

Nichols
Worth

By Nanalee Nichols

Spring's lease is up and Summer has taken over the tenancy. Like most folks, old summer likes to do some redecorating around the "house" and that remodeling is clearly evident.

The blazing sun has disposed of springtime's pastels. Pansies, daffodils, and forsythias are long gone...replaced by the orange and yellows of day lilies and roadside wildflowers.

The grasses of spring are yellowed or brown and seed-tipped while the summer-time grass is still green...but waits for the heat to turn it a richer, wealthier color of nugget gold.

Spring's lacy foliage, with it's almost limitless shades of green, covering the spectrum from palest yellow-green to wine-purple has also vanished, replaced now by the full-bodied, deep greens of the hot season.

The spring nestlings are now summer's young adults, testing their wings (and beaks) on a bug population that is abundant beyond belief.

Tadpoles are becoming frogs, frogs are becoming fish and heron food, and the overflowing summer pools and ponds are shrinking to a smaller size rapidly.

From the smallest yard to the biggest wildlife preserve nature abounds with life...fireflies, crickets, flea hoppers, mosquitoes, the insect list makes a litany of sounds from the unpleasant to the unpleasant. Rabbits, raccoons, possums and coyotes, everywhere there is evidence of the abundance of summer.

Humans have shucked as many layers of clothing as they decently can...and cranked up the air conditioners.

Those lingering evenings on the porch have frequently been forewarned for indoors in the cool.

Yard work will take it's payment in perspiration no matter how early in the mornings it is done, and that's all there is to it.

Summer youngsters screech and scream, wander and prowl, playing in water sprinklers, swimming pools and any other cooling source they can find or finagle.

The season calls for ice cold tea and lemonade, watermelons, cantalopes, grilled burgers, steaks and hotdogs and a slightly "lighter" attitude than the rest of the year.

In short...summer is here...it has it's drawbacks, but they are compensated by the rewards. Like all seasons, summer is special. Enjoy it.

Deputy Foils Tractor Theft

According to Lamar County Sheriff B.J. McCoy an attempt to steal a tractor from the Forest Creek area was foiled by an alert Lamar County Deputy June 26th.

At approximately 2:00 a.m. on the 26th Deputy McCarty stopped a pickup towing a trailer loaded with a Belarus tractor on Highway 271 N.

The pickup was occupied by two white males with an Oklahoma address.

The deputy identified the two males and took the serial number of the tractor. After checking on reports of stolen tractors through the sheriff's office, Deputy McCarty released the two as the tractor wasn't reported stolen.

He did report the incident and Lamar County Investigator J.D. Clark traced the tractor's serial number to locate the owner, who was a resident of Irving who owned property in the Forest Creek area. The owner told investigator Clark he had not given permission to anyone to take the tractor.

Later that day the Sheriff's Office was notified that someone was pulling a tractor down the road in the area where the tractor in question was originally taken.

After arriving on the scene Sheriff's Deputies found that a tractor with the same serial number as the one he had checked out had been returned to it's original location and the two suspects stopped on Saturday were leaving the area.

According to Investigator J.D. Clark charges were filed on the two June 28 in the Lamar County Attorney's Office and warrants for their arrest have been issued.

DEPORT Volunteer Firemen and citizens work to pull a fender away from a tire on this late model Buick in order to move it from the bridge on Hwy. 271 after this wreck occurred Tuesday night. Official reports on the accident were unavailable, but the car's occupant did not appear to be seriously injured. She was

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

This time of year in youth baseball is probably the toughest time to be involved. The teams have been playing and practicing since April 1st. Everyone is tired and have plenty of "people burn-out". Then, on top of that, it comes time to select our league's tournament teams or as most call it, "All-Stars". Every player wants to be picked, and every parent wants their child to be picked. I can certainly understand this from the side of a player, parent, coach and league official, because I have been all four! But, we all know that this is not possible. We do have a system which we use to select these few players. Our league serves some 250 boys, ages 6-12, and 75% of these kids had their hearts broken this week when they did not make it on the tournament teams.

