

COMM member snares ATCD award

The first and the last.

Both terms apply when talking about the Air Training Communications Division award won by Sgt. Rita Samartino. The 1958th Communications Squadron member recently earned honors as the division's best information manager for 1990 in the intermediate enlisted category.

While it's the first time she's won such an honor, it also marks the last time the award will be given, a result of the Air Force Communications Command reorganization earlier this year.

Unaware that she had been put in for the award, the California native admitted she was surprised when her commander told her she had won. Her commander, however, was not caught off guard by the recognition.

"Rita has made numerous improvements to the way we do things," Maj. Gerry Brown said. "She's taken on projects both inside and outside her primary duties and excelled at them, significantly increasing our ability to get the job done."

As evidence of this, the major pointed to how Sergeant Samartino simplified the complex, "antiquated" filing system used by air traffic control tower workers; reformatted on-the-job-training records for tower people; and turned the unit's once-marginal public affairs program into an award winner.

Although the IM award marks the first time the sergeant has won an annual ATCD award in her primary specialty, the communication division did recognize her as their best public affairs representative for 1990.

Some of Sergeant Samartino's other past honors include being squadron noncommissioned officer of the year (1990) and ATCD information manager of the quarter earlier this year.

In her free time, the 23-year-old sergeant has completed 24 hours towards an information management degree from the Community College of the Air Force. She and her husband, SSgt. James Samartino of the 64th Supply Squadron, are expecting their first child in May.

Once again the West Texas winds caused problems with the flying schedule. The T-37s dropped from 1.58 days ahead to 0.84 days. The T-38s dropped from 1.49 days ahead to 1.39 days.

Top fuelers

Command names 1990's best

Two fuels technicians in the 64th Supply Squadron are the command's best for 1990.

A1C Gary Dancy and Edward Garcia earned top honors as Air Training Command's top junior fuels technician and wage-grade civilian fuels technician, respectively.

The duo was credited with numerous accomplishments in their specialty.

A1C Gary Dancy

Airman Dancy's recognition from ATC isn't the first evidence of his ability. His work was good enough to get him assigned to the quality control section in the fuels management branch, making him the first airman in QC in more than four years.

Some of the 22-year-olds' specific achievements during the year included his work with the fuel vehicle fleet, which branch officials said was instrumental in their capture of a "Top Wheels" award; his inspections of refueling equipment that consistently kept more than 95 percent of branch vehicles in service; and his part in installing and customizing a fuels automated sample tracking program in the QC section.

The tracking program reduced by 60 percent the time required to document and maintain records of fuel sample analysis.

"Airman Dancy's has both the technical expertise and the drive to ensure the job gets done, and done right," said 2nd Lt. Ferguson Johnson, chief of the fuels branch. "His work played a big part in the squadron being a finalist for last year's ATC Daedalian Award, and he definitely deserves the individual recognition he's gotten."

In his off-duty time, Airman Dancy participates in several on- and off-base community organizations. He's an active member of the Air Force Sergeants Association, earning trustee status in the local chapter; he's worked with Big Brothers for two years; and he planned and organized a fundraiser for the squadron Christmas party.

The Louisiana native is married to A1C Shebia Dancy, who also works in the fuels branch. The couple is expecting their first baby in May.

Edward Garcia

The high price of gas lately can make almost any amount of fuel seem valuable. As such, Mr. Garcia's job of safely unloading more than 23 million gallons of jet fuel each year makes him a vital part of fuels operations, according to branch officials.

"His 19 years of experience are invaluable around here," said SMSgt. George Henderson, branch superintendent. "Among other things he's done, he spearheaded many self-help projects that not only increased the service life of our storage facility, but also made it

From my perspective

by Col. Ford H. Barrett

Deputy commander for Logistics and Resources

We typically start the new fiscal year with messages exhorting us to tighten our belts in response to unusually tight budget forecasts. This year is no exception; financially, things are even tougher.

After many weeks of tense negotiations, through the Budget Summit and after, Congress finally agreed on a budget (unbalanced) for fiscal year 1991. Even with the deficit, the Department of Defense budget is shrinking. It's affecting the Air Force and having a sizeable impact on Reese.

We understand that our mission will decrease in size and the number of pilots in training will be reduced as the year progresses. Unfortunately, the first classes of the new fiscal year were the same size as last. Thus, the flying pace which drives many expenditures remains high as the year begins.

