

Prairiland Patriots Up Record To 3 - 0

By James VanDeaver
The Prairiland Patriot men's team upped their district record to three wins without a loss Friday night at DeKalb.

In the first quarter, Prairiland outscored DeKalb 25-7. It was the only quarter of the game in which Prairiland would outscore DeKalb. Heath Kennedy made a three point play for the first Patriot points and two freethrows for the last of the quarter. Scott Scudder was the top scorer of the quarter with ten points. The only suspense of the second quarter was the perfection of freethrows which Prairiland was able to make in succession. Prairiland's consecutive made freethrows fell at twenty. At the end of the half, Prairiland led 36-21 behind the team's twenty-four of twenty-five freethrows made.

The second half of the game was a wild one as Prairiland was again able to shoot freethrow after freethrow. With DeKalb fouling at a ridiculous pace, they managed to have six of their players foul out. DeKalb played the last minute of the game with four players and went on to lose 67-59.

Instrumental in the Patriot win were forty-five free throws made. Scott Scudder was the top scorer in the game with thirty points. Twenty-four of Scudder's points were made at the free throw line. Heath Ken-neddy and Mike Connot added eleven points to the Patriot cause.

The Prairiland Patriot boys and girls defeated Paul Pewitt Tuesday night to continue their winning streaks.

Nichols Worth

By: Nanalee Nichols

Last year (1984) was a good year for all of us here at the papers. Still, it's always nice to know that folks appreciate their hometown weekly...we already knew by the enthusiastic response to the Christmas sale...but until last week we didn't truly appreciate just HOW much!

Belcasse of the New Year's holiday we had to publish a day late...because of the Christmas holiday, the week before we had to publish a day early. That put a pretty big gap between one paper and the next.

5SXO, Thursday morning, just after the boxes and riotous at the post offices had put all the mail up, folks began to realize that they hadn't gotten their paper on the usual day.

The phone began to ring, and ring, and ring, and we don't blame them. It was downright astonishing how many people love and look forward to their weekly paper! It made us all feel really good...although we regretted the inconvenience that the late publication had caused folks.

The phone would ring every five minutes or so...and to pay tribute to all our callers, each and every one was nice and pleasant about their late paper, just wanting to know what was wrong.

The nicest thing of all was that lots of people would take a moment to tell us how much they enjoy the paper, or a particular section of local news, or column, or the school pictures.

That really made our day. After seven years at the Deport Times office, this was the first time that the holidays came on a Tuesday...and therefore the first time that our schedule was a day late.

Hopefully, we can keep it from happening again...but one thing is for sure...we have learned just how much our faithful subscribers love their paper...how much they want it, and from now on we'll work even harder to make sure they get it on TIME.....

Prairiland Girls Take Third Straight District Win

By James VanDeaver
The Patriot fems won their third straight district game Friday night as they defeated DeKalb on the road. Prairiland wasted no time in getting a sizeable lead as Deana Watson scored eight in a quick 12-1 Prairiland lead. Tonya Burdine made the last four points of the Behind Donna Vaughn's and Klarissa Key's rebounds, Prairiland led at the half 34-15. Prairiland insured themselves of a victory in the third quarter as they continued their success on the hardwood. Donna Vaughn made eight points in the quarter and Prairiland led 47-25.

Prairiland got scoring from five different players in the final quarter as they widened their lead. Kristi Bankhead and Paula Farmer combined for eight points in the quarter and Prairiland went on to win 61-36.

Prairiland Students Trying To Earn Free Computer

Students at Prairiland are currently conducting a collection drive that will earn their school free IBM PCjr Computer Systems. As part of a program called Computerrific, IBM and Procter & Gamble are offering free computers to schools in exchange for proofs of purchase from Procter & Gamble participating brands.

"We hope to collect 7,500 proofs of purchase before the drive ends on February 28, 1985 said Principal Gary Ballard. That's how many we'll need to receive one computer."

