Wing soars at inaugural Top Flight

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
managing editor

Reese pilots, maintainers and aircraft shined at the command's first "Top Flight" competition at Laughlin AFB, Texas, taking first place in two categories and second in another.

T-37 maintainers from Lockheed were tops in their portion of the maintenance/operations competition during the June 13-14 event, while T-37 "Tweet" pilots took second in their division. T-38 maintainers from the wing were also very competitive, finishing strong. Likewise, "Talon" pilots performed well in a tight contest.

Two wing T-37s — tail nos. 2295 and 0341 — tied for first with 39 of 40 points in the aircraft appearance and sortie reliability category.

During Top Flight, competitors were tested in areas directly related to their daily mission. Pilots flew sorties with command flight examiners, while maintainers were judged on aircraft appearance, preflights, refueling and other maintenance functions.

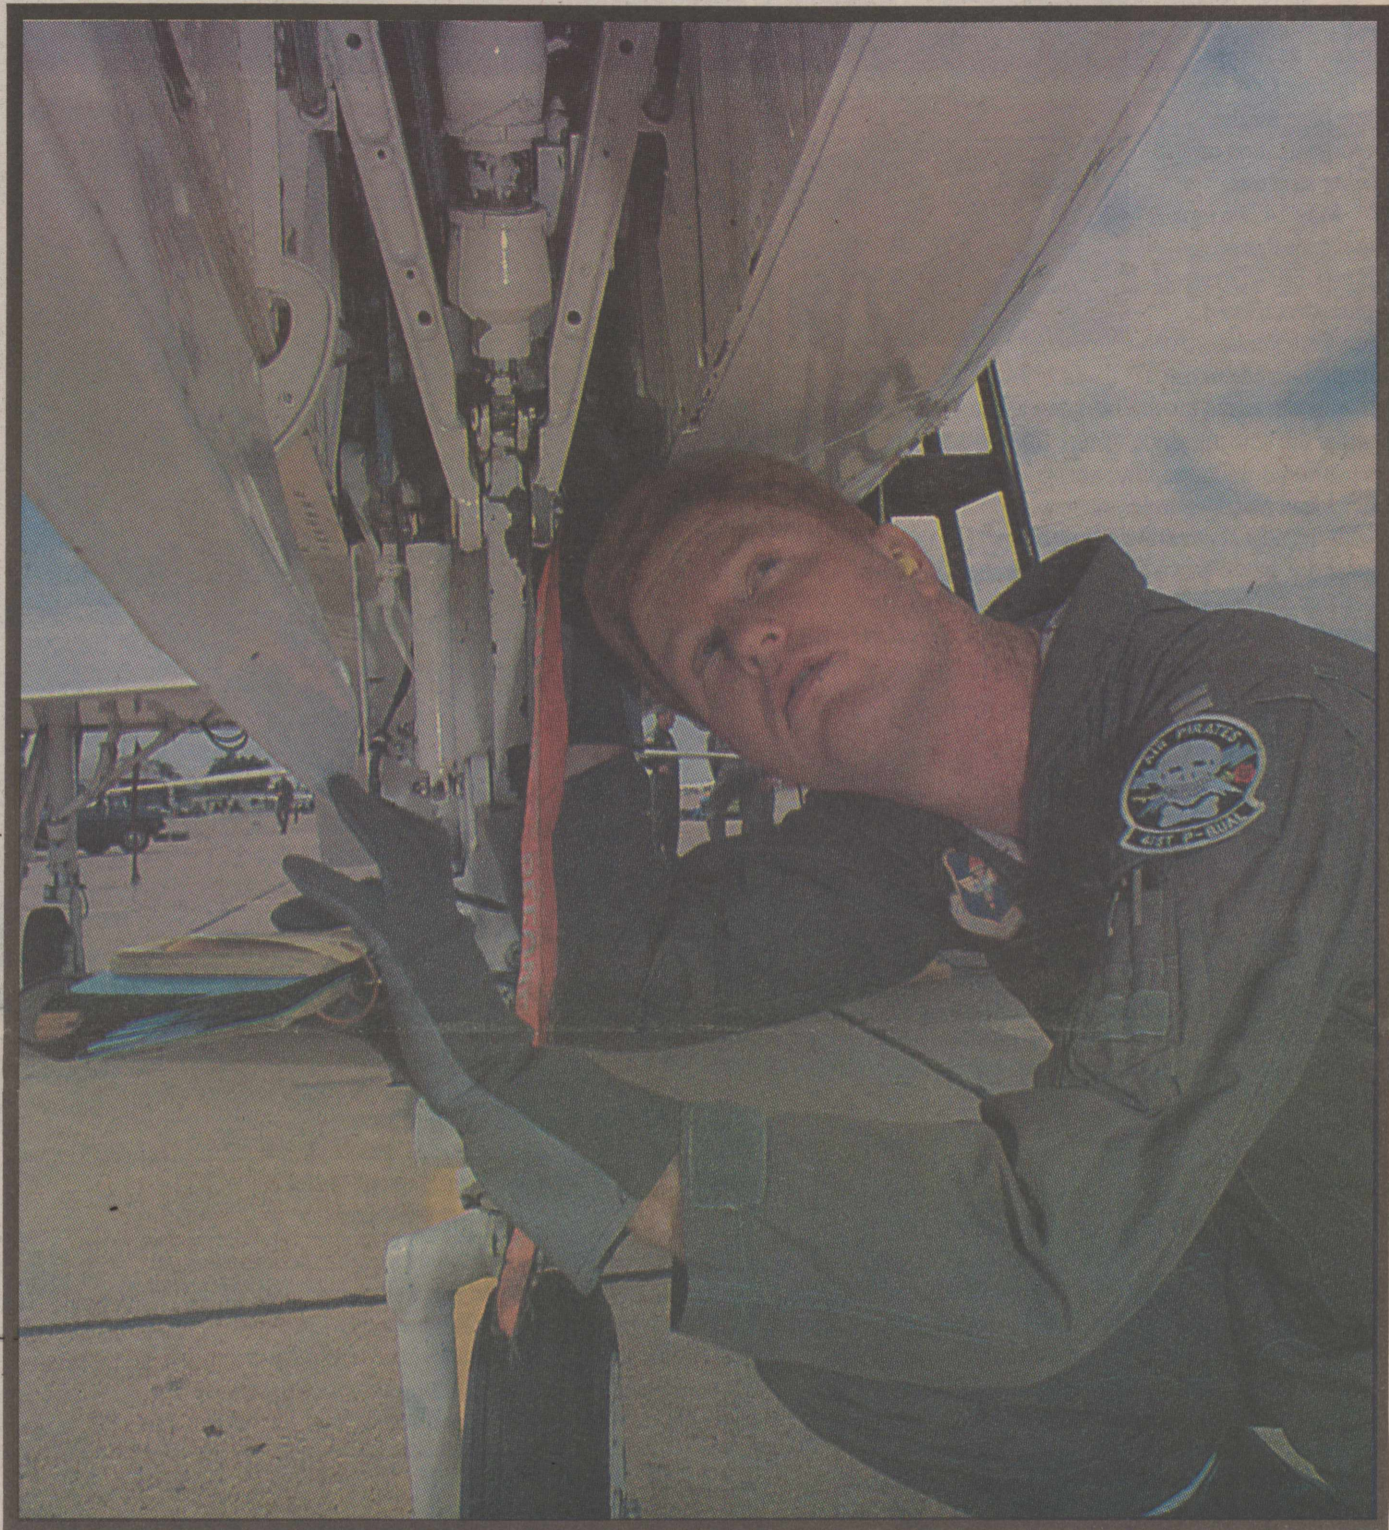

Competitors and aircraft were randomly chosen by the command shortly before Top Flight. The short notice and random selection was designed to make the competition an accurate gauge of how well the pilot training wings are accomplishing their day-to-day mission.

Though the competitors were doing what they do most every day, there were still some differences from their normal routine.

"During the sorties, the examiners who were with us wouldn't fly any of the maneuvers," Capt. William Russell of the T-37s operations team said, explaining that a student normally would. "They would give us a scenario that might say that the 'student' we were going to fly with hadn't flown in three weeks, and it would also say how he or she had flown. We would have to base our instruction on that scenario.

The Tweet pilots finished second behind Sheppard AFB, Texas. Captain Russell credited that team's experience as the factor that propelled them to victory.

The Tweet maintainers had to fight off a tough team

Reese makes good showing at Top Flight

Capt. Kenneth Schreiber does a preflight check on a T-38 prior to departure to Laughlin AFB, Texas for the first "Top Flight" competition. Reese's teams at the command event all made a good showing, as they captured two first places and one second.