Executing our financial plan this year to support the 64th Flying Training Wing mission will be the biggest challenge we have faced in many years. The wing is starting with 3.3 percent fewer dollars than were available last fiscal year. However, inflation and procedural changes have imposed an average 17 percent price increase on items we purchase through base supply. Additionally, a 92 percent price increase on ground and aviation fuel products compound our problem. So the budget is down, but costs are up.

Over the next year, the wing will be taking these aggressive actions to address the nearly $3 million shortfall in funding:

- Reducing expenditures for overtime, supplies, temporary-duty assignments and transportation.
- Scrutinizing each civilian vacancy to determine if filling it can be delayed.
- Reviewing provisions of all contracts and reducing the level of effort where possible.
- And, as always, ensuring that we pay close attention to all of our resources.

These steps include fairly drastic measures, ones that Reese has not had to take to this degree in the recent past. In addition to looking into every nook and cranny for potential cost savings, our comptroller has gone back to the command stating our need for additional funding.

We are not optimistic that the wing's request will be granted, as Desert Shield requires more and more resources. However, the wing's leadership believes that with your continued strong involvement in the financial management process, Reese can continue to provide superior flying training.

The budget we are working with as compared to last year:

ITEM	Budget (in $1,000s)
	1990	1991	% Change
Supplies, such as aircraft parts	11,610	10,064	-13
Equipment	618	479	-22
Contracts and services, such as the maintenance of aircraft, grounds and dining hall	16,733	17,545	+5
Utilities	1,556	1,624	+4
Civilian pay	12,202	10,212	-16
Transportation/travel	759	761	0
64th Civil Engineering Squadron services and projects	1,300	1,294	-1
Communications	454	478	+1
Total	45,232	42,459	-3

This list gives an idea of where our money is to go. Our largest budget items, such as contracts, supplies and civilian pay, are really fixed costs unless major operational changes are made. Those three categories consume 80 percent of our budget. The task then is to manage our resources carefully and to look to the other 20 percent of the budget to make up for shortages.

Are you 'ready' for Tuesday?

by Maj. Gary Tucker
BEET chief

Every month, one day is designated as Readiness Day; this month's is Tuesday. On this day, members are required to wear either fatigues, the battle dress uniform or a flight suit. The following concerns proper wear of these uniforms:

When wearing fatigues:

- They should present the proper military standards of neatness, cleanliness and military image at all times.
- The bottom of the trousers should barely rest on the front of the shoes or boots without a break in the crease when not bloused. Only those units authorized by Air Force Regulation 35-10, "Dress and Personal Appearance of Air Force Personnel," are permitted to blouse their trousers.
- Wear black socks, or if necessary, cover white socks with black socks.
- The shirt must be tucked in from Oct. 1 through April 1; also at any time the pants are bloused.
- Organizational hats may be worn with fatigues if you are not part of the deployment and mobility exercises.
- The bill of the fatigue cap may be tucked in the back of the trousers if the shirt is tucked in.
- The black tip of the belt should not extend more than two inches beyond the buckle.
- The boots should be shined at all times.

When wearing BDUs:

- Trousers must be bloused over the top part of the boot and trouser material must match the shirt.
- The BDU shirt is always worn outside the trousers and accompanied by a brown or green crewneck T-shirt.
- If the sleeves are rolled up, they must touch or come within one inch of the forearm when the arm is bent at a 90-degree angle.
- The belt can be either the dark blue cotton or elastic variety with a black metal tip and matching black buckle. The black tip of the belt may extend up to two inches beyond the buckle facing the wearer's left.
- Headgear may be either the camouflaged BDU cap, fatigue cap or organizational baseball cap as directed; however, if you are processing for a mobility deployment, you must wear the camouflaged BDU cap.
- Again, the boots should be shined.
- Finally, be sure you have the proper subdued patches and badges.

Last but not least, do not be afraid to inform people if they have a uniform discrepancy. We would much rather hear it from one of our own than in the inspector general's report.

Additional information concerning proper wearing of uniforms can be obtained by calling the Reese Personal Affairs Office at 3402.

Alcohol can depress holiday cheer

by MSgt. Frank Lechuga
Reese Social Actions

The holiday season is upon us again.

It's time for good cheer and celebration, during which we try to spread the holiday spirit everywhere. Often the holiday spirit includes "spirits," — parties spring up, and using a car to get around becomes a necessity.

But when parties and alcohol mix with driving, a potentially deadly situation arises.

Alcohol is a depressant, not a stimulant. It acts as an anesthetic to lower or depress the activity of the brain. Alcohol is not digested, but absorbed directly into the bloodstream, and since the brain needs a rich supply of blood, it is affected quickly. An elevated blood alcohol concentration, or BAC, impairs judgment and physical coordination, creating a sense of "being O.K." when actually the opposite is true.

