Reese honored for role at Special Olympics

Wing cited during Saturday's games

Volunteer efforts by wing members were honored during the Area 17 Special Olympics Saturday at Coronado High School.

Before the games got under way, Special Olympics officials presented a plaque to Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, who accepted on behalf of the men and women of the wing. The plaque read "Join the world of winners."

About 150 Reese people assisted with this year's event. Their involvement ranged from participation in the opening ceremonies to serving as huggers, starters and coaches. Also, Reese opened Special Olympics with the 50-state flag formation. The event went well, according to one of the base organizers.

"Things went a lot smoother this year than in some others," said retired CMSgt. Leonard Minzer, who's worked with Special Olympics since 1982. "A lot of the people (from Reese) took part last year, so their experience

From my perspective

by Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

Last Saturday, I had the honor and pleasure of attending the Area 17 Special Olympics Games at Coronado High School. "Join the world of winners" is distinctively inscribed on the plaque that I proudly accepted on behalf of the men and women volunteers of Reese.

The tradition of the Special Olympics and Reese volunteers goes hand in hand with joining the world of winners. About 150 wing members were involved through participation in the "Parade of Flags," coaching, security and fund raising. I overheard someone say that the reason this event enjoys so much success is due to the people of Reese. That certainly makes me proud of our folks' community spirit. Efforts such as this exemplify why the Reese-Lubbock partnership has remained steadfast for five decades.

The true appreciation of your dedicated service was reflected in the eyes of the athletes. You made a difference!

To all who worked out front and behind the scenes — thanks for joining the world of winners!

Air Force Assistance Fund

Making a difference also applies to the tremendous support the wing displayed by contributing to the Air Force Assistance Fund. Our target was $14,853, and our pledges to date have exceeded $22,000.

This is truly one campaign where we, as Air Force members, can take care of our own. For those who would still like to donate, the campaign has been extended until April 30.

This is another example of how the Reese community accepts a challenge to its fullest. Way to go!

Air Force Association

Another example of taking care of our own is through supporting the Air Force Association. There are currently over 200 members in the Lubbock chapter and we'd like to see that number grow.

The AFA membership drive kicked off Monday and we're looking forward to seeing more involvement from the Reese community. Aside from the many benefits that a membership package offers, being a part of the AFA is just a great opportunity to meet and socialize with an outstanding group of professionals from throughout the community.

For further details regarding this outstanding Air Force organization, contact the wing's membership drive chairman, Capt. Ed Rinkavage, at 3994.

Volunteer award

Volunteers are an important part of our "mission maker" spirit here at Reese. I had the pleasure of announcing our Family Services Volunteer of the Year Award winner, Gloria Coward.

Through her industrious involvement with the Hearts Apart and Operation Desert Storm Families Programs, she too has made a difference. On behalf of the wing, thank you, Gloria — your contributions shall not be forgotten.

I also want to thank Dorothy Jones and all her staff at family services for their great work during the past year.

Secretaries play key parts in organizations' success

Years ago, secretaries were often thought of as only being responsible for basic clerical duties.

Today, nothing could be further from the truth. Secretaries handle a wide array of duties. These include everything from managing file plans and publications libraries to operating word processing equipment and ensuring their supervisors don't miss suspenses or appointments.

In the military, where personnel turnover is a fact of life, secretaries are the "corporate memory" for their sections. When asked about certain projects or taskings, many a new supervisor will defer to their secretary.

Secretaries are considered key players in many successful organizations. They're often viewed as the eyes and ears of successful leaders throughout the military.

In addition, they often provide the first impression of an office. Normally the first to come in contact with office visitors, they are charged with being a "PR" person for their organizations.

Many secretaries often are asked to go that extra mile to get the job done. Secretaries may be taken for granted from time to time, but their importance always comes to light when they're on leave or a temporary-duty assignment.

The observance of National Secretaries Week doesn't mean secretaries can only be recognized one week per year — after all, their achievements take place week in and week out throughout the year.

National Secretaries Week begins Monday and runs through April 26.

From YOUR perspective

As wing commander, I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your input and suggestions can help Reese maintain its position as a pacesetter in the command.

If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command. You may remain anonymous if you wish, but those who leave their name and number can get a direct response to their call.

Calls can be made to the Careline 24 hours a day at 3273.

