

Movies return to Simler Theater

It's showtime!

Reese's Simler Theater, in conjunction with Army/Air Force Exchange Services, will be reopening its doors at 7 p.m. March 30 with the movie "Look Who's Talking," rated PG-13 (parental guidance is suggested for anyone under 13). The show stars Kirstie Alley and John Travolta, with Bruce Willis as the voice of the baby.

Shows will start at 7 p.m. every Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Prices for the movies are: $1.50 for adults; $1 for children ages 6-11; and children under six are free when accompanied by a paying patron (children under six will be charged the children's rate during special children matinees).

An AAFES concession stand will be available during all shows.

The theater will be showing second-run films that have not yet been released on the video market. Other movies coming up include: "Peter Pan," rated __ shows March 31; "Internal Affairs," rated R, shows April 1; and "Tremors," rated PG-13, is scheduled to show April 6.

The current free children's movies will still be provided by the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division at 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. Saturdays.

AAFES is currently accepting applications for the following positions: projectionists, theater supervisors and refreshment stand workers. To apply, stop by Reese Main Exchange office or call 885-4581.

Four wing members make E-8

Four noncommissioned officers assigned to the 64th Flying Training Wing have been selected for promotion to senior master sergeant, it was announced Thursday.

The selectees came from a pool of 59 eligibles at Reese, for a 6.7-percent selection rate locally.

The Reese selectees were Duane Bronson, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron; George Henderson, 64th Supply Squadron; Thomas Madigan, 64th Security Police Squadron; and Paul Neumann Jr., 64th Flying Training Wing.

Air Forcewide, 2,208 of 25,399 eligibles were picked for a 8.7 rate.

Beechjet stops at Reese

The Beechjet 400A visited Reese Saturday morning and was met by media and base/local dignitaries. The jet will report to Reese permanently in 1991 as the T-1A Jayhawk, the wing's newest trainer. Col. Monroe S. Sams, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, was one of the pilots for the jet's flight to Reese, making him the one of the first blue-suiteders to fly the aircraft since Beechcraft was awarded the Tanker-Transport Training System contract.

PME members snare awards

Reese pair acknowledged by Air Training Command

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

Two members of the Reese Professional Military Education Center have taken Air Training Command awards.

SMSgt. J.T. Washington, center commandant, captured the PME Manager of the Year award and SSgt. Karen Montague, a center instructor, received the Noncommissioned Officer Preparatory Course Instructor of the Year Award.

SMSgt. J.T. Washington

Sergeant Washington is responsible for integrating objectives, opportunities and resources in the right areas, which help to ensure successful mission accomplishment, said Maj. Sherill Donaldson, 64th Mission Support Squadron commander.

When Reese began its maintenance conversion to Lockheed, Sergeant Washington analyzed the impact this would have on the center's attendance level and began working with ATC to resolve the problem. Reese was then designated as a regional center. As a result of the expansion, the center was relocated to a larger, remodeled facility, and it has since upgraded its equipment to meet its new needs.

"Sergeant Washington is the type of person who acknowledges the difference between managing and doing," said the major. "He allows his staff to run their programs,

(Sgt. Kimberly Nelson)

SMSgt. J.T. Washington
NCO PME manager of the year and they in turn provide him with flawless results."

This became evident last fall when Sergeant Washington was unexpectedly hospitalized and his staff was left to run a retreat, NCO status ceremony and NCO preparatory course. "Which they did... successfully," Major Donaldson said.

Sergeant Washington is also responsible for all ceremonies and the Air Force Civilian Supervisor and Military Personnel Management Courses on base. When ATC's Civilian Automated Training Office was having troubles coinciding with the Air Force curriculum requirements for the civilian course, Sergeant Washington provided help. Afterwards, he assisted Goodfellow AFB, Texas, with the planning and development of their courses.

He was also called upon by Williams AFB, Ariz., to assist with a change of command/retirement ceremony for their base commander. "Sergeant Washington planned, developed and explained the entire process, which was a resounding success. This has led to him being called upon by many other bases throughout the command and within the area," commended the major.

SSgt. Karen Montague

Interested in the welfare and education of the students, Sergeant Montague planned, developed and started a suicide prevention briefing that is given to each preparatory course and leadership school class. She also designed a briefing for the preparatory courses that helps to develop the students communicative skills.

"Sergeant Montague's dedication to the center and students has led to her continual reviewing and revising of all lesson plans, handbooks, visual aids and test files. Additionally, she personally tries to contact all students before they attend to review course

Reese Life

Base commander looks at initiatives, new members

by Col. Bill Henny
64th ABG commander

A couple of weeks ago, we held our first "Town Meeting" of 1990. Although I wish everyone on Reese could have attended, those who did raised some issues we need to work, and they gave us some ideas that should improve things across the base. I'd like to pass on some of the improvements we've made and/or are working and introduce some new people on the 64th Air Base Group staff.