Our system is considered by our state director as one he uses to straighten out a bad program. And yes, occasionally, a potential "All-Star" may be overlooked. But we feel a man or woman that has coached, babysitted, doctored, fed, consoled players all season long, along with getting fields ready, getting concession workers, arranging practices, going to meetings, neglecting his family to provide a place for others to play has a right to vote for the player he wants. I would think that they would all want the best players on their team representing our league in tournament play. I guess there are really no set "Rules" that are set to tell what child should be selected. There may be a player with a .300 batting average but doesn't play good defense or a good defensive player that doesn't hit well. In my opinion there may be a spot for both kids on a team. Some of the things most coaches look for are: batting averages, fielding abilities, work habits, how the child gets along with others, attitudes, and, as unfair for the child as it may seem, parental attitudes!

There probably are not a dozen kids in all the age groups put together that actually stand out in their respective age groups and after that, the system gets tested and feelings can get hurt.

We have lost coaches in the past and are going to lose some this year just because they cannot please everyone all the time.

So, I guess I said all this to say...don't hammer on these coaches, thank them for their sweat and hard work. They may decide it is not worth it and some of you may get the opportunity to get involved in a thank-less, three month long, no salary, multi-titled job!

Sincerely,
Billy Shelby
President-Red River Youth Baseball

Letter To The Editor

Letter To The Editor:

There has been some controversy lately in the ball league. Here are a few things I would like people to think about.

Our coaches are Volunteers, they get no pay for the hard work and long hours they put in. They take time away from their own family, when they could be out fishing or golfing.

Instead they are at the ball park working, supporting, teaching our children the sport of baseball. Yes, coaches like to win. They also like to see a smile on a child's face when he or she gets a hit...or when that child makes a good play on the field, catches a fly ball. When a child does not do so well it is the coach who gives the child a pat on the back or a hug and tells them "It's okay, you'll get it next time".

A coach is a special person. The coach loves to be with children and takes the time to be a part of something that the children enjoy doing.

Our players are our children...doing something they enjoy doing. Children have such big hearts. They give their all to the game. They are very Special People too. Each player has a special place on the team.

To each player on the Deport baseball and softball teams I would like to say "Congratulations". You are all very special...whether you are All Stars, All-Star nominees or weren't even nominated. It takes each and every one of you to make a Whole Team. Just keep practicing and giving your all, keep the faith! In our eyes you are ALL STARS.

Parents, we all want our children to win, just as much as they do. It would be wonderful if every child could make the All-Star teams. The coaches would like that too. Unfortunately it is not that way. Only so many children can be chosen. It is a hard job for the coaches. There is a lot that goes into picking All-Star Players. I honestly believe they are just as fair as can possibly be. Many of them are parents, and often their own children don't make All-Stars. I would not want be in their shoes! I just don't see how politics could possibly be a part of something like this. The child accomplishes this on his or her own with the support, love and care of parents and coaches.

Mostly, though, I think we should go back in time when baseball and softball was FUN for Our Kids. After All, That's the main point, isn't it?

THE LADIES WHO ARE SHARING with us this week in the Country Cooking Column are Jane Smith and "Honey" Gibson. (Photo by Judy Screws)

Country Cooking

By Judy Screws

This week we begin a new series of articles on some very nice ladies I met at Woodland. These ladies are members of The Caring and Sharing Fellowship Group.

We are beginning with Jane Smith and Honey Gibson. Jane's husband, James Smith works at G&S Dairy. They have 3 children. Their daughter Linda Daniels lives in Spring. she has two children, Jamey and Shannon. Daughter Janie Holmes lives in Windom and has 3 children, Justin, Lee and Lynette. Buck Smith lives in Detroit and has 2 children, Heather and Kristi.

Jane's hobbies include Plastic needlepoint, sewing, fishing and cooking. Jane likes to bake sweets and cook vegetables. She says that when the kids visit, they like red beans, goulash, fried potatoes and cornbread. The recipes Jane is sharing with us this week are Mexican Cobbler which she got from her daughter, Janie. The Mexican Casserole was given to her by her daughter-in-law, and the Sad Cake came to her from a friend.

The first thing I noticed when we drove up at the Church in Woodland was a Brush Arbor, which looked new. I didn't know that people built brush arbors any more. Upon investigation, I learned that it has been built for a school reunion on July 17. I talked with Honey Gibson next.

There was a quilting frame hanging from the ceiling, and she was one of the ladies quilting. The group is quilting this particular quilt for Mrs. Oleta McCurdy, who is visiting from California.

Honey Gibson and her husband Arthur have 3 children, Pam, Terry, and Tommy. They also have 4 grandchildren, Brett and Brandon, Shelby and Alicia, and Becky and Stanley. Arthur is retired from B & W and Honey worked 11 years at Vassarrete.