Great service at finance

I just want to pass on kudos to AIC Bonita Dennis in the Accounting and Finance Branch. She always offers super service.

Airman Dennis has been an outstanding worker since she joined the wing. Her attitude is exceptional, and she goes the distance to satisfy our customers.

Thanks for taking time to recognize her efforts.

Gates not open enough?

The Reese Village gates at George and McGuire Streets are supposed to be open from 7 - 9 a.m. and 2 - 6 p.m., according to security police. However, the George gate is rarely open before 4 p.m., and it has been left open as late as 8 p.m.

Is there or is there not a set time the gates are supposed to open and close?

The gates you mention are open from 7 - 9 a.m. and 4 - 6 p.m. weekdays to relieve traffic and to increase safety of school children and housing occupants.

We know it would be convenient to keep them open all day, but we are concerned about the risk the increased traffic would present to our children. The scheduled hours are the best solution under the circumstances.

Because of manning restraints, the SPs have had to be flexible on gate times, but every effort will be made to stick to these hours.

Home alone?

When is right time to leave children on their own?

Is your child old enough to be left alone?

Here are some things to keep in mind when making this decision, courtesy of the Reese family advocacy officer:

- Does your child know his full name, telephone number, address, parent's full name and location and phone number of where they work?
- Does your child know what to do in case of an emergency (for example, call 911), and do they have easy access to a telephone?
- Never leave a child 5 or younger alone.
- A responsible school-age child may be left alone after school for an hour or so; however, this child should not be made responsible for the care of younger children.

For more information, call 1st Lt. Abbie Luck at 3739.

The recent war in the Middle East precipitated a variety of psychosomatic illnesses in children and adults. The symptoms included nightmares, stomachaches, bedwetting, breathing difficulties, not wanting to go to school, disputes with other children, loss of appetite and headaches. All of these are symptoms of anxiety and they commonly occur during any stressful situations.

What should a parent do when children exhibit anxiety? First, parents must recognize that these are signals that the child needs help. Be patient when your child exhibits one of these behaviors; don't threaten, berate or call the child names. If they are old enough to express themselves, encourage them to communicate their fears, and be sympathetic.

Pay attention and listen carefully; then try to help. Don't ignore the signs, thinking they will go away or "he'll outgrow those fears."

Second, don't add to your child's anxieties by being anxious yourself. As the parent, you need to set an example. Maintain your composure and confidence. If your child exhibits undue anxiety, it may be because adults around him are displaying anxiety too.

It may be perfectly natural to be concerned about what might happen, as with the recent war. Still, the parent needs to remember that the worst-case scenario doesn't always happen, and constantly worrying out loud about what might happen will inevitably cause fear in children. How the parent copes with a stressful situation will greatly affect how the children react. So try to project a positive attitude, especially when children are around.

Third, try to maintain your regular household routine, as well as the same emotional behavior around the children. If it isn't normal to fuss over a child, don't do so now — the child will sense that something is wrong.

During times of stress, remember that you as the parent are the most important person in your child's life. Consequently, take care of yourself. Eat properly, get plenty of rest, keep busy, try to remain calm and have faith in yourself. Plan fun times for you to share with your children so you'll have good memories despite stressful times. Spend your social time with cheerful, positive-minded friends.

If you feel a need to talk to someone, a professional counselor, your physician or your pastor can be very helpful. Call on your friends for help; that's what friends are for. And make time for yourself to restore your energy and confidence.

Your children depend on you for security and love. Don't let them down when they need you. Call the Reese Pediatric Clinic for more information at 3297/3245.

Diabetes mellitus is a chronic, lifelong disease in which your body either can't produce enough insulin or can't properly use the insulin it produces. Because each of these situations involves a different problem with insulin, diabetes is divided into two major types:

Diabetes

Wing doctor offers advice on condition

□ Type I, in which the individual is insulin dependent. It generally has a very early onset in juveniles, but may also occur in adults.

□ Type II, in which the individual is not insulin dependent. It has an adult onset.

The type of diabetes affecting a patient will determine the warning signs which may be present. The most common warning signs associated with type I (insulin dependent) are:

- Constant urination
- Abnormal thirst
- Unusual hunger
- The rapid loss of weight
- Irritability
- Obvious weakness and fatigue
- Nausea and vomiting

As you can see, the first letters of these symptoms form the word caution. This simply means that if you start experiencing these signs, you should immediately consult with a physician.