UPC Code Symbols from Bounty paper towels, Citrus Hill orange juice, Coast deodorant soap, Crest toothpaste, Crush carbonated beverage, Encaprin pain reliever, Luvs diapers, Prell shampoo, Pert shampoo, Sure deodorant, Scope mouthwash, Jif peanut butter, Puffs tissues and Tide laundry detergent are being collected.

"We know we have many friends in the community who will want to help our school," said Gary Ballard. "They can do so by saving the UPC Codes from these popular household products and giving them to our students or simply drop them off at the school in one of our collection boxes."

The Cannon Boom!

Wm. C. Barnard

During World War I, kids were very aware of the fighting in Europe, and the ships sinking in the ocean. There were news accounts and pictures in the papers, and war was a daily subject of conversation among the grownups, therefore it was natural for the kids to play at war games. We would dig trenches, build dugouts, and bunkers, and man them with soldiers made out of clay mud. After the miniature battlefield was laid out and all the military installations in place, there would be a bombardment with mud balls and clods of dirt,—there were plenty of clods on the black land—. One of the weapons that the Germans brought into use, was a long range cannon that the allies nicknamed Big Bertha. It bombarded Paris with a two-hundred sixty-four pound shell from a distance of seventy-six miles. The news stories of this weapon made quite an impression on us. There happened to be an old muzzle loading gun barrel laying around in the scrap iron pile at Grand Dad's place. It had been a heavy rifle of about fifty caliber, and the lock and stock were long gone. We salvaged the old gun, cleaned it up and mounted it on a pair of wheels. We managed for some gun powder, but we didn't have any caps. Since necessity is the mother of invention, we came up with the idea of removing the bullets from twenty-two caliber rifle cartridges and using them for caps or primers. We loaded Little Bertha with a good charge of powder, rammed in some paper wadding and a hand full of rocks. We placed a live twenty-two cartridge case over the priming nipple and we were ready for a trial shot.

The testing range was down at the cow lot because, for obvious reasons, we didn't want to disturb people at the house with the bombardment. Arthur (Punk) Barnard appointed himself gunner. He struck the cap a few times, but it failed to go off. Some of the rest of us tried it, but couldn't get it to fire. We gave up and were sitting around discussing what to do next, when Ralph Williams casually tapped the primer with a stick and Little Bertha came alive. Osie was sitting on the cow lot gate, watching the proceedings, when the gun went off. The full charge of pebbles shattered a plank in the gate just below Osie's feet.

The cannon kicked backward, turned a couple of end-overs and came to rest on its side, with a little wisp of smoke rising from the end of the barrel. When Uncle Charley came in that evening he soon learned of the shot. Little Bertha was confiscated before it got to participate in the war games.

Girl Scout Cookie Sales To Begin

This year's annual Girl Scout Cookie Sale begins Friday, January 18. Girls will be taking orders through February 1. Cookies will be selling for $2.00 per box, and will be delivered March 7-22.

Seven varieties of cookies are being offered this year, including the newest addition, lemon pastry cremes. Other varieties include old favorites of the original shortbread, thin mints, peanut butter sandwich, pecan chocolate chip, peanut butter patties and caramel delites.

The cookie sale is the major funding source for the Red River Valley Girl Scout Council and for the individual troops. Betsy Mills, council cookie sale coordinator, says, "Now, more than ever, Girl Scout activities depend on the proceeds from this annual sale. We want people to realize the vital importance of the contribution they are making to Girl Scouting every time they buy a box of cookies."

Proceeds from the sale, plus allocations from the United Way, go toward troop activities such as attending council wide events, overnight campouts, adopting grandparents and providing programs for local nursing homes, making and distributing posters for community service projects, and planting trees and shrubs for local businesses and organizations.

The council uses its profits from the sale for the maintenance and improvement of Camp Gambill, and for program services made available to the troops. The council also provides financial assistance to girls attending resident camp and to individual girls or troops attending wider opportunities. Last year the Wider Opportunities Fund helped send a troop of Senior Girl Scouts to Hawaii and another Senior Girl Scout to a backpacking expedition in Idaho.

