From my perspective

by Lt. Col. Joseph J. Contiguglia 64th Medical Squadron commander

ur goal at the 64th Medical Squadron is to provide as wide a range of quality services to our beneficiary population as our resources will allow.

To that end we are constantly looking for better, more cost-effective ways to provide medical and dental care.

We are extremely proud of the services we currently provide and know of no other small Air Force facility providing comparable services.

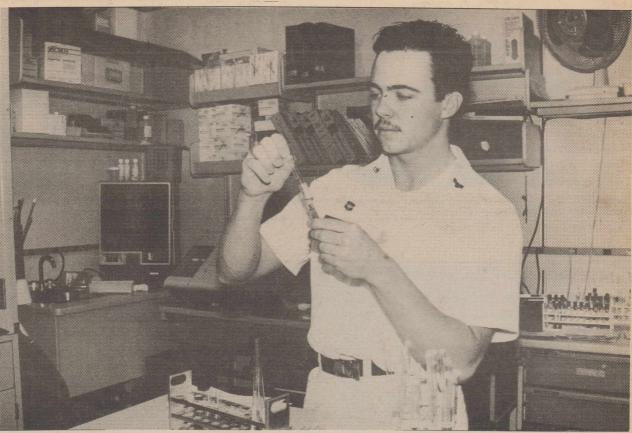

We now offer 15 different medical specialties through 23 partnership physicians. These include such specialties as allergy, dermatology, cardiology, orthopedics, optometry and ear, nose and throat. This past year we had 7,505 partnership visits. Having these specialties available at the base saved the government approximately $250,000 and our patients approximately $6 to $30 per visit, or close to $150,000, because the patient does not have to pay a cost share as they would if these services were obtained at a civilian medical facility through the CHAMPUS program.

This past year we started an ENT surgery program. This program has saved retirees and dependents from $200 to $1,000 per surgery.

Another new surgery program we initiated recently allows a military surgeon to travel on temporary duty from Sheppard AFB, Texas, to perform surgery here, rather than sending patients to Sheppard. This program will save TDY dollars for military members and traveling expenses for other beneficiaries. It will also reduce lost time from duty and eliminate family separation for medical care.

Our dental clinic has also been very active in providing a wide range of services to all of our beneficiary population. At the present time, 75 percent of the dental services provided at Reese are to non-active-duty personnel. This is well above the Air Force norm. One program, especially beneficial to our dependent and retiree population, is our oral surgery program in conjunction with our surgery department. This year about 14 surgeries per month were performed, saving each family approximately $1,000.

The men and women of the hospital are proud of their ability to support Reese's mission and provide top quality, compassionate care to the people of the Lubbock military community. They deserve your understanding, cooperation and support.

Reese vision: Reese people leading the way in supporting and training professional officers and quality pilots for the Air Force.

QI — Building on the best

What in the world is total quality management?

TQM, or quality improvement as it is referred to in Air Training Command, is a continuous effort to improve the quality of products and services to our customers.

Does this mean that Reese is not providing quality products and services? Not on your life! Reese and the excellent people who make up our workforce (military, civilians and contractors) continue to provide quality products and services.

Why all the emphasis on QI?

The Air Force is changing, and change provides opportunity. Essentially, no matter how good you are, you can always improve. There are always better ways of doing things — especially in these austere times of budget cuts and downsizing. QI is not here because of the budget cuts or downsizing — but it can help us improve our products and services in spite of these cuts.

QI is not just another program. It is a focus and a mindset. It is a focus on what we do for our customers and how we do it through mission accomplishment. It is a mindset that drives quality into everything we do and helps us to build on being the best.

In the next few months, you will hear more about QI. You'll hear about quality improvement teams and may even participate on one of these teams. You will also receive training on the "hows" and "whys" of quality improvement.

Future articles will demonstrate the quality that already exists, plus share new ideas.

The challenge to every member of the Reese community is — take the time to learn about QI and give it an honest and open evaluation. If you do, I am confident you will realize its value in accomplishing our mission.

