...wing's top officers for quarter

Top officers earn quarterly awards

The wing's top instructor pilot and support officer over the past quarter have been selected.

Capt. Neal Linch of the 52nd Flying Training Squadron and Capt. Robin Lake of the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital were recognized for their performance during the award period.

Capt. Neal Linch

Duty Title: T-38 check pilot and runway supervisory unit controller

Time in Service: 4 years

Time at Reese: 3 years

Hometown: West Point, Ga.

Achievements during the quarter: Captain Linch is the pioneer military training officer for the 52nd FTS (B Flight). As an MTO, he manages student affairs for the class, which includes coordinating assignment night, compiling class critiques and assisting in the planning for graduation day activities. He recently received high ratings on three consecutive MTO inspections.

As an instructor pilot, he has continually earned top ratings for check rides, landings and check flight inspections.

Described by his superiors as an extremely capable runway supervisory unit controller, responsible for running a busy T-38 traffic pattern, he received top ratings on initial checkout and subsequent no-notice RSU evaluations.

Captain Linch also represents the wing through speaking engagements at local schools and community functions.

"He's a top-notch pilot and a superb officer," said Lt. Col. Stan Osborne, 52nd FTS commander.

Deployments spur support

Staying ready

A member of the 64th Security Police Squadron keeps the watch during last week's contingency exercise at "Reese West." For details on the exercise, see page seven.

From my perspective

by Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

It's autumn, and time to turn over some leaves; not just those in our backyard, but the ones that may be lying around our workplace as well.

Now I know that the Reese Team is ready for the challenges that await us. As I visit the various organizations throughout the wing, I see, firsthand, the hard work that each of you put forth. It is however, important to validate your efforts and ensure that our people get the credit they deserve for a job well done.

We perform our mission everyday in such a way that meets or exceeds the required standards. Accordingly, the self-inspection program is an ideal way to quantify your accomplishments and identify any weaknesses in your operation that may require minor adjusting. The self-inspection program is by no means a punitive concept — it's merely a management tool to help supervisors gauge the progress of their duty section or unit. After all, we are all here to support a common goal; to successfully train the best pilots in the Air Force. With this in mind, our focus should be on how each person, section and unit can effectively contribute to the "big picture."

We all have plenty of time to fine-tune our portion of the mission. The key is to start now with a critical eye. If you are uncertain about a particular phase of your operation, don't be afraid to ask a supervisor or co-worker. After all, success at any level hinges upon teamwork.

A word about safety

I know I'm probably "preaching to the choir" since safety is such a vital part of Air Force life, but lately we've seen an increase in the number of fender benders. Shorter daylight hours, and poor weather are just around the corner which means we need to be even more alert. We can never be too safe when it comes to our lives and those of our families. By the way, let's be especially careful next week when those little and not-so-little trick-or-treaters are out and about.

One more safety plug. This is a fun time of the year with football games and other fall sports and the holidays just around the corner, but whether you're at home, a friend's house or a football stadium, let's not forget common sense. Drinking and driving is a "no-go," so be a real friend to yourself and to others and don't allow it to happen. A "mistake" in this arena can quickly become a crime.

Voluntarism offers benefits

Red Cross has opportunities for service

by Julann Michelini
64th FTW Hospital

Although the American Red Cross is well known for its work in disaster relief, this nationwide organization is active here at Reese on a daily basis.

The Red Cross program at Reese is staffed solely by volunteers whose primary aim is to improve the quality of life for patients at the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital.

There are currently 25 active Red Cross volunteers at the hospital in positions ranging from receptionist to dental assistant. Many of these volunteers arrived at Reese with no experience, but they did have a desire to help others.

Working hand in hand with the hospital staff, they have had an opportunity to learn about various aspects of the medical profession.

There are many other potential benefits to volunteering. In addition to an introduction to patient care, volunteers also receive specialized, transferable job skills; references for future employment, cardiopulmonary, or "CPR" training; recognition; and a great deal of personal satisfaction.

