

NICHOLS' WORTH

By: Nanalee Nichols

Just when things get to the point where they look really bleak...just at that point where "burnout" begins to be included in one's vocabulary....someone will come through, make the day, lighten the mood and give me a better, different slant on things.

Buddy Hearn of Tyler, a subscriber to the Talco Times, was the one to do it this week.

Monday began as truly a doozy. We had a brand new Mackintosh desktop system on hand....and that meant learning to use it. Now, the thing about computers is that they are logical as they can be. I'm not.

So after we all wore ourselves out working at grasping new concepts and learning new techniques, I decided to take the terminal home and "play" on it some more. Naturally within a couple of hours the poor computer was confused and I was even more confused.

Sometime after midnight I slunk off to bed, only to spend the night moving little cursors and "tools" around on the inside of my eyelids instead of sleeping.

Tuesday morning dawned, rainless, hot and busy as usual. Nothing seemed to go right, everyone was way behind schedule, everyone was a little on edge because of the strain of learning a new work system. My brain wouldn't function and slowly I felt irritation and frustration taking over.

Finally, about two hours later than usual we managed to get to the mail box. It was full of bills, par for the course, and stacks of junk mail that takes a lot of times to go through.

There was one fat envelope though that was different from the norm. I opened it warily, because we have received some pretty startling and rather unpleasant letters over the years.

Within was a short note from the aforementioned Mr. Hearn.

It said: Dear Mrs. Nichols. Concerning your recent comment about needing a large zipper to make elephant fly...I thought this small one might help some small elephant somewhere. Let me know if it works. I enjoy your "Nichols Worth" and always look forward to Friday when I get my copy of the Talco Times. Thanks for your bit of humor!

THANK YOU, Buddy Hearn!

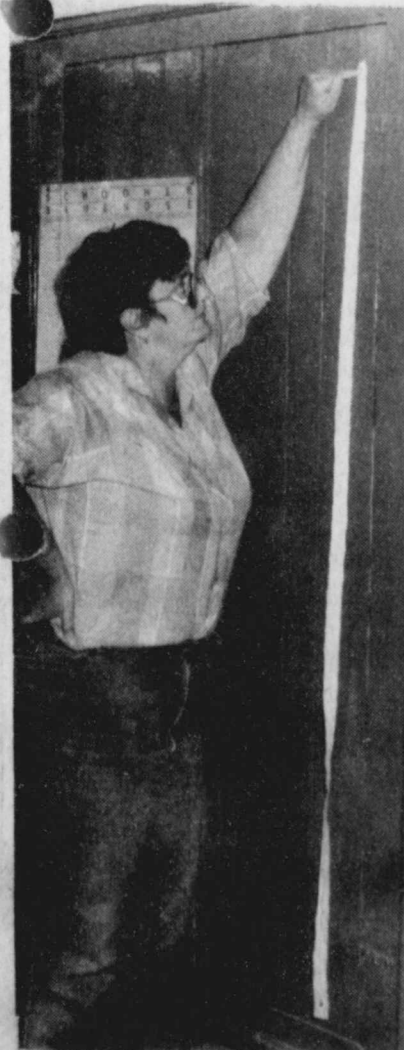

That letter, you see, was accompanied by a zipper...one appropriate to an elephant's size. It measures about six feet long. Now, whenever I want to tell that joke about how do you make an elephant fly the answer of "First you get a really large zipper" will have the zipper to back it up.

After laughing so hard we all hurt we discovered that once again laughter had saved the day.

Machines, bills, heat or anything else, it was easy to find and bear it.

Laughter cured frustration, humor triumphed over the grumps.

Thanks to someone who I've never met, but who shares the belief that laughter is a great healer!

Abnormal Spring Results In Drought

While some areas of the state flourished under too much rain, the majority of the state, and much of the nation has had to watch as crops and water sources burned up and dried out.

Throughout North East Texas cattlemen have eyed dwindling pasture and hay meadows producing less than fifty percent of their normal yield while farmers have had to replant for lack of moisture, many having the second, and expensive, planting fail to make a good stand either.

Cotton, always the best of dry weather crops, will shortly be in desperate need of moisture, while soy beans and milo are already in dire straits.