On the other hand, type II diabetes (noninsulin dependent) usually occurs after 30, and has the following signs: drowsiness, itching, a family history of diabetes, blurred vision, excessive weight, tingling/numbness in feet, skin infection and slow healing.

If you experience any of these signs of diabetes, you should seek medical assistance immediately.

The following are some ways to keep your blood sugar at a normal level if you are diabetic:

□ Eat a variety of foods, such as milk products, vegetables, fruits, meats, bread and cereals. Avoid excess fat, sweets and salt.

□ Exercise helps decrease blood sugar since it makes insulin work more efficiently. It also facilitates weight loss.

The kind of exercise I recommend is the one you enjoy. Exercise should be done three times weekly and in moderation. You should ensure that extra liquid is readily available, if needed. Special care should also be given to the feet during exercise to prevent blisters or cuts.

□ Insulin and oral hypoglycemia tablets can be prescribed to decrease blood sugar.

The most common problems observed in diabetic patients are observed in the following areas:

□ Vision — a diabetic patient should have his eyes examined regularly because changes in vision can occur, which can range from sensitivity to light to blindness.

□ Kidneys — malfunction of the kidneys is also associated with diabetes.

□ Nervous system — diabetics are susceptible to partial or complete loss of feeling in the lower extremities, primarily the feet. They can also have a gradual loss of their ability to urinate.

□ Extremities — because of partial loss of feeling, a diabetic patient should pay close attention to his or her feet. Extreme care should be given to wearing properly fitted shoes. They should also avoid dry skin in order to decrease the chances of getting a wound that may be difficult to heal.

Despite all of the complications associated with diabetes, a patient suffering from this disease can still have a normal life with appropriate diet, exercise and routine check ups.

Through history and here at Reese, one group strives for the good of the community

Volunteers

by Phil Thierry
Reese Family Support Center director

Sunday through April 27 has been designated as National Volunteer Week. During this time, we say a special thank you to all of the people who have given so freely of their time, talents and themselves.

They devote countless hours to the community, yet receive no pay. Many services would probably be non-existent were it not for these people. Examples include Boy and Girl Scouts, Red Cross, tutors in our schools, Meals on Wheels, Big Brothers and Sisters, and more.

They also have been tremendously helpful in areas where budget cuts have made an impact. They help by performing some of tasks that keep an organization going. Clearly volunteers play a vital role.

There will be an appreciation social from 4-5:15 p.m. Thursday in the Reese Officers' Open Mess. The social is a chance for all base people to come by and thank and get acquainted with the various volunteers.

During this time, recipients of the Helping Hand and Angel Pin Awards will be recognized.

During this week, various Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division agencies are offering discounts to our volunteers; base volunteers need to come by the Family Support Center to get their letter to take advantage of these discounts.

The volunteer spirit is evident throughout Reese. However, there are four agencies exclusively staffed by volunteers — the Family Services Center, Red Cross Office, Thrift Store and Retiree Activities Office.

Although no pay is involved, volunteers can gain experience in a chosen field (doing something they already enjoy or gaining new experience), set their own hours and meet people.

One of the keys to keeping volunteers is ensuring that they enjoy what they are doing. Every effort is made to match an individual's wants and needs with those of the organization.

The family support center is the central point of contact for all base volunteer activities. A Volunteer Resource Program manager, Reynalda Schroeder, has recently been hired to coordinate these efforts. Individuals wanting more information on volunteer opportunities should contact Mrs. Schroeder at 3305.

Olympics

He added that although there were fewer people available to volunteer because of the maintenance conversion, people from around base were quick to pick up the slack.

"Efforts such as this exemplify why the Reese-Lubbock partnership has remained steadfast for five decades," said Colonel Henny, who served as parade marshal during the opening ceremonies.

Reese's support of Special Olympics will be evident again in July, when Olympian of the Year Matthew Coombs gets an orientation of Reese and the wing mission. Chief Minzer said the tour would be sponsored by the Noncommissioned Officers Association and the Company Grade Officers Council.

Wing members march in the 50-state flag formation during opening ceremonies for Saturday's Special Olympics.

Top officers of quarter honored

Without instructor pilots, no one can teach students how to fly.