The following factors can affect a person's BAC:

- The number and strength of the drink.
 - The time between drinks.
 - The individual's body weight.
 - The physical and mental condition of the individual.
 - The amount and kind of food eaten.
 - The possibility of other drugs being present in the body.
- Society's attitude toward driving while intoxicated is changing. It's time to realize that one does not have to be "falling down drunk" to be a hazard on the highway.

Consider what would happen if you were involved in an accident. What if you injured or killed an innocent person?

That's something you would have to live with the rest of your life.

Three ways to keep your friends

If you are planning a party over the holiday season, here are three things that as a host or hostess you can do to "keep your friends."

1. Drive your friend home. You're having a party. One of your friends has had too much to drink and should not drive. To be sure your friend arrives home safely, you can drive him yourself.

2. Have your friend sleep over. Asking a guest to sleep over is another good way to keep a friend from driving. You won't have to drive and your friend won't have to return the next day for the car.

3. Call a cab. If you can't drive your friend home, you can call a cab. You may want to pay the fare in advance. That's one way to show you really care.

Refusing service upholds legal obligation

by Maj. Howard Altwager
Reese staff judge advocate

If you haven't heard of the "Dram Shop Theory," chances are you're not alone.

Basically, this theory is a legal liability created by court decisions that require alcoholic beverage servers to refuse service to anyone who reaches, or appears to be reaching, the point of intoxication. In many states, under the theory, state officials will hold the server (either owner or operator) liable for damages to property, the individual or others should the person drinking have an accident.

In 1987, almost 95,000 people in the U.S. died in alcohol-related incidents. That's about one-half the population of Lubbock.

So, let's say you are at one of the Reese open messes celebrating your promotion with your friends. You're feeling good and everything is going your way. Then, before you know it, you're intoxicated. You ask the bartender for another drink and the reply is, "I'm sorry, but I can't serve you another drink. I could get you something non-alcoholic or call you cab if you'd like."

Is the bartender being disrespectful or a jerk? No. The bartender is doing exactly what he is supposed to do according to the dram shop theory. If he didn't stop serving you, and you injured or killed yourself or someone else in a car wreck, the bartender and open mess can be held responsible for all costs and court proceedings since they allowed you to become intoxicated.

All Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division personnel, including those at Reese, are trained on the dram shop theory. They are also legally obligated to stop serving alcohol to anyone they identify as appearing intoxicated.

The bartender is not trying to harass you. He's just trying to save you, your family or someone else's family from a possible life-threatening situation.

So, this year while you celebrate the holiday season, please take extra care to ensure that you, your family and friends use alcohol prudently.

Seasonal displays can singe holiday spirits

(Editor's note: The Christmas and New Year's holiday season is the period when Reese is more vulnerable to the hazards of fire than at any other time of the year. With the vast amounts of paper wrappings, lighted candles, Christmas trees, decorations, electrical wiring and overcrowding at social gatherings, fire safety becomes high in risk both at home and in the workplace. The following is provided to help Reese members eliminate the risk of fires over the holidays.)

Trees and greenery decorated with ornaments and lights, candles and seasonal displays all add to the holiday spirit.

But, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, these same decorations can turn a joyful holiday season into one marred by tragedy. Because the decorations are used only once a year, people tend to ignore safety hazards, the consumer officials said. The common attitude is if it worked last year, it will still work this year.

A Christmas tree, live or artificial, is a leading cause of injury and property damage during the holiday season. A freshly cut tree with a high moisture content will stay greener longer and is less of a fire hazard, officials said. Ways to tell a tree's condition: It's dry if tapping its trunk on the ground causes a lot of needles to fall or if a small branch can be easily snapped; it's fresh if needles bend and are hard to pull out.

Once you bring the tree home, cut about two inches from the bottom of the trunk, standing it in a container of water if the tree is to be stored. If the tree is to be set up immediately, place it in a wide-legged tree stand with water. Check the water level daily, filling the stand when necessary.

Place a live or artificial tree away from doorways, the room's traffic pattern and all heat sources, such as a fireplace, radiator or heating register. Make sure the tree stand is sturdy and stable.

If purchasing an artificial tree, make sure it has been tested for flammability. Follow the safety instructions that come with the tree.

Use only approved electrical lights for decorations. Check the strings of tree lights for frayed or exposed wires and broken or split sockets. Dispose of any light strings with wire or socket problems, commission officials said. Replace burnt out or broken bulbs as soon as possible.

