NCO shines at leadership school

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

CES member tops at school

A member of the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron was the top graduate for Reese Noncommissioned Officer Leadership School Class 91-E, which graduated May 2 in the Enlisted Open Mess.

Winning the John L. Levitow Honor Graduate Award was Sgt. Wallace Greene, who also captured the Commandant's Award and the Leadership and Management Award.

The two distinguished graduates were SSgt. Odette Thompson and Sgt. Robin Michaels, both from the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital. Sergeant Michaels also took the Academic Achievement and Communicative Skills awards.

Sgt. Michael Gilson of Detachment 1, 3320th Correction and Rehabilitation Squadron, Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, won the drill award.

Other graduates of the class were:

□ 52nd Flying Training Squadron — SSgt. Martin Bustos.

□ Hospital — Sgt. Jeffrey Holliday.

□ 64th Supply Squadron — SSgt. Tracy Wallace, Sgt. David Phelps and Sgt. Edward Alvarado

Jr. □ CES — Sgt. Jack Sage and Sgt. Jeri Lalonde.

□ 64th Mission Support Squadron — Sgt. Gerald Taplin.

□ 64th Security Police Squadron — Sgt. Kimberly Bryan.

□ 64th Communications Squadron — Sgt. Scott Alexander.

□ Det. 1, 3320th CRS — Sgt. Frank Butts, Sgt. Bert Winton and Sgt. Thomas Roberts.

The guest speaker for the evening was SMSgt. J.T. Washington, commandant of the Reese Professional Military Education Center.

Wing pitches in for heart patient

In the spirit of community relations, and with a desire to lend a helping hand, members of the 64th Flying Training Wing spearheaded an effort to raise money for Lubbockite Walter Voight's Heart Fund.

Second Lts. Tony Bukata and Chris O'Neil of the 54th Flying Training Squadron's "F" Flight became aware of the heart transplant cause via a local radio station announcement, which said $80,000 was needed.

"It was Lieutenant Bukata who expressed a desire to 'pitch in,' so I thought a car wash would help generate contributions," said Lieutenant O'Neil.

According to Lieutenant O'Neil, the car wash raised $1,600. "I was very surprised that we were able to raise so much money in such a short time," he said.

Another $500 was given from subsequent wing contributors. As of Tuesday, only $4,000 is lacking toward fulfilling the overall goal, he added.

"It felt really good to help, although I have never personally met the man; I know everyone who washed cars was extremely pleased to raise $1,600," concluded Lieutenant O'Neil.

Lieutenant Bukata expressed thanks to those Reese community members who contributed to the $2,100 fund-raising effort.

Reese part of command study

Contract, civil service options eyed

Reese will join Goodfellow AFB, Texas, in a series of studies by Air Training Command to determine if nearly 800 support jobs at the two bases can be performed more cost effectively by civil service or civilian contractor employees.

The 778 jobs are in administration, audiovisual, supply, transportation, civil engineering, morale, welfare and recreation, services and telephone operations.

The studies will be conducted by base management engineering teams and will determine whether the jobs will be executed by civil service or civilian contract employees. Conversion to either civil service or contractor operations is scheduled to take place April 1, 1995 at Reese, while Goodfellow is set to change April 1, 1994.

The use of civilian services to perform support type functions in the Air Force is determined on a case-by-case basis in accordance with the Office of Management and Budget's Circular A-76, according to wing officials.

"If a military unit, such as a tactical fighter or combat engineering squadron, must deploy to a combat zone to execute its mission, then it has to be made up of military members, said Col Ford Barrett, wing deputy commander for Logistics and Resource Management. "However, if military support organizations don't have taskings to deploy and fight, then the potential exists for these services to be converted to civil service or contracted out."

The colonel added that the decision on whether or not to contract out is based on fiscal savings to the taxpayer.

From my perspective

Col. Bill Henny
64th FTW commander

These are both exciting and challenging times for our base and our people. I want to address some of the challenges because I think it is important that every member of the team understands where we are headed, and what actions are under way.