Being a volunteer may be easier than you think. The hours are flexible and are arranged around your schedule. Free child care is available through the Reese Child Development Center for Red Cross volunteers while they are at work. You will work at your own pace and may choose your position from several that are available. You may even work in more than one area if you desire.

If you would like to learn more about the American Red Cross and volunteering at the hospital, please contact either Capt. Christy Giroux or Julann Michelini at 3230.

Members should use credit wisely

Poor judgment can cause problems

(Editor's note: The following was submitted by the Reese Legal Office.)

One of the more common legal assistance problems we see here is the young servicemember who has borrowed money or used credit cards unwisely.

In today's credit-oriented society, it's quite easy for someone with little or no credit history to get credit cards and equally easy to fall prey to bad credit habits. When the amount you owe is greater than your ability to pay, problems quickly arise. Many people tend to ignore those problems, hoping they'll go away. They rarely do.

If you are having difficulty paying a debt, the best thing to do is contact the creditor immediately and attempt to refinance or otherwise modify the agreement. Failure to do so often leaves the creditor with no choice but to turn the matter over to a collection agency. If that happens, however, all is not lost.

Both the federal government and the state of Texas have passed laws to protect debtors from unscrupulous bill collectors. The Texas law applies to anyone who tries to collect a debt. The federal law applies only to professional debt collection agencies. You are protected by both laws.

The Texas law makes it unlawful for any debt collector to tell a third party that a person is refusing to pay a disputed debt; threaten violence or other criminal acts; accuse the debtor of fraud or other crimes; threaten arrest of the debtor without proper court proceeding; threaten repossession or other seizure of property without proper court proceedings; use profane or obscene language; or call without self-identification in order to harass or annoy.

In addition, the federal law prohibits calls at work if the collector has reason to know that the employer does not permit such calls; prohibits calls before 8 a.m. or after 9 p.m. unless the collector knows such times are more convenient for the debtor; and prohibits collectors from using unfair or unconscionable means to collect a debt.

Violators of these laws are subject to criminal and civil penalties. Debtors who think they have been harassed or deceived may seek injunctions and damages against the debt collectors.

If you think you have been the victim of an unlawful debt collection practice, please call the legal office, 3505, and make an appointment to see one of the attorneys.

If you need financial counseling, contact MSgt. Don Minnis at the Family Support Center, 3305. We are here to help.

Trick or treat? Parents can help make this holiday happy, safe for kids

(Editor's note: Trick-or-treating in Reese Village will be allowed from 6-9 p.m. Wednesday. The 64th Security Police Squadron will be doing candy checks until 10 p.m. that evening in Bldg. 500. In addition, SPS will have their building decorated for the holiday.)

The U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission offers these safety tips for parents and guardians of children who plan to go trick-or-treating this Halloween:

- Look for costumes, masks, beards and wigs labeled "flame resistant." Although this does not mean these items won't catch fire, such labeling indicates that they will resist burning and should extinguish quickly once removed from the ignition source.
- Flimsy materials and outfits with big, baggy sleeves or billowing skirts should be avoided to minimize the contact with candles or other sources of ignition.

□ Make or buy costumes light and bright enough to be clearly visible to motorists. For greater visibility in dusk or darkness, costumes can be decorated or trimmed with reflective tape which will glow in the beam of a car's headlights.

□ Bags or sacks also should be light colored or decorated with reflective tape. Reflective tape is usually available in hardware, bicycle and sporting goods stores. Children also should carry flashlights to see and be seen more easily.

□ Costumes should be short enough to prevent children from tripping and falling. Children should wear well-fitting, sturdy shoes; mother's high heels are not a good idea for safe walking.

□ Hats and scarves should be tied securely to prevent them from slipping over children's eyes.

□ Apply a natural mask of cosmetics rather than have a child wear a mask, which might restrict breathing or obscure vision. If a mask is used, make sure it fits securely and has eye holes large enough to allow full vision.

□ Swords, knives and similar costume accessories should be made of soft or flexible material.