Open house brings Reese, area together

by SSgt. Mike Breslin
managing editor

Highlighted by what one spectator called the "Super Bowl of air shows," the base's 50th anniversary celebration and open house Saturday and Sunday brought spectators from throughout the Southwest.

The weekend's activities attracted about 150,000 people, according to security police. In addition to the performances by the Blue Angels each day, people were treated to a variety of displays and demonstrations, as well as live music throughout the weekend.

People in attendance weren't disappointed.

"I saw an air show in Amarillo a while back, and this one was much better," said Brett Ladd of Lubbock. "I also liked the stealth fighter fly-by — that's why I came out Sunday instead of Saturday."

His enthusiasm was apparently shared by his family. His brother's family drove four hours from Pampa, Texas, to visit Reese.

"People really like a chance to go out to the base and see what goes on, especially since they don't often get the chance to do that," said Mary Ann Edwards, a member of the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce Armed Services Committee. "They see military people downtown all the time, and they're curious about how the base and the military do things."

Another spectator, Kim Ingle of Tahoka, was attending her first show since childhood. "Awesome" was her assessment of the day's events.

The praise wasn't restricted to comments made during the event. Letters mailed to the base shortly after the event included comments such as:

"I could not have enjoyed myself more."

From my perspective

by Col. Ford Barrett special assistant for reorganization

We have completed our first month as Air Training Command's test base for the reorganization of wing structure.

May 14, we took the steps that were prescribed in the test plan: deactivated resource management; moved aircraft maintenance and the maintenance evaluation function under the new operation group; formed a logistics squadron from the supply, transportation and logistics plans and placed it under the new support group along with the new contracting squadron; moved the comptroller and legal divisions directly under the wing commander and redesignated the 41st Flying Training Squadron as the 64th Operations Support Squadron (with newly-acquired operations staff functions) and the 64th Flying Training Wing Hospital became the 64th Medical Squadron.

Reorganization 'kicks off'

That ceremony more than a month ago was much like the kickoff in a football game. The first play is over and now the action is beginning in earnest. We have been busy identifying potential areas of improvement as we look at ourselves through "reorganizational" glasses. I think that we are seeing some streamlining of the decision-making process at second leadership levels — and we expect more benefits to come as the remainder of the wing becomes interested and involved. It really is a great opportunity for us to try and mold the wing into the most effective framework.

The most exciting aspect of a project like this is the imagination and initiative that is unleashed. The almost limitless number of ideas that have been raised concerning methods for units to be better structured is gratifying. For example, in our mid-June report to the command, we are proposing the activation of a unit whose sole mission is to prepare the wing for contingencies. The unit includes readiness, the command post, logistics plans, BEET and disaster preparedness. Their main objective will be to ensure we can handle catastrophes like the Iraqi invasion, tornados and the like.

We have already merged the weather and base operations flights within the operations support squadron. We will propose that life support move into the maintenance support squadron in a combining of like duties. The wing suggested, and I believe the command will support, moving the communication squadron's air traffic control function into operations.

Other areas eyed

Currently, wing teams are looking at command post, orderly room and clerical functions as possible areas where additional streamlining may take place. In some cases, we hope to gain manpower savings over time. In all cases, we will gain efficiencies in the way our people work toward getting the mission done.

It is an exciting time. Each one of us is challenged with looking beyond the walls in which we normally work. The objective is not to do more with less — but to do our own job better. We all have had ideas on how we could be better aligned. Now is a great opportunity to work with the command to test your suggestions.

Our goal is to continuously improve the way we do business. I look forward to your suggestions.

(Mike Herd)

The Blue Angels performed during Reese's 50th Anniversary open house Saturday. Security police officials estimated that 150,000 people visited the base over the weekend.

Commander extends best wishes

by Lt. Gen. Joseph Ashy
ATC commander

Please convey our best wishes to the men and women of Reese as they celebrate the 50th anniversary of the establishment of the base Wednesday.

As the oldest active undergraduate pilot training base, Reese holds a special place in the history of our present day Air Force. It is most fitting, therefore, that Reese should be the first base to receive the T-1A tanker-transport training system aircraft and the first to convert to specialized undergraduate pilot training.

