TEXAS HISTORY

Every year, on the western rim of the Davis Mountains in Texas Big Bend, one of the most extraordinary associations in the state has met since 1889. Although the organization has thousands of members, "never in its history has it taken any action, adopted any measure, or authorized any expenditure that did not meet unanimous approval".

It is called the Bloys Camp Meeting Association, founded by W. B. Bloys and six ranchers for the purpose of yearly week-long religious services. Facilities have grown to five camps, and thousands are fed during the meeting. However, a collection plate has never been passed and nothing can be paid for.

Financing is all voluntary, including donation of at least five beeves daily during the week and 10 on Sunday.

The name Bloys Camp Meeting was chosen for incorporation in 1900, honoring the chaplain for Fort Davis, who managed the encampment 27 years. The late George W. Truett preached the golden anniversary sermon there in 1939 when 21 of the original members were in attendance.

The campsite spreads over 640 acres and is served by its own electric light plant, water-sewer system and cement-floored tabernacle built by the four participating denominations: Baptist, Methodist, Christian and Presbyterian.

New Rental Housing Proposed For Deport

A survey is now being conducted to determine the need for rental housing in Deport, to be financed by the Farmers Home Administration.

The objective of the Rural Rental Housing loan program is to provide credit for good rental housing, designed for independent living, at a rental cost senior citizens and other people with low moderate income can afford.

The living units and site plan will be designed by an architect. The Deport Housing Authority and city officials of Deport are now working with the firm of Stanley Brown, Architect of Dallas, Texas, which is helping with the preliminary stages and will provide the design and supervision of the units if the project proceeds into full development.

The Deport City Council met with Brown, the Deport Housing Authority and other interested persons in a special called meeting Monday night at City Hall. Duane Glover, a councilman and owner of City Drug Store, said he anticipated as many as 40 applicants for the rental housing, citing good experience, with the existing housing units for the elderly in Deport. "Deport has lower rents, lower taxes, and is a more pleasant place to live than some other larger towns around," Glover said, "and we are badly in need of rental housing."

Deport City Attorney John G. Wright said, "A project like this can be a real boost to a town."

Stanley Brown was the architect who designed the housing units for the elderly now in Deport, and said that the local housing authority will be able to borrow the money from Farmers Home for 40 years. The project will be approved or disapproved within 120 days from the date of the application. Jewel Daugherty, Farmers Home supervisor in Paris, would be closely linked with the construction phase of the project, if approved.

Brown said the most popular and practical plan consists of duplexes composed of one and two bedroom apartments. Included in the project cost would be inside streets, curbing and guttering and sewer, water and gas hookups to the property line. The city would be required to furnish water and sewer to the property.

If you are interested in obtaining convenient, attractive, safe and comfortable rental housing for Deport, you are asked to complete a simple survey form which is now available at City Drug Store. Mrs. Jerry Burns with the Deport Housing Authority will be at the First National Bank in Deport from 8:30 a.m. to 12:00 noon Monday and Tuesday, November 24 and 25, to assist in the completion of the forms. Call 652-4950 for more information.

Only by showing a desire and need for this housing will the project proceed into further development. You are urged to stop by and complete the survey form at your earliest convenience.

Farm Loan Demand Off

With higher prices bolstering farm sales, cash flows to farmers and ranchers in the Southwest have increased this fall. And with harvests better than last year, prospects are for further improvements.

As a result, demand for agricultural loans in the five states served by the Federal Reserve Bank of Dallas has eased in recent weeks. Requests for extensions on loans at banks in the Eleventh Federal Reserve District has slowed, and farm loans are being repaid faster than a year ago.

Aggravated uncertainties Although price increases have improved growers' incomes in the district—which includes Texas, northern Louisiana, southeastern Oklahoma, and the southern halves of New Mexico and Arizona—costs of production have also increased, offsetting some of the gains in income and enlarging the risks of farm operations.

As their costs rise, growers have more to lose from a setback in yields or drop in prices. Crop farmers did not have the yields they expected last year. And stockmen, whether dealing in stocker or feeder cattle, are caught in a severe cost-price squeeze for the second straight year, as are dairymen.

