Fans have as much responsibility as players to exercise good sportsmanship.

Although an incident that occurred recently at a Prairiland basketball game sparked the editorial, it applies to all sports, at all times.

Many people do not realize that a school is held responsible for the actions of its fans. UIL can actually put a school on suspension if the fans create too much of a disturbance, abuse officials, or exhibit too much bad sportsmanship.

That youngsters who have worked hard could suffer from the over-aggressive actions of their followers is a thought that needs to be carried to every ballgame. Prairiland has always had a reputation for being fierce competitors...and that's great. The fans have always been behind them 100 percent...and that's great.

But it isn't necessary to dislike the opposing team to support one's own. The habit of booing good plays by opponents, or applauding their fouls, only contributes to bad feelings and creates tension.

Referees are human. They make improper calls, they lose their tempers, too. But the fact is that good or bad call, verbal or physical abuse of an official does nothing but worsen the situation.

Booing, baiting or abusing referees will only result in technical fouls being called against the team.

The Prairiland youngsters have always been expected to use self-control, discipline, fair play and sportsmanship. They have always been expected to control their tempers in extreme situations.

And they have done so, no matter what sport, admirably.

But fans must realize that they have that same standard, and should not expect more of a team or individual player than they are willing to give themselves.

The actions of a few can cause a great deal of harm to a school.

Prairiland's fans need to try harder at keeping the atmosphere a little calmer at games. Provoked or unprovoked, abuse of referees, officials or anyone only gives Prairiland, or any school, a bad reputation. If the school were to be suspended it would mean pain and disappointment for youngsters who are guiltless.

It would be a source of distress to the spectators who are blameless, and an embarrassment to school faculty and administration.

Sportsmanship is not an empty word, and spectators and loyal supporters should work hard at doing as good a job of being sportsmanlike as the team they are cheering on does!

One Seat Contested In Prairiland Election

Three people will appear on the ballot April 2 for the Prairiland School Board election.

Only one seat, Place 4, will have opposition. Donald Crawford and Terry Adams have both placed their names on the ballot for the Deport position.

Leon Anderson, incumbent for Place No. 1, Blossom, is unopposed.

Donald Crawford and his wife, Sue, have two children in the Prairiland School system, Stephanie, age 16 and Teena, age 13. Crawford is a graduate of Deport High School and has worked at Uarco and as a carpenter for many years. He is currently City Manager for the City of Deport.

When asked why he wanted to serve on the board, he replied that "I have an interest in what goes on at the school. I want to help do what is good for the students and our community."

I feel that my job as city manager has prepared me to be capable of dealing with the problems and challenges being on the school board can produce."

Terry Adams and her husband, Billy have two children, Chip, age 7 and Cliff, age 3. She is an instructor in the Business and Management Division of Paris Junior College.

A graduate of Merced High School in California, she has a BS and MS in Business from East Texas State University and additional graduate study in business.

She is the advisor to Phi Beta Lambda, a student organization at PJC, has served as faculty secretary at PJC for two years, vice president of the association for one year, and last year served as the president of the faculty.

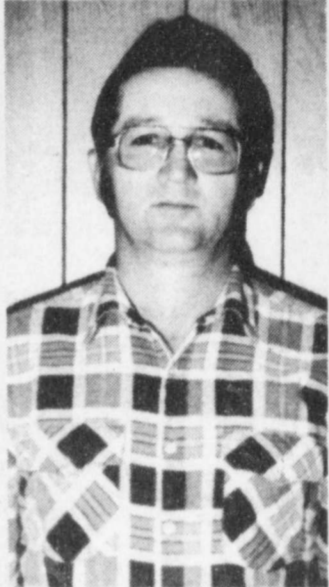

She says she wants to serve on the school board at Prairiland because "I have school age children and am concerned about the quality of education in the school district. I feel I have qualifications and experience that would enable me to contribute something to the board. For example, one of the duties of the faculty council is to review the PJC budgets and financial statements on a monthly basis. I feel this would help me to serve on the Prairiland board."

Leon Anderson, unopposed, is a life-long resident of the Blossom area. He owns and operates Anderson Candy Company with the help of his wife, Francis.

They have one daughter, Le Anne, in the 8th grade at Blossom Junior High.

Anderson is an active member of the community and attends the First Baptist Church at Blossom.

BIG TROUBLE—This truck loaded with heavy steel pipe found itself in deep, literally, after getting off the shoulder of the road during a pouring rain last Friday. The truck had a flat, and when the flat was fixed the driver attempted to pull back onto the road, almost turning the rig over. It took two wreckers most of the morning trying to extricate the truck and trailer, but workers finally had to dump the load of pipe

Sandra Ayers Is Blossom Editor

Sandra Ayers has been named as the new editor for the Blossom Times. She will assume her duties immediately, and expresses enthusiasm and high hopes for providing the community with more local coverage.

