Pats Lose District Opener 12-11

By James Vandaveer

The Prairiland Patriot baseball team lost their district opener 12 to 11 in an exciting game to the Clarksville Tigers.

Prairiland's three run two out rally in the bottom of the first inning gave Prairiland a quick three to nothing lead. Patriot second baseman Joe Smith started the outburst with two outs as he managed to get to first base on a throwing error. Todd Davis then scored Smith on a shallow fly ball to center field. Patriot catcher Barry Johnston then drove in Davis as he slugged a double to the right field alley. Johnston was then driven in on a single by Robbie Connot.

Clarksville posed a threat but nothing more in the bottom inning as the leadoff hitter hit a single to center field. The next batter was struck out by Scott Scudder and the runner on first was thrown out at second by catcher Barry Johnston. The inning came to an end as the next batter flew out to right fielder Chris Sparks.

Prairiland's scoring resumed the third inning as they stretched the lead to seven to nothing. Johnston opened the inning with a walk and moved to second on a Robbie Connot single. After a walk to Chris Sparks, Johnston scored on a walk by Mike Connot. Heath Kennedy drove in two runs with a double and Jay Ingram scored on a throwing error.

Clarksville woke up in the bottom of the third as they cut the lead to 7 to 4. After back to back singles and a strike-out by Scudder, Clarksville scored on a hit to center field. After the next batter grounded out, Scudder walked the next two hitters, including walking in a run. The next batter drove in two runs with a bloop to center field. Scudder brought a halt to the scoring as he struck out the next batter.

Prairiland continued to score in the fourth inning as senior first baseman Todd Davis walked and was driven in on a home run by Barry Johnston as Prairiland padded the lead to nine to four.

Clarksville cut the lead to 9 to 7 in the bottom of the fourth inning as Prairiland got sloppy in the field and failed to execute some important plays.

After Prairiland failed to score in the top of the fifth inning, Clarksville cut the lead to nine to eight on a bloop to right field in the bottom of the fifth inning.

Prairiland did not score in the sixth inning and Clarksville scored one as the game went to the seventh inning with the score tied at nine-all.

Barry Johnston showed his power once again in the seventh inning as he hit his second homer of the day, both on curve balls, with Todd Davis aboard to give Prairiland an eleven to nine lead going to the bottom of the seventh.

The bottom of the seventh was disastrous one for Prairiland as Clarksville received four hits and a walk and scored three runs to shade Prairiland twelve to eleven as Prairiland failed to record an out.

The star of the game for Prairiland was Barry Johnston as he hit two home runs and a double in addition to throwing out a runner and providing leadership behind the plate.

Tuesday's game was rained out but Thursday, March 29 will be against North Lamar.

Last week's column on old sayings related to horse drawn travel received such a response that we decided to give it a little more attention, this time at old sayings, not just about horses and their attendant subjects.

Probably one of the oldest sayings we know is "Penny proud, pound poor". This travels across the centuries and the miles to colonial times when America was a colony of Great Britain and used the pound instead of the dollar monetary system.

Other sayings, of which there are millions, of which their roots are in the past are: "Cutting off one's nose to spite one's face". This may very well have roots in the early penal system of England when "such punishments were meted out." So is the expression "having one's pound of flesh." Back then, when a thief was caught stealing food, it was often fated that the thief had a literal "pound" of flesh sliced off of an arm or leg! Ugh!

Grist for the mill, referring to thought material, usually, is obvious. So is too many cooks spoil the broth or many hands make light work, both sayings from an age when machines and pre-packaging were non-existent to homemakers.

"Tempest in a teapot" is a very old and time-honored expression, and is said to stem from sailors, used to the major storms of sea, making light of small turmoil, usually of a domestic nature.

"He knows which side his bread is buttered on" is another ancient wisdom.

"Beware of Greeks bearing gifts" although it sounds somewhat obscure (there not being too many Greeks in the area) stems from the Biblical time when Greek traders were known to "fleece" customers after first presenting them with trivial presents.