Market uncertainties, along with unusual weather in some areas and lingering effects of low farm income in most areas, have made many banks more selective in their farm lending.

A survey of more than 200 banks in the district indicates, for example, that more than a third of the banks may be requiring more collateral than usual for farm loans.

Loan demand down Bankers clearly believe that as crops are harvested this fall, existing loans will be paid down. And as cattle herds are culled more severely this year, demand for farm credit will be further reduced.

Where more than a third of the bankers surveyed this summer reported greater demand than usual for farm loans, only a little over a fifth of them now report above-average demand.

Demand for crop loans has remained strong over most of the district. Bankers attribute this strength to higher operating costs and the larger acreages planted this year.

Rebels Dump Wildcats

The Rivercrest Rebels fiddled around for three quarters Friday night before finally getting their game together to defeat the Rains Wildcats 18-14. It was the Rebels second win of the season.

The Rebels gained more yardage on the ground in the last quarter than they had during the entire game, and the total yardage was the best of the season.

Rains had most of the breaks during the opening period, aided by a short punt by Rebel David Horn and an intercepted pass. The Rebel pass defense was sharp during the first quarter, with Rebel defenders driving one receiver beyond the end zone and deflecting three other passes.

Early in the third quarter Rains hit paydirt with a 40 yard touchdown pass, followed by a two point conversion in the air.

Again the Rebels were victims of a bad break when quarterback Larry Taylor missed a handoff and the Wildcats recovered the fumble. The Wildcats managed only 20 yards before they gave the ball up on downs, but this time Jimmy Forsyth was stripped of the football as he went through the line.

Milton Scales was in the right place on the Rains first pass attempt, however, and intercepted the football, on the Wildcat 42 yard line.

With the clock ticking away the final seconds of the half, Taylor stood in the pocket and delivered eight consecutive passes before the Rebels gave the ball up on downs, but Bill Montgomery made certain that the Wildcats only got one play off before he recovered a fumble on the Wildcat 44 yard line. Taylor connected with a 31 yard pass to Sammy Ellis on the 12 yard line, but was intercepted on his next pass, which might have put the Rebels on the scorecard before the half.

Rains dominated the short third quarter, gaining six first downs during this period and making one touchdown.

The Rebels got down to business in the fourth quarter, with Taylor connecting with Sammy Ellis on a 15 yard pass on the first play from scrimmage. Taylor earned the next Rebel first down on a run around right end for 12 yards, and Scales punched through the center of the line on a dramatic run of 25 yards. He was caught from behind on the Wildcat nine yard line, but carried the ball over from the five for the first Rebel score. The Rebel defense allowed Rains three yards on their next drive, and the Rebel offense took possession on their own 41 yard line. Forsyth made the first down with runs of eight and three yards, and a pass from Taylor to Kenny Stanley for 14 yards accounted for the next first down. Taylor's next pass was intercepted, but Sammy Ellis recovered a Rains fumble on the following play.

Scales made it all look easy as he carried for the second Rebel score from the 20 yard line, but the Rebels still lagged behind Rains 14-12.

A short kickoff by Larry Taylor worked just the way it was planned, and a Rains lineman fumbled the ball into the hands of Sammy Ellis on the 50 yard line. Scales was called upon again, and made his longest run of the season—50 yards for another touchdown.

Talco Church Auxiliary In District Of Year

The Fellowship District Women's Missionary Auxiliary, composed of only four churches, First Baptist, Talco; South Jefferson, Mount Pleasant; Bethel and Macedonia, both of Pittsburg, the smallest District Auxiliary in Texas was named District of the Year for the highest percentage in reaching the WMA's Standard of Excellence from over one hundred auxiliaries when the State Association met in Dallas last week.

Fellowship District with a 98 percent excellence was presented a plaque by the State President, Mrs. Bert Jones. Mrs. Betty White, president for the 1974-75 year accepted the plaque on behalf of the district WMA. District officers from Talco are Mrs. Barney Treece, vice president; Mrs. Wayman Alexander, secretary; and Mrs. Vivian Westbrook, assistant secretary.

