4-H

A while has passed since we last met and we need to regroup and get ready for all the hustle and bustle that summer brings. With this in mind, the next parents and leaders meeting will be Monday, April 29 at 7:30 at Texas Power and Light Building.

Remember, these meetings are open to all 4-H leaders and parents in the county and if you are interested in attending, please feel free to attend.

The 1985 State 4-H Congress will be held on the Texas Tech University Campus in Lubbock on July 9-12. Lamar County is allotted three delegates to Congress.

There are two types of 4-H Congress, one is held in Austin on even numbered years. The other is held in various localities in Texas on odd numbered years. A member may attend only one of each kind. A member must also be between the ages of 15 and 19 years old.

The cost will be $155.00 for room, meals at Congress and bus transportation. Members will also need about $10 for meals while traveling to and from Lubbock and about $20 spending money.

If you are eligible and interested in attending, please contact the office as soon as possible because the pre-registration forms are due in the District office by May 15.

Straight Answers to Your Questions

Q: Why can't something be done to stop increases in electric rates? What can I do about my total bill?

A: The company is doing everything possible to stop increases. However, in this age of constant inflation, everything purchased to deliver dependable electric service to you is increasing in cost. Everything from utility poles, wire, taxes, and fuel to generate electric power has increased every year for the past decade.

While we cannot control this external inflation to completely stop rate increases, we have been successful in keeping increases to a minimum through diligent efforts of our personnel.

The reason utility bills are higher today is not just rate increases, but increased usage. Because of more and more labor saving appliances, most homes are simply using more electricity from year to year. Heating and air conditioning are two of the high users of electricity. You can help control your electric bill by using electricity wisely and insulating your home properly.

FmHa Announces Most Crop Loans Processed

The Texas State Director of Farmers Home Administration, J. Lynn Futch, announced recently that approximately 90% of the farm loan applications received from farmers to finance their 85 crops have been processed. Field personnel are using all of the tools available such as the Debt Set-Aside Program, limited resource loans, subordinations, rescheduling, and reamortization, to assist farmers in developing a workable farm plan. The state Director estimates that more than 95% of the Texas farmers, who farmed in 1984, were able to get financing if they chose to continue to farm in 1985.

Futch reported that FmHA has made more than 4,300 farm loans in the state for about $286 million this year. Applications continue to be processed. The fiscal year ends September 30, 1985.

Farmers Home Administration is a Rural Credit Agency of the United States Department of Agriculture serving the needs of farmers unable to obtain credit through their regular lenders. FmHA programs operate as a supplement to credit made available by other lenders, not in competition with them.

Combatting Horn Fly Resistance To Ear Tags

During the past year, horn flies have begun to develop some resistance to ear tags impregnated with pyrethroid insecticides.

Cattlemen using insecticide ear tags on their herds need to keep a close check on control once the horn fly season is at hand to determine whether or not the tags are effective, says Bob Moody, County Agent with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, the Texas A&M University System.

He also suggests these strategies for managing horn flies: --

Do not apply insecticide treated ear tags to animals before economically damaging populations of horn flies develop.

Horn fly resistance to pyrethroid insecticides can be suspected if new tags have not satisfactorily reduced fly numbers with 10 to 12 days.

Spray, pour-on, spot-on or dust treatments with phosphate compounds, coumaphos, crotoxyphos, dichlorovos, dioxathion, or malathion, provide a different mode of killing action and can be used to reduce pyrethroid resistance and to control horn fly populations.

Whole-body sprays of pyrethroid insecticides should not be used to control resistant flies which cannot be controlled with ear tags as these sprays will provide significantly higher selection levels of already resistant flies.

Pyrethroid ear tags can be used successfully where the spinose ear tick and Gulf Coast tick are the target pest. Use alternate control methods for these ticks of pyrethroid resistance has developed in the horn fly population.

Remove ear tags from animals as soon as they have lost their effectiveness in killing target pests. Tags emitting a sublethal dose to the animal appear to add to the resistance problem by killing or weakening susceptible individuals in the population.

