Weekly sorties

Once again the West Texas winds impaired flying conditions, causing the T-37s to drop to 0.34 days ahead in the timeline; while the T-38s dropped to a minus 0.5 days.

Season's Greetings!

From my perspective

by Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

There is a special atmosphere at Reese. It's a feeling of family and community that just doesn't exist on larger military facilities.

Here, we all depend on each other, and the cooperation goes beyond what is needed to effectively train the 300 pilots we graduated this year.

Reese is blessed with real people who have real feelings for their coworkers and neighbors. The type of support given by all of you can't be legislated.

That special spirit has carried this wing through a variety of challenges. We have completed a most successful transition from military to civilian contract aircraft maintenance. Many of our best people have been called on to directly support Operation Desert Shield. Others have shouldered the responsibility of aiding those left behind.

We have laid the foundation for transition to specialized undergraduate pilot training and the beddown of the T-1A Jayhawk. We have made significant improvements in our living and working conditions and improved many of our support services. We have worked hard to be fully prepared to show the Air Training Command inspector general how good we really are when the team visits in February.

Most remarkably, we have accomplished our goals while seeing a complete change in senior command positions and in many of the squadrons. What that proves is what every commander knows — that you make this wing and community work.

I urge each of you to spend as much of this holiday season as possible with your families. Whenever possible, I hope you will continue to open your hearts and homes to those who do not have family in the area.

You have earned a break. Enjoy the holidays, but please do it safely. We have not had a class A or class B (major) flying or ground safety incident in 1990. Let's carry that record on through this year and into 1991. Be responsible hosts and guests, and watch out for the "other guy."

Susan and Lauren join me in sending our best wishes to you and yours.

From YOUR perspective

I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your inputs and suggestions can help Reese remain the pacesetter in the command.

If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command. You may remain anonymous if you wish, but those who leave their name and number can get a direct response to their call. Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Bingo always late?

Why can't bingo in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess start on time? It's always 10-15 minutes late.

Also, why can't bingo players and other club patrons be a little quieter while the games are being played?

And why can't changes to the monthly calendar be posted? For example, the Friday disc jockey was changed to the following day one weekend recently?

Because many bingo players arrive just before the start of the game, it wouldn't be wise to start the game exactly at the announced time — many people would still be waiting to buy cards. This is particularly true when the jackpot is high.

You're right about the noise. As such, we're testing the idea of putting Friday bingo in the ballroom. This test has been well received so far, and if this success continues, bingo will be moved permanently in January.

As for the DJs, some minor changes were necessary on the weekend you mentioned because of Christmas parties. However, since both were scheduled to play variety music, the change should not have been very noticeable.

I appreciate your inputs, and I encourage anyone with improvement ideas for the club to contact the staff.

Why so long for repairs?

Why does it take so long to repair equipment in the fitness center? It seems as though it takes an act of Congress to get something fixed.

I believe the problem you speak of concerns the two treadmills in the center. Unfortunately, there is no local vendor who can fix them.

The problem was worked through the contracting division, and a vendor in Dallas was contacted. By the time you read this, the equipment should be back in use.

Mishap rate lowest in ATC

by Brig. Gen. Chalmers Carr
ATC Inspector General

Congratulations!

Each of you has reason to be proud of your role in making Air Force and Air Training Command safety mishap prevention history. In fiscal years 1989 and 1990, we had the lowest number of flight, ground and explosives mishaps in our history.

In the past two years, ATC has had the lowest flight mishap rate of any Air Force major flying command. We improved a superb fiscal year 1989 rate of .30 per 100,000 flying hours to .16 in fiscal year 1990. The Air Force rate for the same years was 1.56 in fiscal year 1989 and 1.43 in fiscal year 1990.

In the ground mishap arena, we equaled our best year with 12 ground fatalities. Though we all consider one death too many, a good trend continues. In the past 15 years, you have reduced the number of ground fatalities from a high of 48 to 12.

We're also doing better in the explosives safety arena. For the 15th straight year, ATC did not have a single class A or B explosives mishap.

All of these improvements are a credit to the way each of you goes about your business — on and off duty. And credit must go to our leaders at all levels for the way they constructively plan their work, and then execute their duties.

Our challenge doesn't stop there; it's just beginning again. The upcoming holidays will once again test our ability to avoid tragedy. I'm sure you join me in wanting to continue this success story. Have a happy and safe holiday season.

Here's to good health This year, give your family and yourself a Christmas present that will last a lifetime

by 2nd Lt. Jeff Pomeroy
Reese anti-smoking committee

It's Christmas time, so have you all figured what you're going to give to your loved ones for Christmas yet?

I finally have, and it's not going to cost me a single penny. In fact, it even saves me money. After all, what better gift is there than one that's free? What I am giving my wife — what she wants most — is my health.

Oh, people might think that my gift doesn't really count as one, since I'm already healthy. But my gift ensures that I will stick around for a while and not self-destruct. Sure, I wear seat belts and I don't drink and drive, but those topics aren't what concern me the most. I don't do the one thing that is one of the surest ways to an early death — I don't smoke.

Don't worry, I'm not going to go into the gory details about the different colors that a smoker's lungs turn, or the hacking cough that varies in octave levels and occasionally expels gross items. Everyone has heard all that stuff.

What I am going to do is get back on track and talk about how all this relates to my wife's Christmas present.

It saves about $1.50 each day on the cigarettes I don't smoke. That amounts to about $547 a year that I don't spend on cigarettes, which will allow me to get a great necklace or ring for my wife — or even a nice necklace or ring and that set of golf clubs...

Anyway, I'd like to thank the smokers out there who made me realize how much money I've been saving all this time by not smoking. And compared to those hooked on two packs per day, I'm saving over $1,000 a year. Wow, what great gifts I can get with that kind of money.

