Canning...A Tasty Way To Preserve

By Nanalee Nichols

A friend has threatened me with everything from law suits to death if I write anything about a specific incident in the paper.

Naturally, having had the gauntlet flung down, I must accept the challenge in some way or another.

Not wanting to lose friends, however, I've decided to use no names, and include a few other folks in the process.

The problem is age...and the limitations that it imposes upon us all.

Every now and then some adult will look out at their kids trying out a new toy, or blazing along on a skateboard, and the urge to give it a try just becomes overwhelming.

I know of two such people, one male, the other female, who couldn't resist the call of the trampoline.

The man ended up landing with his head jammed down between the outside edge and the springs on the contraption. To say that it hurt, and skinned up his ears a little is something of an understatement.

The female "jumpee" landed on the base of her neck...spent two weeks in bed and still has times when her neck chooses to remind her of the folly of trying out trampolines when over the age of 30.

I know a lady who had to confess to the X-ray technician that her sprained ankle came from playing basketball with her grandchildren.

The hardy athlete was 70 years old!

Yet another friend decided that his young son wasn't "popping wheelies" on his bicycle right. So he confiscated the bicycle and proceeded to show the boy how it was done.

Of course, after the perfect wheelie came the leg splint, then the knee surgery!

Among the other injuries witnessed have been black eyes from baseball, bruises from attempting to peddle a bicycle down a steep hill, and strained muscles galore.

Less than youthful back muscles are particularly susceptible to playing softball, football, foot racing, doing acrobatics and generally indulging in activities that haven't been done in 10 or 15 years!

Not to be immune, I tried to remedy a major lack in my childhood when I turned thirty. Embarrassing as it is, I attempted to learn how to ride a bike then. The end crop of scrapes and bumps was pretty spectacular, and I still can't ride a bike!

There are people who end up with concussions from trying to ride horses, folks who discover that swimming uses more muscles than they recall it used to, and people who wonder whatever possessed them to think they could still make a 20 mile hike up a mountain!

But the pain and medical expense isn't really the problem. It's the humiliation of looking up at a kid about to die from laughing so hard and hearing said youngster exclaim "Wow...can you do that again!"

That childish look of glee is invariably mixed with a certain touch of smug superiority. At that moment the urge to belt the kid is pretty powerful...but the pain of trying to move usually curtails the attempt.

Yes, trying out skateboards and bicycles, games and athletic feats can have dire consequences...but it still livens up the routine...and what's better than that!

There are those who say such antics are "Silly". Perhaps they are, but I still maintain that it beats sitting around, feeling old and worrying about getting hurt!

It's canning season. Canning, the preservation of food by heat, pickling or other methods, is as age-old as civilization.

Ancient Egyptians used earthenware jars to seal food in. After packing the jars with berries or sliced fruits, they poured hot animal fat into the jar until it covered the produced.

As our technologies increased, so did the sophistication of canning.

And even with the advent of the deep freeze canning persists, for it is one of the most economical, flavor-saving methods ever devised.

Throughout east Texas there have been favorites fruits and vegetables for preserving for generations.

Blackberries, made into jelly or canned whole; peaches, pickled, or sweet preserved; plum jelly, fig preserves; canned green beans; tomatoes, corn, relishes in variety uncountable, the list goes on and on!

Canning these days usually occurs in an air-conditioned kitchen. Instead of sterilizing jars in boiling water many cooks use the sterilize cycle on their dishwasher.

Other than that the process remains much the same as when mothers, grandmothers and great-grandmothers suffered in the heat of a wood stove without benefit of even electricity.

Local culinary specialists indulge in flights of fancy that leave their canned goods looking, and tasting like gourmet fare.

Canned vegetable soups become studies in color and variety, pickles are topped off with just the right slice of red pepper or yellow squash for accent.

Jellies lined up on a pantry shelf rival the most elegant cathedral for stained glass color.

Attractive jars, calico ruffled lids and a basket makes a gift that anyone is thrilled to get.

Canning held a much more important and basic need for the generations previous to today, however.

Without the produce from the summer's garden, winters held little to eat.

In an era of large families canned goods provided the mainstay of menus, and there was usually neither the money nor the opportunity to shop at a grocery store more than a few times a year.

Because of the lack of refrigeration, and the scarcity of money, even meat was preserved in glass jars.

Several old-timers know the secret to canning fish, beef or pork, although pork was usually salt-cured or smoked.

The familiar names of Kerr and Ball are mainstays of the canning industry as they were a hundred years ago.

Beginning with rubber seal lids with a wire closure, they have progressed to a wide variety of sizes, shapes and designs in the present day.

Grandmothers would probably have delighted in self-sealing lids, and the availability of products to help can.

Fruit color preservation is aided by pectin products, the art of knowing exactly when a batch of jelly is ready for pouring up is made simpler by products to help jelling.

Controversy over whether these products detract from the flavor can be found, but one fact remains clear.

Canning, an age-old art, remains wherever good, fresh gardens produce delicious vegetables and fruits.

A pantry stocked with the colorful montage of jellies, jams, preserves or vegetables is a joy to behold. It makes the hours of tedious peeling, cooking, stirring sterilizing and work well worth every minute.

