FREEZE

DOD trims civilian work force

A civilian hiring freeze for the rest of fiscal 1990 has been announced by the Department of Defense in order to reduce the size of the civilian work force.

Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney imposed the hiring freeze on all the services Jan 11. He also asked that a long-term plan for necessary reductions to the DOD work force be prepared by April 11.

The hiring freeze applies "to all civilian positions in DOD, including non-appropriated fund positions and foreign national positions. It prohibits the filling of vacant positions from any source, either internal or external to the department," said Christopher Jehn, assistant secretary of defense for force management and personnel, in a Jan. 22 memorandum to the service secretaries.

The freeze significantly limits the placement of civilians in Air Force positions, according to Air Force civilian personnel officials.

In an Air Force message outlining the announcement by Secretary Cheney, civilian personnel officials said the action is being described as a "position freeze."

The message said the position freeze prohibits the movement of any employee into any other Air Force vacancy unless specifically exempted in the Defense Department guidance.

Aside from putting a clamp on the hiring of civilians, the additional guidance said the position freeze means "employees cannot be placed into any vacant position. This includes transfers, merit and temporary promotions, whether internal or external, and reassignments into vacant positions."

If a position has been exempted, spouses may compete for that vacant position under spousal preference placement directives.

Secretary Cheney said that as the Armed Forces become smaller through limited budgets, a changing world situation and future negotiated agreements, "the department must make corresponding reductions in the size of the civilian work force that supports the Armed Forces."

"The purpose of the freeze is to begin to reduce the department's civilian work force and to enable us to better manage reductions in fiscal 1991 and later," Mr. Jehn said.

Situations exempt from the freeze are:

□ Hiring commitments made before the freeze may be honored.

The dorms, they are a-changin'

Dormitories go to single occupancy as result of conversion

The dorms, they are a-changin'.

Spurred by the ongoing maintenance conversion at Reese and the desire to give occupants their own rooms, the 200 or so people in the base's three enlisted dormitories are undergoing a series of occupancy changes which are expected to last until April.

One of the most significant changes is the move to single-occupancy rooms, according to MSgt. David Forsyzewski, Reese central dormitory manager.

"As the maintainers leave Reese, people will be moved into the vacated rooms," he said. "This will make it possible for everyone in the dorms to get their own room." He added that single occupancy is the Air Training Command standard.

People who have to move won't have to worry about the expense of transferring phone and cable television service.

According to Sergeant Forsyzewski, people will be able to get reimbursement paperwork from their dorm managers after they move.

The dormitories will now be run under a centralized dorm management concept, with host units in each building supplying a liaison, or dorm manager.

This means that the central dorm management section in the 64th Services Squadron will work closely with dormitory managers to ensure that functions such as furnishings management and linen exchange run smoothly, the sergeant said.

Once the moves are complete, the dormitories will be occupied by the following units (host units are in bold face):

□ Bldg. 220 — USAF Hospital Reese,

64th Mission Support Squadron, 64th SVS and Detachment 11, 24th Weather Squadron.

□ Bldg. 320 — 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 41st Flying Training Squadron and 1958th Communications Squadron.

□ Bldg. 420 — 64th Supply Squadron and 64th Security Police Squadron.

The Reese Noncommissioned Officers Professional Military Education Center will not be taking space in any of these three dormitories, contrary to previous plans, so that all permanent party members can have their own room.

Commander's perspective

By Col. Monroe S. Sams Jr.
64th FTW commander

Private Peter Foster was still a slave when he enlisted in the Connecticut Regiment and helped a rag-tag militia earn freedom for a nation.

Private Foster was one of approximately 5,000 black soldiers who fought for liberty in the Revolutionary War. Some such as Foster were eventually rewarded with their own freedom; many were not. They became the forgotten heroes.

That's why we at Reese and throughout the Department of Defense observe February as Black History Month.

Throughout the month, Reese will host a variety of special events designed to help people learn more about the role black Americans have played and continue to play in making the United States strong and free.

