Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

The scene takes place way back in time. Wayyyy back.

Early man (or at least one representative thereof) arises and stumbles to the entrance of his primitive shelter. Knuckling his eyes he wanders over to where he had left off knapping a particularly nice flint point the day before. Suddenly, all thoughts of sleep are gone as he roars the neanderthal equivalent of "Somebody got my flint knapping tools, I left them RIGHT HERE last night. Who's the blankety blank so and so who took em".

Stomping around in a major huff, this primitive human growls and snarls as he prowls around, searching for the culprit.

Then, in sudden understanding, he locates his tools and the point, not where someone has taken them, but over by the shelter of that pretty young gal whom he had spent the evening trying to impress with his skills and boasting of his hunting ability!

Embarrassed, he slinks away, quietly trying to keep anyone from knowing what a fool he had made of himself.

It's ben like that since the dawn of civilization.

Whether it's the clay tablets early Egyptians used, the bronze stylus of later ages, or the favorite pen of today's businessman, our tools and articles, cleaning supplies and jewelry tends to be taken by "someone" or "somebody".

A friends swears that every time they go out of town for a night "someone" comes into their home and drags all the clothes out of the closet, throws them around until they are dirty, then leaves them. Then they fill the sink full of dirty dishes and leave.

At our office any time my Exacto knife or favorite sissors comes up missing, or when Barbara's pica pole is out of place, we always say that "someone came in the dark of night and stole it away".

"Someone" does so many things. Someone afflicts those who work, those who keep house, those who sew, and even children, who find that "someone" has taken their favorite toys.

It's just human nature to immediately reject the idea that it is possible something missing could have been milaid by ourselves!

So, folks, watch out....always remember "someone" is lurking around, ready to take those things you need the most and hide them. And it is so humiliating to have to admit we did it ourselves!

Country Cooking

By Gerrie Bankhead

Country Cooking is coming to you this week from the kitchen of Donald and Stella Mankins. They will be married 34 years this August and have elived all their lives in the Bogata area. Both Donald and Stella are members of the Methodist Church there.

Donald and Stella are the parents of two sons: Keith of Richardson and his daughter, Ashley, age 6; and another son, Mike, who lives in The Colony.

Stella is a very active and busy lady. Besides working constantly in her lovely home and yard, she enjoys oil painting, sweatshirt painting, crafts, cooking and growing plants.

Among many different types of foods, Stella says she is not a good dessert maker. Since they have to watch the cholesterol she cooks more vegetables and casseroles these days. She rarely fries foods unless the boys come home. Stella says her husband loves to see the boys come because he gets good old fried potatoes and fried chicken.

Donald and Stella raise a big garden and freeze a lot of foods. She plans to try something new this year, canning new potatoes. Stella also loves to collect cookbooks. Most of her books were purchased from local organizations in the area, all of which have special meaning to her. Stella had to learn to cook after she got married because she did very little before. Her husband always says she couldn't boil water before they married. He says he had to eat chili, not homemade chili either, for breakfast, dinner and supper. But says now he has made a pretty good cook out of her. Stella loves to entertain and they have several couples who get together and visit and eat. They don't get to do this as much as they would like to because of job schedules but does enjoy it.

Stella's house and yard are full of plants, some hanging, some sitting, some big and some little. Plants everywhere.

The green bean casserole is one of Donald's favorites and Stella shares this recipe with lots of people.

The chicken and dumplings recipe came from her mother, Stella used this recipe for almost 34 years. The peach cobbler recipe came from a late friend, Norma Jean White, who entered it in the very first Methodist cookbook that sold in 1975.

The zucchini recipe came from a friend in Dallas, Janie Farrah and her Mexican squash casserole came from Lois Huddleston in Bogata. I made this recipe last Sunday for dinner and many really enjoyed it.

If you've enjoyed the article, request a recipe or have a recipe to share or suggest a feature, please call 652-6032 or write Rt. 1, Box 67A, Deport, TX 75435.

Scudder Is RRV Coach Of The Year, Madewell Co-Most Valuable Player

The 1991 All-Red River Valley Baseball Team has been announced, and the Prairiland baseball coach and one player have been named to the prestigious list.

The Most Valuable Player award is named for a player who excels beyond his own expectations, and who has a profound effect on the outcome of almost all the team's efforts during the season.

Michael Madewell, Prairiland Patriot, followed these guidelines to the letter in 1991 and tied with Brian Rainey of the Paris Wildcats for the MVP award this year.

Madewell, second baseman for the Patriots, polished off a steady career with a stellar senior season.

The 13-3A first teamer tallied a .507 batting average and hit eight home runs, driving in 32 Patriot runs. He was the main cog in the gears that propelled the Patriots into the playoffs where they finished the season with a 17-5 record.

And Bill Scudder of Prairiland stood out during the 1991 season as a coach, with a winning tradition and a state championship under his belt.

1991 was a surprising story for the Patriots, with torrid hitting and solid pitching to turn their fortunes around. Scudder, who has said this was one of his more rewarding seasons as a coach, easily deserved Coach of the Year honors. Scudder was also Co-Coach of the Year in 13-3A.