Extension cords should also be checked for frayed or exposed wires or loose connections. If the cord is defective, throw it away. Plug no more than three sets of lights into one extension cord. Keep cords away from room traffic and don't place them under a rug or carpet.

Safety officials recommend using colored spotlights instead of electric lights on a metallic tree.

Never use indoor light strings outside because they aren't weather-proofed.

Additional safety tips from commission officials:

Don't leave young children or pets unsupervised around the tree.

Don't leave tree lights or other electrical decorations burning when the family has retired for the evening or left the house.

Don't use the fireplace to burn gift wrappings.

Don't leave a fire unattended.

Don't use lighted candles as decorations.

As a final safety precaution, Consumer Product Safety Commission officials recommend having a fire extinguisher nearby. (American Forces Information Service)

Holiday safety points to ponder

Places of public assembly

Observe the flameproof decoration rules. Check with the fire chief if in doubt.

Limit groups of people to the number approved for your facility.

Make sure that exits are not blocked or obscured by decorative materials, cables or other obstructions.

Don't use lighted candles or other open flame devices for decorative purposes.

Be sure that an adequate number of fire extinguishers are in place and accessible prior to the start of a program or activity.

Make a thorough fire prevention inspection prior to closing. Ask the fire department for guidance.

Fire safe gifts

Avoid pyroxylin plastic toys and dolls. Toys operated by alcohol, kerosene or gasoline are especially dangerous. They may upset and set fire to children's clothing, the tree or house.

Electrical toys should be listed by Underwriters' Laboratories to show they have met shock and fire hazard standards.

Miscellaneous safety reminders

Don't allow smoking near the tree or amidst decorations and wrappings. Have plenty of large, safe ashtrays around and use them.

Supervise small children playing near the tree. Keep matches, lighters and candles out of their reach.

Above all, have a fire emergency plan. Select alternate escape routes out of every room. If fire strikes, clear everyone out, then call the fire department. If you attempt to fight the fire, ensure that you have an open exit route.

When in doubt about fire prevention matters, call the fire department.

Curbing construction costs

CES paves the way resourcefully

A project at Reese could end up "curbing" construction costs in the command.

Members of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron began laying curbs Nov. 29 on War Highway near the Reese Youth Center. They're doing it with the help of a curb and gutter machine that allows them to lay the curb without the normal framework needed to shape the concrete.

The idea behind the project is to compare the contractor cost of such a project to the expense of doing it "in house."

"Once we put down enough curbing, they (Air Training Command) will be able to figure out the most cost efficient way of doing it," said SMSgt. Colbert Baker, superintendent of the CES Pavements and Equipment Branch. "We'll have to do a good bit of curbing before a valid comparison can be made."

ATC officials echoed that sentiment.

"It'll be at least a few months before we'll have figures we can use," said Maj. Harold Becker, chief of the ATC Facility Maintenance Division. "Once we get those figures, we'll match them up against various contract sources."

If the in-house operation proves to be the better way, the command may end up buying its own curbing machine. The one here is on loan from Strategic Air Command, along with a curbing specialist from Fairchild AFB, Wash. The Fairchild member is working with CES people while they get accustomed to using the curbing machine.

Being the first ATC base to use this machine, CES had to get acquainted with the device before putting it to full use. The engineers laid about 125 feet of curb Thursday while getting hands-on experience; Sergeant Baker said they should be able to do 300-400 feet a day once they're up to speed.

If ATC does purchase a machine, it will likely be rotated commandwide just as the SAC machine is.

During the six months Reese is scheduled to have SAC's machine, CES plans to put down curbs on streets near Reese Manor, the base park and the CES building, as well as in the vicinity of Hangarline Road.

In addition to the potential for savings, the additional curbing will improve drainage on base streets, which will in turn add to the streets' durability.

Sergeant Baker indicated that the total project time could be af-fectured by the weather, since severe cold is bad for laying cement.

According to MSgt. Robert Thomas, noncommissioned officer in charge of pavements and equipment, SSgt. Mark Amell is overseeing the actual laying of the curbs, while SSgt. George McCartha is handling the preparation of the areas to be worked on.

Other CES members taking part include TSgt. Manuel Lima, Sgt. Scott Gerow; SrA. Daniel Blackwell; AICs Darren Banas, Barrie Janssen, Kevin Moy and Wendell Toney; Amn. David Anderson, Sean Emehizer, Russell Harris and Brian Hester; and Paul Constancio, James Cox, Jesus Martinez and Leroy Robertson.