Reese members, both military and civilian, can take pride in the base's long tradition of training excellence and in their own contributions to the rich history of the base. We are confident that they will continue to build on that strong foundation in the years ahead.

As wing commander, I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your inputs and suggestions can help Reese remain the pacesetter in the command. If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command. You may remain anonymous if you wish, but those who leave their name and number can get a direct response to their call.

Savings bonds plan for your future

by Maj. Richard Willis
Reese savings bond project officer

Savings bonds offered through the payroll savings plan are 50 years old this year.

The series E bond, the predecessor to the series EE bond now offered through our payroll savings plan, was introduced in 1941 because America needed funds for defense financing and the individual needed a way to save regularly and sensibly.

Over the years, savings bonds have become America's most widely held security. They became a tradition because they were flexible, within reach of the small investor, and because they were guaranteed by the government against loss of principal.

As the 50th anniversary of the modern savings bond is noted, it is time for you to consider once again what you can do for your country and yourself. Consider seriously the purchase of savings bonds.

Pick up any major newspaper and read the advertisements for a variety of investment tools. High yield, tax advantages and safety are important attractions in many investment offers.

And along with these, you may find high minimum investment requirements, long holding periods, penalties for early withdrawal, and broker and management fees. You also may be faced with the fact that your high-interest investment is subject to federal income taxes on a yearly basis. It also is subject to state and local taxes. And you might have to make your purchase at a fixed rate of return or with some risk to your investment.

With savings bonds, there is no risk. Your investment is backed by the government. When held for five years or more, savings bonds pay a guaranteed rate of 6 percent no matter what the market does. If the market rises, the savings bonds rate can rise too. Current rate is 6.57 percent, and the five year average is 7.73 percent.

The tax liability on the interest earned on savings bonds can be deferred from federal income taxes and is totally exempt from state and local income taxes.

And, since January 1990, series EE bonds can provide a tax advantage for some purchasers when the bonds are bought and used to pay education expenses for themselves or their children.

Savings bonds are easy to obtain through our payroll savings plans.

There are no broker's fees involved in the purchase or redemption of savings bonds and no manager's fees involved in managing a portfolio.

You don't need large sums of money to begin your savings bonds fund. And, in the event of an emergency, your investment is available for use after six months.

Every financial decision includes considerations such as risk, taxes and eventual return. Consider the advantages of savings bonds — celebrate an American tradition and buy them!

Fourth can make for fiery phenomena

by MSgt. Roy Napper
Reese Fire Department

Fourth of July fun can be a "fiery" fate.

The use of fireworks at Reese, Reese Village and in Lubbock is prohibited unless the fireworks displays are controlled by a licensed professional company and approved by the commander.

This may seem unreasonable but there are two reasons why the use of fireworks at Reese are prohibited.

First, fireworks create a severe fire hazard potential due to dry weeds, grass and bushes surrounding the base.

Second, fireworks present a real potential for injury to fingers, hands and eyes; loss of hearing; severe burns; and even death!

Some safety tips to follow are:

- Always read directions and use common sense.
- Have a responsible adult present.
- Use fireworks outdoors only — away from buildings, vehicles, dry grass and other flammable liquids or gases.
- Only light one at a time.
- Never point or throw fireworks at another person.

- Never alter or take apart any type of fireworks.
- Never, under any circumstances, give fireworks to young children.
- Have a bucket of water, or portable fire extinguishers ready for emergencies and for dousing misfired and spent fireworks.
- Never attempt to re-light or fix malfunctioning fireworks.

- Have a first aid kit available in the event of accidents.

- Never put fireworks in your pocket or attach them to your person. If an accident occurred, you could be a fireworks display!

Have a great Fourth of July celebration, but do so safely. Burns and injuries received from fireworks can be a lifelong memory that results in tremendous pain and psychological suffering.

Heat stress: something to sweat about

With the current heat wave at Reese, it is important to know some of the facts and measures to counter the effects of heat stress.

First, know the three most common heat-related illnesses:

Heat cramps are characterized by intermittent, painful contractions of muscle. It's caused by excessive loss of salt from sweating. You may feel weak, nauseated and sweaty.

Heat exhaustion results from exposure to excessive heat. The person may have signs and symptoms of extreme fatigue, headache, weakness, dizziness, dim or blurred vision, nausea and possible vomiting. Sweating, cool skin, rapid heart beat and loss of consciousness may also occur.