Civilian issues

Many of you are aware that Reese was tasked to reduce 50 civil service positions effective July 1 as part of a servicewide manpower reduction. Upon identifying those positions, we were subsequently tasked with reducing another 18 civilian positions by Oct. 1. However, only 13 of the original 50 slots are currently filled. The earliest we might have to displace individuals is Oct. 1.

I appreciate that some of our civil service team may be uneasy. It is important, however, for everyone to realize that we are working this issue hard to minimize personal disruptions. I will hold a meeting to inform our civilian personnel of planned actions at 11 a.m. May 20, in the Simler Theater.

Cost comparison study

Air Training Command has selected Reese (along with Goodfellow AFB) for a series of studies (conducted by management engineering) to determine if support jobs can be performed more effectively by civil service or contractor employees.

The decision on whether or not to contract out support jobs in administration, audiovisual, supply transportation, civil engineering, morale, welfare and recreation, services and telephone operations will be based on fiscal savings to the American taxpayer.

The conversion to either civil service or contractor operations isn't scheduled until April 1995.

The assignment process

Recently, we provided coverage concerning the new undergraduate pilot training assignment process. I am extremely pleased with how our folks went into the new assignment selection process with an open mind.

Most realize how this pilot management program has created a more equitable and understandable process that rewards performance. I am confident that tomorrow's Air Force and its pilots will benefit from today's initiatives.

Contract simulator instructors

We are now well into the conversion from active-duty simulator instructors to contract simulator instructors (CSIs). As of today, we have certified five contract instructors in the T-37, and four in the T-38. Currently, we are qualifying about five instructors each month, and will soon have a total of 31 CSIs. Combined, they will be instructing nearly 4,000 student simulator sorties by the end of this fiscal year and over 12,000 during next year.

The program has worked well in other services (and commands). The contract instructors will provide the same quality simulator training as that provided by our active-duty instructor pilots. Nearly all of our contract instructors are former military pilots with IP experience.

This initiative will afford our "blue-suit" instructors more quality time with their students on the flightline and will also help to reduce the IP duty day to less than 10 hours.

Major construction

Now that the freeze on construction has been lifted, the way has been cleared for several Reese facility projects.

We are excited because these new facilities will greatly enhance the infrastructure and mission of our base. For example, in preparation for the arrival of the T-1A, a $4.1 million hangar will be constructed along with a "COMBS" (Contractor Operated and Managed Base Supply) warehouse, as well as a modification to the Flightline Centralized Aircraft Support System (CASS). In addition, a $665,000 petroleum operations complex, a new transportation management facility and a new auto hobby shop are on the horizon. We also hope to continue with the final phase of renovation to our base housing.

Wing reorganization

The 64th has been chosen by ATC to be reorganized — we are the test base for the command. We will activate the new organization on the 15th of May.

In essence, this is an opportunity to streamline our current mode of operation by eliminating organizational "layering" — thereby enhancing our decision-making process at lower levels within the wing. From a taxpayer's perspective (which we all are), this will afford "more bang for the buck" because it balances the management structure with the work force.

In doing so, the reorganization effort should show a direct line of responsibility and accountability from the commander to the working level, thus alleviating layers of middle managers.

The opportunity is here for us to do things better and more efficiently. We will improve not only our mission capability, but also the quality of life for our working force and their families. Every member of this wing is important and has good ideas on how we can do things better and more efficiently. So, during the ensuing weeks and months, I ask each of you to help mold and perfect this great wing. Not often do we have an opportunity to structure and build a more efficient organization — today we have that opportunity. Our efforts will set the pace for ATC wings, and will ensure that we continue to train tomorrow's best today in a smaller, but smarter and better Air Force.

Two-wheeled fun: Cycling recreation calls for choice

by 1st Lt. Mark and Judy Hubbard
52nd FTS

Some people want to ride a bike, but aren't sure what bike to ride. With road bikes, mountain bikes and hybrids to choose from, how do you know which is right for you?