Seriously, though, I'm giving the most important gift I can — one that money can't buy. By not smoking, I am taking care of myself, enabling me to be around longer to share my life with my wife.

Oh sure, a heart attack may strike me tomorrow, a car may run me over, or spontaneous combustion could burst me into flames within the next hour.

But, since I don't smoke, I'm not giving lung cancer, emphysema or a myriad of other possible health problems the slightest opportunity to come along and ruin my life and the lives of those who love me. I'm not doing anything that would virtually guarantee health problems at some point in the future.

Everyone keeps saying, "It won't happen to me," but someone's got to be lying.

I have almost eliminated my chances of dying from one of the leading causes of death today — one that causes both heart and lung problems — smoking. Thank you, smokers, for drawing the fire towards you.

Now, if only I didn't have to deal with the smoke that blows back my way...

Happy holidays from Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, senior wing officers and their families.

Airpower's leaders send holiday greetings

To the Men and Women of the Armed Forces:

On behalf of all Americans, I am pleased to wish you every happiness during the forthcoming holidays and in the new year.

Throughout this holy season of Christmas and Hanukkah, we are especially mindful of the many blessings we enjoy, as individuals and as a Nation. While we follow our own traditions in celebrating this special time of year, we see our many gifts and their Giver, our Heavenly Father, in a new light. As we experience the glow of the holidays and the feeling of good will that they bring, we can proclaim, as did the Psalmist, "The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad."

The blessing of freedom is among our most precious gifts, and it comes with the responsibility to protect and preserve it. This is a responsibility that all Americans share; but we look to you, our fellow citizens who wear the uniform of the United States, to serve as the frontline guardians of liberty. Because we uphold the ideals of freedom and justice, and because you stand ready to defend those ideals, oppressed people around the world have hope that they, too, can break the bonds of tyranny.

Some of you are able to enjoy this season with family and friends, while others are based in faraway lands or on distant shores. Regardless of the assignment or the location, you remain in the hearts and prayers of your fellow Americans. I speak for them when I tell you that we are deeply grateful for your service.

Barbara and I send you our best wishes. We pray that the Father of us all will grant you His favor, give you strength, and preserve your spirit.

— President George Bush

To the members of the Air Force:

1990 was a year of drama on the world stage with you, the men and women of the Air Force, as key players.

You are helping to move global allies — old and new — closer to a vision of peace on earth and good will toward men. This holiday season is a fitting time to reflect on the contributions Air Force members are making towards that vision. There is no more important work; you and your families have our heartfelt thanks for your devotion and sacrifice.

As happens every year, many of you will spend the holidays apart from loved ones. Our thoughts and prayers are with you and your families. May the new year bring us together again, and usher an era of peace, wisdom and restraint.

— Donald Rice
Secretary of the Air Force and Gen. Merrill McPeak
Chief of Staff

To the people in Air Training Command:

This year's holiday season means many things to many people. Traditionally, it means a time to enjoy the love of family, the fellowship of friends, and the privilege of living in this great democracy: the United States of America.

It's also appropriate to reflect on what it is that gives us those privileges we hold so dear. In a December 1776 essay titled "The American Crisis," Thomas Paine said, "Those who expect to reap the blessings of freedom must undergo the fatigue of supporting it."

This message rings as true today as it did when Paine penned it more than 200 years ago. For those who have made the choice to defend America's freedoms, Paine's words serve as a poignant reminder of why that choice was made.

During this season, some of the men and women of Air Training Command are at home with family and friends, and some are on duty in faraway places. I would like to thank all of you for your outstanding support of our nation's defense and wish each of you the happiest holiday season and a safe, fulfilling new year.

— Lt. Gen. Joseph Ashy

Secretary Cheney says Military option

may be necessary to get Iraq out of Kuwait

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said a military option may be necessary soon because economic sanctions may not be enough to force Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait.

"My own personal view is that it's far better for us to deal with him now while the coalition is intact, while we have the United Nations behind us, while we have 26 other nations assembled with military forces in the Gulf, than it will be for us to deal with him five or 10 years from now," Secretary Cheney told Congress Dec. 3.

Continuing to wait indefinitely, giving sanctions time to work, also creates significant additional pressures for the coalition of forces. "It means that the major U.S. military presence in the region, on the ground, several hundred thousand strong, would continue," the secretary said.

"We must not create a false dichotomy between sanctions and a military option. They are mutually reinforcing parts of a broad strategy to get Iraq out of Kuwait."

The patience and staying power of the American people "does not mean we must remain patient when patience is not producing results," he said.

Appearing before the Senate Armed Services Committee, the secretary and Army Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, briefed lawmakers on the status of American forces on the Arabian peninsula and updated them on the crisis.

The mission "is to take action to achieve our political objectives if Saddam Hussein does not change his mind," General Powell said.

"General Schwarzkopf, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and I believe strongly that if the Armed Forces of the United States are asked to go into combat to achieve a decisive political objective, we must implement a decisive military strategy that seizes the initiative — one that is designed to win," General Powell said.

The chairman also made it clear that a combination of land-, sea- and airpower will be necessary to defeat Iraq.

As of Nov. 3, Iraqi forces in the area numbered more than 450,000, with over 50 percent of those forces in Kuwait and the remainder in Southern Iraq able to serve as reinforcing elements.

In his overall assessment of Operation Desert Shield, General Powell said the emphasis on modernization of aging combat equipment, training and readiness has paid off.

"The speed and precision of the U.S. response to Iraq's aggression, when requested by our friends in need, has awed the world.