In addition to the activities made possible by the cookie sales, according to Mrs. Mills, the sale also represents their first contact with the business world for many Girl Scouts. By selling cookies, girls learn teamwork and useful skills such as how to sell a product, handle money and deliver a customer's order.

Incentives may be earned by the girls, according to the number of boxes they sell. These include: a participation button, theme patch, camping mug, penguin stickers, a stuffed penguin toy, bracelet and charm, painter's hat, necklace and charm, T-shirt, watch and disc camera. The top sales girl in each neighborhood will receive a nylon barrel bag, and the top seller in the council, a 3-speed bicycle. Girls may also earn up to $125.00 credit to attend Camp Gambill resident camp this summer.

If you are not contacted by a Girl Scout for your order you may call the neighborhood cookie chairman in your area. In Deport call Kay Webb at 652-9085 after five or weekends.

Feed Best Hay In Cold Weather

By Herb Brevard

The invasion of cold weather has caused many problems to take a second look at their hay supply and method of feeding livestock. Warm temperatures through December greatly delayed the feeding season for many producers but it has now definitely begun.

Dr. Sim Reeves, Jr., says that producers may want to feed their better quality hay during the extremely cold temperatures. Cattle need better nutrition and more energy to maintain body heat and better utilize the feed they are receiving.

Producers should also pay attention to the amount of hay being wasted. Even though cold weather began late, spring is still several months away. Extremely bad weather during the next several weeks could deplete the hay supply rather rapidly.

Texas grown Christmas trees did very well on the markets this season, says Jim Chandler, Extension forester at the Texas A&M University Research and Extension Center at Overton. More than 200,000 trees were marketed according to estimates. The Texas grown trees completed well with trees imported from northern growers. Opportunity still exists for producers who are willing to invest the money, follow top management and marketing procedures, and market only top quality trees.

Diets Should Be Sensible

By Mary Lou Williamson

Well, the holiday season is over. Now, that we have tipped the scales an additional 30 pounds due to table hopping and indulging our appetite its time for diets. Who really wants to diet, it's not fun. Diets are not bad if we could locate an instant off diet.

Fad diets are not only costly, but they create morale problems too. The repeated failure to lose pounds or maintain weight loss can decrease dieter motivation, lower self esteem and lead to strong feelings or depression.

In addition to diet books promising immediate and substantial weight loss, other common treatments marketed today include powdered diet formulas, premeasured packaged food, appetite suppressants and various drug injections. Other weight loss products include body wraps, spot reducing creams, rubber exercise suits, cellulite scrubbers and electrical stimulation.

Losing weight rapidly is like a public show and tell. People cannot help but notice a rapid twenty, thirty or forty pound drop in a friend's weight. But the sad fact is that 95 percent of the people who lose pounds this way gain them back within a year. And those same friends also notice when the dieter's weight goes back up.

People who have rapidly lost and regained weight many times can lose hope. After several failures on various fad diets, they have little energy for programs that are well established, require more effort and are more supportive of long term weight management.

Mrs. Gordon Boyce of Paris recently contacted the Extension office regarding Salmonella. Salmonella is a bacterial food poisoning which produces an intestinal infection. It is found in high protein foods such as meat, poultry, fish or eggs. Contamination of ready to eat foods and insufficient cooking could be sources of salmonella food poisoning. The symptoms are diarrhea, nausea, chills, vomiting and fever within 12 to 14 hours after consumption of the contaminated food. Salmonella bacteria will not grow below 40 degrees Fahrenheit and is destroyed by normal cooking.

Now that colder weather is in Lamar County, take a few minutes to check condition of your home canned foods. Recommended storage conditions are dary, dry and cool areas.

Storing home canned foods in a cold area where food can freeze, could cause expansion of the food products and the lids to unseal. Check jars to note any discoloration of food product, bulging lids or gaseous odors.