"Idle hands are the devil's workshop" is one which is directly connected to our puritan ancestors who believed in the practice of honest, diligent work, with no time for idleness.

And the last one that comes to mind, although there are many, many more, concerns bad luck, and it goes "if it were raining soup...I'd be out with a fork". Some say, that just about says it!

Hares Harness Old Time Wagons

Hare. His thoughts were on a good old-fashioned farm wagon, the kind that runs by horsepower or mule power.

Mr. Hare and his wife, Annie, moved here eight years ago from Irving where he was employed as a construction worker for a while and self-employed for seventeen years. After retirement they built their home on FM71 west of Talco. A huge workshop stands near the house with rooms for storage, freezers and a fruit and vegetable storage area.

In the workshop, you will find any kind of farm tool you can imagine. All kinds of saws, from the old-time cross-cut saw to electric ones, pipe wrenches from five inches to three feet long, horse collars, singletrees, bits and drills and a 70 year-old copper teapot and much more.

Perhaps the workshop is where his idea of building a wagon started and with parts from here and there, repairs to an old running gear, iron wheels from somewhere in the past, a new wagon tongue and a complete new bed, Mr. Hare ended up with a handsome wagon with a red bed, yellow wheels and tongue.

Despite the hours spent making his wagon, other duties were not neglected. Old Red, the mule, was hitched to the plow and their garden was cultivated, weeded and when ready for harvest, Mrs. Hare was kept busy filling containers of vegetables for their three freezers and enough jars were filled to line the shelves in a large storage room.

The Hare's humor comes through frequently with big smiles as they reflect on the good corn crop they had last year. "We gathered 950 ears of corn off two and a quarter acres," they said. They sold some and gave some vegetables to friends, but most went for their own use. They agreed that this year they would only plant enough for their own use and of course, enough for their son, Kenneth and family, that live in Hurst.

Sondra Hurley, 16 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Danny Hurley of Yantis, won the title of Miss Rodeo Texas Teen 1984 in San Antonio recently. She was representing the Central Rodeo Association as their 1983 queen.

Sondra and the other contestants were judged on horsemanship, beauty, and personality. The judges held interviews with each contestant and had the girls answer impromptu questions. The contestants were also required to give speeches pertaining to the title they are representing.

In the horsemanship division, each contestant was paired with a horse provided by the Miss Rodeo Texas Competition. As the new Miss Rodeo Texas Teen, Hurley received a trophy, a hand-tooled saddle, a belt buckle, silver platter, spurs, crown, clothes bag and the use of a two-horse trailer. She will be going to the Dallas Apparel Mart twice during the year to choose the western clothing she will use during her reign. She will also receive a $500 scholarship at the end of her reign.

This was Miss Hurley's first year to ever enter a queen contest. She entered and won the Winnsboro Rodeo Queen title. From there she was invited to enter the Miss C.R.A. Queen contest. Betty Woodall of Deport formed the Miss C.R.A. contest in 1980. The judging is done on horsemanship, personality and appearance and they also have to answer questions.

Miss Hurley and her family look on these contests as her having won the Triple Crown, winning Miss Winnsboro Rodeo Queen, Miss Central Rodeo Association Queen and the Miss Rodeo Texas Teen all in one year.

Excess S.S. Tax Can Be Claimed As A Credit

If you worked for two or more employers during 1983 and received wages totaling more than $35,700, IRS suggests you check the Social Security amount on your Form W-2. If it shows more than $2,391.90, you can claim the excess as a credit on your tax return, the IRS says. However, if you file a joint return, you and your spouse must make separate computations. The IRS added that, if you worked for only one employer and more than $2,391.90 was withheld, you may not claim the excess as a credit against your income tax. Your employer should refund the overcollection to you.