And just as it is important that we remember and recognize those who have helped us obtain the freedoms we enjoy today, we should also recognize those who help us to remember.

First Lt. Sandra King, 1958th Communications Squadron, is the wing project officer for Black History Month. Lieutenant King and her staff of volunteers have done a great job in putting together a schedule of events which will educate and entertain. I urge everyone to attend as many of these activities as possible.

Black History Month events include soul food luncheons, a fashion show, a gospel jubilee, athletic competition and a special banquet featuring Lubbock author Katie M. Parks. Details on each of these events is provided on page 4.

I want to extend my personal thanks to all of those who have helped put together this impressive program. A special tip of the hat goes to the following Black History Month committee chairpersons: SSgt. Derald Jones, 64th Mission Support Squadron (assistant project officer), Ruby Thomas, MSS; Sgt. Cintron Friday, MSS; Towndra Harrison; 64th Supply Squadron; Gladys Tharrington, MSS; SSgt. Michael Hull, 54th Flying Training Squadron; SSgt. Aliane Glenn, MSS; Sgt. Derrick Mosley, USAF Hospital

Reese; and Sgt. Victor Fulton, 1958th Communications Squadron.

And while handing out kudos, there are a few more Reese people who have earned special recognition. These include:

□ Capt. Christopher Cook, 41st Flying Training Squadron, and CMSgt. Arthur Lowrey, 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron, winners of the 1989 Air Training Command Lt. Gen. Leo Marquez Award for outstanding aircraft maintenance personnel. Captain Cook, who was assigned to the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron during the award period, was named the command's best company grade manager while Chief Lowrey was selected as the top supervisor-manager.

□ Jake Trevino and SSgt. Gary Grant, Physical Fitness Center; Dick Davis, High Plains Golf Course; Janet Duke, Windmill Lanes Bowling Center; Keith White, Mathis Recreation Center, Cindy Mitchel, Reese Arts and Crafts Center, and all their staffs coordinated Reese's winning performance in competition for the ATC Sports and Recreation Commander's Trophy (small base category). Participation was the major factor in our winning this award. I appreciate all of those unit commanders and co-workers who took up the slack so that others could represent the wing. For more on the award, see page 14.

□ Glenda Ward, COMM, enjoyed a big week, receiving notice that she had won three major awards. She was first named the Air Training Communications Division Information Manager of the Year for Staff Support (junior civilian category) and the ATCD Civilian of the Year. Mrs. Ward was also named the Air Force Communications Command Information Manager of the Year in the same category. Also honored was MSgt. Harry Runyon, COMM, the ATCD Information Manager of the Year for Staff Support (senior enlisted category).

□ MSgt. Robert P. Heckerman has been named the ATC Outstanding Security Police Individual Mobilization Augmentee (enlisted category).

□ And, finally, MSgt. David Russell and Rocky Shaw, 64th Services Squadron, operated the 1989 ATC Furnishing Management Office of the Year.

Blood Program assures security, economy

(Editor's note: A blood drive will be held from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Thursday in the Mathis Recreation Center.)

"Until the Korean War, the American Red Cross collected blood and provided it to the military, which distributed the blood in support of contingency operations," said Army Col. Anthony Polk. He heads the Armed Services Blood Program Office, the organization responsible for coordinating blood programs for the services.

By the end of the Korean War, planners decided that the military needed its own blood program.

"The two main reasons for this are national security and cost effectiveness," said Colonel Polk.

From a national security standpoint, he noted, "How much blood a nation's military collects and stockpiles could be intelligence data. If we were to call a civilian blood agency and say we need 30,000 units of blood shipped to location X and we want it kept secret, chances are pretty good that our request would be in the civilian press the next day.

"By controlling our own blood program, we can keep blood collections and shipments secret when necessary. The military blood program needs to be part of the classified planning process," and it is, the colonel said.