□ Warn children NOT to eat any of their treats before they get home. Examine all treats carefully for evidence of tampering before allowing children to eat them.

□ Smaller children should always be accompanied by an older, responsible child or an adult. All children should use the sidewalk rather than walk in the street, and they should walk, not run from house to house. Children should be cautioned against running out from between parked cars or across lawns and yards where ornaments, furniture or clotheslines present dangers.

□ Children should go only to homes where residents have outside lights on as a sign of welcome. Children should not enter homes or apartments unless accompanied by an adult.

□ Those receiving trick-or-treaters should remove anything that could be an obstacle from steps, lawns and porches. Candlelit jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from landings and doorsteps where costumes could brush against the flame. Indoor jack-o'-lanterns should be kept away from curtains, decorations or other furnishings that could be ignited.

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

Among other things, parents should caution their children to pay close attention to where they're walking, especially if they're crossing the street.

RECYCLING

by 2nd Lt. John deAndrade
64th CES Environmental Planning Section

An American family of four produces an average of 100 pounds of garbage a week.

According to the Environmental Protection Agency, yearly garbage production will increase to about 193 million tons during the next decade. This is an increase of 33 million tons, or 20 percent.

Comparing this to the number of landfills available, the problem becomes obvious. In 1978, the U.S. had approximately 20,000 landfills. This number was down to 6,000 in 1988. By 1993, the number of landfills available is expected to be 4,000.

Rapidly increasing garbage and decreasing space have created a national problem requiring immediate action. Most of the solutions are costly and complex. One solution that is simple and cost effective is waste reduction. Waste reduction includes reduced packaging, reusable containers and recycling.

Recycling has recently become very popular. It can also be financially beneficial. Recycling saves energy, raw material, money, refuse and landfill space.

Reese is involved in recycling through the Resource Recovery and Recycling Program. This program reduces our waste generation and helps fund Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division activities. MWR is currently recycling glass, aluminum cans, cardboard, pallets, white bond paper, computer paper, cooking grease and newspapers. Active participation by wing members in this program is vital for the environment and future generations, not to mention a help to the base. Recently, funds have been used to upgrade the bowling alley and to get MWR sports equipment.

An important item to recycle is motor oil. Dumping motor oil into base drains and sewer systems significantly increases pollution to surrounding areas. This is a national problem that Reese should take the lead in solving. The Auto Hobby Shop will take used oil from wing members.

Recycling is an inexpensive way to protect our environment, and a great place to begin.

It's up to everyone to protect the environment

Coping with separation

Deployments pose challenge for wing family members

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
assistant editor

Coping with the deployment of family members is much like coping with the unknown. The only real difference is that with deployments, family members can work together to understand and familiarize themselves with the realities of the deployment.

This fact has hit home recently as a result of Operation Desert Shield.

"People left behind are most often left to deal with the fear of the unknown," said Capt. Larry Friedt, Reese psychologist. "The fear stems from not knowing where their husband or wife went, when they'll be back, what the living conditions are and, most of all, if they'll encounter a hostile situation while deployed."

"It's from this fear that the rumors are created. Without a clear understanding of what is actually happening away from home, those left behind can only rely on what they hear through the media and other families whose members were also deployed. Much too often, people will try to read into what they hear, forming their own beliefs of what's 'really' going on."

From these rumors and fears often comes feelings of guilt, loneliness and anger, according to mental health experts. However, life must go on — there are bills to be paid, houses to be cleaned and children to care for. "We can't control how long our loved ones will be gone, but we can control our reaction to it," pointed out the captain.

In dealing with fear of the unknown, he suggests visiting the library and learning all there is to know about the Persian Gulf region. Rather than spending all spare time in front of the television watching endless news reports, write letters to your mate asking for details about the living conditions there and write about things going on at home.

However, Captain Friedt cautions spouses when writing about major problems at home. "Letters should be encouraging and supportive. If you write about a problem without discussing what you're doing about it, your spouse will worry until your next letter — wondering how you're getting along," he explained. "If you must write about a problem, explain what's been done about it, and close on a positive note."