WHOA—Strange situations are caught by the camera when it freezes action, as Rains' Danny Beasley puts on his brakes, and Milton Scales and Randy Belcher appear to be looking for a contact lens in the grass. One cannot help but wonder if there isn't a Rains player under Scales and Belcher, because there is an extra hand sticking up. That's football. (Staff Photo)

Scouts Plan Historical Study

Mrs. R. L. Prestidge Honored With Farewell Party

The T. E. L. Class of the Calvary Baptist Church honored one of their members, Mrs. R. L. Prestidge with a farewell party Thursday evening at 6:00 p.m. in the fellowship hall of the church. Mrs. Prestidge and her husband are moving to Arlington where they have just built a new home.

The president, Mrs. O. J. Holland opened the meeting and the Rev. Don Williams gave the invocation before a buffet salad supper was served to 18 members and husbands.

Following the supper, Mrs. Ivy Smith brought the Thanksgiving devotional during which time each one present expressed their thanks to God in sentence prayers. Concluding the program, Mrs.

Smith read a poem by an unknown author entitled, "I Know Something Good About You".

The social chairman, Mrs. Ollie Redwine, introduced her husband, Marion Redwine, who entertained with a delightful show of magic. He also played the guitar and the accordion for the group to sing by. Just before closing Redwine announced that he had just one more magic trick to perform, but his wife would have to assist. He asked her to leave the room and when she heard him say a certain word for her come out. When she came out she brought a large, beautifully wrapped package and presented to the honoree, expressing the sentiments of the whole class, that our loss would be someone else's gain. The meeting closed by forming a circle and holding hands while singing "Blessed Be The Tie". Paul Miller closed the meeting with prayer.

THANKSGIVING HOLIDAYS

Loans—

Availability of funds The availability of funds to support agricultural loans has increased slightly since summer.

Well over 85 percent of the banks reported the supply of loanable funds in their areas at least average for this time of year. Of those, more than half said they were actively seeking new farm loan accounts.

Considerable amounts of funds are clearly available for loan. As a proportion of deposits, loans at reporting banks recently totaled 55 percent.

loans has been much weaker, and the outlook for livestock loans is far less certain. With cattle on feed in the five states increasing, demand for loans to feed them out could gain momentum in some areas. But in others, where dry weather has lowered prospects for winter pastures and wheat grazing, demand for both feeder and stocker cattle loans has been dampened.

Demand for crop storage loans has eased since summer. And while demand for these loans is expected to be heavier than last fall, bankers believe it will remain fairly light.

With prices favorable, farmers are expected to sell their crops to pay off debts built up last year. And with the proximity of crops to Gulf Coast ports, most of the grain sold for shipment overseas is expected to move quickly out of the district.

As farm incomes improve, purchases of farm machinery are apt to increase. And with the increase, bankers expect some increases in demand for credit to help finance the purchases.

Repayment of loans While loan repayments have increased since summer, the increase has not been as much as would ordinarily be expected.

Favorable crop prices and generally good yields have boosted repayment of crop loans over most of the district. But low cattle prices and mounting feed costs have held back the repayment of cattle loans.

Of the banks surveyed, 85 percent reported an at least average number of renewals and extensions of farm loans. That was compared with 95 percent this summer.

Although more than a third of the banks had loan-to-deposit ratios of over 60 percent, two out of five banks had ratios of 50 percent or less.

The upshot was that more than half the banks responding to the survey were satisfied with the volume of their loans outstanding relative to the deposits they held. And close to 30 percent of the banks would like to make more farm loans.

Red Tape Reaches Your Farm

Farmers, highway maintenance men, and city employees who clean out ditches or move any dirt where cattails and willow trees grow—and many other places as well—may soon be faced with getting permission from a United States Army colonel. And they must also receive comment from the Texas Water Quality Board, according to terms of a recent Washington, D. C. federal court order.

The possibility of having thousands of individuals and local governments swamped in new federally inspired paper work for many routine operations is very real, according to Hugh C. Yantis Jr., executive director of the Texas Water Quality Board.