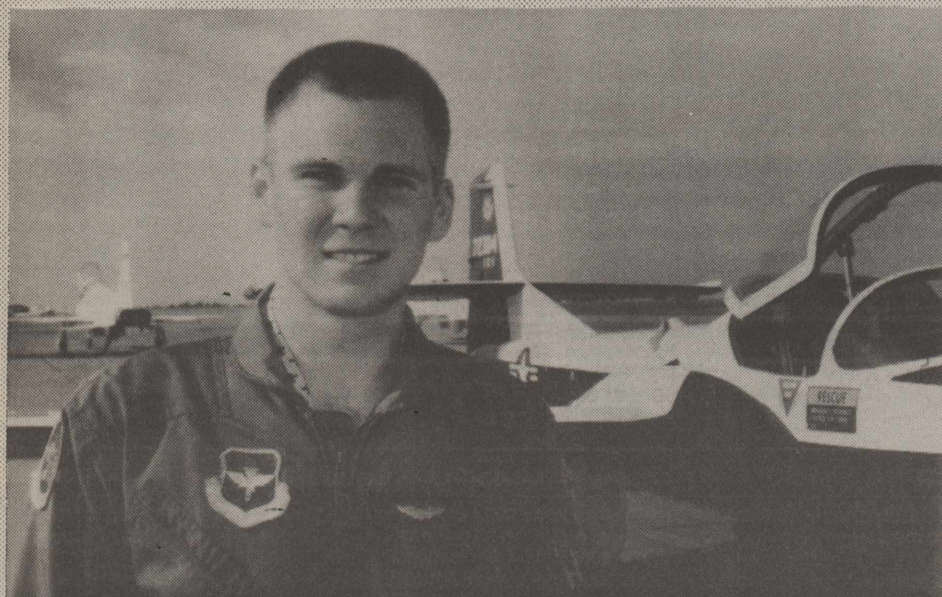

Without someone overseeing mobility, wing members would not know who was being deployed.

The wing wouldn't be able to fulfill its mission without success in both of these areas.

Two wing members were recently cited for supporting these needs. Capt. Steve Whitt, wing mobility officer, was selected as the company grade support officer of the quarter, while 1st Lt. Perry Elvin, 33rd Flying Training Squadron, was named the IP of the quarter.

seeing the wing mobility office, a section that shined during the last unit effectiveness inspection.

He developed a training program for the mobility officers in individual units. As a result, the mobility control center staff was the "best seen," according to UEI officials.

He was also successful at coordinating the deployment of 45 wing members and redeployment of 35 others to support Operation Desert Storm, on time and error free.

When Captain Whitt became the division chief, he implemented a tracking system for wing support agreements within his division to know where they were at all times.

He was also a guest speaker at local graduate schools regarding Desert Storm and Industrial Management techniques.

Captain Whitt is an active member in the Society of Logistics Engineers, Air Force Association and Company Grade Officers Council. He also serves as the district commissioner for the Boy Scouts of America South Plains Council.

1st. Lt. Perry Elvin

The lieutenant was cited for his work as an IP, check pilot and runway supervisory unit controller.

"He does everything very well," said Lt. Col. Billy Hill, 33rd FTS commander. "He is a very meticulous individual and has done a super job on the flight standardization."

Lieutenant Elvin also excelled during the quarter as a unit standardization/evaluation member, ensuring students are well prepared for emergency procedures quizzes, check rides and aircraft sorties. The lieutenant also prepares IP's for their checks.

He excelled on his no-notice controller check, according to Air Training Command operations officials.

Lieutenant Elvin earned a 100 percent on the unit effectiveness inspection test. His leadership as a flight SEM also led to four IP's and five students earning 100 percent on the UEI test.

"Lieutenant Elvin has been helpful in preparing for annual flight examinations. The result has been consistently excellent check performances by our young IP's," added Colonel Hill.

Most stop loss provisions axed

Program affected 46 wing members

With the exception of 12 officer and 19 enlisted specialties, and possibly some deployed people, most active-duty Air Force members will be free from stop loss by April 30, Air Force personnel officials said.

Officials in the Reese Military Personnel Branch explained that stop loss began Sept. 17 to assure commanders that personnel resources needed to support Operation Desert Shield and then Desert Storm would be available.

Forty-six people at Reese were affected by stop loss.

All Air National Guard and Reserve members were authorized to be released from the program March 29.

Major commands have waiver and release authority for the remaining stop loss skills, officials said.