We've already stepped out at the Simler Theater — movies are back! It has been a long four years, but now the Army Air Force Exchange Service has agreed to put Reese back into the movie circuit. Thus every week, we'll be showing a variety of second-run films that aren't even on video yet! It starts at 7 p.m. March 30 with "Look Who's Talking" — hope to see you there!

Another topic discussed at the town meeting was the Child Development Center. I promise we're doing all we can to provide a first-rate facility — you and your children deserve it!

Everyone probably knows we promoted Jim Hernandez, leaving almost impossible shoes to fill. Yet I'm proud to announce that we have a new director — Viola Aiken. She brings 12 years of experience in Air Force child development center programs with her from Lowry AFB, Colo., where she was responsible for preschool management. Having talked with her, I'm convinced she'll do a super job, and I believe each of you will soon be equally as impressed! I invite you to join the parent advisory council, which meets monthly.

In addition to Ms. Aiken's arrival, several other welcomes need to be extended. First Lt. Mitch Jett has joined us from the 325th Mission Support Squadron, Tyndall AFB, Fla., where he was the drug and alcohol abuse control officer. Mitch is our new Social Actions chief. Because he believes so strongly in being involved, I'm sure you'll be seeing him soon, if you haven't already.

Also on board is Capt. Stephen Governale, who assumed command Thursday of the 64th Services Squadron. Steve is in from a tour in Iceland where he was the Services Division chief for Keflavik AB.

Last, but certainly not least, I'd like to let you know that Lt. Col. Bob Brooks is due to arrive in a week or so to begin his duties as the deputy base commander. Colonel Brooks comes to us from Randolph AFB, Texas, where he's been working the source selection of the new Tanker-Transport Training System trainer, which many of us saw last Saturday when it touched down at Reese. He's bringing a wealth of knowledge and experience with him. Bob and his wife Pat will be a super addition to the 64th Flying Training Wing family.

As you know, there are many base projects underway. The fence along Fourth Street is nearly finished and I am sure you will agree that it looks great. Also, it provides additional security for our residents. The Arts and Crafts Center renovation is now complete and the move back in is underway. Look for some new and better programs in the near future. Summer is just around the corner and so is the "new" Reese Beach. The new concrete sun deck, slides, ladders, diving boards and pool furniture will give us a first-rate community pool.

Our housing renovation continues to progress quite well. This coming week, we will receive the first two houses back from the contractor. From here on out, we should see a steady flow of completed units. Many of our residents are anxiously awaiting their new homes. We appreciate their patience.

Now that spring is here, I'd like to remind everyone of the upcoming "Spring Spruce Up" weekend on April 21 and 22, which we'll do this year in conjunction with the 20th anniversary of "Earth Day." As we did last year, Morale, Welfare and Recreation Logistics will offer free rental on all lawn and garden equipment and the Pride Store will be open and well-stocked with landscaping items. In addition to sprucing up the base and housing area, we'll conclude the weekend with a dedication of "Graduate Park" near the running track.

I salute each and of you for the way you pitch in to keep Reese looking great, and for your suggestions on how to improve our way of life. It makes my job easy and lots of fun.

RUMORS

Talk flying in face of possible cuts

by CMSgt. Stephen F. Greenwell
Reese Military Personnel Office superintendent

"Oh woe is me. The sky is falling, the sky is falling." You all probably remember the old story about Chicken Little, who ran around yelling, "the sky is falling," until he worked himself into such a frenzy that his personal sky did fall. Well, that is where we are right now.

All the hoopla concerning personnel cuts, major program changes and people being forced out is somewhat similar. All the cuts publicized represent the absolute worst case scenario and none of them has been approved and/or put into official personnel channels.

We do not expect any type of official announcements prior to the middle of next month.

The whole point is, do not make any career decisions based on rumor. There is a good chance you could be shooting yourself in the foot.

As a matter of fact, things are already looking up a little bit. An April early release program was planned but has now been cancelled due to the excellent response to the January-March program.

The Air Force Military Personnel Center expected to release approximately 6,000 people in that program, but the end result was practically twice that. Our shortfall was exceeded considerably, which removed any need for further early releases at this time.

Have faith in our leadership in the Pentagon; many of the cuts that have been contemplated would cripple us severely, and it is highly unlikely they will let that happen. We may face some more cuts and we may see some changes, but if and when they come about, you will be contacted through the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office if you are affected.

Let's all relax and give the system a chance to work.

Careline

The Careline is your direct link to me, Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr., 64th Flying Training Wing commander. All calls will be held in strictest confidence if the caller requests anonymity.