Cost effectiveness is another reason for the military blood program. "Civilian blood agencies have higher administrative overhead because they use more highly paid technicians than the military. They pass that along to us when we purchase their blood. The cost varies around the country, but can be as high as $125 per unit," according to Colonel Polk.

A third reason the military has its own blood program is because the military employs its donors. "It is a little easier to get them to donate," said Colonel Polk.

"When military people give blood to the Armed Services Blood Program, they are giving to themselves. During the Vietnam War, our slogan was 'The pint you give is the pint you may get.' Now our motto is, 'Our supply is your supply.' About 99 percent of the blood collected on military installations by Armed Services Blood Program elements is used within the military system." (American Forces Information Service)

Helping hands

My family's Christmas almost went up in flames when my home caught fire shortly before the holidays. What the fire didn't destroy, the smoke and water damaged.

We were blessed, actually — no one in my family was hurt, and the damage wasn't as bad as it might have been had God not awakened me when he did.

Although this was a traumatic and depressing experience, our grief and despair were eased by the people who helped us remember what Christmas is all about. So many wing members had kind words and donations for us that we couldn't help but marvel at the goodness of mankind.

God bless all the people who helped us — please accept a heartfelt thanks from my family and me for all the help you so freely gave during our time of need.

Pat Coggins

In all my years in the Air Force, it has never ceased to amaze me how quickly and unselfishly blue-suiters will come to the aid of their fellow man in a time of need. My sincere thanks to everyone who helped get the Coggins family back on their feet.

PME center's mission expands

by SMSgt. J. T. Washington
Reese PME Center commandant

Professional Military Education is moving forward. Even with all the changes throughout the Department of Defense, noncommissioned officer PME is still alive and well within the Air Force.

Our own PME Center is vastly different from a year ago. It's grown from a staff of three to one of five.

Additionally, all the instructors are "new" — TSgt. Derald Jones is now our director of education; SSgt. Karen Montague is the senior instructor and the course manager for the NCO Leadership School; SSgt. Paula Jenkins is the course manager for the NCO Preparatory School; and SSgt. Cintron Friday runs our administration section.

Our location has changed also — from Bldg. 920 to Bldg. 420 (previously the Thrift Shop).

Perhaps, though, the most significant change is that the center has been chosen to become a regional PME center beginning Oct. 1!

Now what does all this mean? It means that Reese will train NCOs from throughout the Air Force — and approximately 70 percent of our students will be in a temporary duty status. I'll be attending an Air Force quota-sharing conference in the near future to determine how many slots we'll get for Reese personnel and how many will be allocated to others.

We've already increased the number of NCOLS classes we teach annually from four to six. Conversely, the number of NCOPC classes will decrease from nine to four beginning either Oct. 1 or whenever we complete the maintenance conversion.

Along with the increase in NCOLS classes has come an increase in our class size — hence the change of location.

However, our new facility needs a "facelift" — the plans are already approved with work starting in the next few months. While the renovation process is in progress, we will hold classes in a yet-to-be-determined location.

Finally, we originally discussed having all NCOLS students live in a single dormitory. But, because the base wanted to provide a single room for dormitory residents, it was decided not to do that.

PME will continue to grow, and we must grow with it. So, if you are interested in what we do and how we do it, don't hesitate to contact any member of the PME staff — they will be more than happy to discuss their job with you.

Forty years of progress raises dental health

by Capt. (Dr.) Michael Najera
Reese Dental Clinic

(Editor's note: February is Children's Dental Health Month.)

Over forty years of progress in dentistry has resulted in dramatic improvements in the oral health of Americans and enormous savings on dental health care costs. Scientific breakthroughs, improved dental equipment and techniques, and increased consumer information efforts are responsible for these benefits. Some of the major innovations which have marked the past four decades and some directions for the future are:

□ Fluoride is considered to be the single most effective weapon against tooth decay. In 1948, the mineral was proved to prevent cavities by strengthening tooth enamel. Now it is available in toothpastes, mouth rinses, tablets and fluoridated water supplies. Today, about 60 percent of Americans drink fluoridated water and half of school-age children have never had a cavity. Currently, scientists are researching a time-release fluoride pellet which would bond to a tooth and allow continuous absorption of fluoride over a six month period.