Heat stroke is a breakdown of the body's heat-control mechanism. The symptoms are flushed, dry skin, elevated temperature — as high as 105-106 degrees — nausea, a throbbing headache and sweating. These can be accompanied by severe mental impairment that can include mental confusion, disorientation, bizarre behavior or coma.

Warm weather isn't going to stop the mission, so what can you do?

The single most important preventive measure is to drink plenty of water. The amount ranges from a pint an hour for temperatures of 80 degrees to more than two quarts an hour for above 88 degrees.

Other measures include avoiding alcohol and beverages with caffeine or sugar. Alcohol and caffeine can cause a loss of vital body fluids, leading to dehydration. Sugar prevents the body from absorbing fluids.

Three meals a day should be eaten to get the salt your body needs.

Don't wait until you're thirsty to drink water. Thirst is not a good indicator of how much water your body needs.

RECYCLING EXPERIENCE—A WINNING WAY TO PRESERVE PROFESSIONAL RESOURCES

Retirees and other seasoned veterans who have "been there" are being recycled to train future crewmembers for Strategic Air Command KC-10s. Averaging more than 6,000 flight hours apiece and bearing the wisdom acquired in medal-winning combat tours, these "old pros" are now teaching SAC's "new warriors."

They are part of a growing cadre of McDonnell Douglas contract instructors imprinting skills and experience on TAC's A-10, OV-10, F-4, F-15/F-15E and F/EF-111 crews in addition to SAC's KC-10 and MAC's future C-17 aircrews. Recently, the U.S. Navy selected McDonnell Douglas to train crews of the E-6A.

Recycling human resources is good for retirees whose skills are saved; good for students who learn from experienced instructors. It's good for everyone. Ask SAC, TAC, MAC and the U.S. Navy.

—Among the Leaders training Leaders, Paul L. Barry, KC-10 Instructor Flight Engineer, has over 11 years flying experience with 4,000 hours in the air and 1,800 simulator instructor hours. Experience... you bet! Flew the first load of U.S. students out of Grenada. Flew missions in support of U.S. Navy Persian Gulf Operations and Panama Operations. Competed in SAC's Bombing and Navigation Competition, 1987. Flies regularly with the AF Reserve Squadron at Seymour Johnson AFB, NC.

We are now planning for the T-37/T-38 contract instructor project at Reese AFB and other ATC Bases. If you are a quality-oriented instructor pilot retired or retiring, please send your resume to: McDonnell Douglas Training Systems Inc., 3901 Airport Frwy, Suite 100, Bedford, TX 76021.

The hard work by all people was evident. The Blue Angels were an impressive sight." — Owen Huffaker, senior vice president of Plains National Bank.

"All of the personnel treated us just great. The attitude of these young people is a tribute to the great training you give them." — Craig McDonald, Craig McDonald Private Investing.

"I just wanted to drop you a note and express my sincere appreciation to you and your people for an excellent show. About the only comment necessary about the Blue Angels is that I am damn sure glad I was not an Iraqi on Jan. 15." — David Standlee, president of South Plains International Trucks Inc.

Off-base people weren't the only ones impressed.

"The Blue Angels' show definitely stacks up with other teams I've seen," said Sgt. Phil Duffy, 64th Mission Support Squadron. He added that he's seen 10 such performances.

News of the weekend events at Reese spread throughout the Southwest, as Associated Press picked up on the story. Major dailies as far away as San Antonio and Austin carried news and photos of the open house.

All of the weekend's festivities helped strengthen what was described as a "great" relationship between Reese and the South Plains.

"The 50-year friendship between Reese and the surrounding South Plains communities only gets stronger as a result of these events," said Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. "Whether it's helping with a big event like this or simply maintaining good day-to-day relations with our friends and neighbors in the area, the people of Reese continue to stand tall.

"Everyone who helped make the weekend such a resounding success deserves a big hand," the colonel added. "Well done!"

from Laughlin to take their win. Reese T-37 maintenance team chief John Robertson said it was deadlocked near the end and was only decided after the written exam part of the competition.

"Our guys were ready for this — we came out strong," Mr. Robertson said. "We felt pretty confident about our chances, although we didn't know we'd taken first until it was announced." He added that the quality of the other base teams presented the biggest challenge for competitors.

Capt. Kenneth Schreiber of the Talon operations team said the competition in his category was also tight.