I urge you to leave your name and number when you call so that you can get a direct response; however, you may remain anonymous if you wish.

Before calling the Careline, consider using your chain of command to solve your problem. While you can contact the Careline directly, your immediate supervisor and/or first sergeant/commander are usually in the best position to resolve your problem.

The Careline can be reached 24 hours a day at 3273.

Parking at CDC

I'm calling about a traffic problem being caused by people parking illegally near the Child Development Center.

The problem is the result of people parking in the designated no-parking area beside the center. I notified the center director about the problem, who in turn called the 64th Security Police Squadron, but I don't know that anything was done about it. I think the SPs should issue tickets to people who park there illegally.

The center staff continually reminds patrons not to park in the no-parking area. The area was designated as no parking and the "No Parking" sign was put up to prevent accidents and provide more convenient parking for parents.

The center staff and the SPs will keep a closer eye on the area in the future. Thanks for your concern.

Missing lights in housing

There's a problem in Reese Village with people stealing light bulbs out of carports. Last night, I noticed one of the bulbs in my carport had a crack; when I went to check it later, it was gone.

I talked with someone from the 64th Security Police Squadron, who said they would patrol the area more heavily, but I was wondering if they bulbs could be installed in a way that would make them harder to steal.

As was mentioned during the recent "town meeting" on base, both SPS and the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron are working to correct this problem.

CES is making plans for improved lighting, while the SPs are increasing their patrols. A large supply of bulbs are on order to replace those missing/broken, and repair of faulty outlets are also in the works.

Big house for small family?

I recently found out that there are Reese Village residents living in three- and four-bedroom units even though they have no children.

There are other people who could really use the space.

You're right. Some three-bedroom homes are occupied by wing members without children. There are certain circumstances under which this may happen.

For instance, Air Force Regulation 90-1 allows senior noncommissioned officers to live in a three-bedroom home. Also, sometimes the waiting list for a certain size house (i.e., three bedroom) is exhausted. When this happens, a three-bedroom home may be offered to someone on a waiting list for a smaller home.

Attention readers!

While the Careline recorder is out of service, potential submitters are urged to bring their Carelines in writing to the Reese Public Affairs Division, Bldg. 800, second floor.

Respect

and how to properly display it during retreat/reveille

by SMSgt. J.T. Washington
Reese PME Center commandant

It's that time of year again.

Beginning the fourth Wednesday of April, we will hold our first formal retreat ceremony of the year.

I believe this is a perfect time to discuss the proper way to show respect to the U.S. flag. A couple of noncommissioned officers have pointed out that people are not showing proper respect when the flag is raised in the morning or lowered in the afternoon. "It's as if they don't know what to do," they said.

Here is how the Air Force says people should pay respect to the flag:

□ Reveille — when reveille sounds, stop and face the flag (if visible). If not visible, face in the direction of the music. Assume parade rest and wait until the first note of "The National Anthem" or "To the Colors" is played.

If in uniform, render the hand salute and hold it until the last note of the music. If in civilian clothing, place the right hand over the heart (a man wearing a hat should hold the hat over his left shoulder, with his hand over his heart) until the last note of the music.

□ Retreat — on the first note of "Call to Colors" (retreat music), do the same as with reveille. If the flag is not visible, drop the salute (military and civilian) on the last note of the music. If the flag is visible, hold the salute (military and civilian) until the last note of the music or until the flag is secured; whichever comes last.

□ Automobiles — If driving, stop and sit at attention until the last note of the music.

It is important that officers and NCOs set the right example. Too often, officers and NCOs who should know what to do are the worst offenders. Each member should be proud to stand a few minutes and show respect to the "Stars and Stripes," the symbol of freedom.

The next time someone stands in the doorway waiting for reveille or retreat to end, ask them to step outside and show the proper respect.

There's nothing wrong with walking outside during reveille or retreat to render proper respect.

People also ask, "What should I do if I'm in base housing or playing sports?"

The answer is simple — stop and pay the proper respect. If those who live in base housing would take the time to stop, then children will learn to be proud of their heritage and their symbol of freedom.

I recently spoke to nearly 200 kindergarten through sixth grade students at Martin Elementary School regarding the flag and why it deserves proper respect. Their faces said it all — we need to spend as much time as possible educating America's youth on the importance of their flag, and what it symbolizes.

So, the next time the music sounds for reveille or retreat, don't worry about what others do or say. Take the time to show respect and gratitude to the flag.

Every ceremony conducted at Reese, whether it's NCO status ceremonies or undergraduate pilot training or professional military education graduations, always begins with either posting the colors, playing "The National Anthem" or both. The flag symbolizes freedom.

Anyone with questions concerning proper respect for the flag or participating in local ceremonies, should call 6341/3147.