Colorful Plants From Brazil

A natural assumption would be that the zebra plant came from Africa. Not true. The zebra plant is native to Brazil. The plant has large, shiny green leaves and the main veins, which are ivory colored, stand out like the markings on a zebra. This small evergreen likes soil that is rich and porous, good light but away from direct sunlight, and regular watering. The plant is sensitive to sudden changes in temperature and should be located in a draft-free room. The zebra plant is at its best in autumn when it produces colorful yellow flowers. After flowering, the plant should be pruned back to two good leaves. In a short time, side shoots will appear. When they are firmly established, the plant should be repotted in fresh soil. The plant does best when the temperature is kept constant at 58°F. Another import from Brazil that is popular as an indoor or greenhouse plant is the gloxinia. This perennial has large, simple leaves and tubular-shaped flowers. There are many varieties, all summer bloomers, in red, pink, purple and bicolors. The gloxinia may be propagated from seed or from stem cuttings. Tubers may be saved for early starting in spring.

HELPFUL IDEAS FOR SUCCESSFUL RETIREMENT

Getting Along
Retirement sometimes tests the true strength of a marriage. This may be especially true where both marriage partners have spent many years pursuing careers that took them in different directions. The adjustment to uncommitted time is often serious enough for the individual. It can get complicated if two people working at their individual adjustment find themselves getting in one another's way in some unaccustomed fashion. The marriage can be in trouble if one partner becomes so concerned with his or her own problems that he or she forgets there is a partnership. In partnership, there is sharing, there is mutual con-

Livestock Sales Involve Taxes

By Herb Brevard
Many producers were forced to sell livestock during the drought of the past summer and fall. If the livestock were used for breeding or dairy purposes, the sales are considered an involuntary exchange for tax purposes, says Wayne Taylor, economist management for the TAES. The gain and resulting tax from involuntary exchanges, such as the sale of beef or dairy cows due to drought last summer, can be postponed if replacement property, cows in this example, is purchased within a specific replacement period. Only the gain from the number sold in excess of the normal sales can be postponed, Taylor points out. The replacement period begins on the date cows were sold and ends two years after the close of the tax year in which the first sale was made. None of the gain will be recognized or considered taxable gain if the replacement property costs are equal to or greater than the amount received due to the drought sale. Producers who were forced to sell cows due to drought should attach a statement to the 1984 tax return with the following information: 1) evidence of drought conditions that forced the sale; 2) the gain realized on the sale; 3) number and kind of livestock sold; and 4) the number that would have been sold as a usual practice in absence of a drought. This provision is available to livestock producers even though the county was not designated as eligible for drought relief assistance by the federal government. If a producer believes he is eligible for postponement of gain, he may obtain a copy of the farmers tax guide from the local county Extension agent or check with his accountant.

Wheat Running Out Of Nitrogen

By Paul D. Payne
Field after field of wheat in Lamar County and entire area is showing yellowing and generally unthrifty growth characteristics. Yellowing in wheat and other small grains can be caused by a number of factors, but a lack of nitrogen is a good possibility this year. Even though some fields have received adequate nitrogen applications, deficiency symptoms are apparent due to weather conditions. Prolonged wet conditions has caused leaching of available nitrogen such that the majority of available nitrogen is below the effective root zone of the plant. This is particularly true in coarse soils which have received the high rainfall. In the case of low saturated areas in fields, nitrogen losses occur through a gaseous volatilization called denitrification. Yellow coloration in these areas is caused not only by nitrogen deficiency, but also by a loss of air in the soil. This occurs when the water replaces the air in the root area and prevents the plant from respiring normally. According to Dr. Travis Miller, agronomist at Texas A&M, all nutrient uptake is halted until water levels recede. This is why some of the yellow wheat has greened up during the last week or so. We have seen the above condition in some wheat fields in the county where the limestone rock was pretty close to the top of the ground. The soil was completely saturated and roots were not able to breathe. Nitrogen deficiency is typified by a uniform pale green or yellow color of the leaves of the affected plants. Older leaves show the most pronounced symptoms, with new leaves often showing less yellowing. A topdress application of 30 to 40 pounds of actual nitrogen could cause a good response and prevent further loss of forage. There are other causes of yellowing, greenbugs, winter grain mite and mildew. However, these are easily differentiated from that of nitrogen deficiency. The feeding pattern of greenbugs are normally in an irregular circular pattern. In most instances, greenbugs start at the edge of the field and feed to the center.

