

Going Back To School A Special Time

Perhaps the picture outside of one school door says it best. The sidewalk is newly poured concrete, wide as a boulevard. Fresh, is rain-soaked sand, raked up to the edge, and teachers have herded dozens of youngsters across and into the school building.

One youngster, however, takes a fleeting glance back at fast-receding freedom and launches his own silent, lightning fast protest. Pivoting he jams a new-sneakered foot firmly into the mud and streaks for the door, uncaught, unnoticed.

For many youngsters, the yearly return to school is like that...a rebellious protest, then acceptance.

For some the school year comes with joy, others hate the whole idea...but all do go.

The educational process is almost as certain as the process of growing up. Each year the child faces new situations, new challenges, new ideas.

It is, almost without fail, a little frightening. Will the work be too difficult?...will there be friends?...activities?...popularity? The older the student becomes, the more important peer acceptance becomes.

Within the teacher and administration structure, the wheels are quietly and smoothly at work. The murmur of the teachers voices fill the hall with a quiet hum, bright posters decorate freshly painted walls, and the office flurries with activity as problems and facts pour in.

The first week of school makes allowances for a lack of routine...schedules must be set, acceptance that yes, the school year

HAS begun takes a few days. The gym awaits the year long scuffling it will receive, the lunchroom cooks hope they have the correct amount of food prepared.

In the kindergarten rooms, a few youngsters sit with buried heads, and tear-streaked faces while others embrace all the newness joyfully.

It is a time of vague sadness, and a time of happiness. School has begun...the learning goes on. And learning is, after all, what school is all about.

Reading, writing, math, higher learning, computer science, history, these things equip each student for a "shot" at advancement in life.

The first week of school each year may, indeed, be some of the most important days in each child's life.

NICHOLS' WORTH

Slow rain, drizzling down, plopping off the eaves, puddling on the ground. It sounds, to a summer-dry area, good.

It also, for many, including myself, invokes memories ranging from childhood on.

Rainy days are special, when they come on weekends or holidays in particular.

In summer, when no one is weary of weeks of gray skies or rain, it sets the mood for lazy days.

As a child, such a day meant fun...such as helping mother bake cookies in the shapes of rabbits or turtles, or being read to by my older brothers. Now I realize, of course, that all of this activity was in self defense, to keep me from driving them nuts around the house!

Nonetheless, it's a good memory, one of the earliest I have.

Slow rain makes perfect napping weather for those who enjoy napping. What is more soothing than the steady dripping outside the window...or the patter on a roof.

For those who are big readers, rainy days were simply MADE to read. A glass of tea...comfortable chair...good book. HEAVEN!

It's difficult to rush when the rain is falling, so that whatever project is underway obtains a relaxed atmosphere frequently lacking on sunny days.

Gardeners take pleasure from all the healthy moisture falling on their plants...farmers the same. Besides, who can work in the yard in the rain? No, perfect excuse to do something different.

Those who paint do, those who watch television have an absolute orgy of watching the tube, those who like to play games gather everyone they can around and break out the dominoes, cards or games.

Coffee perking, supper cooking, cool breeze blowing in the open window, it's all enough to send most anyone with a lazy bone in their body (no matter how small a bone, or well hidden) into a state that borders on catatonic.

This past weekend was a classic example...and I do hope everyone enjoyed it as much as we did!

School Board Lowers Tax Rate

At a special called meeting of the Prairiland CISD Board on Tuesday night, the board set the 1986 tax rate.

The previous 77 cents per $100 evaluation tax rate was lowered by 58.36 cents per $100 evaluation.

This was done because of the increase in evaluations brought about by the county-wide reappraisals.

The new rates and evaluations will bring in approximately $11,000 more than last year's taxes for the school district.

The board approved the 1986-87 budget. For the year's expenditures, the budget was set at $3,256,550.00. The revenues will be $3,261,756.00. Approximately $5,206.00 will be left in reserves.

The board approved financial report, payment of bills and the minutes.

Rainfall Widely Varied

Area rains have ranged from two inch floods to drizzles that barely soaked the ground this past week.

Depending upon what town, indeed what block, one lives on, rainfall has varied drastically.

The accompanying cool weather, which has remained cloudy and with a pleasant breeze, has made the weather more like early October than late August.

September came in with rainfall and cloudy skies, and many hope summer's grip has been broken for this year.

Cotton farmers are waiting for the land to dry so they can begin applying drop leaf or acid to begin the fall cotton harvest.