Non-deployed individuals with skills deleted from stop loss and who are past their original separation or retirement dates can be released immediately with commander approval. They will not be involuntarily retained past April 30, but can extend up to 90 days past that date for personal adjustment and terminal leave.

Deployed individuals affected by stop loss whose original separation or retirement dates are past or in the near future should be given priority for return to home station within their unit's rotation plan.

Those with original separation or retirement dates that are before arrival at their home station can be released as soon as they return, with commander approval, but no later than 30 days after return. They can also extend up to 90 days beyond that.

People with dates past April 30 will have those dates reinstated and can also extend 90 days.

For more information, call TSgt. George Atkins at 3823. (Air Force News Service)

Reese mission maker

This week's mission maker is TSgt. David Koester, chief avionics systems evaluator for the T-1 Test Team.

Sergeant Koester entered the Air Force 12 years ago as a security policeman, with his first assignment at RAF Upper Heyford, England.

The native of South St. Paul,

Minn., then moved to K.I. Sawyer AFB, Mich., where he cross-trained into corrosion control.

Upon arriving at Reese in October 1985, he served as a communications navigations systems specialist.

He was then hand picked, along with other Air Training Command members, to work with the T-1 Test Team.

"It's interesting to be part of the team accepting the newest aircraft in ATC," said Sergeant Koester. "Working on state-of-the-art electronics will be a big change."

He and his wife, Christine, have four children: Tiffany, 12; Jesse, 7; Kally, 4; and Molly, 2.

Freeze on construction projects lifted

Way paved for several Reese facilities

New defense building contracts can once again be awarded, more than a year after the Pentagon ordered a freeze on all new military construction projects.

The change paves the way for several projects here, according to 64th Civil Engineering Squadron officials. They include the contractor-operated and managed base supply; or "COMBS," warehouse; petroleum operations complex; and centralized aircraft support system.

Deputy Secretary of Defense Donald J. Atwood lifted the freeze April 11, which had been in place since January 1990. Even though the ban has been dropped, tighter controls have been imposed to ensure that new construction projects fit long-term force reduction plans.

"Now that we have a clearer picture of how the force will be drawn down in the coming years, we have a better idea where it is appropriate to proceed with construction projects," Mr. Atwood said.

"But we must keep a close watch on how we spend our limited construction budgets."

The military construction freeze was due to expire April 15, after being extended three times. The ban was last extended Nov. 16 for five months.

The new controls imposed by the Department of Defense are intended to continue careful management of money for projects at bases in the United States and overseas.

Under the new order, the approval of the deputy secretary of defense is needed for military construction projects:

- In Europe, Japan and South Korea.
- At military bases in the United States which have been recommended for closure or at which forces are to be realigned.

□ At bases in the Washington, D.C., area.

Construction elsewhere can proceed with the approval of the respective military service secretary or the head of the responsible defense agency.

Since the freeze was first ordered last year, DOD recommended that Congress cancel 68 military construction projects and withdraw more than $327 million in funds already set aside for them.

The cancellations were proposed for areas where there was a high degree of uncertainty for long-term investment in facilities. Most of these projects were scheduled for overseas bases, mainly in Europe. Congress agreed to cancel 65 programs, withdrawing $286 million in funds. (Air Force News Service)

Earth Week events scheduled on Reese

Trash along the beach. Rivers filled with dead fish. The skies filled with smog. These problems prompted the United States to declare an Earth Day 21 years ago. This year Reese will celebrate Earth Week from Saturday through April 27 with a number of events throughout the week.

- On Saturday, the Youth Center will have a display from 9 a.m. through 6 p.m. at the Lubbock Garden and Arts Center. Presentations will be on endangered species, pollution and recycling.
- Children in the Preschool will plant flowers Monday, while the youth center will collect paperback books from 4-6 p.m. in Reese Village. These books will be recycled.
- On Tuesday, the Child Development Center will plant a garden, while the youth center "litter patrol" will pick up trash from 4-6 p.m.
- Children at the youth center will visit Prairie Dog Town at the McKenzie State Park from 4:15-5:30 p.m. Wednesday.
- An earth exposition will be held from 4:30-5:30 p.m. at the youth center. Children will show presentation boards they have made.
- The week activities will close with a "stomp-out pollution" dance for base youths from 7-11 p.m. April 26 at the youth center. The cost will be $1 for members and $1.50 for non-members.