She replaces Shelley Webb Vaughn, whose heavy college schedule prompted her resignation.

Sandra and her husband, Wayland, have two children, Bryan and Shannon, both of which attend Blossom Elementary School. She is involved in community activities, and such sports as summer baseball and softball programs for youngsters.

Wayland heads the Arena Cablevision and Sandra works in the Blossom office. She is therefore available at all times, and urges Blossom residents to drop their news articles, announcements or anything of community interest off at her office. She can be contacted at 982-5950 to arrange for pictures, news coverage or questions.

She hopes that citizens of Blossom will extend their cooperation and support to her in this effort to provide Blossom with a better local newspaper.

Words From The Editor

Deport's Request For Block Grant Denied

The City of Deport was turned down for a Small Cities Program Community Development Block Grant funding.

The city had requested $217,000 and was turned down on the basis that "the application did not rate high enough for funding."

The grant would have come from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The department received 251 applications, with requests totaling $86,289,000. Funds available for new programs for this Fiscal Year amounted to $21,107,790. The department expressed its regrets, but with the funding situation as it was, said that "obviously we could not approve the large majority of applications received."

Deport Mayor Charles Foster expressed disappointment at the failure of the city to receive the much needed funds.

Blossom Baseball Joins League

At the open meeting of the Blossom Baseball Group held March 6, Harold Morrison discussed a decision by the coaches to join the Dixie League for boys baseball.

This would involve boys in the first through eighth grades. Team divisions are 7 and 8 years as Pee Wee League; 9 and 10 year olds as Major League; and 13 and 14 year olds to continue being involved in Pony League program in Paris. Boys would play with the age group according to their age on July 31.

The Dixie League is a National organization and will give the boys an opportunity to play more teams in the area.

District tournaments will be held each year with the possibility of Blossom being the host town this year. There will be an all star team chosen each year from each district which will compete with other all star teams across the southern states.

The Blossom Baseball Board of Directors will consist of the head coach of each team, plus one member-at-large.

The coaches were to attend a district meeting which was held Tuesday night.

Storm Does Blossom Damage

The carport of Ruby and Garth Crawford of Blossom was turned upside down last Friday, apparently by a small tornado.

The Crawfords were at the community center at noon and not at home when the winds hit the area.

The Lion's Club Fireworks stand was flipped over several times and completely destroyed. Slight damage to the Housing Authority was also reported.

NEW SCOUT TROOP

Troop 19 of Deport met for the first time last Thursday night. In spite of bad weather, the boys met at the Deport fire station for their meeting. In attendance were back, leader Jim Short; Bryan Johnson, Eddie Lovan, Shannon McMikel, John Paul Short, Lonnie McMikel, Tracy McMikel and Shawn Woodall. The boys had a camping trip scheduled for the weekend. They extend an invitation to all boys ages 10 1/2 to 18 to come and join them. (Staff Photo)

A TREE was donated to the City of Deport by

Learn Kite Safety First!

Before the kite flying season begins, be sure that all members of your family know the safety rules of kite flying. Never use any metal parts in a kite, only string, paper and wood. Fly your kite in an open area, away from power lines, antennas and trees. If your kite should get stuck in a power line, do not try to pull it down, call us and we'll get it down for you. And never fly a kite in wet, stormy weather because wet string does conduct electricity. Enjoy kite flying, but be sure to do it safely.

The "Biggest Big Top on Earth" will feature scores of imported and domestic circus acts, including wild lions and tigers, somersaulting troupes of trapeze artists, almost 100 horses and ponies and a spectacular parade on the hippodrome track with hundreds of beautifully costumed humans and beasts of the jungle.
The traveling zoo is free to all patrons of the big show and includes some 200 wild animals of approximately 25 species.

Lamar County To Receive Block Grant

Lamar County Judge Brady Fisher has announced that Lamar County has received notice that the county's 1982 Community Development Block Grant application has been approved.

The grant is funded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and is in the amount of $292,448.
Fisher stated that this was the third year in which the county has made this application, and that the project was turned down the previous two years.
The funding will be used to pave streets and construct storm drainage ditches in a minority, low income neighborhood located in southeast Roxton.

Weekly Agricultural Briefs

By Paul D. Payne
Insects In Wheat

Greenbugs pose problem in area wheat fields and control measures may be needed if numbers continue to increase. Most wheat does have Greenbugs present now, but their numbers are not at a critical level. However, that condition can change overnight. Growers should inspect their fields often to determine numbers of greenbugs as well as beneficial insects.

