

Joe Price named Friend of Reese

Lubbock citizen Joe Price was named the 12th and newest member of the "Friends of Reese" during a special retreat ceremony Wednesday, in front of Bldg. 800.

The induction of Mr. Price, president of the local Air Force Association chapter, signified his "steadfast, unselfish support of Reese" over the years, according to base officials.

"I believe to be called a friend means to be trustworthy," said Mr. Price during the retreat. "I thank you. I'm deeply touched to be named a Friend of Reese. God bless you and God bless the United States."

"Friends of Reese" is a group of citizens who have been singled out by the base as having gone "beyond the call of duty" while distinguishing themselves as friends, benefactors and advocates. It is the highest honor Reese can bestow upon a citizen.

The original four "Friends of Reese" were the Honorable George Mahon, Charles Guy, L. E. "Jack" Davis and O.W. "Babe" English. All four of these men were instrumental in locating what is now Reese at Lubbock in 1940. The current members are as follows:

□ Bill McMillan Jr. Mr. McMillan is currently president of W. G. McMillan Construction Co. and was inducted in September 1982.

□ Douglas Boren. Mr. Boren is se-

Open house Sunday

Reese will open its gates to the South Plains Sunday when it hosts an open house featuring the Thunderbirds and the Army Golden Knights parachute team.

In addition, UPT Career Day will be held Saturday as a variety of events are staged for both students and other wing members.

The open house schedule, which is subject to change, includes the following highlights:

□ 8 a.m. — Gates open to the public.

□ 9:30 a.m. — Thunderbird arrival show.

□ 10:10 a.m. and 2:15 p.m. — Golden Knights demonstration.

□ 3 p.m. — Thunderbird performance begins with a preflight ground show.

Other attractions will include numerous aircraft displays and special demonstrations inside Hangar 82, as well as a repeat of last year's "Red, White and Blues" music celebration, featuring area bands performing throughout the day.

Gates will close at 6 p.m. A detailed schedule of the day, including information on the Thunderbirds and other special features, are contained in the special magazine-style open house edition of the Roundup. The

From my perspective

by Charles Gerrior
ground safety manager

The Air Force developed the "101 Critical Days of Summer" campaign to reverse the unacceptable mishap trends experienced between Memorial Day and Labor Day weekends.

Although the mishap trends have improved, summer mishaps still occur.

Mishap potentials must be identified and corrected and people must be informed of the hazards to prevent mishaps and injury. During the summer of 1991, there was only one reportable military mishap here. This year, let's shoot for zero.

Outdoor sports can be dangerous

The primary types of summer off-duty mishaps are sport and recreation related. With the onset of summer and extended hours of daylight, more sports and recreation mishaps can occur; getting burned while barbecuing or falling from a boat without a life jacket, for instance. Incidents involving private motor vehicles, motorcross, bicycling, softball, volleyball, water and the home are common. Most of these mishaps can be avoided if common sense and logic are used.

Safety is for everyone

In many mishaps, basic safety rules are ignored or not observed. Many times, a person who is injured thinks mishap prevention applies to others, not themselves. Often the person injured is a bystander, not involved with the activities producing the injury, such as a small child run over by a ball player.

Summer can be a great season if we all take the time to be safe. Observe the safety rules at home, at the beach, on the playgrounds and on the ball fields and make your summer mishap free for you and your family.

Leaders send Memorial Day messages

by George Bush
president

Today all Americans pause to remember those patriots who have laid down their lives for our nation and for the principles for which it stands.

As individuals who share the same love of freedom and sense of duty that motivated these heroes and as servicemembers who know the risks that they faced so bravely, you have a special understanding of the magnitude of their gifts to us. From the revolutionaries who died at Lexington and Concord, to your comrades who fell while driving out the Iraqi army from Kuwait, Americans who have perished in the name of peace and liberty have helped to ensure the preservation and progress of these ideals around the world.