Road bikes are lighter than mountain bikes and have larger frames. The characteristic curved "drop" handlebars lower the body to a more aerodynamic position to increase speed. Narrow, high-pressure tires have low rolling resistance, again giving you the edge on speed. When equipped with puncture-resistant kevlar®-belted tires, they do well in West Texas. Most road bikes have 12 or 14 gears suitable for most riders.

Even road bikes come in different styles. Racing types are built with thin-walled tubing for less weight and generally have a shorter wheel base to add quickness and agility in handling. However, they also offer harsher rides. The longer wheel base on touring models add to stability and soften the ride. Touring types are also built to carry heavy loads.

Mountain bikes have smaller frames and are usually 10 pounds heavier than the average road bike. The wide knobby tires and flat handlebars increase stability on rough terrain and give better traction in muddy areas. These are strictly off-road bikes, however. When riding a mountain bike on a paved road, those fat "knobbies" have so much rolling resistance that riding may not be the pleasure it was designed to be. To ease steep climbing, these bikes are generally equipped with 18 or 21 gears.

A popular new bike is the hybrid. With the lighter frame and large tires of a road bike, speed is an option. Coupled with the flat handlebars and "granny gears" of a mountain bike, hybrids capture the best of both types of bikes.

Because they are easily equipped with racks and bags, these bicycles make good commuting vehicles.

A word about cost — you may be taken aback by the $400 - 700 it costs for a good quality bike, but a poor quality bicycle may never let you know how easy cycling can be. The extra cost will be money well spent. Remember this is no more than two or three car payments.

Wing names quarter's top enlisted

MSgt. Richard Miller
...senior NCO

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Unit: 41st Flying Training Squadron.
Duty title: Noncommissioned officer in charge of the life support branch
Time in service: 13 1/2 years.
Time at Reese: 2 1/2 years.
Hometown: Austin, Texas.

Achievements during the quarter: Sergeant Miller's effective management of over 3,000 pieces of life-sustaining equipment was praised during the last unit efficiency inspection by command inspectors.

Command official also noted his budget and described it as "the best budget seen to date".

"Sergeant Miller is an extremely knowledgeable and energetic senior NCO," said Lt. Col. Frank Shealy, 41st FTS commander. "He is one of those guys who isn't afraid to take the initiative and make things happen".

Sergeant Miller was also recognized for his work in the community.

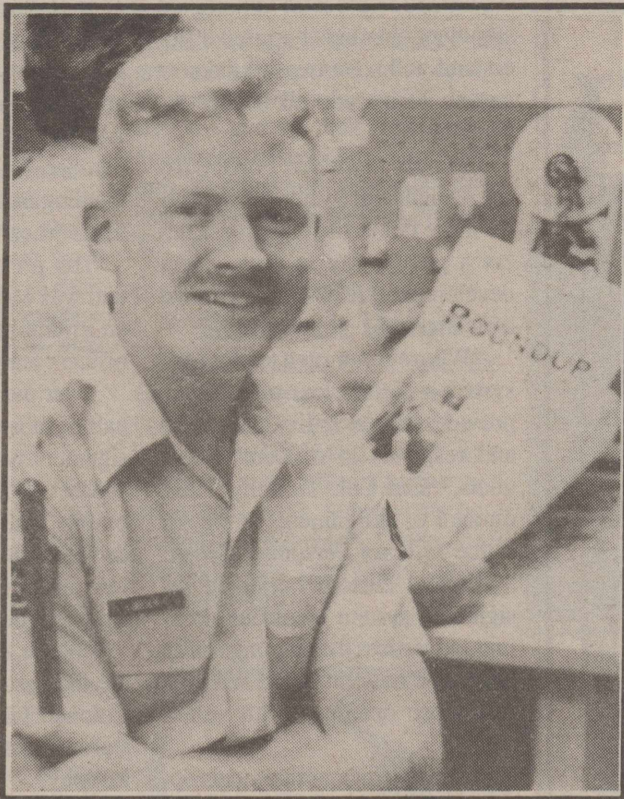

He is a cub master and den leader for Cub Scout Pack 543. The Texas native was recognized by the Marines for his annual support of the "Toys for Tots" program. He was also a volunteer instructor for the "SAFE Back" program, which promotes safe lifting procedures throughout the 64th Flying Training Wing.