Not all insects in the wheat are the greenbug. There are other types of aphids that are shaped like the pale green colored greenbug, but they do not hurt the wheat plant as does the greenbug. There is a dark green-almost black aphid that is shaped like the greenbug. It is called an Oat Bud Cherry Aphid. It sucks sap from the plant, too, but it does not secrete a toxin into the leaves.

The need for applying an insecticide depends on the number of Greenbugs present, size of plants, temperature and effectiveness of parasites and predators. When wheat is from four to eight inches high, there should be 200 greenbugs per linear foot of row. These could be termed the economic threshold. This is an average figure and should be determined by making five random counts per 20 acres of field.

The temperature should be above 50 degrees for insecticide to work best.

Suggested insecticides are dimethoate, disulfoton, malathion, parathion, thimet, and PennCap-M. There is a waiting period before grazing for each of the chemicals.

Beef Cattle
Cattlemen will find the March 10 cattle meeting in Paris to be an extremely important one. The topics to be discussed are internal and external parasite control.

The meeting will start at 7 o'clock in the Community Exhibits Building at the fairgrounds with a "Washpot Chili Feed" compliments of American Cyanamid Company.

Those planning to attend should call our office by next Wednesday.

Weekly Agriculture Update

If homeowners had a problem last year with scale insects on ornamentals, peaches or pecans, they need to treat with an approved insecticide spray when the buds break and the leaves first show to control the crawler stage of the scale insects says Dr. James Robinson, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Homeowners should select tomato varieties which are resistant to fusarium wilt and root knot nematodes, according to Dr. George Philley, Extension plant pathologist. Hybrid varieties can minimize losses to these diseases. Bonus, Big Set, Jackpot and Ace-Hy are resistant varieties that produce medium sized plants. Terrific and Better Boy are also resistant but are capable of producing extremely large plants. Small Fry is a cherry type tomato with the same disease resistance.

Philley says that root knot nematodes can be controlled in the garden by using Vapam, a soil fumigant. The soil temperature should be at least 65 degrees when the chemical is applied. Wait two to three weeks after treatment before planting. Concentrate on the areas in the garden where vegetables that grow for a long period of time are planted. Summer fallow areas where vegetables are not growing. For next year, Philley says, apply the nematocide in the fall before it gets too cold. The first fungicidal spray for the peach crop should be made in the pink bud stage. Another application should be made during the full bloom stage. This is especially essential if brown rot has been a problem in the past. Philley says that insecticide sprays should not be applied to peaches in the bloom stage. Later fungicide applications will be needed to protect the fruit. Spray guides are available from local county Extension agents.

Footprints From The Past

By John W. Hood

I was listening to some of the area hunters and trappers talking the other day and it brought back some of the memories of when I was just in my last year of grade school and times were hard and money scarce, so myself and one of my friends went into the business of trapping and skinning the small animals that were roaming all over the country side or so we thought. We scrounged around and came up with some old steel traps and we were in business, all we had to do was to find some likely place and set our traps and we would soon have all the money we could spend what we did not consider was that we might not catch all that many animals and that we might not get all that much money for them.

Well we had our traps I think that we had as many as six or maybe seven to start with so we found what we thought was the best places to set them and we got us some bait and set the traps and then we went home and had agreed to get up early the next morning to run the traps as we had to be ready for school as this was during the school term. Well the next morning we got up at five o'clock and went to run our traps. When we got to the first one all the bait was gone, but we had nothing in it so we reset the trap and went on to the next one and when we got there we found us a big old possum and boy was he mad, we had no way to kill him and we could not get him out while he was still alive so we had to go on to run the rest of the traps and we found all of them empty some of them the bait was missing and some of them were as we had left them. We were so disappointed that we had not caught anything except the possum that we forgot all about him and besides it was time to go and get ready for school, so we left and that afternoon when we got home from school we went to see our traps and when we got to the first one we found the possum that we had left in the trap that morning and he had got loose and left so we had nothing.

Well, we reset the trap and went on and checked the rest of the traps and found all of them all o.k. so we went on about the business of playing until it was time to go home and do our chores like milking, feeding the stock and bringing in the wood for the fires and also some wood to cook with as all we had was wood cook stoves and wood heaters of a fire place for heating and you can believe me when I tell you that all those cook stoves and fireplaces could burn a lot of wood.