As wing commander, I need to hear things "from YOUR perspective." Your inputs and suggestions can help Reese remain the pacesetter in the command. If you see something good, call me. If you have a problem that you feel needs my attention, call me. First, however, consider using your chain of command.

Dining hall kudos

I am calling to commend the Caprock Cafe for the outstanding Thanksgiving meal. I know it's a little bit late, but my family and I really enjoyed it. I would also like to pass on a well done for the Mexican lunch Dec. 11. It was a good change of pace and the food was great.

Thank you for your comments on the Thanksgiving dinner. The contract manager and employees of the Caprock Cafe were proud of the turnout of meal card holders as well as family members. The Mexican lunch with the Mariachi band was something new, and we will start making a point of having two special meals a month in the future.

Once again, we appreciate your comments and hope you continue to enjoy the Caprock Cafe.

Gym hours

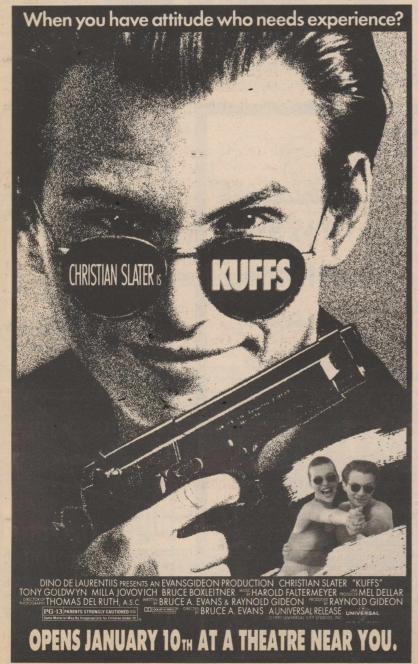

I was recently working out at the gym and noticed that the weekend hours are short. Is there any consideration being given to extending the weekend hours?

At this time we are not planning to extend weekend hours. We try to accommodate the needs of the Reese community by providing quality service and operating hours to serve the majority of users.

The current weekend and holiday hours of operation have been in effect at the center for many years. We have periodically attempted to establish longer hours of operation, but use of the facility during those extended hours was almost

Winter months increase potential fire hazards

by MSgt. Roy Napper Reese Fire Department

The winter season is upon us, and so is the potential for added fire hazards.

During the winter months, we tend to store more things away in closets, heaters run constantly, and are susceptible to carbon monoxide hazards, and may not even know it.

Home heating can result in fires in furnaces and portable heaters. To decrease the hazard of furnace or portable heater fires, change filters at least twice monthly. Dirty filters will ignite and burn rapidly. Donotstore paper, cloths or anything that is combustiblein the same closet with the furnace or water heater. If you do, you are asking for trouble. Walls can heat up and ignite certain items. Keep these items stored away from heat sources.

SUZUKI SIDEKICK

Stk. TN2310B $7,288, 48 months, 11.9% APR

As we close up the house to contain heat, we take a chance on carbon monoxide, or "CO," poisoning. CO is an insidious killer—it creeps in and you don even know it's there because you can't smell it and it doesn't make noise. You just get drowsy and then go to sleeppermanently in some cases!

Potential sources of CO are fuels used for burning (gasoline, utility gas, propane, charcoal, wood coal, oil or kerosene). They are used in stoves, ovens, clothes dryer, refrigerators, water heater, furnaces, portable heaters, hibachis, charcoal grills and fireplaces.

> Automobiles in enclosed areas are yet another source. If you are having problems with being dizzy, weak, or your head hurts every time you're around a particular appliance or are in a specific part of your home, you may be experiencing the first symptoms of CO poisoning.

If you have any questions on fire safety or prevention, call the fire department at 3311.