"We were told that there was only one percentage point between first and last place," he said. "This shows that everyone in the command is doing a good job of training pilots."

Gerald Thorpe, T-38 maintenance chief, also commented on the challenges Top Flight presented. He noted that each of his team had to put in 29 hours over the two days.

Sheppard AFB, Texas, captured the Air Training Command Top Wing Award at the end of Top Flight as the winner of the flight competition. Laughlin took the top overall honors for maintenance.

Team chiefs of the Reese competitors said Top Flight was both fun and educational. "It was definitely a learning experience," said Mr. Thorpe. "We were able to see the things that were done wrong, and we can pass that on to the next team."

On the fun side, Reese was crowned as champions during the Top Flight "crud" competition. Crud is a game played on a billiards table where competitors try to eliminate each member of the other team by sinking the ball.

Reese's crud team, consisting of Capt. John Pegg, Capt. Michael Psaromatis, Captain Schreiber and 1st Lt. Thomas Zupanich, fended off challenges from Laughlin; Sheppard AFB, Texas; and Williams AFB, Ariz. to take the title.

Free money! Suggestions earn big bucks

Three recent suggestions by Reese members have saved the Air Force a total of $19,559.64.

TSgt. David Koester, 3307th Test Evaluation Squadron, suggested that an external ring clamp on the T-38 ejection seat electrical quick disconnect be incorporated into cockpit modification.

Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, when presenting Sergeant Koester with a check for $708, commented that he was pleased to pass along part of the $7,079 savings that will result from the sergeant's suggestion.

This was the second time in as many months for Sergeant Koester to participate in the Air Force Suggestion Program. In May, he received $392 for his successful challenge in the Zero Overpricing Program.

"The bonuses presented to Sergeant Koester are a good example of how two programs work hand in hand for the benefit of both the Air Force and individual members," said Ruede Turner, suggestion program manager.

MSgt. Joseph McDowell's paycheck will be $856 larger this month because of a suggestion he made that was approved in 1989. He proposed the use of 8.5-inch computer paper for certain reports rather than 11-inch paper. During a year-long test of the proposal, the Air Force saved $8,557. Sergeant McDowell is now stationed in Guam.

Tangible savings are not the only basis for making cash awards. According to Mrs. Turner, suggestions that result in efficiency, economy and effectiveness may also be considered for monetary awards when justified. For example, Maj. Gary Tucker, Reese Base Exercise Evaluation Team chief, made the suggestion that skeet range equipment be sold or transferred when the Reese range closed. Through his involvement, the fixtures were transferred to McConnell AFB, Kansas.

The skeet range equipment was carried on Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division books at no value, since it had been fully depreciated. Because of Major Tucker's suggestion, the McConnell MWR program received an intangible benefit, and Major Tucker received an award of $100.

The new Air Training Command goal is to have suggestions evaluated locally within 10 days. "This directive has speeded up the entire process dramatically," said Mrs. Turner. "When higher headquarters approval and implementation is required, it becomes more complicated. At times, budgetary and technological implications delay worthwhile and dollar-saving ideas. But once a suggestion is made, it is followed up periodically until final action is complete," she added.

"No award can be made for a suggestion until it is documented," she said. "Put those innovative ideas on a Form 1000 and make your improvement pay off!"

For more information on the program, call 3148.

SSgt. Chris Foster does a quality assurance check in the fuels laboratory.

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

Mission maker

This week's mission maker is SSgt. Chris Foster, noncommissioned officer in charge of the fuels laboratory.

The 27-year-old San Jose, Calif., native has been in the Air Force eight years. He has served over four of those years at Reese.

Prior to Reese, he served at Castle AFB, Calif., and Suwon AB, Korea, as a fuels operator.

"We make sure we have clean fuel from its arrival on base until we refuel the aircraft," said Sergeant Foster about the fuels lab. "One thing the Reese pilots don't have to worry about is the fuel."

Sergeant Foster will cross-train in December after the fuels branch goes contract. He will be a medical services specialist here at Reese. "I'm getting the job I wanted when I came in the Air Force," said Sergeant Foster. "I hope to give them a different outlook, being that I worked on the support and operations side of the house."

He spends his off-duty time with his wife Faye and their two sons - Brandon, 5, and Mathew, 3. He also enjoys golf and skiing.