Lockheed names top maintainers of 1990

Lockheed employees recently garnered awards as the top maintainers at Reese for 1990.

Fifteen members competed in the six categories, from which the manager, supervisor, senior mechanic, mechanic, worker and mission support employee of the year were named by Lockheed management.

Nominees were:

□ All nine managers within Lockheed were nominated.

□ Up for the supervisor award was propulsion branch's Fred Goodspeed, Mike Janosick from maintenance control, aero repair's Walt McIntosh and John Bleess, the Minot AFB, N.D., Accelerated Co-pilot Enrichment Program site supervisor.

□ Senior mechanic competitors were Hoyt Sawyer from the T-38 branch and Leonard Minzer from the T-37s.

□ Precision measurement equipment laboratory's James Barber competed against Michael Wood from aero repair for the mechanic's title.

□ In the worker category was Eden Rodriguez, fabric shop, and John Bates, T-38 H flight.

□ Competing for the mission support award was repair processing center expediter Laura Cross, payroll section's Cyndi Bowman, training specialist Melanie Butorac, organizational maintenance section's

Debbie Householder and quality control inspector John Robertson.

And, the 1990 winners are:

Strength cut calls for waiving of commitments

In a change designed to help lower the Air Force's end strength, some noncommissioned officers may not have to wait to complete certain active-duty service commitments before they retire, officials at the Air Force Military Personnel Center said.

The Air Force is accepting requests to waive portions of service commitments resulting from promotion, permanent-change-of-station moves and professional military education.

The program will mostly affect NCOs assigned to bases in the continental United States. Capt. Roscoe Kahumoku, chief of the Reese Military Personnel Office, said that the number of Reese NCOs affected by the change are not yet known.

NCOs stationed overseas may also request a waiver of commitments that would allow for retirement as early as the first day of the month after their date of eligibility to return from overseas.

They must apply for retirement under this program before an assignment selection date has been established in order to be eligible for waiver consideration.

People with critical skills affected by the stop loss program will not be excluded from applying under this program. However, these people may only apply for retirement effective dates that will occur after the announced stop loss termination date.

People promoted to master sergeant, senior master sergeant and chief master sergeant may request a waiver of all but six months of the commitment they incurred because of promotion.

Officials warn that this request for waiver cannot be used in conjunction with a seven-day option. With the seven-day option program, people get seven days after notification of assignment to accept the assignment or decline the assignment and apply for retirement.

People who were assigned from one CONUS base to another and incurred an active-duty service commitment may request a waiver of all but 12 months of the commitment.

This applies only to people who have already arrived at the new duty station and does not waive the 24-month service retaina-bility requirement for PCS eligibility.

People who incurred a commitment from PME may request a waiver of all but six months of their commitment.

Approval of retirement applications for people who have met their minimum commitment is not automatic, Reese personnel officials said. Each case will be individually evaluated and approval will be contingent upon the best interests of the Air Force. Captain Kahumoku cautioned waiver applicants against making irrevocable commitments before receiving a final decision from AFMPC.

More information is available by calling the reenlistments, separations and retirements section in military personnel at 3420. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Kiddie buffet on tap

During its monthly brunch this Sunday, the Reese Officers' Open Mess will offer a free holiday buffet for children 7 and under in the lounge. The buffet will be only for children whose parents are taking part in the brunch.

Movies for the children will be part of the buffet, as well as an appearance by and photos with Santa. Both events run from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. and are open to everyone on base. The brunch costs $6.95 for adults, $3.50 for children 8-12 and is free for Children 7 and under.

Chapel announces events

The Reese Chapel has a pair of events set for this weekend.

A craft day will run from 10 a.m. 2 p.m. Saturday for children age 3-10 who want to make a gift for some at no cost. Participants should bring a sack lunch. Call Ellie Towe or Beth Schinkel at 3911.

The Protestant Sunday School's Christmas program, called "365 Days of Christmas Each Year," will take place at the 11:15 a.m. Sunday chapel service. Everyone is welcome.

Fashion auditions held

Auditions for a Black History Month fashion show in February will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Simler Theater. Men should wear hard-soled shoes; women should wear high heels. Anyone with questions before the audition can call Towanda Harrison at 3722.

Goodfellows rally for helpers

Goodfellows will be packing toys for needy area children at 9 a.m. Thursday. Anyone who would like to help should contact 1st Lt. Curt Locke at 3655.