Two Reese airmen find true meaning of buckling up by TSgt. Rick Holland NCOIC, ground/explosive safety

Christmas held special meaning for A1C Raynee Knutson, 64th Medical Squadron, and Amn. Darryl Randall, 64th Civil Engineering Squadron. It's special because at approximately 4 a.m. Dec. 18 they were involved in a single car mishap that could have easily taken their lives.

Being a safety person, I often interview people who've been in mishaps, and write mishap prevention articles about them later. In writing these articles, I often find myself spicing them up to fit our needs. Instead of changing or adding things, we'll let their account of the mishap stand by itself. What follows are the words of Airman Randall:

"Raynee and I were driving from Lubbock to visit my relatives in Phoenix, Ariz. We left Shallowater at about midnight right after my leave officially started."

Airman Randall continued, "Raynee was driving and we were westbound on Highway 60 just outside of Socorro, N. M., when the accident occurred. I don't know how fast we were going, all I remember was that we were driving through the mountains when Raynee hit a patch of black ice. (New Mexico law enforcement officials estimated their speed between 55 and 60 miles per hour.) The car fishtailed to the left, then to the right. She ued to slide to the right, off the roadway and into a grassy shoulder. The car hit the grass sliding to the right and we started to roll over. The car rolled two and one-half times.

"When we stopped rolling, we were upside down. I unbuckled my seatbelt and crawled out of the passenger door on my hands and knees. Next, I got Raynee out of the car. We were shaken up pretty bad, but except for a few scratches and scrapes, we weren't hurt at all."

"I flagged down a truck and asked if he'd drive us into Socorro. In Socorro, we reported the accident to the local sheriff, and went to the hospital to have our cuts and scrapes looked at. I also called the base as soon as possible, told them about the accident and that both Raynee and I were OK."

After hearing Airman Randall's story, I asked him if there was anything about the trip or mishap that he'd do differently. He said, "Yes, I would definitely take a different route. A route that I was familiar with. Raynee and I always wear seatbelts," he said "and that's probably why we are here now telling you about the accident.

Their comments pretty much say it all. The couple planned their trip, got plenty of rest before leaving, changed drivers before tried to control the slide but the car contin- anyone got tired and they wore their seatbelts. Neither airmen planned on having an accident, yet they had a survival plan. Their plan was wearing seatbelts.

A traffic accident can occur any time, and any place. Are you prepared to survive one? Wear seatbelts, they do save lives. Just ask Airmen Knutson and Randall.

650 NCOs at risk of retraining

About 650 career noncommissioned officers will be at risk for involuntary retraining as the Air Force moves into the involuntary phase of the fiscal 1992 NCO retraining program, according to SSgt. John Slusser, noncommissioned officer in charge of classification and training, said.

Currently only two Reese members are affected by the risk of involuntary

The program started in late August with a goal of retraining about 2,550 staff, technical and master sergeants. The first two voluntary stages resulted in about 1,900 retraining applications approved for 74 percent of the goal, but eight career fields have come up short of the goal, he added.

NCOs in skills 452X4M, 452X5, 455X0B, 456X1B and 456X1 were notified of their risk status in September and encouraged to apply for retraining at this time.

The Air Force Military Personnel Center will then provide major commands with lists of eligible individuals in each of the eight specialities and establish the commands' involuntary retraining quotas for each skill.

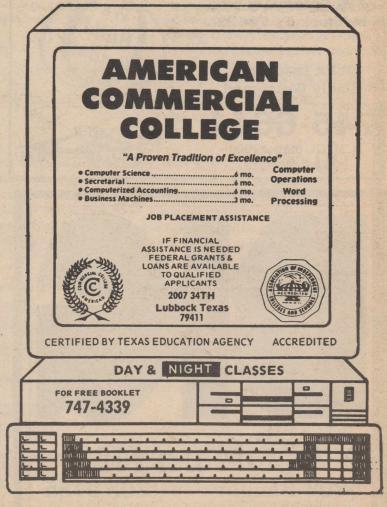

Command's then select and notify those who will be retrained. Individuals should be notified in mid-January.