JEWELS in the kitchen. Fresh canned jams, jellies, fruits and vegetables preserve flavor and create stained glass colors in a well stocked pantry. One of the oldest forms of food preserva-

FLAPFLAP-windshield wipers were busy for the first time in months as widespread rains dumped four to six inches of rain on the area Monday night, and continued on through Tuesday. The welcome moisture was appreciated by almost everyone. (Staff Photo By Nanalee Nichols)

School Board Okays Campus Construction

The Prairiland School Board accepted sealed bids for construction of three new classrooms and a cafeteria at Blossom.

The contract was awarded to Songer Construction in Garland, TX, the same company which was the low bidder at Blossom last year for the buildings constructed then.

The board anticipates starting construction next week.

The board accepted the resignation of Cheryl Brooks as a Deport Elementary School teacher. Her husband has accepted a job in McKinney and they are moving. Hired to teach third grade in her place was Mrs. Dan Harris.

Minutes were read and approved and the financial report was approved and bills paid.

Rain, Glorious Rain

Like Oliver Twist, area residents have been begging "Please Sir, May We Have More".

Monday night, more became a reality as a massive storm system provided an average rainfall of four inches.

For the first time since April it rained enough to provide runoff into drought-lowered pools.

One of the "savings graces" of the situation so far has been an absence of extreme temperatures, the 100 mark being rare so far.

Hay shortages and pasture over grazing, which had reached critical proportions, may be partially alleviated with the deep soaking.

Hopefully, July and August will provide several more of the good rains, partially restoring a balance set off by severe rainfall shortages in the early spring.

For now, though, most people just smile and enjoy the delicious moisture.

The Faith Baptist Church will hold Bible School next week, July 18-22 from 6:30 to 8:30 each evening. If you need a ride, call 652-6226.

The Deport American Legion will meet Thursday (tonight) at 7:30 at the Legion Hall. All members are asked to be present...

Members of the Deport Kiwanis Club are urged to attend Saturday's meeting at 8 a.m. at Granny Mc's. Plans are to build forms for foundation of the old jail after breakfast.

Burglary Is A Continuing Problem

Burglary is a continuing problem in all areas of our state, including Paris and Lamar County. This week, Lamar County Crime Stoppers is offering up to $1,000.00 in cash rewards, for information that leads to the arrest and indictment of persons responsible for burglary in Paris and Lamar County. Any information concerning burglary outside Lamar County will be passed on to any Crime Stoppers organization in that area.

TRADERS-these youngsters from the First Baptist Church in Deport used savvy bartering to earn money last week. The group split into two teams, and each was given a paper clip. They then went door to door trading the paper clip for something "bigger and better". The end results had tractor tires, reindeer, vases, canned goods, and a wide variety of other things as the result of all the trading. (Staff Photo by Nanalee Nichols)

Quotes

A thoughtful mind, when it sees a Nation's flag, sees not the flag only, but the Nation itself; and whatever may be its symbols, its insignia, he reads chiefly in the flag the Government, the principles, the truths, the history which belongs to the Nation that sets it forth.

Jack Jeffus Dies In Wichita Falls, TX

Jack Jeffus, retired Wichita Falls banker and civic leader, died Thursday October 17, 1925. His father, Jack Jeffus, Sr., was a vice-president of City National Bank until his death in 1942. His mother, Jan Allen Breen, died in 1979.
 Jeffus attended schools there until 1940, when he moved to Deport. After graduating from Deport High School, Jeffus attended Dartmouth College in Hanover, NH before joining the Navy under the V12 officer training program. He was commissioned a week after his 19th birthday, making him one of the youngest officers in the Navy.
 During World War II, Jeffus served in the Pacific Theater aboard landing ship transports. He participated in the invasion of Okinawa and in the occupation of Japan, Korea and China. He was released from active duty in 1946 as a lieutenant, junior grade.
 After the war he returned to Dartmouth, graduating in 1947. He worked on Wall Street for an investment banking firm until 1949 when he returned to Wichita Falls. Jeffus began work at City National Bank, now First Republic Bank Wichita Falls, on April 1, 1949. He started in an officer training program and worked in all departments.
 He was named vice-president in 1956 at the age of 31, which made him one of the youngest bank vice-presidents in the United States at the time.
 He became senior vice-president in 1966 and was elected to the board of directors the same year.
 Jeffus was a commercial loan officer from 1956 to 1979, during which time he was banker to many of the city's leading businesses.
 In addition to his duties as loan officer, Jeffus was in charge of the bank's bond portfolio. He was instrumental in installing the bank's first computer system and was in charge of building and remodeling projects.
 In 1979, Jeffus became chief administrative and financial officer. He served in that position until his retirement in 1987.
 In 1957 he was chosen one of the Five Outstanding Young Texans by the Texas Jaycees. He was an organizer of the Wichita Club. Jeffus served on the board of Wichita Falls Country Club for 8 years and as its president in 1967-68.
 As chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Aviation Committee, he negotiated with the Air Force for the location, design and construction of the present Wichita Falls Municipal Terminal.
 He was one of the organizers of Wichita County Republican Party and served on the executive committee of Wichita Falls Board of Commerce and Industry.
 He is survived by his wife, Ann Vinson Jeffus of Wichita Falls; a son, Marshall of Wichita Falls; two daughters, Sandy Lee of Wichita Falls and Lisa Powers of Lubbock; a stepson, Gary Inman of Wichita Falls; a stepdaughter, Vicki Inman Jeffus of Wichita Falls; a sister, Ellen Boddy Middleton of Houston; and 10 grandchildren.
 Memorials may be made to the American Cancer Society or Wichita General Hospital Oncology Center.