Weekly Agricultural Update

By Paul D. Payne
Area livestock and forage producers are invited to attend the special forage production meeting March 29 beginning at 7 p.m. in the Prairiland High School Agricultural building. A complimentary hamburger supper will kick off the activities, thanks to Nation Bros. Fertilizer, Swaim Fertilizer, Estes Chemicals and Tide Products.

Dr. Don Dorsett, Forage Specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service will present the program. His topic will key on the use of weed control chemicals in pastures and hay meadows. Many beef producers have been a little slack in controlling weeds the past few years due to cattle prices, and as a result weed problems have increased. Livestock producers may want to take a second look at the economics of chemical weed control this year.

The meeting is a joint effort of the County Beef and Forage Committee and the Prairiland Vocational Agriculture Department. Individuals planning to attend should call 785-4513 by noon on Thursday.

Soybean growers in Lamar County are invited to attend a breakfast meeting on April 2 to discuss soybean market development. The meeting is being held in Lamar County by the Texas Soybean Association. Heading up the meeting is Robert Ledbetter of Direct, who is president of the Texas Soybean Association.

Producers interested in attending should contact Ledbetter.

By Herb Brevard
Producers should wait until about the middle of April to fertilize pastures, says Dr. Sim A. Reeves.

If fertilizer is applied now, most of it will be used by weeds. The weeds will compete with the grass, thus slowing the growth of desirable grasses. Most warm season grasses should begin growing by the middle of April and when the growth gets started good, that's the time to apply fertilizer.

On hay meadows where good weed control has been practiced or a pre-emerge herbicide has already been applied, the fertilizer could be applied a little earlier, Reeves said.

Producers still have time to get a soil test completed before applying fertilizer. The soil test is the only way of determining exactly what is needed to nourish the grasses.

Reeves says that it is now too late to get full effectiveness from pre-emerge herbicides. Pre-emerge herbicides will not affect weeds that have already germinated. However, if a heavy weed infestation exists, a combination pre-emerge and post-emerge herbicide could be used to an advantage.

Footprints From The Past

By John W. Hood
Sitting and listening to the thunder and watching the lightning made me think of when we were small and lived in the country and a cloud would come up and Mom would bundle us up to go to the storm house and we would sit and listen and the grown-ups would go outside and check on when we had to leave the house and make a run for the storm cellar.
We had to be ready to make a run at all times as my Mom was in the cyclone that destroyed Deport back in the early part of this century and she was afraid of all bad looking clouds and sometimes we would try to tell her that the cloud was not as bad as she thought, but never could talk her out of at least being ready to go at a moment's notice and a lot of times we would have to get up out of bed and at least get ready to go to the storm house and the most of the time we had to go. We spent a lot of our time in the storm house back in those days.

During the stormy part of the year, we spent a lot of our time sitting and looking at the clouds to see if we needed to either go back to bed or to the storm house and the most of the time we went just to be on the safe side. Let me tell you it is not a lot of fun sitting up half the night in a storm house when you expect to see a big snake come crawling out between the logs of the place. I haven't told you how the storm houses were built.

The way that Dad built ours was that he would take someone with him and go to the wood sand pick out enough logs all the same size, then they would cut the trees then he would trim them and cut them all the same length. Next he would dig a hole in the ground about six feet wide and eight feet long. He would size the logs and notch them to where they would fit together and then he would start at the bottom of the hole and lay one on each end. He would lay one on each side to fit over the end logs after the side ones were laid he would go back and lay two more end ones and he would repeat that until he had reached the top. Then he would dig out a place for the steps then he would cut a door in the logs to correspond with the steps and he would frame eth door and place other logs across the top then he would cover it all with the dirt from digging the hole. After he had his top he would make a door to cover the steps and then we were ready for the first bad cloud.

The storm houses were used for a lot of different things besides for a safe place to get away from tornadoes. It was also used to store all the fruit and vegetables that had been canned in the summer and it was also used to store ice in the summertime when we would bring some home with us when we went to town on Saturday.

It was always cool in the storm house and the ice would keep a lot longer when it was stored down there.

