DEPRESSION PROPHETS UNFAIR SAYS NOTED BUSINESSMAN

WILMINGTON, Del.—Prophets who predict a business depression because of peace in Korea do Americans a disservice when they assume that business is unequal to the tasks of peace," Crawford H. Greenwalt, president of Du Pont, said here.

"I think they do a disservice equal to a charge that business is unequal to the task of war," Greenwalt declared. "The record would indicate that it is fully equal to both. Business isn't scared of peace."

"The surest way to start a depression is to predict ourselves into one," he added.

"In this country our standard of living is such that a substantial part of our income is available for purchases that we may make today or put off until tomorrow. If we are confident of the future, we buy today. If we are not, we decide to make the old car do another year, to delay our house painting until spring or, if we are up to it, to tell our wives that they can't have that new coat after all.

"Such decisions in the American home determine our relative state of business prosperity. They have an impact far outweighing the sober deliberations of Senators and statesmen. And because people react with great sensitivity to signs and portents, those who predict in public take on a great responsibility.

"I would therefore urge that we think twice before we sell the future short. The surest way I know to start a depression is to predict ourselves into one. The surest way to harvest those new products, whose seeds are sprouting in our laboratories, is to keep our hopes high, our inventives strong and our economy dynamic."

ROCK HURLED 20,000 FEET BY VOLCANO

Anchorage, Alaska.—Mount Spurr, an active volcano 78 miles west of Anchorage, was erupting violently Thursday, hurling solid particles large enough to damage aircraft to an altitude of 20,000 feet, the Air Force reported.

A cloud of swirling smoke towered an estimated 35,000 feet into the sky.

Joe McGill was shot in the leg about 8:30 a. m. Sunday morning in the yard of his home in Deport. Two shots were fired, according to Constable Pick Anderson, but only one took effect. The bullet lodged in his knee and he was taken to the Grant hospital for surgical attention.

Plan Broad Talco Athletic Program For School Year

Pre-season training for the Talco Trojan football team will start Tuesday morning, Sept. 1 at 9 o'clock. Two workouts each day are planned for the boys until school opens on Sept. 8.

The Trojans lost 13 regulars from last year's district championship club, but will have eight lettermen and ten squad members back to battle for starting positions on the club. Several freshmen who looked good in spring training will probably be starters this year.

Talco school has fielded teams in the four major school sports, football, basketball, track and baseball for the past four years and has built quite an enviable record for a school of its size. A planned physical education program for both boys and girls in high school and elementary grades is a feature of the broad program. Outdoor basketball courts and soft ball fields are available for use at all times.

In the past three years the Trojan football team has finished in second place once and last year were conference champions.

The basketball squad in the past four years have finished twice in second place and once in third place in conference running.

In interscholastic League track and field events, the Trojans have finished twice in second place and once in third place in a four year period.

The basketball jinx has been holding the Trojan basketballers down. For four years the Talco boys have finished in second place. In three play-off series the Trojans were beaten by Winstboro and twice by Linden. Sulphur Springs won the conference without a play-off in 1951.

Consider Use of Idle Acres Under Crop Controls

WASHINGTON.—The Agriculture Department will give "serious consideration" to a plan for shifting land idled by looming production controls into grass, an informed source predicted.

This expert said control of the millions of acres of cropland "released" from wheat, cotton and corn in 1954 might prevent a disastrous buildup in surpluses of animal feed grains. Stocks for the 1953-54 season are only slightly below the all-time record set in 1950-51 according to official estimates.

Government control of the "released" land might require action by Congress next January. But the only other apparent course open to Agriculture Department officials, if they want to check feed production, would be acreage allotments on such crops as rye, barley and grain sorghums. Official sources were cautious in commenting on the problem. Undersecretary of Agriculture True D. Morse said only "we are getting a good deal of concern about it."

Wheat growers have already approved marketing quotas for their 1954 crop, cutting 1954 plantings 15,000,000 acres from the 1953 level cotton producers will probably be asked to pass on similar controls.

Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson must decide by Nov. 15 whether to ask for marketing quotas on 1954 corn. Department experts said corn supplies appear slightly under the level at which quotas must be imposed. This, however, does not affect the fact that corn acreage allotments must be proclaimed by Feb. 1, 1954, unless the Secretary decides a national emergency exists.

MORE ROOM NOW FOR THE BATS

Wheatland, Calif.—The Christian Church's 600-pound bell was too heavy for the belfry.

A construction company gratuitously removed the 69-year-old bell and put it on a pedestal in the church yard.

Rings just the same. "Here we go 'round the mulberry tree" is correct. Mulberries don't grow on bushes.

EDITORIALLY SPEAKING

What most of us desire at this time of the year is a month of Sundays.

If you have never learned to like people you haven't had much fun in life.

Fortunately our dreams are not taxed. It is only when they come true that taxes begin.

Many a fellow who thinks money grows on trees discovers that it soon leaves.

THE AMERICAN WAY

... Economy Begins at Home!

HOUSE-BROKEN

Jobs in Washington are getting harder to get. It's about time. The pickings are not like they once were, and the point can best be illustrated by the story of the New Deal congressman who phoned one of the departments in behalf of one of his constituents who wanted a job. "What can he do?" asked the department official.

"Nothing," replied the congressman. "That simplifies it," said the official. "We won't have to break him in."

SECOND BEST

An old timer is one who remembers when the Police Gazette was banned from the mails because it was naughty enough to print pictures of ladies in bathing suits and actresses in tights. No such penalty is imposed on the modern magazine.

Democrats in Washington are fussing at Eisenhower because he has not cut down the national debt. Who made the debt, gentlemen? Didn't Roosevelt and Truman run it up eleven billion more than the combined debt of all the administrations since the days of Washington?

STARVATION DIET

An Indian had gone to see the doctor, who, after examining him, told him to be careful what he ate—in fact, not to eat at all until he got an appetite. Meeting the Indian a few days later, the doctor asked how he felt.
"Oh, I feel fine now," he replied. "I wait one day, appetite no come, wait two day, appetite no come, wait three day, appetite no come, get so hungry eat anyway."

Does May Be Killed 3 Texas Counties

Regulated harvest of surplus does upon an experimental basis will be practiced in three south-west Texas counties during the deer season this fall. There will be, in this editor's opinion, no sport in it for those who kill them. It will be like shooting calves. Does have been protected so long they are not afraid of hunters. To outwit a crafty, cunning buck that can see, hear and smell better than a man, is something else.

Maybe we do have too many does, and maybe the deer will be larger with the does partially thinned out. When this editor started hunting in southwest Texas 35 years ago, a buck that didn't weigh 150 pounds dressed, wasn't considered much of a buck. Now one hardly ever kills one that will weigh 100 pounds. Deer that have been planted in numerous East Texas ranges are larger and fatter.

TOO POLITE

Nine-year-old David hurried off to school one morning before his mother inspected his wash job. So, when he sat down in the classroom, breakfast was still visible on his face.

The teacher frowned and said reprovingly: "David, you didn't wash your face. What would you say if I came to school one morning with egg and jam around my mouth?"

"Nothing," he retorted smugly. "Nothing at all. I'd be too polite."

Insect Build-Up May Be Costly Says Entomologist

Warning to farmers with late cotton: Keep an eye out for an increase in boll worms and boll weevils.

The build-up of boll weevils has begun, and they are damaging cotton.

And the recent showers and cool weather in East and North Texas fields may cause an increase in boll worm infestation.

That warning came from C. F. Garner of Greenville, extension service entomologist for five East Texas counties.

"The boll weevils are building up into damaging numbers," he said. "They are in isolated spots at the present time, but they should be on the move within the next two weeks."

Much cotton will be late, he warned, because spring rains delayed the planting. If the weevil build-up is of sufficient size before the cotton makes, there may be a general infestation over the East Texas area.

Garner said that cool weather in August often results in an increase in bollworms, a time when they start letting up when the weather is hot.

