1986 Leaves Memories For The "Attic"

By Nanalee Nichols

It's very hard to close out a year without some feelings of sadness, relief and regret.

The year 1986 is over now, through. No one has the chance to go back and redo what has been done...it is all relegated to the attic of memory.

And, like an attic, whatever has been shoved into that crowded space last has less dust on it and sparkles more. So it is with 1986 settle into the past.

As a natural part of life, some memories are painful and disturbing. The losses suffered during a year are permanent, leaving behind empty spaces unfilled by those gone.

Other losses may be in friendships, associates, or a variety of things.

It can be depressing to realize just how few things have been achieved over a yer. "Keeping above water" sometimes seems like a losing battle, especially during frightening economic times such as these.

For those who are on fixed incomes, those having lost jobs, those afraid of losing them, the upcoming new year can hold hopes for better things...or it may hold fear that the "water level" will make gains.

Unmet goals, unrealized dreams,

But for every unmet goal, there is usually at least one that was realized. For every loss there is usually a gain. If "staying above water" has been difficult...the effort has usually sharpened "swimming skills"!

Some years are bad years for some people. Others can truly say they have had a good year.

But no year is one or the other entirely. Those with bad years can find good things that happened...even in the worst of times. And those whose year has been successful and pleasant can always find a few unpleasant incidents to look back on.

Perhaps the main thing to consider is how to make plans for the future, how to strive to make things better, how to make 1987 better than 1986. It isn't always up to the individual. But when it is, every effort must be Looking back at those attic memories can be helpful and even pleasant.

But for 1987, don't forget to look forward. Set those goals, raise hopes, promise to do better. Hope is one of the things that sets humans apart from any other species.

The common baby rattle is probably one of the first and most coman infant becomes familiar ry little thought is needed to see that the bright colors and noisy sounds produced are the reason for the rattle's existence. However, that is not entirely the case. The rattle has it's origins in something much deeper...the well-being, indeed perhaps the survival of the infant itself! An article in "Early American Life" prompted some research on the subject, revealing some fascinating facts.

In the 17th and early 18th centuries, every well taken care of child had a "coral and bells". This was an ornate concoction of bells, whistle, or rattle, with a smooth, curved stick of coral on the end. The coral was for teething on. (Remember, soft substances such as rubber or plastic were not available.

The elaborate toys were family heirlooms, handed down for generations. Colonial records reveal that silversmiths were called upon to replace the coral, repair bells, straighten out dents. The toys were handcrafted by famous silversmiths (Paul Revere probably did a few), and were of real silver. Many colonial portraits of infants and small children show them grasping these unusual creations.

The forerunner of today's humble plastic rattle, right? Right. The whistle and bells were for entertainment, the coral for babies to chew on while cutting those pesky, painful teeth. Obviously

But what were the coral and bells a forerunner of? Why choose coral, why bells and whistle?

Because of the superstitions of even earlier times!

In earlier centuries, belief in witchcraft, sorcery and evil spirits was as common as today's faith in computers. Careful parents made sure their children were protected in as many ways as possible

Coral has been associated with protection against illness and demons for thousands of years. Ancient peoples used it powdered in medicines for treatment of illness, and carved it for amulets against physical and spiritual problems.

Evil spirits were thought to dislike the shrill, piercing tones of a whistle, almost every ancient culture believ-

Similarly, the rattle of beads or small stones, or the jingle of bells was thought to discourage evil from hanging around.

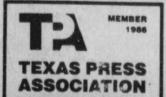

Therefore, the combination of coral, bells and whistles was a simple form of protection for baby, while providing entertainment and teething relief too!

In a time when infants were as likely to die before the age of five as to survive, frantic parents would avail themselves of whatever means they could to increase survival chances.

The next time there is a baby around, jingling a stuffed toy with a bell, or listening in delight to the sounds of a rattle, give a thought to the origin of those toys.

ple and innocent as they are today, there was once a time when they had a much more important role in an infant's upbringing!