When a parent deploys, the other parent should expect a million questions from the children, such as "Mommy, where's Daddy? When's he gonna come home? How come he left us?" They're simple questions, but the answers don't always come so easily.

As a result of the deployment, children may become very possessive of the remaining parent. "This can be difficult for the remaining parent to deal with, although he or she may be feeling a little 'clingy' too," the captain said. "However, children may also become angry and defiant, which requires the parent to be supportive and understanding, while still enforcing the rules of the home."

Some children may also display physical symptoms as a result of stress. Symptoms range from insomnia or oversleeping to chest pains and nausea. Regressions, such as wetting the bed or sucking their thumb, may also occur.

If physical symptoms occur, the children should be brought to the pediatric clinic. If the symptoms are due to an actual illness, the doctor there can treat them. "If they're due to stress, the staff can suggest other base offices that may be better able to provide assistance," said Captain Friedt. "In stress-related illness, the best treatment is often simple recognition of the cause. After that, it's a matter of watching, waiting and working on the source of stress."

The most important thing at this point is to keep communication lines open.

Discuss the deployment and answer any questions the child may have. "Also, explain to the child why daddy left — emphasis that he didn't leave because of something the child may have done or didn't do. Explanations such as 'mommy is helping friends' or 'daddy was the best qualified to go' will often help," he added.

Although family separations create problems, some good can come of them, pointed out Captain Friedt. "There can be a great deal of personal growth for everyone."

It's an opportunity to discover new sources of strength and support," he explained. "Everyone has to take up the slack while mom or dad is away. It's a chance to develop new skills and discover hidden interests and abilities. It can be a real adventure for everyone — children and parents."

Luncheon will close disability observance

Reese will wrap up its activity-filled observance of National Disability Employment Awareness Month with a luncheon Tuesday in the Jack Davis Room at the Officers Open Mess.

Ms Rosaleen Perea, President of the Texas Deaf-Blind Association, will be the featured speaker, and will talk on "Employment: Investing in America's Future." The luncheon begins at 11:30 a.m. For more information or to make a reservation, call Ext. 3801.

October has been officially declared National Disability Employment Awareness Month in Lubbock by Mayor Peck McMinn. Throughout the month, Reese has promoted disability employment awareness through such activities as library displays, seminars, Roundup articles and breakfast. The Reese Civilian Personnel Office has also conducted special recruiting sessions designed to increase employment opportunities for disabled people here.

That type of aggressive program garnered the civilian personnel office the Amarillo Region Employment of the Handicapped Award earlier this month.

According to James Latimer, manager of the Texas Employment Commission's local office, the award was presented to the Reese office for its active effort to hire disabled workers. The award was sponsored by the Life Independent Living Center and the International Association of Personnel In Employment Security.

Job fair meeting planned for today

A meeting is set for 3 p.m. today in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess for people interested in a career transition seminar/job fair Dec. 13-14 in San Antonio, Texas. The events are free and open to separating, separated and retired military members.

The Noncommissioned Officer Association is conducting the two-day event. Today's meeting is also for people who would like more information on the NCOA Veteran Employment Program.

The seminar is from 1-4 p.m. Dec. 13 at the Marriott Riverwalk, located at 711 E. Riverwalk. The fair is from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. Dec. 14 in the San Antonio Convention Center's South Banquet Hall, located at 200 E. Market Street.

Those able to attend will have the chance to meet with recruiters and hiring managers from a variety of businesses across the nation. People unable to attend the events can fill out a mini-resume form, available from the Lubbock NCOA Office, 1220 Broadway, Suite 1101. Their name and applicable information will be input in the on-line data base, which is accessible by more than 1,000 employers nationwide.

Some of the more common employment opportunities available include aviation, logistics, accounting, computer programming and maintenance, electronics, administration, communications, health care and engineering.

Persons planning to attend should complete a mini-resume form and bring 20 copies with them. Forms also be available at the fair.