MWR announces closings

Due to holiday activities, the following facilities in the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division will close at 5 p.m. Thursday — Mamma Reesione's, Arts and Crafts Center, Youth Center, Physical Fitness Center, Mathis Recreation Center and Library.

Food fund seeks support

The holiday food fund committee is looking for donations of food as well as the names of families who could benefit. Anyone who knows of a family or who would like to donate food, should contact their first sergeant or the Reese Family Support Center at 3305.

Pay statements affected

A production test by the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center will cause members to receive duplicate mid-month pay statements for the next several months.

MSgt. Roy Threadgill, superintendent of the Reese Accounting and Finance Branch, said that the monthly leave and earnings statement will not be affected. Anyone with questions should call 3201.

Holiday recycling set

Two special recycling programs are planned as part of this holiday season.

A vehicle will be in place Dec. 24 through Jan. 2 at the intersection of Harmon and McGuire so that Reese Village residents can dispose of their Christmas trees. The trees will be turned into mulch.

Cardboard boxes and wrapping paper can be dumped in a specially marked dumpster Dec. 24-27 at the intersection of Mitchell and George. Foil paper and boxes can not be dumped there, however.

Holiday messages prohibited

Sending holiday messages through data processing centers, stand-alone computers or base communication centers is prohibited, officials in the 1958th Communications Squadron cautioned.

The only exception to using computer equipment or software for personal projects is when "specifically authorized in writing by the commander," according to Air Force Regulation 205-16. For details, call 3326/3707.

Sealed bid sale upcoming

Viewing for a sealed bid sale will be held from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 9 in Bldg. 542. Bid items will include a work bench, copiers, kitchen equipment, light fixtures, furniture and more. Terms for bidding will be available at the viewing.

Sealed bids will be accepted from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 10 in Bldg. 542. Active-duty and retired military members, civilian employees and contractors can bid.

Awards of bids will be at noon Jan. 14.

TMO issues travel advisory

A misconception concerning first-class plane tickets is costing some people who go on official travel, according to the Reese Traffic Management Office.

TMO said that many travelers are assuming that the government will reimburse them the cost of a first-class ticket used for official travel. This is causing after-the-fact requests for reimbursement, which TMO said are almost always denied.

Travelers who have a legitimate need for first-class travel should submit a request to TMO, fully explaining the circumstances. Traffic management will route the request to the appropriate officials; the final approval lies with the secretary of the Air Force.

TMO said all travelers should make travel arrangements as soon as possible. For more information, call traffic management at 3943.

Civilian entry tests offered

The Office of Personnel Management has announced that it is now offering continual entry tests in several career fields.

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Reese mission maker

A1C Kyle Weeks, 1958th Communications Squadron, runs a check on part of a navigational system Monday. Airman Weeks is one of the many people at Reese whose dedication and professionalism make mission accomplishment a reality.

According to the Reese Civilian Personnel Office, the tests will cover business, management and finance; personnel, administration and computer; benefits review, tax and legal; and law enforcement and investigation. CPO said that OPM is advising people who know "hot prospects" who want to take these "Administrative Careers with America" tests should have them call the college hotline at 1-900-990-9200.

For details, call CPO at 3801.

Veteran needs transplant

The local chapters of the Mended Hearts and Open Hearts Clubs are soliciting donations to help offset the costs of a heart transplant for Walter Voight, a Lubbock resident who served in the Air Force during the Vietnam War.

Officials representing the cardiac support groups said that the 43-year-old veteran has been waiting since February for a heart transplant. The clubs are trying to raise the $85,000 deposit required to the $150,000 heart transplant operation.

Donations can be mailed to: Walter Voight Heart Fund, First National Bank of Lubbock, P.O. Box 1241, Lubbock, TX 79408.

Breakfast with Santa cancelled

The "Breakfast with Santa" scheduled from 10 a.m. to noon Dec. 22 has been cancelled.

Legal seeks tax volunteers

The Reese Legal Office is seeking volunteers for its tax assistance program. Volunteers will receive tax training by Internal Revenue Service officers through its Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. The training is scheduled for Jan. 3-4 at Reese.

Anyone interested in volunteering, can contact their unit commander or the legal office at 3505 to sign-up.

Holiday dinner set at Caprock

The Caprock Cafe will be serving a Christmas Day feast from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Everyone is welcome; surcharges will be waived.

a showplace in the command." Some of the "other things" Sergeant Henderson mentioned included Mr. Garcia's part in establishing an alternate fuels control center for use during contingencies; a self-help project on a liquid oxygen storage tank that saved the Air Force $8,000; and his training of branch members that allowed 20 percent more work force flexibility while still meeting mission requirements, according to fuels officials.