Past Awards: Sergeant Miller was the wing and squadron senior NCO of the quarter for April-June 1990. In turn, at the end of the year, he was the wing senior NCO of the year for 1990. In 1989, Sergeant Miller was the Air Training Command's life support NCO of the year.

Education: The sergeant is currently working on his associates degree in life support and recovery systems through the Community College of the Air Force.

Goals: Sergeant Miller hopes to make chief master sergeant. He also plans to get a bachelors degree in history.

Hobbies: Coin collecting and carpentry.

SSgt. Mike Breslin
...NCO

(Autumn Martin)

Unit: 64th Mission Support Squadron.
Duty title: Roundup editor.
Time in service: 5 1/2 years.
Time at Reese: 2 years.
Hometown: Bellerose, N.Y.

Achievements during the quarter: Sergeant Breslin was praised during the last unit efficiency inspection by command inspectors for several features he initiated in the Roundup, such as "Reese mission maker" and "One on one." He also was credited with designing the latest edition of the base guide. The sergeant also turned around an inactive energy conservation awareness program to the extent that command officials rated it ahead of all other bases for the quarter.

"Sergeant Breslin is one of the most talented journalists with whom I've had the pleasure of working," said Maj. Krist Vasilov, chief of the 64th Flying Training Wing Public Affairs Division. "His decisions regarding layout and design have made the newspaper a pacesetter in the command."

Sergeant Breslin was also cited for his work in the community. During the quarter, he worked the phones at the KMAC-TV Special Olympics telethon and served as a judge at the South Plains Regional Science Fair.

Past awards: Sergeant Breslin won the John L. Levitov Honor Graduate Award at Reese Noncommissioned Officers Leadership School in March. He also captured the communicative skills and leadership and management awards.

Earlier in the quarter, he was recognized as runner-up in Air Training Command's journalist of the year competition.

Education: Sergeant Breslin is currently working on his bachelors degree in management.

Goals: The sergeant hopes to finish his degree before the end of next year. He also plans to make the Air Force a career, and hopes to get an assignment to Europe in the near future.

Hobbies: Music, physical conditioning, reading and computers.

A1C Darci Covalt
...airman

(SSgt. Mike Breslin)

Unit: 64th Supply Squadron.
Duty title: Refueling unit operator.
Time in service: 2 1/2 years.
Time at Reese: 2 years.
Hometown: Oklahoma City.

Achievements during the quarter: Airman Covalt was recognized for her part in preparing one JP-4 refueling truck and a general purpose vehicle for the monthly Top Wheels competition.

As a result, the SUPS Fuels Management Branch received top honors in both categories.

"Airman Covalt is a highly motivated airman who does her job and responsibilities in an outstanding manner," said SMSgt. George Henderson, 64th Supply Squadron fuels manager.

"Her 'can do' attitude was instrumental in the branch issuing over six million gallons of fuel to aircraft without delay or incident."

Airman Covalt is an active member of the community. She participated in the "Toys for Tots" program.

She is a member of the varsity softball team and the intramural softball and bowling teams. She has also supported the Air Force Assistance Fund and the Combined Federal Campaign.

Past awards: Airman Covalt was the refueling operator of the month for February.

She was also the squadron airman of the quarter for October-December 1989.

Education: Airman Covalt is currently working on her associates degree in logistics.

Goals: She plans to pursue a bachelors degree in management.