When President Lincoln dedicated the cemetery at Gettysburg, he told his audience that "from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion." We have long enjoyed the fruits of that selfless love, and we too take inspiration from it. I am sure that, as you honor the memory of those who have given their lives, you will renew your commitment to the defense of freedom. On behalf of all Americans, I salute and thank you for your loyal service to our country.

by Dick Cheney
secretary of defense

On Memorial Day, as the sound of taps echo throughout the United States, we think of all Americans who have died in the service of our country.

Our nation's strength, founded on your vigilance and skill and the courage of those we honor today, has played a central role in laying the foundation of a new world order.

Since last year, we have witnessed the end of hostile relations with the former Soviet Union and the beginning of new relationships. But we still see other challenges and dangers ahead in the world. Ultimately, we hope to enjoy a just and lasting peace founded on freedom.

You, the men and women of today's armed forces, help us to honor Americans who have given their lives for freedom. Every day, as you renew your pledge to keep our country strong and ready, you provide the most fitting monument to the memory of the heroes who have gone before. I join all Americans in thanking you for your service to America and in remembering those who have given their lives for our liberty.

by Lt. Gen. Joseph Ashy
ATC commander

On this Memorial Day, as we salute the Americans who died in defense of this great nation, let us pause to truly acknowledge their sacrifice.

As we remember those who so unselfishly paid the ultimate price for freedom, let us also remember the freedoms they fought so gallantly to defend. (ATC News Service)

Reese vision: "Reese people leading the way in supporting and training professional officers and quality pilots for the Air Force."

Quality Air Force

by Ruedelee Turner
suggestion monitor

Quality Air Force is not a new concept—the Air Force has always looked for quality improvements. One way we made improvements in the past was through the Air Force Suggestion Program, and this program still exists today. Through this program an individual can recommend improvements at the local level and possibly change the entire Air Force. Ideas or recommendations that are adopted with savings identified can result in a cash award to the suggester.

Quality improvement teams can also recommend improvements through the suggestion program. Since these recommended improvements are determined through a team effort resulting from job responsibility, different rules apply. Depending on the circumstances and if savings are significant, certain awards can be presented to team members.

Savings identified result in a Quality Air Force and the added benefit of savings credit for Reese. For example, recently a suggester recommended the consolidation of two warehouses which saved one manpower authorization. Reese received credit for that manpower savings and $30,430 was added back to our operating budget. Incidentally, this suggester received $1,613 for his effort.

Either way a suggestion is made, the vehicle to get that idea for improvement known is the AF Form 1000. Don't let those good ideas slip away. Suggest and make our Air Force better.

The retreat ceremony was marked by several other events. Perry Bell, a member of the first pilot training class at Reese in 1942, was recognized. The retreat also featured several awards presentations and was held as part of preliminary graduation festivities for Reese UPT Class 92-09.

This was the last retreat at Reese for Col. Bill Henny, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. Colonel Henny will retire May 29 and be replaced by Col. David Love, currently director of personnel for Air Training Command.

Open house

magazine is free and will be available at numerous locations at the open house.

One change from last year's open house will be a substantial decrease in concession prices. For example, last year's $2.25 hamburger will cost $1 Sunday, and a 20-ounce soft drink that cost $2 will cost about 75 cents this year.

While the base gates are open to the general public, housing entrances will be strictly controlled. Housing's only open entrance will be the main entry. Lt. Col. Robert Grosvener, open house project officer, said people wanting to enter Reese Village must have a base registration sticker on their car, a valid identification card or a letter signed by a housing resident. Security police will turn away all others from the housing area.

Saturday's Career Day will start with briefings from 8 to 11 a.m. in the Simler Theater. Mandatory for student pilots, they will be given by teams from Military Airlift and Tactical Air Commands, who will brief on the new Air Combat and Air Mobility Commands.