SIMULATOR INSTRUCTORS/ MANAGERS

Link Training Services Division is a leader in providing contract aviation aircrew training to the U.S. military. In anticipation of providing simulator training for the U.S. Air Force UPT program at Reese AFB, we are seeking additional instructors and managers. Responsible for providing simulator training to USAF T-37/T-38 UPT students, successful instructor candidates will have a minimum of 1000 total hours in U.S. military jets/turboprops including 200 hours as an instructor, current within the last six years. Graduation from ATC's PIT course and previous simulator instructor experience are both highly desired. Manager candidates will have USAF flying training management experience. Prior ATC command experience is highly desired.

Candidates meeting the above qualifications may arrange a local interview by calling Michelle LaFountain at (806)745-1963 on Monday morning March 26 ONLY.

If unable to call, send resume with cover letter and salary requirements to: Patrick A. Milliken, Employment Administrator, Link Training Services Division, Dept. CS1325R, P.O. Box 619490, D/FW Airport, TX 75261-9490.

Senior members discuss problems with new system

One of the biggest problems with the nearly year-old Enlisted Evaluation System is telling a greater percentage of people that there is room for improvement when critiquing their performance, the Air Force's senior enlisted leader said.

Working with the newly established enlisted performance report ratings expectations chart is also raising questions and prompting rumors and myths from evaluators and endorsers as well.

"We find ourselves in a very uncomfortable position of now having to tell people face-to-face that they're not perfect," Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force James C. Binnicker said March 9.

For 21 years, since airman performance reports were conceived, the chief said, 98 percent of the enlisted force have been told they were operating at peak performance, with very little or no room to better themselves.

"Now we have to go through a very painful process of re-educating, of reorienting ourselves to telling people to their face that maybe they're not exceptional, maybe they're plain ol' excellent," he said.

Chief Binnicker said he believes the situation will appear awkward until people become accustomed to seeing evaluations that are not all the way to the right in each block.

The EES took effect Air Forcewide in May as a replacement for the APRs that had been used to rate enlisted people since 1968. But during its lifespan, the APR slowly lost its positive influence because of inflated ratings and endorsements. As a result, differentiation between superior, excellent and satisfactory performers was seriously limited.

"The problems associated with implementing the new system are a lot less than the problems that would have occurred if nothing was done," said CMSgt. Coy Martin, 64th Flying Training Wing senior enlisted advisor.

"That's because doing nothing at all would have said our rating system had no integrity, no credibility. We couldn't make a decision to call it like it is and still give everyone a nine APR," Chief Martin said.

In a December policy letter to all EES senior raters, Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Larry Welch outlined the EPR rating expectations chart, designed to be a guide for how many people should be rated in the top three EPR blocks.

Under the chart, technical sergeants for example should ideally fall into the following rating scheme:

- 55 percent rated as fives.
- 35 percent rated as fours.

□ 5 percent rated as threes.

The remaining 5 percent is a reserve for those E-6s that fall into the lowest two rating blocks.

Chief Binnicker said this chart has been met with much apprehension in that raters and endorsers are interpreting the expectations chart as a quota system and if they stray from the numbers, they'll "bust the chart."

"We (now) find ourselves in a very uncomfortable position of having to tell people face-to-face that they're not perfect."

-- CMSAF James C. Binnicker

The chart is not a hard and fast rule that each unit must give 55 percent of its technical sergeants a rating of five, Chief Binnicker said. Because organizations are different, some will have a higher overall percentage of fives, especially in those organizations where only the best airmen are hand-picked for duty.

But even in these "hand-picked" units, the actual level of performance is the driving factor — not the fact that it is selectively manned.

"If you can justify (a five) based on performance of the individual, then you are duty bound to give them that report card, rated that way," Chief Binnicker said.

"I have no problems with a shop or an office having three tech sergeants and all three of them rated fives. I have a problem if you can't justify it," he added.

The chief and other officials who have worked on designing and implementing the system think it is ludicrous for units to preordain ratings on people who haven't performed yet.

People in this mindset view the expectations chart as hard numbers from which there are no deviations. The chief said some raters tackling the EES truly believe that once they have used that 55 percent, that's it.

"I wouldn't want to work in that outfit. I want you to give me a rating based on my performance — demonstrated performance which comes after the reporting period is over," he said. (Adapted from Air Force News Service)

Hearing loss - are you in tune?

by MSgt. Roland C. Luster
Bitburg AB, Germany

(Editor's note: The cover letter accompanying this article is almost as important as the story. It stated in part, "I am an Air Force master sergeant with 20 years' service. For 12 of those years I was a combat controller and enjoyed the job very much. Then, during an annual flight physical, a hearing loss was discovered which resulted in my grounding and retraining into another career field. Overnight, I was required to make major changes and adjustments in my life. I hope this article will help prevent someone else from suffering a hearing loss and going through what I did.")