Children will also have the opportunity to earn badges and bag of treats through the Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division. Children can earn a badge for collecting one of the following: 24 aluminum cans, 24 glass jars or bottles or an 8-inch stack of bundled newspapers. The items can be dropped off at the youth center, MWR Logistics or the child development center. When a child collects all three badges, he or she will receive a bag of treats.

Spruce-up Weekend set

Evidence of spring will abound Saturday and Sunday as Reese holds a "Spruce-up Weekend."

As part of the event, base agencies will be offering a variety of items to help wing members do their spring cleaning. These include:

- Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division Logistics — Reese Village residents will be able to get free issue of lawn edgers, extension cords, gardening tools, hedge trimmers, lawn mowers, post hole diggers, fertilizer spreaders and more.

In addition, logistics has garden plots available in several sizes across from the Veterinary Clinic. Water hook-ups are available. Logistics will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday. Call 3815 or stop by Bldg. 2107 for details on equipment and plots.

- Pride Store — The store has grass seed, landscape timbers, lava rock, fertilizer, plants and trees. It will also be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. this weekend; call 3415 or stop by Bldg. 552 for details.

Prior approval is needed for weekend delivery of plants and trees. People should call the Housing Management Office at 3912.

Base cyclists should know, follow rules

by SSgt. Kathie Meyers
64th SPS

As summer rapidly approaches and kids get out of school, it's time to remind people of a few safety tips and traffic rules for bicycles.

□ Bicycles operated when it's dark must have a head lamp emitting a white light visible from about 500 feet and a red taillight or rear reflector, also visible from about 500 feet.

□ Reflective vests are recommended, but not required.

□ Bicycle operators will not carry another passenger unless they have additional seats.

□ Bicyclists will not attach themselves to any other moving vehicle.

□ No item will be carried by the operator that prevents him or her from keeping both hands on the handlebars at all times.

□ Bicycles will not be ridden on the sidewalk within the business areas of the base.

□ Bicycles will travel with the flow of traffic, single file and as near to the right side of the lane as practical.

□ Bicycles riding off the street will yield to pedestrians.

Bicycles are not required to be registered on base. However, they may be engraved at the 64th Security Police Squadron Crime Prevention Office, Bldg. 500, for identification.

A bicycle operator must adhere to the same rules of the road as motor vehicle operators. This includes stop signs and speed limits, especially in the housing area. Bicycle traffic violators may be cited by the security police just like motor vehicle operators.

Parents are encouraged to discuss these safety tips with their children before allowing them to ride a bike by themselves. This is true especially in the base's business areas.

Security police (3332) can assist people with any questions they might have.

SPs excel in Idalou auto race

Five members place in competition

Five members of the 64th Security Police Squadron placed during the "Race A Cop Against Drugs" auto races, which featured area high school students and law enforcement officers Sunday at the Idalou Motorsports.

SPS's Kathie Meyers won the law enforcement female division. Meyers also captured second place in the overall female division, losing to Becky Brown of Coronado High School. She received a plaque for being named overall runner-up.

In the law enforcement male division, it was an all Reese final as security police augmentee Michael Monteleona captured first place by defeating Robert Conley with a time of 18.03. Monteleona also captured second place in the overall men's division losing only to the overall champion, Brian Harper of Coronado High School. Conley won second place in the overall law enforcement division.

Danny Bergen was a semi-finalist in the law enforcement male division.

With Grateful Appreciation General Motors Salutes The Men And Women Of Our Armed Forces, And Offers Them Something Special:

An Easier Way To Buy A New Car Or Truck.

Your Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac and GMC Truck dealers have incentive plans already in place that make it easy to buy a new car or light truck.

But now through the end of the year, the divisions of GM are offering a Special Military Program to all active U.S. military personnel and reservists called to active duty during the Persian Gulf War or their spouses.

Here's how it works. You get three hundred dollars in down payment assistance, plus any additional down payment you make is matched up to five hundred dollars when you buy a new GM car or light truck and finance it through GMAC. That can mean as much as eight hundred dollars toward your purchase. Add that to existing incentives, and you can save even more. The Special Military Program is not available with the college graduate program, first-time buyer program or overseas vehicle purchase program. See your participating GM dealer for qualification details.

It's a small gesture on our part in partial exchange for the tremendous gesture each of you has made. And our way of expressing thanks for a job well done.