Early the next morning we met to run our traps and we had a good haul as we had caught two possums and one coon that we had to take out of the traps and we also had to skin them and turn them wrong side out and put them on some boards that we had prepared before hand. After we had them all stretched over the boards that we had fixed, we had to scrape all the excess flesh off them as if you did not it would cause them to rot where the flesh was left and besides it sure did cause a big stink when the flesh started to rot. Well, when we got them all ready, we hung them up on the side of the barn to dry and then we got ready and went to school. Everything was going along pretty good until the morning we ran our traps and had a big skunk in one of them. Well, we did not give it too much thought as we got it out of the trap and went home and we went about the job of skinning them and getting them ready to hang. As we got a late start that morning we had dressed for school before we ran our traps so after we were through with the skinning we rushed on to school. When we went into the school room everyone started holding their nose and hollering for us to go home, so the teacher sent us home and told us not to come back until we had gotten rid of the stink and when we got home our parents were upset with us also. That was the end of our trapping for that year as we were told by our parents to cease and disist with the trapping business. It was not too much of a disappointment for us all for all of our troubles we did not make too much money as we would only get $.50 to $.60 each for the skins and they were a lot of trouble to catch, skin and then take them to market. There is a man living between Deport and Pattonville who can tell you that I am telling the truth or very nearly so, anyhow.

Whole White Bread

The addition of pea bran to the enriched white flour of white bread enhances its nutritional value and results in a bread called "whole white." Whole white bread contains 1.6 percent crude fiber, while regular white contains only .2 percent.

In addition to non-nutritive crude fiber, the pea bran adds to levels of vitamins, including thiamine, riboflavin and niacin; protein; carbohydrate; fat calcium; phosphorus; magnesium and potassium.

Whole white bread's calorie content is the same as whole wheat bread and that it is creamy-white in color, without the rough texture and strong, grainy flavor of whole-grain breads.

Most fresh fruits remain at their best for only a few days, but some, if stored properly, may last longer.

How you handle fresh fruit makes the difference. Before storing fruits, sort them and either use or discard damaged fruits immediately. Most fruits, except berries and cherries, should be washed and dried before storing.

Garbage Gas

At the world's largest garbage dump—five stories high on New York's Staten Island—bacteria are turning old buried garbage into methane—enough gas to eventually supply 16,000 homes. Brooklyn gas officials claim that their product will be "just as good as what comes out of the well in west Texas."

East Texas Eating

By Margie Rice
News reports indicate that the California lettuce crop has been severely affected by the recent floods and consequently the lettuce supply will be down and its cost will be up for the next few months.

So, by all means, if you have not already done so, plant some lettuces in your vegetable garden or sunny flower beds. While at it, plant radish seed and tuck a few onion plants in. If space permits, cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower plants will extend your salad garden.

If you have grown fond of the lovely green leafy lettuces that have been in the produce sections of our area stores this winter, plant some salad bowl lettuce. It is quite similar, or it may be one of the varieties we have been enjoying. The long, crisp leafed Romaine lettuce grows beautifully here. So does the tender, dark green loose-leafed Bibb.

Ruby red lettuce can add color and still another texture and flavor in your salads. Ruby seems to be a bit more difficult for me to get to come up and maybe a little more fragile and susceptible to the perils of early spring gardening. But, when I have planted Ruby at this time of the year or a bit later, in loose, moist, fertile soil, the red lettuce has been the star attraction in our garden, and in salads.

Tender, garden fresh spinach is another delight in spring salads and grows marvelously in East Texas gardens. It, too, can be planted now.

Spring Green Salad (Serves 4)

1/2 bunch romaine, torn into bite-size pieces sections of 1 grapefruit
1 or 2 avocados, peeled and sliced
3 green onions, chopped
1 green pepper, sliced into rings

Lightly toss the ingredients and serve with Poppy Seed Dressing or your favorite creamy salad dressing.

Poppy Seed Dressing
1/2 cup sugar
3/4 tsp. dry mustard
3/4 tsp. salt
1/4 cup red wine vinegar
1 Tbsp. onion juice
1 cup salad oil (not olive oil)
1 Tbsp. poppy seed

Chop the onion finely and press the juice out, a bit at a time, with an onion or garlic press.

Mix sugar, mustard, salt, vinegar and onion juice. Add oil slowly, beating constantly with a mixer, and continue to beat until thick. Add poppy seeds and beat a minute longer. Store in refrigerator, but do not freeze.

Is delicious on fruit salads as well as the above green one.

Fresh Spinach Salad (Serves 4)

2 bunches spinach
2 hard cooked eggs, diced
6 slices of bacon
1/2 cup red wine vinegar
1/2 tsp. sugar
salt and pepper

Wash spinach thoroughly, remove stems, dry well and tear into bite-size pieces.

Dice bacon and cook until it is crisp. Remove from heat and slowly add vinegar, sugar and salt and pepper to your liking. Mix thoroughly and pour lightly over the spinach, hard cooked eggs and onion.