"This has been a superb effort by a dedicated and professional force. Let neither friend nor foe doubt that we are committed to the successful completion of our mission, and will remain deployed and ready so long as our friends in the region request our presence."

The United States is prepared to respond both defensively and offensively, taking the battle to the Iraqis to defend the region, General Powell said, even through the administration has not made a decision to use an offensive military strategy.

Troop strength continues to build

As a result of Iraq's continued buildup in Kuwait and the deployment of more forces for Operation Desert Shield, the Pentagon may ask Congress for relief on the end-strength reduction imposed in the current Defense Authorization Bill.

The legislation limits the military to an active-duty force of 1,976,000 with a ceiling of 510,000 for the Air Force in fiscal 1991.

No decisions have been made yet to ask for a higher troop ceiling, but "this is something that people are looking at," said Pentagon spokesman Bob Hall Dec. 6. "There obviously are implications with the Desert Shield operation for that end-strength figure."

At a time when the military is being ordered to get smaller, the buildup of U.S. military forces in Saudi Arabia progresses. More American troops from the United States and Germany are being sent to augment more than 260,000 already in Saudi Arabia and other Gulf areas. Additionally, more than 220,000 soldiers from allied nations are deployed to the Gulf region.

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said that American forces in the Mideast will remain there and additional forces will be deployed to achieve the level that the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended for the required military capability. "Having decided on the deployment of U.S. forces, we rejected the idea of a gradual, calibrated buildup. We also rejected the concept of a modest trip-wire force, since we did not want to send just enough troops to provoke an Iraqi attack without being able to defend

"We are trying all other avenues," Secretary Cheney said. "But the president is deadly serious, as he stated repeatedly, that the only acceptable outcome is that indeed we have to prevail, Saddam Hussein has to get out of Kuwait."

Meanwhile, the military departments have been authorized to call up 63,000 more National Guard and Reserves in support of Operation Desert Shield.

This action raises to 188,000 the number of Army, Navy, Air Force and Marine Corps selected reservists who can be on active duty at the same time.

Although the new delegation of authority raises the call-up ceiling, the Air Force remains unchanged at 20,000. To date, 5,915 members of the selected reserve have been called to active duty by the Air Force since Aug. 23, when Secretary Cheney first delegated to the services the authority to call-up the reserves. "We simply could not have done what we've done, in terms of this deployment and supporting it, without our reserve capability," he said. (Air Force News Service) against it," he said.

"We intended to present a credible deterrent and to convey to Saddam Hussein that we were serious."

Over the past four months the Iraqis have also significantly built up their forces. From an initial invasion force of about 140,000 they have steadily increased to more than 240,000 Iraqi troops in Kuwait, and more than 500,000 troops in the Kuwaiti theater of operations consisting of both Kuwait and southern Iraq, JCS Chairman, Army Gen. Colin Powell told the Senate Armed Services Committee Dec. 3.

"In addition to its significant conventional armed forces, which represent the sixth largest army in the world, Iraq also possesses a substantial chemical weapons capability which it has not hesitated to use, in violation of international law, against both Iran and its own Kurdish population," the chairman said. "Iraq is also developing biological weapons agents and working feverishly to obtain a nuclear capability."

Iraq's continued buildup of forces in and around Kuwait led the President to order additional U.S. forces into the region and to maintain a full range of options — "to include an offensive option if needed," General Powell added.

"Desert Shield presented this nation with the first large-scale practical test of the Total Force Policy. As a result, we have learned some important lessons and gained some valuable insights that can only serve to strengthen the policy and, consequently, our national defense." (Air Force News Service)

Control, common sense can prevent drivers from... Slip, slidin' away

Control and common sense are the keys to safer winter driving, according to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

Kent Milton of the highway safety agency suggests keeping the following points in mind when heading toward wintry climates and conditions.

First, make sure the car is equipped to handle the colder weather. This includes getting a tune-up, checking the anti-freeze and ensuring the heating system and wiper system work, he said.

The car's traction on ice and snow is also important. But Milton suggests checking local laws before putting on snow, all-weather or studded tires, or storing chains in the trunk, ready for use in ice and snow. "For example, various jurisdictions prohibit studded tires, while others require both snow tires and chains," Milton said.

Every driver should consider having a winter survival kit — easily put together in the car during cold weather. Milton said items for the kit could include a shovel, whisk broom, ice scraper, sand or other abrasive material to provide traction, blanket, first aid kit, flashlight, safety triangles for the road, lock antifreeze, booster cables, and warm, dry clothes.

The traffic safety official added that drivers might also want to put some high-energy snacks, such as peanuts and granola bars, in their glove compartments in case they become stopped or stuck in the snow or ice.

During winter, people tend to drive as they normally do the rest of the year, he said. Last minute stops and lane changes, and driving the speed limit are all common mistakes during the snowy season, he added.

To help prevent accidents, one should slow down, use common sense and avoid overdriving. Allow more time for traffic control devices, stops and lane changes, and anticipate the other driver's actions, he added.

"Remember that bridges and overpasses ice up first, so drivers should slow down as they approach them," Milton said.

Skids can occur from driving too fast for conditions, sudden braking or other quick movements. "You have to know how to handle your car in a skid," he noted. "It's not an instinctive action. Your first inclination is to slam on the brakes, but that's the worst thing you can do.

"A simple way to explain it is to steer the car in the direction of the skid until you find traction, easing up on the accelerator. Don't use the brakes. Once you've got traction, steer the car in the direction that you want to go.

"Don't jam on the brakes, and stay cool and calm," he said.