□ Plaque removal became paramount in the 1960s, when researchers isolated the bacteria in plaque as the cause of tooth decay and gum diseases. Preventive techniques include physical removal of plaque by brushing and flossing and use of chemical anti-plaque toothpastes and mouth rinses to control infections. Today, dentists are also using antibiotics to treat some forms of gum disease and dental scientists are seeking a vaccine to prevent tooth decay — similar to vaccines against measles, mumps and polio.

□ Sealants are additional preventive measures that were created in the early 1970s and are strongly recommended by the American Dental Association. Sealants are plastic coatings applied to the tooth's chewing surfaces to fill microscopic pits and fissures in children's developing permanent molars. Recently, sealants have been combined with time-release fluoride to strengthen tooth enamel and remineralize areas which show early signs of decay.

□ High speed drills have been important innovations in dentistry. When coupled with fast-acting anesthetics, they remove the pain (and accompanying fear) of a trip to the dentist. In 1950, ball-bearing handpieces reached speeds up to 50,000 revolutions per minute. Then, air-driven turbine handpieces introduced in 1957 reached 300,000 rpms. Today's drills make quick work of decay, reaching speeds of 800,000 rpms. There are also chemical compounds now in use in a few dental offices which can dissolve small areas of decay.

Lasers may replace drills in the future. Concentrated laser beams are being used experimentally to eradicate decay, smooth pits and fissures, and clean root canals.

□ Patient information and education have made important contributions to the decrease in tooth decay and are now being employed to fight gum diseases. Programs like the ADA's Children's Dental Health Month, now celebrating its 41st year, have made the public aware of the importance of good daily hygiene and regular professional care. Today, the majority of Americans understand that teeth are intended to last a lifetime. With good habits, developed early in life, they will.

Major dental health occurrences since 1950

- ✓ Emergence of fluoride
- ✓ Plaque removal techniques
- ✓ Increased use of sealants
- ✓ Drill technology improvements
- ✓ Emphasis on patient education

Reese observes month dedicated to recognition of Afro-American History

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

This year's theme for Black History Month is "The father of black history, Dr. Carter G. Woodson, 'A Living Legacy'." Although there were others who were interested in and wrote about Afro-American history before he did, Dr. Woodson was the first scientifically trained historian who wrote in the field of Afro-American History. After retiring from teaching in 1922, he devoted the rest of his life to writing, editing, researching and promoting popular interest in African-American History. Along with the long lists of books he wrote, which include "The History of the Negro Church", "Negro in Our History" and "African Heroes and Heroines", he also wrote hundreds of articles, reviews, addresses and newspaper articles. His writings have covered practically every phase of life in the United States.

Dr. Woodson had a theory that interpretation of American history would be far different from what it has been if the role — positive and negative, active and passive — of the Negro is taken into account.

Credit for the idea of setting aside a time for Americans to learn about black contributions to society belongs to Dr. Woodson who started Negro History Week in 1926. It was an immediate success. The response to it from young and old, educated and uneducated, pleased the doctor to no end. The observance came each year around the second week in February. Negro History Week is meant to embrace the birthdates of both Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass.

The popularity of Negro History Week continued to grow until it became a national scope. During the country's Bicentennial celebration in 1976, Americans everywhere had a heightened interest in learning about the people from all ethnic groups who helped to construct this nation. During that year, Negro History Week was developed into Black History Month by the Association of Afro-American Life and History (another of Dr. Woodson's foundations).

The Department of Defense observes Black History Month every year in a variety of ways, from educational exhibits and newspaper articles about Blacks' contributions to the nation's defense, science, business and culture -- to musical celebrations and the serving of "soul food" in the dining halls.

All wing members are invited to attend the following events set for Black History Month:

□ The Reese Child Development Center will hold a luncheon at 11 a.m. Feb. 14. Cost is $2 per plate.