Like Airman Dancy, Mr. Garcia also gets involved in the community. He works with youth groups through St. Joseph's Catholic Church downtown; is an official and coach in the Lubbock Youth Soccer Association; and supports United Way and the Combined Federal Campaign.

A native of Lubbock, Mr. Garcia and his wife Beatrice have been married 20 years and have two sons; David and Chris, and a daughter; Margaret.

Tots need toys

The Marine Corps Reserves Toys for Tots Program is still seeking donations of new or good used toys. If you have something you'd like to contribute so that a less-fortunate child can have a "Merry Christmas" this year, please call MSgt. Joseph Slack, Reese Toys for Tots representative, at 3268. Toys can also be dropped off in "drop boxes" located in squadron orderly rooms and public areas.

SUPS member earns title of top grad

A member of the 64th Supply Squadron was the top graduate in Noncommissioned Officer Preparatory Course Class 91-1, which graduated Dec. 6 in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess.

SrA. Robert Cook received the John L. Levitow Honor Graduate Award.

SrA. Michelle Elmore, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron was the distinguished graduate in the class. Other graduates were:

□ 41st Flying Training Squadron — SrA. Robert Palos.

□ 64th Civil Engineering Squadron — SrA. Charles Carter Jr. and SrA. Russell Wells Jr.

□ 64th Supply Squadron — SrA. Cynthia Gordon and SrA. Daniel McDowell.

Guest speaker for the graduation was Capt. William Kraus, area defense counsel.

SrA. Robert Cook updates information in the base supply computer system.

FSC keeps spouses informed

The "mission" ... keeping Reese spouses informed on military matters.

That was the focus behind the Reese Family Support Center's Operation Informed Spouse Meeting that was held Nov. 27.

During the two-and-one-half hour meeting, representatives from various wing organizations were on-hand to present information concerning medical and dental services, base housing, the Main Exchange and Commissary, financial programs, recreational activities, personnel management and personal assistance services.

In addition to making them aware of the many programs and services available here, spouses were also given insight regarding Air Force and wing policies that affect both them and their military family members. This was especially beneficial to the newly married spouses, since for many, this was their first informative briefing about the Air Force, according to Phil Thierry, FSC director.

Spouses who have been a member of the Air Force family for a few years usually attend the meetings to get updates on current topics affecting them as a military family, and their active-duty family members, Mr. Thierry pointed out.

While most of the briefing covers military-related topics, Margaret Ramey, FSC spouse employment coordinator, added that educational programs and local-area employment opportunities and job-assistance workshops are also introduced to the spouses.

For spouses living off base, especially those new to the community, Chaplain (Maj.) Aaron Ray was able to provide a list of chapel services available in the Lubbock community.

In addition to taking care of our own, the FSC staff has also been involved in the other services' family information programs. "While their spouse is deployed, the family members are eligible for full military benefits, and since Reese is the only military installation in this area, we (FSC) can provide these families our support services," Mr. Thierry said.

He explained that since the start of Operation Desert Shield and the deployment of troops to Saudi Arabia, of the more than 100 families of local Marine Corps and Army reservists that have attended these briefings, two have already turned to Reese organizations for assistance and countless others have been making use of base services.

Families of deployed members from all branches also received invitations to the various FSC social gatherings and Hearts Apart meetings offered here.

This time of year is when families join to share moments of togetherness and happiness for all of the blessings received throughout the year, Mr. Thierry said. "This is the time when family members are missed the most.

"We at family support wish all of Reese a merry Christmas, but particularly those families involved in Desert Shield," Mr. Thierry concluded.

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

Phil Thierry gives Marine Corps Reserve families an insight to what Reese has to offer them. Mr. Thierry visited Dec. 4 with the families of the 5th and 6th Truck Platoons (out of Lubbock), which deployed for Operation Desert Shield Dec. 6.

Volunteers devote time to others

A luncheon was held Tuesday to honor the center's staff (inset) and the support they've provided Reese members throughout the year. Family services, located with the Family Support Center, is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Monday through Friday, and offers a variety of programs for newly arrived families or those in need.

League leaders remain unchanged as 52nd FTS "A", RM reign over divisions

Division leads remained unchanged in intramural basketball action this past week, while two contenders began jockeying for position in their divisions.

As of Wednesday morning, the 52nd Flying Training Squadron "A" team and Resource Management were still on top of the American and National Leagues, respectively. The 52nd FTS "A" managed to maintain its perfect record (5-0), despite a close call against the 41st FTS.