Each year a number of Air Force members experience some form of hearing loss. When it occurs, it's usually gradual and invariably becomes worse with time. Unfortunately, the person normally recognizes the lost hearing too late to recover.

Are the members affected just those on the flight line? Hardly! Sure, if you asked the question, most would probably reply, "It's just an occupational hazard caused from working around aircraft and other noisy areas."

I find that answer hard to accept.

One of the common fallacies is most people feel hearing loss occurs only at work. Therefore, they are more conscientious about wearing hearing protectors during duty hours and often forget about noise levels while off-duty. For some reason, they have the attitude that once they leave work, the noise levels are automatically reduced.

Nothing could be further from the truth! Harmful noise levels that are causing a lot of hearing problems are the result of off-duty activities such as entertainment and outside recreation. See if you fit into the following examples:

□ You get off work and go to the barracks to unwind. You grab a soft drink and turn on your 150-watt stereo. Being a considerate person, you slip on the earphones (so you won't disturb other people) and crank up the volume.

□ You and your friends decide to relax by going to the local discotheque. The music is so loud you have to shout to be heard. When you order, you have to speak directly into the ear of the waitress. You don't think anything is out of the ordinary because that's the way discotheques are.

□ Oftentimes when you go on trips by train, bus or plane, you don't want to be disturbed by normal conversation or babies crying so you slip on the earphones of your walkman, turn up the volume and "chill out."

Does the shoe fit? If so, you're doing damage to your hearing capabilities. And what's worse, as your hearing senses become more impaired, you turn up the volume even more to hear the sound. And, as you turn it higher your hearing senses become even more impaired. Turning up the volume of the suitable noise will invariably cause you to become deaf — and hearing can never be "turned on" again.

Smoke Education has changed attitudes towards tobacco

Are you sick and tired of anti-smoking newspaper articles and television ads? Have you noticed changes in the smoking rules on airlines and smoking areas in restaurants and public buildings?

These changes have come about partly because we know more about smoking now than we did 30 - 40 years ago. Back then, only about half of us believed that cigarette smoking was a cause of lung cancer or that it increased our risk of heart disease.

Today, closer to 90 percent of us believe this is true. According to a 1989 report from the surgeon general, smoking is responsible for more than one in every six deaths in the United States. Smoking remains the single most important preventable cause of death in our society.

Over the years, we've learned more and more about the addictive quality of nicotine and the behavioral and emotional characteristics associated with any use of nicotine. More is known about the withdrawal symptoms associated with stopping nicotine use and many of us who have quit want to help others to quit (or never start).

Statistics indicate 80 percent of smokers say they would like to quit. Reasons listed often include cost, health, children and encounters with cancer victims.

The Smoking/Tobacco Cessation Program at Reese wants to serve you. We have a variety of pamphlets and quit tips for you. You may come in (or call) and speak to someone individually about your tobacco use.

What has been most successful is our smoking/tobacco cessation group which offers education, quit tips, support and monitoring of your program. In this group, we examine the addiction to nicotine and the psychosocial and behavioral aspects of tobacco use.

If you would like more information or would like to sign up for a smoking/tobacco cessation program stop by Bldg. 75 or call 3739.

CBPO member captures ATC award

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

A member of the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office recently captured honors as Air Training Command's base-level personnel specialist for 1989. Judy Grimm, officer evaluation/enlisted performance reports unit supervisor, has distinguished Reese as "No. 1" in the command OPR/EPR system, according to Maj. Sherill Donaldson, 64th Mission Support Squadron commander. "Reese is the only base in ATC to meet the report goal every month, and because of this, Judy has been recognized for the base's success," said the major.

This led to ATC selecting Mrs. Grimm as the evaluations expert for a temporary-duty assignment to Williams AFB, Ariz. Her assistance there, as stated in Williams unit effectiveness inspection report, prevented Williams' OPR/EPR Section from receiving a low rating.

During the Air Force's overhaul of the reports system, Mrs. Grimm provided the updated information to all base organizations. She attended the ATC conference dealing with the new Enlisted Evaluation System. Upon return, she gave briefings to requesting organizations and developed an EES handout for wing members.

"When asked about a change, if Judy didn't have the answer she'd research it and get back to that individual with the information requested," Major Donaldson said.

"Judy has developed a strong rapport among all the other organizations on base," said the major. "She is a professional in conduct and tact."

Mrs. Grimm also received Sustained Superior Performance and Notable Achievement Awards in 1989.

AFAF: Members still giving as campaign nears its end

by 1st Lt. Xavier Villareal
Reese AFAF project officer

The Reese community has given $24,032 to the 1990 Air Force Assistance Fund Campaign, which is 135 percent of the local goal.