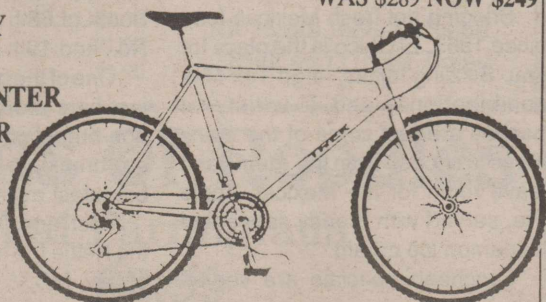

Hobbies: Fishing, hunting, bowling and softball.

Former wing commander earns ATC annual honor

A former wing commander at Reese has been cited as Air Training Command's elder statesman of aviation for 1990.

Retired Maj. Gen. Dudley Faver, commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing from January 1964 to June 1966, was credited for his support of aerospace power both during and since his 32-year active-duty career.

A native of Sweetwater, Texas, General Faver has stayed active since his retirement through his ties with the Air Force Association, Retired Officers Association and Order of Daedalians.

Having worked at numerous installations and with numerous aircraft, the general pointed to recent events in the world as evidence of the "tremendous strides" aviation has taken since his active-duty days.

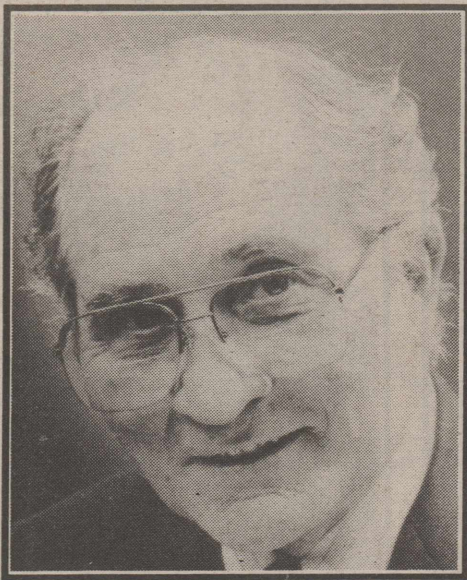

"Just look at Desert Storm," the general said. "The command and control involved so many different air forces and aircraft sorties, yet it was all executed precisely. The advances in our technology are obvious."

However, it wasn't just the technology that the general said he "marvelled" at.

He said the Air Force has the highest quality people ever in the history of military services, calling the all-volunteer force "better trained and educated than ever."

Talking about his recognition as an aviation statesman, the general was quick to thank wing and command officials for remembering him.

"It's been 51 years since I began my career, and 'imprints' left that long ago can get pretty faint," explained the 74-year-old general.

Retired Maj. Gen. Dudley Faver
...captures ATC honor

"I appreciate the fact that people would take the time to examine my contributions."

Looking at what lies ahead for military aviation, General Faver looked at readiness as being more crucial than ever to victory in any future conflicts.

"I don't think we'll have the preparation time we had in Desert Storm — we'll have to 'keep our powder dry,' as it were."

He also said that airlift capability and keeping highly trained people on hand would be the key, and he added that if we kept our technological edge in the future, top-notch people would have to be on hand to handle such weapons systems.

General Faver currently teaches management at the college of business at Texas Tech, where he also works with the Moms and Dads Program.

Rated officer assignments change

The Air Force is advertising assignment openings for rated officers and will soon expand the new system to include all officer assignments.

Changes to the Air Force Officer Assignment System now allow for more flexibility and give officers a greater say in their career development, Air Force personnel officials said.

"We are committed to provide a system which is less rule-driven, provides greater individual choice and responds to officers' career goals," said Col. Timothy Titus, director of assignments at the Air Force Military Personnel Center. "This new 'customer oriented' assignment system identifies openings, advertises the openings on an electronic bulletin board and then fills those openings with volunteers."

A rated officer assignments opportunities listing is available on electronic bulletin boards for those units which are already hooked up to the pilot retention hotline.

SSgt. Kerry Eason of the Reese Outbound Assignments Unit said that people without access to the modem hookup will soon be able to get the same up-to-date information from the Consolidated Base Personnel Office.