NCOs selected can either submit a retraining application or ask for separation or retirement. Those who want to retrain can ask for up to three retraining CMSgt. Coy Martin (left) and MSgt. Rick Jimenez help Ada Jimenez show off her new technical sergeant stripes. She was promoted Dec. 20 under the Stripes For Exceptional Performers program.

Reese NCO STEPs up to tech sergeant

After studying for a lengthy amount of time to test for technial sergeant, Ada Jimenez, 64th Mission Support Squadron, doesn't get to take the test after receiving an early Christmas present Dec. 20.

Sergeant Jimenez was promoted to technical sergeant under the the Stripes for Exceptional Performers program.

"I didn't expect to be promoted under STEP since I didn't even know I was up for it," she said. "I was up for it the two previous years and was unsuccessful and it sort of discouraged me, but not my supervisor, MSgt. Marvin Brewer."

STEP is designed to accommodate unique circumstances which, in the commanders judgement, clearly warrants promotion. It is intended to provide a means to promote airman for compelling, although not perhaps quantifiable reasons.

As the consolidated training flight unit training manager, Sergeant Jimemez developed on-the-job training programs within all supported units insuring quality trained members were able to meet the wing mission.

Sergeant Jimenez was also noted for creating a formal training program in the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron and increasing training quotas from 0 to over 275 per year, ensuring members remain qualified in critical jobs.

She was also selected as a professional performer during the past unit effectiveness inspection for acheiving the highest standards.

The San Diego, Texas, native's efforts weren't restricted to work. She is currently enrolled at Wayland Baptist University and is three credits away from earning an educational and intsructional technology degree from the Community College of the Air Force.

Sergeant Jimenez is involved in both the on- and off-base community. This includes Catholic Women of the Chapel, her unitadvisory council, NCO Academy Graduates Association, Special Olympics and Easter Sergeant Jimenez still has time to spend with her husband, MSgt. Rick Jimenez, and their two children, Ric, 18; and Rolanda, 16.

Command of 64 SPS to change today

The reins of the 64th Security Police Squadron will change hands today during a 10 a.m. ceremony at the enlisted open mess hallroom.

Capt. Gerard Jolivette will assume command of the security police from Capt. Danny Thomas, who will depart for Headquarters, Military Airlift Command. Captain Thomas has been commander of the 64th SPS since March of 1986.

Captain Jolivette was previously commander of the 6009th Security Police Training Squadron, Clark AB, Philippines.

"The first impression I had when I arrived at Reese was the beauty of the base and the professionalism," said Captain Jolivette. "The base looks like it's new, and all the people that I've met have been first class."

Captain Jolivette said his primary goal in his new position is to take care of his people. "When your people are taken care of, it leads to mission accomplishment of the squadron," he said

His top goals for the squadron are to ensure a safe and secure environment for flight training and the families here at Reese, and secondly to be selected as the outstanding small security police squadron in Air Training Command. "I have a strong staff with a wealth of experience," he said. "We have the people and support to be the best, and that's what we are setting out to do."

Prior assignments include Whiteman AFB, Mo., Headquarters Security Police at Kirtland AFB, N.M., Headquarters Air Force Space Command at Peterson AFB, Colo., and Falcon AFS, Colo.

"I feel lucky that I was selected for this job," said the captain. "I am prepared to get the job done."

In 1985, Captain Jolivette was selected as the Air Force security police junior officer of the year

Captain Jolivette and his wife, Sheila have two children, Jonathan, 8, and Andranetta, 6.

Campaign contributions

The counsel to the president has recently submitted an opinion taking a conservative view of Title 18, Section 603, United States Code, interpreting the meaning of "employer or employing authority" for all members of any executive branch agency or department to be President Bush.

This means that all members of the United States Air Force, military and civilian, are precluded from making campaign contributions directly to President Bush or to his authorized campaign committee, "Bush — Quayle '92." Such contributions may be made by family members who are not federal employees. Further, federal employees may make contributions to other campaign committees that may indirectly benefit the reelection of the president

Mission maker

It's hard to believe that someone who works with computers enjoys spending time

MSgt. Harold McGrew, noncommissioned officer in charge of maintenance support, 64th Communications Squadron and a 21-year Boy Scout veteran, finds the time to enjoy both of his interests.