Suggestions for managing the horn fly resistance problem must be considered on a herd-by-herd basis, notes Moody. Provided as well as possible cases of resistance already at hand.

4-H

By John R. Senter
The time is here for all 4-H'ers to be pretty much settled into the method demonstrations that you will be doing at District Roundup on April 27.

You should have the demonstration written and be well on the way to having them memorized at this point in time. Also, if you have not called the office to let us know the type of demonstration you will be doing, do this immediately.

All demonstrations, illustrated talks and speeches will be given at County Roundup Monday, April 8 at Delmar High School Auditorium at 7 p.m. This will allow you to gain experience giving your presentations and will also qualify you for the District Competition.

The Texas Forest Association and the Texas Forest Service are now taking applications for their annual Short Course to be held June 24-28 at Wilkes Lodge in Avinger.

Participants must be between the ages of 13-16 and cannot have attended the camp before to be eligible. A fee of $40 is required and covers all costs, including meals and lodging.

Participants will study tree I.D., forest wildlife, forest watershed, forest pests, forest protection and several other aspects of forests and the economics of forestry. The camp also offers a chance to be with other 4-H'ers from across the state, make new friends and trade ideas.

Horse enthusiasts will be interested to note that there will be an open horse show Saturday, March 30 at the Hunt County Fairgrounds.

Registration will begin at 7:45 a.m. and the judging will start at 9 a.m. There will be 14 halter classes and 24 performance classes. Entry fee is $3.00 per class. If you need more specifics, please let me know.

The Leonard Show has been cancelled. Everyone can save your money for the entry fees and your breath for anymore rumors, for later use.

Brucellosis Control Progress Being Made

State livestock producers are continuing to show excellent progress in control of brucellosis, Robert Bartlett, chairman, Texas Animal Health Commission, reports.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture reports that Texas will become a Class B state by September 1986. Texas is currently divided into a Class B and Class C State. A total of 144 counties are in the B classification and 110 are in the C classification.

That will result in fewer restrictions on movement of cattle for the state's livestock producers.

In every area used to measure progress in brucellosis control, the Texas program is moving ahead. Bartlett cited these figures:

Certified free herds: As of March 1, there were 1,373 certified brucellosis free herds; that compares to 1,185 in 1984 and only 492 in 1982.

Vaccinations: 44.6% of the eligible heifers were vaccinated in fiscal year 1984 compared to 35.6% in fiscal year 1983 and 33.1% in fiscal year 1982. Through the first six months of fiscal year 1985, it is estimated that 29% of eligible heifers have been vaccinated compared to 28% in the first six months of fiscal year 1984.

Leaf Rust Not Developing

By Herb Brevard
Leaf rust is not developing at the magnitude originally expected, says Dr. George Philley, plant pathologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The infestation was heavy in south and central Texas and based on weather conditions, it should have increased in East Texas. With the current situation, East Texas wheat producers may be able to make the crop before leaf rust develops into damaging levels.

Wheat is currently in all stages of development. Therefore, producers should continue to monitor field, especially those varieties that were known to rust heavily in previous years.

Philley says that benefits from fungicides decrease rapidly after the wheat pollinates. The best time to spray, if needed, is as the flag leaf emerges. This is generally two weeks or more before heading.

Questions have been asked about the feasibility of pruning roses this late in the season. Normally, rose pruning is done about three to four weeks before the average date of the last killing frost. An exception to this rule involves climbing roses which need to be pruned after flowering in early spring.

On all roses, consider the cutting of the flowers as a form of pruning. When gathering roses, always leave at least two sets of leaves on the branch from which the flower is cut to insure plant vigor. When removing faded spent flowers, cut only as far as the first five-leaflet leaf.

Weekly Agricultural Update

By Herb Brevard
To make a profit, the cow herd must be operated as a business, says Dr. Randall Grooms livestock specialist for Texas Agricultural Extension Service. This means that all decisions should be made to decrease costs and increase income.