For more information or to turn in mini-resumes, call "Job Seekers" at 741-1323 or Dan Webster at 741-0291/795-3502.

Wing conducts contingency exercise

Total force.

The term is normally associated with the "Total Force" concept, describing the combined power of all aspects of the Air Force. However, it also applies to the wing team that deployed Oct. 16-19 to "Reese West," the area on base where field exercises are conducted.

"Unlike past employment exercises, where only certain units took part, this contingency exercise, or 'CONEX,' involved every unit on Reese that has a mobility tasking," said Maj. Gary Tucker, chief of the Base Exercise Evaluation Team.

About 190 people took part in the CONEX. They ranged from familiar faces in the field like the 64th Security Police, Civil Engineering and Services Squadrons to newcomers like the 64th Mission Support Squadron, 64th Supply Squadron, 1958th Communications Squadron, and the Reese Transportation, Comptroller and Morale, Welfare and Recreation Divisions, as well as the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital (this was actually the second time HOSP took part in such a deployment exercise).

While in the field, exercise players were tested in several areas, such as wartime command and control, rapid runway repair, attack scenario responses, air and ground defense, chemical and conventional attacks, self-aid and buddy care, and damage assessment. New aspects of exercise operations included field personnel processing, pay request processing, vehicle support coordination, supply requisitioning and survival reconstitution center operations.

During the exercise scenario, participants were subject to field conditions at all times. They lived and showered in tents, fired more than 4,500 rounds of blank M-16 and M-60 ammunition, experienced ground burst simulator explosions, smoke and aggressor attacks, and ate hot breakfasts and dinners out of the SVS field kitchen. Lunches were in the form of meals ready to eat, better known as "MREs."

According to BEET officials, the wing performed well on the CONEX, for a first-time exercise. That's good, considering what lies ahead for the wing.

"When the inspector general (from Air Training Command) arrives in February, this type of exercise is one of the things we'll be evaluated on," Major Tucker said.

"We'll need to show the IG that we can carry out our wartime taskings as well as our normal, day-to-day responsibilities."

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

Management course set

A mini-course in civilian personnel management will be offered Nov 14-15 by the Reese Civilian Personnel Office. It is for supervisors of less than three civilians. To reserve a slot, call 3803.

Send a 'Washingtongram!'

Is there someone on base you've always wanted to say something to, but were afraid to? Well now you can send a "Washingtongram."

For $2, the commandant of the Reese Professional Military Education Center — SMSgt. J.T. Washington — will "tell it like you say it." Sergeant Washington will deliver the message in person.

Proceeds will benefit the Reese Enlisted Wives Club scholarship fund. To send a Washingtongram, take your message to Margaret Ramey in the Family Support Center. People can send as many messages as they like, and they can remain anonymous if they wish.

HOSP Breast Clinic open

The 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital has a new breast clinic as part of their general surgery service. The clinic is open from 8 a.m. to noon every Friday.

HOSP officials advised anyone who finds a breast lump or experiences any unusual breast changes to make an appointment by calling 3245. No consultations are necessary, and direct access to the clinic is available.

Halloween carnival scheduled

A Halloween carnival will be held from 6-8 p.m. in the cafeteria at Reese Elementary School. It is being sponsored by the Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Cub Scouts and the Reese Elementary Parent-Teacher Organization.

There will be a cake walk, fishing pond, sponge throw and booths. Booths will cost from 10 to 50 cents.

Admission fee will be one can of food for the South Plains Food Bank.

Management group set

An emotions management group will meet at 3 p.m. Nov. 8 in the Reese Mental Health Clinic. It's designed to help people manage their feelings. To sign up, call 3739.

Correction

Send a message to someone you love stationed in the Gulf. For free.

Desert FaxSM service can help you reach U.S. Military Personnel in the Gulf.*

A quick note. A silly doodle. A clipping from the local newspaper. They may not seem like much, but to someone far away from home, they can mean a lot. And now there's a fast, easy way to send these heartfelt messages to a loved one stationed in the Gulf. For free.