Some fields have received as much as two inches of rain as several thunderstorms have swept through the area, but the size of the rained on area is sparse and spread over a wide number of counties.

April and May were record setting for their lack of rainfall. The usual moisture that is so crucial to grass, trees and every other growing thing did not arrive.

Meteorologists have pointed ominously to the similarity of the existing weather patterns to that of 1980, which was one of the worst droughts of the century.

Even in '80, though, May was not as dry as this year.

So far relatively cooler temperatures have helped alleviate the problem, but with July fast approaching temperatures are bound to increase. Deep soaking plants, gardens and trees is recommended by experts.

Shallow watering can actually do damage, causing root systems to stay close to the surface when they need to be deep.

Meanwhile there is little that can be done to change the situation expect watch weather reports and hope.

FATALITY-Stella Ridens was killed in this accident between her late model Chevrolet and a truck on Highway 37 north, just outside of Bogata Tuesday evening. Highway Patrol reports were unavailable at press time, so no details were known. (Staff Photo)

School Board Okays Variety Of Issues

The Prairiland School Board approved a number of measures in their regular session Monday, June 13.

They approved the fee for driver's education as $150 per student, and approved payment to driver's education teachers of $62.50 per student.

Frank Rhoades was awarded a bid of $1,800 to clean the carpets at the three campuses.

Dr. Richard NASH gave a report on the first grade TEAMS scores, and Rhonda Bangs was extended from a half time to a full time teacher.

Minutes were read and approved, payment of bills approved and the financial report okayed.

City Council Appoints, Makes Decisions

Blossom Child Drowns

In spite of all efforts on the part of rescue personnel and 18 month old infant drowned last Thursday afternoon.

Jessie Matthew Lester of 820 West Division Street in Blossom drowned in a pool close to his home, according to authorities.

The child's grandmother reported that the youngster had been playing with a ball outside the family mobile home. He was found floating in a nearby swimming pool.

His grandmother pulled him out and began revival attempts, and EMS technicians from Reno and Paris continued to work over the child after their arrival, but were unable to revive the toddler.

The council decided to get some insurance for the Mayor because of all the traveling he does for the City of Deport, and approved the transfer of Home Cable T.V. over to River Communications, Inc. at time of sale.

Hayter Engineering was hired to do the work on new construction of Dewey, Depot and Nobles Streets.

Ark-Tex Council of Governments was accepted as administrator over the street projects.

They approved the audit, and a request for a culvert at the alley behind the Gordon VanDeaver's home was tabled for lack of a motion.

Survivors are his parents; one sister, Mary Alice Lester of Blossom; his maternal grandparents, Tommy Murray of Paris and JoAnn Towers of Paris; his paternal grandparents, Mack and Joan Lester of Blossom; and a great-grandmother, Mrs. Jim Lay of Reno.

HOW DO YOU MAKE AN ELEPHANT FLY? First you get a big zipper. And Nanalee Nichols, who featured her embellishment over the old joke in a column a few weeks ago, found that big zippers do, indeed, exist. Buddy Hearn of Tyler mailed this one to the editor in response to the column. Over six feet long, it should, indeed, be big enough, at least for a small elephant. (Staff Photo)

Locals Receive Degrees At ETSU

University students should be considered an investment in the future, Texas Legislative Budget Board Director Jim Oliver told 448 graduates during the East Texas State University Commencement exercises on May 14.

Oliver has been director of the budget board for seven years after ten years as assistant director. The board develops and submits a recommended budget to the legislature for each state agency.

Despite the uncertainty of the future, the world has "challenges enough for all of us," Oliver said. The budget director also outlined his concerns for the state that could become problems if not addressed: the state tax structure and the public school structure.

The graduates by hometown and degree, locally, are:

Phil Graves, BS; Christine A. Harris, BS, Blossom.
Stacy Lyn Spencer, BS, Bogata.
James Gordon VanDeaver, BA, Deport.
Neita Phifer Denison, BS, Detroit.

To Nanie Bell Ham
On Her Birthday,
June 20

With happy heart and winning ways
She passed each year unchanged
A helping hand and lots of praise
While not a minute went unclaimed.

And as the years went by,
She never faltered from her duty
Happy Birthday to you, Mom,
We all think you're a beauty