□ A soul food tasting luncheon will begin at 11 a.m. Feb. 16 in the Mathis Recreation Center. In addition to the luncheon, African-American and ancient Egyptian visual displays (as they relate to the cultural heritage of Black Americans) will be presented.

□ A fashion show will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 17 in the Simler Theater. Tickets are $5 per person. Following the show, the recreation center is hosting a disco from 11 p.m. to 4 a.m.

Admission is free for those with fashion show tickets, otherwise cost is $2.

□ The Reese Chapel will host a gospel jubilee from 3-6 p.m. Feb. 18.

□ The Caprock Cafe will hold a soul food luncheon to begin at 11 a.m. Feb. 21. The cafe will be open to all ranks for this meal.

□ A Black History Fun Run will be sponsored by the Reese Physical Fitness Center beginning at 10 a.m. Feb. 24. A 3-on-3 basketball tournament will begin at noon, followed by hot-shot, free throw and slam dunk contests. The costs for each event are: $5 for the fun run, $10 per team for the tournament and $2 each of the contests.

□ The Enlisted Open Mess will host a Black History Banquet Feb. 24, social hour begins at 6:30 p.m. Guest speaker will be Lubbock author Katie M. Parks. The banquet is open to all wing members, cost is $10 per person.

Competition honors best vehicles

Although they don't get the same publicity that their airborne counterparts do, the ground vehicles in the Air Force are vital to numerous aspects of mission accomplishment.

It's with this in mind that annual Pacer Wheels competition on Reese is conducted. Pacer Wheels recognizes the units that take the best care of their government vehicles.

The 1989 Pacer Wheel awards were given out Jan. 24, with recognition given in three categories.

□ Small unit special/general purpose vehicles — The honors in this category went to the administration section in the wing Operations Complex.

Second place was earned by the traffic management freight section in the Reese Transportation Division.

□ Large unit special purpose vehicle — The 64th Supply Squadron Fuels Management Branch captured top honors in this area.

Following the fuels branch were the 64th SUPS and the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

□ Large unit general purpose vehicle — USAF Hospital Reese was best in this category, while SUPS took its second "second" and the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron took third.

"If I were an Army commander, my report card would be dependent upon and reflect the quality of our vehicle fleet," said Col. Monroe S. Sams, 64th Flying Training Wing commander.

"We don't have the money to continually buy new vehicles — consequently, we must do our utmost to maintain the vehicles we have," he added.

A worker at the Reese Child Development Center has been picked as the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division's top nonappropriated funds employee for 1989.

Gloria Goff, a center employee in the preschool for more than two years, was cited by her supervisors for providing a developmental program that "advances their (children's) physical, social, emotional and language abilities."

Some events she's organized for the children include a preschool graduation (complete with cap and gown), puppet shows, costume parties and numerous field trips.

Hospital's best chose

A pair of aerospace physiologists have been selected as USAF Hospital Reese's best for the past quarter.

Sgt. Cheryl L. Gordon and A1C Bradley G. Tucker were selected in the noncommissioned officer and airman categories, respectively.

MSS picks top civilian

A military personnel clerk in the 64th Mission Support Squadron has been chosen as that unit's outstanding civilian for the past quarter.

Doreen Wallace was selected based on her professional conduct, self-development and superb job performance, according to MSS officials.

FTS members tops in SOS

Two members of the 35th Flying Training Squadron and one member of the 54th FTS graduated in the top 9 percent of Squadron Officer School Class-90-A at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Capt. Kenneth K. Knuchell and Capt. Kenneth W. Levens, 35th FTS, and Captain Scott D. Porter, 54th FTS, competed with 823 students to take the honor.

SOS is the first level of officer professional military education.

41st FTS member tops tax test

A member of the 41st Flying Training Squadron outdistanced other wing members on the exam for unit tax advisors completed this month.