Other briefers will be from the 9th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing, Beale AFB, Calif., and the special operations command according to Capt. Clay LaGrone, one of the career day project officers.

As part of career day, events later in the day will include a 2:30 p.m. F-15 fighter demonstration. Also, aircrews will be at their aircraft on the flightline answering questions from 12:45 to 3:30 p.m. Both these events are open to the base public, and Captain LaGrone said this would be a good opportunity for wing members to "beat the crowds" expected Sunday.

Mrs. Jones works on a volunteer display

Reese volunteer named tops in ATC

Ten years is quite a bit of time to give of oneself without compensation. That's what Dorothy Jones has given to Reese while working as a volunteer in the Family Support Center.

However, Mrs. Jones received some reward for her work when she was recognized recently as the ATC Volunteer of the Year.

According to Phil Thierry, family support center director, Mrs. Jones has been a valuable asset to the family services staff. "When you have someone that willing to give so much of their time for ten or more years, that's someone to be proud of," he said.

During the past year, Mrs. Jones distinguished herself in many ways.

She worked a total of 570 volunteer hours bringing her total volunteer time to 4,242.5 hours. She has served as the family services coordinator and has trained the present coordinator, as well as two other volunteers. She has also served as the brochure chairperson and as the host of two evening seminars held in the family support center.

A moment in history

Fifty years ago, as Reese (then Lubbock Army Flying School) continued to produce what would eventually be a total of 7,000 pilots during World War II, the war was raging across two oceans.

Hitler's war machine began preliminary offensives into the Soviet Union, a move that would eventually put the Third Reich in a two-front war. Meanwhile, the Battle of the Coral Sea raged from May 4 through 8 and during that time, Corregidor surrendered.

With the coming of June, so came the Battle of Midway, a decisive moment in the war.

Steve Warring, left, president of the Reese Federal Credit Union, and Hal Corbin, right, Chairman of the Board, congratulate Rusty Bryan and Leonor Rodriguez, recipients of the RFCU Academic Scholarships.

Reese Federal Credit Union recently awarded $500 scholarships to two students for their pursuit of higher education.

LEONOR RODRIGUEZ, daughter of Joe Rodriguez maintains a grade point average of 3.70 at Littlefield High School and plans to major in chemical engineering at Texas A & M.

Among Leonor's many accomplishments she has received the Ideal Student Award for physics, chemistry I and II, English and physical science. Leonor is also a member of the National Honor Society.

RUSTY BRYAN, son of Jerry and Glenna Wright, maintains a 3.75 grade point average at Smyer High School and plans to major in computer science.

Rusty is a member of the National Honor Society, Who's Who in Math, and student council.

Rusty has received all district and all state awards in football and basketball and is also involved in environmental awareness-recycling plastic and aluminum for the Smyer community.

These two fine students were chosen from a field of outstanding applicants by a committee of three judges. Each application was evaluated on the basis of recommendation letters, awards and honors, grade point average and service work.

Best wishes to this year's outstanding scholarship winners.

Mississippi Kites are back at Reese for their annual stay, and wing members are advised to be on guard in the areas where they are nesting, across the street from the front of the 64th Operations Group (Bldg. 930), the hospital pedestrian gate (near Bldgs. 1220 and 1225) and on parts of the golf course. Civil engineering officials said people should wear hats in these areas, since the kites attack the highest point on their targets. For more information, call Dennis Tate at 3484.

Heat stress tips offered

by SSgt. Jeanette Yiaris
64th Medical Squadron

Many workers spend some or all of the working day in the sun. Aircraft mechanics, gardeners, civil engineering folks and others often face hot conditions which pose special hazards to safety and health. Exercise and other "fun" activities such as tanning and picnics also expose people to the hazards of the sun.

Four environmental factors affect the amount of heat stress a person faces: temperature, humidity, radiant heat (such as from the sun or a furnace) and air velocity. One of the most important issues an individual faces is his or her personal characteristics such as age, weight, fitness, medical condition and their conditioning to the heat.

