A Ghostly Tale Of Long-Ago

Editor's Note: When Ed Bryson volunteered to tell this ghost story, not long after the Deport Kiwanis Club and others had rescued the old cemetery from a welter of weeds, grass and undergrowth, we suspended he had in mind keeping alive public interest in the continuing maintenance of the historic burial grounds. But we'll go along on the assumption our readers will like it.

By Ed Bryson

This is a graveyard ghost story that goes back in my mind to 1912, when I became five years old.

It was told to me by a great-aunt, the widow of a Confederate Army soldier who drew a small pension and lived around among her kin, including my mother.

It is about the Old Deport Cemetery, the ghost, and a family that lived south of the graveyard. The ghost was of an unidentified dead man who was buried in a grave with only a bois d'arc stake to mark his grave.

Shortly after the burial, the man's ghost started showing up now and then at the home of the family who lived just west of the road that was then on the east side of the cemetery.

It was a dark and narrow road at night. Usually lonely and deserted.

Members of the family would be sitting around the fireplace talking low and fearfully waiting for the unwanted visitor from the graveyard.

Its coming was always the same and always about the same time at night. The clop-clop-clop of iron horseshoes on the winding road, the silence as the horse stopped at the front yard gate, followed by the soft scuff of shoes on the walk from the gate to the house and the flare of the coal oil lamp flickering as the spectral visitor walked through the closed door and came into the living room. Then the father of the family stood up and offered the ghost his rocker. The ghost sat down and stared silently at the fire.

Dressed in its burial suit, the ghost had a shadowy face and deep set eyes.

After a while, as the family sat silent and afraid, the ghost got up and left through the same closed door it had entered. Then, outside, the sound of creaking saddle leather was heard, followed by the clop-clop of the horse carrying the ghost back up the road to the graveyard.

When my old aunt first told me that story, which someone had told her, my hair stood up on end and my ears stuck straight out. But I managed to ask what happened to the ghost. Did it die?

"No," my aunt explained. "The ghost went away. When the family invited certain people from Deport to come down and join the ghost-watcher, an old woman among the guests told the family the words to say to make the ghost go away and never come back. The words were:

"In the name of God, please leave this house now and never return."

The next time the ghost showed up and came in the house, the head of the family repeated the magic words and the ghostly figure faded, went up the chimney with the wood smoke and was never seen again. And the clop-clop of its horse was heard no more, leading to the conclusion that the ghostly horse and rider disappeared together into the night sky.

A few days later, someone passing the old cemetery noticed that the bois d'arc stake was gone, leaving no marker at the grave, which perhaps yet remains lost and lonely, its whereabouts known only to the ghosts in their mysterious kingdom.

The story ended there, but my fear did not. Later, our family passed the cemetery in our old surrey, and Mama pointed to the house the ghost had visited, and I saw it all over in my mind's eye.

This was more than 70 years ago, but I can still see it. Especially on dark and lonely nights when I sit before the fireplace and watch the sparks follow the smoke up the chimney. And I still hear the clop-clop of the horse on the narrow and lonesome road beside the cemetery.

Hunter Education Course Slated

By Herb Brevard

A four night hunter education course is scheduled for August 24-27. Jointly sponsored by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Titus County Extension Natural Resources Committee, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and Northeast Texas Community College the course will meet in the Student Union building of the college. Classes begin at 6:30 p.m. and end at 9:30 p.m.

According to Dick McCarver, Titus County Extension agent, the course is open to adults and youngsters. Included are instructions in handling and safety of rifles, shotguns and archery equipment. Also, outdoor ethics, laws and regulations, conservation, hunting traditions, wildlife identification, field care of game, wilderness first aid and survival will be discussed.

A bill was recently signed into law authorizing the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission to establish a mandatory hunter education program. According to Texas Parks and Wildlife District Warden Dexter Harris, "Senate Bill 504 enables the Parks and Wildlife Department to set up a training course and require persons of a specified age to complete the course before hunting in Texas with firearms or archery. However, the implementation depends upon availability of funds. No deadline was included for establishing the program."

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department currently has a volunteer hunter education program using volunteer instructors who certify about 13,000 students annually. The Texas course is recognized by other states that require non-resident hunters to complete a hunting safety course before being issued a hunting license.

Students 12 years of age or older successfully completing the course August 24-27 will be issued a hunter safety card from the Parks and Wildlife Department. A fee of $1.00 per student includes registration and materials.

Travel Scams On Increase

"Everybody loves travel bargains, including crooks," warned J. Don Clark recently, director of the state highway department's Travel and Information Division.

Clark said that Texas travelers are being victimized by spurious "travel packages" offered by shady travel service operators. "Initiation contact is often by telephone," Clark said, "offering what sounds like a certificate good for round trip air fare to Hawaii, for only $29."

"Actually," said Clark, "the certificates are usually nothing more than reservation forms for advance bookings. After the first payment, more fees keep appearing, deposits, pre-payment for transportation, lodging and other hidden costs than can amount to hundreds, or thousands of dollars."