Officials expect CBPO information lines to be operational in May.

Information for each listing includes job title, Air Force specialty code, a short job description, necessary qualifications, authorized grades, duty location, report date, application deadlines, and an AFMPC point of contact and phone number. Each listing also has a tracking number people should refer to when calling AFMPC.

The previous assignment system was consistently identified as an irritant in surveys filled out by officers leaving the Air Force.

Over the past few years, about half of those surveyed said the assignment system was their primary source of irritation. Chief complaints cite an inflexible, rule-driven system which does not allow an individual any say in assignment decisions.

"We're listening, and we realize the system needs to change," Colonel Titus said. That change starts with a new assignment philosophy.

"The new philosophy is simple — there's a volunteer for every assignment," the colonel said. "Our job is to let people know where these open jobs are and to match individual career aspirations with these openings."

The old system worked with a set of rules for rated assignments that were "really inflexible," he said.

"For instance, we used to move people after a three-year tour, give or take a day, regardless of their desires."

Career decisions didn't allow for much more flexibility. "We managed flying careers by having everyone fill the same type positions, regardless of their goals."

The new system gives people more choices. "We're telling people, 'It's your career — set your sights and become an expert at your current job to lay a foundation for your next job,'" Colonel Titus said.

But the new system will not be a free-for-all, he cautioned. "Assignment decisions must still pass a sanity check," the colonel said.

Time-on-station requirements will still be restricted due to funding. Also, overseas tour lengths will remain the same to provide stability and continuity for those units.

People won't be moved unless there is an opening, and jobs will be filled by people with the right amount of experience and at the right time.

"Performance is still the key, and commanders will continue to provide recommendations to help people with their career planning," Colonel Titus said.

"The main point about assignments is the Air Force is listening, and we are improving the quality of the system. If we don't do it, call the AFMPC hotline at DSN 487-5475 and the commander will see to it you get an answer."

Locally, people with questions can call Sergeant Eason at 3361. (Air Force News Service)

In related news, 10 military positions at Reese will be affected when 75 such positions at eight ATC bases are converted to contract operations effective April 1, 1992.

These 75 positions are in base operations, both in airfield management and flight data maintenance functions.

Bases involved besides Reese include Columbus and Keesler AFBs, Miss.; Laughlin, Randolph and Sheppard AFBs, Texas; Vance AFB, Okla.; and Williams AFB, Ariz.

These direct conversions fall under the Defense Management Review process, which evaluates the use of existing-resources to ensure they are used to the Air Force's best advantage. It also keeps with government policy or relying on the private sector, if cost effective, for products and services when an in-house national defense capability isn't required.

Direct conversions may be authorized in activities with an all-military work force. The ATC staff determined that it's more cost effective to contract out than maintain base operations with military people.

Notes

Homecoming program planned

The children at Reese Elementary School will put on a program for participants in Operation Desert Storm at 7 p.m. Monday. School officials expressed their hope that all wing members who deployed in support of the operation will be able to attend.

54th FTS gets new commander

The 54th Flying Training Squadron will hold a change-of-command ceremony at 10 a.m. Tuesday in front of Base Operations. Lt. Col. Stanley Gorenc will assume command of the squadron. All wing members are welcome.

Accounting service to slow

Limited customer service will be available in the Reese Accounting and Finance Office Monday through May 23, as new carpeting and furniture is installed. AFO officials said they expected temporary delays in processing travel and legal claims during this time, and they asked customers to be patient.

Youth volunteers needed

Volunteers age 7-18 are needed for the "Kids in Touch with Kids" Program. For details, call the Reese Family Services Center at 3305.

Wing volunteers sought

Wing members are being sought to donate their off-duty time to help with a mentorship program at Frenship High School. According to Jeff Wilbur, Reese education services officer, the program is similar to Big Brothers/Sisters. Volunteers will occasionally meet with and assist a student who is "at risk," as defined by state criteria.