The rains of the last few weeks have been heavy enough to keep farmers out of their fields with poison which is another cause in the insect danger.

Garner noted that flea damage earlier in many fields has caused little fruit on cotton plants despite good stalks and foliage. Early season control is the remedy for that, he said.

JONES, THE GREAT

No doubt the greatest man that ever lived was Marvin Jones. Generous, brave, handsome. He was always cheerful, sympathetic and tender. Didn't take a drink, loved his wife dearly and never opposed her. Praised her cooking. Remembered birthdays and anniversaries. He never looked at another woman except with orthodox eyes. Jones was meticulous in small matters; emptied his own ash trays, never monopolized a bathroom or read his newspaper at the breakfast table.

His brain was colossal—he knew everything. And the sheer courage of the man! He faced things. It never fazed him to ask his boss for a raise. He was knight-errant, a Galahad. Yet I alone knew him to be. For I married his widow, the greatest of super-men.

LIQUID FRACTION

Spring vacation was near and the teacher was trying to give her class an impression of fractions which would last until school resumed. She told them they could think of fractions at home as well as in school and gave such examples as "half a sandwich," "a quarter of a pie" and "tenth part of a dollar."

At that point one little boy caught on and promptly contributed, "My father came home last night with a fifth."

Why Some Uneducated People Make More Money Than Educated People

Editor's note: Achin Alcorn, philosopher on his Johnson grass farm on Sulphur is way over his head this week, he's talking about education.

Dear Editor: I read the other day where a man said there was one thing about the school system he couldn't understand.

Said the schools of this country are turning out a lot of graduates; but he'd noticed there were a lot of so-called uneducated people who never went to school much who were making a lot better livin than the educated people. He wanted this explained.

I will explain it. The reason is there is no substitute for hard work and hard thinkin, and the school system ain't got any courses in them subjects in its curriculum. It's just hard to get teachers who can handle them two subjects.

However, I would like to say in a hurry that in regard to hard work and there not bein any substitute for it, as far as I'm concerned I ain't lookin for a substitute for it. Most of the substitutes I've encountered are worse than the original, and as for me and hard work, I just don't want to be associated with the idea.

The schools are able to teach a man to read and spell and figure and trim his fingernails, all right, although I've seen some people who went clean through the school system and couldn't spell or read or write any better than some people who quit in the eighth grade, in fact, I've observed that college degrees frequently ain't no reflection at all of a man's education, some people can get an M. A. degree and still not know any more than they did when they had just a B. A., and some people can get a Ph. D. degree and still not show any marked improvement over what they knew when they were back in the B. A. class. In lots of cases, under this Gilmer-Aikin system, the only way on earth to tell how many degrees a teacher's got is to look at his pay check. It's the only place it shows. In fact, there are some people who claim degrees are noly records of how many classes you attended and stayed awake in, not how much you absorbed, which is a matter out of my field, although I guess there are people who absorb more than others, although some of them don't know what to do with what they do pick up. Educatin some people is like givin certain young boys a high-powered automobile. They just ain't equipped to handle it.

As far as makin money goes, I'm not equipped to speak on the topic, but I'd like to say that stayin ignorant may not be a bar to makin money, but it ain't no help either, and a man who can get ahead without any education, there ain't no tellin where he could have gotten with a little. Might have been even a foreign diplomat. Yours faithfully, A. A.

New Inspection Law for Autos Now in Effect

AUSTIN. — The old Texas Motor Vehicle Inspection Law died Wednesday night after a somewhat turbulent existence.

The measure, which saw heated debate in the last session of the Legislature, has been replaced by a modified version which calls only for the inspection of auto brakes, lighting equipment, horns, rear view mirrors and windshield wipers.

Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, has announced that the State Public Safety Commission has officially set the new inspection period for Sept. 15, 1953, through April 15, 1954.

George Busby, Chief of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Division of the Department of Public Safety, has said that there will be about 3,000 inspection stations ready to operate on the opening date.

"Trained mechanics who are well versed in the new law and its requirements will be set to go, and they will have an adequate supply of stickers and other materials on hand," Busby stated.