The Prairiland Patriots were given a late present last Friday night as they participated in the Paris Classic and overcame the North Lamar Pan-

The boys came out and played their type of game, slow paced and ball control. The Pats were able, because of the tempo of the game, to curb their usual problem of turnovers and only

The game was close all the way through, however, the boys were able to keep the lead for most of the game. In the first period, Lloyd Whelchel was very active as he scored seven of the 17 points by the Pats and helped control the boards. The quarter ended with Prairiland on top by five and a score of 17-12.

In the second period, the Pats were plagued with missed shots on the charity strip, which allowed the Panthers to close the Patriot lead to only one at the end of the quarter, 29-28.

Ricky Minter came alive in the third period and scored six of the Patriot points. In spite of good playing, the Patriots were unable to widen the margin and the period ended 43-42. In the final period, Robbie Fults came off the bench and played an excellent game. The defense of the Patriots also awakened in the final period, as it recorded four steals. The Patriots were still, however, having trouble shooting their free throws which helped keep the Panthers in the game. With 1:30 left in the game, the Patriots were ahead by two.

The Patriots then moved ahead by six with: 48 remaining, but the Panthers quickly answered back and pulled back to within four points. And then, as one of the Panthers was driving to the lane, Jack Kindle picked him up and took a charge. The Panthers got upset about the call and were given a technical. David Jackson made both technical shots and ended all scoring at 60-54.

The Lady Patriots received a bag of switches from the Sulphur Springs Wildcats last Saturday as they (Wildcats) whipped the fems 59-42 in the North Lamar Classic

The girls played a much better game than the score indicates. The problem the fems had was missed shots. The fems were only able to connect on 28% of their shots. The first half was close despite the lack of scoring by the ladies. With the lack of scoring, the defense had to step up and play well and that's what it did. The girls pretty well dominated the boards. The half ended with the girls down only by seven, 29-22. In the third period, the ladies played more great defensive ball and held the Wildcats scoreless for almost four minutes, while themselves pulling to within one point. However, the Wildcats then caught fire and scored three straight baskets. Then Coach Johnson decided to put in his second team players, hoping that their speed, which was so much help in the win over Commerce, would cause some Wildcat turnovers. The second team was unable to get rolling and the Wildcats pulled away and ended the period on top 45-32.

The fems were unable to come back in the final period, in spite of very hard playing

If you are one of the exhibitors that plan to brave the masses in the April Junior Market Sheep Show, then take

In order for you to be able to show your lamb in April, the lamb must be validated. To get your lamb validated you must call Rick Zant at 785-2381 and give him your name and your parents names before Saturday,

This is the only time that your lamb can be validated for the show. It is up to you and only you to see that this is done on time, do not be late. Do not let months of work and lots of money go down the drain by not having your market lambs validated.

Also, do not forget the next sheep project group meeting. It will be held at 10 a.m. Saturday, January 3 at the fairbarn.

January 1 is coming fast. If you remember, this is the enrollment deadline for 4-H'ers who plan to show any kind of animal in the April Junior

If you plan to show and have not enrolled for some reason, you had better do it soon. If you know someone that is not enrolled and planning to show, then help them get in gear because January 2 it will be too late.

During the hustle and bustle of the holidays, try to find a few minutes to yourself and sit down and think about what kind of 1986 you had. Think about where you re in 4-H and then decide where you want to be in 4-H a year down the road.

Maybe it's an increase in projects you want, so add some. Maybe a club, county or district 4-H office is in your plans. Could be that you want to be a better and more active member, leader or parents.

In any case, remember one thing. Before someone else can help you, you have to help yourself. Nobody can do it for you. Take a few minutes and write down a few personal goals for 1987 on a sheet of paper. Then put that paper someplace so you can keep it. Refer back to it from time to time and see if you are on track to reach the goals you have set. If you will seriously work to attain those things you want to do, then you will find that somewhere along the way you have become a stronger 4-H'er and you have also done, learned and accomplished some things you did not plan on.

What it comes down to is the fact that simply by trying and putting forth some effort you have imporved yourself and isn't that what this program is all about?