Vandals Slash Tires

Vandals slashed and punctured fifteen tires on the Tide Fertilizer lot in Deport last Thursday night, damaging some beyond repair by slicing chunks out of them, simply puncturing others.

Paul R. Keys stated that they didn't know how many of the tires might be repairable, but that if they all had to be replaced, their cost would total about $1,400 to $1,500.

Overall Impression Of Maritime Provinces Favorable

By Nanalee Nichols

For those who have followed us about Canada, our arrival at Prince Edward Island will come as no surprise. Prince Edward Island lies off the coast of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, only 108 feet at its highest point, and totally different from its' neighbors.

The island can only be reached by ferry, and these ferries are quite a change from the little barge pushed by a tug boat we encountered earlier on the trip.

The fourteen mile trip from Pictou to the island is accomplished aboard a ship large enough to carry about 150 cars, plus a dozen semi-tractor-trailer and a couple of full sized buses.

After parking, cars are left and everyone wanders upstairs to eat at the cafe, or sit in the lounges looking out at the waves. It's a great time to meet people. One lady was from New Zealand, traveling with her husband and a half-grown Abyssinian cat named John William. Another family was from England.

The island is beautiful farming country. The soil is red and rich, and so loose it won't pack at all.

After driving onto a small back road, Thomas wasted no time finding a farmer spraying potatoes. We crawled out, "howdied" and settled in for a full hour of farming conversation. The fellow's brother turned up soon, and we all swapped information about what crops grow in Texas, what in Prince Edward Island.

One thing was certain...the prices are as poor up there as they are down here, the bugs just as bad.

I investigated a patch of parsnips, the first I'd ever seen. Carrots, potatoes, cabbage as big as a wash tub, and grain mostly accounts for the farming on the island.

Beef and a few dairy cattle spice the lush green landscape, and cities are small...in fact, only one, Charlottetown, is really a city.

The people are friendly and helpful and the beaches some of the most beautiful in the world.

We tried to locate seals at Seal Cove, but they weren't sunning themselves that particular day.

Then we decided it was time to find a motel. That was when our problem arose. There were no motels available anywhere near. And since the ferries were about to stop running for the day, it was kind of a spooky feeling!

Finally, fifty miles later, we found a place to spend the night. Class it wasn't, clean it at least was.

From then on it was a homeward trek. We took the ferry from Bordne on to the New Brunswick mainland and began driving through the heavily wooded areas of the province. The roads were good, the scenery still beautiful, but there were miles and miles of heavy forest.

We entered Maine once more, having changed our Canadian money back into American, wandered around in an ancient graveyard filled with jet black granite stones, and passed a rodeo and heavy horse pulling contest too near over with to stop for.