Honey's hobbies include Cross stitch, quilting, reading, and fooling with flowers. She enjoys trying out new recipes, but says the Arthur and the kids really enjoy her Beans and Potatoes and Enchiladas. Honey, as well as some of the other ladies, was not aware that I would be there on the particular day I showed up, consequently, we're going to wait for her to mail in her recipes.

I had been visiting with the ladies for a short while, when I started smelling some of the most wonderful smells. I realized that everyone who came in was bringing containers of food. They would either put it on the table or take in the kitchen and warm it up. Then the husbands came to eat. They tried to get Donald and me to eat, but we begged off. I was on the way to the doctor and all I needed was a bunch of food.

We talked at length about taking a vacation this year. Donald and Tana didn't want to fly and I didn't want to drive so adding a room to the house won. I got home one night and Donald had left a message for me to call my sister-in-law, Nelda, to tell her to go ahead and make reservations for us, so that we could accompany them on their vacation. He and Gerry had gotten together at work and worked this out without benefit of spouses. I called Nelda. She was surprised, but we immediately started making plans. We had about a month to prepare. Nelda would lose 20 pounds and I would lose 85. We would get Donald and Gerry matching hats, and carry light weight luggage. Donald and Gerry could keep each other company. Tana and Nelda could run around and see all the sights, and I could eat, sleep, and put money in the slot machines. (We just decide how much money we can afford to donate daily.) We didn't lose the weight, we did buy the hats, and Nelda spent 3 weeks trying out her wardrobe to make sure everything was perfect, and getting everything packed just right. Donald, Tana and I packed as we went out the back door.

We got to the front desk at our hotel and were assigned to rooms in section K. There was no section K on the map, so the desk clerk just drew a K with a circle around it off to the side. He said that we should go up 2 flights of escalators to the second floor, get on an elevator and go down to the first floor and circle around to our rooms. It was one of those things where you felt like you couldn't get there from here. Perhaps we were in the "Twilight Zone."

Nobody ran around with the one they were supposed to, and people stopped us on the street to ask where they got the hats. Gerry kept saying that we got them in Shreveport. I never knew why. Everything was perfect until Donald sold his hat. When I asked him why he did it, he said that he made $7.50 on it. I guess that is a major coup when you consider that you've just blown enough money to add a room to the house. We'll talk about that hat for a while. We plan to repeat the trip. I don't think I've ever laughed so much.

Keeping Healthy

Effects of Oat Products on Cholesterol

Coronary heart disease (CHD) is the most common cause of death in the United States, claiming approximately one-half million lives annually. Several risk factors for CHD have been identified including hypertension, cigarette smoking, and hypercholesterolemia. The findings of the Lipid Research Clinics Coronary Primary Prevention Trial indicate that lowering elevated plasma cholesterol will definitely lower risk for CHD.

While it has been demonstrated that reductions in total fat, saturated fat, and cholesterol intake will help reduce plasma cholesterol levels, recent studies indicate that alterations in soluble fiber intake can also reduce plasma cholesterol levels. Soluble fibers are found in certain foods, including fruits, dried beans and peas, and oats.

Lamar Co. Extension Agent Tomato Problems Discussed

Tomato plants in gardens and truck patches need to be checked as several problems have emerged. Heavy infestations of aphids can be found in many gardens, and they must be controlled before they suck the plants to death. Aphids are the small insects on the back side of the leaves. They are reddish in color and have piercing mouth parts for sucking of plant juices. A few aphids on a plant will not cause enough damage to warrant control measures; however, a heavy infestation will cause loss of entire plants. Aphid infested plants will be sticky where the excretion has landed on the leaves and stems.

Malathion and diazinon are two safe insecticides that will control the aphid. I would suggest that one use either the wettable powder or liquid formulation of either of these insecticides rather than the dust form. A spray solution seems to do a better job on aphids.