As the campaign winds down, everyone should have been contacted and should be making their final decisions on contributions. Anyone not contacted should call their squadron representative by March 30 for the information necessary to make a decision.

The Air Force Indigent Widows' Fund, a beneficiary of AFAF, provides support for the Air Force Village located in San Antonio. The village was started because of the concern for the welfare and happiness of older members of the Air Force retired officer community.

Approximately 10 percent of the apartments are occupied by widows whose husbands died before the passage of the Survival Benefit Plan and require financial assistance.

The village provides services for dependent parents of active-duty Air Force officers. Often, officers with dependent parents to care for are faced with difficult emotional problems when they receive departure orders. The village provides the parents with a comfortable, secure lifestyle so the family does not have to worry.

The village also provides nursing care for dependent parents and spouses as needed. Additionally, emergency services are provided to spouses and children of active-duty officers when needed.

This retirement community is for retired officers, spouses, widows and family members. It also provides, as mentioned, residency for dependent parents of active-duty officers when a move can cause emotional and care problems.

policies and career implications," said Major Donaldson. This helps students to be better prepared when they arrive for class and enables them to focus more on the academics.

Sergeant Montague has placed a lot of emphasis on instituting fundraisers for leadership school classes to help cut the cost of the graduation and banquet ceremonies. "She has also helped to build a bond between class and base members through volleyball competitions against senior leaders," added the major.

When the center received notification from ATC that it was to become a regional center, Sergeant Montague accepted the responsibility of organizing the center's new location and move.

The sergeant was also selected for a temporary-duty assignment to Lackland AFB, Texas, where she assisted with the review and rewrite of ATC's new leadership school curriculum.

Reese first in command to activate new training program

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

A new branch has developed on the Reese tree.

The Reese Consolidated Training Office, which has been operating as a Headquarters Air Training Command/Air Force test program since October 1987, began operations as an official division of the 64th Mission Support Squadron in February.

Although Reese's test program is not the first in the Air Force, it's the first in ATC and shares honors in receiving the Air Force's official stamp of approval with only one other base Air Forcewide, said SMSgt. Marvin Brewer, Reese CTO manger.

Traditionally, a base on-the-job training office was run out of CBPO with individual unit training managers located in base organizations.

Some of the larger squadrons had their own training system specialists, while many other squadrons appointed members to be OJT managers, in addition to their primary duties.

"It was discovered, during an enlisted training program inspection conducted in 1980-81 that many people were not being properly trained for the duty," stated Sergeant Brewer. "It left was up to the manger to receive training and handle training requirements fort the squadron."

When the test program began, the full-time training systems specialists assigned to individual squadrons along with the personnel assigned to the base OJT office were combined to form one unit — the CTO. Training system specialists were then provided to support to all ATC squadrons at Reese (this excludes the 1958th Communications Squadron and Detachment 11, 24th Weather Squadron, which are managed by other commands), thus releasing the additional-duty managers back to their primary duties.

Through the CTO Training Program, the full-time specialists are trained and managed by the CTO to provide professional guidance and assistance to the units.

As it works now, when new members arrive at Reese, they are in-processed and career development courses are ordered through the CTO office, according to Sergeant Brewer. The specialist then in-briefs the trainee, follows up on the CDCs and orders the end-of-course test. The CTO then gives the test, awaits the results and performs any necessary follow-up actions, such as issuing completion certificates or recommending counseling for a failure. Throughout the process, the training specialist stays in close contact with the supervisor(s) and squadron commander, keeping them abreast of their training programs.

"Within time, everything from initial in-processing to issuing the final results will be done by CTO training specialists," said Sergeant Brewer.

Another benefit of the CTO, said Sergeant Brewer, is that if a specialist goes on a temporary-duty assignment or takes leave, another specialist will take over.

"This will keep that unit's program from going stagnant during the absence," he added.

Overall, having a CTO allows better training of the training specialists and a greater cross flow of information. The end result is that now all of Reese's ATC squadrons will receive more attention and better training, thus enhancing their ability to do their job across the board, Sergeant Brewer said.

"While two other ATC bases have begun researching the implementation, they along with other bases throughout the Air Force have been seeking information and assistance from Reese CTO members," said Sergeant Brewer.

Maj. Sherrill Donaldson, MSS commander, said "The results speak for themselves — there wasn't one training write-up in the last ATC inspection, or in the last USAF Hospital Reese or Reese Commissary inspections. In fact, the CTO was cited in several reports for providing outstanding support and training, leading to good overall ratings."

Enlisted promotions undergoing changes

The Air Force Enlisted Promotion Program is undergoing three changes beginning this year.

□ The first of the changes involves enlisted performance report time weighting. The weighted airman promotion system computation formula for the EPR score component will be changed to give more weight to recent EPRs. The overall WAPS point total for EPRs will remain at 135.