If the body cannot dispose of excess heat through sweating, moving to a cooler place or loosening some clothing, it stores the heat. Then the body's core temperature rises and the heart rate increases. As the body continues to store the heat, a person can experience heat stroke or heat exhaustion.

The person begins to lose concentration and has difficulty focusing. They may become irritable or sick and often lose the desire to drink. The next stage is usually fainting, and death can follow if the person is not removed from the heat stress.

Following a few basic precautions should lessen heat stress:

- Get used to the heat through short exposures.
 - Drink plenty of water even if you don't feel you need it.
 - Alternate periods exposed to the sun by resting in a cool area and wearing loose clothing.
- If someone shows signs of heat stress, immediately move them to a cool place and loosen their clothing. Medical attention should be sought for the person as soon as possible. Heat stroke, one of the most serious health problems associated with heat stress, can cause death if not treated immediately.

Remember, the best way to avoid any problems is to follow the precautions listed above. So have fun in the sun, but play it safe.

Quality performer

This week's quality performer is 2nd Lt. Bruce Upton. Lieutenant Upton is the traffic management officer in the 64th Logistics Squadron transportation flight.

The 32-year-old prior-enlisted C-130 loadmaster was commissioned through officer training school in September after completing his degree in industrial technology from Southern Illinois University.

Lieutenant Upton believes his prior time makes him better able to deal with his troops. "I think that I know how to trust my NCOs. I have a lot of faith in them," he said.

In his almost 13 years in the Air Force, Lieutenant Upton has a much longer travel log than the average second lieutenant. His assignments have taken him to England, Turkey, Crete, Germany, Spain, Italy, Japan, Philippines, Thailand, Korea, Honduras, El Salvador, Greece, Hawaii, Alaska, Texas, Nebraska and Arkansas.

His most recent experiences took him to the Middle East as part of Operation Desert Storm. There he served as a C-130 loadmaster before receiving his commission.

"You never understand what goes on behind the scenes when you're on the flightline," he said. "Now I understand what's going on and know what the aircrews need to get their job done."

He gives his troops the credit for the success he's had here at Reese. "We have the best military and civilian transporters in the Air Force here at Reese. They make my job a lot easier to do. I couldn't get my job done right if they didn't do theirs right. They deserve the credit."

He and his wife, Lois, have a one-year-old daughter, Merritt. In his spare time, Lieutenant Upton enjoys playing golf.

European drawdown discussed

by Army MSgt. Linda Lee
American Forces
Information Service

Don't cut U.S. forces in Europe to less than 150,000 people, Army Gen. John Galvin warned Congress recently. That figure is the minimum needed to meet treaty obligations and security requirements.

General Galvin, commander of the U.S. European Command, said a base force designated to meet specific European needs is complete.

"We have tailored this significantly smaller force to demonstrate our commitment to NATO, ensure regional stability, provide a hedge against uncertainty and maintain the infrastructure and logistical support for reinforcement or operations elsewhere," he said.

The Cold War is over. Former enemies look to the United States for economic help in rebuilding their governments and countries, General Galvin told the Senate Armed Services Committee. But it's not all good news.

"The disappearance of the Soviet threat has not brought assurance for peace and stability to Europe. Other disturbing forces have moved to the forefront," General Galvin said. "New freedoms unleashed by the removal of totalitarian governments have allowed a resurgence of old grievances." He cited recent examples including the ongoing open conflict in Yugoslavia and increased tensions in Russia and other former Soviet states.

General Galvin believes the world is growing smaller, threats are unclear and more varied, and the U.S. economy is too global and its resources too limited to allow withdrawal from Europe. "In short, American security remains indivisible from European political, economic and military stability," he said.

The United States turned its back on Europe following World War I, leaving an explosive situation that led to World War II. More than a half million Americans lost their lives in the two world wars.