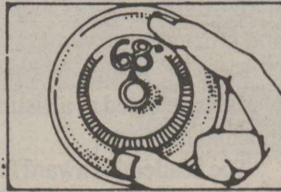

Other tips for safe winter driving:

- Don't park on a snow route during a snowfall or the car may be towed away or become buried.
- Clean all snow and ice from the car's windows, hood, roof and rear deck.
- Make sure all outside rearview mirrors are clear.
- Be sure to wear seat belts. (American Forces Information Service)

Be Sure You're Getting the Most for Your Energy Dollars

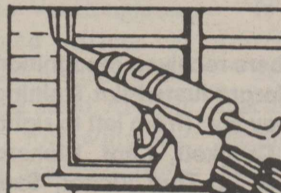

If you use a flame fuel, have your heating plant cleaned and serviced. If you have a ducted system, install clean air filters.

Reset your thermostat to 68 degrees Fahrenheit or lower for daytime operation. Remember to set it back 5 to 10 degrees at night.

* Install the proper insulation recommended for your area.

* Caulk drafty cracks around doors and windows.

* Add weatherstripping to doors and windows.

* Install storm windows and doors: even temporary plastic covers will help.

* Get permission from your landlord.

43 years of service comes to an end

Wing holds ceremonies to honor two newly retiring members

Maj. Ernie Petrash

Twenty-three years of commissioned service ended Thursday during a retirement ceremony.

Maj. Ernie Petrash began his Air Force career in August of 1967, when he attended Officer Training School at the Medina Annex in San Antonio. From there he went on to attend undergraduate pilot training at Webb AFB, Texas. Following training, he went to Homestead AFB, Fla., where he was an F-4E trainee for four months before going to Ubon Royal Thailand Air Base, Thailand, in Dec. 1969.

One year later, he returned to Webb as a T-38 instructor pilot. While there, he also performed duties as a computer officer, scheduler, flight commander and runway supervisory unit controller. June 1974, Major Petrash assumed the position as Airmanship Course Director (for four flying courses) at the Air Force Academy, Colo.

Three years later, Major Petrash became a B-52D aircraft commander at Dyess AFB, Texas. Here he also served as an IP, flight commander and wing tactics officer. Then, in August 1981, he came to Reese, where he spent his last nine years in the military.

Since his arrival, he's held positions as the chief of the pilot qualification section, section commander, assistant operations officer and Base Exercise Evaluation Team deputy chief. In June 1988, he took over as chief of airfield management. And, in September of 1990, he became the operations division chief.

While the Texas A&M graduate has decided to put an end to his active-duty career, he plans to perform instructor duties for the simulator contractor at Reese next year. He also hopes to spend more time with his wife Doris; his daughter, Tamera; and son, Todd, while also pursuing his interests in golfing, fishing and hunting.

"It has been an exciting and frequently demanding 23 years, but, there is little I would change if I had it to do over. The best thing about my whole career, next to flying, has been the people.

"The Air Force is a family, and I'll miss that."

Notes updates

Christmas vigil planned

A Christmas Mass will be celebrated by the base Catholic parish at 8:30 p.m. Christmas Eve in the Reese Chapel. There will not be a midnight Mass.

Free babysitting will be provided for children five and under; call 3238 to reserve babysitting.

During the Mass, parish children will present a Christmas play. A fellowship will be held after the Mass in rooms 9-11.

Holiday recycling set

Two special recycling programs are planned as part of this holiday season.

A vehicle will be in place Monday through Jan. 2 at the intersection of Harmon and McGuire so that Reese Village residents can dispose of their Christmas trees. The trees will be turned into mulch.

Cardboard boxes and wrapping paper can be dumped in a specially marked dumpster Monday through Thursday at the intersection of Mitchell and George. Foil paper and boxes can not be dumped there, however.

Food fund seeks support

The holiday food fund committee is looking for donations of food as well as the names of families who could use their help. Anyone who knows of a family or who would like to donate food should contact their first sergeant or the Reese Family Support Center at 3305.

TV restrictions discussed

At the Reese town meeting Nov. 29, questions were raised concerning Mission Cable Co., the cable TV contractor on Reese. Specifically, the feasibility of channel expansion and view of premium channels like Home Box Office in recreational facilities was raised.

Maj. Gerry Brown, 1958th Communications Squadron commander, said that Mission Cable can't install premium channel services where they would be in public view because of Federal Communication Commission regulations. The major added that the company is currently unable to offer more stations, as the cable equipment being used has a maximum capacity of 31 stations, all of which are in use.

VA benefits extended

Congress recently extended GI Bill educational benefits for 1987 and 1988 graduates of service academies, as well as 1988 ROTC graduates.

Officials in the Reese Education Center said complete details are being finalized by the Veterans Administration, but that interim information is available at the Waco VA office, 1-800-792-3271.

Couples group upcoming

A couples group dealing with relationships will begin at 7 p.m. Jan. 19 in the Reese Chapel.

Chapel officials said the group will strive to develop better relationships in the home and the work place through a better understanding of self and others. The group will be lead by Chaplain (Capt.) Millard Timmons, and will feature videos from experts in this area.

To sign up, call Chaplain Timmons at 3237 by Jan. 4.

Smoking group on tap

A smoking cessation group will hold its first session at 4:30 p.m. Jan. 22 in the Reese Mental Health Clinic. Various quitting techniques will be discussed. To sign up or for more information, call 3739.

Pay statements affected

A production test by the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center will cause members to receive duplicate mid-month pay statements for the next several months.

MSgt. Roy Threadgill, superintendent of the Reese Accounting and Finance Branch, said that the monthly leave and earnings statement will not be affected. Anyone with questions should call 3201.

Holiday messages prohibited

Sending holiday messages through data processing centers, stand-alone computers or base communication centers is prohibited, officials in the 1958th Communications Squadron cautioned.

The only exception to using computer equipment or software for personal projects is when "specifically authorized in writing by the commander," according to Air Force Regulation 205-16. For details, call 3326/3707.