Yantis said that if this is a back door approach to land use planning, which has been turned down by Congress on several occasions, it ought to be recognized as such and dealt with openly.

This new problem for land owners and local governments arose when a group of environmentalists, organized as the Natural Resources Defense Council Inc., filed a lawsuit against the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency in a Washington federal district court. The judge ruled on March 27 that the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers had to apply their permit requirements for navigable waters to "all waters of the United States."

First indications were that even routine farming operations might be covered, and such an uproar ensued that some provisions were changed.

However, regulations as now proposed by the Corps of Engineers with the approval of the Environmental Protection Agency have still met with almost unanimous opposition from all areas of Texas government. Corps permits are now to be required for the excavation of ditches, diking, dredging or filling in of wetland areas, among other things.

The court ruled that tributaries to navigable streams were part of the law, which means that brooks small enough to step across are frequently included in the new law, as well as thousands of ponds larger than two surface acres in size.

The City of Houston has been told that it must have an Army permit for cleaning about 8,000 miles of ditches located within the city limits. And the Texas Highway Department also must get permission before moving any dirt where bridges cross streams.

In other words, running a road grader along certain ditches can be a federal law violation with penalties of up to $25,000 per day unless an Army district engineer okays it, after consulting with the Texas Water Quality Board.

Congress was petitioned by the Texas Legislature on May 27 in a resolution which stated that the Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Speaker of the House of Representatives and the 64th Legislature are "mutually and unalterably opposed to the expansion of federal authority over land and water resource management as would follow from the implementation of the proposed rules as published."

House of Representatives Bill 6935 is now before a subcommittee, and it provides for amending the water pollution control act to limit the areas covered to the traditional concept of navigation. Plans are being made for a strong presentation by Texas officials when the hearings are held in early November.

Applications must be filed with the Commander of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers district offices, along with a $10 fee for small projects, and $100 for those where more than 2,500 cubic yards of dirt are moved. At present it takes about three months to get a permit, if one is granted, and if the program grows rapidly, the time required may be longer, according to the Corps.

One provision of the Engineer's current regulation calls for including areas which are characterized by the prevalence of vegetation that requires saturated soil conditions. This means cattails, willows, and bulrushes, among many other forms of common vegetation found in almost all parts of the state.

USDA Serves All The People

By Lane Murphy
The Department with all its agencies as we know it today, had its meager beginning in 1862 when President Lincoln signed the Congressional Act creating the (USDA) United States Department of Agriculture. About a quarter of a century later, USDA became the eighth executive department to gain cabinet rank. During those days, the Department served a population almost entirely involved in agriculture for a livelihood. A farmer in Lincoln's day produced enough for himself and three or four others.

Today the Department serves a Nation in which only five percent of the population lives on farms. However, each agricultural worker today provides enough food and fiber for himself and over fifty others.

By looking at the broad responsibilities of the United States Department of Agriculture, one can see how it serves all Americans daily as it seeks to improve and maintain farm income, assuring maximum productivity of farm products for which there is a demand and developing and expanding markets abroad for agricultural products. One of the major functions of the Department is helping curb and cure poverty, hunger, and malnutrition. (A large portion of the Department's budget goes for food stamps). The Department also works toward enhancing the environment and maintaining our capacity to produce food and fiber by helping landowners protect soil, water, forest, and other natural resources. This is accomplished with programs on rural development, rural credit, continuing education and cost-share assistance.

The Department's research findings are of benefit to all Americans.

Friendship Night Observed

Friendship night was observed Tuesday night when the Talco Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star met in the Masonic Hall. Visitors from Mount Pleasant, Bogata, Sulphur Bluff and Hughes Springs were present and each visitor was a special invited friend of a Talco member. They were each given a crystal romance light by their special friend. Worthy Matron, Mrs. Lottie Via, read a beautiful poem of the value of true friends and Talmadge Morgan of Bogata made a short talk on the subject. Mrs. Hilga Chester and her daughter, Mrs. Frankie Cooper of Sulphur Bluff concluded the program with an appropriate duet. One grand officer, John Surovick of Mount Pleasant was recognized and welcomed.