Clark voiced special caution against giving telephone solicitors your credit card number. "If a travel package sounds too good to be true, it probably is," he emphasized.

He cited a recent "come on" related to investment in vacation resort time sharing. A potential investor was told that she had already won an all terrain vehicle, requiring payment of only $29.95 for handling, processing and insurance. The all terrain vehicle turned out to be a lawn chair with four wheels attached.

Such fraudulent vacation travel schemes, which the Houston Chronicle has labeled "selling travel dreams and delivering nightmares", are currently under investigation by the Texas Attorney General's Office.

Clark said that people who receive phone calls or post cards announcing they've won a travel bargain, or have been selected by computer for some fantastic travel deal, should be immediately suspicious. "I'd recommend that anyone who's approached with a cut rate travel scheme, check it out with one of our more reputable travel agencies, or the local Better Business Bureau," he cautioned.

Persons having knowledge of such travel scams are urged to contact the Consumer Protection section of the Texas Attorney General's Office at (512) 463-2070.

Butler - Pitney Exchange Wedding Vows

Miss Stacy Ann Butler and Robert Marshall Pitney, both of Dallas, were married in a semi-formal ceremony at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 8 in the Buckingham Road Church of Christ in Garland. The minister, Richard Blaisdell, heard their double-ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Virgil and Anita Butler of Plano. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Daisy Butler and Mrs. Willie Legate, of Paris and Deport. The bridegroom is the son of G.S. and Elenor Pitney of Dallas.

Vocal music was provided by Terry Thompson, Timothy Thompson, Charles Hanson, Bob Otenti, Lois Owens, Brenda Boyd, Kathy Thompson, Shelly Holloway and Meredith Hanson. The chorus sang "We Stand In Hand", "Through The Eyes of Love", "Won't Last A Day Without You", "The Wedding Song", "The Wedding March", "One Hand, One Heart", "O Perfect Love," and "The Lord Bless And Keep You". Shannon Thompson sang "The Lord's Prayer" and was joined by Charles Hanson for a duet of "Love Until The End Of Time".

The altar was decorated with a 15-candle fan candelabra in the center flanked by two seven candle straightline candelabras and two spiral candelabras of 15 candles each. The candles were entwined with fresh cut English ivy. The unity candle stood in the center of the altar setting with individual tapers on either side.

The bride was escorted to the altar and given in marriage by her father. For her wedding, she selected a Maurer original gown of antique white satin and reembroidered hand applied Alencon lace studded with simulated pearls and tiny crystal beads. The gown was fashioned with a high neckline and capped bishop sleeves highlighted with re-embroidered hand applied Alencon lace, simulated pearls and tiny crystal beads. The empire waist flowed into an A-line skirt bordered with Alencon lace. The chapel-length train was enhanced with selected appliques of Alencon lace, pearls and crystal beads. Her headpiece was covered with antique white satin and accented with rosettes of simulated pearls, crystal beads and a net pouf. The bride's attached floor-length veiling was outlined in Alencon lace. She carried a nosegay of Star of Sharon, Summer Flower, Angel's Trumpet, Pearl Roses and Dogwood.

Mrs. Timothy Thompson of Austin was her sister's matron of honor and Mrs. Michael Walsworth of Birmingham, Michigan, also a sister of the bride, was bridesmatron.

They wore gowns of daphne rose satin. The bodices were fashioned with mandarin collars, V-shaped front and back yokes overlaid with cream net and lace. The gowns had dropped V waistlines with pleated skirts and leg o'mutton sleeves with covered buttons at the wrists. Their headpieces were covered with daphne rose satin with attached cream net pouf.

Timothy Wyatt of Dallas was best man and Joe Morrison of Dallas was groomsmen. They also served as ushers.

The bride's parents were hosts for a reception in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

Members of the hosueparty were Mrs. Hoyle Phillips and Mrs. Ray Butler, both of Paris, Mrs. Isaac Williams and Mrs. Curtis Lee.

The bride is a graduate of Plano Senior High School and attended Texas A&M University. She is employed at Champion Ford in Dallas.

The bridegroom was graduated from Thomas Jefferson High School in Dallas and attended Richland College and Southern Methodist University. He is employed as store manager by Factory Carpet Outlet.

The parents of the bride are graduates of East Lamar High School at Pattonville.

Keeping Healthy

Doctors Tell Patients: Practice Good Health!

"An apple a day keeps the doctor away" and "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

These old sayings are still good advice, and physicians today continue to pass such preventive health information along to their patients.

Just what good health practices do doctors recommend?

"The single issue raised most often is cigarette smoking, with almost two-thirds of all respondents to the CMA survey indicating that they discuss this with many of their patients. Also widespread are physician-patient discussions about the value of exercise programs, low-salt diets and low-calorie diets."

Other subjects of many physician-patient talks are low-cholesterol diets, alcohol restriction, and high-fiber diets. Substance abuse discussions are also widespread, particularly with psychiatric patients.

Preventive health care is considered the most effective means to control medical costs. Eighty percent of all deaths from the three leading causes of death and disability—cancer, cardiovascular disease and accidents—are preventable.