Other Prairiland Patriots with banner seasons were Chad Whitley, who showed a sign of things to come by providing a .351 average, a homer and 16 RBI's for the Patriots.

Dexter Baker won seven straight games for the Patriots, and the senior picked up his only loss of the season against state-bound Queen City in the district. He finished with a 2.72 ERA.

And Larry Smith, a Prairiland junior first baseman, finished the year with a .375 average and knocked in 18 runs.

Coach Bill Scudder, R.R.V. Coach Of The Year

Scudder Placed On Disabled List

Cincinnati Reds righthander and ex-Prairiland hurler Scott Scudder was placed on the 15-day disabled list on Tuesday, retroactive to May 31.

According to a Reds spokesman, Scudder has a strained rib muscle in the left rib cage area. The spokesman said that the club didn't immediately know the specific cause of the injury.

Scudder, who joined the Reds' starting rotation last week, won his first start in convincing fashion, downing Ramon Martinez and the Dodgers in Los Angeles. He is currently 1-2 for the season with a 3.69 ERA.

He has appeared in 14 games during the 1991 season. In 31.2 innings, Scudder has allowed 31 hits and given up 13 runs, all of them earned. He has fanned 15, walked 15 and earned one save.

GED Testing Up At PJC

Recent statistics released by the American Council on Education reveal an increase in the number of persons passing General Educational Development tests administered by the student development staff at Paris Junior College.

The 1990 GED Statistical Report for PJC showed that 150 individuals who took the GED test achieved scores high enough to pass. The figure was up 13.5 percent from 1989, when 132 persons passed the GED test.

In all jurisdictions served by the GED testing program in 1990, 763,618 people took the GED test, 12% more than in 1989. As a result of testing conducted at more than 3,400 testing centers, 70% of the examinees earned scores that qualified them for a GED diploma.

The percent of GED candidates who took the GED tests to qualify for education or training beyond the high school level reached 56%, the highest level in the program's history. During 1990, more than 425,000 persons identified that goal.

Young adults, age 24 or less, accounted for more than half of the examinees; more than 83,000 GED diplomas were earned by persons age 18 or younger.

The vast majority, 68% of GED candidates completed tenth grade or higher before leaving school.

No Cars Under The Matterhorn

In our story last week we left Lugano for Italy once more. We headed for beautiful Lake Maggiore, where we were to take a ferry boat across the lake.

The Italian lake district is breathtaking, with snow capped mountains towering above crystal clear lakes. Along the shores of those lakes yachts and colorful sailboats were tucked into their harbors, while expensive and exclusive villas sprawled along the waterfront, surrounded by privacy walls and gardens and grottos.

One of the most unusual sights we saw were cars that were enclosed in locked heavy wire cages. We found out that there was no place to park them on the steep slope the villas were on, and isolated from the houses people had taken to stealing the radios and wheel covers from them. So, the resourceful homeowners simply drove them into these cages and locked them up!

We passed a huge stone works, in which the mountains yielded up their stony hearts to be made into roof slates, benches, huge columns, and decorative building stone smoothed to mirror finish.

In Laverne we shopped at an open air market that offered everything from tiny kittens to fresh fruits and vegetables, with fine leather work and beautiful embroidered clothing in between.

Fingering a bolt of exquisite embroidered cloth I told the woman at her stand that it was "bella".

"Si" she smiled "bella" she then rattled off an Italian sentence that I picked enough pieces of to know meant that it was very pretty, but not expensive, did I want some?

I told her no, and strolled on. Thomas, walking beside me swore that the two of us had discussed how ugly HE was!

We all climbed on to the big ferry, and the bus drove on behind us.

Lesley made the statement that although there was a toilet on board it was definitely "unisex" and that the plumbing hadn't changed much since Roman times.

Of course, that meant that Thomas had to take a picture of it!

Perhaps some folks are more civilized than we are, but it didn't seem that bad to us. What it consisted of was a porcelain square basin with a hole in the middle, and two raised "footprints" on either side. The waves for the lake were sloshing up through the hole. Anyway, it made a great shot for the camera!

In the early afternoon we arrived at the Matt River, at the town of Matt. Ever wonder where the world famous Matterhorn got its name? Well, it's simple. The Matt river comes down from the mountains. The little town of Zermatt means by the Matt river, and the Matterhorn is the mountain over the Matt river!

The only way to get to Zermatt is by taking a train up. There are no cars in the town, no pollution, very little noise. Little electric cars provide some services to those that can't climb the steep streets.

When we disembarked from the train in Zermatt our group toiled uphill over steep, cobbled streets. Some of the older members of the tour took the electric taxis that took the luggage up to our hotel.

The hotel was new, and located up the side of a mountain. While not the most convenient to the center of town it certainly made up for it with the view.

When we stepped into our room the picture windows and balcony provided a full, striking view of the majestic Matterhorn, surrounded by other massive peaks!

We promptly took the steep road right back down to town, wandering through the narrow streets.

In the very center of this thriving ski community is a collection of ancient log buildings.

These hundreds of years old farm houses and barns are still used. Early risers in Zermatt can see the men with big baskets on their backs herding sheep, or the distinctive black and white goats up into the mountain meadows.