First Lt. John Russ missed only five questions on the exam, outdoing the 25 other wing members who tested, according to the tax advisor in the Reese Legal Office.

Rules exist for frequent flyer programs

Official travel cannot be used to accumulate personal mileage credit

Flying the "friendly skies" can be especially good for people who are part of a frequent flyer program. However, officials from the Reese Legal Office caution that certain rules exist for wing members who accumulate mileage while travelling on government business. They are:

□ Military members and civilian employees must turn in any gift, gratuity or benefit received from private individuals/organizations if it is received because of the performance of official duties. It does not matter if the benefit in question is unusable by the government. Exceptions to this rule are food and drink items, contest prizes and promotional items.

□ If a free or discount ticket is earned as the result of trips paid for by a combination of both personal and government funds, the ticket belongs to the government.

□ Benefits such as seat upgrades, VIP lounge access and free food/beverages offered to frequent flyers may be accepted so long as they aren't obtained by "cashing in" on mileage earned through official travel.

□ It is improper to cash in on mixed travel — that is, travel made up of both official and personal parts (such as leave taken in conjunction with a temporary-duty assignment).

□ When voluntarily bumped off a flight, members may keep the money or complimentary ticket involved. However, the member must pay for any delay-related expense and must take leave, if necessary, to compensate for the delay. Also, the delay cannot interfere with the TDY mission.

□ If involuntarily bumped or otherwise delayed, and the TDY is not delayed nor the Air Force put to added expense, the member may keep any money or complimentary tickets after filing a travel voucher. However, if the government pays additional per diem because of the delay, the compensation from the airline must be turned in.

□ Lodging certificates given out by hotels that overbook must also be turned into the government.

To avoid the problem of accidentally mixing mileage earned under frequent flyer programs, legal officials suggest that wing members participating in such programs establish separate accounts for their official and personal travel.

For more information, call the legal office at 3505.

Local news

Surveys must be approved

There have been questions on base recently about whether wing members can take part in phone surveys on duty. The questions stem from an unauthorized survey being done by Direct Marketing Inc.

Although regulations do not prohibit military members from answering personal questions about themselves on such surveys, they cannot participate in such surveys on government phones or while on duty. Official Air Force participation in such surveys must be approved at the Air Staff level.

In addition, any questions about the base and its activities must be referred to the Reese Public Affairs Division, in accordance with Air Force Regulation 190-1.

For more information, call public affairs at 3410.

and the Excess Leave Program are being accepted through March 1, according to the Reese Legal Office.

Both programs offer active-duty officers a chance to become Air Force attorneys — at Air Force expense under FLEP, or at the individual's expense. The latter carries a guaranteed position for participants.

To apply or for details, call Maj. Howard Altschwager, Reese staff judge advocate, at 3505.

VIP visits require coordination

Any individuals or organizations on base who are planning Reese visits by senior officers and other VIPs should contact the 64th Flying Training Wing Protocol Office at 6187 to ensure the visit is properly coordinated.

SPS recovers items

The 64th Security Police Squadron has recovered the following lost/abandoned items: a man's wedding band, a man's Air force ring, eight bicycles, a scooter, a pipe wrench a knife and a necklace.

Anyone who thinks one of these items may be theirs should call the SPS Investigations Section at 3999.

CBPO announces changes

Wing members going to Saudi Arabia or Honduras should be aware of recent policy changes, according to the Reese Consolidated Base Personnel Office.

Procedures for getting a Saudi visa changed Dec. 1; a listing of these changes is available in personal affairs and outbound assignments offices in CBPO.

Also, the mandatory uniform for people going to Soto Cano AB, Honduras, is the battle dress uniform; wing members going there on temporary duty must have enough BDUs to last the entire TDY.

For details on either change, call 3402.

New manager aims to please EOM customers

by Sgt. Kimberly Nelson
staff writer

A new face has arrived at Reese and should soon become a familiar one to many of the 64th Flying Training Wing's members.

Management of the Reese Enlisted Open Mess changed hands Jan. 15 from Roy "Judge" Chisholm to Otis Burchfield.