Meanwhile, the 1958th Communications Squadron/64th Security Police Squadron team and the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital both advanced in their leagues. With both teams picking up a pair of wins, COMM/SPS went to 4-2 and into a tie for third place in the AL. Hospital also went to 4-2, allowing it to bump the 41st out of second in the NL and move one-half game behind RM (for complete standings, see "Updates" below).

Action for the week featured:

Dec. 5

□ COMM/SPS, 68 — Lockheed, 51. Several players scored in double digits for COMM/SPS team in their victory.

□ 33rd FTS, 47 — 35th FTS, 36. Walter Diener turned in an 18-point performance for the 33rd, while Rodney Green had 10 for the 35th.

□ 52nd FTS "A," 41 — 41st FTS, 39. Two points was all that kept the 41st from hand the 52nd "A" their first setback. The 52nd's Mark Slimko and the 41st's Sean McConnell each had 14.

Dec. 6

□ Hospital, 50 — 54th FTS "A," 38. Parker duplicated his 18-point effort from the previous evening, while Kenneth Schreiber had a dozen for the 54th "A."

□ COMM/SPS, 59 — RM, 54 (double overtime). A 26-point performance by RM's Marvin Davis went to naught, as foul problems late in the second overtime allowed COMM/SPS to hold on for a grueling win. Victor Fulton had 15 for the victors.

□ 33rd FTS, 45 — 41st FTS, 36. Diener's 10 points spearheaded the 33rd triumph.

□ 52nd FTS "B," 29 — CES, 18.

Tuesday

□ RM, 80 — 52nd FTS "B," 31. Apparently looking to make up for their double OT loss, RM overwhelmed their opponent in this blowout. Davis' 16 points led the way for the winners, as 11 other RM players also scored.

□ 54th FTS "A," 55 — 33rd FTS, 49. Thomas Hallett hit for 14 points for the 54th, while David Rogelstad had 16 for the 33rd.

□ 64th Mission Support Squadron, 52 — 35th FTS, 45. Tony Friday continued to hold the hot hand for MSS, lighting up the boards for 22. Dave Carter had 18 for the 35th.

The competitive edge

Reese names top athletes of year

Competitors from the 64th Supply Squadron and the 35th Flying Training Squadron are Reese's top two athletes for 1990.

Melissa Ward from the 35th FTS and Quincey Roberts of SUPS took top honors in the annual competition. Roberts captured the award for the second year in a row.

Quincey Roberts

Male athlete of the year

Roberts, a native of Florida, captured last years honor on the strength of his play with the base over-35 softball team. He was credited with helping the team take first place in five tournaments.

This year, the sergeant also was an active part of the softball team. He was the most valuable player during the Terry County gin tournament held at Reese.

The team also took third place for the season in the downtown league. While the 38-year-old Roberts continued his success on the diamond, it did have an adverse effect on another of his sporting endeavors.

"When I played in the command tennis tournament in July, I ended up getting there at the last minute because of a softball tournament," he said, explaining that the team had fought its way through the losers bracket to take third place.

"By the time I finished with the softball and got to the tennis tournament, I was real tired. I got 'waxed,'" he recalled with a laugh.

Despite that setback, he continued to excel in the sports arena. His squadron bowling team took second last season, narrowly missing the top spot, and the SUPS basketball team he coaches is 5-2 and in first place in the National League (as of Wednesday morning).

When he's not competing, Roberts said he enjoys working out on Nautilus equipment and spending time with his wife, Mamie.

Melissa Ward

Female athlete of the year

Sports success is nothing new to Ward. She's been part of Air Training Command teams three times in the past two years — softball this year and basketball this year and in 1988.

Although many might be satisfied, the Chicago-born athlete still has a spot on the Air Force basketball team in her sights. The goal is not out of reach, given her background.

As a walk-on member of the University of Southern California varsity basketball team, she was part of two national championship teams. She and her teammates went to the NCAA "final four" three times. A reserve on the squad, she played alongside four people who eventually played for the U.S. women's team in the 1988 Olympics.

Ward is working steadily towards the Air Force spot. She works out every day, varying her training between free weights, Nautilus, aerobics exercise, running and basketball drills.

"I really need to work on my game if I'm going to make the team," she said. "With the command tournament being cancelled this year, people will be selected for the ATC camp based on a resume of sorts. If I'm one of the people chosen for the camp, I'll have to be ready to compete."

Ward's interests also include volleyball and track.

Part of Melissa Ward's weekly workout includes lifting weights.