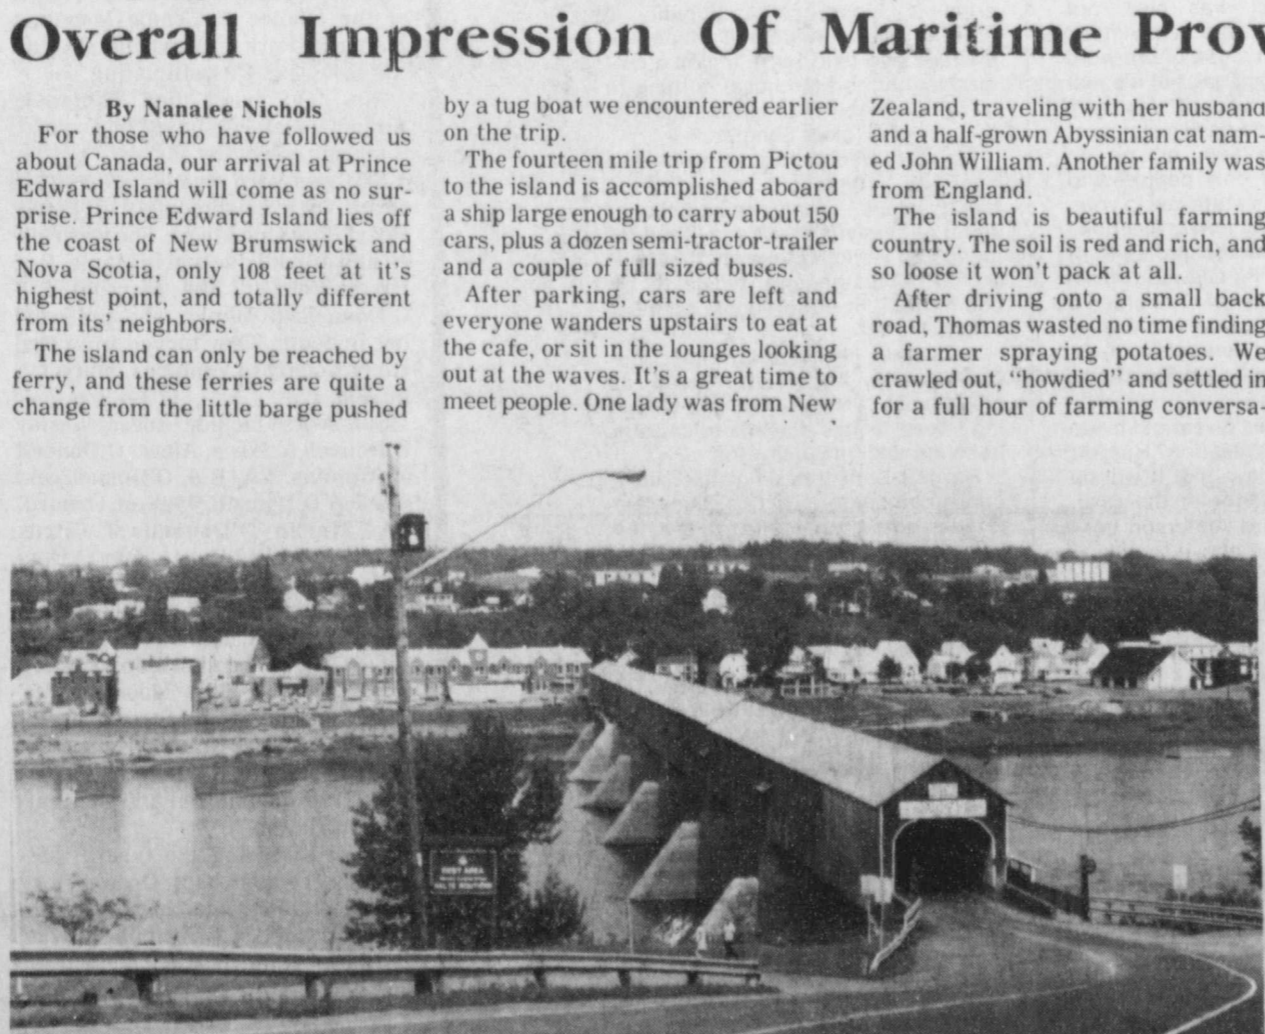

Back in Bangor, we traveled down to Mt. Desert Island, where we spent one of the most special days of the whole trip.

Acadia National Park there is filled with fascinating natural beauty. Cadillac Mountain is pink...literally. Made from pink stone, it is rosy and bare. The Thunder Holde is an underground (or under sea) cavern which booms and spews water out under tremendous pressure. Deer, small animals and birds abound.

At Jordan's Pond we had lunch in a huge pine dining room overlooking what we would term a lake...Jordan's Pond.

The room is filled with photographs of the local countryside, a roaring fireplace and fresh flowers. For me, it was one of the most pleasant afternoons we spent.

The Maritime Provinces of Canada will remain always in our minds as one of the most beautiful places we have ever visited. The friendly people added much to the feeling that they are special, spectacular and very, very much worth the trip.

WORLD'S LONGEST-This covered bridge in Hartland, New Brunswick, is the longest in the world, at 1,843 feet. It is said that anyone who can hold their breath from one end to the other and make a wish is granted that wish. Actually, it's nearly impossible to do! (Staff Photo)

When you elect my Dad to fill this chair, he knows you'll be asking him to live up to an East Texas tradition going back over 50 years.

I'm Ashley Anderson. I hope you will vote for my dad, Richard Anderson, to be your next State Senator. I know my dad can do a good job. He understands the East Texas values of hard work and caring about others. Dad's opponent, Edd Hargett, has tried to use me to keep my father from ever filling this seat in the Senate. Mr. Hargett doesn't mind throwing mud at another man's family just to try and win an election. Those weren't the values I was raised on. I don't think it's right for anyone to run for office by saying unfair and untrue things about his opponent's private family life. I hope that in East Texas we still vote for a candidate based on what he says about the real issues. I'm proud of my dad, and I know he has what it takes to fill Senator Aikin's chair. Please vote Saturday, September 13th, for Richard Anderson, and maybe someday you'll be just as proud of my dad as I am. Thank you.