These things are eating me alive

by Sgt. Greg Spraggins
editor

This is open season for humans. The recent rains kicked off the mosquito breeding season, which in turn kicked off the mosquito biting season.

Mosquitoes breed anywhere water can accumulate: weeds and high grass, pools and tree holes. Additionally, tires, cans and even plastic wrappers serve as artificial breeding areas.

Aside from itchy bites, mosquitoes can transmit diseases such as encephalitis and dengue. Fortunately, the AIDS virus cannot be transmitted by mosquitoes.

"All mosquitoes are active when there is high humidity and moderate temperatures," said SSgt. Robert Roach, environmental health services. "Mosquitoes are attracted to carbon dioxide, which is what humans and other mammals exhale when breathing."

Sergeant Roach said that most mosquitoes don't travel more than 100 yards from their breeding sites. "If you allow mosquitoes to breed near you, chances are you'll be on their menu," he said.

According to Sergeant Roach, fogging and traps only kill the mosquitoes that they come in contact with, but do not leave any lasting protection. Thus, elimination of breeding sites is the most effective means of control.

For more information, call environmental health services at 3534.

(Sgt. Greg Spraggins)

SSgt. Robert Roach, environmental health services, checks a mosquito trap by the base lake. The traps are used to determine the amount of control methods to be used.

Rattlers end season as league runner up

The base men's varsity softball team was in action Monday night as they defeated the "Borrowed Money Bandits" 20-14 to end their season as the Lubbock men's recreation league runner-up. The Rattlers finished with a record of 9-1, behind Charley's Auto Supply.

The Rattlers' offense got off to a sluggish start in the first inning as Milton Rice was the only player to reach base. The Bandits failed to get a hit in their half of the first.

The second inning was a repeat of the first for the Rattlers. The Bandits, however, capitalized on a couple of errors by the Rattlers to score seven runs in the bottom of the second. At the end of two, the score stood 7-0 in favor of the Bandits.

The Rattlers exploded for five runs in the third inning. Leading the way was Kenneth Cathey with a single. The runs were scored by Cathey, Andre Harley, Marvin Tyler, Zeke Mowery and Mose Simmons.

In the fourth inning, the Rattlers took advantage of Bandit errors to score seven runs, and then held the Bandits offense to one run in the bottom of the inning to leave the score at the end of four innings at Bandits 14, Rattlers 12.

Neither team scored in the fifth inning.

In the final inning, Rattler shortstop Ernest Young hit a grounder for a single. Mowery and Rice both reached base on errors by the opposing team. Mose Simmons then hit a triple to tie the score at 14. Marvin Davis followed with a single, and an error by the Bandits allowed Ed Harrelson to reach base. Michael Harrison hit a home run to clear the bases and make the score 18-14 in favor of the Rattlers. Cathey and Harley both scored to run the score to 20-14.

The Rattlers then won the game by shutting down the Bandit offense in their last at-bat.

Davis went 3 for 4, while Young, Cathey and Simmons each had two hits in three appearances.

Other members of the team are: Eric Ely, Leo Jones, Thomas Duke and Terry Reilly.

The base team is coached by Quincey Roberts.

National League dominating intramural action

record of 6-1 and the 64th Mission Support Squadron, 6-2.

The 64th Security Police Squadron with a record of 3-0 leads the way in the American League. The Marines, 3-2, and 35th Flying Training Squadron, 1-1, are closely behind in second and third, respectively.

Games canceled due to condition of fields.

With Grateful Appreciation General Motors Salutes The Men And Women Of Our Armed Forces, And Offers Them Something Special:

An Easier Way To Buy A New Car Or Truck.

Your Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Buick, Cadillac and GMC Truck dealers have incentive plans already in place that make it easy to buy a new car or light truck.

But now through the end of the year, the divisions of GM are offering a Special Military Program to all active U.S. military personnel and reservists called to active duty during the Persian Gulf War or their spouses.

Here's how it works. You get three hundred dollars in down payment assistance, plus any additional down payment you make is matched up to five hundred dollars when you buy a new GM car or light truck and finance it through GMAC. That can mean as much as eight hundred dollars toward your purchase. Add that to existing incentives, and you can save even more. The Special Military Program is not available with the college graduate program, first-time buyer program or overseas vehicle purchase program. See your participating GM dealer for qualification details.

It's a small gesture on our part in partial exchange for the tremendous gesture each of you has made. And our way of expressing thanks for a job well done.