While you are applying an insecticide to your tomatoes, add a fungicide to the spray mixture for control of the Early Blight and Septoria Leaf Spot. You will recall that this disease starts out on the lower leaves as brown spots. Entire leaves turn yellow and then brown. As the disease spreads up the plant, most of the leaves often are killed leaving the tomatoes exposed to the hot sunshine. You must keep a film of a fungicide such as Dithane, Manzate, Fore or Captan on the leaves to prevent the infection from occurring. These fungicides are contact fungicides and are easily washed off of the leaves by a rain. I am not aware of a systemic fungicide that is labeled for use on vegetable crocks. We have also received several phone calls from you with regards to the black spots on the blossom-end of tomatoes. This condition is called Blossom End Fruit Rot. It is not a disease. Applying a fungicide to your fruit will not help. It is caused by a condition. Sometimes we can blame too little water, sometime too much water and other times we can attribute it to unavailability of calcium nutrient. If it has been three or four years since you limed your garden space, then you need to add some agricultural limestone this fall to your soil and till it into the soil.

Carpenter Bees Are Active

Carpenter bees have really been active this summer constructing new galleries and cleaning out old ones in rafters on houses and sheds. They are not the Bumble Bee nor Honey Bee, and neither are they the Africanized Bee. They will sting if they are bothered while they are busy preparing to reproduce themselves. Carpenter bees, like most bees, are sensitive to insecticides such as sevin. You should be aware that you cannot knock down bees with sevin. They must get the insecticide inside them. So, the control method is to wait late in the afternoon when they have retired for the day. Apply the sevin to the area around the hole and into the hole. Then, use some caulking material to stop the hole. If you desire to knock down the Carpenter Bee, use one of the aerosol products. If you would like a copy of a bulletin on the carpenter bee, stop by our office in the County Courthouse.

Beautiful Big Bend

Author Unknown

We left Deport Monday morning early. With suitcases packed and our hair all curly. First night out we put up at Odessa town. Unpacking only pills, toothbrushes and each a gown.

Nothing much happened as we hung around the place. Except for no card table and Reba sprayed Thelma with Mace.

Tuesday we headed directly for Big Bend. Stopping at the old Gage Hotel an hour to spend. When the rest went to the van to take a seat, Virginia took a long walk with shoes on the wrong feet.

At 3:00 we checked in at beautiful Chisos Lodge Inn. Things seemed fine, but then trouble began. There was no TV, telephone or table for cards played. And Reba returned from the gift shop with gifts not paid.

Trouble, it seems, always comes in flocks. For before nightfall, Reba and Thelma had broken our door locks.

Wednesday found us at Fort Davis Land. A quiet, secluded place with beauty on every hand. We briefly explored the Observatory roadway. Ate and visited the Old Fort the rest of the day.

Thursday, on our way to Fort Stockton to stay. We stopped in Alpine to spend half a day. Visiting the Sull Ross Big Bend Museum, alas another curse! For Mavis hurt her right hand, and Ina lost her purse!

Friday morning we visited Annie Riggs' Museum display. It was now nearly eleven and we needed to be on our way. At Brownwood we spent our last night out. Reluctant to face this fact, I have no doubt.

Now seven old women in a mini-van. Had as much fun as old folks can. Nina gave orders and drove the crew, Mavis cleaned the van and drove some too. Ruth, a traveler's sensation, kept tab on proper bathroom elimination. Thelma filled the water jug and swatted flies. Virginia acted as purser, paying for our supplies. Reba helped to take care of the mon. Ina sat up front and just had fun!

Easy Savings on Energy Bills

Area residents looking for ways to trim their energy bills often need to look no further than their thermostat, according to Texas-New Mexico Power Company.

Inaccurate thermostats or thermostats kept on settings that are too high or too low can waste a significant amount of energy, said Gary Petty, Bogata district manager of TNP.

"For every degree that a thermostat is set above the recommended setting in the winter, there is a 6-8% increase in the amount of energy used," Petty said. "In the summer, the same increase applied for every degree below the recommended setting."

The recommended settings are 68 degrees in the winter and 78 degrees in the summer.

Some homeowners may think they have their thermostat on the recommended setting when they don't because of a faulty thermostat. The easiest way to check a thermostat for accuracy is to place a regular thermometer beside the thermostat for about 30 minutes and compare the reading. The thermostat should be able to maintain the temperature within three degrees of the desired setting. If the thermostat doesn't have the same reading as the thermometer, it needs to be repaired or replaced.

A thermostat can also cause energy use to escalate if it has a short cycling period. If a resident notices their heating or cooling system cycling on and off every two to three minutes, the cycling needs to be adjusted so that the system comes on and off about every 10 minutes.