Ashley Anderson
Ashley Anderson

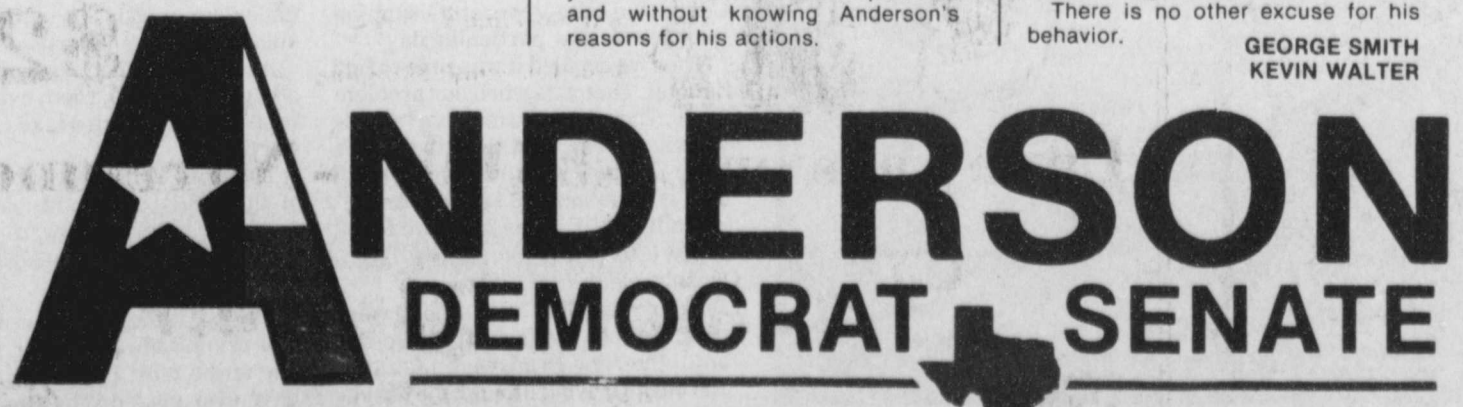

Candidate Hargett chooses the low road

Squeaky-clean Edd Hargett is squeaky-clean no longer. Hargett in a "news release," has elected to put legitimate issues in the background in his senatorial campaign against Harrison County Judge Richard Anderson and put the campaign on a bar ditch level. Last year, when congressional candidate Jim Chapman used a "scare tactic" involving a Social Security issue (an official-looking direct mail piece aimed at elderly voters), Hargett screamed like a wounded bear and rightly so. He said then that his opponent was throwing up smoke screens and not talking about the issues. Now Hargett is guilty of the same tactics. Hargett's misguided release deals with a non-issue in this campaign: Anderson's support, or non-support, of his daughter Ashley, following Anderson's divorce. Anderson appeared in court in Belton, Texas on charges of non-support, received a civil - not criminal - contempt of court citation from the judge, was held in custody for less than four hours and was ordered to pay child support.