I can still remember when Mom would send me to the storm house to get a jar of something or other and how afraid I was that asnake would crawl out and bite me and a lot of times I would be in such a hurry that I would get the wrong jar, and that meant another trip to get the right one.

If you have never had that experience, you cannot know just how unnerving it can be for a small boy.

Although it was a lot of trouble to get up from a deep sleep and get ready to go to the storm house, it was worth it to think that you were safe from all the tornadoes that you thought were coming.

BUDDY'S WORKSHOP Rusty Cast Iron Skillet Can Usually Be Restored

Should a cast iron skillet that has been stored for several years and is rust-covered be discarded, or can it be restored to use?

If the rust has not penetrated deeply, the skillet can be returned to use. Begin by removing as much rust as possible with very fine steel wool or a stiff wire brush. Wash in warm, soapy water and repeat the process, if necessary. Before using the skillet, it will be necessary to "re-season" it to prevent food from sticking. Coat the inside of the skillet lightly with cooking oil and place it in a 300 degree oven for at least two hours. Allow to cool, rinse in hot water and then dry thoroughly. Cast iron skillets and pots should be washed thoroughly after each use and stored in a dry place when not in use. It's moisture that causes rust.

Is the problem simple or complicated when water collects in the bottom of the refrigerator compartment?

The problem is usually a clogged drain. Both the refrigerator compartment and the freezer unit have drains which remove melted frost during the defrosting system. The drains can become clogged with food particles or small foreign objects. Locate the drains and clear them with a small diameter stiff wire. On some refrigerator models, a small tube leads from the freezer unit to the bottom of the refrigerator (on the back side). Check to see if the tube is obstructed. If you don't have wire, you may be able to clear the drain by forcing water through the drain opening with a syringe.

Charitable Deduction Without Itemizing Deductions

Last year nationwide, about 20.8 million, or 22 percent of the total, federal income tax returns were filed by taxpayers who took advantage of a new law which allowed them to deduct a portion of their charitable contributions without itemizing their deductions, according to the Internal Revenue Service. On the 1983 form, taxpayers will again be able to take advantage of the law which allows them to take 25 percent of their first $100 in contributions, or a maximum of $25, without itemizing deductions.

Egg Yolks

Unbroken, leftover egg yolks can be preserved for several days in a container if they are covered with cold water. Another alternative is to hard-cook the yolks immediately.

Clovers For Good Pasture

The key to proper management of clovers is pastureland is a question often asked to the Soil Conservation Service. To a large extent the answer depends on the landowners particular type of pasture and how it is managed.

Growing clovers and grasses in combination requires more management than if either plant were grown by itself. However, there are a number of advantages in growing a combination. Clovers furnish additional grazing in late winter and early spring and increases protein content of available forage. Clovers also have the ability to add nitrogen to the soil by storing it in small nodules on its roots. When the clover plant matures and dies, the nitrogen is then used by summer grasses.

To be successful in growing clovers in a pasture, several steps should be taken. To stop growth of the grasses it should be reduced to about four inches by October 1. This can be accomplished by grazing, mowing or shredding. The seed should be treated with the proper inoculant. A good fertilizer with phosphate and potassium plus a small amount of nitrogen should be used in the fall. To get continued reseeding from the clovers, do not overgraze and defer stock prior to seeding date. Crimson clover will seed from April 15 through May 15. Arrowleaf clovers (yuchi) and white clovers should be deferred from June 1 through July 1. This should insure good seed production.

Robert Smith of Clarksville is a strong believer in managing clovers to improve his pastureland. "I am able to obtain year round grazing by managing my clover," said Smith. He has Kenland Red Clover. Kimberly Dacus of the Diamond D Ranch in the Woodland community also believes in clover management. "Clovers provide longer grazing, requires less hay and returns nitrogen to the soil," said Kimberly. Mrs. Dacus has established yuchi arrowleaf clovers.

For further information on managing clovers, contact the Soil Conservation Service personnel. Offices are located at 800 W. Main Street in Clarksville.