The term "leathernecks" was not originally applied to the U.S. Marines but to light infantry men of Revolutionary times who wore leather helmets.

Buck's Pony And The Cockleburrs

By Wm. C. Barnard

Buck Mathis lived with my grandparents. He was about the same age as Uncle Irby, and shared an upstairs with him.

Automobiles were not in general use at this time, and young people went courting in buggies.

Buck had a pretty bay horse and harness, and a new rubber tired buggy. One day Buck's horse got into a cocklebur patch and came up with his mane and tail matted solid with cockleburrs.

Buck wouldn't think of asking a young lady to go riding when his horse looked the way he did, so he offered Joe Barnard and I a dime to comb out the burrs. We accepted the job and went to work with curry comb and horse brush.

After an hour or so we hadn't made much progress so we decided to use the mule shears and cut the burrs out. That got the burrs out all right, but it got most of the hair also.

When Buck saw his horse, he was very unhappy. In fact he was so unhappy that he decided to give us a whipping.

We outran him, but that only delayed the punishment. A few days after the deburring incident, Joe and I were up in Buck's room leaning out an open window idly away our time when Buck discovered us. He went around to the stairway, slipped up to his room, and behind us. Before we knew it, he let the window down on us and latched it. It was so tight we couldn't get out.

Buck leisurely removed his belt, worked us over real good, and then opened the window.

Agricultural Weekly

By Herb Brevard

Many farm ponds which were extremely low during the summer and early fall have caught a tremendous amount of water during the past few weeks. Although some ponds are still not full, many pond owners are anxious to stock fish fingerlings, says Billy Higginbotham.

Higginbotham says there are good indications that ponds which received a lot of runoff in acid soil areas need to have a ph and total alkalinity test prior to stocking to determine the ponds suitability for fish growth and survival.

The ph of pond water should range between 6.5 and 9 while the total alkalinity should measure at least 20 parts per million. Many East Texas farm ponds often run below the minimum recommended ph level.

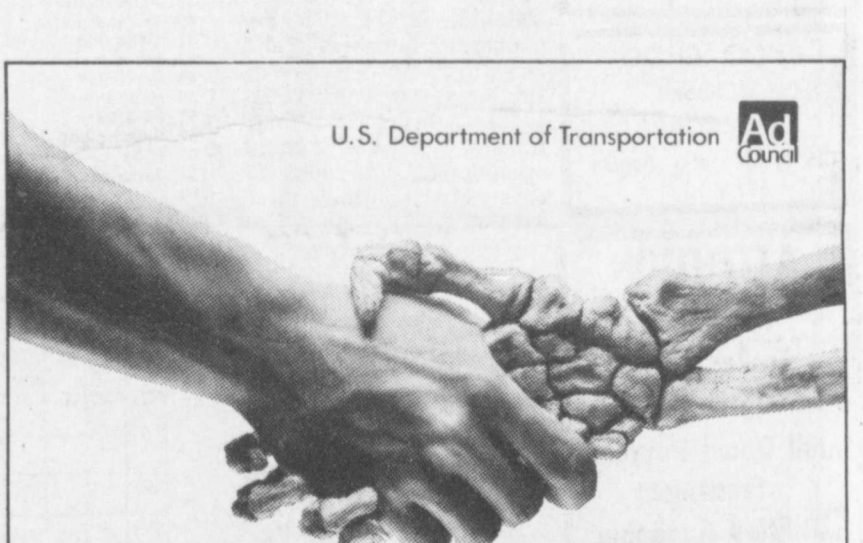

Low ph can reduce growth and reproduction. In extreme cases, death of the fish can occur. Low total alkalinity will decrease the effects of fertilizer program which many pond owners practice in the spring.

Farm pond water sample analysis is available through the local county Extension agent.

According to Higginbotham, the supply of fingerlings is excellent, with numerous producers in East Texas. During the fall is an excellent time to stock farm ponds if the water quality is a dequate.