It's called Desert Fax. It stores messages electronically and transmits them at high speed using Enhanced FAX service, which is available internationally. So you can fax a message to any U.S. military personnel overseas involved in Operation Desert Shield.

Just go to your nearest AT&T Phone Center to pick up an official Desert Fax Form. Put your personal message in the space provided†. Fill in the necessary information including social security number and APO/FPO. An employee will fax it for you. And the person in the Gulf should receive your message within a few days.

Desert Fax messages can only be sent from the U.S. to the Gulf using the official forms available at all AT&T Phone Centers. To find out where the one nearest to you is located, and its hours, consult your white pages. Or call 1 800 555-8111, Ext. 36, Mon-Fri 8am-6pm, Sat 8am-4pm.

Because staying connected is something that's important to all of us.

Desert Fax is a public service brought to you by AT&T.
This space is donated by Word Publications, publishers of your base newspaper.

Center offers programs for 'crafty' people

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
assistant editor

The Reese Arts and Crafts Center, Bldg. 340, has many programs available for wing members, such as workshops, competitions, craft fairs and customer feedback meetings.

The center is divided into various areas, some of which are do-it-yourself, while others require the assistance of a staff member. These areas are accessible during normal hours, which are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday and Friday through Sunday; and 1-9 p.m. Thursday.

The center has a wide variety of specialty shops available to wing members. They range from the "personalized for you" shop, where people can have custom work done on plaques, T-shirts and more; to the woodcraft shop, where wing woodworkers can obtain an array of tools, machinery and instruction; to others like the ceramic shop and mobile wall shop, which offers custom matting and framing service.

In addition to the specialty shops, the center is also offering a variety of instructional workshops, such as:

□ Studio art. During each class, basic acrylic painting and charcoal drawing, and contemporary painting and charcoal drawing studio art instruction will be offered. Workshops will be held from 9:30-11:30 a.m. the second through last Saturday of each month, except December. Cost for three sessions is $15 (six-student limit).

□ Basic woodworking. This is designed for the person who has great ideas in mind, but doesn't know how to begin. The instructor teaches students basic woodworking skills from 6-9 p.m. on the first two Thursdays of each month. Cost for the two-day course is $10 plus materials (six-student limit).

□ Basic ceramic techniques. During two two-hour classes, students are taught the basic fundamentals of ceramics, including greenware cleaning and using a kiln. Classes are held from 6:30-8:30 p.m. on the first and second Thursday of each month, and from 1-3 p.m. on the third Sunday of each month. Cost is $10 (six-student limit).

□ Basic calligraphy. Students can learn to personalize certificates and greeting cards during the three-and-one-half-hour workshop. It will be held from 1-4:30 p.m. the second Sunday of each month. Cost is $7 plus materials (four-student limit).

□ "Origami" decorations. In this workshop, students will learn the Japanese art of folding paper into decorative shapes. The session will run from 6-9 p.m. on the fourth Thursday and from 1-3 p.m. the fourth Sunday of each month. Cost for one session is $10, materials included (six-student limit).

□ Crocheting. During the two-and-one-half-hour sessions, students can learn to make doll clothing, afghans, pillows, sweater-vests, sweatshirts and baby blankets. Beginner classes are from 1-3:30 p.m. Saturdays and 6-8:30 p.m. Thursdays. The beginner classes sessions begin Saturday, Nov. 15 and 17. Advanced classes are 1-1:30 p.m. Saturdays, and sessions begin Saturday and Nov. 15. Cost is $25 for four classes, plus materials (five students required).

□ Whittling. This workshop teaches students to create while they carve, as they take a block of wood and reshape it into a work of art. The cost is $35 (all materials and tools included) for four sessions to be held from 6-9 p.m. on Thursdays and from 1-4 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. The next session Oct. 25 to Nov. 1 (five students required).