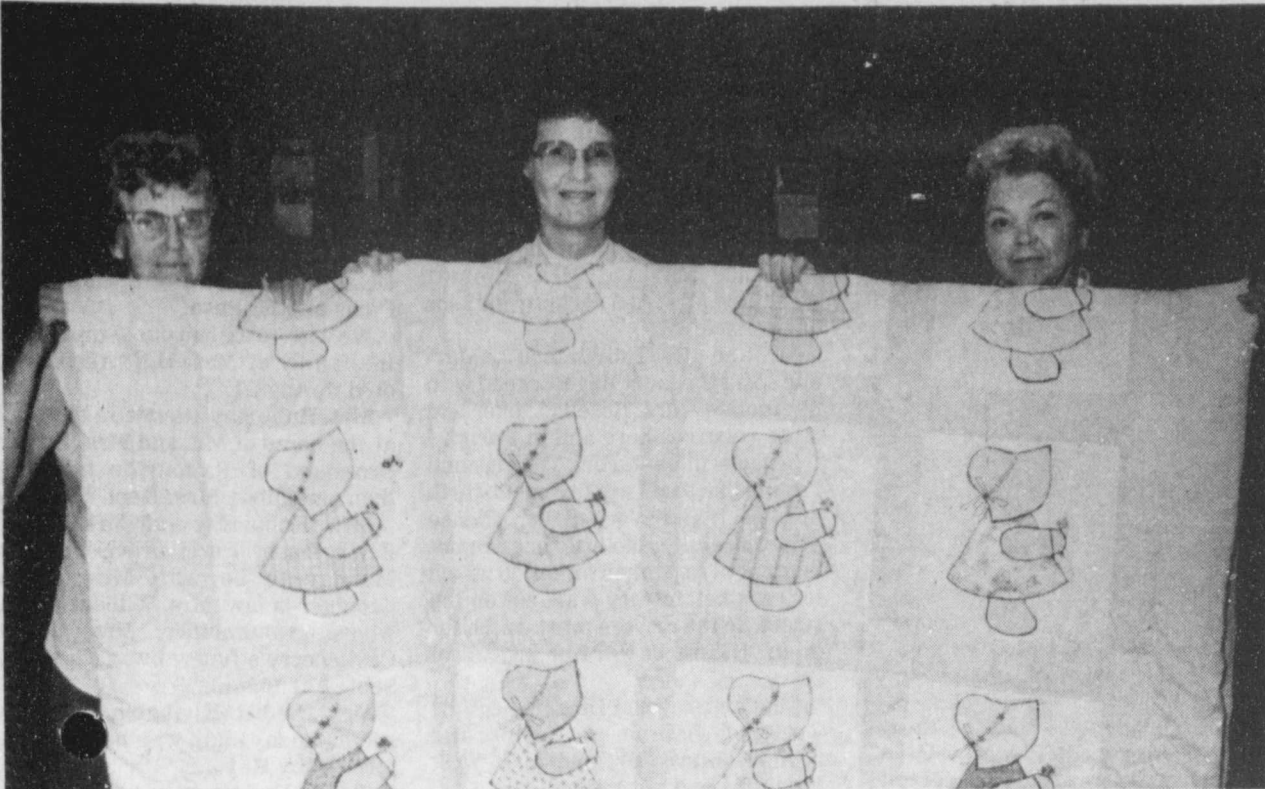

What does this have to do with the current race? "I believe East Texas needs a State Senator who will work to uphold the laws of our state, not violate them," Hargett said, piously. That claim is, at best, muddled. Only in the most indirect sense did Anderson break a law the matter was civil, not criminal. Anderson was "convicted" of nothing; Hargett's use of the word has inflammatory appeal, but it's just plain-wrong. And, Edd, if you only want opponents who have never, ever broken any state law, or, by inference, you want only people who have never broken a state law to vote, it would be a mighty lonely election. Hargett used selected quotes from Belton Judge J. F. Clawson from 6-year-old accounts of Anderson's contempt of court citation and tried to relate those to Anderson's attitude and ability to serve the 1st Senatorial District. So, what does this 6-year-old issue have to do with this election? Hargett would have us believe that it will be the determining factor in the race. "The fact is Richard Anderson considers himself to be above the law," Hargett says in the release. Quite an assumption for Hargett to make six years after the events in question, and without knowing Anderson's reasons for his actions.

That won't wash, Edd. Taking one incident six years ago that has nothing to do with the issues of today or a candidate's ability to serve the voters of East Texas is outrageous. The bottom line is this: Richard Anderson made a mistake six years ago, and whether it was a matter of principle, ignorance or stupidity is not the issue, Anderson made the mistake and paid for it. It was a civil matter that had (and has) nothing to do with his ability to serve constructively in the Texas Senate. Hargett, who thinks he owns the rights to "committed to traditional family values" - a phrase he uses instead of "experienced" and "I run on my record" - should take another look at his campaign and decide to be committed to traditional political values. And then he should debate the issues with Anderson instead of grasping at gutter politics and blowing cheap smoke screens to capture headline and, maybe, votes. Hargett until this point has run a good campaign. Tactics like this latest non-issue-issue mean he doesn't like the outcome of the primary election. He is afraid of the momentum that Anderson has, and he's running scared. There is no other excuse for his behavior.

PJC Offering Music Course

Music classes for students in grades 1 through 12 are scheduled to begin the week of September 2 at Paris Junior College, said Barry Russell, facilitator of the college's preparatory fine arts program.

The music program, for those ages 6 to 18, includes lessons in piano, voice, guitar and other instruments. Purpose of the program is to develop sound musicianship and performance skills necessary for the enlightened listener and amateur musician, Russell explained. It is also helpful for college-bound students planning to major in music.

Piano students receive instruction in playing by ear, composing and improvising, as well as learning to sight read and play the best of piano literature. Beginning piano classes are for students between the ages of 6 and 9. Students meet weekly for two 50-minute classes and special emphasis is given to the rudiments of piano theory as well as keyboard technique. After the first semester, students are enrolled in the intermediate class. Parents of students must have a conference with the instructor before enrollment.