Sealed bid sale upcoming

Viewing for a sealed bid sale will be held from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 9 in Bldg. 542. Bid items will include a work bench, copiers, kitchen equipment, light fixtures, furniture and more. Terms for bidding will be available at the viewing.

Sealed bids will be accepted from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Jan. 10 in Bldg. 542. Active-duty and retired military members, civilian employees and contractors can bid.

Awards of bids will be at noon Jan. 14.

Texas skills test planned

The Texas Academic Skills Program pre-test will be offered Jan. 29-30 by South Plains College. People who did not complete a college class before Sept. 1, 1989 will have to pass the test before completing nine hours at any school supported by Texas.

For details, call the college at 3048.

Tax exemptions exist

Tax exemption certificates are available for members on temporary-duty assignments through the Reese Accounting and Finance Office. Wing members complete the certificate, then submit it to commercial hotels when paying for room charges. Based on state tax laws, the hotel then has the option to charge the member tax or not.

A separate certificate must be completed for each hotel used. All members going TDY are encouraged to use the form. For more information, call 3184.

TMO issues travel advisory

A misconception concerning first-class plane tickets is costing some people who go on official travel, according to the Reese Traffic Management Office.

TMO said that many travelers are assuming that the government will reimburse them the cost of a first-class ticket used for official travel. This is causing after-the-fact requests for reimbursement, which TMO said are almost always denied.

Travelers who have a legitimate need for first-class travel should submit a request to TMO, fully explaining the circumstances. Traffic management will route the request to the appropriate officials; the final approval lies with the secretary of the Air Force.

TMO said all travelers should make travel arrangements as soon as possible. For more information, call traffic management at 3943.

Legal seeks tax volunteers

The Reese Legal Office is seeking volunteers for its tax assistance program. Volunteers will receive tax training by Internal Revenue Service officers through its Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. The training is scheduled for Jan. 3-4 at Reese.

Anyone interested in volunteering, can contact their unit commander or the legal office at 3505 to sign-up.

Education programs open

The Reese Education Center has information available on the Bootstrap Program and for members nearing completion of their degree, but who are also nearing change-of-station orders.

Through Bootstrap, members may be released from active duty up to one year to complete their associate, bachelor's or master's degree. Educational deferments can also be authorized for members within one year of completing their degree, which will freeze any upcoming assignments.

For more information on either program, contact the center at 3634 or stop by Bldg. 920, room 139.

PDS assists with PC III

The Reese Personnel Data Systems Office is available to assist members using the Personnel Concept III system. Members experiencing trouble can call 3322/6077.

Reese offers assistance to newly separating members

Reese is one of many bases taking part in a program to help ease the transition from military to civilian life.

In July, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney approved the creation of a new program to coordinate services and benefits for separating military people, Defense Department civilians and their families. "We have an obligation to see that they are adequately prepared to compete in the private sector," he said.

The program is part of a part of a plan to reduce the Air Force by nearly 25 percent over the next five years. An Air Force task force was formed in August by Lt. Gen. Thomas Hickey, deputy chief of staff for personnel, to work transition issues full time. Its purpose is to pull together existing and potential resources to help ease the transition for separating and retiring people, said task force member Lt. Col. Rick Fitzhugh.

"Although transition assistance is still in the pilot stage, we've put over 600 people through 18 fairly comprehensive three-day transition seminars and, so far, the feedback has been positive," Colonel Fitzhugh said. The Air Force's pilot site for the transition assistance seminar is in the San Antonio area. The Reese Family Support Center has a complete listing of job seminars being held through July.

Locally, the Reese Education Center, FSC and Library all have information available for wing members. Jeff Wilbur, education services officer, said that the education center has details on Veterans Administration educational benefits, as well as information for members who want to further their education after getting out.

FSC offers quarterly resume writing and job hunting seminars. Margaret Ramey of family support said the center also offers employment assistance in the local area as part of their Spouse Employment Resource Program.

The library has numerous reference materials on resume writing and job hunting techniques.

"All these services are provided free of charge by experts in their respective areas," Mr. Wilbur said. "It's a situation where people have everything to gain. Those of us involved realize the many potential difficulties encountered by people making major life transitions, and we'll assist them in any way."

A workbook was developed by the Labor Department and VA and covers a variety of job transition issues. "The workbook shows you how to make career decisions, write resumes, conduct interviews, negotiate salaries and even how to tie a necktie," Colonel Fitzhugh said.

Ms. Ramey added that the book is distributed through the reenlistments, separations and retirement section in the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office.

Numerous benefits were approved to help people who leave government service as part of the fiscal 1991 Defense Authorization Bill. The benefits include separation pay for certain categories of involuntarily separated officers and enlisted members, post-separation health care, extended exchange and commissary privileges, extended residence in government quarters under certain conditions and non-appropriated fund position hiring preference.

In addition, the legislation approves permissive temporary-duty assignments for certain categories of separating or retiring people for job and house hunting, or to attend a transition assistance seminar if one is not locally available.

Other benefits include comprehensive pre-separation counseling, employment assistance, access to a resume bank for potential employers, relocation assistance, an expanded opportunity for Montgomery G.I. Bill enrollment, extension in DOD Dependent Schools, and hiring preference in the National Guard or selective Reserve.

While much of the focus of these benefits centers on helping people separating involuntarily, many of the new services such as employment assistance will be available to separating or retiring people and their families across the board, Colonel Fitzhugh said.

More information is available from the education center at 3634 and FSC at 3305/6494. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Recalled guard, reserve families eligible for CHAMPUS benefits

The latest call-up of reservists and members of the National Guard means more families are newly eligible for CHAMPUS benefits.