The volunteers will establish an ongoing relationship with the student, while showing an interest in the teen and his/her school progress. For details, call the center at 3634.

Big money bingo upcoming

Cash prizes totalling $4,000 will be up for grabs May 20 when the Reese Enlisted Open hosts a bingo for members of the EOM and the Officers' Open Mess, as well as their guests.

The games are set for 7 p.m., with an early bird session at 6:15 p.m. Everyone who wants to attend must have a bingo package — they cost $25 (two for $45). Players can pay for their packages in advance at the cashier's cage in the EOM.

Children under 10 will not be allowed at the May 20 bingo.

CHAMPUS statements needed

Beneficiaries under the Civilian Health and Medical Plan of the Uniformed Services should send non-availability statements to their claims processor when the statements are issued for non-emergency, inpatient care at a civilian hospital.

Reese health benefits officials said people should continue this practice until Oct. 1.

Beginning Oct. 1, the only such statements that will be accepted will be those entered electronically on the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System. At this point, the automated non-availability statement system will be running. For details, call Carolyn Johnson at 3581.

Randolph plans air show

Randolph AFB, Texas, will hold the Festival of the Armed Forces 1991 May 18, and it will feature a performance by the Thunderbirds.

Other attractions will include skydiving demonstrations, aircraft displays, bands and more. The event will run from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Tech offers three programs

Texas Tech will offer three evening courses in technology this August, according to Reese Education Center officials. They will include construction, electronics and mechanics. For details, call Tech at 742-3538 or the center at 3634.

Also, education center officials are encouraging wing members to take advantage of the CLEP and DANTES educational programs available to them. Over 100 free exams are offered under the programs, which allow people to earn college credit. Call 3634 for more information.

ITT offers cruise discount

The Reese Information, Tour and Ticket Office has a cruise discount available through the end of May for wing members. Military members can get a free cruise when they travel in the same cabin with a passenger who pays full fare.

For details, call 3722 or stop by ITT in the Mathis Recreation Center.

Reese mission maker

This week's Reese mission maker is A1C Shashi Jairam, a patrolman with the 64th Security Police Squadron.

The 22-year-old airman originally hails from Guyana in South America, but calls Maryland home these days. He's been in the service for two years, most of which have been at Reese.

That doesn't mean the airman doesn't "get around," however. He recently completed a six-month tour in support of Operation Desert Storm. He said the things he missed most were his family and girlfriend, but he also missed some of the modern conveniences of living in the states, such as his car.

Airman Jairam currently works day shift, and he said the work he gets to do is fulfilling.

"It gives me a chance to work with people, and to help them sometimes," he said. "Besides that, I like being able to help make the base safer by enforcing the law."

In his free time, the airman is working on his education through the Community College of the Air Force and South Plains College. He said he's looking to accumulate enough credits to be able to apply for the Airman Education and Commissioning Program next year.

Other interests of his include reading, hunting and bicycling.

Wing members
base contest

Reese Arts and Crafts Center Director Terry Boyman places "September" by Alice Bortiatynski on one of the center's walls. The painting took first place in its category in the annual artist/craftsman contest. Other winners included Sgt. Scott Gerow and Sharon Wood, who took first and second place in the three-dimensional fine crafts category, respectively.

Police
week
kicks off Monday

National Police Week will be celebrated Sunday through May 18, while National Peace Officer Memorial Day will be celebrated Wednesday.

A formal retreat is scheduled for Wednesday.

During the week, Reese security police will sponsor a ride-a-long program for wing members and their families. The Reese community is being encouraged by the 64th Security Police Squadron to participate in this program and experience a day with the SPs.

The week's activities will be capped off May 18 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in front of the Main Exchange. Activities will include child fingerprinting, operation identification (bicycle engraving), a weapons display and a police vehicle display with a demonstration.

The military working dog section will be also be present to answer questions, as will security police from Desert Storm.