During the past year, the EOM has undergone many changes such as the completion of an extensive renovation; the taking-over of Mamma Reesione's; the reopening of the hot food line; a membership drive that brought in about 150 new members; and a 24-hour club events hotline that gives members the day's events by calling 6432.

As the new manager, Mr. Burchfield has many plans in mind

Otis Burchfield
New EOM manager

to better the quality of the EOM. "Our job is service, and service — good service — is what we will provide our customers," said Mr. Burchfield.

For example, a grievance about games night start times being delayed was recently brought to the attention of the EOM staff. "Since then, I have been placing an emphasis on keeping consistent with scheduled start times. If there are any other concerns our members have, please direct them to my attention and I will do my best to assist them," assured the new manager.

Within the next few months, he intends to increase activity within the EOM and build up its membership (which currently stands at 49 percent of Reese's eligible enlisted members). Not only does he plan to increase membership of military members, but also that of retirees and federal contract employees.

"The Air Force Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division's motto is 'Doing good things for people' and we are going to do what we can to make the Reese EOM the best club in the Air Force" stated Mr. Burchfield.

"I realize we still have quite a way to go, but we'll get there because I know how to do it," he added. Along these lines, the following events/programs are set to begin in this month:

□ Ballroom games from 6:30-10:30 p.m. Mondays.

□ Kiddie games from 1:30-3:30 p.m. Sundays.

□ Bar games from 5-7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

□ Beverage of the month at a special price.

The manager has also proposed the following happenings for the near future: membership and family nights, general membership meetings, evening dining, catered functions, expanded disc jockey music and live entertainment, birthday dinners, candlelight dining, boss' night, super sandwich wheel (at Mamma's), games night, dining ins and outs and a military ball. "These are all ideas that worked well at other locations I've been at; I expect they should work here too," said Mr. Burchfield.

"So, come on out and support your EOM. We're a bunch of friendly people and we'll take care of you so you can have a lot of fun," he said.

Mr. Burchfield and the EOM staff are opening their doors to suggestions for improvements from wing members. Someone who has an idea that they think will work should call 3156, or stop by the EOM.

Star search Talented members needed to perform in Reese contest

The sky's the limit... That's the theme for the 1990 Reese Talent Contest to be held at 7 p.m. March 1 in the Simler Theater. "Reese is looking for talented individuals who are willing to work hard in preparing themselves to enter the talent competition and possibly go on to compete at Air Training Command level," said Ruby Thomas, contest director. "All wing members are eligible to participate. However, only military members can continue on to compete at command level."

The best-of-show winner will receive a trophy; first-place winners in each category will be presented a plaque; and all will be given a certificate of participation. Sign-up is from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday until Feb. 16. Entrants may register by calling 3787 or by stopping at the Mathis Recreation Center.

There are 13 categories that contestants may enter, they are: vocalist (not self-accompanied and self-accompanied), vocal duet and group, instrument solo and group, classical, dramatics, dance, master of ceremonies, potpourri music, specialty and best of show. People who enter the duet competition may not enter the single vocalist competitions. People can basically do anything they want to do as long as it doesn't reflect ideas of ethnic or social conflict, said the program director.

"I try to encourage people to compete in more than one category. That way if they do make it to command level they have a chance to be selected for next year's Tops in Blue Program," she added.

According to Mrs. Thomas, Tops in Blue generates most of their members from command and Air Force level talent competitions. People are chosen based on their abilities to perform more than one talent, such as singing and instrument playing.

Contestants will be allowed four minutes to perform each routine. "During rehearsals I will be working with the contestants to help them keep within the time, improve their stage presentation, gain confidence and to become comfortable performing before an audience," she said.

The Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division has hired a professional band from the local area to assist with rehearsals and provide accompaniment or back-up for the performers. All competitors are requested to bring their own sheet music and, if possible, a taped copy of their selection (for the band to hear) to the first rehearsal. Contestants will be allowed approximately 20 minutes each night to practice with the band. Practice will be from 6:30-10 p.m. Feb. 26-28.