Private instruction is given to students in voice, guitar or other instruments, Russell said. The lessons consist of one 30-minute class weekly. Students may take the lessons for their own enjoyment or to develop skills for college entrance or U.I.L. sponsored events.

Piano lessons for sixteen weeks will cost $145, and all other lessons for eight weeks will be $65. Private lessons and class times will be assigned after registration is made.

Registration may be completed by paying the fee in the Continuing Education Office at PJC or by calling 784-9447 for information on registration by mail.

NTCC To Offer Camera Course

Northeast Texas Community College will offer "You and Your Camera", a basic course on how to use a camera, instructed by Rusty Williams, II.

The student will gain knowledge of his own camera and learn to capture those shots so often missed. The course includes getting meter readings, setting the camera, properly exposing the film, lighting techniques, and the usage of various lenses. It doesn't matter what kind of camera you own, bring it anyway.

The class will meet six consecutive Tuesdays beginning September 9 through October 14 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the Humanities Building, Room 103. Tuition is $30.

For registration or further information, contact Lifelong Learning in the Administration Building on the NTCC campus at 1-800-441-8568 or 572-1911.

PJC Continuing Education Courses Set For Sept.

Varied continuing education programs and workshops including a new hunter safety course will begin in September at Paris Junior College, according to June Jones, director.

PJC's continuing education or community service programs are offered throughout the year to meet a variety of community needs. Although no college credit is awarded for the classes, continuing education units are given for successful completion of most courses. The CEU is a means of recording and accounting for various continuing education activities one accumulates, Mrs. Jones explained.

Admission is on a first come first served basis after students fill out a registration form and pay the fee. Fees are required in advance of the class starting date. The Continuing Education office is located in the Alford center on the PJC campus.

Drivers Ed will begin Tuesday, Sept. 2, taught from 4 to 6 p.m. Monday through Friday through Sept. 30. Observation and driving instruction is scheduled for the individual student. The course meets the requirements needed to obtain a Texas drivers license at the age of 15. It is also open to anyone interested in obtaining a drivers license. Fee is $165.

The eight hour class will be taught on Saturday, Sept. 6 from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Other classes will be offered Oct. 4, Nov. 1 and Dec. 6, the first Saturday in each month. Insurance discounts may be obtained and some traffic violations dismissed after completing the course. Fee is $25, and class size is limited.

Initial CPR: the initial course in basic cardiac life support, formerly called CPR, will be held on Thursdays, Sept. 9 and 16, from 6 to 10 p.m. in the downtown center of PJC. Fee is $20. Recertification BCLS courses are scheduled for Sept. 23 and 30 from 6 to 10 p.m.

Winter Pasture Planting Time Approaching

By Herb Brevard
 Winter pasture planting time is just around the corner and producers should be breaking the ground now for the winter pasture seedbed, says Dr. Sim A. Reeves, Jr., agronomist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. Due to slightly lower prices of fertilizer and seed, winter pastures should be a little cheaper this year. Small grains and ryegrass are sensitive to the pH level in the soil and do not grow well in acid soils. For good growth of winter pastures, the pH needs to be above 5.5. If a soil test shows that lime is needed, it should be applied before breaking the ground so that it can be incorporated into the soil. Phosphorus and potassium can also be applied before breaking. Reeves says do not apply nitrogen yet. Producers should have everything ready to plant small grains and ryegrass about the middle of September, either with moisture or dust it in. If land breaking is done now, a light disking might be needed just before planting to destroy small weeds and grasses. Reeves says that rye and wheat have given better results than oats in East Texas. Oats tend to freeze out in extremely cold winters. Producers may consider concentrating grazing on areas where sod seeding is planned or where clovers are expected to reseed. The shorter the grass sod, the better volunteer stand of clover or sod seeded small grains will be obtained.

Prairiland To Take Lunch Applications

The Prairiland C.I.S.D. will begin taking applications for free and reduced-price meals for the 1986-87 school year. Superintendent Leslie Taylor said application forms will be given to each student on the first day of school. These forms should be filled out by the parent or guardian and returned to the campus principal as soon as possible, he said. Application may also be made at any time during the school year should a family's income change during the year or if there is an increase in family size, Taylor said. Information will be kept confidential and verification checks on the information given will be made at times during the year, he said. Eligible students are urged to make application for this program, Taylor said. Prices for meals for the 1986-87 school year will be $1.00 for regular lunches and 50 cents for regular breakfast. Reduced-priced meals are 50 cents for lunches and 30 cents for breakfast.

Children from households with incomes not exceeding the family size and income specified below are eligible for free and reduced-price meals:
