

Contracting receives award for SBA support

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
assistant editor

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Jesse Martinez, Reese Operational Contracting Division, verifies contract information with a contractor.

More than 1,400 jobs for local community residents.

Greater than $73 million poured into local businesses, resulting in a $193-million impact to the local economy.

That's what Reese dollars did for the Lubbock area in fiscal 1989, and that support continued in fiscal 1990. This was evidenced by the $15.8 million in new contracts awarded by the base last year.

For this, the Lubbock district U.S. Small Business Administration director presented Reese with a certificate of appreciation during the 64th Flying Training Wing Monthly Awards Ceremony Nov. 30.

During the presentation, SBA Director Walter Fronstin cited Reese for awarding the greatest number and highest dollar amount of contracts to small business contractors within the Lubbock district.

Of the $15.8 million in new contracts awarded by the base, more than $11.6 million went to small businesses, said Maj. George Clark, Reese Contracting Division chief.

"Of these figures, the Reese Operational Contracting Division awarded 33 contract actions worth more than $2.8 million to Lubbock district small business contractors in support of the "8A" or small business Program," he added.

He explained that this is a program designed to assist minority or disadvantaged small business contractors locally.

Through the contract program, small companies owned by socially and economically disadvantaged persons can obtain federal government contracts and other assistance in developing their business, according to SBA officials. The SBA acts as a prime contractor and enters into all types of federal government contracts with other governmental departments and agencies and negotiates subcontracts for the performance of those contracts with small companies in the program.

Contracts were awarded last year for supply of items, construction and various services, such as grounds maintenance and repair and upkeep of transient living facilities, according to Major Clark.

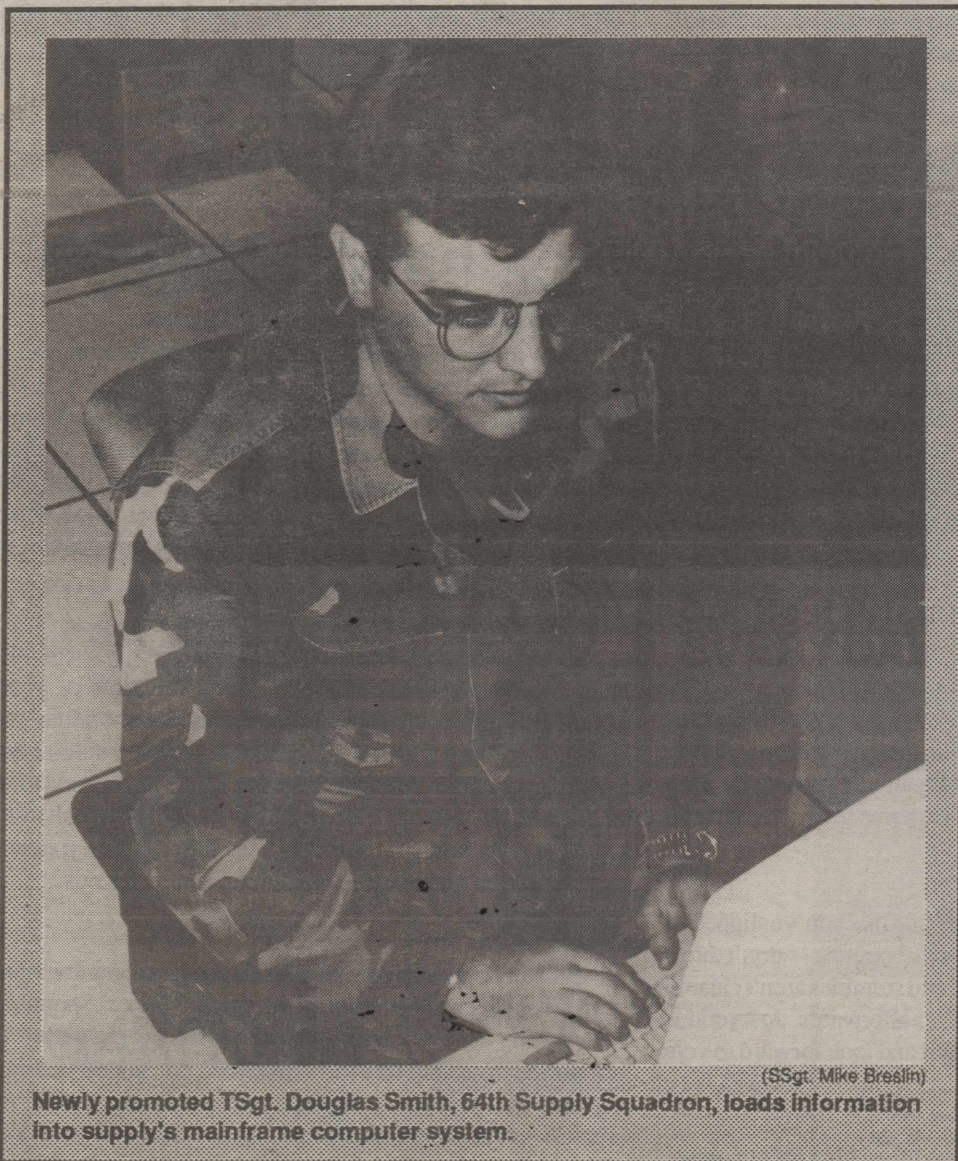

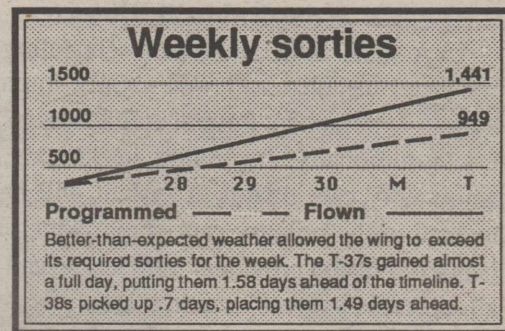

"We sincerely appreciate the continuing cooperation and support our office receives from Reese contracting officials," Mr. Fronstin said. "Year after year, they work with SBA as we all endeavor to benefit those small businesses in the Lubbock district who qualify for the program."

Reese AFB, Texas 79489

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Newly promoted TSgt. Douglas Smith, 64th Supply Squadron, loads information into supply's mainframe computer system.

Six years, five stripes SUPS member receives 'STEP' up in career

Six years — five stripes.

That's how you could describe the career of TSgt. Douglas Smith, who picked up his fifth stripe Nov. 29 under the Stripes for Exceptional Performers Program.

The 64th Supply Squadron computer programmer found out about the promotion during a formation for squadron noncommissioned officers. According to the sergeant, the event was "overwhelming."

"I knew I was up for it, but I really didn't expect (to get the STEP)," the Michigan native said. "Considering the quality of people who were up for it, it was an honor just to have my name submitted."

One factor contributing to his success was his ability to adapt. "Just three days after finishing 'tech' school, he started working a shift by himself. He's really quick to pick up on new concepts," said TSgt. Linda Cole. Until recently, Sergeant Cole supervised Sergeant Smith, who cross-trained from inventory management into computers in 1989.

His former supervisor added that Sergeant

Smith's dedication and drive to improve were also factors, citing his willingness to do shift work and his constant search for ways to do the job better.

The 27-year-old sergeant's efforts weren't restricted to work. Having already earned two associate degrees, he's less than one year away from a bachelor's degree in management at Park College. He currently maintains a perfect 4.0 grade point average.

Sergeant Smith's other educational achievements include top graduate awards at several levels of professional military education, as well as technical training performances in the high 90s. Other past accomplishments include below-the-zone promotion to senior airman, promotion to staff sergeant while still a senior airman, and several airman of the year and quarter awards at both the unit and wing levels.

Sergeant Smith is involved in both the on- and off-base community. This includes the Air Force Sergeants Association, Special Olympics and his unit advisory council.

Reese OWC contributes $1,000 in fund raisers to Air Force Village

Fund-raising efforts by the Reese Officers' Wives Club during the past year resulted in a $1,000 donation to the Air Force Village Foundation.

Money raised by the OWC-run Reese Thrift Shop and a club art auction held earlier in the year made the $1,000 contribution possible. The money was recently presented by Elizabeth Kauffman, OWC second vice president, at the foundation's 26th annual meeting in San Antonio.

An additional $500 was raised, which allowed the OWC to send a representative to the meeting.

"The foundation prefers that the clubs use the $500 to send a member rather than use it as part of the donation," Mrs. Kauffman explained. "That way, the different representatives can get a firsthand view of the work the foundation does and then relay that back to their local clubs.

"In addition, members can see the legacy of past officers' wives clubs," she added, saying that the villages resulted from the work of OWCs in the past.

OWCs from around the world sent members to this year's meeting. Each club had the option of designating their pledge to either the foundation's fellowship trust or to the nursing home expansion project in Air Force Village I. Reese's club sent their money to the trust, which is used exclusively to support Air Force widows in need, added the vice president.

"At the meeting, I met a 30-year-old widow from Minot (AFB, N.D.) with two children who was living in one of the villages while getting back on her feet financially," Mrs. Kauffman said. "The trust can be a really big help to the widows who benefit from it."

The OWC conducts projects throughout the year that benefit the base and local community. As for future efforts, Mrs. Kauffman said that the club will be selling a cookbook early next year.

The book is expected to sell for $5-6 dollars, and will benefit the club's scholarship fund, which is designed for dependents.

From my perspective

by Lt. Col. (Dr.) Joseph Contiguglia
64th FTW Hospital commander

The 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital is a very dynamic place.

As you may already know, the hospital has recently undergone many positive changes. These changes were precipitated by the need to ensure that top-quality services continue to be provided to the Reese community. Some of these efforts toward improving or adding services are summarized below.

Hospital initiatives

□ A stand-alone automated scheduling system has been installed and will greatly improve our current appointment system and access to providers. Additionally, beginning in January, a new ambulatory care treatment system will be implemented in the primary care clinic, which will enhance our health providers' efficiency, and most of all, decrease patients' waiting time.

□ Also in January, the pediatric clinic will have extended hours — two nights a week until 7 p.m. These additional clinic hours will increase access to care for pediatric patients and will be especially convenient for families where both parents work.

□ The hospital now has an active-duty general surgeon. Although partnership physicians have provided in the past (and will continue to provide) surgical services, the blue-suit doctor's presence has definitely boosted our capability to provide the best possible surgical care for our population.

□ A breast disease clinic is available each Friday morning, and appointments can be made by calling central appointments.

□ Environmental health recently received an outstanding interactive video training system for AIDS/HIV education. This program focuses on the practical assessment and minimization of risks associated with this disease. It is specifically tailored to the Air Force environment and will be used for patient education as appropriate.

□ Planning is under way for the expansion/modernization of the laboratory, pharmacy, physical therapy and radiology areas. A new, modern x-ray machine is presently being installed and will be operational in January. This new piece of equipment will mean less exposure time during the x-ray process and a reduction in radiation.

Your participation

You probably have had contact with many of the volunteers who have rendered great assistance and service to the hospital and patients. They are indeed a valuable asset. If you, or someone you know, are interested in volunteering, please contact Capt. Giroux or Julann Micheline at 885-3230. Your help would be most appreciated.

Security: what's your clearance?

by SSgt. Charles Harris
Reese personnel security specialist

While questions often arise concerning security clearances, the continuing evaluation of security eligibility remains a priority program within the Department of Defense.

The purpose of this article is to review the basics of security clearances, promote continuing evaluation and increase security awareness.

Security clearances are requested only if an individual requires access to classified information in order to perform his or her job. If that individual stays in a position requiring a "top secret" clearance, a periodic reinvestigation will be accomplished every five years. Top secret PRs are not required for members filling a position requiring access to "secret" or lower rated information.

Once the Air Force Security Clearance Office grants a security clearance, that individual's commander may grant him or her access to classified information. The commander grants access based on:

- the security clearance;
- the individual's need for access; and
- a signed non-disclosure agreement.

Obviously, a one-time background check can't predict the future behavior of an individual. Therefore, commanders, supervisors and co-workers must continue to evaluate all individuals with security clearances — regardless of whether that individual currently has access to classified information. The security clearance makes the person eligible for access, and eligibility is what we're evaluating.

The standards for security eligibility are loyalty, reliability and trustworthiness.

Continued evaluation is the responsibility of supervisors and co-workers, but the ultimate responsibility for maintaining eligibility for a position of trust rests with each individual.

Each person must recognize and avoid the kind of personal behavior that would place his or her loyalty, reliability or trustworthiness in doubt. Financial, drug-related, emotional, criminal and other questionable activities and problems can often cause security clearance suspension.

Another element in the continuing evaluation process is the reporting of foreign travel. All members with security clearances must report personal foreign travel to designated countries, as outlined in Air Force Regulation 205-32, attachment 8, prior to departing. While members with top secret clearances must report all personal foreign travel, "spur-of-the-moment" travel to a non-designated country, such as Mexico or Canada, may be reported the first duty day following travel completion.

For more information, see your unit security manager or call the 64th Security Police Squadron at 3040.

Accepting gifts can be costly

Air Force members must not solicit a contribution from other Armed Forces members for a gift to an official superior; make a donation or gift to an official superior; or accept a gift or donation from other subordinate members, according to Reese Legal Office officials.

This prohibition also applies, as outlined in Air Force Regulation 30-30, "Standards of Conduct," to gifts or contributions to immediate family members of an official superior. However, this regulation does not prohibit voluntary gifts of reasonable value or voluntary contributions of nominal amounts (or acceptance of thought) on special occasions, such as a marriage, illness, transfer or retirement.

Additionally, all military and civilian members are required to report gifts received from foreign governments or their representatives if the gift has a retail value exceeding $180, base legal officials said.

In the instance where more than one tangible gift is presented, the combined value of the gifts will be used to determine value. This includes gifts that will be retained for official display or use.

Gifts must be reported within 60 days of receipt to: HQ AFMPC/DPMASA2, Randolph AFB, Texas 78150-6001. Violations could result in a fine equal to the retail value of the gift plus up to $5,000.

Take a 'break'

Quit tips for a healthier, happier body

(Editor's note: This is the last set in a series of "stay quit" tips for wing members who have chosen to quit smoking. The tips are provided by the American Cancer Society. Members can also call the Reese Health Promotion Clinic at 3554 for information on smoking cessation classes or brochures about the hazards of smoking.)

Today — day 23:

Nibble on low-calorie items like carrot sticks, celery and apples; suck cinnamon sticks or chew gum.

Saturday — day 24:

When tempted to reach for a cigarette, think of a negative image about smoking. Select your worst memory connected with the habit, such as the time you burned a hole in your suit or when you were left completely breathless running for a bus that pulled away. Imagine this experience for 15 seconds whenever the urge occurs.

Sunday — day 25:

If you had a weak moment and find that you've slipped — maybe you couldn't resist one or two cigarettes — don't throw in the towel! Remember that slips and stumbles aren't calamities as long as you pick yourself up afterwards. Just remind yourself of your commitment to quit and look forward to your smoke-free future.

Monday — day 26:

Give yourself a special present for staying off cigarettes. Consider a "smoke-free stocking" — full of snacks and gimmicks to keep your hands busy. In any case, don't forget to treat yourself in an extra special way this Christmas, as a celebration of your accomplishment.

Tuesday — day 27:

If you drink alcohol, ice up and water down your drinks. Choose a nonalcoholic drink as your first of the evening. Keep busy. Play bartender, help serve snacks or greet and meet guests. Take plenty of photographs.

Wednesday — day 28:

Sometimes, temptation strikes when you least expect it — just when the people you rely on for support aren't around. If this happens to you, you might consider joining a local quit-smoking program or group. Or, for daily guidance, advise, friendly assistance or a shoulder to cry on, call your local unit of the American Cancer Society. You're never alone when you're making such an important and healthy investment in your future.

Thursday — day 29:

If you're not spending the holidays with family or friends, there are lots of group activities during this time of year. Community groups may go caroling throughout the neighborhood right before Christmas, and there's often a sing-along performance of the "Messiah" nearby. This is also a good time to try out a new activity, such as racquetball, basketball, volleyball or even skiing. In any case, remember to treat yourself especially well and use this time to make new friends.

Dec. 14 — day 30:

Be a host: as one way of celebrating your new freedom from tobacco, consider hosting the family dinner. Shopping and cooking certainly will keep your mind off cigarettes. If you decide instead to be a guest this year, consider preparing a special dish to bring — perhaps an old favorite that's low in calories. Taking as much control as possible over your diet during the next few weeks could pay off in a big way after the festivities end.

Dec. 15 — day 31:

Congratulations! You, and millions of other smokers across the country took a big step in "beating the habit" by participating in the American Cancer Society's Great American Smokeout, and now you're ready to stay quit for good. You have given yourself and your loved ones a very important holiday present.

This day still lives in infamy

As discussions continue over the preparedness of today's Armed Forces, we might take note of the state of preparedness of the United States nearly one-half century ago today in 1941 — Pearl Harbor Day.

Along the Pacific Coast, the Army had only 45 modern fighter planes ready to fly and only 12 three-inch anti-aircraft guns to defend the entire Los Angeles area. On the East Coast, there were only 54 Army fighter planes ready for action.

The Army numbered some 1,644,000 men organized into four armies, 37 divisions and more than 40 combat air groups. But for a number of reasons, such as lack of tank and anti-aircraft guns, anti-aircraft artillery, radios, radar and, above all, ammunition, the War Department of that time was unwilling to commit more than one division and a single anti-aircraft regiment for service in any theater where combat operations appeared likely.

U.S. military scholars concede, "The attack on Pearl Harbor was one of the most brilliant tactical feats of the war." From six Japanese carriers that had taken up positions 200 miles north of Oahu, some 350 aircraft came through the mist on Sunday morning, Dec. 7.

They bombed and scraped the neatly aligned Army planes on Hickam and Wheeler Fields, as well as Navy and Marine Corps aircraft. The major target, however, was the eight U.S.

Navy ships anchored in the waters of Pearl Harbor.

When the raid was over, about 170 aircraft were destroyed and 102 damaged; all eight battleships and many other vessels were sunk or badly damaged. Total casualties came to about 3,400 persons, including 2,402 U.S. servicemen and civilians killed.

Japanese losses were 49 aircraft and five midget submarines. As military tacticians point out, the enemy managed to apply in one shattering operation a combination of the principles of surprise, objective mass, security and maneuver. In its larger strategic context, the Pearl Harbor attack also exemplified the principle of economy of force.

The Joint Congressional Committee that investigated the attack called it the "greatest military and naval disaster in our nation's history." But fortunately for the United States, the Japanese failed to sink the three carriers of the Pacific Fleet that were at sea, and they failed to follow through with attacks on Hawaii or the United States.

The disastrous attack had another important impact. It ended the division of American opinion toward participation in the war. America immediately went to war with an unanimity of popular support unprecedented in U.S. military history.

Taking advantage of this patriotic fervor, President Franklin Roosevelt presented seemingly impossible production goals. Early in January 1942, he proclaimed that the nation would build 60,000 airplanes in 1942 and 125,000 in 1943; 45,000 tanks in 1942 and 25,000 in 1943; 20,000 anti-aircraft guns in 1942 and 35,000 in 1943. Although unrealistic sounding when announced, the goals were in fact exceeded.

As Winston Churchill expressed it, "The Japanese attack upon the United States was a vast simplification of the country's problems and duty. How can we wonder what they regarded the actual form of attack, or even its scale, as incomparably less important than the fact that the whole American nation would be united for its own safety in a righteous cause as never before." ## Base policy reflects hazardous roadways

Freezing precipitation and high winds can make traveling, even short distances like to and from work, a hazard.

Therefore, the following Reese Inclement Weather Policy is now in effect for wing members:

□ During duty hours. When weather conditions worsen after the duty day has begun, the 64th Air Base Group commander will declare when only mission essential need to remain. Units will then release all others without charging leave, Col. Ray Bean said.

Unit commanders will determine which members need to report for swing and mid shifts.

□ After duty-hours. If traveling has been determined unsafe, the group commander will advise the Reese Command Post to initiate a telephone recall no later than 5 a.m., which will advise members that only essential personnel are required. The Public Affairs Division will provide this information to local radio and television stations as it becomes available.

Once traveling conditions clear, a telephone recall will advise all other personnel when to report. Again, unit commanders should provide the guidelines for swing- and mid-shift workers.

Civilian employees who are released early or told not to report because of the group commander's decision that only mission essential personnel report will not be charged with sick or annual leave. However, the hours must be documented on the civilian's time sheet as administrative leave.

In the event there is an unusual situation, such as Reese is clear but Levelland (Texas) is not, it will become the responsibility of the unit commanders and supervisors to develop a flexible work schedule to prevent the members who live in Levelland from excessive loss of leave, Colonel Bean added.

The base will never close completely, according to group officials. Essential services will be maintained at all time; therefore, each mission essential unit, such as the fire department and security police, should establish a list of personnel required to continue base operations during bad weather.

These members need to be briefed on their status, in addition to what actions need to be taken if they are unable to report.

Wing members need to bear in mind that safety is of paramount importance at all times and no one should take any unnecessary risks just to get to work. "The wing needs you — alive and well," Colonel Bean concluded.

Icy conditions

Tips to prevent slips

(Editor's note: the following safe driving tips were extracted from the November 1990 issue of Road & Rec magazine, which is distributed to base organizations through the Reese Safety Office.)

Slicker than slick

Ice at 32 degrees Fahrenheit is more slippery than at 10 degrees F.

According to the National Safety Council, which recommends, "If you live where temperatures are milder but occasionally drop to freezing, be especially wary as ice around 32 degrees F will be topped off with a thin surface of water that makes it especially hazardous.

"If it is necessary to go out on icy or wet streets, wear shoes that have a good tread. A ribbed sole will provide better traction than a sole with a smooth surface. When walking, take short steps — shuffle. Put your feet down flat, spread them slightly and keep your body position somewhat forward."

Gimme a brake?

In reporting a couple of icy-road mishaps, the Army Safety Center reported: "Braking is one of the worst things a driver can do on a slippery road. It can lead to a skid or make a skid that's already started worse. Hard braking virtually eliminates the driver's chance of regaining control. The vehicle will eventually come to a stop, but usually after it has collided with something.

"Braking should be done with a light touch. The 'squeezing' technique — easing the brake down with a gradual, steady motion — is preferred. Pumping lightly is also a good braking technique.

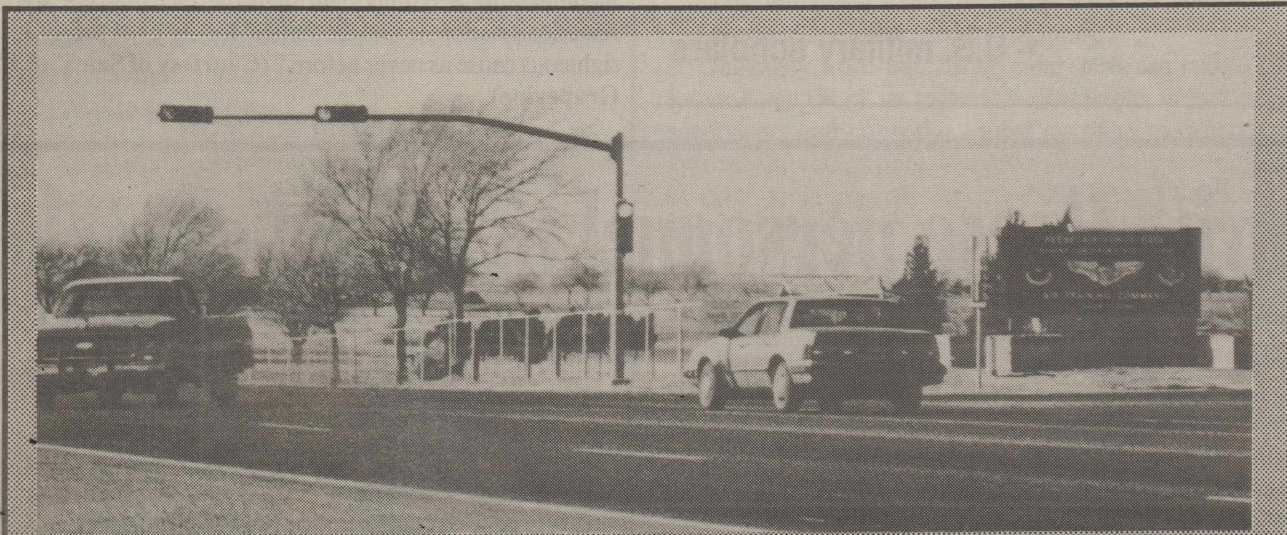

"Remember, winter driving is hazardous. When the roads are icy, keep your speed down and stay off the brakes. Better yet, stay off the roads."

Avoid cold starts

Unless your car is equipped with lights that automatically go off when you get out, you may face this problem: You drive to work in the dark. On the way, the sun comes up. You forget your lights and leave them on. After work, the car won't start.

A smart plan is to have the battery checked by a service station. If the battery will hold a charge, have it charged up for the heavy duties winter will require of it. If it's in marginal condition, replace it with a new one now.

For those unforeseen starting emergencies, always carry a set of good conditioned jumper cables. Be careful to attach them to the correct terminals: positive to positive, negative (on the car with the live battery) to the ground (somewhere on the frame of the car with the dead battery).

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Caution is key at nearby intersection

The intersection of War highway and 19th Street is the scene of many mishaps and even more near-misses. 64th Flying Training Wing Safety officials indicated that the cause is usually a driver who runs a red light. As winter approaches, drivers need to be especially careful of this area.

ENERGY ENERGY ENERGY

Year-round energy savers for the kitchen

*** Use cold water, not hot, to operate your food disposal unit.

*** Never boil water in an open pan -- a closed space uses less energy.

*** Match your pan size to the heating element.

*** Turn off electric heating elements before food is done, since electric grill will remain hot for a while.

Parents' involvement can present 'Toyland' tragedy

Holiday happiness can become a "Toyland" tragedy — if parents aren't careful.

Last year, nearly 125,000 children ended up in hospital emergency rooms because of toy-related injuries, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission. With the onslaught of Christmas toys due in less than three weeks, it's more important than ever that parents pay close attention to their children's activities.

"A mother and father's involvement with their kids' toys shouldn't end with the purchase of the item," TSgt. Chuck Wagner, Reese Safety Division, said. "There are many things that they should do to ensure the toys are safe."

Both the consumer commission and local safety officials offered the following tips:

- Watch for toys with sharp points or edges.
- Be leery of toys with small detachable parts that could find their way into a small child's mouth.
- Ensure that all electrical items are "UL" approved (the approval should be clearly displayed).
- Toys or games that generate heat should only be used under adult supervision.

□ Parents should note the age groups indicated on toys. Make sure that kids don't use toys not meant for their age group, and counsel older children to keep their toys away from younger siblings.

□ Local safety officials emphasized the need for caution with any "toys" that fire projectiles, such as air rifles and BB guns.

□ Instructions for putting together toys should be followed to the letter. The difference between using one tool or another could be the difference between a bike ride and an ambulance ride.

□ Even toys that "look" safe can be dangerous if they give off loud noises that can damage hearing.

□ Items big enough for children to crawl into, such as a toy chest, can become an entrapment hazard.

Although bicycles and skateboards are not classified as toys by the consumer commission, they also are part of the potential problem. Commission statistics show that nearly 600,000 people sought medical attention last year because of injuries due to these items. Proper protective gear is the key to avoiding such harm.

Although helmets are the best way to prevent serious injury (three-fourths of deaths due to bicycle accidents involve head injuries), they are no substitute for parental involvement.

"An attentive parent is the best way to ensure safety," said Richard Ziegler, chief of the Army-Air Force Exchange Service Technical Branch for Quality Assurance. "Parents have to watch while their children are playing, and they have to remember the importance of maintenance."

Mr. Ziegler cited improper maintenance as the result of some bicycle accidents.

Local officials warned parents to be particularly attentive on Christmas morning.

"Many times, kids will get a new bike and the first thing they want to do is try it out," Jon Hataway of Reese safety said. "They get all excited, and then don't pay attention when they're out in the street. Parents need to watch for this."

"The key is common sense," Sergeant Wagner said. "With a little attentiveness and discretion, the holidays can be both happy and safe for everyone." (Some material courtesy of American Forces Information Service)

Fire! Fire! Fire!

'Dead' detectors don't save lives - ensure they work

by MSgt. Roy Napper
Reese Fire Department

Smoke detectors do save lives — but, only if they work. Smoke detectors are installed in each family housing quarters for Reese Village resident's protection. The detector is the first alerting device if there is smoke.

Some people will say they can smell smoke even if they are asleep, and there are a lot of people who thought that, but you can't ask them now if they did. They're dead now...

Smoke detectors should be tested at least once monthly and cleaned as necessary to get rid of dust and spider webs. To ensure your smoke detector works, simply press the test button and hold the button until the audible alarm sounds. If the detector does not work, immediately call the Reese Housing Maintenance Service Desk at 3647, or if downtown, contact your service dealer.

There are several important points to remember about a smoke detector, such as it does not notify the fire department when it goes off. It will not carry you out of the house, nor does it prevent fires from happening. But, if working properly, it will notify you and your family when smoke is in the house and that emergency actions must be taken.

So now, you should ask yourself, "Do I know what to do should the detector go off?"

Your first response should be not to panic! Get everyone out of the house, then call the fire department by dialing 9-1-1 from a neighbor's home. Ensure your family has a predetermined meeting place outside your home, where a head count can be done.

Under no circumstances should anyone go back into the house for anything. That picture of your family, the diamond ring or a favorite trophy is not worth the loss of your life.

When the fire department arrives, tell them if anyone is still inside, and give them information as to where exactly in the house the fire is, and if possible, where it originated from.

If the fire is contained in a small area, you can try fighting it with a fire extinguisher, but only if it will not be putting your life in danger to do so. If fighting the fire yourself, always keep an exit to your back and watch the building structure around you to ensure nothing will fall.

The winter season often brings added fire hazards. Home heating can result in fires in furnaces and portable heaters, so change those furnace filters at least monthly. Dirty filters will ignite and burn rapidly.

Do not store paper, presents or anything combustible in the same closet with the furnace or water heater. If you do, you are skiing for trouble. Another thing to keep in mind is that silent killer, carbon monoxide. CO is an insidious killer. Because you can't smell, hear or see it, it often creeps in without you even knowing it's there. Instead, you get drowsy and go to sleep — sometimes forever.

Potential sources of CO are fuel burning (gasoline, utility gas, propane, charcoal, wood coal, oil and kerosene) stoves, ovens, clothes dryers, water heaters and other heat-creating sources. Automobiles in enclosed areas are also a source.

If you are having a problem with dizziness, weakness or your head hurts every time you're in or around a particular area of the house or an appliance, you may be experiencing the first symptoms of CO poisoning, and therefore you should call the service call desk or a utilities service company.

For more information about detectors or CO poisoning, call the Reese Fire department at 3311.

Budget cut affects commissary hours

Due to Department of Defense budget cuts for fiscal year 1991, the Reese Commissary is cutting its Saturday hours and will be open from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., effective Dec. 15.

During fiscal year 1990, the Reese Commissary grossed nearly $7.5 billion through more than 156,000 purchases made by Reese community members. In order to keep that volume of sales while maintaining a high level of customer support this year, Reese Commissary Officer Lila Andermatt, has proposed that the hours of operation will be reduced. Historical data on the number of customers shopping in the commissary at various times indicated that the reduction in hours from opening at 8 a.m. to opening at 9:30 a.m. Saturdays would impact the least number of people.

"Under the new budget, overhires such as cashiers and stockers are guaranteed a 24-hour work week," said Mrs. Andermatt. "By slightly cutting back the hours we are open and thinning the staff during slow periods of the day, we will be able to maintain the service our customers are used to."

The new budget resulted in an 8-percent cut in operation and management funds for Air Force Commissary Services overall. The cut, however, will in no way affect the quality or quantity of services and merchandise available, Mrs. Andermatt ensured.

So far, the budget cut will have no effect on the hours the commissary is open for the remainder of the week. For more information, contact the commissary at 6386.

Reese Commissary employees ensure that every day the shelves are well stocked and food items are displayed attractively. Also, a customer cannot leave the commissary without running across one or more of the "happy to serve you" faces working there.

Stop loss currently unchanged

The Air Force's current limited stop loss plan remains unchanged, Air Force personnel officials said.

The Air Force will continue to limit stop loss to those members identified by major commands as critical to the conduct of operations supporting Operation Desert Shield, they said indicating that the Air Force stop loss program will most likely be extended beyond the original Dec. 31 date, probably for an indefinite period.

The Air Force is currently revalidating the original list of stop loss units and Air Force specialty codes based on anticipated needs for Desert Shield. Still exempted from stop loss are involuntary quality force separations, hardship discharges, and disability and mandatory officer as well as high year of tenure enlisted retirements.

Among the officer skill areas affected are pilots, navigators, weapons systems officers, intelligence and medical officers. Enlisted skills include some aircrew members, intelligence, command and control, communications, maintenance, transportation, services, civil engineering, security, explosive ordnance and medical.

Stop loss was initiated by the Air Force Sept. 17 to give commanders the personnel resources needed to support Operation Desert Shield.

The president authorized Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney to implement stop loss service-wide Aug. 22. The secretary delegated that authority to the military service secretaries Aug. 27. (Air Force News Service)

Changes to reserve pay

Air Force reservists mobilized or recalled to active duty by the president, including those called up to support Operation Desert Shield, must now participate in the Air Force Direct Deposit of Pay Program.

In addition, when reservists revert back to their Reserve status, they must receive their pay by direct deposit under a new status.

These policy changes update the "grandfathering" provisions for making direct deposit mandatory for reservists, guardsmen and retirees who reenlist, accept a regular or career Reserve appointment or retire after Aug. 31, 1989.

Under the new policy, reservists become new military accessions to the active force, regardless of the duration of mobilization or recall, and therefore must participate in the direct deposit program.

The Air Force will grant waivers to this policy on a case-by-case basis.

The policy change does not affect Air Force people currently deployed to Desert Shield locations but will apply to them when they return and revert back to their "new" status.

Direct deposit eliminates the need for large amounts of cash in the deployed areas and permits reservists to provide for their families better during deployment, Air Force officials said. (Courtesy of the Air Force Reserve News Service)

Wing captain takes DG

A captain with the 64th Flying training wing was a distinguished graduate at Squadron Officer School, Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Capt. Darin Middleton graduated in the top 4 percent of his class, which was comprised of 493 students. During the seven-week course, the captain and other students are evaluated on academics, writing, speaking and leadership.

QAE takes safety award

A wing quality assurance evaluator captured the quarterly flying safety award.

Kim Hoopes' safety accomplishments during the quarter were credited with avoiding the potential loss of at least two aircraft, according to QAE division officials. Mr. Hoopes picked up on a requirement that should have been listed on an aircraft inspection checklist, and then worked with maintenance officials to ensure the safety of two affected T-38s.

Top wheels announced

The winners of the monthly Top Wheels Program awards have been announced:

□ The 64th Supply Squadron Fuels Management Branch took top honors in the special-purpose vehicle category.

□ Allied Management of Texas, the transportation contractor on base, took first in the general-purpose category.

Service milestones reached

The following wing members have reached milestones in the federal careers:

□ Virgil Gatlin Jr., 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, has been with the government for 30 years, all of which has been at Reese. He is foreman at the water treatment plant.

□ Lawrence Pittman, an Air Force veteran, has 20 years total service. He's been here since 1974, and is currently a supply technician with CES.

□ Barbara Bullard, has reached the 10-year service mark. Also an Air Force veteran, she is a secretary with the 54th Flying Training Squadron.

□ Paul Constancio, is an engineering equipment operator with 10 years of federal service. The CES member is an Army veteran.

□ Jose Galindo Jr., is also a 10-year government servant with CES. The facility maintenance controller is an Army veteran.

□ Frances Steadman, has also served 10 years. The accounting technician has been here three years.

Toys for Tots seek helpers

Volunteers are needed to assist with this year's Toys For Tots campaign, which began Nov. 26 and runs through Dec. 20.

People are needed to help pick up toys from 6-8 p.m. Wednesday in Reese Village. As a reminder, village residents wishing to donate Wednesday should turn their porch lights on. Homes without their lights on will not be visited by toy collectors.

Drop boxes have been set up in squaron orderly rooms and community areas. These boxes will be up through Dec. 18.

Volunteers are also needed to help pack and address toy boxes Dec. 17-20 at the U.S. Marine Corps Reserves Armory at 2903 Fourth Street (east of Indiana Avenue).

For more information, contact MSgt. Joseph Slack, Reese Toys for Tots representative, at 3268.

Veteran needs transplant

The local chapters of the Mended Hearts and Open Hearts Clubs are soliciting donations to help offset the costs of a heart transplant for Walter Voight, a Lubbock resident who served in the Air Force during the Vietnam War.

Officials representing the cardiac support groups said that the 43-year-old veteran has been waiting since February for a heart transplant. The clubs are trying to raise the $85,000 deposit required to the $150,000 heart transplant operation.

Donations can be mailed to: Walter Voight Heart Fund, First National Bank of Lubbock, P.O. Box 1241, Lubbock, TX 79408.

Job-oriented workshop set

The Reese Family Support Center is holding a Resume Writing/Interviewing Skills workshop from 6-8 p.m. Thursday in the center, located in Bldg. 310. For more information or to sign-up, call Margaret Ramey at 6494.

Ordering for GREs ongoing

The Graduate Record Exam will be given at the Reese Education Center Feb. 6; however, the test must be ordered by Wednesday.

There is no charge for the first administration of this exam to military members. For more information or to order an exam, contact the center at 3634.

Blood drive coming up

Reese will be sponsoring a bi-monthly blood drive from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday in the Mathis Recreation Center. The blood drive this month is dedicated on behalf of SMSgt. Marvin "Chuck" Brewer of the 64th Mission Support Squadron. Sergeant Brewer was recently taken ill and used several pints of blood from the United Blood Services.

All blood types are needed for this blood drive to ensure the community blood supply is adequate for the holiday season.

For questions concerning donations, contact Glenda Ward, base blood drive officer, at 3885.

Breakfast with Santa

The Reese Enlisted Open Mess and Enlisted Wives Club is holding a "Breakfast with Santa" from 10 a.m. to noon Dec. 22. Cost is $2 for adults and children 6-years and older. Children 5 and under are free. The menu will consist of pancakes with syrup and butter, fruit cups and juice.

Parents are asked to bring a gift ($5 and under) to be presented during breakfast to each of their children by Santa. Gifts should be wrapped and the tag should include both first and last name of the child.

Tickets are available from EWC members or by calling Paula Coakley at 6187 (days) or 797-0864 (evenings).

TDY tax exemptions

Tax exemption certificates are available for members on temporary-duty assignments through the Reese Accounting and Finance Office. Members complete the certificate, then submit it to commercial hotels when paying for room charges. Based on state tax laws, the hotel then has the option to charge the member tax or not.

A separate certificate must be completed for each hotel used. All members going TDY are encouraged to use the form. For more information, call 3184.

Legal seeks tax volunteers

The Reese Legal Office is seeking volunteers for its tax assistance program. Volunteers will receive tax training by Internal Revenue Service officers through its Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. The training is scheduled for Jan. 3-4 at Reese.

Anyone interested in volunteering, can contact their unit commander or the legal office at 3505 to sign-up.

Education programs available

The Reese Education Center has information available on the Bootstrap Program and for members nearing completion of their degree, but who are also nearing change-of-station orders.

Through Bootstrap, members may be released from active duty up to one year to complete their associate, bachelor's or master's degree. Educational deferments can also be authorized for members within one year of completing their degree, which will freeze any upcoming assignments.

For more information on either program, contact the center at 3634 or stop by Bldg. 920, room 139.

PDS assists with PC III

The Reese Personnel Data Systems Office is available to assist members using the Personnel Concept III system. Members experiencing trouble can call 3322/6077.

The office also has floppy disks with tutorial for the Prelude Office Automation Applications to be used on Zenith 248s.

Wing members raise good points at meeting

by MSgt. Ralph Monson
managing editor

Base policies for parking, on-base housing, medical and dental care and cable television were among the topics discussed at the Reese town meeting Nov. 29 in the Enlisted Open Mess.

Col. Ray Bean, 64th Air Base Group commander, chaired the two-hour meeting attended by approximately 50 people. Representatives of all Reese service agencies were on hand to answer questions about their respective specialties.

Questions about parking dominated the first half of the meeting. In Reese Village, residents identified potential safety problems caused by unauthorized parking on various streets. Capt. Danny Thomas, 64th Security Police Squadron commander, asked Reese Village residents to assist SP efforts to enforce parking rules by reporting suspected violations.

On base, various projects (including the pending construction of new T-1A Jayhawk facilities) prompted Colonel Bean to call for a review of current and proposed parking plans.

Maj. Per Koursland, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron commander, explained current housing policies in response to questions about why some small families have been given quarters normally reserved for larger families.

The major noted that the renovation projects have caused confusion about the policies. For example, prior to the renovation there was an abundance of three-bedroom houses, which allowed those normally entitled only to a two-bedroom unit a place on the three-bedroom list. The availability of three-bedroom units now requires housing to limit new applicants to those who actually qualify for the larger units. Anyone with questions should contact the Reese Housing Office at 3913.

The 1958th Communications Squadron Commander, Maj. Gerry Brown, responded to questions about the base cable system. The major explained that the current cable contractor had exclusive rights on Reese.

He also noted that base officials continue to work with the contractor in an attempt to expand the selection of available programming.

The pros and cons of the Delta Dental Insurance plan were summarized by Lt. Col. (Dr.) Edward Wright, representing the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital. During a status report on medical care available here, Dr. Wright also announced the addition of several new civilian physicians to the hospital's partnership program.

Recycling was another area covered by Colonel Bean and Hugh Beam, chief of the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division. Mr. Beam announced plans to distribute containers that would make it easier for people at Reese to participate in the wing recycling program. Watch for specific details in future issues of the Roundup.

Other service programs discussed included operational changes in the Reese Commissary and Main Exchange.

Colonel Bean concluded the meeting by stressing that service is a top priority of all support organizations. He noted that forums such as town meetings provide commanders and managers with the type of feedback necessary to keep programs responsive to customer needs.

(MSgt. Ralph Monson)

Maj. Gerry Brown, 1958th Communications Squadron, explains about the base's contracted cable company during the recently held Reese Town Meeting.

Give yourself a break tonight and take the family to Mamma Reesione's for dinner.

Mamma's hours are: 4-8 p.m. Sunday through Thursday; 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday; and 4-9 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Gary Bodensteiner, 64th Supply Squadron, gets in some time Monday on the racquetball courts at the Reese Physical Fitness Center. Bodensteiner and Lockheed's John Robertson took top honors in the center's holiday classic tournament Saturday in the intermediate and advanced categories, respectively. Bodensteiner rebounded from a first-round loss to win his category. Other top competitors were Norris Aymond (second advanced), Joe Buchwald (third advanced), Raul Madarang (second intermediate) and John Goodwin (third intermediate).

Keeping the heat in

Winter joggers need to dress for warmth

Some runners continue to run late in the year, long after the occasional jogger has taken up warmer pursuits.

If you are a year-round runner, remember that you need proper protection from the cold during the winter months. You may feel warm as you run, but any exposed parts of your body will be chilled fast, and you could run the risk of frostbite.

The same goes for participants in other winter sports, from ice fishing to ice skating. Protect your skin and periodically check for numbness or frostbite.

In "The Complete Book of Running," Jim Fixx offers some information on kinds of clothing to wear in cold weather. He says there's no need to bundle up too much; you should just wear enough to make you comfortably warm as you run.

He cautions you need to keep your head and torso warm so the rest of your body will not be deprived of heat. For the upper body, he suggests wearing several layers, like a T-shirt, sweater and sweatshirt with a nylon jacket on top to cut the wind.

For the head, he recommends a wool watch cap, which can be pulled down over the ears on especially cold days. Also important are gloves, some kind that "breathes" or allows moisture to get out, either wool or cotton.

For the legs, Fixx suggests a dark leotard pant rather than sweatpants, which he considers too heavy. However, you may find sweatpants a good idea on a particularly windy, cold day.

Because your face is always exposed to the cold, Fixx suggests coating it with petroleum jelly or wearing a ski mask.

A few simple precautions will prevent "Jack Frost from nipping at your nose" (or toes) quite so much. (Road & Rec magazine, November 1990)

Darin Middleton, 35th FTS, goes for a layup during intramural action against the 52nd FTS "B" team Nov. 29 in the Reese Physical Fitness Center.

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

52nd 'A' undefeated in intramural action

RM, 54th 'A' taste first defeats of season

The intramural basketball action was hot and heavy last week, as two of three undefeated teams fell for the first time — one of which fell to a somewhat unlikely opponent.

As of Wednesday morning, only the 52nd Flying Training Squadron "A" team remained perfect, boosting their record to 4-0 while dealing Resource Management their first setback of the year. The 54th FTS "A" also dropped their first contest of the year. Ironically, it was the 54th FTS "B" that put the blemish on the record of their unit "A" team.

The 52nd FTS "A" and RM remained on top their divisions. The week's action went like this:

Nov. 28

□ 52nd FTS "A," 82 — 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 43. Mark Slimko had 20 points for the 52nd, while CES's Kevin Evans dropped in 15.

□ 1958th Communications Squadron/64th Security Police Squadron, 63 — 52nd FTS "B," 30. Andre Harley had a hot hand for COMM/SPS, scoring 28. The 52nd's Don Gee tallied 10 points.

□ 54th FTS "A," 7 — Lockheed, 0. Not the defensive battle one might think — the 54th won by forfeit.

□ 41st FTS, 62 — 54th FTS "B," 38. Avery McGee totalled 19 points for the 41st, while Fred Lombardi had 18 for the 54th "B."

Nov. 29

□ 33rd FTS, 65 — CES, 27. Kris Mineau contributed 17 towards the 33rd's win.

□ 52nd FTS "A," 49 — RM, 44. Five points was all it took to keep the 52nd "A" undefeated and give RM its first defeat. The 52nd's Jeffry Sullivan had 18, while RM's Marvin Davis racked up 15 points.

□ 35th FTS, 48 — 52nd FTS "B," 16. Dave Carter's 14 spurred the 35th to a double-digit blowout.

□ 54th FTS "B," 62 — 54th FTS "A," 59. Kirk Willburger's 19 couldn't keep the "A" team from its first defeat, as "B" player Lombardi's 13 points lead his team.

Tuesday

□ 41st FTS, 60 — 64th Mission Support Squadron, 54. A 32-point explosion by MSS's Tony Friday couldn't stop the flyers from moving into a first-place tie in the National League. McGee had 24 for the 41st.

□ 35th FTS, 54 — 54th FTS "B," 41. Unable to follow up on their earlier upset, the 54th fell as Darin Middleton racked up 20 points. Dave Cool turned in a 16-point performance.

□ 33rd FTS, 54 — Lockheed, 45. Walter Diener put in 18 for the 33rd.

Updates

IM league standings

(As of Wednesday morning)

1989

The 3500th
Services
Squadron
became the 64th
Services
Squadron.

Trees

The 64th
Security
Police
Squadron
is selling
Christmas trees from 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. daily.

Tree prices range from $24-53, and are available in grand,
noble and
Douglas firs ranging from 6 to 10 feet
high.
Profits from the tree sales benefit the squadron for use in various fundraisers throughout the year. For more information,
call 3999.