Local Woman's Brother Buys In Cowboys

Ed Smith, brother of Quida Read of Deport made a rather unusual purchase recently.

Although a Houston resident, Smith has purchased a 15 percent interest in the Dallas Cowboys!

He is one of the limited partners in the club's new ownership headed by H.R. "Bum" Bright.

Smith confesses to Jack Gallagher, a sports columnist for a Houston paper, which ran a long column on the purchase of an interest by a Houstonian, that he "doesn't like the brazen ways, but is an honorable person and thinks he can get along with Mr. Bright."

Ed Jr. amassed a fortune quietly. He is the owner of a barge company with 300 employees which ships liquids, primarily crude oil and gasoline in container type barges along the Intracoastal Waterway. He is also one of the founders of a local savings and loan company.

Smith and Diboll's Arthur Temple are the only non-Dallas residents included in the new Dallas Cowboys ownership.

Smith says he was interested in ownership of the Houston Astros when they were up for sale five or six years ago, and thinks Houstonians are deserving of more than they are getting in the line of professional sports. He was getting ready to talk to former Oilers general manager John Breen about ownership of the Oilers, but Breen died.

Ed Smith is the sixth of 10 children of a Nevada farmer.

His older brother is chairman of the board of Big Six Drilling Company. His father, Ed Smith Sr. lived to be 95 and saw his family flourish and blossom with 21 children of it's own.

Smith has invested $12 million in the Cowboys. He admits it isn't a "great investment", just average, but he has faith in professional sports ironing out it's problems and going back to the rules and regulations instead of high salaries and lack of prudence on the part of players.

Environmental Quality Important To Texas

An attractive business climate, with no taxing of personal or corporate income, is not the only factor influencing a growing number of out of state companies to relocate in Texas.

Preserving environmental quality figures prominently in our state's plan for balanced growth and economic development and makes Texas an attractive, safe place to live and work.

Congress is currently considering legislation which would broaden the states' responsibilities for hazardous waste management while potentially reducing available federal funds to administer this important task.

By next September I am asking the Governor's Task Force on Hazardous Waste Management for a detailed report outlining proposed legislation, state agency actions, and industry initiatives that can bring about an integrated comprehensive hazardous waste management policy for the state of Texas.

During hearings last November in Brownsville before the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, I raised serious questions about the EPA's plans to permit two incinerator ships to burn toxic wastes in the Gulf of Mexico in light of inadequate testing and the potential for contaminating the food chain, for harming coastal communities dependant on marine-related industries, and for jeopardizing relations between the United States and Mexico.

I am hopeful that a dialogue between all interests in the hazardous waste debate will produce new efforts to find safe, land-based technologies for recycling, treating and disposing of hazardous wastes.

Over the next six months, the task force will consider how the state can guarantee long term monitoring of toxic waste disposal sites, where state inspection and enforcement efforts should be improved, whether incentives should exist for recycling hazardous waste, and how to monitor more closely the "cradle to grave" transport of hazardous waste in Texas.

Good stewardship of the environment is essential to protect the public health and natural beauty of the Texas landscape and to attract responsible business and industry to locate and expand in our state.

Texas' chemical and related industries generated approximately 25.5 million tons of hazardous waste in 1982 alone, and leaders in both the public and private sectors agree on the need to dispose of such waste in the safest, most efficient manner.

Recognizing that state government must assume a leadership role in this area, I have issued an executive order creating the Governor's Task Force on Hazardous Waste Management. Max Sherman, a former state senator and current dean of the LBJ School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas will serve as chairman.

This task force includes representatives from large chemical and electronics companies, environmental groups and hazardous waste disposal firms as well as members of the banking, engineering, public health and legal professions.

The task force will focus on four major areas: siting of waste handling, storage and disposal facilities; financial responsibility for hazardous waste during and after disposal; feasible waste stream reductions and disposal options; and enforcement of regulations governing the management of hazardous waste.