If the activated military sponsor is ordered to duty for more than 30 consecutive days, his or her family may get civilian health care under the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services beginning with the first day of active duty.

Reserve and National Guard family members are also enrolled in the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System when their sponsors are called up.

In order to get CHAMPUS covered health care benefits, a family member must present one of the following documents at the health care provider's office:

□ A red Department of Defense Guard or Reserve family member identification card, DD Form 1173-1, along with a copy of the sponsor's active-duty orders.

□ A red guard/reserve dependent ID card from one of the services, with a copy of the sponsor's active-duty orders (this card is an acceptable substitute for the DD Form 1173-1).

□ A tan Uniformed Services Identification and Privilege Card, DD Form 1173.

□ A completed and approved Application for Uniformed Services Identification Card—DEERS Enrollment, DD Form 1172—as well as a copy of the sponsor's active-duty orders.

People can help prevent delays in claim processing by including a copy of any of the red ID cards or a copy of the ID card application and a copy of the active-duty orders, or a copy of the tan ID card and privilege card.

Anyone who had CHAMPUS a claim denied because of alleged non-enrollment in DEERS, or needing additional information, can call the Rese Consolidated Base Personnel Office Customer Service Desk at 3276 or the DEERS Beneficiary Telephone Center at 1-800-538-9552. The center is open from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Additionally, reservists can obtain information about their active-duty entitlements by calling the Air Reserve Personnel Center at 1-800-525-0102. This is the reservists' link to answers on questions about changes from Reserve to active-duty status as a result of Operation Desert Shield.

Topics covered include pay, orders, nurse and physician corps, retirements, command chaplains, officer appointments, officer and enlisted assignments, and reference services.

Shield update

Funding for Desert Shield

Operation Desert Shield will cost more than $15 billion in fiscal 1991, with some of the burden being carried by allied countries to pay for the deployment, the Pentagon said.

The cost of the operation in all of fiscal year 1991 is estimated to be about $2.7 billion higher than our original estimated figure of $15 billion, Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said Dec. 11. "The additional costs are mainly for airlift, sealift, supplies and fuel price increases."

Personnel costs, such as the call-up of 7,808 Air Force reservists deployed so far for Desert Shield has increased the budget needed to pay salary costs, thus requiring the defense to seek additional support for Desert Shield.

Figures are not yet available on the total cost of Operation Desert Shield, but about $6.5 billion for in-kind support and cash has been offered so far by other nations. In-kind support is defined as fuel, food, water and general assistance where there normally would be a charge.

"Many nations are making contributions of varying amounts or in-kind support; however, there are six nations that are making major contributions to support the operation," Mr. Williams said.

Saudi Arabia has made an open-ended offer of food, fuel, water and use of its facilities, as well as local transportation to Americans. The Saudi government also has provided $987 million in financial support to the United States; while Kuwait has offered $2.5 billion in cash, and the United Arab Emirates, $250 million in cash and $30 million as in-kind support.

Other countries that contributed to Desert Shield thus far include: Japan, $376 million cash and $50 million as in-kind support; Germany, $337 million cash and $65 million in-kind support; and Republic of Korea, $4 million in-kind support.

In addition, the Defense Cooperation Account for Desert Shield has received a total of $6,257.92 in individual contributions from U.S. organizations and people.

A private contribution came from an 8-year-old Washington, D.C., boy named David, who sent $20 he earned selling

lemonade for Desert Shield. (Air Force News Service)

Reservist premiums covered

The government is covering a federal employee's share of health benefit premiums while the person is performing active military service for Operation Desert Shield.

A recent Office of Personnel Management regulation waives employees' premiums for those who continue their coverage under the Federal Employees Health Benefits Program while in a leave without pay status. The regulation applies to employees who are reservists and ordered to active duty under selected sections of Title 10, United States Code.

Reservists who volunteer must serve in support of Operation Desert Shield to qualify for this benefit. They can show proof of eligibility by having a statement such as "Active-duty in support of Operation Desert Shield," included in their orders. If this is not done, reservists can request a letter from their unit commander verifying participation in Desert Shield. (Air Force Reserve News Service)

Think about beauty pageants and beauty queens. Does the image of someone who leads a pampered, carefree life come to mind? If so, think again. As 17-year-old Tamera Petrash can tell you, nothing could be further from the truth. The recently crowned Miss Lubbock has been competing in pageants for six years. She's won pageants at the local and national level, and her success hasn't come without sacrifice.

"There are a lot of things that go into getting ready for a pageant," said Miss Petrash, whose father — Maj. Ernie Petrash — works in the wing operations complex. "I have to work on the talent portion of the competition, my wardrobe, the interview, my physical condition and so on."

All that doesn't mean she can spend 100 percent of her time on pageants. As an honor student at Monterey High School, she's carrying a 4.6 grade-point average on a scale of 4 (she earns extra points for taking honor classes). In addition, she works part time in a local mall, earning enough to make her own car payments, and she teaches violin as well.

"Tammy hasn't had things handed to her," Major Petrash said. "She's worked hard to get where she is."

If all the work involved gets tedious at times, the younger Petrash certainly doesn't show it. Having "fallen in love" with pageants from the start, she said the results make the competition worth it.

"It's great to go up there and see yourself do well and

Dedication, hard work pay off for new Miss Lubbock

get rewarded for the way you've performed," she said. "You have a chance to earn a lot of scholarship money and make contacts in the performing business."

Miss Petrash's achievements have come in part as the result of family backing. Although her mother Doris was a bit hesitant at first, the family has played an active part in her pageant career.

"She's still pretty young, and it takes a lot of support for something like this," Major Petrash said. "Her mother does a lot of work on Tammy's wardrobe, and she was the one who suggested Tammy change her talent act from jazz dance to fiddle."