Wing members will have the opportunity to be a "Reese defender" at the base park. They'll be able to fire blank ammunition at some "aggressors" and register a "hit." The multi-integrated laser engagement system, better known as "miles," will be used to test their skills. SPS is looking forward to seeing everyone there. Any questions should be directed to SSgt. Al Soto at 3951 or SSgt. Kathrine Meyers at 3946.

Volleyball playoffs set for next week

Regular season wraps up today

The intramural volleyball season was scheduled to end today, as every team was positioning themselves for the playoffs.

In the American League, the standings changed recently as the 52nd Flying Training Squadron "A" team, 10-1, took sole position of first place for the first time in the regular season. The 52nd was followed by the 35th FTS with a record of 9-1. Third and fourth places were held by the 54th FTS "A," 8-1, and 33rd FTS, 9-2, respectively.

The National League picture is a lot clearer as the 41st remained in first with a record of 10-3. Close behind was the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital "A" team, 8-5. In third place, 64th Mission Support Squadron was a distant 5-6.

"two" was the magic number for the MSS, but the 41st was "too" much for them.

May 2

□ 35th FTS defeated Resource Management, 15-7 and 12-10. In the evening's first match, the 35th won by eight to take the game. In the second game, the 35th pulled out a two-point win as time was called.

□ 52nd FTS "A" defeated 64th Civil Engineering Squadron, 15-2 and 14-5. Two quick defeats gave the 52nd "A" team the win against CES team.

□ 52nd FTS "A" defeated Hospital "B," 15-0 and 15-0 by forfeit.

Tuesday

□ MSS defeated Lockheed, 15-7, 14-16 and 15-10. In game one, MSS took the win handily, but the tables were turned as Lockheed won the second game. MSS bounced back to down Lockheed.

□ 35th FTS defeated 54th FTS "B," 13-6, 9-15 and 14-5. The 35th and the 54th fought a hard battle in the second match of the night, as the 35th took the spoils.

□ 52nd FTS "B" defeated RM, 7-12, 16-14 and 12-8. The RM team managed to take an early lead in the match by winning the first game. The 52nd team came back to take the final two games and win the match.

May 1

□ 35th Flying Training Squadron defeated 41st FTS, 10-13, 15-7 and 13-7. The 41st jumped out to a big start, but the 35th overpowered them in the last two games to take the match.

□ 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital "A" defeated 52nd FTS "B," 16-14 and 14-5. The 52nd "B" team managed to stay with the hospital team as the first game went into sudden death. In the second game, the hospital team ran away with the game as time ran out.

□ 41st FTS defeated 64th Mission Support Squadron, 15-2 and 15-2. In the last game of the evening,

Pony league action gets started at Reese

TSgt. James Franks (above), 64th Security Police Squadron, throws the ceremonial first pitch of the Reese-Frenship Pony Baseball League season Monday on the Reese ballfield. Sergeant Franks, one of the wing members who deployed in support of Operation Desert Storm, threw the pitch to his son, Matthew. After the pitch, action got under way as Jared Herring (left) and other league players took to the field.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PREPARATION OF LUNCHES

1. Freeze a small can of juice and pack it with your lunch. As it thaws, it will keep everything cool.
2. Use a hearty, satisfying bread, like whole wheat, pumpernickle, oatmeal or rye. For variety, try buns, bagels or pita bread.
3. Freeze sandwiches for the week. Frozen sandwiches save last minute preparation and stay safe longer in hot weather. Meat, chicken, turkey and peanut butter freeze well. Mayonnaise does not freeze.
4. Wrap vegetables like lettuce and tomatoes separately in a baggie. They will stay fresher and won't make your sandwich soggy. You can add them just before eating.
5. Meat sliced thin and stacked is easier to bite than one thick slice on a sandwich.
6. Spread margarine or mayonnaise to the edge of the slice of bread so the moist filling won't make the bread soggy.
7. Score an orange and wrap in clear plastic to make peeling easier.
8. Cut sandwiches in quarters, they are easier to eat.