Target date for implementation is April 1. The first selection cycles to be affected by the WAPS change will be 91A6/7 selections to technical and master sergeants in May/June 1990.

□ Promotion Advantage Through Superior Performance, or "PATS," is the second area to be affected by the changes. PATS is a competitive process that allows senior raters to identify their top performers and communicate this designation directly to the senior master sergeant and chief master sergeant evaluation boards.

A minimum ratee group of two or more eligibles will be required before a rater can award a PATS. Procedures will be developed for those senior raters having only one eligible for a particular promotion cycle to ensure all eligibles have a fair chance for a PATS. Senior raters who have 2-20 eligibles may award 1 PAT; those with 21-40 eligibles may award two PATS; 41-60 eligibles allows the rater three PATS.

Implementation is Aug. 1. The first senior noncommissioned evaluation boards to be affected will be the October 1990 chief master sergeant and February 1991 senior master sergeant boards.

□ The last area to be changed involves the 10-year "look back." Senior NCO evaluation boards will be limited to a 10-year period of EPRs they can review on prospective promotees.

The target date for implementation is Aug. 1. The first senior NCO evaluation boards to be affected will be the October 1990 chief master sergeant and February 1991 senior master sergeant boards.

For more information, contact the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office Customer Service Section at 3276.

Census

Review includes overseas members

Responding to Congressional concerns, the Department of Commerce has directed the Census Bureau to include overseas military members, Department of Defense civilian employees and family members in the 1990 census.

DOD estimates that overseas military and civilian employees as well as their families will add between 1.2 and 1.6 million people to the total count.

Only once before, in 1970, have U.S. military people overseas been included in the census that takes place each decade.

Military people assigned to stateside installations will be counted within their workplaces; however, those who live in off-base housing may receive a duplicate questionnaire at their homes. Census officials said these people may fill out the duplicate form, but the Census Bureau will crosscheck the information to ensure the data is only entered once.

Stateside members who live in on-base housing will receive the questionnaire only in their duty section.

Counting military people overseas will provide census officials with more accurate information in these areas and detailed comparisons between military and civilian families on many demographic, socioeconomic and housing characteristics.

The Census Bureau, in cooperation with government agencies, will obtain the overseas information from administrative records.

Other information that will be furnished through the census data will include the actual number of family members overseas, household structures, family characteristics and a more accurate comparison between military and civilian compensation.

Also being included in the 1990 Census will be members of the Armed Forces who live in barracks overseas.

The purpose of the census is to determine Congressional representation as well as the allocation of billions of dollars in federal, state and local funds for health, welfare, housing and education programs.

Information gathered in the 1990 census will be used to determine population shifts, aging of the population, growth of minority communities, economic status of the elderly, commutes to workplaces, and homeownership pertaining to the rising values of homes and changing financial arrangements. (Air Force News Service)

Local news

Mandatory briefing set

Briefings on the Enlisted Evaluation System and on changes to the Enlisted Promotion Program will be held Thursday and March 30 in the Simler Theater.

Attendance at one of the briefings is mandatory for all enlisted members, as well as for all officers/civilians who rate enlisted members.

The briefings, which will be conducted by a team from Air Training Command headquarters, are set for 10 a.m., 1 and 3 p.m. Thursday; and 7:30 a.m. March 30.

Water outages planned

Water outages will take place from 8 a.m. to about 10:30 a.m. Tuesday in Reese Village in conjunction with digging scheduled on Arnold Drive.

The following areas will be affected:

- Reese Elementary School.
 - The 100 blocks of War Highway, George Street, Wagner Street and Arnold Drive.
 - Mitchell Boulevard: 200-214 (even numbers only).
 - Arnold Drive: 200-226 (even numbers only).
- Also, fire hydrants two and three will be out of service.
- The next round of outages are set for April 2-3; exact locations are yet to be determined.
- For details, call 3589.

Correction

In the March 23 issue of the Roundup, 2nd Lt. Timothy Burns was identified as the winner of the Commander's Trophy and the Flying Training and Academic Awards for Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 90-06. In actuality, those awards were won by 2nd Lt. Andrew Eiler Jr.

Also, 2nd Lt. Mark Mitchell was a distinguished graduate of the class, not 2nd Lt. Sean Kerrick as stated.

AFSA officers inducted

New officers of Air Force Sergeants Association Chapter 1068 were sworn in March 22 in the Reese Enlisted Open Mess.

