.

"Like you, Max. Just like you. And that's the best." Savings are a vital part of any financial plans for the future. And Bonds are one of the safest, surest, easiest So help yourself while you help your country.

Conservation climatic conditions. nation's cropland, Norm tillage has grown from 26.7 Berg, Chief of the USDA Soil Conservation Service, said in an editorial in the January issue of Soil and Water Conservation News.

"Conservation tillage alone is not the total solution to erosion problems, but leaving adequate amounts of crop residue on the surface year round can reduce sheet and rill erosion by as much as 90 percent, " Berg said. "Under some conditions, conservation tillage must be applied as part of a complete conservation system. It must compliment a system of terraces, grass waterways, practices in some areas." The chief speculated that some form of conservation tillage can be applied to every acre of cropland in the United States. He said there is defininte trend away from using the moldboard plow,

WINTER COMFORT

The best way to keep warm is to wear layered lighter weight clothes, rather than one heavy layer. Light weight clothes can be removed layer by layer as the temperature or level of activity increases. Excess perspiration must be controlled if you want to stay warm and the best means of control is not to wear more clothes than necessary.
