Who out there saves recipes, articles and instructions on how to make things? Who can find those same articles when they want them?

Most people tend to be just like me...they clip and save, but simply can't rustle up the required piece of paper when it is wanted.

Every time Southern Living magazine comes in, I end up snipping out recipes, tips on growing certain plants or making a patio...and filing them in the drawer or cubbyhole that is nearest at hand.

They gradually sift to the bottom of the pile of stuff...rare to be seen again!

My recipe files look like a cross between a rat's den and a library.

My cookbook bristles with enough markers for a porcupine.

The same cookbooks usually fall open to the same few much-used recipes automatically...no looking required.

For all the recipes and articles saved, only a tiny percentage are ever actually put into active use!

Ideas can rattle around inside a man's head for years, before he begins looking for the instructions on how to build shelves, porch swings or lawn furniture.

But by then those directions will have fled into the never, never land of unreclaimable stuff.

Somewhere in the world there lives a person...or persons...who have their lives organized.

In their world, they have files for each and every one of those recipes or articles. They have them properly labeled. They know where the files are...and most importantly, they return the recipes after use to their proper place.

These people are organized. They are dependable, they are achievers. They are also absolutely amazing to someone as hap-hazard as myself.

I've also never met one. If you know one, send 'em by, maybe they could tell me how to turn my life around!!

Summer Vacations... The Coinage Of The Young

By Nanalee Nichols

School is out for the summer. To most adults, it doesn't mean much more than arranging for the kids to be taken care of while school isn't in session.

But for youngsters it is a golden time...a magic time that lingers forever in the memory.

Now, with the last remnants of spring's gauzy days fading into the hotter months of an East Texas summer, youngsters come armed with pocketfuls of days like a special coin for youth.

They will spend from that supply through June, July and August, and always, when school comes round again, feel surprise that their special time went by so fast.

The coins of youth are swimming pools and movies, long bike rides, fishing and horseback riding, summer projects ranging from the first taste of adult work to building a "dam" across a two foot ditch.

Who fails to recall the icy chill of the first dip in the swimming pool on a blistering day in July? And who has ever felt a pleasure or excitement so great since they became an adult?

Cold soft drinks and homemade ice cream, icy watermelon under a huge shade tree...these are the same pleasures today that were enjoyed years and generations ago.

There was a certain moment of suspense when it was time to cut watermelons. Would it be ripe and sweet? As the knife split the succulent melon it's length, small hands grabbed for the bright pink flesh, studded with black seeds. And these are probably as many, if not more, youngsters partaking of the tasty treat today as there was "back when".

The pride of accomplishment upon first working on a hay meadow, painting on a house, learning to drive a car...these facts are fixed solidly for almost every school-age youngster.

The suspense of waiting for birthdays, July 4th, vacation trips all combine to make summer a special season as that of Christmas for those who are young...or simply young at heart.

Oh, sure, before long parents will be plagued with "what's to do" and "I'm bored", but very few youngsters really are happy for school to start.

All too soon their pockets will be empty of their "summer money" and school will be in session once more.

The blackboards and reports, numbers and playground equipment will take over their lives again...and all too soon their summer vacations will be over for good.

But, next summer will come soon, and with it yet another generation of kids prepared to enjoy the benefits of summer time.

SCHOOL DAYS are gone and the playground deserted for now, but not for long. Youngsters will soon be complaining "where did the summer go?" (Staff Photo)

Nixon Receives Award

The directors of the Lamar Soil and Water Conservation District bestowed their highest honors Thursday on a Deport area farmer and a Paris Junior College instructor for their work during the past year promoting soil and water conservation in the county. The awards were presented to Gary Nixon of Deport and PJC's Bobby Walters at the weekly meeting of the Paris Founders Lions Club. Nixon has a 750-acre farm northwest of Deport near the Hoover Community. His farm is also located near the Deport Floodwater Retarding Structure which was built on property formerly owned by him. Ronnie Tidwell, director of the Soil Conservation Service office in Paris explained that as much as 50 tons of soil per year were washing off Nixon's pastures and into the flood control project. Following the development of a conservation plan, Nixon initiated a conservation program involving a close spaced high residue crop such as wheat.

Tidwell said Nixon also built grassed waterways and built almost five miles of wide, flatbased terraces to channel runoff water into the waterways. Residue from the previous crops are left in the field through the fall and winter to absorb the impact much of the annual winter and spring rains. Nixon said that conservation practices are important and he called for continuing the RC&D program so that more conservation work can be done. Currently, the RC&D program is one of many programs targeted to be cut from the federal budget in order to reduce the federal budget deficit.

By John R. Senter
June is creeping up on us rapidly and it means we must set our plans for the Council Retreat in concrete and make final arrangements.

With this in mind, we will also elect our 1985-86 council officers so they can help conduct the retreat. The officers will not take office until September 1.

I encourage each of you to check the copy of 4-H Council Standing Rules, you received last year, concerning office eligibility.

The pictures from the April junior show are ready. We took the liberty of picking up the pictures for the buyers and also the pictures that are paid for and we have them in the office.

The buyers banquet is the 18th and I encourage you to get a frame for your buyer's picture before the banquet.

You can pick your pictures up at the office if you have already paid. If you have not paid, they are still at Bob Long's Photography, and you can pay for them and get them there.

Pecan Nut Casebearers Are Active

By Herb Brevard
Pecan nut casebearers are becoming active in East Texas, according to Dr. James Robinson, entomologist. Some producers are spraying for the insect this week in the Tyler area.
Populations of the pecan nut casebearer are spotted. In some orchards, the insect is still in the egg stage while larvae are becoming active in toehrs. As a result, individual producers must determine the stage of the life cycle in their particular orchard. It usually takes about three or four days from the time the eggs are laid until the larvae are hatched and become active.
In the Texarkana area, Robinson says it looks like the time to spray will be about the week of May 26 through 31. However, it could be slightly later. Producers must inspect their orchards frequently to determine the exact time to spray.
Zolone and malathion are approved for pecan nut casebearer control. Other insecticides are also available for commercial producers. A sprayer which can develop 200 to 300 pounds of pressure is required for adequate control. The entire tree must be sprayed. However, homeowners with one or two trees may not be able to spray the entire tree, especially larger ones. In these instances, they should spray as high as possible on the tree.

Robinson also says that ticks are becoming active in many areas. Persons should take precautions themselves when walking in tall grass or in the woods. Many people are picking wild blackberries and this is an ideal time and place to get an infestation of both ticks and chiggers. Dursban, diazinon, malathion and sevin are all approved for tick control.

Beginners Typing To Be Taught

A class in beginning typing will be taught at Paris Junior College for three weeks starting June 3, said June Jones, director of community services at the college.
The class for high school age students will be included as part of PJC's summer program for youth. Classes will be from 6 to 8:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday during the three weeks. Fee for the 30 hour course is $60.00.
Reservations may be made by paying the fee in advance in the PJC community services office, Alford Center or by calling 784-9445 or 9447.