The new officers, who were sworn in by Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr., 64th Flying Training Wing commander, are:

- President — CMSgt. Steve Greenwell.
 - Vice president — SMSgt. Mac Jeffries.
 - Secretary/treasurer — CMSgt. Clarence Wilchenski (Chief Wilchenski is also the chapter's senior advisor).
 - Trustees — Retired CMSgt. Bob Parker, MSgt. Mike Braskett, MSgt. Willie B. Davis, MSgt. Pat Kreppe and A1C Gary Dancy
- A chapter general membership meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. April 5 in the EOM. All current and potential members are welcome. Call Sergeant Jeffries or Sergeant Davis at 3905/3674 for reservations.

Reese Beach gets upgrade

Contract workers from the Daniel Ortega Construction Co. have been upgrading the Reese Beach in preparation for its May 26 opening. Improvements include a new surface around the pool, which won't get as hot during the summer; new ladders; two new slides; and a new diving board. Pool memberships go on sale May 1 at the Reese Physical Fitness Center.

Education can make difference

Park College offers degree opportunities for wing members

By Jeffrey Z. Wilbur
Reese education services officer

Education can make the difference in your military career. With five different educational institutions represented on Reese through the Education Center, you owe it to yourself to take advantage of the programs available.

The Park College program is uniquely tailored to service the adult student.

At Reese, Park offers five accelerated eight-week terms. Each class is worth three semester hours. It is possible for a student to earn as many as 45 semester credit hours per year.

Since Park offers college credits for military service, service schools, College Level Examination Program exams, prior education and Community College of the Air Force courses, you may be closer to a degree than you think. Currently, Park College offers associate of science degrees in management and social psychology.

Bachelor of science degrees are available in management, management/human resources, and social psychology.

Park College is now open to the general public. If you are interested in continuing your education or just want to take a college course, please feel free to call or stop by the education center. Payment can be made by check, money order or credit card.

Registration for the Spring II term (Saturday to May 18) is now in progress and runs through today. Add/drop week is Monday to March 30.

All Park classes are held at the education center, Bldg. 920. For more information or to register, stop by our office or call 6318.

Reese racquetball open set

A racquetball open will be held March 31 and April 1 at the Reese Physical Fitness Center. The tournament is open to all active-duty military members, retirees and civilians.

Categories include: beginner men, intermediate and advanced men and all women. Entry fee is $3 and may be submitted to the center during normal operating hours.

This is a double-elimination tournament in all categories and trophies will be awarded to the top three winners in each category.

Registration ends Thursday. For more information, call 6020.

Kids rock and bowl set

The Reese Windmill Lanes is holding a kids "Rock and Bowl" at 2 p.m. Saturday. Cost is $2.50 per person.

Little league work days set

Two mandatory work days for managers and coaches are set for 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. March 31 and April 21 at the Reese little league field.

For more information, call the Reese Youth Center at 3820 or Jimmy Henry at 866-4323.

Members sought for ATC team

A military racquetball tournament to determine Reese's team in the command competition will be held April 7-8 at the Reese Physical Fitness Center.

This is a double-elimination tournament open to all active-duty members. Winners will then represent Reese in Air Training Command's Tournament to be held April 21-25 at Sheppard AFB, Texas.

Categories include: men's open, men's senior (ages 35-39), men's master (ages 40 and above), women's open and women's senior (ages 30 and above). Two men and one woman from each category will be selected.

For more information, call 6020.

Golf course hours increase

The High Plains Golf Course will now be open from noon to dusk Mondays.

The course is also open from 8 a.m. to dusk Tuesdays through Sundays.

Also, the course now has a ball dispenser outside the club house cart shack. Golfers can now purchase tokens for balls in the pro shop; cost is $1 per bucket.

For details, call 3819.

Former spouses benefits expanded

Congress has extended Civilian Health and Medical Plan of the Uniformed Services eligibility for some former military spouses whose marriages ended in divorce on or after Sept. 29, 1988.

Former husbands and wives of active or retired military who are eligible for CHAMPUS, must have been married for at least 20 years to the military member or former member. The service member must also have completed at least 20 years of creditable service for retirement purposes at the time the divorce or annulment took place.

The former spouse also must not have remarried or be covered by an employer-sponsored health plan.

More information on the former spouse medical benefits can be obtained from the Reese Health benefits Office at 3581. (Air Force News Service)

VA Interest rates raised

The Department of Veterans Affairs has raised its maximum home loan interest rate from 9.5 percent to 10 percent.

The higher rate is a response to current financial market demands for higher yields on long-term investments.

The VA also increased by .05 percent the maximum rates for: graduated payment mortgages (to 10.25 percent), home improvement loans (to 11.5 percent), manufactured home loans (to 12.5 percent), manufactured home lot-only loans (to 12 percent), and manufactured home and lot loans (to 12 percent).

The last change to the VA interest rate was July 17, when it dropped from 10 percent to 9.5 percent.

VA home loans can be used to buy, improve or refinance a house or condominium, and to buy or refinance a manufactured home. (Air Force News Service)