Cattlemen should develop a plan for their entire operation and set goals to be reached in a reasonable length of time. Just setting goals does not accomplish much unless the producer works toward these goals in all management and marketing decisions. All management decisions should be designated with a profit in mind. If the expense will not turn to profit, the expenditure should probably not be made.

Grooms says that the producer must cull the herd ruthlessly. If a cow is not producing a calf every twelve months, she should be sold immediately. Investment in bulls that will improve the weaning weights of the calf crop is a must. Genetics is probably one of the least expensive investments a producer can make. Building productivity into the cow herd can return a profit on investment very rapidly.

Another point Grooms makes is that the producer must grow and utilize quality forage to match the cows nutritional needs. He points out that this is fundamental to success in any cow herd. Fertilization, liming and weed control should be used when they will pay dividends. The timing of the calving season to match the production of lush high quality forage will produce heavier calves and maintain the cow in a condition to breed back in time.

When night temperatures get above 60 degrees, bermudagrass should really begin growing. According to Dr. Sim A. Reeves, Jr., agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, these grasses need to be properly fertilized for optimum production.

Grasses use nitrogen, phosphorus and potassium in a 3-1-2 ratio. Soil tests are the accurate method of determining the exact fertilization program to follow. However, without a soil test, as fertilizer that fits the ratio, such as 16-6-12 or 21-7-14, should be applied.

The highest quality hay is produced in the spring. Spraying broadleaf weeds in the hay meadow with an approved herbicide will increase the quality of the hay produced. It is too late to apply a pre-emerge herbicide, therefore, a post-emerge herbicide should be used. Several are available that will do a good job.

The sprayer should be accurately calibrated before applying the herbicides. Reeves says that you must know how much water is being applied per acre to determine the amount of herbicide to mix with the water. Too little herbicide does not give weed control. Too much herbicide is expensive and could damage the forage.

This is the time when Eastern tent caterpillars begin showing up in the southern part of the state, says Dr. James Robinson, entomologist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The caterpillars will hit northeast Texas about the middle of March and infest wild plums, peaches, cherry and other trees. Several insecticides, including Sevin, malathion and Dipel, are available for controlling the Eastern tent caterpillar. It is very important to use enough pressure on the sprayer to get the insecticide inside the web.

Pecan phylloxera attacks pecan and hickory trees in East Texas. Dormant oils can be applied to control the insect before bud break. This is a critical time in the application of the oils. It must be applied prior to bud break or damage could be done to the tree. Pecan phylloxera forms galls on the leaves of the trees and once the galls are formed, there is no way to control the pests. After bud break and about the time leaves come out, the crawler stage can be controlled with the application of Zolone, diazanon, malathion or other approved insecticides.

Dr. Robinson says producers should start looking for greenbugs on small grain. If the small grain is used for grazing only, treatment will probably not be necessary. If grain is to be produced, methyl parathion is probably the cheapest method of treating. Robinson says don't get excited over just a few greenbugs. Wait on the weather and the development of the insects to determine the feasibility of control.

Weekly Ag Update

With the warmer weather and moisture arrowleaf clover in pastures is really beginning to grow. There are three varieties of arrowleaf, Yuchi, Meechee and Amclo. Most cooperators in Lamar County plant the Yuchi which has proven to be one of the better clovers.

Yuchi grows well on most soils, according to Charles Nimmo, conservation technician. The only factor which might be detrimental to its growth would be on wet natured soils, he adds.

Nimmo states that Yuchi requires phosphate and potash fertilizer for optimum growth. A fall application is usually better. Early spring fertilization may be made, however, using a small amount of nitrogen along with the phosphate and potash.

It is important, according to some of these growing clover, to have good growth on clover in the spring. Not only does it give more grazing or hay, but it stores nitrogen in the soil to be used later by the permanent grasses.

If clover is growing on bermudagrass hayland then it can usually be baled in May. This will keep the bermudagrass from smothering out and also allow the clover to reseed.

More information on the management of clover and pastures can be obtained through your district Soil Conservation Service office.