Thermostat placement is another factor affecting energy use. A thermostat located near an exterior door or near a lamp, television or other heat-producing appliance will adjust the perature to the immediate environment, even though the rest of the house may be too cool or warm as a result. Putting a thermostat in a room with a high ceiling is not preferable either.

Another way to save energy with a thermostat is by purchasing a setback thermostat. This device lets the thermostat automatically adjust the temperature at night or during times when the house or apartment is unoccupied. TNP recommends adjusting the temperature down by 10-15 degrees in winter and up by 3-6 degrees in the summer.

The setback thermostat can quickly pay for itself. For instance, a 10 degree setback for 8 hours reduces energy use by 14 percent, research shows. A 5 degree setback saves 10-11%.

In mild weather, there's an even easier way to save energy, Petty reminded. Residents can simply turn the thermostat off and enjoy the weather.

Keeping Healthy

Never Too Late

Exercise isn't just for the young. "Exercise—even when begun at a late age—can improve the quality of life significantly," says a California Medical Assoc. Health Tip.

Seniors who follow a safe exercise program designed for their needs and capabilities can improve their muscle strength, cardiorespiratory fitness, physical endurance and mobility.

In addition, regular exercise can help regulate blood pressure, prevent the bone deterioration that can lead to osteoporosis, lower the concentration of fat in the blood that causes atherosclerosis, and help prevent weight gain by encouraging better eating habits and regulating metabolism.

Exercise can provide important psychological benefits, too. Elderly adults who exercise regularly appear to be more self-confident and self-sufficient than their sedentary peers.

Walking is perhaps the most convenient exercise for older adults and is extremely beneficial, as it places minimum stress on the heart while improving musculoskeletal function and benefiting the cardiovascular system.

Kennedy-Deweese Reunion Held

Descendants of Hiram Kennedy and Sarah Jane Deweese met in Paris at the Holiday Inn on Friday, June 11 and at the Lamar Avenue Church of Christ Outreach Building on Saturday, June 12 for a family reunion.

The pioneer couple came from Kentucky by ox cart in the mid 1840's and settled on a Republic of Texas Land Grant in Harrison County. In 1857 they purchased land in the southeast part of Lamar County which is registered in the State Land Office as the Hiram Kennedy Survey. They lived in their home east of the present community of Cunningham until their deaths. They are buried in nearby Halesboro Cemetery in Red River County.

Sixty-seven people registered and enjoyed a covered dish luncheon. On display were mementoes by family members along with genealogical records and many pictures covering the years of residence in Texas. A large wheel with the names of all family members was up to date and furnished by Claris K. Jordan.

In remembrance of deceased family members, minister Gaylord Cook of Dalhart, a fourth generation descendant, offered a prayer of thanks for the contributions to the family and community.

Aubrey Crossland, Canyon, was the oldest person present; Weston Blaze Burns was the youngest with runner-up Mason Bean. Kai and Roxie Thomassen of Torrance, CA traveled the farthest distance with runner-up Kim Cook Jones and son Carson of Pensacola, Florida. Largest representation was the Dan and Mary Page Kennedy descendants with 24 present.

The next reunion is June, 1995 with the following people elected officers: president, Deveral Kennedy; vice-president, Jan Nichols; secretary, Roxie Thomassen; treasurer, Lonnie Kennedy; historian, Nita Williams; publicity, Imogene Crossland.

Attending were Warren and Debbie Dunham, Paul and Kimberly, Commerce; Kim Cok Jones and Carson, Pensacola, FL; Lonnie and Betty, Jade and Billy Kennedy and Colt Redus, Paris; Gaston and Roberta Puckett, Bogata; Bill, Angie and Mason Bean, Paris; Bill, Cynthia and Will Crossland, San Antonio; Bobby and Shelly Kennedy, Cunningham; Darrell, Gay Lynn, Joshua, Joseph and Quentin Bonjour, Amarillo; Wanda and Wade Kennedy, Celina; Gary, Cyndee and Megan Rutherford, Celina; Deveral and Elaine Kennedy and Kris Kelly, Sherman; Johnny, Leigh and Heather Pucket, Paris; B.J. and Marcella Ditto, Jay, OK; T.R. Buie, San Marcos; Aubrey and Imogene Crossland, Canyon; Claris Jordan, Mesquite; James Charles Kennedy, Paris; Benny and Doris Kennedy, Paris; V.O. No matter how happily a woman may be married, it always pleases her to discover that there is a nice man who wishes she were not.