□ Hand-crocheted rugs. During this one-day affair, students will learn and actually make a hand-crocheted rug. The class begins at 10 a.m. Nov. 10 and 17, and will run until students' rugs are complete. Cost is $25 and includes all supplies. There must be six students for each class, and they should bring their lunches.

People must register for the workshops no later than three center work days prior to the class date. Payment is required at time of registration, therefore, sign-ups will not be taken over the phone.

While these workshops are mainly offered to the individual, if there is a small club or organization on base that would like to participate in these classes as a whole, special instruction can be arranged by calling Terry Bozman, center director, at 3141 during operating hours.

For their "regular" patrons, the center has the several incentive programs available. They include a two-for-one user fee program for people working the same project, a program through which people can buy blocks of time instead of paying hourly fees, and other money-saving programs.

From 7-8:30 p.m. the first Thursday of each quarter (the next one being in January), the center holds customer feedback meetings. "Everyone is invited to attend these meetings, through which they are encouraged to voice their opinions about any on-going programs, ask questions or make suggestions for other programs they'd like to see offered," said Mr. Bozman.

In addition to the many programs, the center also has various volunteer (and possibly contract) instructor positions available.

All sales stop 30 minutes prior to closing, and Enlisted/Officers' Open Mess club cards are accepted for any purchases or fees. For more information on any programs or prices, stop by the center or call 3140.

Membership drive set for Mexican - American Club

Thursday kicks off the Reese Mexican-American Club membership drive.

The drive will run throughout November.

The club began at Reese in 1972. It exists primarily for the benefit of its members, and also to support needy base and local community members through various fund-raising activities, such as softball tournaments and food sales.

"The club's main intent is to provide a better understanding of Hispanic culture and history and to promote good relations among all ethnic groups," said MSgt. Matt Alvarez, club president.

The club meets the third Sunday of each month, and it is open to everyone at Reese and in the surrounding communities. Monthly membership dues are $1.

To remain an active member, participants are expected to attend two out of every three meetings and take part in one out of every two events.

The next meeting is 2 p.m. Nov. 18 in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess. For more information or to join the club, contact Sergeant Alvarez at 3796.

Quarterly

"His desire to excel in the Air Force is evident in everything he does."

Past awards: Captain Linch recently received a master instructor rating and was also selected as squadron IP of the month for July.

Education: He recently completed the check pilot certification program.

Capt. Robin Lake

Duty title: Director of managed care office and medical logistics

Time in Service: 4 years, 8 months

Time at Reese: 16 months

Hometown: Bonn, Germany.

Achievements during the quarter: Captain Lake's negotiation of the inpatient service agreement between Reese and the University Medical Center to allow a 20-percent discount resulted in about $40,000 savings annually. He also extended the agreement with the South Park Medical Center to include Cannon AFB, N.M., in the center's 35-percent discount for outpatient services. As an indirect result of this agreement, Reese saves about $5,000 monthly.

The captain reanalyzed the Reese Partnership Program in an effort to save CHAMPUS funds and increase care provider usage. He also recruited a dermatologist and cardiologist through the partnership program, which resulted in lower CHAMPUS costs and increased service for wing members. He is also studying the hospital's population in an effort to make a priority of monetary and manpower resources to best fit the hospital's and wing's needs.

"Captain Lake is a take-charge individual who believes in getting things done, especially when it's in the best interests of Reese people," said Lt. Col. (Dr.) Joseph Contiguglia, HOSP commander.

Captain Lake spearheaded the development of the Office of Managed Care, which was designed to improve relations with local hospital and increase accessibility of outpatient care.

Captain Lake was selected to serve on the HOSP's 48-member team during a deployment exercise to Sheppard AFB, Texas.

"Because of his unyielding commitment to the hospital and Reese, Captain Lake's selection for this award comes as no surprise to me or my staff," said the doctor.

Past awards: Captain Lake was selected as a distinguished graduate of Squadron Officer School, Maxwell AFB, Ala. He also received the Chief of Staff Award from the school.

Education: He is currently pursuing his certification in health organization management through Texas Tech University.