Command-level competitors' selection is based on total points scored for each performance. "This could be both a plus and minus," commented Mrs. Thomas. If there is only one entry in a category, that person/group will automatically win at base level; but, if they didn't receive enough points, they won't make it to command's competition. But then, if there are six entries to a category and each receive enough points, everyone eligible can go to command even though only one won at base-level.

Command-level competition will be held April 28 through May 5 at Chanute AFB, Ill.

Three impartial judges, two newly assigned military and one civilian, have been chosen to determine this year's Reese winners. "The judges are going to be tough, but that's because we're looking for the most talented Reese members to represent us at command," Mrs. Thomas concluded.

For more information, call Mrs. Thomas at 3787.

The best in ATC!

Reese takes sports and recreation honor

Strong performances in five events spurred Reese to take the 1989 Air Training Command Sports and Recreation Commander's Trophy in the small base category.

Reese scored 1,505 points during the year to outdistance second-place Williams AFB, Ariz., by more than 100 points. Goodfellow AFB, Texas, tied for second with Williams.

According to Jake Trevino, Reese fitness director, points were awarded during the year based on bases' performances at ATC-level competitions. In addition to 80 points for participating, bases got 40-100 points for finishing in the top four in team events. They also got five points for every base person who was selected for the ATC or Air Force team in that event.

Events which Reese did exceptionally well in included:

□ Women's basketball — The Lady Rattlers rebounded from an opening round loss to take third place in the command tournament at Randolph AFB, Texas, in February. Also, Rattler Margaret Duffy earned a spot on the ATC team.

□ Golf — The Reese team of Coy Martin, Joseph Buchwald, John Wolfe and David Joyal took third at the command tournament in August at Sheppard AFB, Texas.

□ Artist/craftsman — Following the local crafts competition in the spring, base entries went on to pick up 170 points at ATC competition.

□ Men's softball — The base earned points when Rattler Todd Cogdill earned a spot on the command team following the ATC tournament in July at Goodfellow.

□ Cross-country — Reese's Kathryn Russel took second in the command tournament held in December at Mather AFB, Calif., to earn a spot on the ATC team.

Other events where Reese teams racked up points included: men's basketball, bowling, racquetball, talent contest, tennis, chess, women's softball, over-35 softball, billiards, table tennis and flag football.

"The credit goes not only to the athletes who did exceptionally well at command competitions — everyone who was part of a base team had a hand in it," said Col. Bill Henny, 64th Air Base Group commander. "I have no doubt that the competitive spirit of the people at Reese will carry the base to continued success in 1990."

□ Positions deemed essential to the maintenance of an important national defense capability may be exempted from this program by the service secretaries.

□ Employees specifically entitled by statute to a civilian position, or situations where specific numbers of employees are mandated by statute, are not affected by the freeze.

□ Hiring commitments may be made as part of specific intern programs, such as Palace Acquire, and co-operative education and summer hire programs, and may also be made to teachers recruited for DOD school systems.

Other provisions that apply are:

□ All political appointments must be personally authorized by the secretary or deputy secretary of defense.

□ Civilians may be hired to fill essential medical, safety or security positions when authorized by the assistant secretary of defense for force management and personnel.

□ The secretary or deputy secretary of defense can authorize hiring civilians to fill positions essential to the July 1989 Defense Management Report and the President's National Drug Control Strategy.

Secretary Cheney said the DOD is trying to achieve the reduction in the civilian work force by attrition, avoiding reductions-in-force. This approach minimizes economic dislocation of civilian employees. The hiring freeze came the same day that Secretary Cheney announced a plan to trim the department's logistics and acquisition force by as many as 8,000 civilians in fiscal 1991 and 18,000 civilians by fiscal 1995 as part of the Defense Management Review. DMR is an ongoing review of DOD that focuses on finding better and more efficient ways of doing business.