That change played a big part in the Miss Lubbock competition. Playing the "Orange Blossom Special," she gave a performance that, in the words of one local paper,

"brought down the house."

Talking about the five areas of the Miss Lubbock competition, she said she felt most comfortable with the interview portion, while the talent section was her biggest worry.

"I get along well with people, so the interview was no problem," the Texas native said. "But with the talent portion, you have to depend on things you have no control over, like the sound equipment. Plus, it's the most important part of the pageant (talent is 40 percent of the total score)."

Her future looks to be as busy as ever. Between now and the Miss Texas pageant in July, she'll do scores of engagements as Miss Lubbock (she made four appearances in her first week alone). She's also looking forward to attending Texas Christian University, where she plans to major in chemistry and minor in political science.

The diversity in those academic pursuits is mirrored in her career plans. She hopes to be an orthodontist one day, but she also has her eye on a career in politics. She already has some experience in the political arena, having attended the 1990 National Young Leaders Conference in February. She and the other young leaders spent a week in Washington D.C. "playing government."

Of course, one other thing she's clearly set her sights on is the Miss America pageant in Atlantic City, N.J. She plans to keep trying for that crown until she gets it or she's too old to try. She said that setting goals is necessary to do well in pageants.

"It's a lot of fun, but it's also a lot of hard work. It's not worth trying if you can't dedicate yourself to it, but if you can, then go for it."

Village residents provide daycare

Reese Village residents who want to offer day care service in their homes must have approval of the 64th Air Base Group commander.

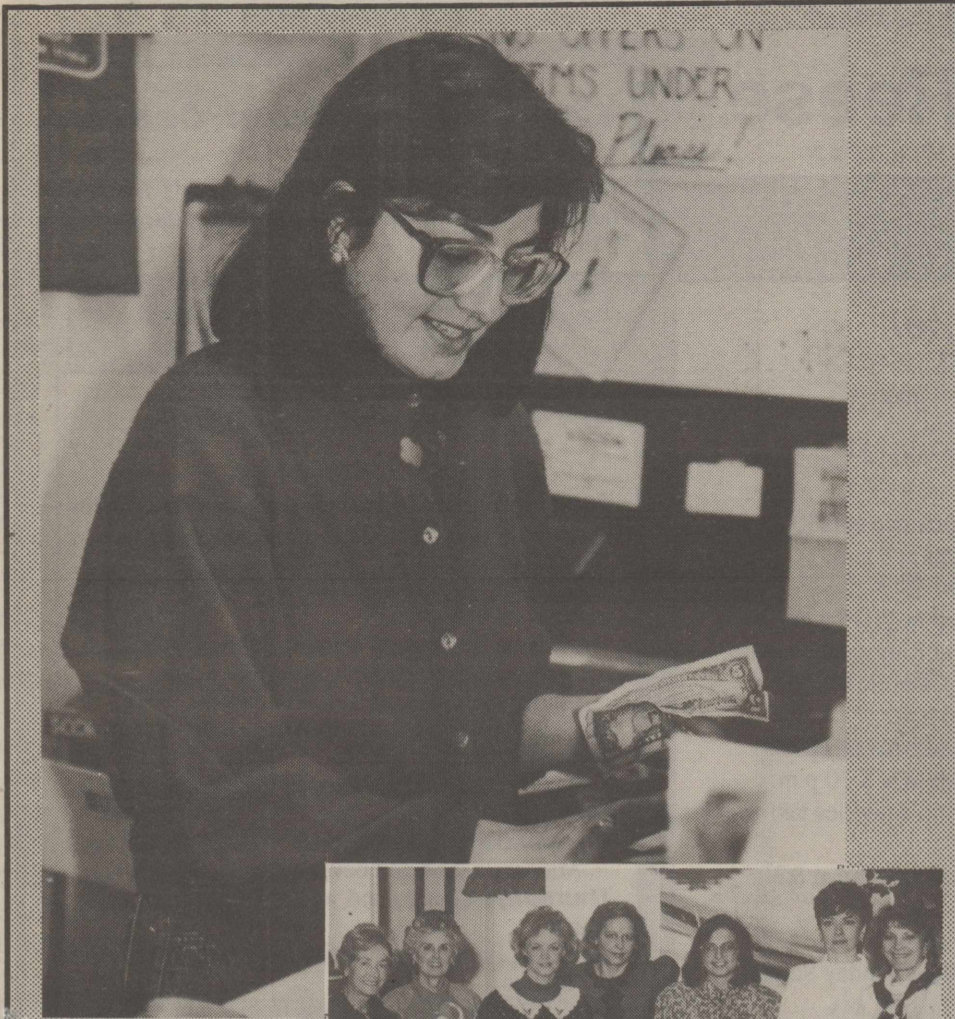

Under the Reese Family Day Care Program, base residents can care for up to six children in their homes with proper authorization. However, care providers must first go through screening, quarters inspection and at least 12 hours of training in the Reese Child Development Center. They also have to comply with applicable state laws, and they are subject to fire, safety, health and other inspections by base officials.

ABG officials pointed out that day care and "babysitting" are not the same. Under Air Force regulations, babysitting is defined as caring for someone else's children on an occasional basis (usually less than 10 hours per week). Family day care is provided on a regular basis — usually 3-10 hours per day, but less than 24.

"There's no problem with occasional babysitting, but people should be aware of the difference between the two," said Col. Ray Bean, ABG commander. "People should also be aware that any Reese Village resident offering day care without proper authorization is subject to penalty and possible eviction."

Anyone with questions on the family day care program can call the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division at 3006/3412.