Sergeant McGrew, assistant scout master of Lubbock Boy Scout Troop 406, likes to get away from all the hassles and noise of everyday life. "All you have when you go camping is what you take on your back," he said. "It's a different way of life."

When not taking care of the wing's communications needs, Sergeant McGrew teaches electronics at American Commercial College. "I enjoy watching someone learn a trade," he said. "I like to pass along my knowledge of electronics, and it feels good to see others gain that knowledge."

Sergeant McGrew has been in the Air Force almost 20 years, and is looking to retire in June and teach electronics full time. He has been assigned to Reese for over three years.

"I like to show that we can work out any situation the wing may have with communications needs," the 39-year-old said. "We are such a small unit that we get to work with a little bit of everything the communications squadron does. I have been wanting to do this all of my career."

His past assignments include Elmendorf AFB, Alaska, SHAPE headquarters, Belgium, Offutt AFB, Neb., Keesler AFB, Miss., and Lackland AFB, Texas.

Sergeant McGrew has a bachelor of science in technical education from the University of Southern Mississippi.

He and his wife, Teresa, have two sons, Scott, 14, and Trever, 11.

Events to honor Martin Luther King

Two events honoring Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. will take place Wednesday at Reese.

A memorial service is scheduled for 11 a.m. in the chapel, and it will be followed by a luncheon at noon in the officers' open mess. Both events are open to the base. The luncheon costs $6.50, and R.S.V.P.s are due today. Reservations can be made by calling the professional military education center at 3147. The luncheon can be charged to club cards.

The guest speaker at the service will be Chaplain (Capt.) Don Ailsworth of Officer Training School, Lackland AFB, Texas. Guest speaker for the luncheon will be retired CMSgt. Dale Armwood, also of Lackland.

Both the service and the luncheon will include special presentations celebrating the life and beliefs of Dr.

Roundup Round

Recycling efforts dedicated to making world a better place

by 2nd Lt. Tom Kasych 64th Civil Engineering Squadron

(Editor's Note: Lieutenant Kasych wrote the following article from compiled information while assigned to 64th CES.)

Americans, for the most part, have always been concerned about the environment.

From Teddy Roosevelt setting aside lands in national parks to emission standards for our automobiles, environmental laws and regulations have been a part of our lives for a long time.

Recently, public interest has turned to the issue of ozone depletion by chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs) and other similar chemicals. Scientists have determined that the infamous ozone hole over Antarctica is caused by many kinds of pollutants, but the most damaging are CFCs.

These chemicals have enjoyed wide= spread use by industry in the areas of refrigerants and aerosol propellants. Recent international agreements and subsequent legislation by Congress have spelled the end for use of these materials. Under current plans CFCs will be phased out of commercial use by Jan. 1, 2000, and heavy taxes have been levied on their production until

The Environmental Protection Agency has developed a program of recovering, recycling and reclaiming the CFCs currently in use to help American industry and the environment. The reutilization of the CFCs can allow a lower CFC production and still support commercial use at the same

Air Training Command has started such a recycling program at its bases. Here at Reese, the transportation flight in logistics has received orders to procure recycling equipment to service its fleet of vehicles. Since Jan. 1, 1992, Reese was required to have proper equipment and individuals trained to use it.

Additionally, MWR's auto hobby shop and the BX service station have similar equipment and are obtaining the proper training. Civil engineering area maintenance units now employ a freon reclamation unit. They are able now to capture freon (another CFC) from air conditioning units and reuse it. Thus, they have eliminated the venting of freon to the atmosphere.

It is efforts such as this one that make a difference. ATC and Reese are genuinely concerned with the environment and our people. Our recycling efforts will demonstrate our dedication to making the world a better place live in.