Clothing sales offers customers one-stop shopping convenience

It's an empty lot. Prior to the site of the old Reese Military Clothing Sales Store being torn down, the store relocated in the Main Exchange in early October. While the amount of uniform goods in stock and the services offered by clothing sales, such as name tapes and tags, have not changed, the store no longer carries luggage, T-shirts and other items that are normally stocked in the BX. William Watson, clothing sales manager, explained that although the new store has less room than the old store, Mr. Watson said the move is actually for the better. "We've limited ourselves to carrying strictly uniforms and military items," he said. While the store is limited on the amount of stock it can carry, members can easily special order items, such as the Marine Corps and Army items the store recently fitted local reservists with, who were called upon to support Operation Desert Shield.

Items can normally take up to 30 days if the order must be filled from the warehouse or depot. But if the items can be obtained laterally (from another base) the waiting time is only about three days.

Mr. Watson said that being located in the BX/commissary area is more convenient for the customers. "People now only have to make one stop to suit all their needs," he added.

In their new location, the store is also much closer to the cleaners/alterations shop, which Mr. Watson felt is better because the store can better ensure customers are taken care of and their needs are met.

The store celebrated its move with a ribbon cutting ceremony Nov. 29.

The store's hours are still 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday thru Friday.

League leaders remain unchanged

52nd FTS "B", RM keep hold on IM reign

The 52nd Flying Training Squadron "A" team and Resource Management continue to lead their respective leagues in intramural basketball action.

At 6-0, the 52nd FTS "A" is dominating the American League. Their nearest challenger, the 33rd FTS, is 6-3. Meanwhile, RM turned back its most serious challenge to its lead this season when it handed the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital a double-digit loss. The defeat last week dropped the 4-3 hospital into third place after they had mounted a serious effort to claim the league lead.

Other league activity saw the 64th Mission Support Squadron and the 54th FTS "B" reach the .500 mark, while the 41st FTS picked up a win to move them back into second in the NL, only one-half game out of first with a 6-3 record.

A full rundown of league standings is available in "Updates," this page.

Dec. 12

RM, 55 — Hospital, 42. Marvin Davis' 11 points helped RM stay on top, while Hospital's Frank Parkers scored 14 for naught.

41st FTS, 45 — 52nd FTS "B," 26. A 14-point performance by the 41st's Chris Knehans overcame a 10-point effort by Erik Hansen.

54th FTS "B," 51 — 33rd FTS, 41. The 33rd's Kris Mineau' poured in 26 to make himself the week's high scorer, but the 54th still prevailed as Scott Wardle had 10 points.

Dec. 13

MSS, 53 — CES, 43. Mike Barnett had 14 points to help MSS reach .500, while CES was left still looking for its first win. Kevin Evans scored 10 points for CES.

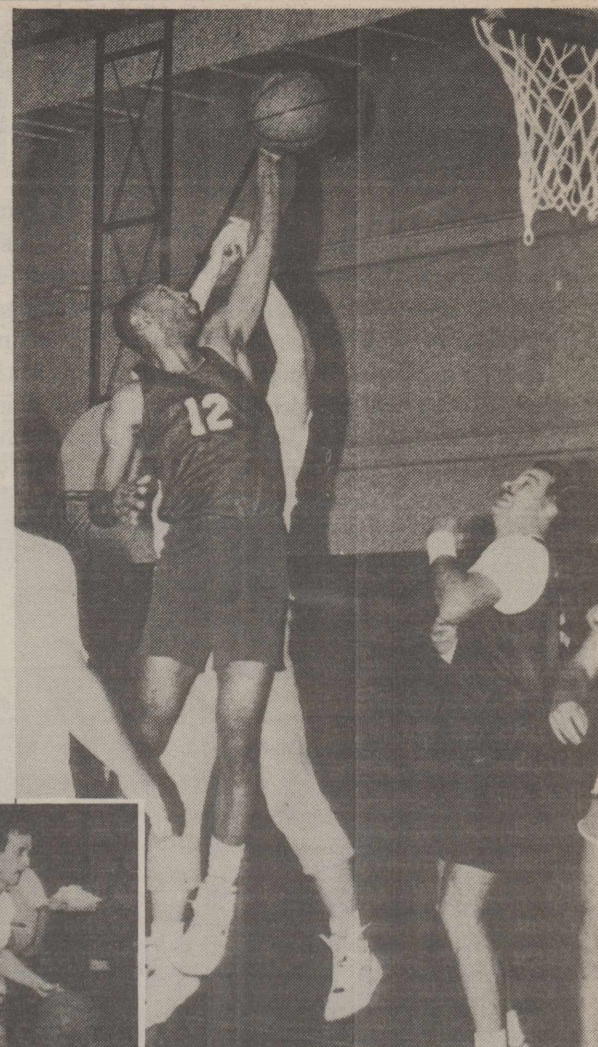

41st FTS, 54 — 1958th Communications Squadron/64th Security Police Squadron, 43. Missing an opportunity to move into second place in the AL, COMM/SPS fell as the 41st's Avery McGee hit for 12 and Andre Harley tallied 10 for COMM/SPS.

52nd FTS "A," 67 — 54th FTS "A," 50. This battle of the T-38 "A" teams saw Mark Slimko score 19 for the victors, while the 54th's Tom Hallett had 10.

52nd FTS "B," 29 — Lockheed, 23. Hansen's 10 points allowed the 52nd to bounce back from its loss the previous evening.

All play in the leagues is currently on hold, as the teams break for the holidays. Action will resume Jan. 8.

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Marvin Davis recovers a rebound; while 52nd FTS "B"'s number 30, Michael Holland, takes the ball down court. Both plays were made during intramural action Dec. 11 in the Reese Physical Fitness Center.
